Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau for the past 16 years. In that role, he's helped strengthen the local, local and regional economy by generating more than $300 million annually and supporting nearly 7000 local jobs. He's been involved in numerous economic development projects, including $45 million redesign of the Long Beach Convention and Entertainment Center complex, the grand opening of Pacific Ballroom at the Long Beach Arena, the terminal modernization of the Long Beach Airport, and many high profile special events and and conventions. And we have one additional one I'll take a moment to recognize Councilwoman Gonzales. She has a statement to make. Yes, I will recuse myself. I know Adam is my partner in life and so I have to do that. And his family is all right here celebrating him today. So I will leave the room. No peeking. Thank you. So next we have an appointment to the Long Beach Transit Board of Directors, which is Adam Corio. Adam is a council district. One resident and is currently working is currently the economic development manager for the downtown Long Beach Alliance, where he works to support job creation efforts by attracting and expanding and retaining business in the downtown core. Adam is also president of the Long Beach Commercial Real Estate Council and was previously an advisory board member at BRP Inc. In addition, Adam has more than ten years of experience in the competitive advertising industry in developing and executing marketing strategies for numerous successful brands. So I want to. So we have a number of commissions here. Let's just give a round of applause to everyone here. Steve Goodling, Adam Carillo, all the appointments that are being made tonight. So at this point at this point, we're going to. Councilman Pierce, I see you queued up where you queued up to speak. Okay. Thank you. So next, we're going to go to public comment here. So the interesting public comment on any of their appointments, please come forward and you have 3 minutes. Any public comment? I filled out a card. Oh, no, no. This is public comment on this item alone on the appointments. Please come forward, Will. So I see three people. Four. Okay. Go ahead. Proceed, sir. Good evening. City Council Vice Mayor Robert Fox and executive director of the Council of Neighborhood Organizations for the City. We applaud the recommendation of Miss Lowenthal and Frank Colonna, who I've known for 37 years. Great people. They serve the city of Long Beach magnificently in all capacities. You couldn't get a better recommendation anywhere. And it brings me to my point. I was reading the city charter because this issue came up for me about appointments of commissioners, and it just says that you have to be a resident of the city of Long Beach. That sounds great, you know, but it doesn't say anything about time. Now, I know that Frank's been here all of his life since 1954, so that's not an issue for me. But when you're having a commission appointment, I wonder if we should take a study on the city charter and think about how long would it be reasonable to live in the city of Long Beach before you are appointed to a commission or to a committee? Or to be elected to City Council for run for city council or to run for the mayor. I thought with a few friends of mine and the presidents of neighborhood associations and we came up with different figures two years, three years, five years, whatever, but at least there was some time. And the reason for this is we want people who are familiar with the city of Long Beach have some provenance here and have some history. So they have some context to make reasoned judgments about. So rather than opposing anybody, I would just like to request perhaps that the Council bring into consideration a study on the city charter and perhaps come up with a recommendation in the future about how long someone should be in the city of Long Beach before they are recommended to a commission. And I hope that makes sense to you all. It certainly was sort of common sense to us. Thank you so much for your time. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, council members. My name is Christian Cooper. I am a third district resident in Long Beach for seven years. And I want to thank Mayor Garcia for this appointment to the Citizen Police Complaints Commission and the City Council for the consideration. I also want to acknowledge my mom and dad are here, Cathy and Grant and my partner Corey. So I want to thank them for being here. And this is my 10th year of practicing law, and I went into the law to serve the community. I work for Public Counsel, which is the Legal Aid nonprofit in Los Angeles. And I've been there for seven years, and I've really been looking for a way to increase my participation here in Long Beach. And so when I got a call from Tyler in the mayor's office asking if I was interested in this appointment, I said, absolutely. This is my first choice when I was, you know, looking at all the different opportunities to serve. And I really look forward to putting my background and experience to use and working hard for the Citizen Police Complaints Commission and for the city of Long Beach. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Warmed Lisowski. Long Beach Citizens for Fair Development. I wanted to continue on with the first gentleman, said the city code section 502 regarding residents for commission says that the at the time of his or her nomination an election should be illegal legally registered voter of the city and should have been a bona fide resident of the city for at least 30 days. Bringing this up specifically regarding the Planning Commission nominee. Sure. He's a great guy. He looks like he's done a lot of good work with the unions. But according to the Long Beach Report and the mayor's office statement, he's just recently moved to the city of Long Beach. So echoing what the first gentleman said, there probably should be a lo nger time than the Coates calls for the 30 days. Also notable is that a political action committee that Mr. Lafargue was on the leadership of gave a substantially large donation contribution of $40,000 to the mayor's measure A and B fund for for the passage of the tax measure. So I would like to point out this reporting done by a large report and note that this nomination, although some folks. Have asked. For a copy of the nominating documents to verify that Mr. Lafargue is a Long Beach resident, a bona fide Long Beach resident, we have not received that and the timing is questionable. It's certainly not the type of service that Mr. Colonna or assembly person Lowenthal have given to the city of Long Beach. So I think this council should consider possibly delaying that approval for that particular planning commission spot, because we should have the best people on the planning commission, the best possible commissioners, not one that possibly has moved to Long Beach in some type of political arrangement, quid pro quo or whatever the facts of the case may bear out. So that's our recommendation. Thank you. Thank you. Next week it was. Good evening, commissioners. My name is Michelle Grubbs. I'm the vice president of. Pacific Merchant Shipping. Association, and the PSA represents the customers and tenants at the port. As a follow on to what the gentleman just said earlier is. I'm here to support the nominations of. Frank Colonna and Bonnie Lowenthal, because we do have the best. We are lucky to have these two people that are willing to serve and have served for decades. We are pleased to be here to support them, and we know. That their heart's in the right place. They care about the residents and the. City of Long Beach. So look forward to it. Thank you. Thank you, Michel. Next speaker, please. Very good here. I echo the comments that are made by a number of people relative to making sure that we have people that have a thoroughly understanding of Long Beach and that we do not appoint somebody that. Instead, in lieu of people that have extensive records of knowledge and understanding and character that's consistent with the city and not do essentially what our mayor did last week famously captured on television as giving gave the middle finger, verbal middle finger to the concept that the residents of Long Beach are entitled to. Officials that are not corrupt. Period. And I to read that report and the the oh the stench from that. It's a continuation of a continuum of that epidemic of corruption that the mayor has endorsed and embraced, as we saw last week and about six weeks ago. So again, I echo the comments of the other individuals relative to selecting only those who have established an extensive record of knowledge and understanding. And residents within this city for any city commission or any city position. Thank you. Thank you. And so that concludes public comment. Any hour is able anyone else in line for public comment, please stand

e can close speaker list. All right. Thank you. Hi. My pen is an artist and he was painting outside one day, probably 15 years ago. And Francona walked up to him and asked him about his bicycle because he needed to you know, it was a it was a beta. So Francona, I remember him from my friend, practically homeless artist that needed help with the bicycle and he assisted him in that issue. So people like that I can deal with and I when he's at some commission and I see that that's the man that how my friend probably 20 years ago that's important to me so I just wanted to point that out. And thank you, Bonnie Lowenthal, also for all the work with the murals at the park. Thank you. Thank you. And so that concludes public comment. Before you read, I'll just say again, once again, congratulations to all of the appointees, you know, the folks in the audience. You raise concerns. But the reality is this is this every appointee on the agenda is qualified per hour charter. Is that correct? City Attorney Yes, they will. And they will take an oath and we will process them accordingly. And how long does it take to get up to speed and take and actually get seated in their seats? That that would depend on the process. And when they can complete their ethics training, take the oath, pass and take the background, etc.. So it depends on when we can get it all scheduled. Great. I, I know that everyone that's appointed, they step up because they want to do the right thing and they want to do the right thing for their city. No matter if you've been here a long time or if you're making a commitment to purchase a home, invest, engage here. So I have the best intentions to every single one of the commissioners. Look forward to working with them on all the commissions to make sure that we build the best deal that we can possibly have. Councilman Alston. Yes, thank you very much. I appreciate everybody's comments. I'd also like to just recognize the fact that the fact that these are new commission appointments. There were several people that were served in service of our city that are now outgoing commissioners. And I think we should show them the same level of respect to thank them for the service that they put forth on behalf of the city of Long Beach as well. So and one in particular was our current planning commission chair, Denita Van Horn, who was a is a make district resident and who has served our city for many years in that capacity. And I wanted to just personally say thank you to her publicly. Thank you. Thank you. So at this point, we can go ahead. And members, please cast your vote. And we're voting on Mr. City and we can vote on all of them together now. Right. That's correct. I'm 26. Fantastic. Motion carries. Thank you. Quickly, we're going to take a photo with all the commissioners. If you can just join us on the steps. We'll take a quick vote council. If you'd like to join us, now would be the time. I don't even remember a lot of myself. Okay. So we have substantial. But yeah, it's not that many of us. Or do you want to come up here? Yeah. It's not that, you know, I don't feel like doing it. Let's just get on the steps. Yeah. You know, people are people. And I know right under that where we drive. Good to see you. Thank you. That. I thought you would like that. Yeah. Yeah. Congratulations. All right. Thanks a lot to all our commissioners. We're going to proceed with the meeting. A city attorney says we still need to take one more vote on item 35. So, Madam Clerk, please bring up I'm 35 so we can vote on that. Great. Adam. 14. Report from Public Works, Parks, Recreation and Marine recommendation to adopt a resolution authorizing the city manager to execute a contract with game time for the purchase of playground equipment for a total contract amount not to exceed 546,000 districts one, four, six and seven. Great. And this is item 38. I know we want to do a short staff report because this is pretty exciting for those councilmembers I know that are getting the the new toy lot so Mr. West Marine Knight. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the city council. Yes, this is an exciting time for us because it's been a while since we've been able to replace so many. But we get tech services to have the presentation and the front, please. Thank you. Perfect. Continue. So the item before you tonight, there are four actually five playgrounds that are receiving measure funding. And the item this evening is for additional playground equipment that was not covered through a grant process for a Drake Park, Los Cerritos Veterans and Whaley. We're excited about these projects because what we are creating with these four parks is actually unique. Destination parks within are playgrounds within our park system. So each one of these four will have a different theme, and we hope that they will attract people from throughout the community to come to the different destination parks. So the plans include put in place rubber, surfacing new sand and play areas, ADA accessibility upgrades and some miscellaneous site furnishings like benches, hydration stations, etc.. So I'll run through the playgrounds. Drake Park Playground is going to be a butterfly garden playground with unique butterfly themed panels, some shade structures that will be in the shape of butterflies, vine climbers, nature benches, flower pedal steps and a log balance beam. So the hope is that children will want to go to the butterfly playground at Los Cerritos Park. It's going to be a treehouse and woodland theme with tree swings. It's going to have a zip line, hillside way of slides and a treehouse motif at Veterans Park. We're excited about this one because it's really more of a challenge obstacle course combined with a playground. So it really encourages children to do fitness while they're playing. They'll be climbing that structures a traverse, a freshwater floating boards and sway steps. So it is play equipment that really challenges kids. And I think it'

It'll be a really exciting element for that park and then it really park. As you know, we have our day camp at Whaley Park, which is our theater and our Music Day camp, and that's very popular. So we thought this would be a great place to have a music themed and science themed play structure with colorful play flowers, twisted climbing nets, xylophones and chimes and hand drums and other musical elements added to the play equipment. And in addition, although tonight's item does not include the Fifth Park that we will be doing to measure a funding is Jackson Park. And so we have a small playground there at Jackson Park, and we'll be able to replace that playground as well with the measure of funding Jackson Park. It's sort of. I didn't hear. Oh, sorry, I didn't hear the question. At the end. People were just people asking about the location. Oh, sorry. The timing. Because we did not want to take any of these playgrounds down during the summertime because kids are out of school will be starting in September. So we have up there for our veterans and Whaley. The project timeline, the big award will be in September. Construction will begin in October with a winter completion and draken lo cerritos. Better word will be October construction, November and completion in the winter as well. That is our brief staff report here for any questions. I'm going to have a motion in a second. But to turn to them in a minute, because I just wanted to thank your work on this. These five playgrounds will be probably the best five playgrounds we have in the whole city. And it's a start of of that measure piece that we set aside to redo playgrounds across the city and kids from across the entire city are going to enjoy these, which are going to be spectacular play areas for kids. And so I just want to ensure that we are moving along so that the community can see the results of their of their taxes and ensuring, as construction happens, that we're adequately signing the park so that people know that that their dollars are being put to work on these projects as well. I know that's in the works. As well, so. Thank you for that presentation. Councilmember Superfan. Thank you. And thanks to every night for also providing that timeline. That's the number one question we get. So if you could just reiterate that it makes perfect sense that you didn't want to impact the summer programs, you didn't want construction going on in high use times of the park. So for Whaley, at least, it's a fall project for the construction, as I understand it. That is correct. Okay. Thank you. Fall as in this fall or the next fall? No, this fall. Okay, good. These are going to be next fall for sure. With our partners in Public Works, these are all scheduled to be completed by the end of the year. Okay, that's that's good. Councilman Gonzalez. Yes? I just want to say thank you for these parks. Playgrounds. I think this is fantastic for all of us. And the very first thing, of course, Willmore asked for is w hen is the playground coming in? So there's this great timeline, and I appreciate the work for both of you. Thank you. Councilman Price. This is fantastic. I love that there's distinct play areas that all the different parks and I think it's going to be great for the city moving forward. Do we have a plan of what the next priorities are for playground equipment replacement? So we have several other playgrounds that are in the queue for replacement. We just received the the housing and neighborhood grant from the state, and that's going to allow us to do two more playgrounds. So we've identified our playgrounds from the perspective of our health and safety needs first. And so we have a playground at Peace Park in the First District that is desperately in need of a redo. And so we're going to be able to do that with a grant. We also have a playground at Martin Luther King Park that will also be accomplished with that grant. And then we are continuing to look for other funding sources. We do not have anything identified in the second year of Measure A, and I don't believe the third year either for any future playgrounds. So we'll be continuing to look for outside grant funding to help us with that. I think that's great. I think that's a really good idea. And we've we've talked a lot about making sure that we have kind of modern facilities throughout the city and modern amenities for all of the residents. So to the extent that we can, even if we need to put up some matching funds, I think that's really important. But of course, the more we can enhance the areas that need it the most, the better. But if we can look at it from a citywide perspective, I think that would be great because I know that in some of the districts we've had some of the playground equipment fall apart and we've kind of, you know, improvised. So there's pieces that don't really belong, but they're, you know, kind of tacked on to a slide and different color and everything. And so that starts to look a little shabby. So if we can try to no reflection at all on Prime, you guys do an amazing job. But if we can start to think about how we can enhance all the playground spaces, that would be great and maybe kind of how much they're utilized. And and that that might be a factor that we put into the prioritization as well in terms of what park are being most utilized. So thank you. Thank you, Councilman Orson. Yes. This report and item is music to my ears. We've been advocating and working very hard to get new playground equipment at North Cerritos Park and Jackson Park and other parks for some time to councilmember price point. I think once these playgrounds are are put in place, it's going to kind of push the council to have to do more in terms of improving the quality of our playgrounds, throughout in parks, throughout our parks, because these playgrounds are going to set a new standard for play equipment in our city. And so thank you. Look forward to having some world class park s and improvement on what we have. Thank you. Thank you. And I think that it's a good you know, when the council starts discussing additional imagery dollars in the future. I also think I'm a I love putting money to playgrounds. I think that is one of the best uses we could do for emergency funds. And so we should talk about that, I think in the future. Any any public comment on this? Seeing none. Go ahead, members. Custer votes. Motion carries. Motion carries. Thank you. Number 22, please. Report from Long Beach Airport. Recommendation to approve an update to Long Beach Airport Minimum Standards for aeronautical activities District five. Thank you. How about a brief staff report? Just Romo can handle both item 22 and item 23. They're both airport. Related. Good evening, Vice Mayor, members of Council. The item before you is a request to update the airports minimum standards. Essentially the provisions developed by at airports sponsor to ensure the safe, efficient and adequate services are available to aeronautical users. They must be reasonable and not unjustly discriminatory in line with FAA policies. And they should also be periodically updated. Which is why we're bringing them forward for your consideration. And it's part of our effort to support the overarching. Goal of leveling the playing field among all the aeronautical businesses at Long Beach airports. I'm here to answer any questions you may have on this item. Thank you, Counsel Mulder. I appreciate meeting with you on this. And I am glad we're updating the standards for pre-check. It's keeping ahead of it. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Fantastic. Any public comment on this item saying no members, please cast your vote. Madam. Item to, item to. Let's have item number two. Please report from financial management recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record to conclude the hearing and grant an entertainment permit with conditions on the application of the good bar and eatery at 3316 East Seventh Street for Entertainment Without Dancing District two. Thank you, Mr. City Manager. Our Deputy City Manager. We have an oath right now. City Attorney. I'll give that to Kevin. Okay. Kevin Okay. Got it. Okay. Thank you. Vice Mayor. Thank you. City Manager West We before we get started, like to have the clerk administer the oath on the side. Can the appellants please stand? Thank. Do you and each of you solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the cause now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so. Help you God. Okay. Thank you, city clerk. The staff presentation tonight is going to be delivered by Miss Sandy Palmer, purchasing and business services manager for the Financial Management Department. I'll just turn it over to Sandy. Good evening, Honorable. Vice Mayor and members of the City. Council. Tonight you have. Before you an. Application. For Entertainment Without. Dancing for Toshiko LLC. Doing business as t he good bar and eatery located at 3316 East Seventh Street operating as a bar tavern lounge in Council District two. All the necessary departments have reviewed the application and are provided their. Recommended conditions as. Contained in the hearing packet. I, as well as the police department, stand. Ready to answer any questions. Council may have, and that concludes staff's report. Thank you. Was there any public comment on this hearing? Now will be the time to come forth. Thank you. State your name. You have 3 minutes to address the council. Sure. My name is Andy Carter. I'm one of the partners and owner of the Good Barn Eatery. This is my business partner, and he's also a business owner of the Good Barn Eatery with his mom. That's right up there. She's one of our business partners and his wife. We are Long Beach residents, born and raised, went to school here, went to college here. Now we have some small families here. We have multiple businesses here. Him and his wife also on a very successful salon, but I'm not sure. My wife and I are on a speech pathology clinic up in Bixby because we have one in Garden Grove as well. I own a real estate investment holding company and we just love 100. So we spend all the time, all our money in Long Beach. We're just super grateful to have the opportunity to have this like wonderful places. But since early sixties, you know, just kind of continue. It wasn't the nicest place in the neighborhood for a long time. We busted our butts and got it really cleaned up and made it really nice. We actually went out and got some really nice chefs from Long Beach to kind of come in and do all of our consulting for our menu. And all of the neighbors are thrilled because they wouldn't go in there before it, and now they're in there maybe once or twice a week. So it's been really nice. Does he do anything. That, you know, they had an entertainment. License there since the beginning, and we're just trying to continue on. Unfortunately, entertainment licenses are not grandfathered in and it's a new license every time we've had it for just a little over a year. And we're looking forward to providing a place for music and entertainment for Long Beach, which I think Long Beach really needs more places like that. And right now, is it a good bar? Okay. Councilmember Pierce. Yes. I thank you guys for coming tonight. I used to live across the street from the bull bar. Yes. So I did dare to go in. Right. And I have been in your establishment several times. The Seventh Street Collaborative actually holds their meetings there. And you guys have done a fantastic job with programing, with food, with everything. And so I wholeheartedly support this and look forward to seeing you guys continue your success. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Collect to see. People from Long Beach, you know, investing and continuing to invest. So I'm sure you'll do great. And great success to. You. Congratulations. Thank y ou. Thank you. So I probably should have closed the hearing before they spoke, but the hearing is now closed. Thank you. So seeing no further public comment or council comment members, please cast your vote. Motion case. Congratulations. Thank you, Madam Clerk. Let's move to item number 16, please. Now, let's do public comment. Let's do public comment. Beginning of the council meeting. So we have a number of speakers here. I'm not sure who's still here, but we'll go ahead and read through the list. So, Mr. West. Mayor, council members, we appreciate being here tonight. So what we're going to start with is three more budget presentations. It's the third budget hearing that we've had to talk about departments. So we are want to talk about you're going to hear from library first, then you'll hear from Health and Human Services. Then you're going to hear from disaster preparedness and emergency communication. So again, you see our Continuum of care sign. We want to make sure that that's clear, that we consider specifically library and Health and Human Services as a vital part of the continuum of care, helping the fire department, the police department and disaster recovery department to work on public safety. So it's all integrated and they work very, very well together. There's no silos here. And again, we do want to stress the public safety continuum. So with that, I'm going to turn it over to our librarian, Glenda Willie Williams, who will start the presentations. Glenda. Thank you, Mr. West. Good evening to Arnold, Maria Garcia and members of City Council. Thank you for this opportunity to present to you the proposed FY 18 budget for the Library Services Department. WILLIAMS Can we actually move her mic down? It's going to make sure that everyone in the audience can. Thank you so much. Okay. I better. Thank you. Sorry. We are proud to partner with our families city departments as part of the public safety continuum. And what is the library departments role to achieve safety for our community? According to our police department, there are three sides to public safety prevention, intervention and suppression. Our role is prevention. Many studies have shown that there is a correlation between literacy and crime. 85% of youth in juvenile hall cannot read above the third grade level. That's 85%. Here's another stat. It is estimated that every two out of three children that cannot read by the fourth grade will either go to jail or be on welfare. And this is not the dream that we have for any of our children. The good news is, is that there is a correlation between literacy, the availability of books in the home, and reading aloud to children, children with access to books perform better in school and have improved math scores. It is true kids who read succeed. The statistics for adults are also sobering. Studies show that 60% of inmates are illiterate. That's 60%. Once inmates have served their time and are released, 70% will return to prison if they d o not become literate. So you see, statistics show that a small investment in literacy through library resources can yield a huge results and help keep our city safe. Here we go. Looks like we flexed our core services. The Long Beach Public Library is committed to meeting the learning and information needs of our culturally diverse and dynamic population. We take pride in providing public service. We offer a wide selection of resources and materials representing all points of view. We support learning for a lifetime intellectual curiosity and free and equal access to information for babies and children, to adults and seniors. We utilize specialized technology to provide information and educational resources for our residents, including individuals and families with special needs. And we have the main library and 11 neighborhood libraries conveniently located throughout the city to serve our community. 2017 has been a busy and exciting year for the Long Beach Public Library of our many accomplishments. The library was awarded the 2017 National Medal by the Institute for Museum and Library Services, which is the highest honor for a museum or library given annually to outstanding institutions, making exceptional contributions to their communities and demonstrating extraordinary and innovative public service approaches. The community's use of the new Michelle Obama Neighborhood Library in its first year of operation has been remarkable. Visits increased 70%. Materials checked out increased 55%. Attendance and classes and events increased 90%. And public computer use increased 71%. I might also add that the Michelle Obama Library was also awarded two noteworthy building construction awards by the American Public Works Association and the Construction Management Association of America. We are proud of our notable library statistics. About half of our population is a library card carrying member that has access to use 7 million resources and asked almost 300,000 questions, while 1.2 million people physically walk through our doors this year. Many residents take advantage of our 13th Branch library, the virtual branch to download materials or use our Go Lipo Mobile app to perform searches and access their accounts. Our virtual branch provides 24 seven anytime, anywhere access. Our community contributions are largely successful because of our collaboration with our community partners, including the Long Beach Unified School District, the Long Beach Community Action Partnership Site, Long Beach. We are the next Microsoft YMCA, early childhood education, Preschool Without Walls and the WICK program at St Mary's Hospital, just to name a few. Additionally, several stem that science, technology, engineering, math workshops and workshops and events were hosted are free. Maker Camp lasted four weeks in three locations during the summer and encouraged tinkering, thoughtful design and entered the year in shape for our youth. A daylong Polynesian culture event was hosted with grant funding and has continued on a monthly basis at the Michelle Obama Library. As part of our Ongoing Cultural Conversations program, which celebrates our city's diversity and partnership with the Departments of Parks, Recreation and Marine, the launch of the library program was at two locations this year. Our popular annual Summer Reading Club attracted more than 6000 children, teens and adults. The second year of the career online high school program is underway. We have about 60 students enrolled. Ten students have met all requirements. And we're looking forward to honoring our first graduation class in a ceremony this fall. We have three new series of development workshops at the Michelle Obama Libraries by the city's My Brother's Keeper Local Action Plan, and we were happy to support a daylong Youth Spark event in partnership with Microsoft and the city's innovation team for Washington and Hamilton. Middle School Students Interested In Computer Coding. The Long Beach Public Library has partnered with three local universities to host interns, enrolled in a master of library science graduate programs. And our mobile library services are on a roll. We launched the highly successful mobile studio program through the grant funds given to the Long Beach Public Library Foundation, along with our Speed Reader Library Bike. We are now able to provide library services at our schools, community centers and events throughout our city. Technology is extremely important. Improvements in this area include the next phase of the network equipment upgrade in the libraries to realize faster Internet speed. Upgrading our wireless access points to handle increased demand. Upgrading assistive software and hardware and the Information Center for People with Disabilities and Michelle Obama Library and completing the upgrade of the telephone notification and renewal systems available soon in English and Spanish. The proposed F 18 library total budget is approximately 14.2 million, 96% of which is from the general fund and includes approximately 126 full time equivalents or 175 employees for 12 locations. Grant dollars are provided mainly by the Long Beach Public Library, which funds all of our family learning centers. The studio at Main Library and the Michelle Obama

Library, our new mobile studio and other initiatives. We would not be able to provide this critical services without their assistance. The proposed FIA 18 budget for the library is relatively flat with little changed. It is proposed to continue open hours on Sundays at four neighborhood libraries Bayshore, BURNETT, Michelle Obama and El Dorado. Since the hours were added, we've noticed a significant increase in library attendance at these locations. Lastly, measure a library projects in fiscal year 18 include facility improvements at several libraries, including age, fact hearing loops and other building improvements . Some challenges for the Long Beach Public Library is facing includes k

eeeping up with service demands, part time and non-career employee turnover and aging facilities. While it's exciting to share that most of all of our library events and workshops are at maximum capacity, unfortunately, staff find themselves turning away people from participating in our free workshops and events because we simply cannot accommodate the demand. We would also like to participate in more community events, including all of the wonderful back to school nights at the Long Beach schools. But we just don't have the resources. Part time and non-career employee turnover is also a growing concern for us, averagely averaging approximately 28% annually for the past six years . Lastly, most library facilities are more than 50 years old, so keeping up with facility maintenance has become increasingly difficult. Roof leaks that occur when it rains or increase are an increasing concern for our libraries. The leaks penetrate the buildings and result in mold, damaged walls and damaged books that must be thrown away. On a more positive note, there are some great opportunities nearby at the Long Beach Public Libraries continuing to plan for the new main library anticipated to open in the summer of 2019. With that, the library will also continue to continue building a 21st century library system, including launching our new El BPL dot org website that's currently in development. Investigating a point of sale system allowing patrons to pay library fees and fines online and in person with credit cards, continue to measure library infrastructure improvements and implement the new 2017 2020 2020 Strategic Plan, which focuses on serving the needs of our community, supporting youth to development and prudent communication, and positioning the library as a public education institution to ensure library patrons and staff staff safety. Additional library specific safety and emergency training classes will be provided. Lastly, we will continue to provide innovative library classes, events and workshops for our community because we are not satisfied with the status quo. It is a pleasure to work with the women and men at the Long Beach Public Library to improve the quality of life of our residents. Their dedication, passion and support allow us to assist our community in meeting their personal and educational goals. Also, thank you, Mayor Garcia and the City Council for your direction and leadership to allow us to serve our community. This concludes the library a fy18 budget presentation. I am available for questions if you have any. Thank you very much. And we're going to do all the questions after all the presentations. And so we'll move on now to our next presentation, which is going to be from Health and Human Services. Good evening, honorable mayor, vice mayor and City Council Members. Thank you for this opportunity to present the budget for the Department of Health and Human Services. First, I'd like to recognize my team members who are here in the audience.

They're spread throughout who make it all and all that. I'm going to share with you possible their bright, committed and caring team and they are so passionate about their work. I appreciate them fully and know that the Health Department would not be where it is today without them. I also get to come to work every day and see young babies and children in our fourth year because they're coming in for their birth certificates and work and seeing those children every day and having our meetings interrupted by children's laughter helps ground us in our work and keeps us moving every day. The Department of Health and Human Services continues to be part of the public safety continuum. We do this through a broad array of early prevention programs, as well as our homeless services programs. These programs include nurse family partnerships, black health, public health, nursing, fatherhood, family preservation, early childhood education, healthy active, Long Beach Work led prevention and abatement , child health and disability prevention programs, violence prevention, and many more. We know that working closely with our families early in a child's life to build strong parenting skills and relationships, educating and supporting for healthy babies and children. Ensuring children are safe in their homes and in their communities as well as connecting to reading and educational opportunities helps prevent crime, violence and homelessness in the future. It is a long term prevention strategy. When children do well in early life and are successful in school and employment, they are far less likely to commit crimes or become homeless as adults. As you consider definitions of public safety, please remember that prevention strategies are essential for the success of Long Beach. Research estimates that for every dollar spent on prevention, there is a future cost saving of $7. In addition, there's a $16 return on investment for every dollar spent in early childhood through Measure A and Measure M. There may be opportunities to support the broader definition of public safety to include these important prevention strategies. These are core services for our city when it comes to public safety. Until these investments are made, costs will continue to grow and we will continue to act instead of prevent. The Health and Human Services Department provides over 30 programs in nine sites around the city. Together, these services focus on building and supporting healthy communities, families and individuals from prenatal to old age. Many people connect us primarily with homeless services. That's most of our phone calls and restaurant inspections. But we do so much more. The Health Department is one of the most diverse departments in our city. Programs range from bioterrorism surveillance to providing housing and assisting homeless nutrition education to STD and HIV surveillance and treatment. Testing samples in a lab to family planning restaurant and water inspections to violent ce prevention. My Brother's Keeper to vector control and so much more. We promote healthy living. We increase safety in neighborhoods, homes and businesses. We provide housing and homeless services. We work closely with our federal, state and local partners to prepare for public health emergencies. We increase access to health care and community supports. We prevent, treat, investigate and control communicable diseases. In addition, we staff five commissions Health and Human Services, the Human Services Advisory Commission, Housing Authority Commission, Human Relations Commission and the New Veterans Commission. We have a first list of accomplishments this year. We provided over 350,000 public health visits, all free or at low cost. To do this, we brought in over $87 million of funding from outside of our city. For every city dollar spent, our department leveraged $295 in services from outside funding. Last year, we ensured safe environments through food inspections, food safety inspections, water testing, communicable disease investigations, lab test vector control, and public health emergency management efforts. We also developed medical marijuana, dispensary inspection and licensing protocols. We are a national model to counter bioterrorism and response to health emerging issues such as the Zika virus. Our partners include the Department of Homeland Security, the FBI, State and County Emergency Organizations, and our fire police departments, emergency operations. We engage in support of the city's livability initiatives by leading the Street Pedestrian Safety Plan, participating in the Bicycle Master Plan, and bringing in additional funding from Otis and Skog to implement bike and pedestrian safety courses. We acted. We effectively aligned safe Long Beach and equity efforts in the Health Department and Urban, the Office of Equity to implement an equity framework for the City of Long Beach. The Office of Equity has, as My Brother's Keeper, the Language Access Program and the Human Rights Commission. To date, the office has led a team of 12 city departments and council offices, and the Governing Alliance for Race and Equity implemented citywide implicit bias training for city leaders and staff, and are now training over 690 sworn police officers. Hosted the My Brother's Keeper Regional Summit where over 200 people attended to share practices and plans for future work for boys and men of color, providing interpretation services for nearly 100 requests and translated 200 documents. It is also partnering with our Economic Development Department to support the economic inclusion strategy of the economic blueprint. Safe. Long Beach continues to lead the violence prevention plan focused on safe communities, schools and families. Through these efforts, the team has hosted eight community police academies, engaging 103 Community 183 community members and four community police dialogs. It has also provided informed training to representatives of over 80 organizations, training over 1300 people. We co-sponsored Agent Reimagine, Ruskin, Cal State, Long Beach and our Parks, Recreation and Marine, bringing together partnerships from throughout Long Beach to learn more about and share ideas for supporting older adults in our city. We've also made significant contributions to the Long Beach economy through our programs. Overall, we reinvested $73 million back into our community through with food vouchers in local grocery stores, rent payments to apartment owners, and another 3.6 million to local community based organizations as subcontracts. We also hosted three conferences this this year, bringing in hundreds of overnight visitors. I'd also like to highlight accomplishments specific to our homeless efforts. We led the biannual count this year and found a 21% reduction in persons experiencing homelessness and 26% reduction in the chronically homeless population. This is a time when surrounding jurisdictions have seen increases. We've done this through an incredible, coordinated partnership with our city and county. This year, we housed 483 people, including 131 veterans, and provided nearly 15,000 languages to services, provided 55 million in rental assistance to more than 6000 families and over 700 vouchers for veterans. We also developed landlord incentive kits, another financial incentive for apartment owners. We hosted a homeless summit with over 100 attendees representing community partners across the city and the region. This led to an agreed upon definition of success for homelessness in our city and cross-agency work groups focused on creating a public education campaign, hospital discharge planning, short term housing solutions, and a faith based summit. We can't talk about homeless services successes without focusing on how we get the work done and with the resources. Overall, we were able to secure $8.2 million in outside funding sources, as well as negotiate 2.6 million of measure each month for the city, for the continuum of care, and for the housing authority. And we were able to extend $500,000 for veterans or homeless veterans initiative. Our budget is just over $123 million. 2% of this comes from the general fund. This increase from 1% last year due to the move from violence prevention and equity into the department and the medical marijuana programing. It is a half percent of the city's overall budget. We bring in 23% of our budget through grants. We rate 12% through health fees, permits and realignment. 62% comes from the Housing Authority through HUD and 1% from Cooper. Notable changes in our budget this year is $125,000 structural for homeless services. This has been one time in the past. It is now structural and ongoing. It will help support outreach efforts across the city. We are also seeking $110,000 one time to initiate the Office of Aging. This position will provide this coordination is absolutely essential to begin the office and will be leveraged to access grant funding to support ongoing efforts for older adults in our city. We also received $150,000 one time for cleanups of unsanctioned medical marijuana facilities. In addition, we'll be accepting additional grants for tobacco education. We've been at about 150,000. We're now going to be at a million. So it's an $850,000 increase in support in tobacco education coming from the state. We're receiving increases for public health, emergency management and Zika response, as well as $300,000. New money from the Office of Traffic Safety and Skog for Bike and Pedestrian Safety and 239,000 from the Office of Traffic Safety for a drug impaired driving campaign. All right. Team budget includes realignment of several grant funded positions to reflect operational and service needs and the elimination of several vacant positions to reflect funding availability. Our challenge is focused on trends and public health that need to be addressed, such as increasing STD and HIV rates in the city. We've had over 100% increase in syphilis and gonorrhea in the past two years, and we are the second highest in the state of California. We must focused on this work. We are also heavily focused on mosquitoes that carry Zika, West Nile virus and other harmful diseases. So far, we've had no local transmission of Zika. We want to make sure it stays that way. Criminal justice reforms without sufficient resources to address impacts continue to impact our city. And as always, challenges for a primarily grant funded organization focused on sustainable funding. Funding for our Office of Equity, some safe Long Beach programs and others will end this year and we are seeking additional resources. In addition, our increasing overhead costs and pay increases are not covered by grants, and we're forced to reduce service levels to cover these costs. We run approximately 110 grants and sub grants every year and respond to 100 program and fiscal audits annually. The lack of sufficient administrative resources actually limits our ability moving forward to build a grant base. Writing, managing and monitoring grants is labor intensive. In addition, funding priorities at the federal level have been changing, and local funding is becoming more competitive. Grants can be part of a funding strategy, but it can't be the only strategy. Our department has many antiquated and disparate data systems, which makes coordinating services and utilizing technology for efficiencies nearly impossible. In addition, our facilities have seen no improvements in many years and are struggling. We have about $2 million in need. Facility improvement costs are also not covered by grants. We do not have a peer or communications person for our health department and we have many requests from you all and from others about getting information out in public education campaigns. And those are currently done by a mishmash of staff doing their best as an added as an added service. Our challenges for homeless services. As with the ove rall department, we have little administrative staff and a lot of new requests for programing and service. We have limited housing stock in our city and insufficient behavioral health resources to impact the ability to assist individuals who are homeless. And there's a lack of funding for a 24 hour and we can services at the MSI. This is something that is often discussed by this council as well as those in the community. Our opportunities really stem from strong partnerships we have within our city and across our region. These partnerships have made it possible to provide homeless services, engage in livability efforts, open a behavioral health, urgent crisis, center criminal justice diversion efforts focused on mental health and substance use, and to move forward on older adult planning and so much more. We will be receiving funding in the safe language this year to lead trauma informed efforts across the city. Building on our work of the past year, we continue to seek opportunities for improved data and reporting to inform our work. The implementation of administrative Regulation 832 is very important to these efforts, as are the efforts of the innovation team and the data driven justice initiative. Organizationally, we've realigned our department programing and filled all of our management positions. We've updated our strategic plan. We've redesigned our grants process for increased efficiencies. And we all received $650,000 a measure eight funds for building improvements this year. We will also be receiving funding from the state under a new effort to provide dental education. This will start in January. The local partner and funder interest in older adults is a real opportunity for older adults in the city as we seek to open the Office of Aging. And finally, we are participating in a national All Children Thrive effort where we seek to improve the lives of and health of all children in the city. This includes developing indicators for the city that highlight opportunities for success of our children, which would be led by our equity office. Currently, our city has not had a strong focus on our youngest children. Yet there is a focus and interest and most important to ensure children start early childhood education in school, ready to learn and engage . As the department, we are providing services to our youngest and most vulnerable children through programs discussed earlier. There is much we can do together to more fully support children across our city. You'll be hearing much more about this moving forward, and I'll be asking for your support to help host community meetings on this topic. For homeless services. We have had one of the most effective, coordinated efforts in the country, and our partnerships are expanding. We have a strong, inter-departmental team, including health, police, fire parks and public works. This team meets officially at least every month and talks almost daily. We are partnering with the Dolby to develop a public education campaign which will include an airport coin drop. We are engaging a few fellow to focus on data supportive programing and financing strategies and we're planning for a year round shelter. These, in addition to the 2.6 million from L.A. County, will help us continue to strengthen our citywide approach. Thank you for your time this evening. We look forward to working closely with you and our communities to continue to build and support a healthy, safe and vibrant language. I am available for questions. Thank you very much for that report. I will move on to the next presentation, which will be disaster preparedness and emergency communications. And then we'll be going to the city council for questions. Thank you. Thank you, Mayor. Vice Mayor. Members of the City Council. It is my pleasure to present the FBI 18 proposed budget for the Department of Disaster Preparedness and Emergency Communications. This department plays a critical role in the public safety continuum. As we present this budget, we are reminded that this past winter was one of the wettest winters in recent Long Beach history. We received over three inches of rain over a 24 hour period. And as was stated last week by the Public Works director, those rains overwhelmed our stormwater infrastructure. The 911 dispatchers handled over 5000 calls for police, fire, flooding and tree removal services. During that time, the storms required the activation of the emergency operations center over several days and the collective efforts of all city departments to manage storm impacts. Damages from the storms to city facilities and property exceeded $3 million, including the loss of over 155 trees in our parks and parkways. Damages to 36 vehicles and at least 13 structures, both public and private, were damaged. Storm damages also required the evacuation and subsequent major rehabilitation of the Parks, Recreation and Marine Department headquarters building. Those losses were all submitted to FEMA for reimbursement, and we are finalizing our work with FEMA to determine our reimbursable amount. Our goal for the city is to be self-sufficient for at least five days in the event of a disaster. That is, to have five days of supply of water, food and basic first aid items on hand. Disaster preparedness begins with the personal preparedness of our residents, businesses, our employees and community partners, including our school district hospitals, Long Beach, City College and Long Beach State University. We live in a complicated world in terms of disaster preparedness, and we want our residents to be prepared. Through the department's core goals. We touched the lives of our residents in many important ways. We prepare for and provide disaster preparedness, training for all hazards to our staff, residents and community partner organizations. We ensure that citywide emergency preparedness plans are up to date and consistent with county and federal planning documents. This past year, we managed $14 million in Homeland Security grants to pay for citywide disaster preparedness training and to and to purchase required equipment. We provide our residents with public safety dispatchers who are well-trained, skilled and customer service oriented. And, of course, the department is responsible for notifying the public in the event of an emergency or major disaster. And we encourage all residents to sign up for alert Long Beach to receive emergency notification messages. And therefore 17, the department accomplished many of its goals, including the 911 dispatchers handled over 800,000 calls for service last year, resulting in dispatching over 300,000 personnel and equipment. The average call answering time was within the industry standard of 10 seconds. Staff facilitated the completion of continuity of operation plans with all city departments to ensure the timely resumption of city operations and services in the event of a major emergency or a disaster. FEMA approved the city's natural hazardous mitigation plan to identify and provide mitigation measures for our most probable manmade and natural disasters. Without this approval, the city would not have been eligible for damage reimbursement of funds. And in March, staff conducted the city's first annual Tsunami Walk and Resource Fair to educate residents on how best to survive tsunami. We had over 50 participants for this first time event and we thank council members, Price and Ringer for your support. Continuing with accomplishments, the department completed an active shooter training workshop with all three departments. Our community planning, our community partner organizations and staff were elected officials to better prepare them to survive a terrorist or active shooter incident. Those workshops were well received and the Department will receive recognition for this work at an annual meeting of emergency managers in November. Social media is a powerful tool for communicating with the public, and this past year we created the department's social media presence with posts to over 53,000 Facebook users, 439 tweets to around 250,000 people and over 3000 Instagram lights. Additionally, through our community outreach efforts, we made contact with over 15,000 members of the public to provide them with a variety of disaster preparedness, information and material. And as was stated earlier, the department coordinated with other city departments to collect, review and submit a $3 million damage reimbursement claim to FEMA related to the 2017 winter storms. We accomplished all of this with minimal impact to the general fund. The total budget for the department is approximately $13 million with 89 employees. 81% of the of the budget is divided is divert. It is devoted to 911 call taking and dispatching. The remaining budget is devoted to disaster preparedness, facility maintenance, administration and Homeland Security Grant Management. Notable changes for FY 18 include through the passage of Measure A, t he department will upgrade the ios's heating and air conditioning and an electrical system using $800,000 in funding. $37 million Homeland Security Grant. We're in the process of implementing a new state of the art public safety radio dispatch system. Most city departments, including police, fire, port and airport, rely on this equipment for day to day and emergency response radio communications. The department was also awarded a one $1 million in state funds to upgrade the existing 911 telephone system in anticipation of next generation 911 services and other future technologies. Therefore, a team budget also creates a new consolidated job classification and organizational structure for 911 dispatchers who have successfully completed the cross-training program. Three Phased Approach. We are cross-training the police and fire dispatchers at the telephone position to eliminate the need to transfer records for police, fire and emergency medical services. New and cross-trained dispatchers will be placed in the new job classifications and will receive appropriate compensations once they acquire the additional skill sets. And as we transition to f y 18, we see many challenges and opportunities for the department. We have accomplished many of the milestones towards the consolidation of the dispatch center, including a written email U with police and fire department, an agreement with the city's Emergency Medical Services Program to review and approve consolidated car taking protocols. We currently have 20% of our dispatchers in various phases of completion of the program. However, the cross training program is challenged by the need to sustain the heavy service demands of the center and the need to continuously recruit and train new dispatchers as we are experiencing a wave of retirements. Nonetheless, we are seeing a reduction of overtime by utilizing cross-trained dispatchers to fill vacant shifts. And in the event of a major emergency or a disaster, we have additional staff at the ready opportunities and therefore I intend include the initiation of a hands on pilot disaster preparedness training program and financially disadvantaged neighborhoods to help those residents develop preparedness plans that are specific to their needs in the in the in the event of a major emergency or disaster and to increase their ability to survive. Those pilot those pilot preparedness programs will also include identifying neighborhood hub sites or resiliency hubs, where a five day supply of emergency, nonperishable food and water and first aid supplies can be stored for use by residents in impacted neighborhoods. The department will also coordinate a citywide process to replace all public safety radios, both handheld devices and the radios that are mounted in their vehicles. This is necessary. This is necessitated by Motorola's announcement that they will no longer support the radios currently use widely throughout the region. And we are very excited about this last i tem. Late this year, we will implement a program that provides an option for residents to send emergency text messages to 911 dispatchers to request police and fire emergency medical services. Text 2911 will provide equal access to emergency services for residents who are hearing or speech impaired and for those in situations where it is dangerous to dial 911. We are working on community outreach and Educational Material campaign. Call if you can. Text if you can't. In conjunction with other South Bay cities and Los Angeles City and County Fire and police departments to implement this new program in late December. In closing, I would like to encourage all residents to attend the rally Long Beach Community Preparedness and Expo on Saturday, September 16th, on the campus of California State University, Long Beach. This expo will feature information booths, emergency preparedness demonstrations and a display of the emergency response vehicles. And the expo will also provide basic first aid and survival information. With that, that concludes my presentation, and I will stand with my colleagues to answer questions. Thank you. Thank you very much. I appreciate all the presentations and all the staffs and all the departments and all. Everyone works very hard. And so I want to thank, of course, the entire team at library services, at Health and Human Services, as well as disaster preparedness. Let's give them a round of applause and thank them for all of their hard work. So I'm going to turn this over now to do some council questions and comments. I'm going to ask obviously the council so we don't have the vacuum machine. If you if you want to get added to the queue, just have someone pass a message or just raise your hand. They'll add you to the queue of names I have. So start with. I have Councilman Mango. Wonderful. Thank you to the department heads and their staff who made an excellent presentation. It's great to see the great accomplishments that you guys have each accomplished. I have a couple of quick questions and I'd like to start with Health Services. I appreciate the great work that you're doing and the partnerships with Long Beach State Scan, one of our fifth District businesses and others around seniors. When when you move forward with partnerships like this, how are those decisions made? Do you have a procedure similar to what the council has established for Parks Rec and Marine this year, or is it on a case by case basis? Currently, we are meeting regularly with it with Cal State, Long Beach, with Scan, with Parks, Recreation, Marine and with the Health Department in the beginning, in the conversations as well. The Council passed and approved the older adult plan. And so what we've been doing is really working from there. And so as these partnerships within that is the Office of Aging. And so there has been a strong conversation and support around that concept. So as we've been talking with our different partners and our different funders, that is the focus of the way that we plan to move forward. I know there's been some questions about wires and the triple-A agency on aging out of the county. And why does the city need to be looking at this? The city the city is the focus where the coordination can be located. Currently, the area agency on aging does not provide any coordination within the city of Long Beach. And in fact, when we looked at our data last year, we found that they provided 1900 individual services. So that means connecting with 1900 people, many of those duplicated over six months. We have 43,000 older adults over the age of 65. So almost all the services they provide, they have nonprofit providers who are located outside of the city, who come in maybe for a day, provide a little bit of service, and they also provide the meals. All of the rest of the work and the coordination and the demand for senior services would be the focus of this Office of Aging and the ability to move this forward. What would it take for us to separate from the County Office of Aging and actually establish our own allocation from the government, from feds would be. Very difficult to do. It is a county I mean, it area agencies on either county, L.A. City was able to do that. But they're a city of 4 million, which is larger than most counties in the country. Is there any opportunity to do a similar to Silco has done within the workforce investment world to partner up with neighboring cities to be able to draw down those funds? Because I, I think from looking at the data and attending some of your meetings and talking through the partnerships, we're not the only ones having these kinds of low accountability number, low numbers of service based on the region. I mean, it's certainly something that we can talk about and we can approach, but the cities around us are quite small. Right. And so when you think about we are the second largest city in the county and what we are seeking to do as a city with our growing older adult population right now it's at about 9.3% . It's expected to grow to nearly 20% of the city and also become more and more diverse. When we rely only on county resource that is not coordinated locally, we will not be able to provide a level of need or we will not be able to meet the need. In addition, we have a number of partners within our city, including St Mary's, Archstone and others who want to help fund. But they're saying you need to have someone to coordinate this stuff, right? We're not funding the whole office. The city needs to have a coordinator and we will provide the rest of the resources to help support actual programing and other work. So if we are able to afford to to approve and get the votes to put together the $100,000 of general fund money necessary to fund this position, when next year comes and we have a projected deficit, where do we think that we'll be able to fund it from? There are there's at least one funder who has said if you get this started and re ally show that Long Beach is committed to our older adult population and its services, that it would partner with us to move forward and continue to fund this work. Wonderful. And do we have that in writing or could we get it in writing before the approval of the budget? Probably not. It is a grant process that we would have to go through through boards and things. Is that is not something that they would be able to just write in a letter right now. Well, should they be in the crowd tonight? Perhaps that would be something that we would appreciate. Thank you for that. Thank you. Also, I know that you have the housing authority under your scope. And I met with a neighbor, a neighbor slash housing inspector recently. And they talked about as an inspector that a lot of the work that they do is actually being duplicated by development services through the new rental inspection program that it's significantly similar and that a landlord might need while is inspected by section eight every two years and then subsequently potentially also inspected by development services and that the core list of things is significantly similar, while there's a slight variance. Is there any opportunity between now and, let's say, the next budget cycle for 2019 to talk about where those things overlap and what opportunities there are for efficiencies? We've been having that conversation for the last six months, maybe longer. And in fact, what we have done is we are coordinating with development services. So if we are out, we if we inspect every time there is a new renter. So if there is a new renter, you know, more than once a year, we will inspect that unit upon every new renter. It's and then. But if it's the same renter, then it's every two years. Right. And so there are a number of things we focus on. Specific thing is internal to the building development services. Focus is also on a lot of other issues on the outside of the building and require that they be addressed. Those are things that are not part of what we do. What we have done is to say if we are going out to inspect, we will have a list of the inspections for development services that are planned. And we will show up together to make sure that we have a coordinated inspection opportunity to make sure that the apartment owner and the person who is living there will not have to go through two different inspectors and two different processes. Well, through where it possible, if there was a supplemental list of, let's say, ten items that are coming from Section eight and an additional five items coming from development services, it would be ideal if that one inspector was able to bifurcate their time and potentially receive a transfer of funds from development services to Health and Human Services for the amount of time that that staff member uses on non approved housing authority items. Just something to think about that was brought up by one of the staff that we kind of talk through in the community. So than k you for what you've already been coordinating. I know there are lots of restrictions as the housing authority money comes from D.C. and there's a lot of ties to it. So whatever you're able to do. We appreciate. Thank you. Thank you. Disaster preparedness. I was looking through the budget this year and I know that you're managing a lot of uses cap in other major grants. Have we applied for any private funding from Grantors? I know that you specifically mentioned the cert training in the impoverished communities. I know that there are types of grants out there for that. Do we have that capacity to apply for those? Have we started that process or do we plan to? We have. We have we have been successful working with Long Beach City EMT as well as the county as well. And we have a $300,000 grant that we have applied for and the region applied for, and we were successful with that. And we're going to use those grant funds to go out in some of those financially impacted neighborhoods to provide more hands on assistance with with developing neighborhood plans, as well as what I mentioned, establishing some neighborhood hubs or resiliency hubs where we're the agency, the city or the department will be able to provide some of those five days of supply that's necessary. So we have been successful with that. We also announced a couple of weeks ago another $1 million award as well, where we actually partnered in this case with Santa Ana and Anaheim, and we were very successful in that. Well, thank you for your work on that. I know it's important work, and I know that the community members, which I came out and met at the recent training, were very empowered. And I think that that's really enlightening. I know I also attended a bilingual one and my Spanish is rusty, but I appreciated engaging with not only our staff that were doing the training in Spanish, but also with the community who felt that it was really important that in a time of need they were able to make that that opportunity for them available. Thank you. And lastly, our library services. I have seen the wonderful reception that having the El Dorado Library open on Sundays has had in our community. I appreciate our library staff and the great and hard work that they're doing in anticipation of next year's deficit. Has there been any dialog on what we can do to assure that every day of the week there's a library open in a region where a person lives that's accessible. But keeping in mind that we will likely not have the 268,001 time to fund that. What is our plan on that side? Councilwoman mANGELS, are you asking for continuing services on Sunday hours without funding? Is that the question? Some kind of not necessarily just Sunday hours, but more of a do we have a long term strategy to say there's three regions of the city and in every region of the city at a time, on every day of the week, something will be open. Even if the library is open, let's say Saturday, Sunday perhaps are closed Monday, Tuesday, or how are we planning to develop around that to ensure the needs of the community are met? All right. Now we are a five day operation Tuesday through Saturday for all 12 locations. And that's done because we want to make sure we have enough staff in case of illnesses, vacations, training, things like that. We need to be able to back, back, fill those positions. So that's what we all kind of in the same schedule. But we can look at something from a regional approach to answer your question and get back to you on about that. That would be great. I know library science is a hard to fill position and the amount of education and experience it takes to become a librarian is extensive. I know that throughout the country there are recruitment efforts to bring people into library science, and it is a noble profession. So best of luck with your recruitment and I appreciate the hard work and the many Sunday hours that so many have had to do over time to keep our libraries open. But as we move forward, a regional long term strategy, I think, is where we need to focus. And so whatever help that you can do to ensure that the great work, as you mentioned, the technology is so important, over 4000 individuals accessing our libraries a day and that libraries are more than just storage for books. It's it's really a place of learning. So thank you. Thank you. Thank you. We're going to move on now to Councilwoman Pryce, who is still a conference councilwoman. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So question for library services. Do we have hearing loops in any of our current facilities? And if not, what plans do we have to get them installed? Council on Women price right now we have a hearing loop at the Michelle Obama library and with continued measure funds, we are planning to have them at another location at the library and also at the Mark Twain Library. And and they remain like, I'm sorry. I'm sorry. Did you say Bay Shore? Bay Shore. Yes. And then also at the new main library, as you were going to say, that's in the plans. Okay. That's what I wanted to make sure. Okay. That's excellent. I think the more we can increase access little by little better. So thank you for that. I wanted to congratulate you on the the report, the presentation. I'm following it along here on my laptop. And as you were doing the presentation and I just could not be more proud of the direction we're headed with our library services. And and also I know that deficit years are coming. I think that the Sunday library hours have been such a tremendous resource, an asset for our residents who work at traditional work week. So providing for weekend access in whatever way. And if we have to be creative, we should be creative. But you know, I think even though we have deficit years coming, I don't necessarily want to conclude that that will be something that will be cut next year. I'm very hopeful that we'll be able to continue it because it's I mean, we just get so many positive comments from residents who enjoy the library hours and could not otherwise do it on the weekends. So thank you very much for that. Thank you. I have a question for the health department for Kelly. Kelly, the 239,000 that we received from the Office of Traffic Safety. I'm assuming that the majority of that money is going to go into education on marijuana impaired driving, since we're now going to be having marijuana dispensaries operating in the city. Is that correct? That is correct. Okay. And what are our plans in terms of developing outreach? I mean, I know you and your team have been involved with keeping up to date with my work in regards to education and outreach through the Orange County DA's office and our statewide efforts. And, of course, you'll have access to all of those videos and PSA. But are we doing any print advertising and education with our local dispensaries, or are they partners with us on this front? Yes, they've been involved in our conversations throughout the summer as we've been planning for this funding, and they have been open and willing to to put posters up within their within their dispensaries and their work. We are currently working with Cal State, Long Beach. They're working on sort of a design studio to start to think about innovative ways to continue to message the education campaign. The funding itself will arrive sometime in October, and at that point, we will start those efforts. Okay. That's that sounds fantastic. And I think it's really, really important for any messaging that we do on marijuana, that the marijuana industry be at the table so that we don't make the same mistakes that Colorado made towards toward that end, we did have a public service announcement, screening and reveal last week with the California office the traffic safety at the district attorney's office. We did have two representatives there, one from the Long Beach Cannabis Collective Association, which was really good. And then we have statewide representatives as well who have agreed to do some PSA. So I think anything we can do to try to partner with the marijuana industry to just show PSA things and hand out literature in the actual stores would go a long way. And $239,000 is actually a really huge budget to do outreach with for such a specific issue. So I'm really hopeful that we can use that partnership to make the most efficient money. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I have nothing further. Thank you, Councilwoman. I have a speakers list here of councilmembers. So let me move on now to Councilmember Urunga. Thank you, Mayor. Actually, I have very little to say about these presentations this afternoon other than to commend staff for the wonderful work they're doing and continue to do for the city of Long Beach. But in terms of library services, I just have one question. We have and this is probably for future consideration. No, not not this budget, but perhaps for a future budget. I understand that the the sun the hours of operation you have presently described as Bayshore, Burnette, Michelle Obama and El Dorado being that by 2019 or so, we're going to have the Civic Center complex completed. And there's also a proposal to have in there a university component in there as well. So are you looking at opening the downtown main library on Sundays as well, given that university, you have students going there, living there. Would would you be considering opening the main library for Sundays as well? If we have if we have the funding, I'd love to have the main library open on Sundays. Well, I think we should make the funding available because we were talking about university students who are going to have and need access to to the library, and especially if it's going to be the the high tech state of the art library that we want to that we are proposing to have. I think it's something that we should look at seriously. So just throwing it out there for your consideration. Thank you. Okay. In regards to the Department of Health and Human Services, you're doing a good job. It's 98% of your budget is is grant funded. Only 2% is general fund. So I think you need to continue working hard. I know every year, year in and year out, you're looking at at looking at various types of grants to continue to put your funding. But the one thing that the dozen that are really attached to you, but more like our general fund is are you included at their language access as part of your proposal, as part of your department? And I want to emphasize again that I think language access should be a citywide effort in a general fund that is institutionalized within the city. So I want to re-emphasize that again, as I did last week. So that the language access program, it is funded through the general fund 0.75 FTE. So we have a part time person who runs that as well as one time funding that has happened over the last couple of years, over $80,000 for interpretation and translation services. So they are city wide. They're for everybody. They just have to be housed currently in the Office of Equity while we could get that institutionalized within a department that doesn't rely mostly on one time funds and grants. I think that would be the most appropriate way of knowing that. Thank you. Thank you. And in regards to emergency services, a good job out there. Again, you've been you're the founding director of that department. Then you're doing a good job. And in response to emergencies that we have within the city, and you're looking at always new ways of being able to prepare the city in case of a disaster. So I want to commend you on that. That's all I have to say. Thank you, Councilmember. Next step is Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I want to just start by thanking staff for the presentation and thanking all the staff that attended our District nine budget meeting last night was very well attended. So thanks to staff and to the residents for attending, I've met with all of these staff members and I've had my budget meeting. So I don't have very many questions. I have some comments and some things that I want to highlight, but I want to keep it short so I won't be asking a lot of questions. My questions have been answered. I want to thank the council for, you know, reminding us that there are looming deficits. So now is the time to focus on your accomplishments and demonstrate the success that you're making. And particularly with these three departments in our city, we focus on quality of life a lot. And I just want to note that not every city has these three departments. If you look at our surrounding city, not surrounding cities, not many cities have their own library department. Right. They contract, they have county libraries. They don't have their own library system in the city, just around us. Our health department is unique for one of three cities in the state with its own health department. And I couldn't tell you what other cities in our Southern California have a disaster preparedness department. And what that says to me is we are city who does value the quality of life of our residents. And that's why we you know, we make sure that it's built in our budget, you know, built into our charter, built into our structure, that we place a focus on some of these things. So so I want to just I have a few comments to make, starting with library services. And you don't have to, Linda. You don't you don't have to stand up. Just comments. I saw a statistic, 1.2 million visits across our system. And since the opening of the Michelle Obama library and we're approaching a year since it's been open, I've seen the excitement. If anybody tells you that libraries of the past, they're not they're not watching our library system. Our library system is demonstrating. They serve a focus as a center for community, center for family. You can go there and apply for a job, use the computers, bump into one another. And the Michelle Obama library sort of serves as, you know, I keep borrowing this term, but it serves as our public living room for the Atlantic corridor. So keep up the good work and you certainly have my support moving forward on the Health Department. I have to tell you this a little bit of context. Last year we had a conversation about that 1% that the 1% of general fund support that you receive and. But we made the case, a number of the council members made the case that you get much more bang for your buck for every dollar you place in the health department, because we're focused on preventative issues. We're leveraging almost every dollar against grant funds. It is fiscally prudent and smart to invest in prevention. We took steps to realign violence prevention, and this is not a new program. These are things that we've focused on as a city for a while now. We took steps to be more efficient and realign violence prevention and language access into a new Office of Equity in the Office of Equity. Based on, you have almost two slides of accomplishments. I think you are showing you are demonstrating the folks what you know, what we're able to accomplish. If we're to think if we were to think from a different standpoint, place an equity lens or prevention lens on the decisions that we make. Sometimes it's not the most immediate choice that policymakers make, but I think it's an important one, one that I'm going to continue encourage the city council to defend as we move forward. I see that you've secured over $87 million in non city funding sources. That's amazing. I have I've had the opportunity to serve as our housing authority chair of this last year. And I can tell you that we're being innovative and creative in figuring out the best ways to make sure people get into housing and are able to utilize those vouchers. So I want to just say congratulations to you and Allison and your team for working working with the apartment association, landlords, renters, to make sure that we're leveraging these grant resources in the best ways possible. Other accomplishments are the

the Veteran Affairs Commission think is great that we were able to the city council asked us to take a look at establishing a new commission. That commission is up and off the ground. You've got a number of commissioners very active, and we look forward to seeing more of the fruits of the fruits of that work. I think it's impressive to see that since establishing this Office of Equity, we've already begun to implement implicit bias training with city leaders and city staff. And I had the chance to go visit one of these trainings, and I saw that top leaders in our city having conversations that I you know, I wouldn't have assumed city leaders would have. And it was conversations about things like profiling and and implicit bias. And when I approach a problem, what lens, what privilege do I bring to that lens and how can I consider others as we make decisions? And I think that's just the responsible thing to do that we have to place, given how diverse our city is, diverse our city council is. We have to often place ourselves in other people's shoes. So congratulations on that. I look forward to watching that. I looked at your budget here. I'm looking for that. Back to this. There's 2%. As we move forward, we will have to make sure that we're defending and we are making sure that we are justifying the dollars that we spent. We we have to keep a close eye on that. But we have to make sure that as we move forward, we do learn lessons from the past. And, you know, and we are proportional in how we make our budget adjustments move forward proportionally. We are we should maintain that proportionality because it protects departments like libraries and parks and health department, because something like $100,000 cut may mean something small in a larger department, but it can eliminate entire program in the health department. So as we move forward in these years to come, you know, we talk a bout, you know, the cuts that are coming. We should make sure that we begin to familiarize ourselves with this concept of proportional share, because we got to make sure we're not eliminating, decimating great work because we're going to have a few a few tough years ahead. And then finally, with disaster preparedness, Mr. Harrison, thank you for for bringing the departments where we are. We will we had a conversation today, and we've been talking the last few weeks will be having a special meeting, a Fed Pledge Committee meeting on September 20th at City Hall Chambers to discuss disaster preparedness, a homeland security in partnership with both our police and fire chief, as well as our disaster preparedness department. There's a lot of great things that our city is doing that we like to share and talk about. So I encourage you to join us at City Hall Chambers again, September. September was that September 20th. So we look forward to that. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. That concludes my comments. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Next up, we have Councilmember Gonzales. Yes, thank you. I'd like to thank each of the departments as well. I know with very nimble resources, you all are doing such a great job. And so I would like to thank you on behalf of my district. So first, I'll start with Glenda. I will also reiterate as well the Monday or Sunday main library hours. Would you say are the main library, is that the most utilized library or. I mean, we have a. Very big library. It's going to be state of the art in the next couple of years. But how many visitors are we receiving there at that library? At the main library, correct? Yes, I'd say between. 2 to 3000. Visitors. You know what? Let me make sure I'm accurate. That number. Let me get back to you on that. Okay. Sorry to put you on the spot. That was. No problem. Fantastic. So I would like to know. I don't know. Last year, we had discussed a cost for Monday library hours. Do you know what that cost would be for this next cycle? If not, well, we'll get that information back. But I'd like to know just the cost of what that would be. Absolutely. To get that back up and running, just to prepare us for 2019 as we're going in. It'd be great to have additional hours at a downtown library and then the mobile studio program. Fantastic. I love that you're reaching out. Of course, we do that really well into the community. Our communication with the library is fantastic. Having worked at Microsoft, being a part of the youth spark I think is such a creative way to reach out to our communities, especially with Hamilton and Washington, which need it the most in our city. And then lastly, I think that is it. That's all the questions I had for you. But I would like to just thank you again for all the work you do. Thank you. Thank you. I'll go on to Health and Human Services. With Kelly. Hi, Kelly. I have a few things. Of course, homelessness is the major topic of the century, and we are doing an incredible job here. And I know t hat we are. And I've often talked to you about how we can visualize that and how we can disseminate more information to the public to make everyone aware of how much how many resources we're putting on the issue of homelessness. And so I think if we are able to, you know, I think my office is creating an internal infographic, but I know I've talked about West, about this kind of a citywide infographic of what we're doing in the in the city. To be able to disseminate that to our residents would be great. We're currently designing an infographic as well as working on a public education campaign in a partnership with downtown Long Beach Associates. So what you're you know, we'll be rolling that out. In addition, we'll be putting we're working on an education opportunity at the airport. If you walk into the Denver airport, what you see is a coin drop. So instead of emptying your your pockets of coins into the thing that goes through the security, you empty it into the coin drop with an education campaign. So it provides a funding opportunity as well as an educational opportunity as people go through security. That is great. And I think that's just another touchpoint for our residents and tourists as well. Thank you. I'm glad that you also incorporated in your plan. Substance abuse. I've talked about that in the past. You know, this opioid epidemic and no one really has there. We don't know what's happening. We just know it's just crazy all over the nation. And so I'm glad that you've included that in this. And I would like to share. So the. Way the state. Is funding substance. Use services changed as of July one. So L.A. County is currently rolling that out where it will be covered by Medi-Cal. So it's called the Drug Medi-Cal benefit. So there will be increased opportunity. I met with the director of Substance Abuse Services today at the county on my way here, and we will be working together and partnering to determine how we get more information out about services as well as increasing opportunities for service within the city. Awesome. That is that is fantastic. Thank you for that information. And then the year round shelter. I'm sorry, what was the timeline for of what are we thinking? That's a good question. Yeah. We're not sure. So we are currently looking. For a facility. When a facility becomes available, then we'll be looking to purchase that and and do the improvements and begin that service. But it's hard to tell you right now what that timeline will be. Okay, thank you. And then my last question was related to the STD, HIV rates, which we know are increasing significantly. I didn't see anything allocated to this year's proposal. However, are we changing kind of our model internally to to tackle that? How are we looking at that? We are working on a much stronger coordination with L.A. County funding from the CDC for this work comes directly into L.A. County. And so we are working with them about how they will pass through funding or look at different appropriate opportunities to fund us because we are their largest city and we are facing and we are facing these increases. In addition, we just completed our partnership with the Pasadena Design School. We had the presentation last week and they put together a very interesting educational campaign and posters and other things like that. So we were working to identify internal resource to be able to actually print, disseminate and start to engage with those with those resources . And I can share those with you some. Great. Thank you very much. And I would just like to thank your team as well for all the work that they do. I've called them into many meetings in downtown and I just want to thank you all very, very much. So I think that. Thank you, Kelly. And then lastly, Reginald. Reggie. So as you're walking up here, I'd like to just thank you for the active shooter training for our staff's fantastic. I think we unfortunately, in this day and age, it's what we need to do. I'd also like to see our my myself and our city council colleagues included in that training. I hate to be a little selfish right now, but unfortunately, I think if anyone may do something, who knows? You know, I hate to put it out there, but it may be something that obviously we would like to do as well , just given the unfortunate circumstances of what we've seen nationwide. And then secondly, the neighborhood hub sites. I love that we are implementing that. Now, what would that look like in, you know, I think of Edison power outage and not being able to reach certain demographics. How would that look like exactly? You know, that's exactly the the incident that this thinking came from, related to what's happened during the power outage. And we realize that we have some financially impacted neighborhoods, that we really need to do more hands on work in terms of helping them. First of all, to. Develop their disaster preparedness plans. Programs like Map Your Neighborhood Better, understanding what resources you have in your neighborhood or in your high rise buildings as well. As we looked at the downtown area, who are the retired electricians, the plumbers, teachers, those kinds of folks that have skills that you're going to need during a disaster. And then we always emphasize having five days of supplies of food, water, emergency medical equipment, our supplies. And we realize that in some of our financially impacted neighborhoods, that's not possible to have those five days of supply. So we're looking at major nonprofits that might be able to provide such a service. We're looking at nonprofit organizations are also looking at churches in the neighborhoods, neighborhoods as well that might be able to provide storage area so that we could provide those supplies. Wonderful. Thank you for that. And I'm glad if any silver lining came from that. I'm glad we're looking that and looking at ahead. And the communication with your department has been absolutely phenomena

I. I have to say thank you for with the rain and everything going on, you on every social media outlet. And that's fantastic for our residents. And so I want to thank you for that. And then lastly, I would just say the just kind of a sidebar, but our evacuation plan, even internally with employees who may have disabilities, I have a person in my office who uses a wheelchair and just thinking of a plan for our city employees to be able to know what to do when an emergency may strike. So just. That's critical. That's critical both for the employees who have long term disabilities, as well as those who have temporary as well. And it's really important that employees understand that about their about their coworkers, what their situation in the event of a major disaster emergency. And you have to evacuate. So we try to work with our floor wardens and all of our others in the department so that they have an understanding of that and that they keep track of those individuals as well as visitors as well to city hall that are going to need assistance. Evac evacuating. That's great. Well, thank you very much for your work, Reggie. I appreciate it. Thank you all. Thank you. Next up is Councilmember Pearce. Okay. Can you hear me okay? Why don't we go ahead and we'll start with libraries, Glenda. And actually, I'll just say, you know, I think this budget and the conversations that we're having across all of the departments carries on from the conversation we had in last year's budget, which is what our city council priorities and how are we doing as a city as a whole. And that, again, conversation around equity in the lens of equity that says we can we can lift all boats together, that we can all thrive, and that we really need to make sure that we're looking at things like education and literacy as something that can impact our crime rates. Right. And that we're investing dollars there as much as we're investing dollars in other areas. And so I think that's a key priority for us. And I, I wanted to clarify, remember last year we did talk about funding the Sunday and Monday and the follow up on my colleague here. I thought that we had a plan in place to fund either Sunday or Monday at the downtown library. But perhaps my recollection is is wrong. We provided those numbers to you, to the city council, but we were not able to fund those additional days at the main library. It was cost prohibitive. Okay. So I'll I want to thank my colleagues, Urania and and Gonzales, for bringing up the hours at the downtown library. I know that it's difficult to access right now. We've got some challenges with the parking lot. If there are other opportunities to make sure that our Alamitos branch, which is nearby or the next nearest branch, is available on Sunday hours. I hope that you guys can provide us some more of the numbers of what it would take to increase that and also provide us some numbers with what it would take to take the mobile unit out more frequently, you know

, or knowing that it's difficult to stop an entire library, but possibly we could have the mobile out on Sundays at the park or something like that. If there's an option to kind of think outside the box while our downtown library is under construction, where we're still able to access that, I think would be really creative. So I think we're on the right track with our libraries and see everything that's going on at the Michelle Obama library. And it's really exciting and I know that a lot of that is due to your guys vision and working closely with the council offices. So I look forward to working with you closer in the future as well. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. I'm more of a comment. I guess you don't need to really stand out, but thank you. Okay. Kelly, one of my favorite departments, echo again, our vice mayor's comments. It is really exciting to have a health department in this city. And I think Kelly, your commitment and. Your passion and your ability to take on so much. Everything is important from HIV to the pedestrian pathways. It really shines through your passion for the work, and you work really hard outside of the city to leverage dollars. And so thank you for doing it on shoestring city budget. And I heard exactly an echo from last year. I heard an exact echo, I think, word for word from last year, which is we do great. We have over 100 grants. And coming from the nonprofit world. I don't know, you know, how many folks have worked with grants and how hard it is to manage those grants. It's not only applying for them in the words that they want, but it's following through with with the work to say, here we did the work. And so, again, I think that you've done a great job with trying to figure out funding for the Office of Aging, which, you know, I received letters from SCAN and residents asking for that money to stay. And so I think as our conversations go on, just echoing that, that's really important of a couple of questions for you outside of just praising all of your awesome work for let me see. So you mentioned earlier that the 110 K would go towards a full time staff person for the Office of Aging. Correct. It would be a full time coordinator position. Okay.

And they would be coordinating which activities. Exactly. So they would be bringing together all of the current activities that were doing and coordinating between the Health Department and Department of Parks and Recreation in terms of those services. In addition, as we are working with funders who are funding other program opportunities, those those services would be coming into that office and then be coordinated among the rest of them. We are seeking to do a referral, an app around referrals and the ability to truly connect to people. So people will know all the services within the city as well as a stronger ability to refer. And in my dream world, it actually is a closed loop referral system which says, you know what, not only did we refer you, we made sure that you got connected and we're moving forward. So all of those kinds of services, in addition, we are we will have a Fuzed follow this year funded by scan. It will start in the beginning of October. That person will be helping to design some of that work under in coordination with the new program coordinator. Great. And then also coming from the nonprofit world hour ago that grantees don't you know give a letter and say if this then that down the road that they need to see us doing the work and see us prioritize it. And it's a conversation that I hear about almost every single week. And so I think that I'll urge my colleagues to continue to support funding for the Office of Aging. Absolutely. So my colleague also mentioned HIV rates, if you could highlight for us the rates and then talk about why we think we fell short from the 5000 clinic visits in the past year. We fell. Sure. From the 5000. Credits, right. Yeah. I have in my notes that we did not meet the clinic visits that we wanted to meet as a city for our HIV numbers. It's okay. We way we can talk after the meeting is fine. Okay. I haven't. Yeah. I think that a lot of our work is done outside now in mobile in mobile areas. So there's clinical visits that come specifically to the clinic attached to a specific service. A lot of our other work is outreach and engagement. The other piece that's really essential is partner services. So we do the disease investigations. So when I when something is reported to us, we go out and start to connect and find partners in an effort to make sure that they're being treated and are not currently passing on as well. And so a lot of that continues to happen. So there's sort of a mix of services along the way. And so some maybe count as a clinical visit versus other kinds of visits and conversations. But we are doing much more work out in the communities with our mobile van in terms of outreach and testing. Can you remind me what is the HIV rate in Long Beach? I don't have that with me. Okay. I'm asking you all kinds of fun questions today. Can you highlight. Go ahead. Yes, I can say that the rates for persistence and gonorrhea have gone up over 100%. And so, yeah, over the last two years. And so what we're seeing is part of that is better reporting because we've been seeing so we don't know how much of it is reporting and then how much of it is the difference. We are seeing an increased use of social connection connecting apps and the social connecting apps are allowing for people to meet and be together much more easily. And, you know, back when everybody died, you know, there was an expectation that you would die if you were see if you had AIDS. That's not the expectation anymore. You know, people live long and healthy lives after they've been through it as long as they maintain their medication. So the fear is gone because most things can be treated. So we're really working on trying to focus back on the prevention aspects of it and people taking and people making better choices in their use. So when we're talking about the surveillance program and the education program and some of those dollars, I'm sure that you guys are, but I hope that we're thinking creatively about how to outreach to people that might be using those apps or reaching out to those apps so that they're doing an education component. Because an increase of over 100%, probably some of that is catching it early. But that's a huge you know, when I can't remember the HIV number, but it is extremely high for Long Beach to be one of the highest in in the state. And so as much as we can really do to tackle that and make it an issue that people in our community are aware of, it might not be the funnest thing for everybody to talk about, but it is one of the most, I think, important. We are putting together a stronger partnership with the county. We've been meeting with them, looking at different opportunities to move forward in a in a more coordinated messaging campaign and also in our outreach. And we are also looking at many more options with our partners. We have a number of partners who are providing outreach and education to specific populations. And how do we start to coordinate that more effectively to make sure that we do better work? Great. Thank you. And then my last question is around the early childhood plan that's mentioned in the budget. Can you talk just a little bit about about that? Because I mentioned dental care and I know that we've had some conversations with the children's clinic and trying to make sure that we increase that. So what's the plan on that? Well, so there's two different conversations there. There's the dental services and then in the early childhood. So first of all, the dental services, there was a there is funding available to the state where they're funding all public health departments to do increased education around dental. So it's not dental treatment, but as education how you maintain better dental practice. The for the early childhood we have the years the council funded a half time early childhood education liaison coordinator who works very closely with the Early Childhood Commission as well as local providers to start to identify more opportunities to provide education and other things . In addition, we are funding a full time person through workforce investment who is helping to find additional capacity. So as people are taking new education courses, new job skills courses, those kinds of things, if they don't have child care, then to create an opportunity where they will have child care and that person is focusing on that. Also part of that grant is a new plan focused on the early child. And so we'll be working with our partners and a consultant to design that plan. Great. Thank you so very much for going through all my questions and again for all the work and just want to urge my colleagues to as much funding as we can make sure that you guys receive so that it's not on a shoestring with all the work that you do. Thank you. Thank you. And then for disaster preparedness, you don't need to get up. Raji. It's okay. Fantastic work. We're going to work on some downtown education programs for. Our dense communities to make sure that we're doing the education that they are aware of what to do during a disaster and the texts. 911i cannot tell you how important that is and how wonderful I think it is that we're doing that in our city. So many people find themselves in a domestic abuse situation or any other situation where picking up the phone to your ear is not an option. And so this is long overdue and really anything that my office can do to help take that information out. We'd love to be a partner in that. And so thank you guys very much. Appreciate it. Thank you. Next up, we have council member supernova. Thank you. My first question is for health. And Kelly, I can't see you. There you go. Just a quick question. I think I missed it with all the commissions you support. Did you mention the homeless services advisory? I did. Yes. Okay. Sorry. Just then, from page 21. On your notable changes, you don't need notes. Okay. Page 21. Okay. You got 125,000 for homeless services from the general fund. Sure. An office of major aging. $110,000. I think it's important to point out those are drastically different percentages of the entire budget for both those programs. Yes. Okay. So, I mean, for for homeless services, the 125,000 structural comes as part of about $1,000,000 that the city funds for homeless services overall. The for the office of aging we currently through the parks recreation and Marine through their services through the senior centers that they receive, they provide funding for that area in terms of the health department . There is no outside funding currently for aging services. The funding that we provide, we fund through public health nursing, through outside funding to provide one person to help. Support that. Connection. That's a great explanation. And my point would be, just to follow up on what the vice mayor was saying. When we look at cutting numbers, you have to be very careful in this area because if you cut these numbers equally, it's totally different in terms of percentages of the programs they support. That is correct. Okay. I think I it. Thanks. Thank you. No questions for library. You're off the hook. But I always like to mention that I have the great fortune of having two libraries in the fourth district, neither of which has sun hours. So keep that in the back of your mind for disaster preparedness. I read you, Harrison. You look very comfortable, but I think I have a question here that might require response. You had mentioned it's not in in the stack here, but we have a citywide replacement of handheld mobile radios. And I thought I heard you say that we're going away from Motorola. We're going to buy brand X. Is that what you said? No. You know, most of our infrastructure, not only in Long Beach, but within the ent ire region, is it's based on a motorola platform. So we would very much be looking forward to a continuing relationship with Motorola, this inexpensive acquisition over the course of the next year or so. And so we're trying to be creative in terms of finding funding that will support the acquisition of both handheld and mobile mounted radios. Okay. So I my question is, is that a locked in deal? Would you be willing to listen to proposals to to go with Brand X from a vendor that may or may not be located in the Fort Council district? Absolutely. Okay. All right. Thank you. I think that's it. Thank you very much. Next step is Councilmember Andrews. Yes, thank you. I'm here. And most of all, I'd really like to hear the audience give their views about our budget here. But since you're going to have to wait until I finish, I just have a few things that I'd like to say about our first about the health department and the librarian and read you and your department. I really want to say, Kelly, you. I just want to let you know you. Because I'm over there at you have a park, you know, a facility with my park there. And it's just wonderful to watch those individuals from the work program come in and see them being served. You know, you that individual that everybody should take time to, you know, really take notice, too, because remember, your health is everything. And this young lady here, she's a picture of health because the fact that she's everywhere. And I just want to let you know that that's why I go with you all the time, was I want to state I want to say, well, you know, the librarian we have to in my district, in our. Thank you so much. Everything you guys do, you do it. You know, you raise money. This we don't give you guys any money. You guys have to raise money. When we start giving you money, no telling what you guys are start doing. And, Reggie, we're so safe. I don't know what we're going to do if you give us any safer. We got to put this on TV. You're doing a great job. You guys keep up the good work. That is it. I'd like to hear from the audience now. And you guys enjoy yourselves because we're going to get out of your own time tonight. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilmember Austin. Thank you. And I'll be brief as well. I just want to commend all three departments. For excellent. Presentations. You are all three departments. Health services, libraries, as well as a disaster preparedness have really demonstrated your worth and value to the city of Long Beach. I did have and I as a budget oversight committee member. I'm combing through the budget. And if there's certain things that jump out at me. I have a question for our health department. Again, I'm going to echo the colleagues my colleagues comments. A lot of great work happening in the health department on transformational work happening in our department. And that doesn't happen. You know, with without without resources. I do notice that over the the from NY 17 for 18 is a an uptick i n positions in the department and of ten positions. Is that correct? Yes. Okay. And I, I don't necessarily need to have the detail by detail today, but sometime in the next couple of weeks, I would love to just understand how those department, those positions where they're going to go and and to what services they're going to go to. I think it's very, very important that we we start dialing in on on on particularly new FTE is understanding that we're all looking at it next year as well. Right. Those are those years. Some are the move from violence prevention and equity, from development services. Others are grant funded. There are no general fund. New FTE is in that number. And that is music to our ears and grant for the positions. So no impact to the general fund or little impact? Great. Thank you. And I'm happy to take public comment. You are, Mr. Miller. Great. Thank you. Let me go ahead and I have a couple brief questions, comments, and we're going to go to two public comment on the budget, on the on these departments. Let me let me go ahead and ask I do real quick note more of a comment to this colleague at Health. I want to make sure I know there was there was a discussion around a study rates in the city. And I was reading an article that I believe it's not just a Long Beach. Long Beach. The issue here is, is it serious? I was reading it. There's an article that California is experiencing something like a 20 year high when it comes to study rates, which is obviously there is something happening statewide. And I'm also I understand it was the Orange County number of the L.A. County number. And statewide we are seeing a shift. Is this happening just in California or just a national shift? It's a national conversation. I sit on the big cities health coalition, which is the top 30 urban public health jurisdictions in the country. And all of the large cities are experiencing experiencing increases are tend to be a little more dramatic in the increase. But everybody is concerned, everybody is seeing increases and all of us are working together to identify different opportunities for how we can address them. I just think it's important to know that that it's really we're having a national really a national increase in particularly in the state of California, I know is experiencing more than other states is. Okay. I just want to make sure that that's clear as well. So I appreciate the regional and approach to this. We can't just this isn't just a city approach. It's we've got to talk to all of our partners across the country. So thank you for that. I also just wanted to just mention to to library services and I'll just make a there's been some comments about the Sunday library hours as well. And I would just echo what some of the some of the counselors said that I think that having libraries open on Sundays is so important. That's why we continue that in the budget. And I think regardless of whether we have budget constraints next year or the yea r after or whether the budget improves, we need to continue sun library hours. And and so I think I just want to this my position has been, you know, we added sun library hours a couple of years ago.

And I think even if we end up in a more difficult budget deficit this year or five years from now or whenever, I hope that as long as this council is active, that we're going to continue sun library hours, and that should be a priority of us. And in fact, we should be expanding sun library hours across the city. And so I just want to thank you and your team of what I think are the best librarians anywhere, which is are our Long Beach librarians and staff. You guys are amazing and just thank you for just being so great and being so inclusive of our families and our kids all across the city. So thank you for the work you do. Thank you, ma'am. And then I wanted to also maybe this is a question to Mr. West, and I question it. It kind of ties into this this week's budget, because we're doing Health and Human Services. And I had this question ask. So as you're aware, we're doing a pretty extensive looking audit over at Animal Care Services, which we're all very supportive of and which is great. One of the conversations that has come out from some of the community members actually directly ties into Health and Human Services. I was wondering if you could. Let remind me and maybe the council. It used to be that Animal Care Services was actually under the health department and that moved, I know, a few years ago over to Parks and Recreation. Can you just review with us why that change happened and how you feel about that change? I'm very excited about the change. I think Parks Recreation Marine is doing a fantastic job with animal care. At that time, we had a different. Administration at the health department. KELLY College pupils in here, many of the bureau managers that worked at Health weren't here. And it just didn't appear that animal care aligned with our health department at that time. You might recall, too, we had some very, very serious and serious issues with our animal care facility at that time, which led us to bring in a brand new animal care director. That was John Keisler at the time. And then we facilitated moving it to Parks and Rec a little bit later. I appreciate that. And then some of the questions that we've received on this recently especially have just been around. Obviously, there are connections when you when you're viewing things through a health lens and through health advocacy, sometimes it's different. And so I just want to make sure that folks know as far as when that was presented, this was this was about four or five years ago. I think this was about nine years ago. And specifically, the health department is always associated with our animal care facility, especially with our vets and our bat techs and how we treat animals. And so definitely the the health department is actively involved in that. But on a day to day basis, d ealing with the animal care services out in the field, operating the administration, working with the L.A. SPCA, that's working much better, we feel, through Parks, Recreation and Marine that having it housed in the health department. But it's it's something that you contend that we look at you feel you feel good about where it's at currently. Absolutely. Okay. All right. Thank you for that. I want to go ahead and turn this over to public comment on the budget. So please, if you have anything, please step forward to the mic. Feel free to line up on the mic. And again, this isn't public comment for the council meeting or any items at the council agenda, but for these departments, please and we will then go from there. So thank you. How are you doing? Good. Good evening. My name is John McGinnis. I live downtown and I'm here actually representing the board of directors of the Public Library Foundation. And it would come as no surprise to you that we are strongly in support of your recommendation to continue funding Sunday hours for reasons that are obvious and have already been detailed by many of you. So I want to thank you for your positive comments, and especially you, Mayor Garcia, for your reassuring words that whatever the future budget is, you will try to make a priority of funding for Sunday hours. Now, I'd like to speak or in my other hat as a member of the Board of Education, because it's in that role that I see the need most of all for the Sunday hours. This city has made itself through your leadership. Mayor Garcia, a member of the College Promise and you have been a leader in increasing internships and early childhood education. I would love to see the city as part of its role in the College Promise. Make the public libraries a third integral leg of that that partnership 60 70% of our students. And when I say our students, I mean your students and the school districts, because they're all our kids, live on free and reduced meals in our district, which means their families have trouble putting a meal on their table. They don't have the luxury of buying books, subscribing to a magazine or purchasing high speed internet. Furthermore, many of them live in big families where they don't have a place to study at home. So Sunday Hours provides those students a place where they can go and study at the very least, and also have resources to the that are there electronic and print. In addition to which there are a lot of partnerships going on in which the schools and the public libraries are helping kids with tutoring and all the rest. I would love to see you make it a priority that this funding be folded into ongoing funding and that you have a multiyear program to roll out Sunday hours to all of our schools. The district, the school district is making has always made school libraries a priority, even in the worst years. When I had a vote as my first year on the board to lay off a thousand teachers, we preserved our library programs and we curre ntly have one of the best library programs of any of the 1000 school districts in the state. So I'd very much appreciate you supporting Sunday hours for all of our branches so that our kids can, as the college promise, promises, graduate from high school, go to college, get good careers and have happy lives. Thank you. Thank you. And for those who don't know, this is our on our school board member John McGinnis, but also a librarian and and a longtime leader in library sciences across the country in the state of California. So thank you, John, for for your words. Thank you. Next speaker, please. All right. Good evening, honorable mayor and City Council. My name is Christine Pettit and I am speaking tonight on behalf of the Board of Health and Human Services for the City of Long Beach. I want to share publicly with you tonight some of the content from a letter that I sent to you on behalf of the board last week. Members of the board have been educating ourselves on the city budget and where the Health Department fits within that. And we want to encourage you to include more general fund support for the Health Department than is currently being proposed. We are happy to see that there is some funding coming to the department in the general fund, but there are areas of great need and you heard from our director what the Health Department is able to do when it is given resources. Additional funding is needed to. Sure that Long Beach is a safe and healthy community and is able to address the emerging public health issues that we talked about tonight. This really is a quality of life issue for residents of our city, as well as those who visit our city. I won't repeat Kelly's list of programs and accomplishments, but I was pretty impressed even as a board member. And it is hard to find one area of the city that the Department of Health and Human Services doesn't touch. It's really hard, as you will. You heard that we have about 110 grants to manage to write, to report on. It's really hard to do this strategizing around some of the city's most challenging issues and also be asked to take on more work with with very little support. Really piecing together all of these grants. And the letter that I sent on behalf of the board addresses many of the issues with relying so heavily on grant funding and some of which were touched on tonight. But in particular, we need funds for planning, analysis and coordination, and we need funds to ensure that the investments that we're actually we're able to leverage additional dollars and bring them into the city. I think by not investing in the city, we're actually leaving money on the table that can come back into the city and that goes back into our economy. We already heard that, you know, for every dollar of grant funding, the department's able to bring in $295. And a lot of that goes back into our local economy. There's a lot of things that were requested. And in the grand scheme of the budget, they're pretty small.

Some of them range are $35,000 for language access, for example, or for just showing more support for the Office of Equity or this larger kind of support for that coordination. And so we really just urge you to take a look at it and see, you know, what is where are we putting our money in the city and demonstrating our commitment to the health of our residents. And also your recognition that health is really core and integral to our city's core services. Thank you. Thank you so much. And just to clarify, Madam Cook, I know I have a timer, but there's a timer. Appear to this way as well. There's not. Okay. So I will. Okay. Thank you. I wasn't sure if you could see a timer there. Next speaker, Mr. Goodhue. Very good. You. As I've mentioned before, libraries are in my blood, as it were. My mother was a librarian. She went to the same place Eleanor Richardson did. About 30 years before Syracuse. Also, like as I mentioned, I think before my grade, I had a great uncle that designed the main library down in Long Beach for Los Angeles. And speaking of Eleanor Richardson, I think it was about eight or nine months, maybe a year before she retired, that I came to her with an idea which coincidentally announced to either of us, I know notes to me. And she was did not know what I was thinking. My thinking was to put on the second floor, make a second floor on the Bay Shore library and turn that into a revenue producing coffee shop. You know, the world is full of idiots to pay a dollar, $2, $3 for coffee. And the city engineers had just left two days before and signed off on that plan in chief and relative to the ability of the second floor two to handle that, and that's something I think I think we should do in terms of the safety issue. Well, one of the things that I think we should I learned about maybe something people were aware or were aware of this and so forth in terms of the disasters. Southern California Edison, indeed much of California, but particularly Southern the Southern California Edison area is particularly prone. As first to other cities around the country because they routinely have to replace their equipment as a result of tornados. Storms, floods are the the electrical infrastructure of Southern California Edison and its and its fellow travelers hasn't been touched for 30 to 50 years. And unless there's an absolute disaster and that's something that we're we are going to have to work with and try to figure out. It's not going to be cheap. And the last thing I would suggest. Is whoever made the requisite arrangements for this meeting never be involved with any planning for disasters, period. And that that is nothing holding that it's a fine facility, but the arrangements, it's not conducive to having the type of meeting we have here now. We've got since 2:00 in the afternoon, ten officers out there who have nothing to do. I mean, no place to sit. That's incompetent. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, honorable mayor. C ity Councilman and City Staff Rich Gardner, proud member of District Four. I'm very impressed with all the presentations tonight from the different branches, but I'd like to speak a little bit on the Department of Health. I'm kind of new in the area, and I'm learning that Long Beach has their own Department of Health. And I just got to say, I'm Kelly. Wow. Only 1% of the general fund to run this state is just awesome. And it's run by a grant funding. And I'm basically would like to just speak on the the Office of Aging and implore you on the dais, I had a brief moment to Google search how we're aging in America. And by the year 2050, the people that will reach 85 and above is going to expand by 350%. That's that's a big percentage. And I can look at the dias and know that by 2050, at least four of you are going to be 85 or older. So, you know, they all say it's all about radio station WITF, FM, what's in it for me? So if that that helps you guys vote on this $110,000, which basically is a drop in the bucket. You know, we talk about infrastructure in America and Long Beach needs this kind of infrastructure. Also, if you want to go into another aspect of aging, when that population becomes 90 years or older, 47% of them are going to have some form of dementia. So that makes it even more challenging when you look at the issues of mobility for the elderly, transportation, meals and cooking. So basically, I just want to try to champion this hundred and $10,000. And if you're looking for someone to do the job, I'll do it for 75,000. Okay. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening in Cantrell. And. I was encouraged when council member Andrews said he wanted to hear the public speak. I'm wondering what happened to him. It seems like every one of you is in favor of having more library hours either on Sundays Mondays. I think it's important also. That we have. A library somewhere in the district open every day. However, aren't you the ones that will decide how much money the library budget is going to have? I heard Glenda. Williams say that her budget was. Flat this. Year. So I'm assuming that if. You want these extra hours, you're the ones that are going to have to come up with the money. One of my questions is, can the airport money be spent for extra hours? I don't know. Whether there's restrictions on the money we get from the airport for the extended hours that they fly over our homes. And it seems like you're looking at trying to get more money for those fines. So maybe if you do do that, that could go for extended hours. Just a suggestion. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name is Pam. I live in the ninth District and I'm also a volunteer and board member for the Fix Long Beach. We have been in existence since 2013 and. Have fixed close to. 6000 animals. We are not a rescue. We don't have a foster program yet. We still incurred tens of thousands of dollars dollars a year unrelated to spay and neuter

r. Right now, we have at the vet a seven and nine year old pregnant Chihuahua who we are in partnership with Emily and let love to get that dog into a. Foster home. So she does not give birth in our shelter. The cost of one of our mobile units per month is a minimum of $5,000. Sometimes we pay as high as $7,000, depending on the vaccinations that we've provided or the hernia operations that we fixed when we we've completed these operations. If you take into account the vet bills on top of that, since 2013, we have probably provided close to a half a million dollars to Long Beach and animal related services. We we we talk in terms of having a stray problem or of an animal overpopulation problem, but that infers that the animals are responsible for this. It's not their problem that we've done this to them as human beings, and it's up to us as human beings to fix it. Last week I sat and I listened to the various departments talk about their budgets. One of the things that was talked about was more money for the the street clean team or the $300,000 for a new dump truck. You can't put lipstick on a pig. You go out there and pick up trash that next day, that same trash is going to be out there. The only difference is that trash is not causing the death and destruction of an animal that we created a problem with. I implore you to increase the budget for the shelter. They need a foster program. They need more full time employees in their outreach and adoption programs. They need a behaviorist that they can properly assess these animals so they don't die needlessly. We all know a caged animal is stressed, and if that isn't taken into consideration because of fear, then they haven't done their job. I would also I also find it interesting because of Kelly in talking to her partnership with SCAN, I've actually received three phone calls this month from SCAN employees looking for outreach, for grooming that care flea infestations. We can't be the only ones out here doing this this way. We need to be able to refer these people to our city shelter. We we cannot keep incurring these costs. Thank you. Thank you very much for the work you do. Thank you. I have a question. Mr. West is can you remind me also that I know that the budget for animal care doesn't remind me what the there's a position related to to vet technician. Can you remind me? Yes, I believe we're adding two positions. One is related of attack. Yes. In the book. And also the other just also the follow up to that is it's I know that the audit itself is coming out, I think, in within the next month or two for the city auditor's office. And I know there's going to be a variety of recommendations, obviously, including probably some that have funding ties to those is it's it's still possible, from what I understand by the council that if there are auto recommendations that the council wants to implement or recommendations that we would be able to do possibly a mid-year adjustment or look at funds when

that audit comes out. Is that correct? Absolutely. In fact, I think one of the positions that Marie is out in is based on early findings in the audit. But absolutely, you could do that. Okay. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi, Mr. Mayor and vice mayor and city council members. Nice to see you all. My name is Emily. Gosh, I'm the founder of Live, Love, Pet Care and Animal Rescue. I'm a Long Beach animal advocate and I am a constituent of the eighth District. I'm here, as many of you know, to talk about the lack of funding for Long Beach Animal Care Services. I'm asking you to consider releasing more general funds for that facility and for their programs. I am very glad to hear that the audit can be reassessed once that's fully released for more funding, because that was one question that I had. I feel very strongly that the animal welfare in our city impacts the aforementioned presentations about health and human services, disaster preparedness, and even the library. You know, those are all opportunities that we have as citizens to educate our community about the issues that are happening at the Long Beach Animal Care Services. And I'm sure with disaster preparedness, there's, you know, some understanding and consideration for companion animals as well in that. So, you know, it's intrinsic and intrinsic part of our society and our community and our great city here in Long Beach. From my experience in my work with the shelter, they're fantastic team, but they are severely understaffed and underfunded. They're consistently going over their medical care budget. And, you know, as Pam was stating, we also from Live Life get calls from everyday average citizens that say we can't find any help at the shelter. They referred us to you. I have staff members at the Long Beach Animal Care Services referring citizens to me for assistance where they should be able to provide that with Long Beach Animal Care. A great example of that is the dog that we just caught in the riverbed that I've been living in the Nature Center for five months. That Long Beach Animal Care did not have animal control officers that could go out there and spend the time necessary to catch this animal that was living in the open. Thankfully not a threat to the community because it was a very friendly but just living in the open and homeless encampments. And our team went out and got him and have paid for all of his medical care. I think it's very important that this issue continues to be raised and that it's, you know, weighed heavily by your by your team and the city officials about where our funding and where our priorities are as a city. So thank you for your time and listening to me. I promise you, you will continue to see me. I've emailed all of your offices to meet with you in person and I look forward to speaking to you further about this. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, mayor, vice mayor and Council. My name is Carina Christiana, and I like to say I'm a native of eighth district and a resident of the district for the last 17 years. I'm here obviously because of my relation to the rescues in our community and the Long Beach animal shelter. I spoke last week about my involvement as a volunteer, but just to. I'm really enjoying these meetings, by the way. So thank you, Emily, for keep inviting me to these. First of all, on the early education, I know this is so off topic, but I've been a consultant for first five LA for the last three years. I'm no longer consulting now. I have another position, but Long Beach is one of the 14 communities designated for first five early education. So I'm going encourage everybody here today to get out their phones and like the best start. Long Beach, this is tobacco tax money. And they have a monthly and weekly meetings on parent empowerment resources for children. I mean, it's such a large scale. I was from here to Palmdale, I promise you, working for the last three years. And they would have hundreds of people show up to be a part of First Viva La. And Long Beach was always really a tiny 20 to 30 group people. And I'm like, Wait a minute, that's not my city. We show up. So just in looking at that, because I heard that today and then I also heard about the economy. And I have to say thank you for talking about the companionship animals provide and and what fixed Long Beach does. But when people adopt a dog from the shelter or from one of our rescues, I think about the economy that comes back into our Long Beach. I'm sorry, dogs were closed. Now they go to training. They're training through all the city. I have met so many wonderful Long Beach State graduates that are now professional dog trainers, pet sitters, you name it. I mean, this is really a wonderful bubble for us in our economy. So besides being animal loving people and I had to have my education hat on because that's my background. There's so much involved. And I love hearing what you just said, Mayor Foster. I mean, you say, oh, this is when I'm here too long. I may say, well, he's he's he's doing some great leadership here to help out West. Look into that. I applaud you for that because that's really what I'm used to from my council and my mayor. And I'll be honest with you, I really want to thank you for doing that today because I'm going to look forward to some really great changes here. And I know you can do it real quickly. If we have a moment, can everyone with Long Beach animal advocate stand up? Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. David Zinke, 50 year resident, seventh District. I've rescued over 25 animals. I've had five Rottweilers that I've rescued. They don't scare me. I love them anyway. And I know you. Do, too. Last week I attended a innovation team meeting at Long Beach City College, and I'm here to tell you it was a complete waste of resources and time. It's 2 hours. I will never get back. I couldn't believe it. I was in told about it, ostensibly to discuss. And they wanted people who had arrest experience which I have a little. But that was not discussed approached in any way. I think the resources will be much better spent on bodycams. We never have the money for the things we really need. And I'd like to see this city, Chief Luna in particular institute a volunteer program. Any officer that wants to volunteer for one gets one. Why not? He's not afraid. There's an awful lot of fear in this police department of wearing body cams. And it's been going on for years. Furthermore. This city supports noble cause corruption. And by the way, that program, I call that fluff and fraud to make our city council in the city look good, but not to really do anything. It was a nothing meeting. Somebody mentioned police reforms, but there was no elaboration. We certainly need some. I provided some of you with copies of my story for installments in The Beachcomber published. My experience with the Long Beach Police Department and its Corrupt Drug Investigation Section ten men, guns drawn came to serve a warrant. No police cars? No. No badges, no IDs, no nothing. That's an intimidation tactic. I'm a former employee of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department and a military policeman by training. And I know when something's wrong. And there was a lot wrong in what was done here. Few. You have read it, I hope. Those that have received it, including you, Mr. Mayor, and my councilman, Mr. Tharanga, and also Mr. Austin. I hope you read this so you can know what these men are doing in the field. You know, you can spend every dollar you have in the general fund on P.R.. Thank you, sir. But if you keep grinding out the garbage, it's going out as service sometimes. Thank you, sir. Time is again. Then you're never going to change it. Thank you, sir. These meetings are worthless. Thank you, sir. Time is up. Next speaker, please. Thank you, Mayor. Your time will be up. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name is Wendy Williams. I'm a resident of Long Beach. I don't have anything planned, but I just. I volunteered Long Beach Animal Shelter. And I have a ten year old son over here who had to join me today so I could be here. I just want you to add to the importance of the animals in their lives, and that is should be the bare minimum of our city and our state to, um, to not terminate their lives. Due to the fact that. There's not enough money or enough space. Um, I'd like it to be considered for the foster program and the kitten nursery myself being there and the shelter, I guess having their hands tied and seeing these animals. I mean. I've offered to foster. And, um. Because of the liability. They'll turn me down, you know, because there is no foster program, so there's no safety net for the shelter if something were to happen to the kittens. Anyways, I just wanted to be heard. Thank you. Thank you so much for volunteering. Next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Beverley Lifer. I'm a resident of District two

. I am not affiliated with any of the animal rescue groups or the Long Beach Animal Association, but I do support them. I want to first tell you about my experience this past Sunday when I went to the Animal Care Services Shelter, City Shelter and asked about adopting the oldest cat that was available. I want to I'm looking into adopting a cat that is the least adoptable if it will fit in with my family of my other cats. And I waited until there was no one at the registration. The reception desk went up and asked, Can you please tell me where the oldest cat you have available is located and its name? I was told to go look at the cages, to go look at the signs on the cages. I said, Well, couldn't you tell me you must have a database or a listing of your animals that you have here? I was told they take in 50 animals a day. What do I expect? How can they keep track of them? This is a taxpayers. Agency I pay. It's a city agency. Where's the accountability? They should know what animals are there at their shelter. With my persistence in telling this young woman that she did go into the computer and handed me a list of four animals with their ages. I then asked her about these animals and I wanted to look at them. She told me, I need to go over to SPCA. L.A. couldn't even tell me information about the intake of these animals or would not. I went to SPCA, L.A. and asked about information on this one. The oldest cat who was 16. What did they do? They were very helpful. They called Ecorse to find out the information and background of this cat. What a waste of time and energy and effort. I'm sorry. I'm a little nervous. Don't usually get up and speak. There are things that the shelter is doing, but it's not enough. I heard last week at a District One Community Budget meeting that AC has plans on using the money that they get next year in Fy18 to build another cat cottage. What use is building cat cottages when all you plan to do is push them off onto other agencies or organizations? Non-for-profit organizations such as the Live Laugh Pet Care, such as SPCA. Why build more cottages or kennels when you're not even going to use them or kill them? I wanted and I'll leave this with you all because I can't get into it. But Sacramento, I have their numbers from there. AC Thank you, ma'am. Time is up. But you can we can take that and we'll pass it out to everybody. Okay. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. My name is Roman. I'm from District five. I'd like to compliment everybody here for all the hard work that they do. I'd like to also thank all of the speakers. They did a great job. I had the pleasure of speaking with Glenda over here, and I would like to give some support to library services. They're a great job. And in Councilwoman Mongo also for extending the hours in the mayor for for reiterating his support for that as well. I think that I would like to see here on the east side some kind of a system where we can have at least one 3D printer, somethi ng like 3000 bucks. And I think that'd be kind of cool. I'd also like to lend my support to the animal care services that I think they need a little bit more money. It's pretty obvious, and maybe try to work out some more coordinating coordination issues that was brought up in the last speaker. That's about it. And I think the security guy was doing great. And I also would like to give a great compliment to, I think, Kelly from Human Care Services. She's doing a great, great job. And that's all I have to say. Keep up the good work. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening there in council. My name is Jennifer Beaver and I've been a resident of Long Beach for 27 years. I've been to the animal shelter many times. It was only in the last two years that I began to follow the Long Beach Animal Shelter and some of the rescue groups on social media. And having done so, I can tell you that it's sort of a blessing and a curse. In many ways. It's a blessing. I see how hard the shelter staff works in taking care of many animals and finding homes for some that many would consider unadoptable. I've seen how hard these rescue groups work. They take on way too much. They spend way too much money. And they. They do some amazing things. I'm not going to echo what many eloquent people have said tonight and last week about creative ways to help the shelter. Creative ways that the city can work with the rescue groups to find ways to make the shelter better, to stop killing animals that could go to good homes, to stop killing animals and cages are available. But I did want to mention, and I congratulate you on this, everyone seems to be united in their desire for library hours on Sunday and Monday. And I support you in this. I am a card carrying member of the Long Beach Library. I go there almost every week. You have a fantastic program and I know that sound bites, such as support for Monday and Sunday library hours played very well in an election year. May I also suggest that you also support the animals at the Long Beach shelter? This is also a very good campaign gambit and I can assure you that if you come out in favor of the Long Beach animals, you will have lots of support from us. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello. Good evening, Mayor. Council of the council. People on the council.

My name is Karen Wyatt Coleman. I spoke here last month and was very emotional. But today I come bearing another heavy heart and one of the things that I'm here to speak on and I said, I'll do it my last. I've been working in nonprofits for the last 32, 33 years. I've been working with a nonprofit agency, Help Line Youth Counseling for the last 22 years as the community service director. Like I said, September the 29th will be my last day working with the nonprofit. And the reason one of the reasons why is my frustration with trying to work within the cities. And I do commend the health department. But I've worked out of the Central Facility Center for th e last 22 years with youth and families. They've been referred to us by the county probation and family community members. I'm a part of the My Sister's Keepers program, My Brother's Keeper program. I've been around the table at all these agencies that are coming around the table. But one of my concerns with what's going on in this country right now, with the statues and all the stuff being torn down and those type of thing, when I walk, when I drive up to King Park and I see Martin Luther King's statue there, I'm thinking it's about community. I'm thinking those doors are going to be open as long as that community center needs them open to make sure things are happening and things are ready. For a community center to close at 530 is outrageous. And I understand that there's no money or whatever they're talking about. They don't need this and nobody do. But we have to set our priorities straight. We're losing kids every day. You got Parks and Rec closing at 6:00, opening at three just for the summertime, is up at one. But back after September, it'll open at three and close at six. The Central Facility Center opens at six just for child care in the morning. I mean, it's open. The center opens at six, but it closes at 530. What time do you think you need those centers open? What time do you think those community members need to be able to go in and have places where they can go check on computers and stuff like that? I really outrage and I come in and I said I was going to make it a point to get to these meetings before my last day of working with the agency and bring young girls so that they can see that that this does this isn't working for us right now. I don't know what this you know, what you guys do when you get behind those closed doors. But the bureaucracy is so outrageous that for you to just look at that center and allow it to close at 530. And then now when I first started working there 22 years ago, it was free to nonprofits. Now we have to pay to be in those centers, not only pay to be in them, but have them close at 530. And we're working with youth. Once again, thank you, family and you. I really needed to say that, but I just wanted to do that on my last day. Thank you. Thank you, ma'am, very much. Thank you so much. My name is Veronica Eagan. I'm a lifetime resident at Long Beach. Raised my kids here. Couple of things. First of all, just the parking recs. My kids go to Mark Twain, they get out at 230. The park opens up for their after school program at three. 30 minutes. The kids are out there by themselves. There's nobody there. Not safe. I'm here because I currently have a dog that we found that is hurt and we couldn't take. Her to Long Beach Shelter because she wouldn't get treatment. They would have just killed her. Why aren't we putting the money into educating our kids? We have the DARE program. Why aren't we out there telling our kids? Why isn't an AC going. To the schools and telling. Them how important it is to spay and ne uter? How important these pets are? Lifetime. They're not throwaway. Why are we not educating? It's going to. Continue if we don't stop it. Now and give them the money for the vet care for education. It's obvious it's not working on what they got. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. And it looks like this will be our final speaker. So it looks like the OC, Mr. Jeans. Diana La Jeans Advocates for disability rights. I have two issues that I want to speak to. First of all, I wanted first of all, I wanted to actually ask. I've asked this question a couple of times. I wanted to know how much speaking a budget that this out of district meeting costs over and above a meeting that would be at city hall. Can somebody answer that for me here? I don't understand why I can't get that answer. Yeah. I mean, this I mean, I, I'm not aware. I think our staff would have to explore how much a offsite meeting cost versus a regular meeting at City Hall. Okay, so where do I go? Because I asked the city manager. He told me, city clerk? The city clerk says, no, she doesn't have the answer. So, you know, I'm getting this back and forth, right? I mean, this is the first time I've heard you say this to me, so. Well, no, not to you. Yeah, I did it in the budget meeting. Okay. Sorry. Mean that's not your fault. Yeah, I think. I think that's a question. We can certainly get the answer to you. I'm sure we've done that look in the past what the difference, of course, is. So, Mr. West, we'll get that out. Sure. We just don't know tonight. Okay. All right. So I can get that answer from the city manager's office. Is that correct? And I think you have my number, Mr. West. If you would have someone call me, I'd appreciate it. Okay, now I'm beginning to speak. First of all, I did want to apologize. I did speak to the budget meeting about a variety of items on the city employees. I did not mention library services. I, I use the library services a lot. I do not have internet at home, etc. They have art. Fabulous. They really do a good job. Their employees are very service oriented. So I do want to congratulate them. I did listen to the Human Health and Human Services presentation. I do not use their services, but I was very impressed with the presentation. And my concern is in that particular arena is why are we we do we have the Health and Human Services that is is concerned about health and human services. Then we have the parks that are poisoning our animals and our children with their roundup. Now, this is something I brought up. I know you weren't all here to hear that, but basically Roundup is a poison should not be used in the parks. We have been bringing that up to the Parks Commission. We have been bringing that up to the parks. That is not being dealt with. We it doesn't make sense to have this wonderful health and human services and then have the parks poisoning our our pets and our children. So I would really like to see that issue resolved. Okay. And then in terms of intelligence. I, I started late because we were. It's all it's all in the 3 minutes, but time is up. Well, I have one more issue to discuss. I know. But that was that was just a question. I was one of. The messages I have. It's 3 minutes for speaker. I have to be fair to everybody. So. Okay. Well, I'll bring it up at a different and a different item. Thank you very. Much. You're welcome. Okay. Thank you. So that concludes public comment on the budget hearing. So if there's unless there's any objection, we will move the remainder of the budget hearing to the next meeting where it will continue. Like all or like all of them see no objection to that. And and then with that, we're going to go ahead and take a one minute, one or two minute recess, and then we will start the city council meeting. The budget hearing is now concluded. Thank you all for coming. Members. Madam Clerk, if you can, please. If I can have everyone out in the audience. Please. If you're chatting to step outside. She. Thank you very much. GONZALEZ Councilmember Pearce and Councilwoman Price. Councilmember super down. Here. Councilwoman Mongo. Councilman Andrews. Councilmember Urunga. Councilman Austin. Vice Mayor Richardson. Mayor Garcia. I'm here. Thank you. Consent. Please take a second. Madam Clerk. Communication from Councilwoman Mongo, Councilwoman Price Council Super supernatural recommendation to request the city manager to develop a neighborhood engagement and community communications plan. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. Yes, I appreciate the work that our Public Information Office does. We are fortunate to have had a great team of individuals that work together. Sometimes the resources of public information aren't all housed in one department. Our Technology and Innovation Department has the go along each division within our individual departments. There are many public outreach efforts, but they're inconsistent. And at this time we have recently had an A Arpaio left the city headquarters to go to our port and we'll be recruiting and hiring a new public information officer. I think it's a great time to take a fresh strategy on coordinating all of those efforts so that the community can have a clear expectation of the methods in which they are communicated with and the best methods to be communicating to the city. And so I look forward to seeing the report when I see items in a budget, $40,000 for a survey of this or a survey of that, I'd like to see a more global and encompassing plan. And so I'd like to make the motion that this come back as per the council item. Thank you. Thank you. Is there a second second by Councilmember Soup or not? Is your public comment on this item seeing no public comment? Oh please come forward to seven. Okay. I got a problem with this one. Only because I hate to say it, but our councilwoman has been involved with an outreach regarding library services, and we were promised to get a survey report. And it's supposed to go to the the Housing and Neighborhood Committee. And it's been refused. It's we've got a defiant, I guess, councilwoman, and she's entrenched in not providing the information to the committee or making it public. And our district is pretty pissed. We've got some surveys going on. There's like 200 people that has already said, look, this is crazy. And we the messenger on this one doesn't seem to be appropriate in this case. I think that certainly the outreach that needs to be done for library services could be added to our 8-7 that specification. But we do know also that when the outreach was conducted for the library, that Pat West also did contact the PRM in the library services department and asked them to directed them to make their outreach in a certain way that would agree with Councilwoman Mongo. I mean, that's what I've been told by the people there. So this is kind of a problem that we have. It's not just happening internally and trying to get coordination, but it's also happening with the council members. And so we are trying to get consistency. I agree with that. But we've got a problem in the way things are executed. We're seeing problems with the certainly with the density program and in the way that things are going. But these are just concerns that I have that I personally have. And you've got situations where where we've also tried to get outreach meetings as a community and involve our council member and we the issue's been camouflaged as what they call a a workshop meeting and business licensing workshop. And we're having trouble in actually getting an understanding of what of what's happened, because we're actually being given the misinformation, not misinformation, but disinformation and being told that it's for that was for a density meeting. But it's actually the title of the meeting is for something else, like Business Workshop one on one. So all of this can be integrated into the process is what we believe. We know the city has no problem with their public relations. We've got business news, whatever it's called, Long Beach, business news, all these public outlets, they don't have a problem getting the information out. They can do it any time that they want. You don't need to legislate it. We can build it into the process. That's what my my situation is. I didn't mean to say it that way with Councilwoman Longo, but this is a concern that we have with District five, and it's creating a credibility issues. And we just want to see that report. We want to see it go to the right place. We want ethics. Thank you, Transparent. Thank you so much. Thank you. That concludes public comment. No more public comment. And we're going back to the council councilmember Supernanny. I'd just like to address what was just said, not specifically on that item, but I believe your argument would support this item for more transparency. More. Okay. This is not a debate. I'm just responding. But thank you. Councilman Mongo. Yes. I think that part of the communication strategy that we need to have is that there needs to be clear lines of how we collect information and when and when those items come back. And I know that I'm currently we're doing the best we can with the resources available to meet the needs of all constituents. And I hope that this will get us all on the same page so that the PIOs office and council offices and department heads are all working in coordination. So I hope my colleagues will support this item. Thank you, Councilwoman Janine Pearce. Oh, yes. I have to comment on this. When we're looking at some of the communication we have next door, I know that my office has been told by next door that we're not allowed to have an account with them, but the city has an account and PD has an account. So whatever we can do to make sure that our offices are able to also effectively communicate through other channels that the rest of the city are would be important. And then number two, if we're going to talk about communications with all of our constituents, I think having language access and this is also an important discussion to make sure that we're looking at ways that we can increase accessibility for all of our residents. So thank you for bringing that item forward. Thank you, Councilmember Austin. Thank you. And I certainly. Supporting a greater. Transparency and improving communications. So I certainly be. Supporting. This this plan. But I did have. Just the question for clarification. I've been on the council for a while. I'm not clear on the five priorities that are stated here. If you can. Clarify that, that'd be helpful. I'm going. You brought that up. Council priorities were set in 2005 and 2007, and the Budget Oversight Committee will be looking at those after we firm up our fiscal policies and this year's budget. But I am 100% with you, and that is why they were in the item. All right. Well, we may need a refresher since 2007. Absolutely, sir. Thank you, Councilor Durango. Communication, communication, communication. That's all very important. It always has been and always will be. The only concern I have in this area is the fact that, know when we conduct surveys, we're conduct we're paying a lot of money for surveys. We pay. We hire consultants. They come in. They only do we put an RFQ or RFP, whatever for somebody to come in and do a survey. That's the only issue I have with this with a sign. But communication is fine. Let's get the word out. Let's understand what our community needs are. Let people have their input. But the only issue I have would be the the continuing efforts that we have to always hire a consultant to do a survey, police services, a survey of fire services, a survey of public works street. We don't need all that, but we should have. And this what this item does produce or does does provide is it is an expanded social media type of avenue for people to to send in their concerns. And that so that's that I could see that's important. But let's let's keep in mind wher

e where we're going with this and what it means really in the long run. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And, you know, I just wanted to chime in and say I think it's timely and important. Sorry. I'll start over. Continue. I think it's timely and important and definitely a good opportunity to have a refresher. In my district in North Long Beach, a lot of people may not know, but we have very little newspaper circulation. Dissemination and information is very difficult. And now even the grunion The Uptown Gazette doesn't circulating in town anymore. And so now it's very it's even fewer channels. So what we've seen is that like our inside District nine newsletter or website, you know, placing fliers at the library and at the parks are some of the the best ways to get information out. And I think now more than ever, the city's channels, we should have clarity and understanding on how the city council offices can place things into the city's communication channels, get a broader, broader reach. So I definitely want to say that this is a good conversation to have, and I hope it was the final and funniest comment of the night. Councilmember Gonzalez It was. Except it was I'm final. I thank you, Councilmember Mongo and Price and super now for bringing it forward. Of course, I'm all about the transparency as well. I will also reinforce the language access. I we talk about it quite a bit, but we need to really actually step up and implement it as much as possible. And then secondly, I'd like to get information as to our I think we have speak up Long Beach. Do we not have that? And so I don't know what the data is on that and how effective that actually is, and I'm sure that's folded into this. So we need to work on that. And then thirdly, I mentioned this, I think to the mayor about other cities that have podcasts and it's just another avenue for our city to disseminate information. And, you know, our city council meetings or our other meetings, I know a lot of individuals, especially if they don't have computers at home , they at least have a smartphone. And so I think that's another way to disseminate information. And then one other thing. I would just I'm good. Thank you very much for your for your item. Thank you. There's a motion. Please roll. Call this. Out. Mr. Mayor. We did have a comment, I. I'm sorry. Oh, go ahead, Councilwoman. I just wanted to indicate that I support this item as well. And I want to thank Councilmember Mundo for moving forward. That's a great item. Thank you so much for your comment, Madam Clerk. Councilwoman Gonzalez. Councilmember Pearce. Councilwoman Price. Yay! Councilmember Super Now. Councilwoman Mongo. Councilman Andrews. Council Councilmember Your Honor. To. Councilmember Austin. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you. Carries number nine, please. Madam Clerk. Bush in case. Thank you. Our next item is 25. Item 25 is a communication from Councilwoman Gonzalez, Councilmember Sabina and Councilwoman Mango. Recommend ation to direct city manager to assemble a recruitment team. To develop an incentive package to entice a large corporation such as Amazon to consider the city of Long Beach as the location for its next headquarters. Thank you. We'll go to Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes, thank you. I brought this item forward and I first want to thank my council colleagues, Councilmember Super Non Councilmember Mongo, for joining me on this item. I believe that our economic development department has done a fantastic job. I know that they're already in the works, working with many large corporations to see what may be interest, who may be interested in Long Beach. And I know that Amazon, we've all seen it in the news as a potential. They are currently listed as the third most innovative company in the world with over 350,000 employees worldwide. It doesn't even take into account seasonal or temporary workers, and the company continues to add more employees. And this is primarily brought on by the company's higher fulfillment activity, its growing transportation, logistics network and products like Echo and Alexa, which we may all have in our houses. Five years ago, Amazon only employed about 65,000 people, so their growth is significant. And now that Amazon is seeking to open a new headquarters with the promise of 50,000 new jobs, it's imperative that we assemble a recruitment team, this team that has already done such great work to ensure that Long Beach is a place where people look to us as major investment. And so I just have a couple of questions for John Keisler. If you we're going to put you on the hot seat for a second, because I know as we are not even at our peak yet in terms of our local economy getting better and better and better. But, you know, we obviously are seeing new corporations seeking second, third location. So what are we doing to just outreach and recruit other corporations similar to Amazon or. Businesses that are looking elsewhere. Members of the city council. Councilmember GONZALES Yes, there's there's a number of things that that that we do on an ongoing basis in the Economic and Property Development Department. We cover real estate development, property development and workforce development. And so depending on what the needs are of the business, if they're existing and they want to expand, they have workforce needs or they might want to relocate to the area. We help on an ongoing basis businesses to to understand where we have opportunity sites for, you know, available land, whether it's owned by the city or owned by a private entity, how to navigate and prepare for, say, the entitlement process. We also have on the workforce development side, a number of programs that are federal federal programs that help businesses that might have recruitment or hiring needs on job training funds to help them to grow or recruit the workforce they need to locate here. And then finally, with business attraction and retention there, depending on the size of the company, depending on what what assistance they need, they might they might need anything from market analysis. Taking a look at the demographics or consumer spending, the population, they may also need help with identifying a site to locate their business. And so there's there's a range of issues that that we take in. Or intake every. Single day. And typically, it's a team of both in the economic and property development department staff, as well as staff in other departments such as Development Services. It could involve our fire department, public safety health, who we bring to. The table to facilitate. The business either starting or growing in the city. Great. Well, thank you so much for the report and congratulations on being most innovative per the Long Beach Business Journal. I saw your face on LinkedIn. Congrats and thanks for all your work, both you and Sergio, the whole team do a great job and I appreciate you entertaining this item. Thank you. Councilmember Mongo. Yes, I want to thank the team. It is exciting when we're talking about new businesses that are coming to town. I know that we can't always fully disclose all of the people that are interested, but I know that we're working hard. I appreciate the easy access to our supervisor's office, who was here today and directly after my meeting with economic development on all the potential businesses that are moving here and hearing more about your efforts with working with the government business team to go to the office and the governor's business team, that we are going to put together a great package because we allow businesses to work here and to bring their jobs here and to run their companies as efficiently and as effectively as is legally available. So excited to support that. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Andrews. Yes, thank you, Vice Mayor. You know, I really think that this sounds like a wonderful idea, especially since I'm a firm believer that, you know, a job can stop a bullet. You know, with our economic development blueprint, we want businesses, good paying jobs and a diverse workforce. I hope an incentive package can encourage large corporations to come into our city and hire locally and with respect for working conditions. And I want to thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez, for bringing this to Bobby. Thank you very much. Catherine Ashton. Yes. Also, I'd like to thank the members for bringing this forward as well. This is a no brainer in terms of support. I think I would be hard pressed to find anybody that would argue against the possibility of bringing 50,000 jobs to Long Beach. I can tell, as many of you know, I came to Long Beach, my family came to Long Beach, you know, at the heyday of the aircraft industry here in Long Beach with McDonnell Douglas and Boeing. Those facilities, I think there's a footprint that is already in place to employ thousands of people. And, you know, I think it it doesn't hurt to make to ask and be aggressive about it. And so I

I'm confident that, you know, Long Beach will be favorably considered. So good luck and I'll be supporting. Thank you, Councilman Pearce. Great. I want to thank my colleagues for bringing this forward. I think that it's important that we as a city, we've been talking about how do we bring tech, how do we bring big business here to help our tax base to ensure that our city is continuing to grow and to thrive? And I think any package, incentive package should be aggressive. I'm curious on issues with 50,000 new jobs, if there's issues of housing and things like that that they're looking for cities to be innovative in. And how are we thinking about a community benefit that includes local hire and housing when we're trying to attract these big companies? Thank you. Thank you. I'll just say, you know, anytime we can roll our sleeves up and try to find a land, something like that. You want to roll out the red carpet? Be as creative as possible. But frankly, e-commerce is the direction of the future. Miles, we're closing down these e-commerce distribution centers, opening up. So we we should think about the other other pieces to this industry, too. So you don't land a headquarters. I mean, you're saying distribution centers and things like that with that are creating 2000, 3000 jobs at a time. And that's the direct that's what's opening up people. We're literally replacing shopping malls with distribution centers. And we have to, you know, have our land use codes and things up to speed to be able to prepare for those things. And they're not just warehouse work jobs. Some of these are engineering jobs, logistical jobs, very technical jobs. And and there are real opportunities. You know, one of these sites just opened up in the city of Compton. The old brick brickyard became an e-commerce site for UPS. And I know that we're engaged in some of those conversations here in the city, but thank you to the both to the maker of the motion and the centers on this item. Is any public comment on this item? Now based on who's come forward. Okay. Give an honor to Jesus again. Only because he's the only good one. Okay. This is a this is a good thing. I can't speak against it. I'm not speaking against. The only thing I wonder about is I remember when Jet Blue was coming around and a lot of people here with JetBlue, that was $1.4 billion. You know, I know some people people like people came in T-shirts and everything and some people didn't want the noise, but that was 1.4 billion that the city needed. And knowing that, you know, you guys are going to be going for sanctuary city status and everything and we're going to lose like over $1,000,000,000 from the feds. We needed that. JetBlue. So I just hope you stick with this one and don't do an about face on them either, you know, because you did it before the JetBlue. They were people. And then when it's time, people backed out. So you know the opportunities. Yeah, but who's going to get the job? Pacific Gateway was talking about non-English speakers and all those things. Those things I've read in the past that when they want to train non English speakers and this and then everybody I see with jobs I said last week, hey they they nothing but basically Latinos I guess Latinos have jobs. It's a good thing I'm Latino myself, Cubano, you know, but we support Trump because he let Reagan let us stay in in 80. So that's the difference. So we for Donald Trump, Donald Trump, Donald Trump. Now, as far as how you keep this going and opportunities, I hope the opportunities are real because I hear a lot of mumbo jumbo. I've been here for a while. Well, I only been here for about ten months. Yeah, about ten months. But since I'm here, you know, I hear a lot of talking and I don't see the walking. So I hope you keep your word on it. And you know what I always say? She got to go. She got to go. She can. Thank you for your. Time, sir. I know you're thanking me for my time, but you got to get rid of her. We don't want communism. All right. I think your comments are concluded, but thank you for your time. That's the goal. Everybody in the. World know any further public a public comment saying no. Members, please cast your vote. To go, everybody. Councilmember Andrews. Motion carries. Thank you. That concludes our final agenda item. So we now move to our second public comment. As any member of the public like to come forward and address city council. Thank you. Have the floor. Okay. Now we're going to go into our first hearing, which is the CCP hearing. So I just need to make an announcement. I do believe there are a few folks that are outside for CCP, so I know that they can hear me and I know we're going to do a oath for those that want to talk on the item. So I just want to make sure that we also allow that our our folks are managing the flow of people that we allow. The folks are going to do see CIP to come in and then they can be escorted out. I guess, however, they're going to do that up up in the up in the back. So let me go ahead and begin by taking the item. We're going to do an oath first, Madam Clerk. All those who intend on participating. Please stand up and raise your right hand. If you're here for SIP for the planning, I do. You and each of you solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the cause now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God. Okay. And I'm assuming also that there's folks outside that took the oath that want to come in to speak on C-SPAN. Did we arrange that? We're fine. Okay, great. All right, so I will now turn this. Open the hearing and turn this over to staff. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and members of the City Council. This item will be presented by Amy Burdick, our director of development. Services, and Christopher Coons, our advance planning officer. Mr. Mayor. Members of the. City council in the audience, thank you very much for your. Participation and attendance tonight. The sea

dip. Ordinance is 41 years old. It is the. Oldest planning ordinance. That we have in the city. We have spent. Over three and a half years updating this. Ordinance, and we were able to do this through the the. Generosity of the state of California, through a California. Department of. Conservation Sustainable Communities. Planning grant. Without that almost $1,000,000 contribution, we would not be able to be here today. I'm going to ask Christopher. Coons to. Provide an overview. Of the three and a half year planning process that culminates. Hopefully this evening. And then also remind you. With the assistance of Mr. City attorney, that this is an appeal hearing. So we will go. Through an appeal process as well. With that, I'm turning it over to Christopher Coons, her advanced planning officer. Good evening, city council members. And so this evening. We're talking about the southeast area specific plan which will replace Planning District one, also known as CDEP up. So this gives you the general area. You've got Seventh Street, which becomes the 22 and the northern area, you've got PCH Highway one running through the center of the site and you also see Second Street running through the lower portion of the site. So as Amy mentioned, this is a project that was based on community engagement and was community driven. So this project began with meetings large and small to really establish a community vision of what is it that folks want to see in the southeast part of Long Beach, not just today, but into the future? And this is a plan that reaches out all the way to 2016, but also deals with our issues today and tomorrow. So on the screen, you see some of our our larger meetings and those ranged from community advisory committee meetings, open houses, workshops, drop ins at farmer's markets and other places. But these also involved numerous meetings with existing groups and individuals. If there was a group that wanted to have a meeting, we participated in that meeting. We listened to all voices and because of the great participation we received from the public, we were able to craft a plan that we're all proud of and it would not have been able to happen without that community engagement process. This is the plan from 1977. So this plan represents an outdated approach to development for a few reasons. You'll see on the screen our wetland areas flanking PCH and Second Street were originally and 77 contemplated for development. That's not an approach we would take today. This plan also does not allow for mixed use. And lastly, it wasn't really a plan. It was a collection of rules compiled based on what had been built and what was anticipated to be built. But it wasn't driven by a community vision in the same way that the plan currently in front of you today is, which establishes a clear route to create spaces that will be enjoyable and beneficial to the community as a whole. So this is the land plan for the item before you this evening. It makes a few major changes. It protects wetland areas and open habitat area. It concentrates the only areas of change on two sites that are already developed today. So what we're talking about is locations where there are existing shopping centers or existing hotel uses that could be reimaged and redeveloped in the future. It allows for mixed use, which is consistent with its setting. And it provides updated standards, context, sensitive design and a pathway to achieving community benefits. Key to this plan is enhancing the wetlands and coastal resources. So we talked about setting aside natural areas for protection in perpetuity, but this plan goes further than that and it does include a wetlands restoration and monitoring fund that future projects will be paying into. And it also includes provisions that every project is built correctly and in deference to its setting adjacent to our wild areas. So what are bird safe treatments? This is something we spent a lot of time on developing during this plan and birth. Safe treatments come down to three big areas glass plants and lights. So it means making sure that birds of all type can tell the difference between open sky and building glass. It means using plants that are appropriate next to our wetland habitat area. And those are California native plants. And this will be one of the most progressive plants in the United States. And in terms of landscaping and it means lighting, it means using lighting that's appropriate that lights the building but not surrounding areas. And it means working together, not just in the design process, but with future residents and businesses to make sure that that light is really limited, especially at night. Lights up for birds. So this plan is really also about creating organic and compelling placemaking as part of development, not just having x square feet of retail or white square feet of residential, but really having those places where community happens and allowing for community gathering places and a sense of experience. A sense of place and a sense of pride. This is also about building form and architecture and creating something that is really befitting of Long Beach. This is our entryway into the city for many visitors every day. And it's we don't have our best face forward today, I think would be the best way to describe it. So it's about creating places that are human scale but are exciting and vibrant and invite a positive image for our city. It's also about building orientation. So believe it or not, there is a beautiful waterway behind what you know today as Ralph's and Best Buy. You don't know that because those buildings block the view of the water and turn their back on the water. There is a way to flip that. There is a way to have you corridors to our waterfront and to have a great environment for future residents, current residents and visitors to all enjoy our waterfront, to stop and have a meal, but stay a while, maybe do some shopping, or maybe just co me and enjoy the space with your family and meet some new friends. It's also about open space amenities and creating useful open space between these future buildings that will benefit future residents, current residents and visitors. So it's also about including the streetscape. During our outreach process, there are a lot of different adjectives used by the community to describe PCH. Most people did not describe it as beautiful or as the best street in Long Beach or as something they were particularly proud of. So part of this plan is really about changing that engagement between the built environment and the street and having buildings that have interesting and exciting edges with the street. It's also about increasing connectivity. We know that we are a city of cars and many folks will continue to drive. But it's also about giving people other choices, including biking and walking and improving the environment for all forms of mobility. To that end, this project increases bicycle lane miles in the area by 79%, 29% increase in pedestrian facilities and a 9% increase in roadways for cars. This just gives you an idea of the reimagining of PCH. So this shot here is sort of approaching the Marina Pacifica shopping center today. So imagine separated bike lanes where you feel safe, new planting medians, trees and somewhere that you're not just comfortable, but somewhere that you want to return to because you have a positive experience in terms of positive, increased connectivity. The most common concern about the project was about the traffic at Second and PCH. There's some things that we can do, but there are limits to what we can do about traffic. So one of the ideas we're doing in this plan is breaking up the super blocks and making sure that if you don't have to go through that intersection, you don't have to go through that intersection, that you can get around different sites and that you have an internal street grid instead of the giant super blocks that you see out there today. So if I'm a resident in Naples and I'm trying to get where Ralph says today, there's no need for me to go through that second and PCH intersection. Once we have a better functioning internal street grid and I can get through the different sites without going through that major intersection. So I was asked to keep it brief. But just in summary, I think what we've done with this plan is really try to accomplish a community goal. We did that through coming up with development standards that were sufficient to attract private investment and create all these amenities and improvements that we talked about, but are also scaled appropriate to their setting and this unique location near the water and near our great wild areas. So that concludes the staff presentation and we're available here at the staff table for all your questions. Okay. Now, of course, this is a hearing. So the way this works is the city has made a presentation. There is an Appellant. We have one. Appella nt Correct me if I'm wrong is Mr. City Attorney. So the one appellant has asked for 15 minutes, so we will do 15 minutes for the one. Appellant And is he just come on down? And we will also I know that the appellant has also asked for rebuttal time. So what we'll do is if there is additional comments after this by staff, then we'll grant the rebuttal time. If there's not, then there's obviously no need for the rebuttal time if there isn't any additional comments. Sounds good. Okay, let's go ahead. And, Madam Clerk, you'll have the time. Thank so much, honorable mayor and City Council for having us here today. My name is Warren Lisowski. I'm the president of Long Beach, Citizens for Fair Development. Mr. Salisbury, we're taking notes. I'm actually the president of the organization. I'd like to start out today to thank staff for their presentation and just point out a couple of issues that I don't have the agenda in front of me. So City Council and Honorable Mayor, I ask you to look at each of these decisions that are being made individually. Very often decisions come before you and there are many items that are grouped together. So let's just break down exactly what's happening today. The staff is proposing that you repeal and replace the existing PD one set up. It is our position that, yes, leadership is inadequate due to the age. But see, this does have vital protections for the wetlands. And so instead of repealing and replacing c dep CDEP could have been updated in such a way to protect the wetlands better. Just a couple comments directly related to the staff's report. If you remember when we did study sessions in these chambers, the members of the public commented that whatever happened at those community meetings was not accurately reflected in the document. So I just let the record be clear that the citizens feel that what happened at those study sessions is not in the documents. I've given you each a letter, a three page letter outlining some of the problems. What we've got here is we can't look at just this as a zoning change we have, and we must look at the totality of what's going on in the southeast area. Let's remember that a brand new gas fired power plant was just approved by S.C. The planning commission here has approved three seven story buildings filled with 90,000 gallons of lithium ion battery, the same stuff that was in the note five when you couldn't bring a milliliter of it on the airplane. They want to put 90,000 gallons of it on the wetlands with no additional fire resource and also with no environmental review. The Planning Commission simply approved a mitigated negative declaration for the Battery Tower. If this if this if you vote yes on all of this today, what we are going to end up with is not what? Not wetlands protection. There is going to be 80 foot buildings if a hotel mixed use is used under the plan. The biology in this environmental impact report is woefully inadequate. It does not talk about how the biologi cal resources will be preserved in light of these 80 story buildings. I would like to draw your attention back to the local coastal planning program. The local coastal program was adopted after set up in 1980 as under the California Coastal Act and. The the local coastal plan says that the conservation goals and policies of the Coastal Act should be are there for the preservation of all those through those wetlands. The local coastal plan also describes CDEP and the accompanying resource management plan as being inextricably intertwined. And so really the way these documents are written, the local coastal plan, sea depth and the resource management plan, they really cannot be extracted from one another. So if you are repealing PD one side, if you're also repealing those portions of the local coastal plan and the resource management plan included within. A couple other problems. As the low Cerritos Wetlands Trust pointed out in their letter from their attorney, Michelle Black, The Post reads, This plan is inconsistent with the general plan. Why? Why is this body spending time to update a specific plan when we know that the general plan does not conform to state guidelines? So wouldn't it make more sense to update the general plan first and then update the specific plans to be in line with that? Also, there's a new government code section 60 50302 that stems from Senate Bill 1000. It's the environmental justice piece of general plans. Now, staff at a earlier meeting stated that these new elements that are being passed have paid some type of service to the Environmental Justice under Senate Bill 1000 with the people of Long Beach wants. What the environmentalists want is we want what the state Senate voted for us and what the governor signed into law. We want an environmental justice element, not just environmental justice, to be dealt with from time to time in the different elements of the general plan. Let's talk about the certification of the final air today. California Environmental Quality Act secure its its California's broadest environmental law and secure it gives the fullest protection of the environment within reason, the fullest protection. This plan does not give the force protection. This is a development plan. This is an oil drilling plan. Even though the misnamed Wetlands Restoration Program, which more aptly should be named the 50 year oil drilling in the wetlands program, is not in front of you today. That land exchange or oil drilling plan cannot happen without this CDEP being repealed. So I'd like you to take a second to think about the gravity of what you're doing today. You've got an environmental protection on our last remaining wetlands, and Long Beach staff is asking you to remove those protections and replace them with a development plan allowing 80 foot tall hotels in the buffer areas around the wetlands. The California Coastal Commission sent a letter from a scientist named Kate Kate Hochul Bridge regarding the wetlands, o il consolidation and Restoration Project. And she's got 32 pages from the Coastal Commission about about the problems with these plans. So let's not forget that this sea dep and this oil drilling are one in the same. Let's go back to the local coastal plan that was adopted in 1980. The local coastal plan states that the city shall ask the Coastal Commission for aid and funding to effect the determination of the location and boundaries of the wetlands and their buffer areas for restoration. IT when we were here about the pool, the Belmont Pool Project, the attitude of this body and the staff was, let's ask for the biggest project we can and then let Coastal Commission trim it down. I remember Councilman Iran, I didn't think that was maybe the best idea. Coastal Commission staff is right here in downtown Long Beach. Your staff can meet with Coastal Commission. You can form these policies together. You don't have to ask for something that's outsized, that's damaging to the environment. And then have Coastal Commission object to it. This can be this can happen in a more collaborative setting. Another way that the air is inadequate is there's something called the Low Cerritos Channel Watershed Group. It's made up of the cities of Bellflower, Cerritos, Downey, Lakewood, Long Beach, Paramount and Signal Hill and the L.A. County Flood District. There's a watershed management program. This document in the jurisdiction section of the air did not come up at all. That's just one reason why the air is inadequate. I wanted to respond to a couple more of staff's points. There was a beautiful slide called Placemaking. I went to high school in Long Beach. Placemaking was not a word. Okay. That's a made up word by the consultant. I think they've got place in the name of their business. That's the same consultant that's doing the Dewey Plan that brought 60 people here to object to it. So our recommendation is stop using place works. They don't. They do not. Their values and the residents of Long Beach values are do not resonate with each other. Environmentalists and community activists. We don't want place works here in Long Beach. One more thing is staff had a beautiful slide called building orientation, talking about the the underused backside portion facing the Marina Pacifica condos from Best Buy and Ralphs. Some beautiful pictures there. They've got sailboats sailing down the channel there. It makes me think that these consultants have never even been there before because everyone knows you can't have a sailboat sailing down between Marina Pacifica condos and Best Buy. So if they have spent time there. Once again, I do not think they have an understanding of how the southeast area of Long Beach operates. Couple other points here, because I do want to save a few minutes. Let's think about where we are in the world right now. Let's think about what's happened the last few months. Let's look at the horrible hurricane in Houston. I mean, Houston, we all heard it o n the news. We all heard it from the commentary. Unchecked development was the cause of a lot of that flooding, unchecked development in Houston. The developers were allowed to build wherever they want, and that ended up with freeways being below sea level. And that led to the death and destruction on top of what was already a horrible natural disaster. Let's think about what's in that water that those people had to wade through. That was the biggest oil production facility in the world there on the Texas coast. And now it's become a toxic soup that those people are going to have to live with for the rest of their lives. We have yet to see the spike in cancer, the spike in miscarriage. We don't know what the health effects are going to be. Now, let's look at the low street, those wetlands that are going to be unprotected if you pass this law tonight. We know sea level rise is imminent. We know there's an earthquake fault running across the wetlands between the oil production facilities. All it takes is a small tsunami. It could be a couple of feet tall. All it could take is a couple of feet of storm surge. And all those oil operations and all that residential area. And your beautiful pictures of PCH will be covered in the same toxic soup that's covering Houston right now. We demand that that does not happen. We beg of you to not pass this resolution. There's a couple of other things regarding development. I know staff really wants to put these tall, mixed use buildings in the L.A. Times yesterday. Downtown Los Angeles has a 20% residential vacancy rate. People can't pay 30 $500 for a one bedroom apartment. Something else that's lacking with this E.R. and why it should not be certified is the cumulative impacts are lacking. This body's proposing to certify a specific plan. Er it's a programmatic element. That Environment Impact Report does not mention the Battery Towers. It does not mention the battery plans. It does not mention the land swap. So California's Sequoia insists that the cumulative impacts of any environmental projects be recognized. And finally, this. This area falls under the Clean Water Act. These are waters of America. And even though our current administration wants to redefine the waters of America to a more narrow definition, this body should stand up and protect the waters of America. And finally, what do we want? We want you to delay this vote. This body has broad powers to change the land use via the general plan zones and the specific zoning zones. So what we're asking you to do is to start to break long beaches, addiction to oil and fossil fuels. California has set a 2040 zero emissions goal. How does a 50 year oil drilling plan in step help a zero emissions goal? Let's follow some of the leaders. When the president said that the people of Pittsburgh didn't vote for Paris, that the people of Pittsburgh voted for him, the Pittsburgh mayor came back and said, no, we didn't vote for that. And in fact, Pittsburgh has a zero em ission goal by 2030. Companies like Volvo are going to stop making combustion engines. So Long Beach is progressive in many ways. This body is progressive in many ways. And we strongly encourage you to be progressive in your thought for the southeast area and preserve the wetlands that we have. If I could reserve the last minute. I appreciate it, Mr. Mayor. And so I'm asking you reserving the last minute for rebuttal or for that? I could have 5 minutes. Yeah. Those are some things you can reserve for your other minute. If you want to finish the last minute. I'll just reserve whatever time for rebuttal you would be. So. Okay. So you're going to get 5 minutes for rebuttal. Thank you. Okay, then we're going to turn this back over to two staff and guys. Guys. So let me let's just try to get through the hearing as expeditiously as possible. So we're gonna turn over to staff and then after staff does any additional comments, then, Mr. Foss, you have a chance to do a rebuttal, and then we'll do we'll go to the public and of course, the deliberations of the Council. So. Mr. Motorcar. Mr. Bullock, Ms.. Burdick will give a short rebuttal. Actually, I'm going. To ask Christopher to start, but I just do want to make one correction. For the record, the appellant said 80 stories. I think I would ask the appellant to. Agree that he really meant 80 feet. Thank you. I could even council members. So the majority of what you heard is addressed in their written record in the staff report in front of you. I draw your particular attention to the resolution in front of you. Certifying the E.R. includes findings of fact that address the adequacy of the document. I do want to talk about the speaker referenced several related projects in the area and a number of years ago. So over three years ago, when we embarked on this process, the city council at that time declined to do any type of moratorium or interim controls while we were preparing this plan. So, staff, the city has a legal obligation to process applications as they come in based on the laws that are on the books at the time. So the appellant referenced a CC power plant which is replacing existing power plant with a cleaner one that not a city project that's under the jurisdiction of the Energy Commission. He referenced the a battery storage facility that was approved by the Planning Commission by Mr. Pisarski. His appeal on that separate project is pending at this time. He referenced the Beach Oil Minerals Partner Project, which Mr. Boesky objected that project in writing during the E.R. but that project has not yet come to hearing. So beyond that, placemaking is a defined term. There's a whole document about it from the Project for Public Spaces. If people are interested in not all of the projects, most mentioned by Mr. Lisowski are accounted for in the cumulative analysis of the document. So beyond that, I want to be deferential to the Council's time and we can dove into any of the issues that were brought up.

But they are all addressed in your written materials, particularly in those squat findings that are attached to the air certification resolution prepared by the city attorney. Thank you. We're going to have the the appellant please can do. Rebuttal. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Mr. Koonce with response with regards to the California Energy Commission's approval and jurisdiction of the new power plant. Yes, the city does not have jurisdiction, but the city does have zoning and general plan control. What does that mean? The city could have entered into the S.E.C. process with a generating station as an intervenor. The city could have done what was best for the people of Long Beach and intervened and said, Why do we need another 500 megawatt fossil fuel generating station on our wetlands? So that brings us to yes, there are all these other projects, but let's talk about what this council can do with zoning. I'm going to throw a couple of ideas out here. One of the ideas is. When this new oil drilling plan comes into effect. I know it's still up in the air, but in all likelihood it's going to be approved. You could add to the zone that any oil drilling, any injection waste, any water injection or chemical injections that those oil developers have to provide a list of all the chemicals that are being injected into the ground. That's a very simple change. As you know, the petroleum industry wants to keep those thousands of chemicals as proprietary. And so under Prop 65, we don't even know what carcinogens are in there. There are all kinds of different benzene and crazy aromatic rings that are carcinogenic. And then finally, with regards to the specific zoning and the general plan, there are guidelines that the state gives you and there are things that are out of your jurisdiction. But this city council, this body, is given the power of zoning, and that's a very powerful tool. And so when you say that the battery tower hasn't been approved, but it's going to go on the wetlands, you could tonight simply add a piece to this new cap that says we don't allow over one gallon or 89,000 gallons of lithium ion flash flammable fluid to be on the wetlands. So that is the control you have. One final thought about Mr. Koons and the staff's idea of the inevitability of land use. Yes, certain land uses are by right. We understand that. But the way that staff has often positioned that in front of the council and the planning commission is that the commission and the council must extend those land uses by rights to other decisions that are not by right. For example, I'm going to bring in an outside example just to make this point and then I'll wrap up. 320 Alamitos Street What came up before Planning Commission? They were asking for a building with residential units and it was also on two lots. And staff told the Planning Commission that you have to approve this project because it's buy right for them to build those many units. You can't change the downtown plan parking rati os without changing the downtown plan. What they failed to let the commission know was that they did not have to buy right approved the lot merger and if they would have simply not approved the Lot merger, then that development could have been squelched. So don't let staff pull your power out from under you. There are things that you can do to make a difference. You can give landowners their rights and at the same time do what's right for the city of Long Beach and for our wetlands. Thanks so much, Mr. Mayor. Appreciate it. Thank you, sir. Okay. We're going to go ahead now and move on to the rest of the hearing. So we've closed both the applicant out, which is the city in this case, of course, the presenter and the appellant and the time for both the presentation. The rebuttal is now closed. We're going to go to public comment only those that, of course, swore in to the oath and those that are here for this item. So if you didn't see the swearing in, please, please come down to the podium and present yourself, of course, your name for the record. And again, just line up on this and we'll get through these comments and then back to the Council for deliberation on the Ccep item. Yes, sir. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. Hi. My name is Bob Paternoster. I'm happy to be here this evening. When I first, I'm going to give you just a little historical context for this project. When I moved to Long Beach in 1977, my first important job as director of planning and building was to try to bring closure to the city planning process. The Planning Commission had already appointed a citizens advisory committee. I was pleased that this evening when I came in here and found that Jan Hall, who was head of that committee, was president, of course she was later Councilwoman Jan Hall, and that that committee consisted of residents, property owners and developers. That committee had already created a vision for Sea-Tac when I arrived. And that vision was basically that they wanted something like Irvine. I remember back at 1977, Irvine was just blossoming and people were looking at it very fondly. And the committee, like the mix of housing units, they were willing to accept smaller than the standard size lot for residential development if the developer would provide lots of open space, bicycle trails and so forth. But at that time, they were deadlocked because the citizens, even though they knew what they wanted, they did not trust the city to implement that. They did not trust the city to force developers to build that open space in those and those and those. Trails and so forth, because plain old zoning R1, R3 just doesn't do that. And the one small contribution that I think I made to the process was to tell them that there are other land use controls that you can use besides standard zoning. For instance, a plan development district. And once they realize that that the the law could require developers to build open space, to build the trails, the bike trails and so forth. Then the plan was forward to city council adopted and you had PD one, the first plan development district in the city. Now the plan, the city plan did focus on the area north of the luxury trust channel and residential development because that was where the vacant land was. And since the time of adoption, we've had the construction of a Bixby village with the golf course of the Largo, with Simms Pond of Bay Harbor, Spinnaker Bay, Spinnaker, coves with a new waterfront development not only for a boat boat docks, but also a continuous public walkway along all of that waterfront throughout there. And all of these villages tied together by the city's first class one bike path through residential areas. The wetland was recognized and preserved now after adoption of the plan. It was expanded when we went through the LCP, but it was preserved, as was the Pacific Flyway. There was little concern, quite frankly, for affordability of housing at the time, although we did preserve the the mobile home park and apartments were mixed in with single family residential. But you have to realize what the attitude of the city was back in 1977. At that time. Young, upwardly mobile family. Thank you. Sorry. Time is up. Oh, I know. Sorry about that. All right. Let me just end by saying I encourage you to move forward with adopting the plan. It's been 40 years and it's about time. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. Yeah, we've got to watch the time, especially tonight, because we have a lot of items from SL. Watch the time. Even though I don't like it's so short. My name is Jan Hollings, former city councilwoman for the third district in the city of Long Beach, and, as Bob indicated, chair of the original city of committee. I'm here to say that I am opposed to the proposed changes to see death for very specific reasons. There's a lot of good in that plan that's being proposed, but the things that can't seem to be taken care of, in my opinion. Our number one traffic. The city of Long Beach and this end of town are going to be inundated by lots of changes in the traffic without any development. The widening of the four or five freeway in Orange County is going to bring a tremendous increase again on Seventh Street in the Long Beach area. Four lanes of new traffic and it stops at seventh Street. Those cars are going to go somewhere and they are going to impact the Cedar Area and by extension, the areas in the third district. The concern I have about the density is one that is merely an observation that currently there is not a complete build out of density that's currently allowed in the city plan. I think we're pushing our luck if we keep adding more people without some kind of traffic solutions. Number three, the idea of the height limits currently the height limit is is three stories, as you all know, and is being proposed to be 5 to 7 stories. I think that that kind of height will really create a very different. The situatio n on Pacific Coast Highway then is in being envisioned by the planning department and the consultants. And by that I mean is that if you have five and seven story buildings along Pacific Coast Highway, effectively from Lloyd's Drive to the SEAL Beach border, you really are creating a barrier along that whole stretch of land. I know there'll be some adjustments to build it back, but I am concerned that that barrier will change the entire atmosphere in the third district and kind of undo what basically has been created in the third district. And so with those for those reasons and several others, I just would like to issue my propose my opposition to this proposal. And thanks, Suzy Pryce as the councilwoman. It's a tough decision and it isn't going to be easy no matter what. Thank you. Thank you so much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and City Councilmember. My name is Randy Gordon. I am president and CEO of Long Beach Area Chamber of Commerce. On behalf of the Chamber and our leadership, we strongly support, she said, which all of you know is a huge opportunity for Long Beach, not just from a business perspective, but so many. Other ways as well. The plan will allow for mixed use projects with. Residential, retail, commercial and hotels. This will create thousands of new construction jobs related jobs over the course of the next 10 to 15 years. It will attract a new high end retail, which will create thousands of jobs for residents and most importantly, will keep sales tax revenue in Long Beach that now migrates to south to Orange County . We see the opportunity for. Incredible economic synergism with Long Beach State, the retail, residential communities in Naples and Belmont Shore and all other communities throughout the city. And as far as potential projects as they come online, we absolutely believe this will assist the east side of Long Beach to start driving sales tax. Dollars north to our city. From SEAL Beach, Huntington Beach and other nearby areas. It will. Create a beautiful gateway that our city. Desperately needs and deserves to welcome visitors from our communities and will help all of us who are working to promote Long Beach as a great place to bring your business. Also included in the plan, it's a benefit to the environment. It provides funding through development fees and other grants to improve the current declining wetlands. Lastly, and probably the biggest impact to the city and the reasons enough to pass this tonight, it will create millions of dollars annually to the city through sales tax and property tax revenue. As a. Resident. Just down. The street in Bay Harbor, I am absolutely convinced this is the right thing to do at the right time. And our members and our leadership. We urge you to vote for this proposal. Thank you for allowing these comments to be in the record. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, mayor and city council members. My name is Sarah Wilkes F ong and I am here on behalf of the Los Angeles County Business Federation. Base Fed is a massive, diverse grassroots alliance of 165 business organizations, with over 325,000 employers. With over 3 million employees throughout Los Angeles County. That advocates for policies and projects that strengthen our regional economy. We are in strong support of the adoption of the Southeast Area Specific Plan. A comprehensive and thoughtful, thoughtful blueprint to guide future development. See, RCEP will not only enhance the area quality of life for Long Beach residents, but also gives the business community the ability incentive. To reinvest in the area. New mixed land designation designations, updated design guidelines and infrastructure improvements will give property owners the flexibility to create new residential, commercial and employment opportunities that fit the vision of the city. This update. Helps to replace. Outdated plan planning with a specific plan that will balance sustainability, economic development and livability. We appreciate the city staff's. Dedication to bring forward this detailed plan, and we urge the city council. To adopt it. Thank you for your consideration. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. My name is Bill Thomas. I'm a resident of the Alamitos Heights and past president. Of Elm Estates Association, which is adjacent to the property. Area under. Discussion. I was also involved quite a few years ago when Councilman DeLong was brought the initial study proposal up, and it didn't make any progress. I'm speaking today as a member of the advisory committee. That is off the record. I believe the record will show over attended all of the advisory committee meetings, a very large number of the city, the community gathering meetings. And I must compliment the staff and the Place Works group that have done a magnificent job of hearing. All kinds of suggestions and reaching out to every conceivable interest. And I would. Just quite amazed at how well that progress went. And I'm very much in price in favor of the project that looks out 50 years, not back 50 years, and what. The city can expect from its citizens and from. Its businesses in the area to make a better place for all citizens to live, work and enjoy the great aspects of the city of Long Beach and strongly endorse you or request your positive endorsement of the project. Thank you very. Much. Thank you very much, sir. Next speaker, please. Good evening. And Cantrell and I am a member of Carp, which is citizens about responsible planning. Although not mentioned by the staff, the Planning Commission has recommended the reduced intensity alternative and reduction in height on the marketplace parcel. Even this is not enough. I urge the Council to choose the No project slash CDP alternative. If you reject this, at least reduce the reduced intensity of alternative to one story buildings on all in the within 300 feet of the wetlands and re quire three storey buildings in the rest of the area and take any new oil development out of this plan. I have worked to change CDEP for 20 years because of two threats extending Studebaker Road through the wetlands and allowing homes on the wetlands. This has been eliminated with this plan, but what we've gotten with C CIP is many times worse. Over 5400 additional residential units, five story buildings on property surrounding the wetlands, extension of Shop Keeper Road through the wetlands, seven story hotels. And they say the significant, unavoidable impacts are going to occur in air quality cultural resources, greenhouse gas, emission, noise, transportation and traffic. That means nothing's going to be done. About those 5 to 7 story buildings are a menace for birds. Bird safe glass is being required on only 90% of the buildings. It should be on everyone. The FDA, the FBI are future further states that only the areas facing the wetlands will receive bird safe treatment. In other words, birds flying out of the wetlands will be protected. Those flying into the wetlands will be striking 60 to 80 foot buildings with untreated gap glass. Another danger to wetland wildlife was not mentioned in this air. And it goes with new dwelling units right next to the wetlands. With that comes domestic pets. Not don't. Not all owners keep their dogs and cats inside or on leash. Even one dog or cat can be devastating to breeding success of many of the ground nesting birds. The California Coastal Act requires public access to the coast and restricts what development is allowed in coastal areas. Coastal lighted buildings are allowed. Residential is not. Thank you very much, Nick Speaker. I will I will give you the rest of my comments. Thank you, Miss Cantrell. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and distinguished counsel. People, you all look very, very, very nice tonight. Very distinguished. Thank you. Thank you. My name is Ricardo Perdomo, and I'm a local business person. I've had the pleasure of living in the island, Naples Island, for about 15 years now. And it's just a great, great neighborhood. And I mean, I just love Long Beach when people ask me, where do you live? I say, I live in Long Beach, and they're like, Why the heck do you want to live in Long Beach? Well, obviously we don't know what communities we have and everything that the City of Long Beach has to offer. That being said, I want to thank everybody here on the panel for all your hard work in making the city a much greater place to live. Thank you. And I'm also here in in April, the actual project. We really want to see something different in our community. We really believe in speaking with many of my neighbors and many of the people that live here in Long Beach. They're just really, really tired of actually going through that community, that part of our community, that that part of our city and just seeing what is there now. My city has so much to offer and people don't know about it. So this could actually be really one of the huge focus points entryway that can really showcase our city. The project is going to help. Attracting people to our city, is going to have new families, young professionals and just really, really showcase our city. I also appreciate the fact that this also has written in the plan where it's going to actually help preserve and restore the wetlands. Thank you guys very much as well for pushing the bike paths and the walk and the walking paths. That's a really great thing to have and this project is also going to help. I actually having those those incorporated into their into their project. That's one of the big selling points that sells our city as a forward thinking city. Help us make the city shine. Approve this project. Thank you very much. I encourage you say yes on this project. Thank you. Thank you. And before we go to the next speaker, we do have folks in line. Obviously, a lot of public comment as well as outside for this item. So we're going down to 2 minutes unless there's any objection from the council. If there's an objection, we'll go back to three C. No objection. Madam Clerk, we're going out of 2 minutes. Go ahead. Hi. My name is Susan Phillips. I live at 6125 East Ocean Boulevard. I'm not particularly opposed to this project, but I'm opposed to some of the parts of this project. I feel that if we're going to say 3 to 5 stories and then it says a little caveat down at the bottom seven storeys with an okay by a committee, I'd like to know which committee it is like. Is it you? Is it the city manager's office? Is it the developers? Is it the planning commission? I think if we're going to say 3 to 5 storeys, we should say 3 to 5 storeys, period. I think we should have some rules about it. Long Beach has always been a city of neighborhoods, and I hope that whatever we're doing, we don't just develop. The city is called us now an urban area. And I hope that within the planning that we're choosing to do, we can maintain the independence of our neighborhoods. It's really important to the beauty of Long Beach, and we all live here because we love our neighborhoods. And the last thing I like to say is just about this process, just in case, you know, the pit, the pictures that you saw up there when they were showing the open area, the first part that look really pretty, those were two storey buildings. I don't know if anybody noticed that about that area. So we're kind of being manipulated here, I feel, because when I went to the Planning Commission meeting, they talked about Bella Terra. So I went out and saw Bella Terra and it's an asphalt jungle. And so I just want you to think about the fact of what we're picking and what we're choosing. That's all. Thank you so much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, honorable mayor. Members of the city council. My name is Jeff Hoffman. I'm a lifelong resident of Long Beach, living in Naples, less than a mile from the intersection of Sec ond and PCH il. The city is going in such a great direction. We see what's been happening uptown with some of the new development up there we've been seeing. What's been happening downtown, I mean, is evident. All the great things that are happening when we drive around here and we want that for our east side gateway is well, if this has been a really good process over the past few years, we've attended the workshops. We've had an opportunity to sit around the table with people who who disagree with us, but that are still neighbors like the person who spoke just before me. So I think it's been a great process, but it's also a really good plan. I think the consultants, I think city staff from the Planning Department have done a really good job taking in all of the input from various points of view. You know, I don't think it's a perfect plan. There's things that I would love in it, but there's people in this room that would absolutely hate the things that I would have loved. So I think it's a good compromise and is a wonderful opportunity for us to move forward and have some really good development while restoring the wetlands. So I encourage you all to vote for the city plan. Thank you. Thank you for the testimony. Next speaker, please. Very good. You. I've been following this since Gary too long. Wanted to build a 70 story tower with a flea market on every corner. One of the. And also, let me start with the one thing I was glad somebody pointed out. I've never pointed out before, but it's inane when they show the picture of a sailboat down in the channel behind BestBuy and reading Pacifica, obviously, and then a sailor they'd never heard of being in irons. You can't sell their period. What was intriguing and interesting is the cut through in terms of and I've often thought about this and I'm sure other people have and I hope they put that in there, is that they can put a cut through. So when you come down the aisle, you're able to cut through the Marina Pacifica behind a behind Albertson's, behind a whatever they are, Gelson's and zip across without having to go through the intersection. The intersection itself raises the point of something I really think should be done before we move forward, and that is study the concept of a traffic circle, just like we have at where our traffic circle is. They're used all around the world. I know some people don't like them. There's some people that don't like to cross that bridge of the what these speakers pointed out last week, they were at the last planning commission meeting that has a business on Second Street that quite frankly, during the week there will be not that much business period in the restaurants, the foot, the floors, the businesses on the second floor, nicely designed or simply not have that traffic certainly during the week. I am troubled and I don't I don't know the answer relative to solving all the environmental issues, but I challenge this council to come up with the best possible s olution so we don't destroy it. Thank you. The environment. Thank you for your time. Next speaker, please. My name is Michael Fields. I live at 6171, Laguna Hart Court in Bay Harbor. And we are live behind a community business area called Marina Plaza, which I request that you look at the map on page four. It's a little triangle in the center of the plan here, and it allows for a 3 to 5 story remaking of that particular project. And it makes no sense in that little tiny space, right, right behind our community to go up 3 to 5 stories if they want to put a hotel there. And it goes up to seven stories. Look how tiny that little that little spot is there. And what I read, though, the zoning requirements there was an exception for the in and out burger at one story. I don't know why there's one story, not burger. And this little small community here runs up from if they remake it 3 to 5 stories doesn't make sense. It's just going to be a congested area. It's not going to be favorable to the people in the neighborhood. And I request that you remake that zoning requirement of three or four, 3 to 5 stories and a limited to one story only. Thank you. Thank you for your testimony. Next speaker, please. Good evening, City Council. My name is Gordon and I live in the third district. I'm here to ask you to seriously consider the alternatives that have been proposed to you this evening regarding less density, less traffic, and less height. On this plan, I'm opposed to it because I believe firmly that this is a development plan and not a plan for the protection of wetlands. I'm here to tell you, I was here at City Hall the evening that this grant was announced by our city staff. I was delighted to hear that the city would get resources in order to do something about this plan. I'm equally dismayed to stand up here tonight and tell you that the process was flawed. Those community meetings were held. There were 200 people who attended over the course of time. Where were the hundreds and thousands of people who should have been participating in this process? Vice Mayor Richardson, did any of these meetings happen in your district? Councilman, you were on. Did any of these meetings happen in your district? Do you ever drive to the second and PCH intersection? Do you think this should have been discussed outside of the third district? I'm an advocate for process. This process was flawed. This project is flawed. It is too high. It is too dense. There's too much traffic. There's not enough mitigation for those valuable wetlands that need to be restored in the third district of Long Beach. And I ask that you seriously consider alternatives. Thank you. Thank you for your testimony. Next speaker, please. My name is Deena Dach. I have lived in this community for approximately 50 years. I'm a California certified naturalist for the state. I am also. This last year, I've been honored to be the national education director for NMDA, and I am saddened by what we look at. Ed i n this community. In Huntington Beach, it took 25 years for them to salvage and save the wetlands. You probably all notice it as you drive down Pacific Coast Highway. You probably all notice that people are using it for educational value. That they take a look at it and say, Isn't. It great that we have 3% of what was once 100% of the wetlands here in California, in the community where we can make a difference is here, Long Beach, we can look at our wetlands and we can see whether or not. There's a possibility that we could control ourselves and stay to the three story level. Four years ago, I worked on a management group to take a look at the animals that were flying over the wetlands area and across PCH. And on to the Long Beach Marina area. Many of those trees have been cut. 58 of the trees have been taken out in this particular community. So we don't have some of the birds that we once had. I realize I only have 30 seconds to make a difference, but you can make a difference as a member of this council. And look at it and see. That down the road. What you do tonight. In your decision makes a difference in our children's lives, in the community lives. And it's not all about money. It's about saving enough environment, space that it is functional for this community. Thank you for your time. Ask you to do so. Thank you. Next speaker bruce. Good evening, vice mayor and. Members of the council. I'm Jeff miller. I live in long beach. I urge you to reject Sea CIP as it is currently proposed. Why? Because it would allow new buildings to be too tall. Increased height above the currently allowed 35 feet would be detrimental to the city. Proposed changes could lead to our stretch of PCH looking like Lincoln Boulevard and Marina del Rey. Another concrete canyon. Increased traffic resulting from increased density would negatively affect city residents and workers. The traffic itself, of course, but also decreased air quality despite the claims by city staff. This plan is not supported by the majority of Long Beach residents. This false claim has been stated so often that maybe you believe it. The Sea Subcommittee was not representative of residents. The committee meetings did not provide for adequate public involvement and comment. Additional community meetings were not designed. For adequate public input. The wishes of the majority of the residents of the city are being ignored. The CCP should reflect the will of the residents of the city. These half a million people are your constituents, not a dozen commercial property owners and investors along a one mile stretch of PCH. Your allegiance belongs to the residents and businesses throughout the city who would be harmed by this plan. You do not owe allegiance to a dozen developers who would change the character of this vital area of the city. The current construction plan for the old Seaport Marina Hotel property shows that development and profit is possible within the 35 foot height limit. I ask that you m aintain this limit for the good of the city now and. Long into the future. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello. I'm Richard Roth. I live in the Long Beach and District three, and I can basically support what the previous speaker just said and the appellant as well. We have this thing has has just has to be smaller. And one thing that I'm not sure was brought up. If today Mexico City or the Mexico City area had a huge earthquake, if we had a and we're going to have a similar event here. And if you're in the area around, well, all of the third district, you're going to be trapped. So we have a serious safety issue that we're ignoring. And I don't think I need to say anymore. Thank you. Thank you for your time. Next speaker, please. Before you before you start my time. Can I tell you. That I've gotten so many texts from people who cannot hear, who are in the overflow room and they said there's no one to be found that can help fix their audio. Okay. Well, I think that's. The right thing to do, given there's so many people. Interested in this. Issue. Right. This your city manager? Can we check that out? Thank you so much. So can we take. Sure. Let's start your time. Right. Thank you so much. So my name is Elizabeth LAMB. I'm executive director of the Low Street Wetlands Land Trust. Before I say anything else with my brief 2 minutes, I want to thank city staff and thank our council member for the ability to dialog with them and share with them our views. It means a lot to us. As you know, we are devoted to protecting and restoring flows through this wetlands. So it's a great community resource, not just for local residents, but for everyone who. Lives in Long Beach. Therefore, we need a plan for the Sea Superior that provides the right. Balance of conservation and development consistent with the community context and vision. With that in mind, why we understand that you. Feel pressure to conclude this. We do want to remind you that the general plan. Process provides a second opportunity to revisit, see an amended if warranted. So let me. Quickly summarize. The final few modifications that we. Urge you to include that we. Sent in our final comment letter. Factually, very few. Acres of the Sea Superior. Are in play here for redevelopment. Actually, less than the 85 acres that was first identified as areas of change because of the fact that second and PCH is moving forward, internal road surface parking. But even that small remaining part that remains will. Have a huge impact to the community. And the wetlands develop depending on how it's. Developed. So we support further density. Further reduced density in the form of an interim baseline density that could be revisited later. We support. 100,000 square feet of new commercial development, which would bring the total up to 2,000,191 476. Square feet. We support 1000 new units, dwelling units for a total of 5070 units and redevelopment of the existing hotel rooms. As my time winds out, I want to tell you that we've put all of these in a specific comment letter to you. And to really emphasize the point that we're not saying don't do anything. We're saying do something that's reasonable and balanced and protects an important resource. Thank you for your time. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Council Members. Michelle Black on behalf of. The La Cerritos Wetlands Land Trust. And again, the Land Trust really does appreciate the changes that have been made to see steps to improve the specific plan and add bird and wetlands friendly policies and mitigation. But the city's general plan is now underway, which was not the case when Seaside was initiated. There's now a strong argument that the sea SAP approval should wait until the general plan update is completed. So there's no question that the general plan is current and complete to provide a legally adequate basis for approval. Our letter laid out a path to approve seize up in advance of the general plan update. Now there are some parallel to approving a specific plan in the absence of a legally adequate general plan. And we see that as a really good reason to ensure that CCEP has included all feasible mitigation measures. If the city chooses to adopt CSF now before completion of the General Plan update, we recommend that you adopt a lower interim density as a as Elizabeth mentioned and proposed by the Land Trust, and that's detailed in our letter. And this is a baseline density that could be revisited, as Elizabeth said, and modified in the future. After hearing more public comment and after looking at the analysis that will be generated by the general plan update process, remember additional development in this environmentally sensitive and traffic constrained area at any density, interim baseline or reduced density will have significant impacts on the wetlands and the community. The mitigation for this must be very, very carefully worded so that it meets its goals of protecting community and environment. So this means that wetland buffers are actually buffers. There's no development. Or recreational activity. Within the buffers themselves. This means that open space is actually open space and not private patios in places the public doesn't know about. And this means that height limits are lower in this sensitive area to protect birds. The inclusion of excellent bird safe measures is laudable, but we're afraid that those gains could be eroded if height limits are high. And thank you very much. I'm here to answer any questions on my letter. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name's Linda Pemberton, and I'm from Belmont Heights. And. I'm here representing myself as just a neighbor, and I know that I'm in the camp of I would like to see this plan adopted with some change. And I think most of the people that I talked to are very concerned about the height and the density because of the traffic. And as you know, you're talking all over the city with people about th e general plan right now. And there's a lot of people who are concerned about the same issues. So I just wanted to bring out bring to your attention that with the reduced plan, it actually represents about 22% of the housing needs that Scaggs is saying that the entire city needs. And I think that's a little high for an area that has going to put all of these almost 56 I mean, 2600 housing units in a little 86 acre space next to a wetlands. And where we have such terrible traffic, I think an increase of 43% in the traffic with probably 18 of our 21 intersections have difficulty now. So while I thank you for putting together this this plan, I would like to see the baseline density option with caps on it put into place so that we can move slowly into the future. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Yeah. Hi, I'm Marshall, Dostoevsky. I live in Ocean Boulevard and I'm on the steering committee of the Long Beach Area Peace Network. And I've actually come here for two reasons. One, to support the hotel workers in their fight for justice. But the other thing is, I am representing Lebanon, a Long Beach area peace network. And we're interested in peace and social justice. We're really against this whole plan. We think that it's the whole idea of Caesar was to preserve the wetlands. What this is going to do is isolate the wetlands. It's too big. The project. It blocks the wetlands. We're also concerned about the oil drilling. Why are we concerned about oil drilling? Because global warming. Or climate change is a real issue. And I think that Long Beach is so oil dependent that we are not really thinking about what's going on in the world. We know that climate change has caused part of the Syrian problem, a civil war. There. And so the social justice issue here is why do we want to pollute our environment and add to the climate change as a city? So I think we have a chance to to try to take care of this problem and to make this this project a much smaller and much more workable. Not seven story hotels and everybody's talked about that. The other thing is that I'm a little concerned about was that we kind of lost our right for public comment. We lost a minute. So everyone here is I don't know how many we got. We wrote 30, at least 30 minutes or maybe more. And for the next and hopefully for the next stage of their agendas, the discussion will not be cut off. So thank you very much. Thank you. Next week, a piece. The evening, we're going to see it. And members of the city council I name is Ward Johnson. I live at 436 Bellflower Boulevard and the Blue. The proposed strip mall that's at second. And PCH is yet another failed attempt by the property owner and another developer to put in another quick and dirty fix to get their money out so they can. They can. Which means it's a thing where they got in adequate parking and even the developer mentions that there's not enough parking. There are numerous other health food stores and gyms that people can access easier than going to this new site that's being proposed. The proposed com. This proposal completely fails to offer any solution to mitigate the heavy traffic congestion. That is a huge issue here and only going to get worse if this thing is built. What kind of message does a strip mall send send to people coming into our city as an entry point? How can it pass in a year when? These architectural renderings that are being offered show north no parking space and are no space between the buildings for the birds to fly through or people to see the ocean. So is there another proposal that needs to go down? So until they can come up with something? Thank you, sir. Thank you very much. And before we go to the next speaker real quick, I just want to make sure. Are there any folks I know if the fire chief is here that are outside for see SIP and if there are? If there are. I want them. I want them to bring them in. I'm not the face. The fire chief here. Where did he go for a sip. Thank you. So then we are going to cut off the speaker's list and we are going to the lady in the back. Okay. She is out. She will be. Unless there's anyone else receivership. Now's the time. Okay. Okay. So Mr. Barnaby, the last speaker for Ccep and he is going once we're done. See SIP. That is the line. Yes. Please continue. Hi, my name is Marcos. I live in one more district. I know it's not near dip, but it's still part of Long Beach. And I'm here to support to sip see dip c 72. Very confusing. I go to USC, I'm studying urban planning, master's second year. It's planning is such a difficult thing to understand specific plans in particular. So sorry, I don't I'm not good at public speaking, but it's difficult to understand specific plan. So I understand when the public confused and they think that an eight story hotel is going to come in like tomorrow. So I understand also trust the council and I trust the planning commission and I trust the city that you guys are going to. Build something that connects to the wetlands and not just build the store, its story building that's not going to, you know, connect. So I just want to say I support the project, not the project. I support the specific plan. And thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good afternoon, counsel. My name's Melinda Cotton. I live in Belmont. Sure. You've heard a lot about density and traffic and height. And the words 60 feet and 80 feet have been used for the five storied seven story buildings. However, I discovered going through the plan today on page 70 of the development standards, there is a notation that says along PCH, architectural features up to an additional ten feet may be approved by the Site Plan Review Committee. So we're talking about even taller buildings than we were earlier. We're also told we will gain amenities through this plan. Those have never been quantified. We don't know how much a developer will be required to donate. We don't know what this will mean in real terms. And mo st of us would probably agree that the amenities we have now offer fresh air and sky and trees and views of the mountains and wetlands are more important than where these are unknown amenities. And I think an important part of this is that the additional residences we're talking about are market rate. They are not a controlled in any fashion. So they're going to be affordable by the wealthy, by those who can use them for second homes. They will not be affordable for an average Cal State Long Beach graduate or the average worker or family, nor affordable for the low wage workers who desperately need housing. So we're being asked to take on more traffic congestion, more density, more competition for our existing struggling retailers. And they are struggling in Belmont Shore and we will lose the low scale structures and environment that now surround the wetlands. So I hope that you will rethink this and lower the height limits and try to help those who need help. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Michael James. Kathy. I reside on 1814 Clark Avenue. I was born and raised in Long Beach, California, and I've been adopted into the tongue verification in Canoe Family. Given the name, Halbert means the Seeker. So I want to speak on behalf of the Native Peoples of Long Beach. Performer and I. I see that so much of California's wetlands have been eaten up by increased development. Just inch by inch, by inch, by inch. And I fear that I'm opposed to this to the rezoning of sea, because I just see a further development that is not good for our wetlands and also paving the way for more oil extraction and fracking on a dangerous earthquake fault. The Newport Beach and Inglewood fault line right there and the constructions there are already going under liquefaction where there's constant movement of the land and sinking. And there's just is too complicated. It's very dangerous. And I want to see an improvement in the environment. So I'll just stop there. And I thank you all for listening. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. I'm Robert Fox. I'm the executive director of the Council of Neighborhood Organizations. I'm opposed to this particular plan at the moment. The first reason is the outreach was inadequate, and that was because the database that you all had to use was not updated. We only recently got the current listing of neighborhood organizations to the city about seven months ago. So the process here was flawed. People didn't show up. You had maybe a little over 200 people in the community meetings. That can't be the judgment for this council, not 200 people. Besides which, I have a real problem that the the input from those meetings was not reflected in the staff's report. So I think we need it from now on to have an independent auditor like Laura Dowd do the counting and the metrics on any kind of an evaluation which happens at our our outreach meetings. I'm opposed to this also on a structural basis. We have not made any infrastructure improvement issues on the table at this point in time. And we really need to think about this. It isn't a liquefaction zone. We don't have adequate sewers for the extra development. Eight storeys high next to the wetlands seems absolutely insane to me. I mean, 80 feet I mean, 80 feet tall, I think she said. But I mean, it's sort of like blocks in the Sunshine Law in San Francisco. You can't build a building that blocks out all of your son. So I'm concerned here about the density. I know that parking is horrible and I know the traffic is disastrous going through Second Street, and I'd love to mitigate that. So I will support anything which mitigates things where the quality of life for the citizens of Long Beach is improved. But I don't think that we need. A rush to judgment here because we're just coming up on the land use element. And when that comes up, we can discuss this. Thank you very much for your time. Thank you. Next speaker, please. I have a. Point before my time starts. Next week, a. Piece for Christensen. But the point of order is we're talking to a particular agenda item one Blue Suzuki's appeal. There are several other agenda items under siege. Is there going to be public comment time regarding those? Well, there's one public comment period. Time for the city attorney continue for all items. So this is our only opportunity. This is. The crime. On the all of the agenda. Items on the on the agenda items regarding C zip. Yes, correct. Okay. So now can I start my time, please? What's the point. Of your time is going continue. I will give you the time at the end. Go ahead. Thank you, Robert. I mean, Mayor. So so you should have received this from the Long Beach Area Peace Network. I'm not going to read it again. I might read the summary. What I will read, though, because Ms., Burdick made a point to say that the Veto Our Mineral. Partners project is not part of. This. I will read from the May 5th memo Anybody Own Memo stating that the specific Plan C CIP is designed to be consistent with the beach all mineral partners proposed restoration and consolidation project. She left out, of course, the word oil. This is an oil drilling plan embraced by a rezoning plan. There is no question about it. So I suggest that the elephants in the room, fracking earthquake pipeline breaks and sea rise, all of which the Coastal Commission wrote about and demanded that the Beach Oil Mineral Partners Project address should be at least in the back of your minds today. Now, what's in the front? It's Hispanic Heritage Day. We had some beautiful music. There's a history here. There's a heritage here. This room is filled with people from Hispanic heritage. What do they want? Sanctuary. Where do they want a safe place to work? Right. We all do. We want to be able to be safe in our employment. And this is this is my hope, peace and social justice, network speaking. We want safety for our workers. We want safety for our darker kids. We want safety for our wildlife. We want safety for the what remains of. Native. American culture in the wetlands. We say leave it in the ground. Leave the 200 million barrels of oil that are folded in to this plant in the ground and the culture and the ground and and get unfortunately, you know, what wildlife doesn't have either. Thank you very much. All in the same boat. Okay. Thank you very much. Our last two speakers. My name is Mary Parcell. I'm here on behalf of El Dorado Audubon Local chapter of the National Audubon Society. This project is very complicated and Bob is included. When you read the sea tip, the sea sip this plan. Now. So it is very, very complicated. Our concerns have always been the wildlife, of course. Shopkeeper, road extension, the footprint of an extended shopkeeper road has a potential to impact existing neighboring wetlands, including jurisdictional wetlands, open space and biological input impacts of the project for analysis of the potential impacts to biological resources that would be created by the extension of Shopkeeper Road, including surveys for special status plants and animals have the potential to exist in the footprint of this roadway as proposed, so there could be cumulative and unintended problems with this. This is straight out of the California coastal conservancies concerns. We're concerned with birds and native plants. Redwing Road, winged blackbird, a particular species of the marsh, ran song sparrow, common yellow throat, American Kestrel Osprey, Northern Harrier Harrier White Tailed Kite Buildings Savannah Sparrow. What? Run out of my time before I can list all the birds that we love. And I was at an art event over the weekend with people from the fourth and fifth District. And person after person knows about the great blue herons that fly through the buildings. Not over seven stories. I think that's. You got to have some ways for the birds to get through. The great blue herons, the great egrets, the snowy egrets, the black crowned night herons, all of them, just individual people. And that's a representative our of our members that we value this. So thank you very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Michael Bond. I'm a senior principal with Studio 111. We're a group of practicing architects, landscape designers and urban designers with a focus on revitalizing the city. I want to share that we were retained by the Alamo Bay Partnership. We, as Cedar See support was being developed, created a design or a vision for the 90 acres that the Alamitos Bay Partnership owns. We actually took that on the road and shared it with a lot of the community. And we wanted to also thank Susie Price for her interest in understanding the perspective. We were looking at the site. We've heard lots of concerns tonight about traffic and housing, and housing will be significantly less in terms of affecting traffic than any other use proposed on the site. And I wan ted to provide some context. Keep in mind, Stony Brook Villas on Bellflower Boulevard, which has 471 units, has all four exits on Bellflower, and I've never seen congestion there. Marina Pacifica has 570 units with only one exit point on Second Street and that I've never seen Congestion, Channel Point Apartments, Pathways and Bixby Village and the Villages on the Green Total 773 units. They all exit on Bixby Village Drive. And I've never seen congestion there. I've lived and I've lived in Council District three for ten years, shop, bike and walk in this area in these areas. I also want to mention Whalers Cove and the Belmont Shores Mobile Homes Estates totaling 395 units, both exiting on loins in the same location or approximate location. And there's no congestion there.

Second Street has backups due to Caltrans controlling PCH. Caltrans is focused on moving traffic and moving it fast by either having local control or updating the traffic equipment and synchronizing with our city. We thank you very much. Deeply reduce the amount of traffic that exceeds. Thank you very much. On the cross streets. Okay. Thank you very much. Okay. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment and the public comment portion of the hearing. What we will do is or public comment is closed. We'll go back to the Council for deliberation and for moving forward on the hearing. So first up is Councilwoman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So I'm going to make a few comments and then we'll. There are multiple items associated with this particular hearing. So after hearing from my colleagues, I'd like to go into the specific items and motion those individually. But before I talk about some of the points that were raised during public comment, I do have a couple of questions for city staff. There were some mentions regarding the general plan and the timing of the general plan. And I know the low Cerritos Wetlands Land Trust has expressed some concerns about potential concerns. Between CCF and the General Plan. I've had an opportunity to speak with the City Attorney and Development Services staff about this, but if you could address that, I think that would be educational for everyone. Thank you. Council member. So over here at the staff table, I think we all agree with Ms. BLOCK and the land trust that the general plan is an important document. That's why the city is investing considerable resources into updating that document. At the same time, we have a disagreement about whether that prohibits this evening's action. From a planning standpoint, the areas of change that we're talking about are and land use district seven, which is a mixed use portion of the general plan. The uses we're talking about this evening are mixed uses. While some aspects of the general plan have aged, we don't find it to be meeting the standard for being inconsistent. Additionally, from a technical standpoint, I might can jump in. As a charter city, we're giving given a certain amount of latitude tha t other cities that are general law cities are not given. So when we look at the sum of all the factors, there's no reason that we cannot proceed forward tonight. We do believe that the action in front of you is consistent with the existing adopted general plan. We also agree with the comment that it's important to update our general plan, and that's why we're hard at work doing just that and look forward to bringing that item to council in the coming months. Well, and I appreciate that. And later, when I make motions, I do intend to make a motion that's different than the staff's proposal in regards to the general plan. So I do want to hear from my colleagues, but I do believe having some assurance that there will be consistency and no conflict is important. And I want that to be part of the plan before we move forward. So I'll bring that motion, the specific language of my motion. There were some concerns regarding height and as the development services staff and I both know this, the email correspondence and the comments that have come back, some of them have lacked factual accuracy regarding the height issue. So can you please in regards to the hotel heights, Mr. Koonce, talk about what exactly the height limits will be and under what specific and narrow conditions a developer will be able to build a hotel at this location. And what sites? Sure. So there's as some of the speakers noted, there's a limited number of sites that are actually changing under this specific plan. And then the action in front of you, consistent with what the Planning Commission did, is a reduced intensity alternative. And the other change the Planning Commission did was they reduced height at the marketplace site. So for the marketplace site as well as the Golden Sail site, your height limit is five storeys. So for the other site, which is basically the Marina Pacifica shopping center as well as the properties on the other side, they're on the west side of PCH. So you've got the current Whole Foods location and that Regency Center and some adjacent property. On those limited properties, those two locations. If a hotel wanted to come in, they could, with the permission of the Planning Commission, reach a height of seven storeys on up to 15% on the of the site, and only if they included additional extraordinary public benefits beyond what is contained as a base requirement. So that could include a public pocket park that could include a sports or recreational facility that was open to the public. In addition to the hotel guests, it could include a performance venue, but it would have to be an additional public amenity and it would be limited to the 15% and are limited to those two sites that, in the view of the Planning Commission, was the appropriate compromise. So if I can interrupt you one moment, because I think you're moving into another thought. In addition, one of the other factors that could be considered by the Planning Commission in determining whether or not to allow an application for seven storeys is a provision requiring moderate income and workforce housing. Is that one of the options that's available for someone applying to have seven stories? That could be an additional consideration, but it is limited to buildings that within that building contain a hotel use. And to finish that thought, the reason was brought up by a couple speakers that this is within the coastal zone. And the coastal zone includes all kinds of provisions. And we tend to think about the ones related to wetlands protection and coastal access, but it also includes provisions related to visitor accommodating and visitors serving use of. We as a city have an obligation to provide some type of incentive for possible hotel users in this area. The incentive that was available to us is providing them a little bit more height on a very small portion of it to select sites. And that's what's in front of the city council at this time. So the seven stories we're talking about is limited to two sites and could only be 15% of a total project on those two limited sites. That's correct. And it could only occur with the approval of planning commission, assuming that there are some of the amenities that you just include included in your list that are part of that project. That is correct. Okay. We. Okay. I just want to a few things. This project also creates a wetlands mitigation fund, which in my experience is very unique in terms of development projects and proposals. Can you talk about that a little bit? Sure. So the most recurring common theme that we heard during the outreach process was that the wetlands are very important and we need to find a mechanism not only to not build on them, but to bring them back to do restoration work. And I think all the parties agreed that that's important, but that's also costly. So what we wanted to do was find a way to exact a fee, which in a compliant legal way on new development that would incrementally help pay for the restoration work. So we've got a number of different wetlands out there in the area. There's some that are under private ownership and they would not be eligible for the use of these funds. But we have other wetlands that some are under the city's jurisdiction and some are under the Los Rito Wetlands Authority, which you set on their jurisdiction. And the issue for both those wetlands is a lack of funding to do things like invasive species removal, to correct the tidal flow, to do introduction of correct plant species. So in order to fund that work, what will happen is we will conduct a Nexus study and we will enact this fee in our research. We will be unique, at least here in the in the city, in the of cities in California. But we're confident that it's an important part of this plan because it's what we heard from the public was important. And as we develop that fee, we'll be sitting down with wetlands authority and with wetland stakeholders to make sure that we have a proper plan for how those fees are going to be best utilized. Okay. And I will be making an amendment regarding that as well in terms of how we move forward with that fee. But I appreciate the explanation in terms of timing of future developments. You know, I think a lot of times we hear comments about the the density that's going to happen and the impact that that's going to have on traffic. Can you shed some light on what the realistic timing of future development is going to be in this seascape area? Sure. So this plan looks out all the way to 2060, but it also looks at tomorrow. So if the city council were to take a positive action this evening, the next step is for this plan to find its way to the California Coastal Commission, and we expect that certification process to take about a year. So after that, there are properties that are less encumbered and might be subject to development in what we in the planning world consider the short term. So in the next five years, for example, there's some possibility that portions of the marketplace could be redeveloped. But there are other properties, such as the Marina Pacifica Shopping Center, that are encumbered by long term leases, including to a grocery store, which typically is a lease that cannot be broken. So that development is 20 years away. So what we're talking about is a plan that's going to suit our needs today, but also well into the future. And in terms of the amount of development that the folks will see in the next five years, it's not zero, but I would describe it as limited. Okay. Thank you. So I want to start off by thanking staff, especially Christopher Coons, for his work on this project. I became involved in this project in 2014, actually, before I took office. And Ms.. Cantrell, I know you sent in an email out with some allegations about my my involvement in this case. And I'd be happy to share with you that I've been involved with this project since before resuming or commencing office, and worked with the city attorney and the PPC to make sure that I could get involved in this project and be actively involved in this project. Happy to share all those letters with you. But all of that to say that I have worked really closely with staff from the first day until today, and I can tell you that never before have I experienced a staff member who has been such an amazing community partner. And it's Christopher has met with everybody. I'm going to talk a little bit about the process in a moment. And the plan that is before you today is a much, much different plan than the plan that was initially proposed. And I'll talk a little bit about why that is. And that didn't come about in a vacuum. And it certainly wasn't something that was decided on at the Planning Commission meeting alone. The plan that's before you today came. As a result of many, many discussions that city staff has had with community partners. And I'm really grateful for their leadership. This process actually started in 2004 with the Study Group and the old plan, which I'm very grateful to. Jan Hall, who's here today, was passed in 1977 and has lasted decades and served us very well, and it's no longer sufficient to meet the vision and the values of the current time. And that was the decision that was made in 2004, way before any of us were involved in the decision making for the plan. That's tonight. That's before us tonight. This process started out for us in 2014 as CDEP and it was changed to see CIP. And it is obviously a very significant specific plan for the city of Long Beach and for the third district because it is where we housed the most precious and greatest opportunity for wetlands restoration and preservation and also economic development for the city. The plan being considered tonight was developed after three years of outreach, including 50 community meetings and countless one on one constituent meetings, not just with city staff, but with myself and my team. I cannot tell you how many times I've received telephone calls from people who are here tonight, some of whom actually went to the podium and said that they're opposing the plan, requesting a meeting with me the next day at the 11th hour, asking for my time, asking for me to meet with them repeatedly on the same issue. And it's it's it's unfortunate to me that despite the shaping of the plan, based on their input, to get us to the place where at tonight that they're still in opposition, I certainly had hoped that we would have been able to acknowledge the progress that was made in the plan as a result of their input. But as with all things I know, sometimes it's not. It's difficult to acknowledge the positive and much easier to highlight the negative. But in any event, staff's initial initial proposal on size up was 30% more density than it is now. And the rich and original recommendation they made was 5 to 7 stories, not 3 to 5 stories. Where we are today is as a result of the input that we received, and I'm very grateful for where we have landed. This proposal fixes shortcomings and encourages consistency in expectations. The proposed plan corrects the shortcomings of the original plan. Preservation of the wetlands was not as much of a priority in 1977 as it is today. And I say that because of the focus that we have had on wetlands preservation, conceptual design and restoration that's happened over the last five years, that has not happened in this city before. And in fact, again, some of the speakers tonight, Miss Cantrell, had talked about there being no development on the wetlands since CDEP was created in 1977. And that's absolutely not true. There has been development in the wetlands since 1977 that should have never happened on the wetlands. And this plan helps us restore that and make sure that doesn't happen. Under the old plan, residential and commercial developments on open wetlands were possible. And indeed, we have less open wetlands now than we would have had had we adopted a plan to preserve them. The current proposal allows those areas to be protected and limits development opportunities sites. A specific plan created for this area establishes requirements for anyone who seeks to develop in this area, and those requirements are based on the desires and preferences expressed by the public. And yes, it's true, 200 people attending a community meeting certainly does not reflect the population of 500,000 in the city of Long Beach, but 200 people attending a community meeting, hundreds of people attending 50 community meetings is very significant in a particular district. I have seen outreach unlike that anywhere else in the city that it takes. Having a specific plan removes the variability that we see with developers seeking variances and exemptions. Everything is set beforehand and developers have a reasonable expectations on what the community and the public want. I want to thank some of the developers and their representatives who are here today, because I will tell you originally when they proposed plans three years ago, I made it very clear to them that the plans that they were proposing would not be something that I would support. And although because of tonight's appeal, I was precluded from expressing a solid opinion on this case prior to tonight, I made it very clear that I would not support a 5 to 7 storey height limit. Or the density options that were provided in the original proposal, rather than looking at projects on a case by case basis which can be inconsistent and based on different owners are stronger lobbyists or other special interests. The characteristics of a particular project are difficult negotiations. Instead of all that varied variability, a specific plan sets all the requirements before anyone proposes a project and bases those requirements on the specific wishes of the community. This particular element that's being proposed tonight is consistent with the vision that was laid out in 2004 and again when this process started with our stakeholder committee in 2014. Based on the vision developed by the community, this plan is forward thinking and embraces what we have stated in the vision. Examples of these elements include view corridors, public open spaces, wetlands preservation, wetlands, buffers of 100 feet, native planting, bird safe building treatments which I know the Audubon Society reached out to me specifically and requested and we made sure was included and most importantly, limits development to existing developed areas, meaning our wetlands will not be built upon. Most importantly, this plan allows for the creation of a wetlands restoration and monitoring fund that every new development will have to pay into. Among the items expressed as priorities in the community vision, this plan will create a gateway into the city that is more reflective of the beauty and charm of this area and will provide a moderate amount of new housing as highlighted in the staff report, which is much needed for the entire city. And it will also enhance our shopping restaurants and other retail opportunities. The plan addresses height, in my opinion, responsibly and gradually, and I would have never approved the recommendation that was initially proposed by staff for 5 to 7 feet. From the beginning, I have expressed to city staff that I was looking for a lower height alternative. The reality that heights up to 12 stories were once considered for this area prior to my serving on this council. Continues to perplex me. I'm not even sure how such a proposal would have made it to the Council for a vote. It's unclear to me because I cannot see a situation where my community would have supported that. This is not an area where downtown level heights make any sense and they don't reflect the community. I'm very pleased that the Planning Commission recommendations and staff's recent proposal limiting the height to five storeys for almost all except two of the parcels of land. This height is reasonable and goes to great lengths to set up community benefits with art, park, open spaces and commitments to our wetlands in exchange for future developments to be allowed. Additionally, if properties commit to even greater public benefits and are one of only a few properties further from the wetlands, they could build up to 15% of their property to seven storeys only if a hotel is included on that property. This would require major commitments from developers and huge investments in public outdoor benefits. Residents have again and again said they want like parks. Art view. Corridors, wetlands support and many other things that we would need. We will we would do. If we had that opportunity for any additional development. Large buildings that are seven stories tall is not something I would support. It is not something the community supports, and it is not something that this project allows for. Limiting heights in this area is extremely important because of the existing low height and keeping the area consistent and not creating a heavy burden of new residences, but also in preservation of wildlife needs and bird flight paths. Height has been a significant consideration at every stage of this process, and it has been reduced and reduced again many times, and requiring major investment in public outdoor amenities and open space in exchange for any expanded height. There's been a great deal of concern regarding traffic at this intersection, and rightly so. This is an area of major concern. The current proposal addresses this concern. The recommendation by Planning Commission reduced density by 30%, which I fully support, and I commend them on that recommendation. This recommendation alone will reduce traffic impacts. Future development is also capped on a per acre basis based on peak vehicle trip generations. This is better, in my opinion, than a first come, first serve basis that might result in developments that are less thought out or not fully contemplated. More t han 300 square feet of residential development has also been removed from the plan, further reducing maximum development and traffic connection of Shopkeeper Road to Studebaker Road is also part of this plan which will further reduce traffic pressures. Additional. We expect the plan will include many traffic design and engineering elements to alleviate traffic. These include breaking up super blocks to allow for access off of Second Street, adding multi-modal transportation options and infrastructure, and working with Caltrans to allow better city access to control controls over traffic signals at the intersection of Second and PCH. It is believed that changing the traffic signal timing alone can improve traffic flow by 5 to 7% from the current conditions. This is around the level when most motorists would start to see a difference in traffic flow. It's rare to get developers, property owners, environmentalists and residents together to collaborate on a single project. This project did that. It's also rare and frankly unheard of to have a final project that all of these entities would applaud together as a victory. And I don't believe that that will happen tonight. But to me, it is also a success because the public process led to a reasonable middle ground that does not lead to massive development tomorrow, but rather slow developments improving our community gradually over the next 40 years. This is not a max use of this area of land. It's a modest increase proposal which will allow redevelopment but do so in a way that is balanced and meets the needs of the communities along with preservation of the habitat. This plan includes provisions from every stakeholder and group and in my opinion, effectively embraces the vision we have set out to accomplish in 2014. I want to thank the people who came out to speak in favor and opposed to the proposal tonight. Your input is valuable and whether you said it at the podium or not, we spent a lot of time together and your opinions and thoughts are reflected in this proposal. You know that even though you didn't say it, many of you with whom I met repeatedly after work late evenings at your request, you know that what you asked for is in this proposal. I know it and you know it. You didn't say it at the podium, but that's okay. This is a great proposal, and I ask my colleagues to support it. Thank you very much. Council member Councilor Maria Ringo. Thank you, Mayor. And I, too, want to thank everyone who came out today. If nothing else, it's your ability to engage in civic engagement with the city of Long Beach and anywhere you go. It's a democratic process, and that's what it's all about. And I'm glad that you're here, and I'm glad that you shared your comments with us because that's how we get to work things out. The decisions behind all we hear are not always easy, and they haven't been. This one is one of those that is not easy. Some comments that were made that were inaccurate I have to address

. Yes, I was. And I continue to be a member of the Coastal Commission and I did address the issue of the Belmont Pool and its height. That height is obviously a concern, and I know it will be a concern to the Coastal Mission Coastal Commission once it gets there. One of the things that I looked at immediately on this project was one of the heights that we're talking about and talking about five stories. So if if Chris can please answer by stories means what? What would be at the maximum height of a five story building? So a typical five story building could be in that 55 foot range. It could go up to 60 feet, which is four stories at ten feet each and a larger 20 foot bass story. So similar to the existing Marina Pacifica condos that are just across the waterway from a portion of our areas of change. Okay. So currently as proposed, the height limitations would not be increased significantly other than it sounds intimidating that we have five storeys. Is that correct? That's correct. In staff's view, it's not significant. It certainly was an area of great discussion and the heights have been adjusted down throughout the process in response to that great discussion we had with the public. Earlier, the panel mentioned 80 feet. So I mean, we're nowhere near 80 feet. So we're I think we're we're in a good place. The other aspects of this plan that I was looking at is also in terms of those that are mainly concern to also the Coastal Commission. And the only reason I'm saying that is because included in this plan is a modification of the LCP. The local coastal plan, which will again go to the Coastal Commission, will actually will look at again, I had a unique opportunity here to have to bite at this apple in the sense of visiting and revisiting this project from two different points of view. And so what I'm trying to do is try to get a sense of where we can possibly land in a good place. This plan right here, from what I can see, addresses all of the issues that would be concerning me. And Councilmember Price has mentioned those. In fact, I have all of these bullet points and I could check them off a sheet as she was discussing them in terms of mitigating traffic. Also, one thing that was not mentioned, I was but it was it wasn't addressed in a very direct way. But Susie, the mere phrase it because remember Price and I both said on the wetlands lottery with wetlands authority and in that we also deal with some of the concerns that people have with the wetlands. One of the main things that also was brought up by the appellant was about the the size and the and the concerns of oil drilling there. Well, I can say that not many people know that the owner of those drills gave the city 100 acres of land to go towards wetlands, and it was donated to us and they only wanted to keep five acres of that. So we have an additional 100 acres of wetlands that we can restore. And the best part I like about it is that there's going to be some money going into a restora tion fund that will help in that restoration process. So I think it's a wonderful opportunity for us to make developers responsible for their development by giving back. I see a lot of also here that there's there's a public benefit to all of this. There's a public benefit in providing additional access and providing bicycle lanes and providing those opportunities for people to come to Long Beach and enjoy all the resources and amenities that we have to offer here. So having said all that, I think that they can support this project. I know that Councilmember Price has some additional amendments that she would like to make. We discussed some of those. I think I can support those. But hopefully when we come down to the vote that we could get the support of our colleagues to endorse and support this project to go out and talk to customers. We're probably there'll be some additional changes coming because of, of course, commission rules and amendments and the and the Coastal Act that will come into play for that. So thank you very much. Thank you.

Councilmember Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I just want to chime in with a couple of thoughts. So, one, I you know, I remember when this conversation was before the last council and we followed it and it you know, and it's good to see how far the conversation has come. It's clear to me that, you know, the local councilmember Councilman Price, has put a lot of time into engaging, understand this issue, saying pretty much anything that would need to be said on this. You know, Chris, if this is indicative of the work that we're to expect with the without plan and some of the work there, we're really excited about that. But there's one area that I do want to you know, it's a bit it's a burning question on my mind and a lot of people's minds. And I noticed that there was some focus on, like bird migratory patterns and bird activity, correct? That's correct. Okay. So so maybe you can answer this question for me. Do Birds of a feather. Actually flock together. We're looking forward to finding out in our great spaces that we're going to create in this area. Thank you. Thank you for your time on this. Thank you. Councilmember Pierce. Yes. Thank you for the laugh. Vice Mayor, I want to also echo Councilmember Price's comments. I sat on that side the last time the second PCH project was here and know very well that this is a very different project than was here before. And I want to say how much I appreciate all of those that have reached out to my office, which has been a small handful. And the list of comments that I have that have emailed in have all been in support as well. I know I've met with Mayor Bob and and a couple of other groups. And so, you know, I think that we've come a long way in talking about community benefit agreements, which wasn't a phrase that we even used before, that we've come a long way in trying to put together a process that is inclusive. And unfortunately, sometime it's frustrating because it's hard to get everybody in. This is the story of tonight, right? Everybody to work together towards the same vision. And I do agree that this project does that. And I think that staff has worked really delicately in trying to move that process forward. I won't take up too much time. Besides saying that I know that the councilmember is working with you all and there'll be some changes at the end. I look forward to hearing those, but I'm really happy to see that we've taken a longer step and a slower process and that there's still opportunities in the future to even make this project more fitting for the neighborhoods on each piece. So I welcome that process. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Yes. I want to say that I've enjoyed being a part of this process. There have been meetings throughout the city. One of the meetings that I attended was so. Long ago that the council, as it is today, has different. Members on it. And I was on the council at that time. And so I appreciate the public input. I appreciate that meetings happened throughout the city, not just in the third district. And I'm glad to hear that. So many of the original comments were included in the plan. I know that. Often community members believe that their comments are not held. For the record, and I will only reinforce. What I've been discussing a lot in the community is your opportunity for comment. Every night when we sit down at the dais, we receive a packet of comments on any agenda item that anyone uses online. And that's a really thoughtful way to put your your comments into the record in addition to coming forward and speaking. And so I would just continue to encourage that because we read those. And as you can tell, we listen at those meetings and the changes have been made and so great. Work to our staff. This has been a long process. We really appreciate you and all the work that you've put in, great work to the community getting to this point. And I hope that when we see the progress in the direction that we're looking towards, that we see that as a win in the right direction because not everyone can get everything all the time. So congratulations to everyone who got something in this plan. Thank you. Thank you. And Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you. At this time, I'm going to make a series of motions and would ask for my colleagues support. First motion. It would be on the first. Would the clerk like to read that item or should I? Okay. So recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing. Deny an appeal by Warren was off ski on behalf of Long Beach Citizens for Fair Development and adopt resolution certifying IIR 02-16 selecting the reduced intensity alternative making findings of fact, adopting a statement of overriding considerations and approving a mitigation, monitoring and reporting program for the Southeast Area Specific Plan State Clearinghouse Number 2015101075k. There's a motion and a second on this. Already we've done public comment. Members, please go ahead and cast your votes. Motion carries, Councilwoman. Motion carries. Thank you. Hearing to communication from City Attorney Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the hearing and declare ordinance. Amending the Long Beach Municipal Code regarding vacant lots. Read for the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading Citywide. Okay, we're going to go to a short staff report. Yes, Mr. Mayor, short staff report given by Larry Rich. By Alison this time. Good evening. Mayor, and members of the City Council. I'm here to update you on the vacant lot registry ordinance. That's before you this evening. Just a quick background to remind you that, as you know, vacant lots, especially those that aren't well-kept or maintained, are associated with decreased perceptions of neighborhood safety as well as decreased neighbor nearby property values. And in 2016, this council requested the city manager to explore feasibility of doing a citywide vacant lot registry ordinance to address those impacts. That secured a list of 2100 potential vacant lots from the county researched vacant lot registries across the country. And as you heard back in June, our findings were that only 618 of those original and 2100 lots were actually eligible for the program. And that was assessed through GIS, through aerial photography, and through our own city records. And then we did a random sample in the field and got a 98% accuracy rate based on this information. We came forward on June 13th to share those findings and got direction from the council who asked the city attorney to draft a vacant lot registry ordinance. That ordinance is before you. This evening. It would establish a new chapter in the Municipal Code. Chapter 18.29 Owners that meet the definition of a vacant lot would be required to first register with the city, pay a monitoring fee, provide suitable fence around the lot to prevent nuisance activities and establish maintenance requirements such as being free of weeds, brush, dead vegetation, junk, graffiti, etc.. The fee was established in the 18 master fees schedule at 52, $52.67 a month. And there will be procedures for specific community serving users to be exempt if the vacant land owner does allow that community serving use at the direction of the Director of development services and Code Enforcement will be implementing those program and inspecting periodically. As you've already heard, there are many co-benefits to activating vacant lots, including to improve our sustainability and resiliency as a city. This is being brought forward with the item you just voted on now are urban ag incentive zones. So that will be one of the primary ways to get an exemption out of the registry is to allow your property to be used for five or more years for the Urban AG Incentive Zone program. We know that our local food, our f ood, such as fresh fruits and vegetables, travel thousands of miles to get to to the fork. And so it's really important to help reduce our vehicle. Miles traveled by increasing access to local food, which also helps activate those vacant lots for positive community supporting uses. With that, I'm available to answer any questions you might have. Thank you very much. I'm going to go to well, before I actually go to vice mayor, let me is there any public comment on this saying please come forward? This is on the empty lot. Hearing. That ain't working. Anyway. My name is Robert Pete and representing the Lord. Okay, that sounds good, you know. Well, it doesn't sound good, because it's more. More fees. More fees for the people who own the vacant lot. And there would be property owners while they have to have more fees. Why can't it be something without that? They're going to need the money, because if you put it in rent control, you know, rent control and you push it for doc, you pushing for other people to have their tax dollars and the ones who pay the most taxed taxes are the middle class, and they'll probably be the ones who own those lots, you know, so dang, man, you guys don't look nobody not you know, the women are more men than some of the young men, you know. Look, somebody nine when we talking to you. Hey, thank you. Now, man, you. Know. Hey, but hey, at any rate, mayor, what's up with the more fees your you chase just JetBlue out you're going for doc you want you have everything on American you shouldn't go on for these shouldn't be any more of a mayor and nothing just you need to quit. Janine Pearce needs to quit. That's that that's not good for the middle class of the city. So we've got to stay on the topic of the topic. Don't don't take any more of my seconds. So that's not good for the middle class because you take in more fees, give them a warning. Is something figure something out where we can talk, you know, have a forum, but stop charging people is sucking the city dry. That's what you're doing. And you always want to talk. When I get up here every time, I don't feel people are too calm, you know, chattering and all that. That's how you do. Did you get caught in class doing that? You're a doctor. You didn't do it in class. Don't do it here. Class was practicing for here. So if you didn't do it in class, don't do it here. Okay? Now, and since you've made you a leader, you need to talk to that man who turned his back, Al Austin, about the law. And this is for this because it's the whole thing, because the man, they have a three strike law and he tried to jump somebody the other day at the church. So we've got to do the hearings, sir. Yeah, I know we got to do that, but I got to get him. Hey, you guys got to see that, you guys. We got we. You have to talk to him. Okay, so, hey, let's cut down the fees, cut down the fees and do more for the middle class because that's going to help the lower class, less communism. Go back to what you or iginally were pretending to be. Remember when you were getting all that money from Republicans that go back to that, you know, you repent, read your Bible. Are you talking about straight? Talk about the hearing? I'm talking about you now. That's that's unfortunately not on the agenda. Well, I don't think I could do that because I'm leaving. But Jesus is where I. Read your Bible, son. Thank you very much, sir. Next speaker. Charles Moore. Again, I just wanted to point out that the way that we encouraged Bacolod owners originally to become part of the program back in 1994, 1995, was to avoid the cost of hiring someone to come in and do weed control on their properties. Mother Nature is very prolific and we'll take vacant land and turn it in to a very high level of fire danger in a very short time. And for that reason, the city requires that landowners and they receive notice in the mail that they have to mitigate this fire danger, and that costs money. So the way that we were able to encourage landowners to participate in our program of turning their vacant lots into organic community gardens was to tell them that there would they would avoid having to hire anyone in order to mow or poison the weeds on their property. So I just want to point out that in a way, this ordinance will avoid a cost to the property owner rather than increase them. Thank you. Thank you. C no, the public comment. We're going back to the council. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Just quickly, the idea here is there is a cost of vacant lots. And a lot of times you have absentee landlords who are not as concerned about the impact on property values, the impact on the neighborhood. And so we ask that city staff model this after our vacant building monitoring, as well as our foreclosure registry, which had a chance to work on when I was chief of staff to Councilman Neal. And in talking and thanks to the original Cosigners, I know Councilwoman Gonzalez worked with us on this. We think this could be a revenue generator in terms of helping to offset some of the cost that we encourage the city in trying to abate the blight, but also in in, you know, sort of a carrot to incentivize people to if you don't if you're not available on your site, you're not activating, you're not utilizing your site, then let someone else come on and receive the benefits of someone else activating your site. So I encourage City Council to support this. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes. I just want to say this is a great item as before as well. And I think staff for doing the extensive research on everything and not only vacant lots for urban agriculture, but for community service uses like public parks and economic development, which is great. So great job with this. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Andrews. Yes. Offhand, I'd like to know how many of these are in the sixth District. It's nice to have that on hand. I don't have the number in front of me, but I can get that for y ou. I would appreciate that. Thank you. Thank you. So, you know the public comment, there's a motion and a second. Please cast your vote. Thank you. Hey, next up is we're going to move on to item number 41. Report from Human Resources, a recommendation to adopt a resolution approving the terms and conditions of employment for members of the Association of Long Beach Employees Bargaining Unit pursuant to Government Code Citywide. Hey, guys, as we exit, as we exit, we need to be respectful. The meeting's still going on, so all conversations need to go outside. Thank you. Eating all conversations. Going to go outside. Thank you. We're going to go ahead and go on. Call me about respectful tactics. Respectful. Thank you very much. Thank you. Okay. We're going to move on with the meeting item 41, please. There you are for. Madam. Quick read the item one more time, please. Sure. Report from Human Resources recommendation to adopt a resolution approving the terms and conditions of employment for members of the Association of Long Beach Employees Bargaining Unit pursuant to Government Code Citywide. Thank you, Mr. West. Mayor, Mayor, council. Members who have a report from. Our H.R. director, Alex Vasquez. As well as our contract attorney for this area, Meuser. I'm working with the city attorney's office regarding the Alvey contract. Alex. Good evening, mayor and council. I'm going to introduce Ken Walker, our labor relations manager. He's going to give a brief report and then we're happy to answer any questions regarding this item. Honorable Mayor and members of the City Council, City Manager and representatives of the Association of Long Beach Employees Albi have met 14 times since October 1st of 2016 to negotiate an initial memorandum of understanding at the Council's directions. The city made its last purse and final offer to Albi on September 13, 2017. Albi rejected the city's last person final offer on September 28, 2017. City management is requesting that the resolution authorizing the implementation of the city's last person final offer be approved by the City Council. Some of the major proposed terms and conditions of in the last person final offer include a general wage increase of 2% effective October 1st, 2016. Another 2% general wage increase effective October 2017. It included some particular interest of Albi and specialty pays included the increase of standby pay from $1.50 to $2 an hour, increased the higher class pay from $0.80 to a dollar 60 an hour, and expand the put replacement program for each member of the skilled and general bargaining unit. Some of the other major provisions also increased the employee contribution to a two health plan, as well as providing 350 hours of union release time for the ALBY Association. Adoption of the resolution authorizes implementation of the city's last person final offer, but will not and cannot establish a new MRU and will change some of the terms and conditions of employment under which the parti es are currently operating. This concludes my presentation. Thank you. Councilman Price, anything? No, thank you. Councilman Roston. I just had a couple of questions from secretary of our H.R. negotiators in terms of the process, as has the process. You mentioned you had went to the table 14 times. Yes, we did. And we are here this evening to. Because we've reached an impasse there, correct? Yes, we have. And I would just try to explain please explain what an impasse means at this point in terms of the bargaining process. I'm sorry. Good evening. Members of the council. This is. My name is Ephraim Rodriguez Morris. I'm your outside counsel on the negotiations. Impasse means that the parties have reached the point in the bargaining process where there is no future, no no ability to reach an agreement, and either party can declare impasse. In this case, the Arab declared impasse after they rejected our last, best final offer. Okay. In terms of the council moves forward with the supporting the staff recommendation to improve approved the terms and conditions of employment, meaning the last person final offer, what does that actually mean and when would that go into effect? So what occurs is when one of the parties declares impasse. There are by statute in past resolution procedures that the parties can avail themselves of. In this particular case, Alba has elected to not request to go to mediation, and they've waived their right to go to a fact finding, which is a right that only the employee association has to exercise. So they've informed us in writing that they have waived both of those requirements. As a result of that, the city is now free to impose the terms of its last post final offer. The terms, as you see in your staff report, are reflected therein. They will go into effect prospectively after council adoption. Okay. So actually adopting this this resolution this evening would actually provide a raise for employees that haven't had a raise for a long time yet. Yes. So the terms of the last best final offer provide for a 2% retroactive raise to October one, 2016, and a 2% raise effective October one, 2017. This is consistent with the raises that the Council has directed with respect to other non sworn personnel in the city. So other bargaining units in the city of Long Beach have have accepted these terms and conditions? That is correct. All other bargaining unit of non 12 bargaining units have accepted these terms and conditions. I mean it. And now I want to be. Clear, sir, it's it's not public comment yet, but I'll call you up. Are we talking? I didn't write the terms and conditions or we are. Does every bargaining unit have some sort of variation? Bargaining unit have some level of variation. So in this particular case, in terms of the bargaining history, we did the 2% salary increases for against the we're imposing October one, 2016, October one, 2017. But we also addressed some specific issues that Alba had raised with respec t to stand by, pay the higher classification, pay issues to address some specific issues that they had raised at the table currently, including the replacement program. So we did have some variations that are unique to them, similar to what we have that are unique to other bargaining unit. Okay. Thank you. Have no further questions. Okay. Okay. Thank you. We'll take public comment now, sir. Mr. Mayor, members of the City Council, I respectfully disagree with the movement presented. With and the evidence is. In your should be in your book. Let's turn to page two of the summary. First of all, we didn't meet 14 times. We met 21 times. Maybe they lost count. If you'll look at the summary

in your summary, it says On overtime, the bargaining unit agrees to meet and confer over changes to the city overtime policy. You don't agree when you get imposed on it, says a representation team of 350 hours with no carryover hours. In the actual offer that you have presented to you, it says you can carry over 100 hours. The other problem is, is tonight and I would have brought this up earlier, but you've taken a short order, you're going to prove to agreements that do both those agreements, do something that we were told at the table couldn't be done. It gives money before October one of 2016. It gives a 3% lump sum bonus to both the engineers and the city attorneys. And we were told that absolutely couldn't be done. I guess they meant it absolutely couldn't be done for al-Libi. You also need to know the sequence here, and I guess we got to perp later to to prove that to you. I don't expect you to just take my word for it. I just want to file charges and take you the perp. But there were two. All you need to ask best and final offers. You get to make one. You made it three your last, best and final offer and didn't bother to make the one year until we went to our membership and voted and any negotiator was out of town. And I understand everybody has out of town commitments they have to go to. I get contacted by Ms.. Baskett and she says she's going to talk to us. So I just ask if she has a 30 and she writes back and says, no, she has no authority, but she thinks it would be good to meet. Well, why would you meet with somebody that didn't have the authority to change anything that was in the offer? So as a courtesy, we voted your second offer. You only get to make one, but we voted your second offer because I could tell she didn't believe I told her. I think the title of the email I think I sent it to all of you was Dead on Arrival. Well, the first your first three offer failed by an average of 96% voted against it. You picked up a few extra votes in the in the skilled and basic general unit. The second time around, you got 91% no and still 96% in refuse. And what you didn't get told by tonight is you can do this tonight, I suppose, and we can all go to and fight about it later. But this does nothing to interdict the union's right to engage in protected, concerted activity. Now, I accuse you the last time I was here of being tone deaf, and I'll tell you, I said that I was here on September 5th. We made our offer on the 31st. You didn't consider it or see it to the 12th. None of you even knew what it said. And then you rejected it and came up with, Oh my God, we forgot to make one year we can only impose a one year. So then you came up with it with a one year, and we voted as a courtesy and our. Members said no. So think about what you would do if somebody tried to force something on you that 96% in 91% of your members had said no. Think of what you would do and imagine what these people are going to do. Thank you, sir. This is the wrong approach. Thank you so much, sir. Thank you so much. Any other public comment on this item? Seeing none. Mr. Motormouth. Mr. Modica, is Mr. Mayor, we would like a. Chance to talk specifically to the question about the 3% one time, so I'd like to ask Irma to discuss that. The 3% one time payment was not offered to this or the members of the ALBA because they received a 3% one time payment in 2015 when they were still members of the IAM. And so for purposes of parity inequity with all the other civilian unions, that was not made as an offer to them because we want to ensure that our employees as a whole understood that that was sort of the parameters that had been directed to us. So we did not provide a 3% one time payment to the ALBA because those members had already received it in 2015. Okay, thank you. There's a motion and a second on the floor. Members, please go ahead and cast your vote. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you. Moving on, we're going to go back and do public comment. So it is David Pender here. I'm sorry. Forget it. Forget the name. Correct. And next next up we'll have is Penelope or Arianna, then Rob, Pete. Thank you. Can I just make one motion for all the rest? I'm joking. Item number 12, please. Report from police recommendation to. Execute an. Agreement with the Long Beach Community. College District to provide law enforcement security services and an estimated amount of $3,000,102. 526 districts. Five and six. Thank you. And this motion. District five and. Okay, fine. All right. It's been moved and seconded. Any public comment on this item? Larry. Good. You while I support this item. I think it's good to keep in mind. And it's a reminder, though, notwithstanding the good effort the police department have, the ranks, the numbers of the police are down at a all time low. And it's going to be, what, 3 to 4 years before we're back up there. And it what sharpens. This is what happened on the blue line two days ago. Which was I? One of probably the worst experiences I've seen when the train left. PCH for Willow took about six and a half minutes and there was a very violent in terms of conduct and language mail attacking verbally and walking back and forth and threatening or using language, in your words. That has never crossed my lips or anybody I know of. And th at continued on. And it's a matter of record. I've called the MTA, wrote rid of written a letter. It call also the police. Right then there was no police on the station at PCH, none at Pacific Coast Highway, none in Willow. When the train pulled into Willow, I walked up to knocked. I left one part of the car, walked up to the front, took the bike, walked up, knock on the door. The driver asked him to call the police and his response was and he had heard that and he said, well, he hasn't hurt her yet has he . So forth. And I suggest I told him to call the police. He would not. And I told and this is going to be your last day of work. If that if he didn't do that, that underscores the need of addressing the situation and taking the police that we. Are assigned to the police to the through line, which we don't have. They weren't there. And more often than not, not not there. Over and above the fact that transit policing is a specialized detail. And this council needs to step up to that fact and realize it and take the necessary steps to return the policing of the transit system to the trained professionals under Sheriff McDonnell. And there's the the approach every major city in the world has, i.e., a specialized trained force. To ride the transportation, which very few of these council members ride. Thank you. Thank you. So that concludes public comment. Members, please cast your vote. Motion carries. Thank you. Before we proceed, I move that we reconsider item number 11. And unless someone is second second, the motion to reconsider. Is. Not yet. We have to vote on the reconsideration. Could somebody second reconsideration? What do you have to say? Vocally, I say okay. Reconsider is not debatable. Right? I'm sorry. The question I have to reconsider. There's a potential conflict of interest. We have to vote on the reconsideration before we take the item, correct? That's correct. Okay. So any discussion on the reconsideration saying nonmembers members raise your hand if you're okay with reconsideration of item number 11. Okay. Madam Clerk, it looks like that approved. That's unanimous. So let's reread item number 11. And yeah, I remember Linda, please. Report from Economic Development Recommendation to approve the downtown Long Beach. Parking and Business Improvement. Area Annual Report. Continuing the assessment for the period of October one. 2017 through September 30th, 2018, Districts one and two. Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes, and I apologize. I didn't I didn't even think about it, but I have to excuse myself. My partner Adam is a member of the DLP. Thank you. So we'll give in a moment so she can exit the room. Thank you is removed by Councilmember Pearce and seconded by mongo. Any public comment on this scene? Members please cast your vote. Motion carries. Thank you. Councilman, you can return back to the room. I have a number 13 police. On the. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you. 1823 Communication from Vice Mayor Richardson, Councilwoman Price, Coun cilman Andrews, Councilman Austin. Recommendation to work with Pacific Gateway, work for Workforce Investment Network to provide access to free checking and savings accounts and conduct financial literacy education to all youth participants in Long Beach workforce development programs and report back in 90 days. Vice Mayor Thank you. And so one of the bullets in the economic blueprint under under economic inclusion talk specifically about increasing financial literacy and wealth building opportunities for young people in disadvantaged families. So this proposal tonight, as a part of that everyone in package specifically has a focus on youth. Young people are apt to be receptive to learning about the fundamentals of financial literacy. Teaching them how to manage a checkbook can can go a long way with in a young person's life. People often say, if I had known this when I was younger, well, we have no excuse because we have the captive audience of literally thousands of youth. I remember our first job it was in I know my mom's probably at home watching because she watches every council and council meeting. She probably remembers. I worked at Nickel. Nickel didn't work, work there very long, but a lot of a lot of folks come with their first job. That's an arcade, by the way. A nickel arcade a lot. I'm not that old. I'm not that old. It was a it was old video games but I'm a lot comes with your first job your first check comes with your first job. Sometimes your first checking account comes with the first job. And in Long Beach, nearly a thousand youth participate in our Pacific Gateway workforce and that investment network, youth and employment programs every year. And for them, for many of them, it's their first job. So with an audience of youth that already have jobs and are already earning money, we need to make sure that we are taking that opportunity to provide them with valuable financial decision making advice. We've been doing our research and speaking with Pacific Gateway, and currently there are some aspects of the financial literacy education already built into the program, but no access to information or direct, no access to certain information or direct connection to a free checking and savings account. So there are a number of partners who come to mind to offer these accounts. But I'm I'm confident that PG Wynn can help sort out what works best for them. I know our Economic Development Committee chairman, commission chairman Randall has some ideas as well. So this is if this is successful, we can broaden this to other programs in the city, potentially all youth programming. But I think starting with youth jobs, a thousand youth in our city, I think that's a good a good target to start with. So that's my motion. Councilman Price. Thank you. I want to thank the vice mayor for bringing this item. I think this is a fantastic item. I love it. I think anything we can do to educate our youth and set them up for success is really nothing but positive for our city. So I want to thank you for envisioning this item and for bringing it forward. I do want to suggest that we work. Obviously, we have a lot of banks in the city, but we have some uniquely well connected banks in terms of their history with the city of Long Beach. So they might be a good partner, at least as the pilot. Pilot. So farmers and merchants and other banks that really have a deep roots in the city would be I think they would I can't speak for them, but I think they'd welcome the opportunity to partner on something like this because it's a really great message. And I think these are the kind of life skills that will set these these young men and women up for successful futures. So I want to thank you for bringing this item. I think it's fantastic. Thank you. Thank you. There's a motion and a second journey. Public comment on this item. Just one Mr. Good here. Please come forward. It's a commendable project, and I'm going to make one suggestion, tweak it a little bit, and it's based upon my own experience. When I first started working, making money, going out, knocking on doors, selling wallets, brown greeting cards, and then was at a paper out well then would caddy weekends, sometimes three loops a day. One of the things I would suggest the tweaking of this is I would not make the checking account or savings account free. I charge them a dollar or $2. Instill in the lesson and instill the lesson. Nothing in this world is free, period. And many of those that are going to be taking advantage of this grew up, unfortunately. In an atmosphere where they're told or their parents were told, just keep popping out of kid. Don't worry about the expenses. We'll take care of you as long as you vote for us. All right. And that's in large measure. Not completely, but in large measure why we have so many of the problems. So I think charging a dollar or two for savings and then for the checking account would instill more that business sense and let them understand that nothing in this world is free. Thank you. Thank you. Senor, the public comment, please cast your vote. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you very much. Next up is item 30. Communication from City Attorney Recommendation of Declare Ordinance Amending the Long Beach Municipal Code by adding Chapter 8.17 relating to default beverages offered with children's meals. Read the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading. Mr. City. Mr. City. Attorney. Thank you, Mayor. Members of the City Council. The document before you this evening and that was in your package has been amended at the request of both the councilmember from the second district and the Health Department. And the change occurs on page three of the ordinance as we further define milk or nondairy milk alternatives. Well, we would the new language would read nonfat or 1% milk or nondairy milk alternative that is under 130 calories per container and or serving offered for sale. And with that change, we would submit the document. Okay. There's a motion and a second. Any public comment? So please cast your votes. Motion carries. In 38. Sergio Again. Yes, again, this is a the same kind of this is another property also by Raintree. This one out 127 through 135 East Broadway. Again the during the Jones period. It was discovered that a major dedication would be required. A reduction in the price of a $1.3 million would be required. Again, this item has been available to cities, economists and yes, to the council members. Item notation a rain tree great porter in the city. Has actually been, you know, waiting patiently while we've been exploring the economic analysis of our third party consultant to make sure that the reduction in is was justified. They are ready to go and we will be breaking ground as soon as entitlements are received. So thank you very much to Raintree and their patients and looking forward to two great projects in the downtown and bring over 400 units to the downtown. So thank you very much. Thank you. Any further comment? So none Mr. Wood here. Forgive me, but that sounds, in other case, like flies on garbage. It reminds me of what we went through a few years ago when Don I the last Mr. Dean had a property and the city were saying, this is here to auction piece of property that nobody wanted, nobody wanted. And of course, the dean bought it. And within before the ink was dry, before the ink was dry, made $1,000,000 in profit. And if that wasn't bad enough, if that wasn't bad enough, a few weeks later, somebody else said, Oh, that orphaned piece of property has a cousin. And another piece of property that nobody wanted, nobody wanted they sold. And don't quote the exact I think the price was somewhere between 9 to $0.11 an acre. That's almost as bad also as giving away the piece of property which the date is always memorialized in my room around the old hotel on a block from this convention center that nobody wanted and they gave it away for. I think it was a dollar. And that's easy to remember because that was the weekend of when Obama was in Cartagena and even the the ladies down there were holding out for their price. They didn't give up like this city council. One says. Sir, sir, you cannot sir, you cannot speak out during the council meeting I Well then you have to leave and go outside. It doesn't matter. You cannot sing or speak during the council meeting. Mr.. Good. To continue. To do. My apology. You know, it's not it's no wonder it's no wonder the that company came to Long Beach. And got the contract for, what is it, near $10 million to build a parking lot? If he knew right where the garbage was. Right where the garbage was, right here. And then what if we find they had an extensive record of fraud, embezzlement, crime? They felt a long basis for police to come so forth. Thank you. There's a motion in a second, Councilmember Pearce. Yes, I did want to just take a little the opportunity that I didn't take previously to say when I met with Raintree, I just really was excited about thinking outside of the box and going above and beyond what's required in a project like this. And so looking at the alleyways, talking about doing the mural, the walkability there, connecting the promenade to areas that we typically don't think to connect to, including the arts, and also thinking creatively about our parking challenges that we have. So I just wanted to publicly say I really appreciate the partnership that we've already started. So thank you. Thank you. Please cast your vote. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you. Thanks again. And we're going to go ahead, go back to the regular agenda item 29. Report from Development Services recommendation to receive supporting documentation under the record, conclude the public hearing and accept statutory exemption. 17 Dash 136 Declare ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to A2 use read the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading. Adopt a resolution to submit a request to the California Coastal Commission to certify and amend amendment to the Certified Local Coastal Program and adopt a resolution modifying the established development impact fee structure for 80 use citywide. Thank you. Stay safe. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. For this item, we will have a staff presentation from Linda Tatum, our planning bureau manager, and Carrie Tai, our current planning officer. I'd like to introduce Carrie Tai, who will make the staff presentation for this item. Carrie has been assisted by the rest of our project team. Scott, Kinsey and Alexa. Carrie. Thank you. Good evening. Honorable Mayor Garcia and members of the city council. This is a continued public hearing from October 10th, 2017, and it's regarding a city initiated ordinance pertaining to local regulations for accessory dwelling units, which, as you know, the state of California required requires local jurisdictions to allow. I'm going to do a very brief background just for the benefit of the audience. But basically last year there were a series of state laws that were passed and that took effect January 1st of this year. And those laws mandated that local jurisdiction, local jurisdictions approve accessory dwelling units if they meet a certain set of standards. And it also prohibits cities from largely requiring parking for those accessory dwelling units. However, state law does allow for cities to adopt local ordinances to refine the state regulations, and that's what the staff is proposing at this point. Local ordinances have the ability to regulate lot size, the size of accessory dwelling units, processing requirements, and also details such as development impact fees and covenants that restrict the use of that accessory dwelling unit. So on July 6th, 2017, the Planning Commission forwarded a recommendation to the City Council to adopt a local accessory dwelling unit ordinance. The City Council c

was 1000 square feet. So the council asked us to reduce that. And lastly, the council asked us to look at requiring parking for accessory dwelling units in preferential parking districts. So I will talk a little bit about that. So the table on the screen as well as in the staff report details the standards that are in the proposed local ordinance as compared to state law. And as you can see, the list of standards includes minimum lot size, a lot with a light coverage, floor area ratio, etc.. The items highlighted in red are the city council requested changes to the Planning Commission's recommendation and so the minimum lot size at 5200 square feet and the open space at 30% of the size of the accessory dwelling unit. And there. We also. Had a pretty extensive discussion on generally the number of units, number of properties with single family homes that would be able to construct an accessory dwelling unit. And based on the lot size alone and not taking other details into consideration like light configuration, light shape. About roughly two thirds of residential lots with single family homes in the city could possibly be eligible for an accessory dwelling unit, but that's based solely on lot size. As mentioned, the Council also amended the Planning Commission's recommendation for maximum accessory dwelling unit size. There are two types of accessory dwelling units attached and detached, and this would mean that an accessory dwelling unit that is attached to a primary single family home would be limited to 50% of the size of the single family home or 800 square feet, whichever is less. There are some exceptions for if the primary dwelling unit is particularly small, but that that would allow an accessory dwelling unit of at least 640 square feet and then all detached ones would be limited to 800 square feet. So with regard to parking districts, as discussed in the staff report and at the prior public hearing, all the state law included many provisions about how cities can regulate parking. One of those is that any accessory dwelling unit located within a half mile of public transit does not require parking. In fact, the state just does not allow the city to require parking. However, certain areas such as the coastal zone and the designated parking impacted area because required findings have to be made that not requiring parking for accessory dwelling units may negatively impact those areas based on their physical characteristics and their development patterns. The local ordinance does propose to require one parking space per accessory dwelling unit. So the difference in the preferential parking districts which the city council asked us to look at. At. These districts, differ from parking impacted areas in the sense that they're the way they're created. They are, rather than physical characteristics, they are potentially impacted by nonresidential uses in the nearby proximity that have the potential to negatively impact the on street parking during certain, whether it's business hours or whether it's operating hours. Of those nonresidential uses, the presence of the parking permits ensures that the residential neighborhoods remain available for residential parking, and by definition, they don't share the same physical characteristics that the parking impacted areas do. And because of this, the the imposition of a parking requirement in preferential parking districts on accessory dwelling units would not be consistent with the provisions of of of state law on how cities could require parking for these uses. So therefore the parking requirements, as proposed in the local ordinance would remain essentially as proposed by the Planning Commission with one with one change. And I will mention there was a recent state law that was adopted in October, which now limits cities to one parking space per accessory dwelling unit, whether it's in the coastal zone or otherwise. And so that requirement will stand. And then I should also mention that there is required replacement parking required for anybody who converts their garage to be an accessory dwelling unit. That replacement parking does not have to be in a garage. It can be in another exterior configuration and it can also be tandem, and that is detailed in the ordinance. There are other accessory dwelling unit standards that ensure that the inclusion of accessory dwelling units will be consistent with residential neighborhoods, and some of those include exterior modifications to ensure that these units are architecturally compatible with their primary dwelling and also that there are privacy standards when we when we review the location of these accessory dwelling units . Lastly, I did mention that there are covenants that are required on accessory dwelling units. The owner must live on the property or if the entire property is leased out, then one tenant, one party, if you will, would be limited to living on that on that site, even though there's two units. And that would be something that the property owner has to sign to agree to. The other two provisions would be that short term rental of the units is prohibited and by short term that's less than 30 days. So in the in the commonly understood as things like Airbnb that would be prohibited and also the covenant would restrict the accessory dwelling unit from being sold separately. I mentioned development impact fees. The new development in the city pays development impact fees. The state law requires that impact fees be commensurate with the scale and demands of the proposed improvements. And then given that accessory dwelling units are limited to a smaller scale, they're accessory in nature and they're allowed in more limited circumstances. The staff is proposing that a development impact fee that is proportionate to accessory dwelling units be implemented. And so included in your action in your item tonight is a resolution to adopt development impact fees that are commensurate for the size of accessory dwelling units. So with that staff is recommending that the City Council adopt the Planning Commission's recommendation as amended by your direction from the October 10th meeting for minimum lot size, minimum open space requirements and maximum unit size, as well as adoption of the resolution for development impact fees. And I should mention, because this is a zoning code amendment, there is also a resolution that would direct the Director of Development Services to forward this on to the California Coastal Commission for Certification. So that concludes staff's item. And we can address any questions you have. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. We have a motion in a second on this item. Councilwoman Price. Thank you. I want to thank staff for incorporating the amendments that the City Council provided direction on the last time we were addressing this topic. And I think it's very clear that this was an issue that we received a great deal of community feedback on. And the proposal that came to us from the Planning Commission really did not, although it was well thought out, it really did not take into account some of the concerns that we heard from our residents. So I appreciate you making the modifications that you did. And I'm much more comfortable today with where we stand in terms of our local regulations than I was before. These amendments were made much more comfortable. I do have a few follow up questions on the two thirds calculation that you provided for us regarding the number of units, residential units that might qualify. That's based strictly on the 5200 square foot calculation, right? Yes, that is correct. And it's based solely on lot size, with no regard for the way the property's currently developed or the way the property is shaped. Okay. So if someone were to build an accessory dwelling unit on their property, they would have to comply with all the other regulations that we have, such as setbacks, height, open space, all those additional things in order to even be eligible to build one. Yes, that is correct. And we haven't done a calculation of how many properties in the city because we don't know how all of those two thirds of those homes, how they're structured currently. That is correct. There are many, many, many different variations in those configurations. Okay. So I think that's a really important qualifier. And I want to highlight it that we're not saying that two thirds of the homes in the city, residential homes in the city could have accessory dwelling units that based on lot size alone. And none of the other factors that are part of our development standards, such as setbacks, building heights, open space, all of those things, those are not factored into that very rough estimate. The other thing that I wanted to ask is how are we going to be tracking the development of these properties so that we can study the rate and the locations of the buildings and so that we can make sure they're being built to standard standards and continually updated. Thank you for your question on the issue of tracking the city does because all the accessory dwelling units require building permits the administration of building permits is done through our electronic permit tracking system. So we are able to tell which properties have accessory dwelling units. And also it acts as a repository for us to store the covenants that every property is also required to sign and record. So we have copies of those as well. But we have a way to we will have a way to track them and also track the size of them where they were approved. And that way we could verify later on if something were to change. Okay. Is that when people apply for a building permit, will they be able to identify on the actual permit that this is an accessory dwelling unit? Yes, absolutely. That's required to be identified. Is it possible for council to get a report back on an annual basis of how many accessory dwelling unit applications we've received? Yes, we certainly can do that. And we will make a tickler to do so. One. Year after the effective date. Of the ordinance. And I would just. Note that staff is also interested in knowing the volume that's really important for the city's housing inventory. So we'd like to have a handle. On that number as well. That's great. And then towards that end, since this is a bill building permit process, will the neighbors in the vicinity get notifications when there's a building permit filed for an accessory dwelling unit? No, a any residential development is a what we call a ministerial approval, and it's allowed by right by the code. So there is absolutely no requirement for noticing of any neighbors on the any proposal. Okay. But the annual report would give us hopefully it could be designated or it could be categorized such that we know maybe what districts, the permits, whatever. We can certainly do that. Yes, that would be great. Okay. Kate. Thank you. So you mean that emotion? That's emotion. Yes. And second wave, actually. Richardson, vice mayor. Thank you. I'll just be brief.

I know we had an opportunity to have a robust conversation on this and just to refocus it. We know that people are already sort of living in substandard situations, garages, things like this. Growth is already happening. This just allows us to grow in a way that's not haphazard and is safer. And along with, you know, it goes along with existing building codes and safety codes. So the state, you know, has required cities to do this and take a good look. All the cities are figuring out what to do or how to address this, whether or not to comply with the state and what that looks like. And I think that we've tried to have a measured approach and really figure this out. So good job on staff and I'm going to be voting in support of this tonight. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. I want to thank staff for the work they did. I, too, have some questions. On page seven, you talk about the parking required under the amendments to state law. You said same of the existing number of spaces for primary dwelling. What are those for a standard single family residence right now? Thank you for your question. Council Member. Mongo. On page seven. I'm trying to find your. The reference here. Here's the box for the ADAS in the coastal zone parking at one. And then on the right side of this primary dwelling, same as existing number of spaces. Is that chart reflecting that? If you have a single family home today, you're required to have x number of parking spaces. For the replacement parking? Yes. If you're if you're a single family home and you have two spaces and you convert your garage, you must provide two replacement spaces. And that's why it's the same as the primary dwelling unit. So tourist placement spaces in addition to the two driveway spaces. A the drive. Not every home has a driveway. Right. So if you cannot if you cannot provide replacement parking, your property is not eligible to be converted. So this has come up a few times from residents in our district because in the fifth District, a lot of the homes are built where there's, say, a31 on the front and all the Douglas homes at the time when they were built. And then there's a long driveway to a two car garage in the back. So if that two car garage was converted, they already have a considerable number of spaces that they may or may not use for parking. So tell me how that works. In that configuration. Thank you. In that configuration, the long driveway would act as the tandem parking spaces that would serve as the replacement spaces for the garage that was converted. So it would be not replacing spaces. It would be acknowledging spaces that existed but were not required before. Right. The spaces that exist in the driveway at one, at one point were excess and in excess of the spaces that were in the garage. And now the excess spaces turn into the required spaces. That is correct. And. So if someone like that added an accessory dwelling unit separate from the garage, they would be required to add one of those spaces, theoretically as an extension of a replacement space or an additional space. A No. If the property is within a half mile of a transit stop, a parking would not be required for the accessory dwelling unit. And therefore, if they converted a portion of the primary unit to the accessory dwelling unit and the garage remained, they would not need to provide additional parking at all. So you say a transit stop, but in other legislation that's been discussed these days, it's a transit corridor. Is this a transit stop or is it a transit stop that has access every 15 minutes or every 8 minutes or what? We discussed the accessory dwelling unit legislation is is does not define the transit priority area or transit corridor like some of the other legislation or legislative documents do. The transit stop is simply the stop, and it does not define the headway or the frequency of service. Do we have a map? I'm sorry? Do we have a map that shows any and all locations that are not within a half a mile of a transit stop in the city? There is there is an exhibit in the staff report. But I can summarize by saying that fully 98% plus of the city is actually covered by is proximity to a transit stop. That was going to be my guess. So I think that there's one last question. People who currently have illegal accessory dwelling units or that they were built not through a permit process before this was built, what is the process that would be that they would undergo to become a acknowledged accessory dwelling unit? If they have if they currently have an illegal conversion, they would have to come in and undergo the same process that somebody who didn't have anything at all would have to go through. And if the case was that their property in some way, shape or form did not qualify for that accessory dwelling unit, they would have to take corrective actions to return that to whatever purpose it was, if it was a garage or if it was a portion of their their home. That is a single family property that only allows one unit. They would have to correct it to that state. And how are you going to be able to inspect some of the standards, considering that the walls are already closed up and you can't see the electrical and all those things are now hidden inside the walls? As part of any permit to legalize an illegal conversion. The inspector, the building inspectors have to be able to verify that the construction was done in accordance with the current building codes. And if that necessitates opening up an illegally constructed wall, that is something that the property owner would have to undertake in order for the inspectors to verify what is behind the wall. And that includes not only the construction of walls, but things like wiring and things like plumbing, all of which, if not constructed properly, have the potential to be dangerous. So I appreciate the changes that were made when this came to the council the first time. We didn't have all the information because not every city had taken on this this challenge yet. Last night at the city council meeting in Pasadena, they had a very robust discussion. One of their council members had actually gone on a ride along with their fire chief and responded to a fire at an accessory dwelling unit. And so what are the egress and ingress requirements for an accessory dwelling unit? Are they significantly similar to that of a duplex? What what protections do we have? The building code requirements for an accessory dwelling unit are the same as those for a residential habitable space. And not being a building inspector myself and I do know that there are certain window exits and certain door exits that are required, but it's in the same fashion that a residential single family home would be or any any unit, any duplex, but any unit. And if I can just add to that for those adus where they are actually converting a space within their existing home to the ADU, that does require a separate entry exit. So it would be a standalone unit even though it's within the existing space. So there would be a door and appropriate windows. Thank you. So one of the things that I felt strongly about when we discussed this the first time was putting two thirds of our housing inventory into this program when we haven't had the time to think it through yet and see the potential implications. I moved it specifically from 5000 square feet per lot and made that motion to move it up to 5200 and actually even higher than that at the time because there weren't other comparable cities that were doing more. After last night's council meeting. The city of Pasadena approved 7400 square feet lots. To receive an accessory dwelling unit. And so I'd like to propose a friendly amendment to my colleagues of increasing the size of the lot up to 7400 with the option a year from now after our first report to adjust that number so we can see how many people are going to take advantage of this, what that looks like, how popular it is and then. I'd like to hear from my colleagues on their thoughts on the process. So that's not a friendly that I'm willing to accept at this time. This is frankly, this is a discussion that we've been having collectively for a period of time. And I really think that if we're going to completely change what we've started in terms of our discussion with staff, then we all need time to once again go out and do outreach with our communities and also talk with staff about what the pros and cons of changing the maximum square footage would be. The last time it actually was 4800 square feet. Councilwoman Price, I mean, Councilwoman Margo Adams. I'm talking to myself. Everyone who's been called. Count and you you increased it to 5200, which I think is a huge step in the right direction. And I think that is definitely something that we vetted with our communities. And, you know, this is a mandate that has been given to us by the state and recognized as a state issue. And I think we're doing our best to work within that framework. And frankly, while I appreciate what the city of Pasadena has done, I think it's important for us to do what is best for the city of Long Beach, knowing the geographic and demographic composition that we have in light of all of the different factors that we have to consider in terms of our housing needs and our opportunities for housing. So I'm not comfortable accepting that friendly at this time because frankly, we have not done any outreach with our communities or city staff about it. And it's to me, it's not an appropriate friendly to be making at this at this juncture, but that's my personal opinion. Well, I think it's quite appropriate. The data related to two thirds of the properties being available in the 5200 square feet is also new information. And the original analysis came forward with comparisons of other cities that had done like things. And so as more cities come on board, that is going to be additional information. And I'm not encouraging us to delay in any way. I'm just saying that if we were to bump it up to 7400 square feet tonight with a six month or 12 month option to relook at this, it would not. There's a few we don't even know what the percentages. But I'm saying that to give

that many options in communities, especially after recently finding out what is or is not available within parking, because I know that the parking designated area is now a whole new component that parts of our district that currently would have been subject are no longer subject. So I appreciate your answer and I will consider my options. Thank you. Councilmember Super. Now, thank you. I just have a follow up to the garage conversion point that Councilwoman Mango brought up. I, I brought it up at the last meeting, but I think it bears repeating and that is if one is to convert an existing garage, let's say a single garage with a single driveway to a bedroom or a family room. Once that conversion is made, that pad, that driveway goes away as a place to park. If it's converted as an adu, then you get credited for a place to park. Is that still correct? Uh, Councilman Supernova. Thank you for your question. Yes. Just to clarify. If the garage is converted into an accessory dwelling unit, the driveway must be available for replacement parking. That is part. That is because the state provision regulates our ability to require, let's say, another garage or and some other kind of enclosed parking. We have to we have to allow any open configuration. So that essentially forces us to allow people to use their existing driveway if they were to convert that garage into an accessory dwelling unit. And you're right, it may not be the same situation. If somebody simply converts their garage for some other purpose, it would be specific to accessory dwelling units. Right. And the reality is, as a council office, we might get a phone call, hey, me and my neighbors parking in this illegal sp ot and then we have to respond. Well, actually, it's an adu, so they can't park there. Okay. The other point I wanted to make was a follow up to Councilman Price's point about the annual report. If we could have that include maybe applications, since it is a new program, let's see if people are applying, not making efforts, falling through the cracks and all the data, I think would be helpful. We can certainly provide a pretty robust information regarding the number of applications, the number approved, and we're happy to compile that and get it back to you. Okay. Thank you. And my last point is just kind of clerical on the slide number six on the parking districts. One statement about PDS says that it's a self-selected process which requires majority consent by property owners. And I don't mean to be too picky here, but it requires a supermajority that is 66% and actually not property owners , but any resident. So the reason that's key that it's just come up with our office with public works. I just like to make sure that if my version is correct, let's make sure we get development services well, public works, but specifically traffic engineering and the city attorney's office on the same page. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Austin. Yes. So. Staff, I just want to thank you for for the for the great work. And with this has been an issue that we've been looking at for several months in response to state legislation and to gain local control over our own land use within our city. Quickly, I just wanted to just state that on any given Tuesday night, we can change an ordinance here. Is that correct? Related to what we're doing with accessory dwelling units. Well, with proper noticing and the like. Yes. So. So my month. And planning. Commission of consideration. So this is a journey. Not not. We we may find things along the way that we want to tweak as a city council, right? That is correct. Want to be clear on that because we don't have to do it all tonight. That is correct. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. They appreciate that you mentioned that component. And so if we agreed to 7400 tonight and in two or three weeks, we found out that the number of units wasn't enough or any of those things. We would have those protections in place for neighbors, but that we could always reduce it. It's easier to reduce the square footage than to increase it. Is that correct, Ms.. Tatum? I think that once you set up an expectation for a higher threshold. It may be a little. Bit more difficult. But in either case, it's still an ordinance. And that ordinance would. Have to go through as Councilmember Price's noted kind of public outreach staff research and and then going to planning commission and the city council. But yes, you are correct that the process is essentially the same. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Pierce. Yes. I just wanted to take what staff has said. And for me, it's easier for us to start with a small and then go larger. So if we came back in a year and then added to. I think that that makes a lot more sense to be able to go through that process. And so particularly in my district where the lot sizes are so much smaller and more challenging. So thank you. Johnson Mango. So I guess the opposite is what I was thinking, because what I wouldn't want to do is offer a program and then take it away from people. And so that's why I was thinking if you started at 7400, there's a group of people that all have access to it. We could evaluate it and then you could expand the program. But if you started with 5200 and anyone had access and then you took it away and there were people in a process already, I would worry about the equity of the options. And then I would also say that maybe as a counter option, is there any kind of noticing that would be appropriate that we could write into the ordinance? Say, for instance, I heard Councilwoman Price was interested in noticing if it's between 5270 400, could there be a noticing process or something like that so that people know where these are and as they're coming online? If I can try to answer that question that when the state impose these requirements, the basic requirement for 80 use on local jurisdictions, they made it clear that they wanted it to be a ministerial process because in the past, when cities had these types of ordinances, typically they were done by public hearing, right? And they made findings that that made it difficult, in fact, to convert a space or build a space as a do you. So they allowed us to do a certain limited amount of standards in lieu of a discretionary public hearing. So it really has to be, by state law, a ministerial process with no notice provided, you know, there's no it's still on notice, but they have to meet all of the criteria in the ordinance. But wouldn't it be possible to write an ordinance that is for 7400 feet and above that is ministerial in nature and meet the requirements of the state and then create a secondary process for others that would be non-ministerial or is it going to be an overarching umbrella now? It's an overarching umbrella, I understand. Okay. Well, my community had communicated their desire for me to pursue this, and I can hear from my colleagues comments that it would not have enough support. So I appreciate the efforts. And I wanted my community to know that I continue to hear them and fight for them. Thank you. There's a motion on the floor by Councilman Price, Ambassador Richardson. I just want to catch someone pricing the vice mayor strongly support Pacific. I want to thank staff. We're working very hard on getting us to this place. And I want to thank the council for I know the numerous conversations around what's a difficult issue, but certainly a state mandate, but but also very issue that we want to make sure we get right and provide access for these opportunities for families and homeowners across Long Beach. And so with them members, please go ahead. And Castro votes. Publi c comment. Mayor, I'm so sorry about that. And this is a hearing. So actually, let me let me back that up. So there's a motion on the second floor and let me close our deliberation and please go to public comment. Any public comment on accessory dwelling units? Good evening, Counsel. Larry Boland. At a previous time, I mentioned to you that the old granny housing ordinance that we had put all of these accessory units at the back, 50% of the lot. And what that does is it prevents all the front facing garages not to have a front door that's right on to the driveway. That's right under the street because so people could use it at the front door. Areas of patio put up their umbrella and their barbecue. And when we go, the only released common sense way to accommodate this is to protect the facades of the R-1. And let's call this what it really is. This is not an accessory dwelling unit. This is duplexing. We're putting duplexes in the entire city. And the question is, does the only one zoning go away because we're not on one anymore? I find that to be a very negative thing to happen to the city in the name of density. And we don't need more people, we don't need more cars, we don't need more traffic, and we want to push more density into the R-1 area. So it's absurd. I'm sorry, but are we going to change the zoning? I have that question too. Or two or three, whatever it really is, and eliminate or let's just call it what it is. We're putting duplexes in and I don't think they should face the street. Can we get to a mr. Mayor frame and answer that? Can we do all the public comment? I'm going to get back to the city attorney for any questions. Okay. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. I actually spoke at our last city council meeting on. October 10th, and I'm very impressed with how things are shaping up. I know that Councilwoman Mongo actually started hitting on this with the with the driveway and the thought with the long driveway. What that does to ADOS. And I know that it's great that we have public transit so close to us and now we're 98% covered. We also have coastal areas and parking impacted areas which was touched on. We do still need to provide a spot for those. So if you were to put an ADU over garage, an existing two car garage in a parking impacted zone or in a coastal zone, you'd have to provide a driveway spot. That same driveway spot can't be used for that primary residence. If they wanted to add on to their home. That's that's how the zoning. Code currently. Operates. So if you're in a parking impacted zone and you don't currently meet the parking requirements, which is two garage spots in any single family dwelling district, you can only add 250. Square feet to your main. Home. That's how they prevent you from. Expanding your home and making sure you can find parking. Whereas essentially, if you had a long enough driveway, you could. Provide a driveway spot. For one car and then build. 800 square. Feet. Within reason if all. Of your other. Ordinances for adds are met. So something to consider on how that affects primary dwelling units and. Allowing it used to be built up to. 800 square feet, but only allowing the primary residence to. Add up to 50 if. They don't. Have conforming parking. Another item I. Know that we are. More involved in in the Planning Department. But we've also had thorough discussions with the. Building department on if you have an existing rumpus room or a pool house or anything like that. And basically, in order to convert. A pool house or rumpus room. Or anything. You have to consider it as. A new construction. So a. Pending any like if you have. Double hung windows making those. Egress efficient, you'd have to pour another slab. Or epoxy coat it. So you're conforming to the building code. All of. That is very. Expensive. On top of the development fees, which for a rumpus room, let's call it 400 square feet, might be 10000 to $12000. It basically. Stops that process dead in the water because of the expense that. This is getting. Anyways, I appreciate you listening to my comment and thank you, guys. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Josh Butler with Housing Lumber on. I want to thank the Council for taking on this very challenging issue of finding additional spaces for people to live in our community. I imagine these are going to be largely issues that impact homeowners that are currently dealing with overcrowded situations and maybe allow their family members to live in the back houses and and also increase equity in their homes at the same time. I would encourage the City Council to pay as much attention, if not greater attention to the 60% of the residents in our city who are currently renting their homes and are dealing with ever increasing rents, ever tightening market, and we're not putting enough housing online fast enough. So we'd love to see the City Council pay as much attention to issues like Jessica's eviction rent control and taking on issues that affect, again, the nearly 25% of our residents who are living in poverty. A majority of them are renters. So this has been a great addition and I can't imagine. I would love to hear the report in the future of how many units we actually create out of this and how many new housing opportunities we create. I suspect it will be relatively minimal and that we're going to need to start looking and spending more time on some of the larger pieces of the puzzle that will get us to where we need to be, which is that people have a safe, decent, healthy place to live here in Long Beach and people are paying. I can go and work in the apartment with that. Com you'll see that people are paying over $2,000 to get a two bedroom apartment here in Long Beach. And that that's more than the mortgage on a half million dollar home. So, again, renters in your city are struggling. They are working class folks who are renters in this community. And so, again, from housing, why which is effective? This is fantastic that we

're doing this. I do think Ms.. Mongeau creates and brings a good point that in the future, perhaps we do need to look at increasing the lot size, but it would seem to be counterintuitive to make the large size larger. And then go back to how do you tell the people that you are going to close down your property? You already built it. So it seems like it would be more prudent to start at the smaller size. And if all goes well, then we consider an increase in that size. But I do think it's a good point and more people may have an opportunity to take advantage of that in the future. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker for. Hi. My name is. My name is Trevor Griffey. I am a Belmont Heights resident. I teach at Long Beach City College as an adjunct instructor in history and labor studies. The only reason I'm able to afford living in Belmont Heights is because zoning was higher in the nineties. And someone on these long, narrow lots that we have in some of our neighborhoods built a house that's basically double the size of mine and then rented out the house that I'm in. And I'm very aware of the fact that zoning was constrained in the late nineties precisely to prevent people like me from living in the neighborhood that I do. So when I see my neighbors put up signs that say increased density equals crime and parking, I'm offended. And I also find it to be a kind of scare mongering that is really unfortunate and actually tends to frame community as not including renters. And so I'm glad that the council is doing something to help renters. I think it's unfortunate that the balance of power is such that you still have you're still putting constraints on ADU use when I actually don't see the need to do so at all. And I also want to talk about this question of local control really briefly understand that you all don't like that the state alleged bypassed you on on this legislation. But at the same time, there is a housing law that you could enforce more, and that is the prohibition on short term rentals that Councilmember Pierce's office has brought up. There are hundreds of units that are currently openly, illegally flouting land use law and being rented on Airbnb that are being taken out of the market for actual Long Beach residents. And your action to try to restrict adus while doing nothing about these short term rentals, I think suggests poor priorities. Thank you. Thank you

y that? To commit the council. Mr. Mayor, members of the City Council, we've received eight proposals on an RFP and are going through the interview process and we'll be bringing a contract to council in January. Okay. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. I guess my name is Ramon. I'm from District five. My stuff is on record. I didn't hear the beginning part, but I don't have a problem with the ads. I think they're cool. Everybody should have one. No, I'm just joking. I support him. I do like the owner occupied thing. I think he's as critical of what we're doing. I like a lot of the questions that Stacey Mungo is asking as far as the maximum footage. I would I would like to I appreciate the comments of Linda, what she has gone through and all the work that she's done. And I can tell you that I have friends that are in Newport Beach and they're also on the city council, at least two of them. And they have told me that that the the maximum square footage of the accessory dwelling unit is 600. They have a density that's far less than ours. So I would I would recommend having a density. I mean, dropping it to 600 feet. That would be that would be really my my only major my most major change to what you're doing just to match with what is happening with the other cities. Because I don't think that's that's happening here. We're like the second most densest region in the country besides New York City. Besides that, I can say that I have a little bit mixed idea. I know that there's a certain kind of for replacement parking. There's another bill that I didn't see mentioned here. It's it's a I think it's SB whether it's six nine. Right. And I think that also says replacement parking may be a little bit ignorant on that, but it didn't that one did not specify the. You know, I think you're allowed to four for four that you allowed to use the driveways in which you have to do some kind of replacement for that. I could be wrong, but I think SB 1069 is that law that we need to look at square footage for the houses? I don't know about that. There's a certain law that you can't go beyond the threshold. And we need to make sure that we're in that that range in which we're there. We just need to do a study and make sure that everything's correct in that. But that's about it. You have a great day. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Evening. My name's Phil Harris. I'm out. Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. I've been a homeowner since 1996. The same house my house is in. Our three has our three, but it's 6000 square feet. Now, this the estate law seems to approach this as they're trying to assist homeowners in developing their property a little bit, taking off the reins of local government, squeezing them into a position where they can't develop their property. So when I hear things like running this up to 7500 square feet and I have a 6000 foot piece of property with one residence on it, and I potentially cannot make an accessory dwelling even one more three.

So I have an R three property which was at the time approved by the city and the planning. But the regulations requirements of local governments has made is making it impossible for me to do anything with my property at all. And I think that there's something initially wrong with that. If I buy a piece of property and it's our three year as the new commission from 21 years ago, it shouldn't be able to prevent me from using it as some version of an R three, and all I want to do is make it as an accessory dwelling. I think the state law says 1200 square feet. I don't know why I have an AR three and they're trying to squeeze me down to 800 square feet. I have plenty of space on my property to do this. So my questions are, what is the purpose of denying what the state law has presented for you to do and how does that assist people already bought a property and a paying for 21 years not to be able to use it as an hour three. Thank you, sir. Speaker, please. Robert Pete representing. Jesus and the truth, because there's not a. Lot of truth around here when it comes. To this. I mean, I see. I see, you know, you stand up there. You look dignified and everything. But everything you do. Is communist. I mean, the guy is talking about control. He doesn't need people constantly trying to control his get down. Now, America, once again way. Why? Every time I'm talking, you always got to get to talking to somebody. Missed rule. You always do that. Always be respect for you. Me be respectful. You be respectful to me. She's asking the question. Say, Oh, yeah. Where you telling man I'm talking to you? Yeah, I'm going to know anyway. Anyway, listen, all this stuff, no direct control. No. To just cause eviction, all this communism and that. A guy who's talking. George Butler, where do you go? We crawl back in this hole. He's. Yeah, yeah, yeah. I want everybody here. No, George Butler is a straight out communist bum. So going this that you can address. Okay, I'm telling you, Josh Butler is a communist bum, and I want you to tell all the people, okay, I'm around that chump everywhere he goes, because in a big city nose meeting, he lied to all the people and he lied to them and told them this was the highest. He said this is the highest property on the coast around the nation. And then even one of the Democrats that was a Democrat meeting said, no, he's a big liar. Anyway. So that being said, I'm getting back to this now. No, on just cause eviction. We don't need anymore browns that we can't get rid of. No on rent control. Rent control is communism, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness means a man could buy his property and he's a master of his property. You trying to be the master man? You ain't Miles Satan or Fidel Castro. And we ain't gonna let that happen. So now the word control no. To just cause eviction. And I don't listen to bums like Josh. Brother, he's a bum. Sir, can you please stick to the issue? And this is not just. But there's a bomb room. Josh blew out of town and works. I have people funding him from around here. We're going to run Josh Bell this butt out housing Long Beach is a fraud. Josh Butler is a bum. Oh, just to add, shame on you. I'm okay. And let me tell you, at 80, Josh is a bum. Okay? Okay, sir. Andy, thank you very much. That's last answer. One more time. Josh is a bum, everybody. Josh Bell is a thank you, sir. No, we got to run him out. All right. Thank you so very much. Next speaker, please. You got to keep rolling. I got a couple more seconds. I'm going away, sir. Thank you very much. I got ten more seconds. Josh Boehner's a bum. Come on, Josh Bell. The run was communist, but out of town, you know you're not talking about that. It doesn't matter. Only go once your time is up. Yes, sir. Thank you. Time's up on Josh. Thank you, sir. So, just as a reminder to the to the public, I think I want to continue to say this, that whether we agree or disagree with what's being said, people have a right to their First Amendment to say what they want to say. And so we will continue to use that rule. And I would hope that people would use some decency and stick to the issue and be respectful in the process as well. Mr. Good, your next Speaker, very good to address on file in terms of the Granny Flats or small units. One of the things you consider and I'll bring you back the pictures next week, four further so people can see them if they did not see them in the L.A. Times and local papers. It's one of the concepts that I think would work very well in down in the Marine Stadium next to, as I pointed out before, 818 as a housing unit for veterans. I've scoped it out and we can put about six. Good. Eight units there. And when I'm talking about the grass to the north of of eight and immediately to the north of eight in which is not used, except once in a while people will be flying drones. There's still a sidewalk there, there's still public access. And I encourage the city to take a look and at those designs because they will be perfect in areas throughout the city where people need housing. A granny flat. And I've used the word granny flat. A one unit house easily constructed and would have a bathroom. And it's about twice the size of an average dorm in a university and so forth. But again, I would urge the city to pull out those diagrams and take a look at them and scope them out, because that could be a solution to some of our housing issues and so forth. Obviously, if you've got a kids, that's not going to work, but for particularly veterans or people that have a limited areas in which they travel and so forth, that would be great. Thanks. Thank you. And our last speaker speaking, this is closed. Go ahead, sir. I just really quickly have a question about the the restrictions that they have, the minimum lot size and restrictions overall with like the housing regulations, are they based purely on like safety and inspection? Like I understand code plays a big part in it and like it's a

it's a discovery process to find out the safety elements of building adding, adding on to a property. But is there a lot size based on a safety assessment from the fire inspector or is it just based on numbers from other cities that we've gathered or like arbitrary number? That's that's just awesome. Thank you, sir. Okay. I'm in a close public comment. Just a couple. Just to quickly clarify from staff, I know there was a some questions from the audience, particularly about how the council decided on these certain lot sizes and these designations. And that came out of a variety of meetings. I was at the council, had some staff recommendations as well as the state regulations that came as well. And I'm not sure if you have anything else to quickly add to what the gentleman just said. I couldn't clearly here, but it sounds like the last gentleman was talking about the issues of safety and just to respond to the issue of safety. Any proposal for an accessory dwelling unit is reviewed by the Building and Safety Department as well as the fire department, and it is required to comply with all building code requirements as well as access by fire and emergency services. And regarding how the the original proposals came up, I think we started from the state allowed unit size of 1200, but we did a very thorough review of the city's lot sizes and property sizes to make sure that the proposal that we brought forward for the Council to consider we had a good handle on the potential development opportunity that existed in the community and we arrived at the proposal for 1000. But after feedback from the community at the Planning Commission public hearing, they actually reduced the, the, the standard to the 1000 and the council again hearing from the public further reduce that to the 800. So that's a little bit of the background in terms of how we got to the the current 800 proposal. Okay. Well, thank you very much. But public comment is closed.

Councilwoman Price. I just want to add, I appreciate Mayor, you clarifying that, because I think from the public comment, there was. Just still. A little bit of confusion and there was a member of the public who spoke about kind of having a restriction if there are lot size was a was a specific size. And I want to say I hear you on that. And that's why this entire process has been a bit of a balance for us. And that's why I don't think it would be beneficial to the homeowners in our city if we were able to restrict the rights to build a granny flat on their property based on their lot size. Unlike some other cities, the demographics of our city are such that most of the lot sizes that are above 7008 thousand range are in a concentrated in one or two districts, if that. And so that would limit many of the people in the city from being able to actually build a granny flat. And so we certainly we have to be very cognizant of the density concerns that our residents have, because certainly those do create parking impacts prim arily and noise impacts and other impacts. But at the same time, what we don't want to create is a situation where there's inequality based on. The district you live in as to whether you're able to fully develop your property to the extent that someone with a larger lot size would be able to. So we're mindful of that. And I just wanted to clarify because that the resident who spoke was under the impression that the proposal required 7400 square feet be the minimum size. And that's not the that was a friendly amendment. But the proposal that's on the floor is not for that. It's for 50, 200 square feet. So thank you. Thank you very much, Councilman Mongo. Thank you. While I would prefer to go with the 7400 square foot lot size to ensure that we are gradually taking steps into this, I see that the bigger protection is having some standards in place instead of not having some standards in place and so on. My preference would be to go with the 7400. I will be supporting this at 54, I'm sorry, 5200 because not passing something tonight would actually be more detrimental to the communities. And so with that, I look forward to seeing how the vote. With that membership is in motion in a second. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you. That approves staff recommendation on that item. And now we have our final hearing hearing at a number two. Item two is a report from financial management. Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the hearing and grant an entertainment permit with conditions on the application of Eagle 562 2020 East Artesia Boulevard for Entertainment with Dancing District nine. We have a motion in a second and may go back to the staff report, please. I believe it also. Is there an oath for this? There is an oath. What is required? Okay. So let's do the oath, please. You and each of you do solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the court now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God. Mr. MODICA Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Again, the staff report for. This item will be given by Sandy Tim Palmer, our purchasing and business services manager. Good evening, Honorable Mayor and members of the City Council tonight you have before you before you an application for entertainment with dancing for Eagle five six to LLC doing business as Eagle 562. Located at 2020 East Artesia Boulevard, operating as a bar, tavern, lounge and Council District nine. All of the necessary departments have reviewed the application and have provided their recommended conditions as contained in the hearing packet, as well as the police department stand ready to answer any questions council may have. And that concludes staff's report. Thank you very much. They actually in any public comment on this when we go to vice mayor. Thank you, Shirley. These are have two public comments. I'm closing the speakers list after this. Thank you, Mr. Sir. Thank you. Con gratulations. District nine. What? What? A lot of positive. There are so many talented people in that district, and I. I was. I was waiting to hear a business that would step in and have this sort of venue become part of the artist culture of that district. I believe nothing but good is coming from the

advancement. And for those for those children whose minds are not smoked out, we're going to see so much creativity coming out of this. Again, for those minds that are saved. Parents do your work. Nothing but good is going to come from a creative mind and being able to have a venue to go in your neighborhood and and express your creativity, I'm not sure what type of entertainment, and I'd like to hear more of that, but I'm glad to hear that this is a this is coming to that district. Thank you very much. Thank you. And the last public comment, please come forward. Hello. My name is Sergio Maldonado. I'm the manager from the apartment building located about 50 feet from the lounge. The address is 6530 Cherry Avenue. Most of the tenants didn't want to come because they didn't want to get involved in all this legal. They call it legal issues, but obviously it's not. It's just it's a hearing. The for the past few months, we've been having a lot of problems with this lounge. I have called the cops. I, I call the city and seem like nobody wants to do anything about it, because so far, it's. It's legal. But I call the cops because they play music till two in the morning. A lot of us go to work next day. Maybe I wake up at 530 to be at work at 630. And so far, nobody seems to care. And now they're going to have live entertainment. All the dancers in the past three months. It seems like now and then they do have this type of event. We drive by the alley. There's an alley next to the business. And it's the. Let's look at it behind our building. We're seeing dancers weigh nothing but just some really tight shorts, male dancers. My daughter started asking, what are these people doing? I mean, we we were the managers of the building. So we we sweep and clean the back of the building and we find a lot of use condoms. I don't know about you, but if my kids walk in the back and see all these things, I don't I don't know. What's your reaction to what would you tell them? What are they for? Especially for their use and just laying there on the floor. I have pictures of parking cars, parking all the way in the alley, making it hard for us to park in the garages. The the lounge itself. I don't think it's big enough to maintain a lot of people. I don't know how big exactly it is, but it is it's been horrible these few months since the new owners took over. There was a hearing for ownership change. Atari is supposed to have won, but didn't. So if you can please do something about it, myself and the rest of the tenants and people that live close by this lounge. We appreciate it. Thank you. Thank you, sir, very much. We've closed the public comment so we have a mot ion in the second Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Let me walk, folks, through a little bit of the history on Artesia Boulevard and our strategy to sort of improve it. It's pretty common knowledge that Artesia Boulevard has quite a few history of quite a few shady dove bars. And over the last few years we've been doing the hard work of figuring out how to improve the conditions of these bars, to make them have less of an impact or be less of a nuisance on neighborhoods. Now, the most important thing that we can do is bring in property owners who have a vision for the future and on board with the larger vision for the corridor. An example is the last strip club in Long Beach was on Artesia Boulevard. Entertainment, live entertainment, dancing, you know, that sort of thing. And we were able to work with that property owner to surrender voluntarily, surrender that license for entertainment and convert it to a restaurant. And there was a conversation in partnership that helped us achieve that outcome. Now, some of the property owners have not been so willing to come and come forth. The reason I want to recognize this specific project, this this specific deal is that the property owner came to the city in advance and talked about that vision and agreed to a number of conditions that will outline. And and I have confidence that in the approach that they've that they've attended this, we've taken one potentially terrible dove bar off the table and created a brought in a leader for the corridor that can help us to get some of the other guys in line, because it's not as simple as people may think that we can just point at a dove bar and say, hey, you know, stop being a nuisance on the neighborhood. You have to have some level of partnership with the owner unless it or else it leads you down a very arduous administrative path. So. Just a couple of things and one question. So there's a number of there's a number of key conditions in here, but one that's really key and I would hope that we can walk through are the tiered conditions, these tiered conditions sort of outline a progressive like progressive discipline. It outlines a process to hold the whole folks accountable on this license. Should folks step outside of the conditions that we that we set out on? So necessity manager, whoever else can answer. How can you walk us through what that tier condition process looks like? Yes, the way that the tiers work is that for if there are problems with the business operation and their complaints that are received by the police department. If three or more. Noise complaints come in and are found to have been as a result of the activities happening at this establishment, the hours of activities allowed for entertainment will

to ensure that if there are any problems with operations, that we are able to change the operating conditions built into this agreement. And that was something that was discussed between the police department and the business operator to ensure that they understood and were willing to comply with that requirement. Thank you. So what I'll say is this particular establishment on three sides is surrounded by commercial and industrial space. If this had been anywhere in one of the residential neighborhoods, my position would be very different. But this for the most part, is an industrial space. There's some apartments sort of maybe a block down. And I want to make sure that my staff meets the gentleman who came here and talks to some of those concerns and make sure he has a good relationship with the property owner. I'm seeing some nods from the property owner. He's willing to sit down and talk with this because it's literally one of one group of residents that I want you to sit down and build a good, productive relationship with. But aside from that, I've gotten sort of the property owners indicated the willingness to work with the community. And so for that, I support moving forward with Eagle 562 on Artesia Boulevard. So thank you. And that's my motion. I encourage the city council to support it. Thank you, Councilman Gonzales. Yes, I just say I support this as well as Vice Mayor Richardson had mentioned. I know this is not the first turn or the first location for this property. Owner has other incredible establishments and not only that, but is willing to come to the table and work with many of us. So for that reason, I'll be supporting this and I look forward to seeing more happen on Artesia Boulevard. Congrats. They kick us over? Yes. I also wanted to just lend my support. You have two of your other locations in my district and are in on a business corridor with residents behind you. And I think that you've done a fantastic job at both of those locations. And so I want to applaud you for going and opening somewhere new and stretching your legs a little bit. And I want to applaud the vice mayor for putting in some implementation and a tiered approach that I think us on council often are trying to figure out those conditional use permits and how we do that in a way that's respectful of the businesses and of the residents. So congratulations on the new endeavor and congratulations to the ninth District. Great. Thank you. With that, we will move to a vote to approve the the conditions. And again, I want to thank the the property owner and the team. They have some already great establishments in Long Beach and I am certain that will continue to please cast your votes. I. Councilmember Andrews. Yeah. Motion carries. The eagle has landed. Thank you. Thank you. Great. We will. That concludes our hearings. So we will move on now to the regular agenda. Just give me 1/2. Motion carries. Thank you. Number 17, please. Report from financial management. Recom mendation to receive and file report on an updated preliminary budget projection, including solutions to balancing the fiscal year 2019 budget shortfall citywide. Thank you, Mr. West. Mr. Vice Mayor, council members. This is a report that was presented earlier in the day to the. Budget Oversight Committee. So the Budget Oversight Committee has weighed in on this. I'm sure they'll have comments regarding the the report you're going to see. This is the identical report they saw earlier at 330. So I'm going to turn this over to our finance director, John GROSS, and our interim budget manager, Grace Yoon. And this is a really early look. You see. At the fiscal year 19 budget. So we wanted to jump ahead on this and deal with a projected shortfall that we chatted about in the past. So, John and Grace, thank you, Mr. West, very much. And I am very pleased with the with Lia Eriksen off on other duties to have Grace Yoon as the interim budget manager and the staff have done a tremendous job getting ready for this. This time at at a December 19th, 2017, city council study session, the Budget Office provided then a preliminary projection for FY 19. This is an update to that preliminary projection, and this update provides a solution to the preliminary budget outlook shortfall. The updated projection shows a balanced fy19 budget when strong balancing actions are taken. The primary causes of the shortfall that we're seeing are pension costs and slow revenue growth. The updated preliminary projection adds $1.8 million of new revenue and $2.7 million in additional cost. The Budget Office has also identified 11.3 million in additional budget balancing actions if the preliminary projection holds after further upcoming updates and if the City Council approves the balancing actions, we should have a balanced budget. This is great news, but there are some caveats I wanted to mention if there are unusual cost increases for F9 90, for F9 19, that's next year. Departments will need to absorb them and there may be impacts from that. At this point, we also do not expect any surplus or new funds for one time purposes. The city is independently recognized as having very good financial management and we are always improving efficiency. But those good aspects cannot overcome the major impacts from pension costs and slow revenue growth. Budget issues are likely to continue into the future. Most importantly, the projection does not include the impact of litigation. That impact will be discussed later in the presentation. In summary, based on the preliminary projection, we have the very good news that we believe we can achieve a balanced budget. Balancing actions and their dollar size are key factors in addressing the preliminary shortfall projection. It is projected that we will require 11.3 million new net new balancing actions to provide a stretch structurally balanced budget. And the Budget Office has tentatively identified preliminary balancing actions that will do just th at. We believe there is about $4 million and balancing actions available from fee and fine increases and parking revenues. Ambulance fees are one key area for potential revenue for many people. These fees are often covered by some type of insurance. The current fees are below cost and below the current L.A. County rates, parking fines or another key revenue source. The current fines are below those in Los Angeles, and the city does not charge for the separate fees that the state collects. The Budget Office will also look at other fees that are not recovering costs and other fines for potential increases. We are also suggesting that an initial estimate of $900,000 may be available from transient occupancy taxes on short term rental of homes and apartments done through services such as Airbnb. This is a national issue and we are suggesting that action could be taken by city council in the near term to begin to collect that money. We are also suggesting using $3.1 million in new measure revenue and $3.9 million in a reallocation to public safety of Measure A. We have recently received information to allow us to better project the new measure A revenue. There is now strong indication that measure a revenue is better than we originally projected. In looking at that and proposing that reallocation. We want to point out that there is no adverse impact on the city's $150 million infrastructure program. Finally, an estimated 2.9 million in other balancing actions is needed to balance the budget based on preliminary based on the preliminary projection. We believe that we can find that amount through vacancies, savings, new funding sources, additional efficiencies and other areas of cost reduction. Included in this would be finding offsets for unfunded cost increases that departments incur. Some of the additional balancing actions could have an impact on services, but we would strive to keep them to a minimum. There is a total of 14.8 billion and suggested balancing actions. 3.5 million of those were already assumed in the original budget. So there needs to be an additional 11.3 million and balance to balance the updated preliminary projection. And we have identified that $11.3 million to achieve a preliminarily balanced budget. The actual budget shortfall and the needed balancing actions may be different from the amount shown in the preliminary projection. It is early in the year and as the year progresses and more information becomes available, there is potential for significant variance to the preliminary projection. For example, a 1% variance and overall revenues could mean 4 to $5 million. Updated projections may require less or more budget balancing actions, and if more budget balancing actions are needed and are not available, then department reductions may be necessary. We expect a major projection update to be released sometime in March and then a final three year projection update will be released with the proposed budget in July. In summary, the 2019 budget is balanced based on the preliminary projection and the 11.3 million in balancing actions. Unfortunately, the preliminary budget that I have described does not take into account the impact of litigation. Litigation has a major budget impact. Litigation will result in service reductions due to a loss of long time revenues. There are two lawsuits that are issues. The recently settled litigation concerning the water utility adds another $8.3 million to the budget shortfall. In addition, depending on whether the city wins or loses some gas utility litigation, it could add another $10 million to the shortfall. These kinds of budget impacts will result in substantial reductions to department budgets and the associated services. The charter amendment, currently being considered by City Council for Inclusion on the ballot, could prevent the service reductions due to the two lawsuits with no historical cost increases. Two Fy19 budget options will be prepared because of the uncertainty with regard to the charter amendment. It cannot be assumed that the charter amendment would put on the ballot or that if it is put on the ballot that it will be has. As a result. The 1419 budget process that is now underway includes the development of two budget options. One option is with no impact from litigation. The other assumes an $8.3 million additional shortfall as a result of the water litigation settlement. Settlement of the gas litigation is expected to be about two years away. So the budget does not include that potential impact. Whether the litigation will impact the budget will be known one way or the other before the proposed budget is completed. As soon as that is known, the appropriate option will become the basis of the FY19 proposed budget. As the city manager develops the proposed budget, the budget balancing approach will focus on maintaining services and other key goals. We will emphasize the most important and core services. We will focus on maintaining the previously restored public safety services. We will focus on ensuring a strong public safety continuum. We will focus on providing a balanced and broad range of services. And we will focus on maintaining services that provide financial, technological and H.R. controls and capabilities, and will focus, of course, on strong economic development, strong financial management, and on reducing costs and increasing revenues. We will retain filled positions wherever feasible. The FY19 budget provides numerous opportunities for city council and community input. Due to the complexities of this year's budget, we are kicking off the formal process a month early with this presentation that occurred a few hours ago to the BRC and the City Council. An updated projection will be provided in a memo in March and a midyear update on FY 18 savings will be provided in May. Then, in accordance with the City Charter, the proposed budget will go to the Mayor in July and the Council in August, and there will be a series of community budget meetings with the BRC and City Council and hearings on the budget. Adoption is adoption and the budget is expected to be either on September 4th or September 11th. And that concludes my presentation and I'm available for questions. Thank you very much. That was a great presentation. I want to first turn this over to Councilman Mongo. I'll make some comments at the end. Thank you. I want to thank the city staff for their hard work in both tightening up the budget and our economic development and department for helping with our economic initiatives that have made it possible for additional revenues to come in. I know that since the 3:00 meeting today, when we first announced that this would be possible, we've already received some fake news tweets related to people saying that the council's overspending and how could we have a deficit? I think that they're completely misunderstanding. We. In the future, see that expenses are growing and revenues were outpacing them. And so with the partnership of my colleagues, we looked to the future and said. Winter is coming. Let's tighten up our belts now. Let's put forward the initiatives necessary to grow our business corridors, to invest in our opportunities with our revenue related to capturing sales tax leakage, where Long Beach residents were purchasing items in other cities. And now we're reinvesting in encouraging them to purchase those same things in Long Beach so that $0.02 of that $0.10 comes back to the city of Long Beach instead of a neighboring city. And because of this forward thinking city staff and the support of my colleagues, we are ahead of schedule like we have never been before in terms of ensuring that we do not go into a budget process planning for a deficit. And so for that, I just want to make sure that the messaging is accurate and clear. We haven't spent into a deficit. We were projecting. And then with the courage to say, we know what's coming, let's tighten our belts today. Let's invest today. And let's be sure that our future is bright and that the things that the residents care about our public safety, our infrastructure, our afterschool programs are safe. Those programs are key to keeping a community vital. And this budget and these balancing strategies ensure that the city and the residents are kept whole. And for that, I am so thankful for everyone's support and guidance. I am really proud to serve on this council, and I'm really proud to serve with two amazing budget oversight committee members who, for the first time in years, our committee looked at financial policies and made the tough decisions to look ahead to the future and find resources and opportunity. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And thank you. Chair Mongeau Budget Oversight Committee Chair Mongeau. We had a conversation months ago and we literally entitled it our op ed Winters coming or something like that? And I think it's smart that, you know now, we asked city staff to take a look at this. And, you know, I just want to say the final financial management staff, this is the kind of kind of creativity we were asking for. I have to say, bring in two proposals to bring bringing to budget options forward. It's interesting. I wonder what the response of the public from the public will be. But I think it's smart to educate people on the potential risk of, you know, the potential impact of litigation, because the reality is we deal with these lawsuits all the time, and many folks don't know sort of the impact of the decisions that we have to make here. It's smart that we're moving it moving forward with a proposal to and, you know, to maintain what we restored. I think it would be unfair to the public if we presented a budget that takes out of service the things that we just placed into service like Rescue 12, like Engine eight, like the South Division. And a lot of times it takes time to ramp up and really adjust our systems. So we have to make sure that we are putting our best foot forward to protect those services. I think the part about strong, strong, focused focus on strong economic development, I just want to underscore that that should be all across our city. So projects that are happening in all parts of our city, we should do we think, you know what I'm talking about time. We should make sure that we're doing what we can to move those projects along in all parts of our city, those economic development projects. So again, I support this direction. Again, the angel is in the details. I do want to better understand what it looks like, sort of the details of what these savings look like. But I love the direction that we're trying our best to sort of protect and preserve the quality services that our city provides. So, so thank you. And I'll be I'll be supportive of this. Thank you. Thank you. I definitely want to applaud the BBC and the staff for all the work that they've done on this. I know that, you know, at the end of last budget cycle, it was a lot of conversation. Yes. Like Winter's coming and that we are going to be dealing with a massive deficit. And so I also want to make it clear for some of my constituents that this is, in fact, a proposal from city staff, a projection of where the work is. So I just have a couple of clarifying questions for the revenue from short term rentals. Where did we get that number from? That number was based on very preliminary information, very preliminary based on Airbnb and then expanding it to potential other similar type firms. A lot of work needs to be done to confirm that, and we certainly recognize that council has not taken action on this. Great. And could somebody update us on just the RFP process and where we are with the short term rental? Yes, Councilmember. We have closed the RFP process. We're very close to issuing an award and we would be able to get started pretty soon. So we expect a memo out next week that we can kind of outline wh ere we are in that process. So we issued the RFP in October. We're just about done now, which is about four months. And then we're targeting for summer to be able to do the work, the outreach, and come back by summer, which would line up with this budget process. Great. Thank you. And one of the clarifying reasons I asked is because I know in the item that we had also asked through that RFP process for the consultant to explore ways to direct some funds to affordable housing opportunities, considering the balance and the relationship in between short term rental. So I just want to be clear with that as we move forward with the process that there are lots of different ways to get revenue from short term rentals, whether it's fee based or fines or anything like that. But just that that is an ambiguous number that we still have a lot of work to do. So I just wanted to recognize that. I also wanted to just say how much I appreciate the fact that we're looking across the board economic development, obviously not only in downtown but in the third District and North Long Beach is really critical. Adding those housing units is also super critical. And I look forward to having a community process where we talk about how we have equity in services throughout the city where everybody can be involved in this. So I'm very happy that this is coming forward earlier than planned. I appreciate it. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Price. Thank you. I already asked most of my questions during the BFC. Just as a summary for my colleagues, I did clarify that the reference to the term litigation in the presentation is referencing specific litigation, not litigation in general. So we are and are not anticipating these numbers to change dramatically just because of litigation in general, but but rather more specific litigation. So that was one of the topics I discussed, but I did not talk about short term rentals and I'm glad Councilmember Pearce raised it just in case any of my residents, especially from Naples in the peninsula, are watching. Short term rentals are prohibited in the city of Long Beach. And I understand that. And we're not by any stretch of the imagination changing the policy by discussing this. However, and I just want to clarify, if we do take some action in terms of short term rentals, it's it's right now it's very unclear what that action would look like. We may choose to take action where we allow them in some parts of the city, disallow, allow them and others based on parking impacts, density, all of that. So so hopefully we're not I mean, we understand that we have a long way to go. We're talking about what the fees and taxation rates will be. And in my district, I'm having the communication about whether or not we're even going to allow this. So I just want to make sure that the conversation is very clear because as Jack, my chief of staff, will tell you, we just had a very heated community meeting with multiple petitions going on throughout t he district for the city to enforce the ban. So to put it on here as a revenue source, I think might send the wrong message to some residents who are still hoping that we enforce the ban. So I'm very much looking forward to having that discussion and seeing what options are available. And hopefully our consultant will share with us what some of the best practices that have been utilized by other cities are that might alleviate some of the concerns in our neighborhoods. And so we'll cross that bridge when we get to it. So again, as I stated earlier, I want to thank our staff for putting this presentation together. I think it was really well done and I look forward to the update in March. Thank you. And if I can add a clarification, Mr. Mayor. Yes, please. So on the short term rentals. That's absolutely correct. We're actually approaching this little differently than some other cities. Some other cities have basically accepted the money and already programmed it and spent it before they've allowed it to be legal. So we didn't feel that in our case that that was appropriate. We are here kind of projecting and looking to the future and saying if we were to allow it in some level, it might generate this amount of money. And you heard the finance director say that it's very speculative of what that actual number is, but we're using that 900,000. But we have not accepted it. We are not planning on it's not in the budget yet, but it's part of our future projections. So we wanted to keep that process pure so we can discuss all of those options and come before you with a recommendation before we count on any money in our budget like some other cities have done. Thank you, Councilmember Pearce. So sorry I forgot to ask my other question. I think I asked this last time that we discussed the budget and in regards to the litigation, but just to be clear that this is only referencing the litigation on the water and gas. That is correct. So is there a line item where we estimate potential litigation for, say, PD? How do we assess that, that. We used a historical practice on that we meet with the city attorney periodically, we review the cases, we look at historical practice, and that has actually served us fairly well. If there is a deviation in any particular year, we generally can fund it over a period of time. So we have not had a big problem with funding that. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. Since we're talking about some of the fines and fees and I know parking tickets was a component of the discussion for the $4 million, I was put on notice recently that we still have not had the RV ban come to the Coastal Commission. It's going to be another seven months. So perhaps we need to discuss options of implementing it outside of the coastal area, especially if we're considering revenues related to parking fines. So if parking fines and fees for individuals, parking illegal trucks and trailers and ARVs are to be considered, maybe that would be something that needs to come back to the council sooner rather than later if we're thinking about it being a component of revenue for next year. So that would be my comment. Thank you. Thank you. Seeing that is all the council comment, I want to make a couple of comments and then we'll go for any public comment. So I just want to first just add to staff. I know you guys worked really hard on getting us to this point, and I do think that what is important is that I essentially what we did this year and I do want to thank the BFC and other members of the council. We've had these discussions including I know a motion by I think it was Councilman Mango invited me. Richardson I think towards the end of last year in the budget cycle that we're essentially solving and eliminating the deficit before we even start the budget process and essentially doing it early. And so I think that's really smart. I think it is it's important that we're kind of taking these kind of budget budget balancing measures early. A lot of people don't realize that we we balance our budget every single year. And so sometimes when people hear the word deficit, they don't realize that the second that we think we're going to have a deficit, we eliminate it. And when we pass our budget and I think that's something that's important that we do year after year. And so I'm really glad that with these balancing actions that essentially we eliminate the shortfall, with the exception, of course, of some of that possible legal liability that we have because of that of the utility lawsuits. But if we take these budget balancing actions and the council adopts this as a as our plan, we just we repeat one more time what that is what that leaves our actual deficit number at zero. Well, zero, but nodding, but not including. The little but the. Litigation. Yeah, the litigation would add 8.3. Right. But this would, this would separate the litigation. This would balance the budget and leave our deficit at zero. Is that correct? That is correct. Okay, great. And then also just to just reconfirm as well, I do appreciate Mr. Modica, I know there's a lot of conversation about short term rentals. I'm really glad that we were finally out there and actually getting the work done because I think there's a lot of interest from the council and all of us to get that work done, including from not just members in the community that are seeing some of the some of these homes and apartments being used for nothing, but essentially the small hotels, but also from the short term rental community. Right. They also want us to pass a policy and they also want to be regulated. And so I think that the I'm glad that you guys selected a conservative number on that. I mean, obviously, the it's it's a small piece of kind of the larger revenue pie, which I think is smart. But I would encourage is the sooner that we have some sort of policy that kind of dictates the future, even even cities that have well, in most most citie s have now or either have or are implementing, as you know, the short term rental policies. But even cities that have implemented these and certain begun collecting taxes have seen pretty substantial investments back into their funds because of these short term rental taxes. And so the fact that we're allowing these well, you know, we're not officially allowing in fact, these are being operated with no sort of direct benefit back to the city is problematic. And every day that we don't have a policy and collect that actual support, I think we're just losing revenue that could be invested back into our neighborhoods. So the sooner we do that, I think the better. I think everyone would like to see that done. And then and then with that, I'm I'm happy to know I was not aware that the measure is coming in larger than we originally initially thought. Is that correct? So about 3.9 million more. That is. That is correct. About 3.1 million we're projecting for 8 to 18 at this point. First for the structural side. Yeah. Well double that for whatever little. Yes. So the totals double that, huh. Yes. So measure is coming actually in about 6 million. More than expected. Yeah. It's about we think it's about 12% up. We're still looking at it, but those are what the preliminary numbers say. So I love how you guys gave us those. Conservative numbers, which was good. I appreciate that. Actually, 12% is not insignificant. I mean, that is that's a good amount of money. It's very good. Yeah. So. So that is. So I'm so I'm really happy. Yeah. Yeah, I'm really happy to see that measure is coming in more than expected. And again, I'm thankful to to the voters that put their trust in us to do that. So that's really, really great news. I was not aware of that. So happy to hear that. Any public comment on this? Yes. Please come forward. Join the other public comment. This will be our only speaker then and the closing public comment. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Council members is the first time I'm actually speaking at council and I'm quite nervous. I don't do well in these settings, so bear with me. My name is Amal, weaker than us. I wear many hats. I'm a father, a mentor, a resident of the ninth district, a voter, and a lead organizer with My Girls in Action, a grassroots based organization here in Long Beach working to empower Southeast Asian young women. For the past 20 years, I am here to speak in support of preserving and increasing funding in the city budget towards positive youth development programs and services such as our parks, libraries and youth programs and other park programing. As a champion and ally to Long Beach youth, I am here to ensure that young people are uplifted as a priority of this Council when considering where to make cuts in the city budget. Long Beach youth and children make up over a quarter of the population and are most in our most vulnerable population. Cuts to youth programing and services will hurt. Already, the city of Long Beach spends less than 5% of the overall budget on positive youth development programs. As a parent and youth organizer, I'm keenly aware that many of the programs available through the city dollars aren't accessible to children in youth and low income communities of color. As a report on Park Equity suggest, the report, which was supported by Councilwoman Nina Gonzalez and many others on this council, only 2020 7% of park programing hours during spring were offered to children and youth. The number of the number of hours for young people increased over the summer, but do not increase in low income communities of color and the number of teen hours actually decrease. There have been great efforts to ensure that Long Beach is a city that attracts visitors and residents alike in the downtown and the beachfront areas. However, communities are lacking safe spaces for young people to access positive youth development programs, to keep young people engaged and surrounded around mentors, intervention and prevention workers and people, and and also just programs that help young people find their voice and purpose. Carmen Girls in Action. Our membership base and community partners are motivated to partner with this Council to ensure that we are creating effective strategies to invest in youth and make them our top priority. The future is bright. When we invest in youth, afterschool programs do make our communities thrive, but only when investment is equitably spent across communities. Lastly, I urge this Council to not play a balancing act with the future of Long Beach children in youth. Thank you. And by the way, I sent many requests to many of your offices for a for a sit down and have not quite heard back from me. So I look forward to a reply soon. Thank you. Thank you, sir. See no other public comments.

There's a motion and a second on the floor to approve this plan by our management team. So please cast your votes. Motion carries. Well. Great. Thank you. And I want to first of all, I want to mean, I think we need to again, just think these guys I mean, you you guys eliminated the deficit early this year. So I appreciate that. So let's give John and John, you did a great job. Thank you. Really. You and your team. I know. Fantastic. And grace. And Grace and everybody. Yes. You guys were awesome. So thank you. Let me I know we have to make an announcement. And Mr. City Attorney. Thank you, Mayor. This evening, earlier this evening in closed session, the council by a vote of 7 to 0, approved the recommendation and authorization to file a petition for review in the California Supreme Court in the matter of the city of Long Beach versus the city of Los Angeles, also known as the CIG litigation. Thank you. Thank you very much. Moving on to the next item, please. Item 18 Report from Financial Management. Recommendation to execute a contract with the Mobile Source Air Pollution Reduction Review Committee to receive and expand Local Government Partnership Program funds for an amount not to exceed 622,220 and receive an final presentation on the city's Green Fleet and MSC Grant citywide. Thank you. The motion at a second is any public comment on this item. Please cast your votes. Think that. All right. Well. This one. Did you want to do a report, Mr. Mayor? Yes. Yes, we do it. We have to do it. Thank you very much. We're going to turn this over to our fleet manager, Dan Bernbach, and his assistant, Jackie Dimmock. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and members of council. There's been a lot of progress with the city's Green Fleet program, and we'd like to bring you up to date. This is an update of a presentation given to the Sustainable City Commission in July. Following this presentation on the Long Beach Fleet, I also have a short presentation on clean transportation from the Mobil Source Reduction Committee, part of the South Coast. Security necessary for our receipt of a $622,000 emission reduction grant. This overview gives a broad idea of the size and scope of the city's fleet. Some of the awards and recognition that we're quite proud of, about 2000 vehicles in the fleet we purchase about 200 new ones a year, go through about 2 million gallons of fuel. And we've won a couple of pretty decent awards in recognition for Green Fleet and overall fleet. As you can see, we're doing pretty well with the use of alternative fuel vehicles in the fleet. Our overall purchase rate is 50% or more of all fuel vehicles, and that's where the city's fleet is being quite varied with many vehicle types that have no fault fuel model available. If you look at what we're purchasing compared to the market availability, 98% of our fleet purchases are alternative fuel. And I'll talk more about the various fuels we use in a later slide. We've been taking an aggressive approach to greening our fleet and to making our operations more sustainable. Our Green Fleet analyst, Jackie Dimmock, sitting beside me, manages the pilot testing of new technology to reduce fuel use and emissions. And she also manages our telematics program, which I'll discuss later. Also, our program to become an accredited sustainable fleet is managed through Napa, the National Association of Fleet Administrators, the nation's largest fleet management association. And it helps guide our future sustainability efforts and policy. And Long Beach recently achieved the highest ranking Tier four among only 34 accredited fleets in the United States. Alternative fuels are generally defined as those fuels derived from sources other than petroleum when used in vehicles. However, natural gas, hydrogen and electricity are also included. You could look at it as anything other than gasoline and conventional diesel fuel. We've been in LPG fleet since 2003 and were pioneers in the field. We converted to renewable LPG in 2015 and LPG and CNG are used primarily in medium duty and heavy duty trucks and we are converting from LPG to CNG in the fleet now. We've been using CNG since the 1970s an d renewable CNG starting in August of last year. Our focus on renewables has paid off as about half the fuel the city uses is renewable. Renewable CNG is produced from biomass sources in landfills and allows us to reduce our reliance on organic petroleum sources. Renewable natural gas is also cheaper due to credits. It's about 32% less expensive. Renewable diesel brings a 50 to 90% greenhouse gas reduction over traditional diesel, plus a 9% NOx reduction. And along with these renewable fuel transitions. We recently opened a new CNG time filled station at the city's Temple Willow Yard. We open the city fleets first time field station last May. It serves up to 100 heavy duty trucks and sweepers and as mentioned, uses renewable CNG. And since those trucks fill up overnight, it also saves time and Labor compared to LNG fueling, which must be done by an attendant. Converting to renewable CNG was a big step and we were also recently able to start using an advanced engine that further minimizes the environmental footprint of these trucks. This picture is from the Alternative Clean Transportation Expo held here in Long Beach in May of last year, where we displayed the first near zero engine refuse truck in municipal service in the United States. And this is important because the initial the emissions reductions are substantial and very significant when you consider the heavy duty cycle these trucks have. This new emissions reduction technology on these trucks enables considerable NOx reduction. And these reductions are important because our refuse trucks use copious amounts of fuel doing their job and they can be big polluters and harmful to residents health. So we have 23 near-zero engine trucks today and another five on the way. And while the greenhouse gas reduction is welcome, the NOx reductions is the excuse me, NOx emissions are reduced to a level 90% lower than the national EPA standard. Overall emissions of a near-zero engine truck when using renewable natural gas are equivalent to an electric truck when measuring just the power plant emissions of that electricity. So turning to the hybrid portion of the city's fleet, the city fleet contains a number of hybrids, primarily sedans and SUVs. Benefits are not only reduce fuel use and emissions, but also less maintenance effort. There are infrastructure challenges when going to a plug in hybrid, but those come with even better gas mileage and emission reductions. We're expanding use of hybrids in the fleet with a pilot test of new technology for light trucks and vans. For trucks and vans. Our Ford supported aftermarket up fit adds attraction motor and battery pack retains the original engine and powertrain reduces CO2 emissions by 20%, increases fuel economy by 25%, and the plug in gets a 50% mpg increase. We're excited about pilot testing of Ford's new pursuit rated hybrid police car. This will start in Long Beach in September, depending on delivery, will test five cars and patrol and unmarked service

e. These patrol cars are rated at 38 miles per gallon. That's a savings of about $6,000 per car in fuel over its lifetime and 28 tons of greenhouse gas emissions per vehicle. Pretty excited about this PD test. As I mentioned, this is the first patrol car on the market with real potential for emissions reduction. And turning to the future, we're looking at other potential alternative fuel options. We're exploring hydrogen fuel cell vehicles and we have a pilot test of a Toyota Mirai. Thus far, we've had great performance and reliability and we're getting much more involved in the battery electric market. Battery electric cars, as you may know, are readily available. However, trucks are not yet well developed. But this is changing fast. And I'll have more on our battery electric vehicle program in a few slides. First, I want to talk about the use of data in operating an efficient fleet. We're actively moving towards a fully data driven fleet, both in maintenance and in operation. This supports and enables emissions reductions through reduced fuel usage. We collect data on the fleet through use of telematics, which is the transmission and use of vehicle data to include how and where a vehicle is driven. We use both passive and active telematics, and some of the key data that we can obtain includes engine idling time, vehicle location, how a vehicle is driven, for example, hard acceleration or heart breaking vehicle fault codes and more. Another initiative we're looking at is engine REPROGRAMING. That's the opposite of performance tuning, and it is essentially engine tuning for fuel economy. As we fully implement telematics across a fleet, we can begin fleet wide reporting to departments to drive decisions on how our vehicles are used and to ensure maximum efficiency and reduce emissions. And turning to battery electric vehicles. Now, earlier this year, we started a task force to develop plans to convert city vehicles from fossil fuel to electric. In May, the B.V. Task Force met for the first time to develop draft policy for battery electric vehicles. The task force is comprised of Fleet Public Works, Office of Sustainability and Government Affairs. The policy is that Bevs will be used wherever feasible, subject to availability and with limited exemptions. Electric vehicles are more sustainable. Reducing emissions and operational cost range has greatly increased and the technology has become mature. Battery electric vehicles are considered to be zero emissions, while only sedans are readily available. That's changing rapidly. The electric vehicle the electric vehicle field is widening, and since most of our cities fleet is trucks, we are closely following development of electric options in that segment. And in terms of funding regular fleet capital charges will fund the electric cars and the charters departments are to pay electricity costs just as they do for fuel. Electric vehicles are more or less expensive to operate, but the infrastructure costs can be significant. We'll use available grant funding for the charging infrastructure, and our deployment of electric vehicles will initially focus on sedans. There are 84 eligible sedans in the fleet for conversion spread across most departments, and we're looking at vehicles such as the

Chevy Bolt to Nissan Leaf. Conversion would be phased as the current sedans age out of the fleet. Within two years, we expect to expand beyond passenger cars and move into Electric Park, sorry, electric trucks and more for the future. We intend to continue to pursue multiple strategies to reduce the city's carbon footprint. That means fully developing our green fleet policy and being the early adopters whenever feasible and smart, acquiring the greenest possible vehicles. And it's not just vehicles. We are working hard to integrate the full spectrum of telematics and its data into management of the fleet to reduce fuel consumption and emissions while improving safety. This necessitates policy development discussions and increased department involvement. It offers other alternatives also such as gamification and programs that grant small, non-monetary incentives for eco driving. And finally, we will stay fully tuned into the ongoing transition to autonomous vehicles and mobility. It won't be many years until we are using autonomous vehicles for at least some of the city's transportation needs. This is an exciting time to be in the fleet business. The technology is advancing so quickly and the opportunities to not only improve service delivery but reduce our impact on the environment are significant. Indeed. That concludes my presentation on the city's Green Fleet program. Next, I have a very short presentation on clean transportation from the South Coast HQ, AMD's Mobile Sauce Reduction Committee. That presentation is necessary for our receipt of the $622,000 emissions reduction grant. That's in today's council meeting. This is the clean transportation presentation from the Local Government Partnership Program. Yamazaki was established by the legislature and is working closely with the South Coast A.D. to invest in reduction in air pollution. We have significant air quality challenges, as you're aware, and according to the A.D., we are in an extreme not attainment for ozone, which is a primary component of smog. We have mandatory air pollution reductions that are necessary focused on NOx and NOx emissions, which need to go down by 45% within the next five years. The way that we accomplish this is through the AQ MD's plan of which our grant is a part in this. AQ AMP is a roadmap on how to meet those obligations. We are partnering with them and with the South Coast AQ, MDA to get our funding. Participation is voluntary. However, funding has been reserved for us and we are working with Mr. SI to obtain that $622,000. That concludes my presentation. I'm available for your questions. Very thorough. Very, very thorough. Great job. No, seriously, I'm just very, very ni ce. Thank you very much. Any. Any. Any questions? You have two people. I know, but, councilman, did you have. No. No. Okay, I'm just looking. Councilman Andrews. I'm okay. You're okay. Councilman Mongo. You just get me. So in the last year, I actually worked on a grant for different types of charging stations and thought I'd learned more about vehicles of this type than ever before. But the thoroughness of this presentation has opened my eyes to how little I know about all of this. So thank you very much. Thank you for keeping our fleet clean. And my only question would be, I know that there have been some discussions and dialogs about the changing face of vehicles and that a lot of businesses are considering moving to a lease by the hour model where different industries are coming in and saying, instead of owning your own fleet and or leasing your fleet for your exclusive use that sits parked X amount of time that organizations like Enterprise and others have come out and said, we provide fleet services to cities. Have we looked into that and or is there a cost savings if you have? Yes, Councilmember, we do some limited leasing where it makes sense right now. We do it in the fire department on some very expensive assets there, and we've done it in another couple of examples that I can't recall right now. I'm familiar with Enterprise's model considerably. Mm hmm. And there is money to be saved by leasing in the right cases, in the right types of vehicles, not necessarily through their model. Okay. We can generally get the money cheaper. Okay. Right. Through bonding and so forth, which we have done. So, yes, in a nutshell, we have done that and looked at it. They had made a presentation at a conference of some sort, I guess a while back related to like animal control vehicles and how expensive they can be to build. And yet there were all these different options available when cities work together and the fleets move around and things like that. So it's great to hear that you've already looked into it and it I wouldn't doubt that whatever you have to say on it would be accurate as you have more information on this matter than I've ever seen in almost any presentation at the Council. So congratulations and great work. And Councilmember, I do want to point out that Dan is a true expert in this field, is an area where we're doing really innovative work throughout the entire nation. So we get lots of awards for our fleet and it's something we're very proud of. And I've heard those awards, but now I see why. Thank you. And Dan, I hope, you know, I'm just giving you a hard time. This was actually a great presentation. So and Craig fills us in on other all the great things that are happening all the time on this. And so very exciting. And it's good to see all the all this just commitment to our our climate change goals and pretty amazing stuff. So thank you very much. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you. Just a point of order. You know, two motions up there.

I made the original motion kind of skipped. I just wanted to say it's all good. So did. I. That is true. I don't know why that did that. So I wanted to just chime in and just say, Mr.. See, we can thank them for a lot. This is this is a grant. And a lot of times we just hit a button and don't acknowledge it. But and I'm an alternate on MSR three in this see through SAG and they've supported events like our active transportation event in North Palm Beach. They provided $75,000 for that. They support a lot of the work that we do to green our fleet. And so we sit we say thank you to our team for making it so easy for us to go to MRC and get these funds. But we also want to recognize and just say thank you to MRC and we do appreciate the support they give to our city. Thank you. And Councilor Pearce. Thank you. Yes, fantastic presentation. Not only the slides, but just your commentary throughout. It was very easy to follow. Thank you so very much. I did have one question. I know that there's I've had two concerns coming from my constituents. One is on the status of those companies that service the EV charging stations. Can you give us an update on where the city is with those contracts? Maybe not. Maybe that's a mr. Beck question. So the what? What I know about that from in discussions on the BBVA Task Force is that a contract is being prepared or rather an RFP to get a contract to service the stations that exist already within the city for public use. And that would also include the stations that we are proposing. Great. And I'll add a little bit to that. So we had put those in. Those are especially going in in the beach areas and a new lots. That's part of our policy. Unfortunately, nationwide, one of the major leaders of that service went bankrupt. So we had to cancel all of our contracts, figure out a way to get the power turned back on while we go back out and do an RFP. So it we asked for a little bit of patients were kind of in a new field here trying to make that work. Great. Thank you. And then I also just want to highlight, you know, as a city how many awards we've gotten, but just the fact that we're we talk about being green, we talk about climate change to be able to have a fleet so diverse as this, I think is really amazing. And I hope that we share it with our constituents and our residents. So I hope this presentation is somewhere available for them so that they can be proud of the work that we do in-house. And then my other question is, outside of the city, I know we've had constituents call and ask about getting service stations near their home or at their home. Could you just for the public, a recap what that processes? So we actually do have a program for free chargers. So it's something that really only exists in Long Beach that we know of right now. We, through our partnership with Mercedes-Benz, when they came here and became their Western regional headquarters, they gave us I don't remember the number, but I think several tho usand chargers. So we are offering those free to the public. They do have to come in and get a building permit in order to install it safely. But if anyone's interested, we have that on our website and we can make that available so we still have chargers left to give. Thank you so very much. Thank you. Any public comment on this? CNN. Mr. Bolen, do you have one? Please come down. Give me a minute. I'll be right there. No. Yes, Larry, Will and I have a real interest in this is really going the meeting after the events was the compliance manager for Toyota motor sales for many years so involved in the early days of emissions regarding zero emissions electric vehicles. And this is a question to the director. What percentage of the kilowatt hours that you purchase from, I believe Edison, are generated by coal fired generating plants outside of California. As a question. No answer. As you know, Mr. Bowen, this is an opportunity to ask questions per se. But if council only we can. But continue with your public comment. Okay. I suppose a friendly time. The reason I ask that question that maybe the public might get fooled a little bit when it says zero emissions because Edison does buy power from four corners from the Navajos. And I don't know, but I think it's a fairly larger. Content of coal fired energy that we get. So remember that it may not be zero. There may be some other number. Thank you. Thank you. With that. Please cast your votes for either vice mayor or Councilman Anderson's motion, whichever one of the two you want to vote for. Great. Thank you very much for that report. Next item. Okay. Motion carries unanimously. Next item up. Madam Clerk, please read, which is item 24. Item 20. Item 24 is communication from Vice Mayor Richardson. Council Member Pierce. Council Member Supernanny. Councilman Andrew's recommendation to receive and file report from the Long Beach Innovation Team on the Newson Motels pilot program explored the feasibility of a citywide news and motel ordinance and explore the feasibility of implementing a motel amortization program. Thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So first, I want to thank all the folks who are who are here and waited patiently through our city council meeting. This is ever given Tuesday. So I'm glad you're able to be here and witness our our proceedings. I want to thank council members Andrews Pearson Supernova for lending their names in support of this conversation. So for decades, North Long Beach neighborhoods all across our city have been facing persistent blight, crime, violence associated with outdated nuisance motels. In many cases, human trafficking, drug activity and violent crime has really taken root in these motels. In fact, in the past three years, our police department has gotten 3189 calls for service for violent crime in files 772 crime incident reports on the six worst motels alone. That's just six. Not to mention the continued drain on public resources from police de partment. Fire code enforcement. Nuisance abatement. Health Department. City Prosecutors. Department. We know that these problem motels are located all across the city. But let's just hone in on one corridor for a moment on Long Beach Boulevard in North Long Beach, between the 17 freeway and Forehand Street, or just about Artesia, where the 91 is, that's just a half of a mile stretch. The corridor is lined with five outdated motels. And recently, our innovation team analyzed calls for service and incident report records for all motel and hotel locations in Long Beach over the last three, three and a half years. And that narrowed it down to some six of the worst motels in the city. And frankly, on this corridor, two of the six worst in the city are adjacent to each other on this corridor. To give you a snapshot, between January 2014 and May 2017, Luxury Inn and the Sierra Motel had 1501 calls for service in that three year span and 237 crime reports on Long Beach Boulevard between those two motels, most notably last April. A tragic incident occurred at that luxury in prompting SWAT to evacuate evacuate the residents from Coolidge Triangle neighborhoods for more than 8 hours as police search for a gunman. Aside from the loss of life, this incident required over 80 police personnel to respond to this crime. I must say that again, 80 police personnel were taken off the streets to address one motel for 8 hours. Could you imagine what those police officers could have been doing if they weren't addressing this one motel? Immediately following, we pulled together a meeting city manager. Our human trafficking folks are our development services folks to sort out an action plan and a pilot program to hold property owners accountable for that crime, human trafficking and violence that takes place at their establishments. And as a response to that meeting, staff began a pilot program, a multiple multiply, multiple department effort to address the ongoing blight and nuisances associated with these these high calls for service motels. And so at this time, I'd love to just hear Quick Report on the two from four or how the pilot program is going. Mr. West, I'm going to turn this over to our I-Team director, Traci Conger. Honorable mayor and city council. Just to give you a brief history, in 2017, the nuisance motel's pilot program was initiated by the city manager. After several discussions with Vice Mayor Richardson about community concerns in North Long Beach. City staff from the prosecutor's office, city attorney's office, development Services, Health Police, Fire, financial management departments and a Long Beach Innovation Team have met to address ongoing issues involving nuisance motels in our city. Specifically, staff focused on motels that meet the criteria of a nuisance location as defined by the Long Beach Municipal Code and those experiencing high volume of police related calls for service. To identify trends and establish baseline averages for police activity at motel locations in the city, staff collected and aggregated calls for service and incident report records for all motel and hotel locations in Long Beach from January 1st, 2014 through May 31st, 2017. The data sets were analyzed separately and weighted by activity type. Calls for service were weighed by priority level to correspond with response time with priority one calls having the highest weight. Incident reports were weighted by part one and Part two, crimes that correspond with the FBI uniform crime reporting codes. Each motel was then assigned a final index, scored for both datasets and weighted once more by the number of rooms at each location. The final scores provide baseline values to track police activity in Long Beach going forward by location, type of establishment and size, as well as quarterly trends over time, which you can see in these two slides. We have both calls for service as well as incidents over each quarter. The results from the police data analysis will go down to the locations with the highest scores from which six locations were selected for a pilot program. The city has several programs in place as part of its effort to combat nuisance related activity. Between 2005 and 2009 through the redevelopment agency, the city purchased and abated approximately 12 nuisance motels. The current nuisance abatement ordinance and other various code enforcement policies represent other long standing abatement programs in the city. Staff has initiated a pilot program again with the six motels listed. Site visits to pilot locations are focused on interdepartmental collaboration, community support and partnerships with motel owners and managers. This model balances enforcement with support to motel managers provided by city staff. The city must look to other solutions with minimal fiscal impact to address nuisance motels. Opportunity exists to incorporate zoning and land use changes in the city's existing efforts, including the Uptown Livable Zoning and Investment Plan, also known as Up Plan. This could incentivize motel owners to convert their properties to more viable uses, such as mixed income and or mixed use housing and commercial centers. Staff recommends continuing the pilot program through the end of fiscal year 18 to further develop recommendations and solutions for these establishments while we search to identify funding opportunities. This concludes my report. Thank you. Thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you. And and Tracy, thank you for that. That your hard work. And just so folks know, the city is committed to fighting this issue and addressing this issue when you have a response from eight separate departments working collaboratively to address this. So, you know, the pilot program is a great first step at addressing the immediate sort of negative impacts. So that's that's that's suppression. That's a response. But as we heard, you know, as you may know, many cities, including Chula Vista, Anaheim and O akland, are taking more formal action to combat these crime infested motels by looking at both short term and long term solutions. People people who have lived on that corridor for 20, 30 years can tell you human trafficking along Beach Boulevard is not new. When the city when the city council, when the city cracks down, it's like a water balloon. We crack down for a little while and the issues just moved to Compton in Lynwood. And when the Compton sheriffs crack down, they squeeze on the other side of the balloon. It pops right back up in Long Beach. So we've got to not necessarily look at just suppression. When we look at how much resources go into it, we have to look at short term and long term strategies. So based on the success that we learned, we're learning from the pilot motel program along with best practices from other jurisdictions. Part of the My motion tonight is recommend staff explore the feasibility of implementing a citywide nuisance motel ordinance that will hold motel owners accountable for the things that take place in their property and really ask for a higher standard. No matter what era you live in, you live in a higher standard for motels, and so we can use the tools we already have in this ordinance, but really take a look at sort of retooling our fees, our fines to create something that accelerates our administrative process to bring them into compliance. An ordinance will give us the leverage we need to set performance standards, impose administrative penalties on property owners, allowing criminal activity to take place on their premises. An ordinance can incorporate existing and expanded standards, including proposed security measures, such as increased lighting and security cameras. Right now, the city is installing security cameras along Beach Boulevard because of the activity taking place at the motels. The motels should be required to put in security cameras so there's not the taxpayers putting up those resources. Increased environmental regulations to ensure healthy conditions, as well as a visitation requirement that assures accountability enforcement and enforcement at establishments . Additionally, I will hope to see best practices from other jurisdictions incorporated into the ordinance. For example, in Chula Vista, the city mandated mandated motel go guests show ID and register their plate number, as with the motel as a requirement of checking in. These security protocols have been shown, have been proven to reduce crime and to actually assist our vice detectives with investigating when something does happen. You'd have that I.D., you'd have that car registration, you'd have that information. We've we already have a proven track record of implementing successful nuisance abatement ordinances here in Long Beach. Our award winning alcohol nuisance abatement ordinance has been very effective in decreasing crime and blight associated with liquor stores across our city. It started off again as a pilot and then ex panded citywide. This this establishes a steady operational requirements that improve public safety, including the removal of payphones, unauthorized signage, advertisements, exterior, you know, and other catalysts for loitering and other unlawful activities. So it's currently and is currently in its fourth phase. Again, it started in North Long Beach in its fourth phase of implementation with near 100% compliance rating from liquor stores. So I would hope that the motel ordinance and the strategy leverages a similar strategy as we took with the alcohol ordinance. We know that targeting structural conditions and environmental site issues as well as holding property owners accountable for illegal activity is an effective strategy. Not just reducing to not just reduce crime, but also helps set the standard for a long term permanent solution. So so the third piece of this is really I'm recommending that staff look at the feasibility of implementing some long term permanent solutions as well that address overconcentration. So we're not talking about going after every motel, but if there are two or three of these nuisance motels right next to each other. Right now there's five along Beach Boulevard. There's not a tourist destination. There's no reason for that. So what can we do to address the overconcentration and address the issue long term and permanently? So changes land use and zoning in order to phase out motels where tourism no longer exists. That's that's a strategy we can utilize. Opportunities explore zoning and land use changes in up plan like as discussed to incentivize motel owners to convert to some other more appropriate use. We can begin the conversation around amortization. That's something that, you know, that essentially deems motels and high crime corridors as legal, non-conforming and sets a timeline to bring it into compliance. We should take a look at that. We've used it in other instances, such as with car dealerships and Long Beach Boulevard when it was it was most feasible when applied to over concentrated areas. City of Gardena just used amortization to address two nuisance gentleman clubs in Gardena. The process started many years ago, but they finally they started. They set the clock and when the clock ended, those two gentlemen's clubs closed down. So they started it when they said, hey, they only need to operate in industrial industrial spaces or they made a land use choice and that started the clock. If we started this clock 20 years ago, we wouldn't be in the position today. So it doesn't mean that motel would be necessarily shut down, but it actually allows us to think about the vision for the corridor with all this conversation about visioning taking place. So the conversation is really simple. We know that human trafficking and crime has taken root in many of these motels. I know it resonates. Know it. We know the average human trafficking victim in California is 14 years old and that California harbors three o f the FBI's highest sex trafficking areas in the nation L.A., San Francisco and San Diego today. Currently, children walking along Beach Boulevard on the way to Colin Powell, Keith Reed School, Colin Powell Academy are being approached by pimps. We know that people in audience know that they've heard these these stories especially. And we know that some motel owners are complicit. They're working with some of these networks. So if we know these things and Vice is investing in these things, we continue to place a focus on succession. At some point, we are complicit as a city if we don't think about a long term solution. So, you know, so I'll summarize by saying what we're looking at is three things. The pilot is immediate suppression. Short term is a faster process to respond through an ordinance. And long term, we want to look at some way to update, some way to leverage processes or incentives or updating land use to address the overconcentration. Those are the three things I want to I want to just acknowledge that there was a letter from the motel association that came out came out today. And so whoever whoever you are, I encourage you to work with city staff. I've talked with them. They're going to open up the doors and talk with you about what will or will not transpire. But thank you for stepping up. We didn't get where we are with liquor stores, without the liquor store owners stepping up. So we actually welcome that. I want to thank again the co-sponsors, Pearce, Super Norton Andrews, and encourage the city council support tonight. Thank you. Thank you very much. Councilmember Pearce. Thank you, Vice Mayor, again for your great leadership on this item. And to all of those that have waited to hear this item on a long council night, I absolutely support this item wholeheartedly. I think that it's a step in the right direction. I do have a couple questions in my district. Some of these top six are actually in my district. And I know that our muni code and I just want to ask staff a question on how we handle the situation. We have our muni code says that a responsible party shall not be prohibited from knowingly renting or leasing to an individual guestroom in a hotel or motel to one or more sex offenders. Yada, yada, yada. And no sex offenders should reside within 2000 feet from any public or private school. The walking distance between Franklin Middle School and the Long Beach Motel on Seventh Street is a little over 1000 feet. So I'm wondering, have we done any work with that motel in particular on ensuring that they're following the guidelines per muni code? Sorry to spring that on you guys. No, it's okay. Thank you. Councilmember, at this point, we're working to establish those relationships and be able to provide the appropriate enforcement with code enforcement as well as the police department. So we currently don't have a practice in place to make sure that

's already in place? We are developing a compliance plan, which is as a series of corrective issues items. And we're meeting with the hoteliers and their managers to go over what we think are the menu items that are applicable for those particular motels. Okay. I want to recognize the fact that these are hotspots for human trafficking. And I want to applaud the work that the human trafficking task force has done. I know when you first came to this city, a lot of folks said it probably wasn't that big of a deal. And so recognizing this and saying that we really have to chip away at these little bitty pieces, this is, you know, Franklin Middle Schools is a big concern for me. The same issue that the vice mayor raised where you have kids walking down the street and being approached by individuals is alarming. So I want to make sure that that is included in the next report that we get back. I also want to talk about some of the work that's been done in L.A. and I know that this really was an item that was focused on the fact that these were crime zones. And obviously, these numbers are very shocking to see. But I also want to recognize that we in the city have said that dealing with homelessness is a big challenge. I know that we have vouchers that sometimes we place people in some of these motels. But I want to really make sure that in a report back that we're looking at things like the City of L.A. did, which was an interim motel conversion ordinance where we would say, if, you know, perhaps if they fall into the amortization and we're saying we have too many of these, that we're working on an incentive program, working with our county, working with our health department to say let's have transitional housing where we have a connection to wraparound services. That is a need that we desperately need in the city. And it would provide oversight. It would ensure that we have people in those previous motels turned to housing that would have staff making sure that we have a safe place for people to get on their feet. And so I want to make sure that that's part of a report back as you guys are doing this work coming out of the health department, if that's okay. Fantastic. All right. I'm done. Thank you. Thank you.

Councilwoman Gonzalez. I just want to say thank you, vice Mayor, for bringing this forward. This is very important. I have and the first district, we have a ton of motels along seventh and new new motels looking to come. And I think that we need to address this issue first and abate it first and tackle what we can before moving forward with additional options. And so thanks so much. I look forward to, you know, seeing where this ends up. And just thank you so much for the work. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Thank you. And I think. This is a great item. It's proactive. I know Rex and his residents at the ninth District have been working very hard to to address this this nuisance and this problem. And it is very much it has been an issue up North

Long Beach Boulevard. I've seen it, witnessed it myself. And I think this is a very proactive, strong approach. However, and what I like most about the report is the fact that it identified the most problem motels. Right. It identified those and it didn't necessarily paint all motel operators with a wide brush. It said, you know, we're going to go after and identify the nuisance sites and work to abate those. I know for a fact that, you know, I have motels in my district as well. Not all of them are the best. But we actually have some some examples of, I think, very well-run and responsible motel operators who I think in this conversation should be be also stakeholders. When you talk about best practices, because there are some some some good ones. And I think we have some some representatives here from a couple of the motels in a district who who want to be part of the conversation as well. And so as we move forward with staff in terms of looking at feasibility and implementing, you know, an ordinance, I think we should make sure that we're talking to everybody. And so I would invite that that conversation. I hope you're amenable to that. Vice Mayor Richardson as well. So thank you very much. I'm really looking forward to hearing from the public, though. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman. A. Thank you. I'll just follow up on what Councilmember Austin just said, if I can ask the vice mayor for just a little more clarification. We were contacted at almost 4 p.m. this afternoon by a group, and we had another event to start at 4:04 p.m. that had just heard about this. So if you can explain. And they were asking for a 30 day continuance. Can you reiterate what you said before, that this is a work in progress? We're not making a decision tonight that they will have time to weigh in on this. Sure. Thank you. So just to be clear, we had a conversation after the letter to make sure that if there is someone is going to step up and sort of represent those interests, they should have a seat at the table. So I'm looking to Oscar. We had this conversation. Oscar's nodding. He's acknowledging, so, yeah, we're going to bring him to the table so there's no need for a continuance. Let's start the process and have the conversation. Thank you, Councilmember Ringo. Actually, I'm very happy to see this going forward in the way it is, because I think that there's anything that we need to have. It's more participation from those affected, from the stakeholders, as well as people who are most affected by it. And I think that when we finish at the end of the day, that we're going to come up with a better, better solution to dealing with human trafficking and being able to at least minimize it and maybe even benefit from it in terms of being able to transition some of these hotels into, you know, some homeless housing and affordable housing and some accommodations of being able to bring people in when they need the the housing the most, especially that we're looking at opportunities for. Home. I mean, temporary housing. And this is a good opportunity to look at that. It's a creative way that the city can look at in terms of how to deal with its housing issues. And I'm looking forward to the results of the study at the end of the day. Thank you. Thank you very much. With that, we're gonna hear from the public. So please come down and just line up at the podium and. I feel like I'm out of retirement. Welcome. Welcome back. Welcome back. I'm going to sing that song for you. Welcome back. Welcome back. Welcome back. Good evening, Mr. Mayor, and members of the city council. I am standing here in support and strong support of the Citywide Nuisance Motel ordinance. And I have to tell you, as a resident in North Long Beach and in my district and in the Coolidge Triangle area, we greatly appreciate the attention that we believe that has been long overdue and that we deserve accountability is the cornerstone of this ordinance. As a taxpayer, I have grown weary of picking up the tab for the property owners of these motels that have been costing us money and adding to our deficit. As a 25 year property owner in the Coolidge Triangle neighborhood who has had the privilege of living among some of the finest residents in this city. I am confident in saying Colors Triangle and other North Long Beach homeowners and neighborhoods are deeply concerned about our neighbors, about our neighborhood. And we are fierce protectors of our neighborhoods. We are hyper vigilant against anyone who does not live in our neighborhood. We really we look after each other in ways that I think would probably be the envy of others. We have phone trees. We keep in contact with each other. We are always looking out for the children and for our elders. And it's just been a phenomenal place to live. And and we do really kind of get a little sensitive on the fact that because of the demographics, you know, we have the largest population of homeownership in North Long Beach, the certainly the largest population of first time people of color who are property owners in North Long Beach. And our homes are worth, you know, quite a bit. We have a major economic investment. So the dubious distinction of being a high crime area, etc., etc., it really kind of rubs against the grain because these issues do happen and they are the reason why we're here. But the neighborhoods are quality neighborhoods. This proposal is among the best that the city has advanced in a long time, and we really appreciate it. I want to make the point that when we talk about the children not being able to walk to school, you know what? For those of us use the bike to take the bus to work, sitting at that bus stop became very dangerous thing for the person speaking because in the morning there would be individuals trying to, well, proposition you. And so it became very problematic, which forced me to have to now, you know, drive to work, taking a walk along Long Beach Boulevard in the

in a in a summer evening or, you know, just simply having a stroll to jack in the box becomes a problem because of the neighborhood nuisance of these motels. So thank you for bringing this forward. Councilman Richardson, you did an outstanding job with your report. And we are here to back this measure 100%. Thank you. Because we appreciate the neighborhoods that we live in and we want them to be better. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. On an open air vice mayor staff, many of the members from my north Long Beach neighborhood are seated behind me and in line. My name is Dan Press Burg. I'm the president of the DeForest Park Neighborhood Association. My information is on file. We in North Long Beach are in support of the pilot program. It addresses nuisance properties and their exorbitant expense in man hours and first responders by police and fire. The expense in human lives. From human trafficking and on crime. That is why the focus has been so specific on those six motels tonight. And however, I'm going to just address two corridors. That's the Atlantic corridor and Long Beach Boulevard. I drove those corridors when I was working full time. You could not stop without somebody knocking on your window and saying, Hey, how about a date? That's horrible. A nuisance. Motel pilot program pinpoints the activities on blighted corridors affecting the adjacent neighborhoods. That is why these motels were looked at, and that's why they're most troublesome. This was a multi

ou remember the chief motel. It's still a vacant lot. We spent ten years working on getting that removed before I became the councilman over there. And it it just about wore all two to nothing. So thank you again. Thank you, Rex. Thank you, Mr. President. Next speaker, please. It evening, Robert. And distinctive council members. The president of Coolidge Triangle Neighborhood Association and the issue of human trafficking has been pervasive for a very long time. It's not unique only to Coolidge Triangle. If you represent the corridors of PCH, Anaheim, Long Beach Boulevard, we have the same mutual concerns. If you are by the Travelodge, if you take a look at, you know, men against human trafficking, the message is loud and clear. Their present, the different parts of our city. Thank you, Rex, for bringing this to the table. This is a long term concern that the residents have spoken about for a very long time. I think that in many, many years you've been the first to actually step up and address this issue. I hope that you as a council members do support Rex with this measure. The community deeply cares about our growth in many ways. We're very proactive in our community in ways that perhaps city funding cannot fund. We have leaders here who are both alumni from neighborhood leadership programs, have developed leaders in the community from tree plantings and corridor improvements. We want to continue improving our neighborhoods because we care deeply about those neighborhoods. If there's anything that you can do tonight is support Rex in his endeavors in improving North Long Beach and in your quarter two. And what we do look at at the end of the day as well, if somebody had mentioned Rex, you had mentioned the kids also have to see prostitution on their way to school, going on in cars, on their way to school, going through our neighborhoods and as many times as our residents call. And they keep on coming back. Where is the equity for these kids? So we as a community are going to continue being vocal. We as a community are continuously going to be fighting for what's right for our kids, our communities, our community as homeowners that are vested in this community. We look to your leadership and your support in the proposition that Rex is presenting. So I do. Thank you. Thank you so much. Good to see you again. Next speaker, please. We've always it's funny, right? I know. We all need to laugh. Okay. Thank you. Mayor. Last year. Council members. Public in general. My name is Hilda Guyton. I am the co-chair of the Coalition for Katrina Long Beach. And I'm here to support this item. I don't need to describe the atrocities that human. Trafficking brings to the people. Involved. And to the community as a whole. With all my respect. I urge you to please support this item and to help end the exploitation, especially of kids or children's children, and make. Our city and. Neighborhoods safer for all. Thank you very much. And thank you, Mr. Garcia, to bring

owners. Today is the first time that we are all hearing about this ordinance through tonight's agenda. No one from the 14th floor has contacted us. Today we are just kindly asking for a 30 day continuance or extension during this 30 day continuance period. We would like to meet our council members to mutually discuss and understand the details of the ordinance. Today we contacted the Office of All Language City Council members. However, we haven't heard back from their office yet, as I understand that we had to send the letter out at a short notice as well. Your honorable mayor and council members. We think it's very fair to all sides to allow a 30 day continuance to meet and put our thoughts together to come up with more acceptable situation. Please kindly allow us this opportunity to work with our council members. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Next week, release. 3 million council members and mayor. My name is Roswell Lopez, and I am here on behalf of Ana Soto, who couldn't join us tonight. So she wrote a letter which I began to read. Dear City Council, my name is Ana Soto, and I'm and I'm a resident of the Ninth Council District. This letter is in lieu of my personally attending tonight's meeting to speak in support of your proposal to evaluate and expand short and long term solutions to address the nuisance motels. These specific motels have become a hub of illegal activity over the years, causing much blight and crime in the surrounding areas, most notably human trafficking. I work as an analyst for human trafficking. I work as an analyst and human trafficking coordinator for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health. But tonight, I speak as a resident who has much experience in the fight against human trafficking. I am a member of the Lambert Human Trafficking Task Force and see the devastation human trafficking is wreaking in our communities morally, financially and emotionally. I request the City Council support Vice Mayor Richardson's proposal. So Long Beach can continue its project towards a safe and caring city in the state of California. I make myself available to lend political, personal and community support towards a successful implementation of the short and long term solutions being proposed. Blessings Signed. ANAM Soto, Chair of the 63rd District, Los Angeles Cou nty Democratic Party. Thank you. Thank you very much. And thanks to Mrs. Soto as well. Speaker, please. Thank you, mayor. Council persons and allow me to speak today. My name is G2 Patel, 50 Atlantic Avenue, Long Beach. I'm not I was not aware of what you are considering today, especially as this will affect our livelihood. If it wasn't for the press telegram. I would have known that this item was being presented. Today. I think it's unfair to pass an item without the input from hoteliers. Hoteliers. We would like to review staff reports as well and to discuss the. Situation and how human trafficking is horrible. And I certainly don't allow that. Any of my properties. We just don't do that. It's not allowed and my. Staff is trained on that. Things and those things. My colleagues and I. Want to exchange ideas and to work together with you to figure. Out how to deal with this situation. Don't you have existing. Laws to deal with those two properties that are in your district, sir? Like sups or or licensing or something to to help you and then endeavor. I'm not sure why we keep. Adding more things. You use what you have. I want. To. I'm asking for your consideration. A 30 day continuation of. What we are going to consider tonight. I want to discuss our issue with the staff and our council people. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Yes. Excuse me. I'm Robert Bergman. I am. Thank you for allowing me to speak here. I've been here working in Long Beach for ten years, and I've been in school here in Long Beach. I'm a graduate from Long Beach State. I'm also a U.S. veteran, disabled American. All right. This is about time we have something like this. Because this has been going on for a long, long time. And I want to be I'm I'm also the founder of a clean up Sapp area coalition. And if you didn't hear, the Grace Motel should be added to the list. And it also burned. It went up in flames. I say take it all down now. Take it away. Because it's nothing but a cesspool of drugs violence. And. Prostitution. All kinds of illegal activity goes in and out of there and not one of your police officers will go in and do anything about it. They take a blind eye to what is right. And. For the homeless population. The landlords. This should also be this should cover the landlords of apartment buildings as well, because they are too at fault. And for the homeless crisis. Have each landowner. Have a division of percentage of units available for homeless vets. Homeless? Anybody? Anybody. Homeless? There should be. A percentage of their apartments ready to rent to the homeless. Thank you for your service. Thank you. Next speaker, please. That's your phone. Good evening. Vice Mayor. Council members. City staff. I applaud the work you do. My name is Jimmy Murray. I'm president of the Start King Neighborhood Association. I reside at six, seven. Nine five Beachley Avenue. Been there for 40 years. This is my third stint as president. Of the Neighborhood Association. In that area, we have 1100 homes. But I want to say that I took the opportunity to stand with men standing against trafficking. On Long Beach Boulevard Friday night. It was an awesome opportunity to. Look at that. Strip. I drive. Past there five, six, seven times a month. And. Most of the hope motels. You wouldn't even know. They are there unless you happen to frequent them. There's only one multi-story motel in that little strip there. But I want to say this. Holding that sign up there, I could not help but. Cars with men coming to Victoria and then making a U-turn. And I thought. Did they see us with those signs? Were they out hunting and turned around and went the other way? That's what went through my mind. I said, get rid of those hotels, motels that are causing problems. Thank you. Thank you, Jim. Next speaker, please. Good evening, council members. My name is Virginia's Art and I'm a founding member of the Long Beach Human Trafficking Task Force. And as we were talking about the motels and as vice mayor, you were talking about their location and such. I remember before knowing anything about human trafficking, so many times you would ride down a street and you'd see a hotel, and in your mind you're thinking, this is kind of a strange place for a motel to be. It's not like it's in the center of anything, any kind of tourist area or anything like that. And I often. Wondered, how do these businesses stay in business? And then once I learned about human trafficking, it kind of raised a red flag for me that as you see these motels, they are actually used for exploitation for for the young for the young children, for men and women as well. But I don't want to insinuate that exploitation only happens in these motels. It doesn't it can really happen anywhere. But what is so hard to take is that it happens here in our own city. And as you hear the residents who live in the neighborhoods of these hotels and motels where all the crime is happening and all the calls for service, the numbers that you shared earlier were just outstanding. And to know that that happens in our city, just. Breaks my heart in so many ways and so many of our task force members are here to support. And we've been working on this issue for six years now and Long Beach, and we're here and we're ready to support you, and we appreciate you bringing this forward. I also wanted to. Comment that. One of our partners here was in court today with three young women who had actually been trafficked through motels. So it does happen in these motels. So thank you so much. I appreciate you bringing this forward. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Thank you very much for having this discussion. My name is Patrick Erlandson and I work at the Long Beach Human Trafficking Task Force for a number of years on the prevention side of this issue. I'm also the head of the men's standing against trafficking, which you've heard about. And I'm also an English teacher and the father of two daughters, one of whom was approached by a recruiter for human trafficking when she was in high school. I really want to applaud Vice Mayor Richardson for bringing this in, his consistency and really and really caring about this issue and bringing this to the forefront in the community , and especially for bringing this this forward. I think we can't arrest our way out of this problem. It's it's too big. And it requires the community to stand. It requires legislation and it requires law enforcement. I think we've been doing as men standing, it's trafficking. We take these signs and we take over an intersection once a month, the third Friday of each month, and demonstrate to to the victims of human trafficking that not all men are customers, that we care about them, that there's a better life for them. We stand to demonstrate to the men who are on their way to buy someone's body that there's something better, that actually this is life or death. This is actually not a victimless crime that Lynette Washington paid the price with her life in one of those hotels. And I think that we want to also send a message to the traffickers that they're seen and that this is not acceptable in our communities. We've been doing this at different intersections for over two years. We've been taking a stand. And when we moved to Victoria Street in Long Beach Boulevard, the response from the community was so profound, so strong and so wholehearted that it was just really it was such a moving experience. We had so many people turn out. Many of the people that are here today, people hug, people, stop it, grab signs from us. And they wanted to stand with us because they love their community. And I think what this proposal really means and what what Vice Mayor Richardson is proposing here, as well as the other council members, is that there's a vacuum, and that vacuum is being filled by pimps and traffickers. There are empty beds and those empty beds are being filled by somebody daughter, by somebody who's been victimized, by someone who's being exploited for someone else, for some slave master to make their money. And I think this vacuum, what this proposal does is it takes that vacuum there, takes the people the people who love their community. It takes their love for their community, their homes and their children. And it stuffs that vacuum and closes it. And I think this is really critical and really important that the community really stands, stands up and supports this proposal. One of the thing, as a teacher, kids always have these cute ways of texting their messages and things that are important to them, whether it's lol, which everyone knows. But there's one FOMO. I don't know if you remember that FOMO, but some kids use that and it's a fear of missing out. And it really struck me that that's really appropriate for this right now, that we should be afraid of missing out on the opportunity to do something about this problem that's gone on for years. And I think waiting 30 more days

, how many how many more mornings do people have to wake up and find condoms in there? Thank you, sir. I mean, we're at one time. This is this is a chance for. The most vulnerable. Thank you. Nice to be with you. Thank you. My name is Alfred Hayes Senior. I'm the I live in North Long Beach, right next door to the Luxury Inn. And I had moved out two years ago to housing. Use my home for homeless women and children. And I did that for two years and I spent my own money to help them. Get off the street. A couple of them went back to the street, but most of them got their life together and they went on to become productive members of the community. I moved back. January of 2016, but ever since I've moved. Back, I realized that my this area has. Gotten worse. Than when I had moved out. I've found people on top of my roof. Two nights ago, a guy was sitting in my yard, peering into my 13 year old girl's bedroom. It was a blessing to see them come. On the corner and try to to bring bring interest to this problem that's getting continuously worse. It has dragged the community down to total drug deals. My bills, my cars. My remote control have been hijacked. I've been I've been out watching my cars. They locked my car. They open my car. They put trackers on my. My vehicles. They broke in my house, put listening devices in my home. And I'm afraid that sometimes they hear me and my wife of 32 years and our most intimate moments. Do you really realize what's really happening here? This place. North Long Beach, the coolest part district has gone to. The docks. It has gone to the dogs. And I live there. I experience it. If you don't live there and have not experienced it, I'm telling you what has happened. Trackers on my car, listening devices in my home. They park in front of my home every day to walk around to the hotel to buy drugs. So I know I see it and I'm fed up with it. I was just on the verge of calling the FBI to make a report with them before I sing. Thank God, Rex, you know, do what they did on the corner. And I went out there and I held the sign with him. So just just to let you know. I'm really fed up with it. I put my life on the line to serve this country. I volunteered willingly to die for this country if need be. So I'm asking this city to stand up, to do something now for me. Give back to someone who put their life on the line for this country. Now, I have two children, twins. Now that's two. Just turned 13. My daughter. Two months ago in Lawrence, Kansas, we have the fastest time in the 400 meter, which was a 5712 in a 12 year old group. I'm trying to raise my children to be decent children in the city of Long Beach to bring a good life to this city. So, please, if you can do anything. Please don't wait 30 days. It's been too long. It's been years. Thank you. Next speaker, please. But my name's Matt Houston. I just mentioned short term and long, long term solutions. But something that occurred to me is also a holistic approach that's import ant. Being from different parts of the country. Notice things are a little bit different here in L.A. County. One of the things that I've noticed is a lack of public restrooms. So one of the things that I've been trying to work on is an idea for for creating a company that all day that say all we do is as public restrooms and, you know, some of them self-cleaning, but then have access to Lifeline phones right there and maybe have some Lifeline phones with the apps built in right into it, right inside the hotels, you know, maybe have some, you know, touch screens, maybe figure out a way to use grant money to make sure that those are there. So people always have access, you know, find some people who have gotten out of the sex trade industry and maybe have them come together, create a nonprofit, private organization that creates a secure webcam, you know, for for girls that that want to do that stuff on online and make money whatever but not but do it in a safe way at least if that's if that's the way that's going to go, you know. And I mean, because people do that and a lot of a lot of sex trafficking ends up there, you know, and it ends up that, you know, people are sitting there watching and paying money online for people they don't realize are sex , sex slaves, stuff like that. So I think it's important to have security in those things as well. So the stick approach is important, but a care approach is important as well. So job placement opportunity, vocational aptitude test, maybe having one of the ideas I'm trying to toss around is having a separate kind of command structure for the sheriff's department. If I get if I get elected there and have a separate one with different leadership and have people that can volunteer one side or the other, but it's not so much aggressive enforcement, but, you know, completely different, you know, kind of like the Peace Corps versus Marine Corps type of thing. So you have you know, you can have some officers with crossover, but the leadership is different. And then you it opens up opportunities to be able to reach people that wouldn't come up to you in another capacity with a gun on the hip kind of thing, you know. And it creates, you know, if you have a sex slave in a pimp situation and then you have a different code and this command structure, then that might create some opportunities that aren't available right now. Also creating increasing communication, creating a special cable channel, marketing apps, outreach to the periphery of crime. Try to reach all the people that you can. Scholarships for new ideas reached out to the schools. How can we solve this from inside of schools? Different visa programs, you know, disrupt the, you know, the the networks of of the traffickers and that sort of thing. And even, you know, reach people on the periphery of that and pull them in and do some more on honest run work. And I just recommend against too much of a fortress mentality, some carrot, some stick, but in the right balance. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Houston. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mr. Garcia. Vice Mayor Richardson. Council members. My name's Cam Patel. I'm here to represent my family. We owned the property at 1657. Atlantic Avenue. Was on the list settling in in the ninth District. We have had that property for about 30 years now. We've never had any accusations that we were a nuisance to the community we like. My management often attends the Uptown Business meetings, which is right across the street. We got a letter in November from the city staff pretty much blindsided by it. You know, we right away turned around and worked with Carl Wegman in the planning department with the city to address some of the concerns he had. We met with a Long Beach PD right away as well. I emailed him the next day that we got the letter and also gave him a few phone calls. So we want to work with the city, but also there needs to be a little bit more dialog. We felt like we just got this call called our in our hands and we were actually we haven't even seen a call log, so just a little bit of dialog going on. Giving us the opportunity to have a seat at the table is is a definitely a good thing and I just look forward to working with the city and the community. You know, we work with DPS to help people find a place to stay in between homes or even homeless people. So sometimes that give us a situation where some people have some mental health issues that can also cause an increase in call log activity. So to be sensitive to those things as well, I think is you need to have opening to an open mind as well. So thank you very much next week. Good evening, City Council. My name is Dr.. Johnny Rex O.D. and I'm a member. I'm actually vice president. Of the Forth Park Neighborhood Association, which is actually just across the river from the Coolidge Triangle and along with neighborhood associations that are most affected by the issue with human trafficking. And I'm in complete support of this agenda tonight. Agenda item tonight. We currently have an unacceptable situation occurring among many of the motels in my community along these boulevard. We have had several we have several daycares and two schools in the in the vicinity where our children are subject is not only see this activity back to be accosted and propositioned by traffickers, which is absolutely egregious and the situation has been allowed to fester for too long. So I implore the city to take the situation seriously and take the issue of crafting this ordinance seriously for the sake of the men, women and children being exploited every day in the community, face to force to have to endure it. Let us no longer be complicit by turning a blind eye to one of our most pressing modern day social ills. And with that, I say thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello. Good evening again. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and our councilwoman strikes again. I have lived in North Long Beach for the past three years and again, we've been having problems. Oh, my. Not not until I think about two years. From that point on, we've been complaining to the police because we have a neighborhood watch, neighborhood association meetings. And the police, they always tell us, okay, when I should please call and report them. I've been doing that for months and months and months in a year, right where I live, we got to 2 to 3 schools. And again, parents are afraid to even enroll their children in there because they see all these prostitutes I'm sorry, all these people with very I could say the way they dress so provocative. And again, some of these kids that are walk to Colin Powers, they used to be walking in the mornings about two years about himself, but now they're accompanied by their parents because they're afraid of especially young girls showing young kids. They're afraid to leave them alone because, again, a well, they see the activity, they see the crime in the area. So again, when these gentlemen are saying that give us 30 days, we never heard about it. And I'm sorry, sir, but we never saw you there before. All of a sudden you're here because again, we're here. But we peaceful are newsletters once a month from the neighborhood association informing everybody about the crime in the area. These people never come to the meetings. There never were. We never have seen them coming to the meetings. We never have seen them. They don't even approach us to to see if they can improve the community. So there's the reason I'm here. So please, please. When you help. Thank you. Thank you so much. Thanks, speaker, please. Hi. My name is Ron at Mesa. I'm with the Hamilton Neighborhood Association. I'm a managing board member. Honorable Mayor Council members. Rex, I really I just want to thank you for. You know, bringing this to the attention and the awareness that you've brought. I had the honor of. Being at a demonstration. Last Friday with a number of. People here, men against sex trafficking. And there was a. Lot of community support, people giving. Us the thumbs up and honking. But there's also pimps that came. Out and threatened us and we had to cut our demonstration short. So that showed me and I guess I didn't. Understand that this problem is going on because I live in a in a couple. Of neighborhoods over. I do find used condoms and things on our streets. But I didn't. Realize that pimps. Would come out and threaten us and scare everybody off. I hope we do it again really soon. But I would have. To ask you guys as a group to ask the hotel owners that are saying they had. No idea this was going. On. Where are they? They have bad employees that aren't reporting. All these police, all this police activity, illegal activity that are going on in their. Hotels. They don't live around here. Because it's obvious what's happening. If you drive up and down the street or you live in the area. Or they just don't care or they're profiting from it. Yeah. And if they're profiting from it, so is. The hotel alliance that came out and spoke. Because I'm sure they're paying money to be in this group. And I just have to say, I didn't. I. Got very educated since Friday. I didn't know there was 14 year olds out there. I didn't know that 98% of these people in servitude were basically slaves. They have guns held to their head. They're scared. They can't get out of this situation. And these hotel owners are giving them a place to. Perpetuate these crimes. So thank you again for bringing this to the attention of everybody, Vice Mayor And thank you for the protection you're offering these young ladies and young men that are in these situations. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Council member and mayor council members and Mayor Robert Garcia. My name is Renee Wheels and I'm a resident of the ninth District. I stand before you as an advocate for my community and a support for this motel ordinance. And thank you, Rex. I really appreciate this. And you took my 3 minutes, so I'm going to get this short. I just really. Want you guys to understand that between Long Beach Boulevard, between the 17 and new one, it's only a thousand steps for these children to take every day to go to school and come go home. Every day. It's a thousand steps. They are walking. They see the women. And the pimps waiting. So just. Imagine. Just take a moment for you guys, council members to take take a moment in your life when you're a. Child and you have this fear, these feelings of being uncomfortable and just the fear. Which is imagine you're a fifth grade student coming from Colin Powell walking down Amish Boulevard and he see a woman. What kind of feeling are they feeling now? They see a man standing by, just watching. What kind of feeling are they feeling? Then they have. Another time where they're walking and they're standing. There's a man following. Them home. And whispering in their ears. This has been done, as has happened to our students in Colin Powell. So please. This time's up on. Human trafficking and prostitution. But how many other how many more names do you want to add to hashtag MeToo? How many more names. So please support this ordinance. And thank you, Rex. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. And we have our last four speakers and they were closing our actual you'll be the last five speakers and the speakers list is closed. Yes. Good evening, mayor, vice mayor and council members. My name is Clyde ASADA. I'm a member of the ninth district lifetime member. And this has been something that has just waited too long. How do I know? Because when I was a child, I was that child that Renee spoke. I was a child in the Longwood neighborhood. And that is exactly the experiences that that I, I encountered. I'm an adult now, and I see it. It continues. 30 years later, nothing has changed or very little has changed. If anything, it's getting worse. I remember when the luxury and was built as the Days, Days Inn M otel or Days Inn Inn Suites and you know, it was really shiny, pretty and new. And at that time we had we would have, you know, quinceaneras, weddings, whatever. And none of my family was going to stay there. Nobody was going to support these businesses as hotels are motels because we knew exactly what kind of activity was going on there. Now we have, you know, freshly painted luxury end, but it's still the same thing. You put a lipstick on a pig. It's still a pig. So what we want to do is change the the policy change, change the use of it. What we need are restaurants, coffee shops, banks that is reflective of the neighborhoods that are immediately surrounding that strip. The Coolidge neighborhood in the Longwood neighborhood are not reflected by what is on the street. The businesses that are there do not reflect our interests. They reflect their pocketbook interests. So thank you for the time. Thank you. That's bigger council members. My name is Peter McBride. I've been part of an organization that rescues girls that are being sex trafficked. Somebody said something about Snoop Dogg. I'd like to point out that he was a pimp. These pimps are taking these girls. They're they raped them several times. They beat them daily. That's that's just the beginning of what they do to these women. I could go into deep detail, which is not part of what's going on today, but this is the violence that's going on. And we all know that violence breeds violence. I pointed out I was at the stand over at East Croydon Street and Long Beach Boulevard Boulevard. And I was pointing out to the people, because I've been involved with the rescues. The extent of security that goes on there. I was pointing out how the security was walking around the different levels, how the security of the pimps, men were driving around. If you if you own that place or you work at that place and you can't see that type of security, then something's going on. You're missing out. Oh. For the police officers. Long Beach is setting the standard for handling human trafficking. They're setting the standards. So somebody is saying something about the police force here in Long Beach. You need to take a step back and regroup. And the problem that they're having with these hotels really needs to something needs to happen with the hotel. I'm not from Long Beach, but I've been down here with men stand against trafficking and you have a problem. And I appreciate what you're trying to do with that. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, the last three speakers. Hi, I'm Juanita Parrish. I'm a member of the Coolidge Triangle Neighborhood Association. I've met a lot of you. I was I had an opportunity to meet our mayor and of course, our vice mayor, Rex Richardson is my councilman. What I'd like to say, there are three things I'd like to address. One is every month we have our neighborhood association meeting. Every month we complain to the police department. We've had our chief of police come to our meeti ngs, we've had our commander come to our meetings, we've had vice come to our meetings. And we've we regularly have officers come to our meeting. They give us updates. They're not the problem. The problem is the system. And we're trying to correct that system now and we're asking for your help. We can we can take a reactive approach to everything. Every time something happens, we react. But tonight we have an opportunity to take a proactive approach to something. All of you have an opportunity to take a proactive approach. And like the gentleman said, we become we become the the everyone looks to us as the example, just an example of set. I understand those three gentlemen from the motels. If tonight we were voting on something, it was becoming ironclad. They would have a right to say 30 days, but they don't have a right to say 30 days. All they want us to do is to put it on the back burner so that we have to come and try again. We're not making something ironclad. What we're saying is, after the pilot program, let's explore this, let's explore this. Let's change the laws. If they're not working, we've got to change them. So all we're asking you to do is to. Support. This program. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week, speaker, please. I remember. Distinguished counsel. Thank you. My name's Dave San Jose. I was born in Long Beach Area Community Hospital in 1940. So I've seen the good, the bad, and I guess I'm seeing the ugly. In. The house. I live in North Long Beach. I've been there 40 years. I really love my home, I love my neighbors. I got some great neighbors and they all feel the same way about our community. I ran a youth center for 18 years as a volunteer in this city and probably for at least 15 of those years I had kids. Tell me about the motel, the luxury. They told me all the things went on in there and I had to deal with gang members. Your average everyday kid, boys and girls. I couldn't believe the stories they told me. I found them all come true. And the situation that's happening now, it's I just heard the other day is this teacher is going to teach a class. About how to walk home safely. I'm Colin Powell. In middle school. God, I never had a class like that when I was a kid. I mean, how many your kids have to do that? But these kids really have to do that because they walk by and through this situation. It's really gotten there. But you've heard all the horror stories. These

guess the mayor can't. Nobody should vote for two. But then when do people leave the city? Because you're only going to be here four years. Five years, whatever it happens to be. Are you going to leave the city better than you found it? Now you have an opportunity to do that because what these people are saying, what these people are feeling is real. Last week, 17 people got shot in Miami. Uh huh. Things like that are happening. This is real. We live in different times. We need to do something about it. You need to do it now. And don't worry. The kids are going to be alive for a while because they're taking a class. How to walk home. Thank you very much. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you so much. And our last speaker. Is a. Mayor. And council member. My name is Yogesh Patel. I own. Colonial motels, which is one of the listed property. I've been running the place for 37 years. I repeat 37 years. When I came to Long Beach in 1981. And only eighties, police used to do sting rings. Last 15 years. There is no such thing as ten years because the. Hostages are gone. Most of the complaint we heard from people on northside, i suggested you guys host September Stinger. These are the other thing. If you want to stop oh, stop renting rooms to people who don't have a place to go, where would they go? Do you want to have people living in huts, you know, Cambodia on. Pacific Coast Highway like we have in downtown Long Beach under a bed. So this is all we have to make. And as far as this clothes are concerned, I believe in the motels have a private security. We have private security. So I don't know where all these calls come from. If there a noise tick issue. If the. Boyfriend and girlfriend. Fight the call, the police. Are you going to hold us responsible for that? You know? If you think that's right? I don't think that's right. Also, we have a contract with the city. We work with the city to house the veterans. We are contracted mental health association. We work to help them. Now, if we did exist, where would these people go? It's our obligation to all walks of life to work together. And I'm urging you guys to come to the table and find a solution. And. Fix the problem rather than just building without, you know, getting what's real inside. So we are asking you to sit down and talk it out and solve the problem, not create more problems. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment. Appreciate that. I want to go ahead and go back. We're going to go back to the council, have a couple a couple comments, and then I'm going to turn it back to the makers of the motion. First, I want to just thank everyone that came out. I think that particularly for the neighbors that came out, I know how important of an issue this is to all of you. I know how important this issue is to Vice Mayor Richardson. I think we spent about 15, 20 minutes this last weekend over a beverage talking about this very issue and how important this is to him to get this done for t he community. For those that aren't familiar with the neighborhood. I think some someone said it earlier that the neighborhoods have it's a community of homeowners that whose community and homes are really beautiful and the neighborhood has well certainly has needs is a great collection of property owners that are working to improve their greater area. And so to say that one major boulevard isn't a good reflection of Coolidge or of the neighborhood is true. It isn't a good reflection. And I think that Long Beach Boulevard could be well, hopefully one day rise to the level of where the actual neighborhoods are. I think that's I think obviously a lot of the interest. I think it's important. You know, I appreciate that the owners of the of the motels that are here, I do think that data is important. And I think when data is presented by the police department, those are facts. And I think that we have to look at data and understand that the data is telling us something. And when calls are being made, it is the responsibility of the property owner, sir, to ensure that those issues are being mitigated. Now I want to ensure I want to make sure that as we move forward on this, I appreciate the vice mayor wanting to work and bring everyone to the table. I think that's responsible and obviously it's very appropriate. But I will say that I completely support the motion in front of us today and the and I know that we will adopt this tonight. I also want to just make sure, Mr. City Manager, that one thing was brought up tonight that was of interest to me is if we are and if the city I understand that the city has a serious issue with homelessness. That is a statewide crisis, and I appreciate that. But I also want to ensure that when we work with property owners or motels or others in a partnership to house, that this is that looking at those contracts is part of this motion. If the vice mayor is open to that because I'm not okay with regardless of who they are whether they're someone that's homeless or someone with a mental illness or a veteran. I want to ensure that we're also in there being placed in locations that are also safe and that are. That are appropriate. For for them. And so if the vice mayor's okay, if we can take take a look at the contracts and I'd be interested in any information back as to what what motels do we actually are under contract for for these services. And if they where they are and if they're actually on these lists and that would be just something for us, I think, to explore it as well. And and I will say also that what's impressive to me about this agenda item, besides all the work that went into it, which I know that the District 19 did, is there is actually the the liquor store ordinance has had really great success. And it's really impressive to me that and listen, there's still a lot of bad liquor stores and particularly in the area where we first looked at the issue in the north. But there has been some real success stories out of that ordinance as well. And so I have a lot of hope for this. I would encourage staff to be very serious about the amortization program. I mean, that has worked in a lot of places. Now that we don't have redevelopment, think we need to be serious. I know there are legal hurdles and I think we need to be responsible about that as as a as a city. But I think that that should be looked at very seriously. And we should absolutely put in place an ordinance that looks at everything listed here. And and as we look at that and as a community engages if it needs to go beyond that and and look at ensuring that we have appropriate standards there for those that are also working there, that is within this council's purview as well. So I support this vice mayor, but most importantly to the community, you guys are doing a great job looking out for your neighborhood and for the city of Long Beach. So thank you and. And with that, we take it back to Councilmember Pearce and then Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mayor. And I definitely was going to follow up on many of the points that that the mayor made. I wanted to ask a couple of questions of staff. When police calls. Calls to service are done for these locations. How are the owners of these locations notified? And I know our police chief is not here, but I was wondering if anybody could answer that question. Will communicate that to the police department and get back to you as soon as possible. So it would be my request that as part of this program that the owners of any location where there are police calls, particularly hotels or motels that were I were mailing them a notification or reaching out to them. It's I could understand if an owner is not there operating it every day, their employees are dealing with it. Maybe there's a gap. Let's make sure there's not an excuse for saying that they didn't know these calls were being made. And so I would hope to see that. Understood. My other comment is in regards to, you know, the fact that we do use vouchers for some of these places and we do have standards in our continuum of care that might not be reflected in the contracts that we have with our health department. And so I'm curious, I know that we've been doing work for about a year on trauma informed care, and I know that we're about to do even more work on that and making sure that any location where we have a contract that might be out of the norm, that there be some part of trauma informed care or not trauma informed care, but trauma informed lens that not only would they be able to identify human trafficking, but also if it was a boyfriend and girlfriend that were having a fight. What's the best way to deal with that? How do you reach out to PD and not assuming that everybody that works in one of these motels might know best practices, but that if we are having a contract with them, we need to make sure that that's the bare minimum that we're doing. We'll make sure we engage health department in that. Yes. Thank you. And then just recap one more time and making sure that the, you know, exploring transitional housing options after amortization in funds with the county is included as well. So thank you and thank you, everybody, for your passion and your commitment. I definitely got goosebumps a few times while you guys were talking and it hits home. And that's not often that we have a council meeting with something that could be so visceral. If you actually, while we're talking logistics about a program, knowing that this ruins lives not only for the individuals that are being trafficked, for those dealing with them, for their family that miss them. And so thank you so very much for caring and thank you so much to this council for taking the leadership. Thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So, first of all, Mayor, I want to thank you for your strong support on this item. I think that message came across really clearly, all the council members who spoke. Thank you so much for those comments. I just want to just acknowledge a few things. So, first of all, thanks for having the courage to share your stories. A lot of people may not believe some of that stuff, but the truth is, you were being modest. You were being very modest. I was there Friday when someone said a pimp rolled up and threatened us. I was there. Right. I think if people did see that experience or see what you're dealing with, I think we would have a lot more support publicly around this issue. This is a you know, I have to say this. You know, there's been a lot of meetings organizing. I have to acknowledge that you, the neighbors, we've done maybe five meetings in the last few months, specifically on this issue, in addition to the neighborhood association meetings that meet monthly. So this is this is sort of community empowerment. And it's best you stepped up, made this issue a priority. City Council acknowledges it. Right. We're going to cast a vote and set ourselves on course to hopefully fix this issue because frankly it is fixable. It is fixed, but we can't fix every we can be on the right side of the human trafficking argument. We can't fix human trafficking forever and everywhere in the short term, but we can't fix Long Beach Boulevard. We know where they're rooted and the data justifies it. So I just want to want to want to acknowledge that to the city council. I want to thank you for your indulgence. You know, sometimes there are issues that mean, you know, I have no doubt that the city council acknowledges and values. When a resident steps up and says, this is important, we do it all the time. When issues come up, I may not be able to personally commit to it or understand it, but I take a step back because I know that that's 100% true to that council member in their district and it's 100% true to the people that are there. So thank you for that indulgence. These are the moments that these residents are never going to forget. When the city council listened to them and heard them out because they felt ignored for a long time. So whether you hear me or not, I acknowledge I acknowledge you guys indulging. And I really thank you for that. So the final thing I say is, you know, I have no doubt that we're going to get where we need to get to. We have to remain vigilant, continue to have meetings. But I have no doubt that there is light at the end of the tunnel on this issue. There are policy changes that can make a difference. So thank you all again and again. Encourage City Council support. Thank you. With and with that, there's a there's a motion and a second. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you. Thank you all for. Thank you all for coming out. Thank you. We we will go back to the item on on parks and so per the the other motion. Thank you, guys. Thank you, Dave. Yeah. Thank you. Bush and Kerry's. Thank you. Next up is 34. Item 34 is a report from Public Works, Parks and Recreation, Marine. Recommendation two What the contract to you says cow builders for the Halton Park Community Center project for a total contract amount not to exceed 5.2 mil District nine. Any public comment? Re staff report, please, Mr. Mayor. Sure thing. Any public comment saying none. Mr. West. Steve Scott. It'll be Craig back. But we look alike, I guess. So tonight, we just wanted to bring forward this fantastic community project to build a new community center in District nine at Howden Park. We do have some images that we'd like to share. What you see here is an overview of the current site as it exists today in the buildings. Well, building, they're all kind of built at different points in time. And what's interesting I think about this perspective is that the newest built building, which was 1987, is the one that we're having the most challenges with, and we're probably going to have to take down a portion of that wing. So this site perspective kind of shows you where the new building will be, the one that we're going to start in 2018. This is a layout of what that building will be. It's a community center that represents roughly 6500 square feet, plus an enclosed courtyard that's another 4000 square feet. And these are some of the images. And you can see that we're really trying to respect the existing architecture of the older structure and add in the new structure so it can stand on its own with its architecture itself, but also integrate in with the new building where we're really shaping where the entrance will be. Again, some different perspectives of what that's going to look like. We will win for. No question. The exciting part about this evening, with council's support on this item, we will do a groundbreaking March 3rd at 11 a.m. We invite you all to participate and celebrate this new project. Construction will start will start shortly after in April, and we should finish in summer of 2019. That concludes staff report and available for questions. Thank you very much. There's a motion in a second and a customer appears. I just want to say congratulations. I know everybody worked really, really hard on this. We should have heard this item when all your people were here, but congratulations. I know. I would have been a good idea. Congratulations, guys. Now, just say something quickly, Mr. Mayor. Sure. Just want to say I know how hard public works work to make this project happen under difficult budget constraints. And

Craig, you're doing an amazing job. And I just want to recognize that in park staff has been working with this for a long time on this. They know how important this is. Thank you to everyone. This is I like to call it a hundred years in the making. Right. So this is really significant. And we got to vote on it on your last day. Murray, thanks a lot. Thank you. Next up is item 35. So after the vote, of course, I did have a comment. We have we did have a comment. Okay. So we're going to go ahead and go to the regular agenda items. Item 22. Report from City Manager Recommendation to receive and file a report on the Long Beach Values Act and adopt a resolution entitled the Long Beach Values Act of 2018 Citywide. Okay. Thank you. I'm going to turn this over, I believe council. I'm going to go to start first for the presentation, so we will begin. Mr. West. Mayor, council members, our deputy city manager, Kevin Jackson and his team are. Going to present this item. They've been working on it for quite some time. Kevin Okay. Thank you, Pat. Good evening. Honorable Mayor Garcia and members of the City Council is my absolute pleasure to present this report on the Long Beach Vows Act of 2018. Before we get into the presentation, I'd like to acknowledge Deputy City Manager Monica Kalita and officer equity manager Katie Balderas, who will be assisting me with the presentation tonight. Get the clear. So to get started to provide context for tonight's discussion, I'd like to share some demographic information about our immigrant population in Long Beach. More than one in four residents in Long Beach is an immigrant. This includes at least 123,000 naturalized citizens, lawful permanent residents, temporary migrants, humanitarian migrants and other foreign born residents who were not U.S. citizens at birth. Nearly three quarters of immigrants in Long Beach have been living in the U.S. for 17 or more years. And one in three workers in the civilian labor force are immigrants. And over a quarter of Long Beach residents, immigrants are homeowners. And finally, over half of children over half the children in Long Beach have at least one parent born outside of the U.S.. So to get right into the item on September 19th, 2017, the city manager received direction from the City Council to partner with immigrant rights organizations to develop a local policy that expands on SB 54 with the following policy considerations in mind protecting and advancing, protecting and advocating for local DOCA and Dreamer studen ts. Protecting the confidentiality of local immigrant residents and their information. Examining partnerships with the Los Angeles County Fair Local Defense Fund. Preventing future deportations of Long Beach residents. And affirming an aggressive approach to advocating at the federal and state level. For programing. We get policies. Engagement was the starting point for policy developing. Taking time to consider all stakeholder perspectives and to engage a core city. A core team of city staff representing the appropriate expertize from the Health Department's Office of Equity, the Police Department, City Attorney's Office, and the city manager's office was the essential first step in effectively assessing all relevant issues and to establish a method for facilitating organization. Community engagement. Doing the policy development process. Community Engagement included a series of listening sessions with key stakeholders led by the Office of Equity in the City Manager's office. Our initial session occurred with the Sanctuary Long Beach Coalition on September 29th, a little more than a week after receiving council direction. The Coalition was broadly represented at this initial meeting and we were able to gain some immediate insights from each organization on their concerns and general aspirations for local policy. In a follow up session on October 16, Coalition members presented our team with specific recommendations they would like to see in a city policy. And we all. We also followed up with listening sessions with the Executive Director of Central Chair, Cal State, Long Beach Police Chief, and the Director of the Dream Success Center at Cal State Long Beach. Most recently, we held a follow up session with the Coalition on February 13th. So what we heard from the listening sessions is that we should explore the development of a local policy that protects sensitive information and limited use of city resources for assisting enforcement of federal immigration law. We also heard that we should consider enhancing access to legal representation for local residents, and also that we should enhance the city's federal and state legislative advocacy. We found these interest to be consistent with the initial city council direction and identify them as core policy considerations for further analysis and development. Our report tonight will provide information on each of the core policy considerations, starting with an overview of the proposed local policy. So in developing a policy enveloping the policy under consideration tonight, we evaluated 28 California cities with policies related to immigrant protections. We compared our current policies and practices with the provisions of SB 54, the policy recommendations of the Sanctuary Long Beach Coalition. And from this analysis, we created an initial draft policy. And at the conclusion of an offer of a final administrative and legal review, we obtained input from the Coalition on the proposed policy in our February 13th meeting. All employee associations were notified of the proposed policy on February 27th, and at this point negotiations have not concluded. So as proposed, the policy to an administrative regulation would establish limits for requesting and sharing information with immigration authorities and using city resources to assist with immigration enforcement. Here is addressed in the policy include limits on sharing personal and sensitive information, sharing release date information, executing transfers, responding to whole requests, enforcing civil immigration warrants and the use of city facilities. The the proposed policy allows the city to continue collecting information necessary for providing city customers. City services unrelated to immigration enforcement retains the law enforcement exceptions permitted in SB 54 and requires compliance with all relevant federal, state, local laws and regulations, including Title eight of the United States Code, subsection 1373 and 1644. The policy would expand protections for sensitive information beyond citizenship and immigration status by including the additional categories reflected here. The scope of the proposed policy is another area of expansion. SB 54 applies only to law enforcement agencies, whereas the proposed policy would apply to all city manager departments and offices. And in the interests of administrative uniformity, we would ask that the City Council consider requesting other city departments and offices to comply with the post policy or similar procedures. We also like to acknowledge that training will be provided to all city departments and offices on the adopted policy. The City Council letter for this item was published on March 5th, and at that time we did not foresee a fiscal impact relating to the implementation of the proposed policy. However, on March six, the Justice Department filed a lawsuit against the State of California regarding three state laws providing immigrant protections, including SB 54 California values that the lawsuit alleges that SB 54 and its policy consistent with it violates Title eight of the United States Code, subsection 1373. While this is a matter of interpretation that will only be settled by the courts, we must acknowledge with this new development that that the fiscal impact of the proposed policy is uncertain relating to the continuation of our eligibility for federal grants. Currently, the police department received nearly $6.7 million for Homeland Security and other law enforcement purposes. So now turning to the other consideration, legal representation, enhancing access to legal representation was another policy consideration and it corresponded with the council's initial direction and we were specifically directed to examine partnerships with L.A. County for a local legal defense fund. In response to this direction, staff conducted an analysis of the L.A. Justice Fund, as well as similar initiatives underway in California and throughout the nation. In our analysis, we were able to gain understanding of the outcomes associated with legal representation for immigrants. The most robust evaluation of community based legal representation comes from the Vera Institute of Justice. The Vera Institute of Justice works with government, nonprofit partners and communities to increase immigrants access to legal services and improve relationships between immigrant communities and the law enforcement community. Locally, Vera is the evaluator for the L.A. Justice Fund and has provided matching funding for the city of Santa Anna's legal representation for it. In his November 2017 report, the November 2017 Report of the New York Immigrant Family Unity Project. Vera found that 48% of immigrants who had proper representation in court were successful in their cases, an increase of 1100 percent between when compared to the 4% success rate for typical unrepresented cases. The evaluation also found that 41% of clients in deportation proceedings had entered the entered or resided in the U.S. legally, either as a legal permanent resident or on a visa. Additionally, among parents who received representation in immigrant in immigration proceedings, 86% of their children had some form of legal status, primarily U.S. citizenship. So we also found in our analysis that there are a total of 491 individuals with pending immigration cases who do not have legal representation in Long Beach, Lakewood area. And only 9% of only 9% of individuals with cases filed in the last 90 days have legal representation. These cases are decided much more quickly and are usually unsuccessful. The main object of our analysis was the L.A. Justice Fund. The L.A. Justice Plan consists of $7.6 million contributed by the city and county of L.A., the Weingart Foundation and the California Community Foundation, which acts as the fiscal sponsor to administer the fund. In 2017, the foundation granted this money to 17 community based organizations to provide legal services to any eligible L.A. County resident. However, because the L.A. Justice Fund is a countywide resource, there is no way to prioritize Long Beach residents with the fund within the fund. We therefore found that it would not be possible to establish a local fund that prioritizes access to legal representation for Long Beach residents through a direct partnership with the L.A. Justice Fund. So to complete our analysis on what we thought it would take to feasibly establish a local legal defense fund, we created a conceptual model that could be implemented via public private partnership. To establish this bond. One time seed funding would be required in this model to encourage matching funds from philanthropic and individual sources. This bond could be established with a community foundation who could subsequently conduct an RFP process to select a legal services provider. This approach is similar to the way the L.A. Justice Fund operates. So what could this one do? At a minimum

um, the fund could provide legal representation for eligible individuals who are facing detention, deportation or in danger of losing immigration status. Parents who fear deportation and are in need of custody, support for their children under the age of 18. And those seeking asylum. Young people protected by Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals, DOCA and other related DEPORT should be taught deportation. Defense support. So who could this fund potentially serve? Also, at a minimum, the fund could provide services for individuals based on residency. People who live or work in the city of Long Beach and income individuals with a household income below 200% of the federal poverty level. This would be equivalent. This would be equivalent of $32,480 for a family of two or $49,200 for a family of four. So finally tonight, the last consideration relates to legislative advocacy. And the city has affirmed an aggressive approach to advocating at the federal and state levels for pro-immigrant policies. Council approved to approve the 2018 federal and state legislative agendas on January 23rd, including its official position on issues related to immigration, citizenship and DOCA on February 21st, as Congress was considering policy changes related to immigration, citizenship and DOCA. The city sent a letter to our federal delegation affirming our city's city council's adopted federal legislative positions on these matters. The city also connects weekly with our state and federal legislative advocates in Sacramento, in Washington, D.C.. They have confirmed that at this time there are no legislative proposals on immigration that are under consideration. We will continue to keep an eye out for legislation that is consistent with the city's adopted federal and state legislative agendas to ensure Long Beach remains aggressive in our advocacy efforts. That concludes the staff's presentation on the Long Beach Values Act of 2018. Okay. Thank you. Thank you very much. I to turn this over to Councilman Gonzales, who was one of the initial initial author to bring this forward. Councilman Gonzales. Yes. I first want to thank everybody for being here. I first have to thank quite a few people because I know just talking about it within my office. We've been at this for nearly two years plus, if not more. And I know many of you have been at this longer than our office has. So we really appreciate all of your work. That includes Central Cha. Thank you so much. They've talked a lot about integration services and they're currently doing all of that work now. Sanctuary, Long Beach Coalition, that is a multitude of many coalitions put together and we appreciate all of their work to get these this information together and make sure that we highlight all of the issues remaining about immigration in Long Beach. Our Police Officers Association, Long Beach Police Department and thank you to city staff. Kevin came on board and then we sort of threw him into this this big policy. Bu t I think it was very strategic in the way he presented it. And I really appreciate Katey as well from the Office of Equity. Together, they really informed me as to their collaborative effort. So I appreciate that. And I want to thank everyone for being here tonight as advocates and for sharing your stories about the impacts of our broken federal immigration system. We know that there are many hardworking families here in the city of Long Beach. I personally represent over 60% of of families in my district who are Latino. We know that we have the largest Cambodian population outside of the country. This is not new news to us. And nearly 30% of our residents identify as foreign born per the 2010 census. But that's who we can count. We know that's probably well more than that. We will be the first city to enact a policy, a local policy where the first largest city to enact a local policy, depending on what happens tonight after SB 54. And we were actually the very first city to enact our support for SB 54 as it was going through the process. So I want to really thank our state and federal legislative committees, as well as our state and federal government affairs team with Diana Tang in our city management for keeping us privy to the ongoing news of SB 54. So as a daughter of an immigrant immigrant, my mom came from our client as Mexico, and I know exactly what many of you are feeling. It took her many years to get naturalized and then become a U.S. citizen. But I know that many immigrant families now, whether wherever you come from, we need to certainly build a city here of inclusivity and a city where you know that you're welcomed. And we know currently that many ICE raids are occurring. And whatever happens tonight, I have to be I don't want to be the bearer of bad news, but I have to just be very crystal clear here, whatever passes tonight. And I'm hopeful that will pass something that will absolutely protect our immigrants that still, unfortunately, does not deter federal agents from coming in and deporting our neighbors, our friends, our family members, our sisters. So I just want to be crystal clear here, but what we can do is we can look forward to the future, as to what we can put together for Long Beach. And as the Center for American Progress Report, some of the most influential people in our in our country entrepreneurs, business people are the are immigrants themselves are children of immigrants. I actually work for one of the largest corporations. And what I was so excited about was that they put forward their support for immigrant employees. And we know we have many of them here as well. And in fact, many local business owners over this last year who generally are very conservative, you know, we know what side of the aisle they're on came to me in comments. And told me that they really wanted to see a local policy passed because they knew that their workforce, many of them who were undocumented, would hit their bottom line. And for w hatever reason, they cared for this policy. They told me in confidence that this was very important to them as well. Many people have different opinions on this, but as I mentioned, we have a city that has an obligation to stand with our immigrant brothers and sisters and ensure that they have every opportunity to make a positive impact, not just with this policy, but with future years to come. That means continuing to help them with naturalization and citizenship. That means continuing to help them at Long Beach Unified School District with educational resources. That means continue to work with our faith based partners, many of which, you know, in my the Catholic Church that I attend, the priest there is actually holding many of the birth certificates and medical documents in order to help immigrant families so that if anything happens, they have all their necessary documentation in one place and. First I'd like to say as well that we know that the federal government is coming down on California pretty hard. And we know that Attorney General Jeff Sessions is coming down on California very hard due to sanctuary city policies. And we just heard in the staff report that there are some concerns. And although we want don't want to say that these concerns are not going to happen because many federal courts have shot them down and local courts have shot them down, we know that it's still a concern for our city funding, despite the best efforts. We know that we have several federal cases in the past that have affirm this legal issue, that it is on constitutional for them to come down on California so hard. For example, in April 2017, San Francisco and Santa Clara County versus Donald Trump, U.S. District Judge William Orrick filed an injunction against President Trump's executive order trying to strip funding away from local cities, passing sanctuary policies. And in his opinion, which is one of many opinions, the constitution vests the spending powers in Congress, not the president. So the executive order cannot constitutionally place new conditions on federal funds. And as 60% of immigrants have been here for at least a decade or more, about $13 billion of their payroll taxes rolled into our systems while receiving little to no benefit. And many of us know this whether you're students, you're an employee, we know that you're giving to the system, but unfortunately not seeing much in return. And while the federal government is currently suing the state of California, particularly challenging the state rights as granted in the 10th Amendment over SB 54 and other immigrant immigration related bills, I'm confident that we will be able to prevail in court as a state and as the first city in California to support SB 54. It's certainly the spirit of this bill to lend our support and funding for a Long Beach Values Act and for residents of all different backgrounds and of all different spaces in the city. So I'm going to leave my comments there for now. I wi ll lend my comments to Councilmember Pearce. I see a few people queuing up as well and then we'll go from there. But I want to say thank you again for being here and then we'll go forward with some motions and recommendations. Thank you. That was the that was the make or make of the motion. I'm not I'm not sure if those guys were welcome to clap, but whoever's making those noises just just now, actually, you have a chance to do your time, sir. So please, just, you know, clapping or silence. Next up is Councilmember Pearce. Thank you, Councilmember Lena Gonzalez. And thank you, everybody, that is here today. I see a packed house and I know that for many of you that are here in this room, you, you, yourself or someone in your family might be undocumented. And coming out of this council meeting is, in fact, a step of stepping out of a place of fear and into courage. And so I just want to give you guys a round of applause for that. Yes, definitely. America was built on immigrants, right? America was built on immigrants. And part of what we know is that national and international policies often dictate the movement of people. Right. Sometimes people ask me, what am I doing in my sociology degree? And it's understanding how institutions and structures have an effect on people. And so we know that people come to our country for something better. We know that people make risk and leave families behind for something better. And we know that families live here for 20 and 30 years, sometimes before something happens. And like the gentleman that was at Cal State, Long Beach, who had a record, which I'm sure somebody here will speak to from 20 years prior, turned his life around and made a difference and ended up being deported, leaving his entire family back here. And so I look forward to hearing your story, your stories of courage. I want to thank the staff for their work on this. I think, you know, it's good to kind of see where the baseline is. But I do have a lot of concerns, as I've vocalized to many of you, with having something that looks similar to SB 54. So I look forward to hearing some recommendations from my colleagues. I look forward to hearing from you all in the audience today. I definitely support a financial fund, and I think having a conversation around how we have that, how much that fund should be is really important. But above all, I want to make sure that I'm advocating on behalf of every resident, whether they're a registered voter or not in our city, and that we know that our justice system is often flawed. And that is not a statement about one police officer. That is not a statement about Long Beach's police department. That is a statement around the American justice system that we too often have people of color that are imprisoned or pulled over. And I don't want that flawed system to break somebody's life and put them back in a country where they might not know anybody. And so I hope that tonight, through the conversations that we get to a place where you can leave here feeling protected and like Long Beach has gone above and beyond what the state has done. And that's where I'll leave my comments now and I look forward to hearing from my colleagues. Thank you. Thank you very much. We are okay. We're going to go move on to public comment and then we'll have other debate and discussion from the council. So please line up and please make sure you say your name for the record and we will begin public comment. Hey, Mr. Pete, you know, we start. I got to get my phone right. Okay. Robert, Pete, represent Jesus Christ. Only one that sits around here. That's some bullcrap. And you advocating for people of color, you don't give a damn about a nigger. That's all you are is a communist. And you for illegals, you don't care about black people. Maybe you shouldn't even done this. I ain't never gonna forget this. And anybody who votes for this, this ain't no damn mafia matter. So, you know, especially black dudes. I mean, they don't gave $99 billion last year due to illegal aliens to 1.4 trillion since 2015. And now we give them people who don't deserve one damn dime. Now, I love I have a lot of people that undocumented I love. But hey, what about us? What about us? I'm here for my people, too. But I will never hear. I'll never be a socialist talking about nothing for us. Let's. I'm saying what I want. Don't ask me up, please. You came out here. You came on as a Republican and you backstab and you, Benedict Arnold, people over here, you got money from people I know you liar. You. When did you just see? I'm talking to you. I'm just talking. You shut the hell up. Hey, so. So, yeah. Address the. And then you tell her. Don't talk about the issue. I'm saying what I have to say. No, I don't like none of this. You get your ass back to Peru and do this shit or whatever, you know, don't. Don't do it here. This is America red, white and blue. So you ain't doing it out of a damn about none of them. Tell them to shut up. Yea. Yea. Yea. Yea. Yea. You're going to get on the dance floor, but then you do it, so you're going to be asked for that anyway. Yeah. Yeah. But. See. I think your. Language is very offensive, and I don't really care for it. Mr. Mayor. I know. Hey. Hey. I got a time here. Thanks. I know you're almost up for me. Mm hmm. Mm hmm. Mm hmm. You put millions, trillions to it you live with. Ever since Obama's been said nothing about no referee. Okay. Shut up. You talking about. All right. Time's up, sir. Time's up. Thank you. Thank you very much. Time's up. Thank you very much. All right, sir. Time's up. Got to go. Thank you, Mr. Pitt. Thank you very much. Your time is up, sir. Thank you very much. Okay. Mr.. Mr.. Gucci, before you speak of just 1/2. So just as a reminder, believe it or not, sometimes even all opinions have the ability to speak in front of the city council, including the he has a First Amendment right to say what he wants to say. It's been well documented in the courts. An d so we will continue on the three minute time period. And we'll begin with Mr. Goode here. Mr. Goode, who praised my pragmatic solution to this issue, is that those people who are considered in South Dakota. Should line up, put their name on a list if they're not there already. And then what they need to do is get in line behind those who have been in this country legally. Now, for those people who are legal residents of the United States and who have come have followed the process, if they so elect, what they can do then is take one of the individuals that is in the dock line. And say, okay, I will underwrite your cost. So, John. Q Public does not have to pay to pay for that period, whatever those costs are. But what you have to do is get in line. Wait your turn. And for those people that want to pay for these people, they can certainly do so. But the government should not be forced to pay for illegal. Immigration. Period. Ahmed No matter who it is, no matter where they came from. Guys, everyone, please, in the audience, everyone gets a chance to speak now. No comments. Please, Mr.. Get here. That's the fair way to do that. In my view. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. HAYES Thank you, counsel, for having me. My name is Jonathan Solorzano. I'm a resident of the ninth District and a community organizer. With the Long Term Regret Coalition. Since January of 2017, the community involved. In its Sanctuary Language. Campaign. Has been consistent in advocating for a sanctuary. For all policy to help prevent the deportation of immigrants. Immigrants are deeply rooted in the history and diversity of the Long Beach community. And if our city is to reflect our values and respect what the City Council directed on September 19th of 2017, local law enforcement should not be helping to deport any immigrant residents. Despite members of our campaign working with a broad group of city staff, including the Long Beach Police Department. The current proposal of the Long Beach Values Act falls short of this shared value. What I want to do now is ask everybody who's here tonight to support a claim on beach values that to please stand tonight and please remain standing. Tonight, you will be hearing from community members from this city who want to see their political leaders stand on the right side of history and not only vote for this policy sitting in front of you tonight, but to also remove the language that would effectively leave out a huge population of our immigrant community, some of which are here tonight, by not pushing for more than what SB four, SB 54 offered. We're essentially wasting our time here. We need to do more as a city. We need to do more as a community. Because what we just heard earlier is only the beginning. This isn't a year into the Trump administration, and we've been seeing more and more attacks. We've been seeing more and more raids and deportations. And if this city does not stand for the immigrant communities, then they're e ffectively telling us which side they stand on. It is not a it is not a time to compromise. It is not a time to debate. These are people's lives we're dealing with here tonight. And I urge you all to please stand on the right side of history and vote for a Clean Lobby's Values Act. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Next speaker. Good evening, city council members. My name is Jarrod Jimenez. I'm actually the chairperson of Unagi and Long Beach, a youth, a student organization that fights for the rights of Filipino youth here in the U.S. and in the Philippines. We are here today to support our immigrants and our undocumented community. And that enough is enough as a. That's who came here 24 years ago from the Philippines. I've seen my own family members get deported, and it hurts to see that that they were immediately taken away from their families, just like the 6000 Filipinos that leave the Philippines every single day to provide a better life for their families. My family arrived here and faced even more exploitation and hardship, like when my mother experienced wage theft and not being paid all the hours that she's worked, not speaking up when her employer treated her badly, and also fearing the police because she was undocumented and she didn't even know what her employer would do. As a youth of color, growing up here in Long Beach. I have also experienced neglect and criminalization in school and in my community. Now that I've turned my life around for the better, serving the Filipino community as a citizen. I'm very lucky to be standing here with a second chance, but a lot to a lot of our undocumented youth and our immigrant families who have turned their lives around. The second chance is nowhere near them. They are deported and separated from their families. Immediately, it is important that the city of Long Beach use city council members and its local law enforcement do not collaborate with ICE as we are seeing this administration. More and more families are being separated and we can no longer stay silent about that. The carve outs that were proposed by the city staff of giving information to ICE on past convictions is actually giving them more of a reason to separate and deport our families. Immigrants who has had past convictions and served their time deserve a second chance. If the city really upholds and celebrates diversity, then that should mean all of our immigrants. There is no time for sitting around and letting time pass by while someone's family out there is being affected. So as I'm standing here today speaking to you all and I, along with my community right here, we need a clean Long Beach Values Act that will keep our families together and our families to be healthy. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi, my name is Denzel Bucharest, and I'm here representing the office. Of Congressman Alan. Lowenthal, and he wanted me to read this. Statement on his behalf. I want to urge the City Council to bicycling Long Beach

Values Act with no carve outs for past convictions and a fully funded deportation defense fund. The impacts of these carve out is inconsistent with the values of diversity, progress and inclusion, as it disproportionately excludes the majority of the Cambodian refugee community currently highly vulnerable to deportation. In November of 2017, I sent a letter to the President and the Department of Homeland Security expressing my deep concern. About multiple reports of. ICE targeting Cambodian Americans in the city of Long Beach and across the country for detention and possible deportation. Reports show that California is the most impacted with a significant. Number belonging. To my district. The rates are causing extreme worry and distress for many families in and around our communities. In recent months. Constituents have contacted my office to express terror and trauma that they are experiencing. From escalated. Deportation tactics of the current administration. Most, if not all, of those detained were lawful permanent residents who came to. The United States as refugees following the end of the Khmer Rouge genocide. Many were born in refugee. Camps and have never set foot in the countries that ICE is trying to remove them to. Upon arrival into the US, many where we settle into neighborhoods. Struggling with high rates of poverty, crime and failing. Schools still coping with significant trauma. From the war. These refugee kids made mistakes as teenagers and young adults and were fueling to the criminal justice system. All of them served their time and the majority transformed their lives to become productive community members. Business owners and loving parents supporting their U.S. citizen, families seeking the deportation of individuals. Who have already completed their sentences and have comply with the law completely since. Then is an. Unconscionable form of double jeopardy. It is troubling to see. One of the biggest roundups of Southeast Asian refugees in recent memory happening. Our constituents and families across. The city and the country should not be used as political. Pawns. I call on the Long Beach City Council to pass a clean Long Beach Values Act to protect. These vulnerable communities. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week, a police. Good evening, Mayor. City Council. I live in a first year. Took in the Walker building where I own a loft. And I want to talk to you a bit about this, because my family came to this country about 310 years ago. So it's quite a bit back there. We came into the Atlanta was owned by the indigenous people. It was their land. I'm not happy what's happened to them either. But I also then in the family of an immigrant, as are almost everybody in this room, and anybody with a European background definitely is. Other people were brought here against their will, but we took the land from the people who are here and in fact, the people of Latin America who are so seen as the enemy here and and wanted to be d eported. They, in fact, come from families, many of which are African. I mean, not African. Well, they're African, too, but also Spanish and Indian. So, in fact, these are the real people of this country. All of us are all the people up here. We're the people of the country. And you are, too. And we have to remember that. And we have to do right by people here. And that means there is no cut out. If people are served a sentence or people have been found guilty in to care their parole and probation, now they are back to having their rights . And we don't help somebody else come in from outside and deal with the questions of criminal justice in our city. This is important because we need to build a future so that everyone feels secure. I've worked in immigration issues since the 1960s, starting back in the Midwest, and all the time that we see that if people can feel free in their neighborhoods, they can then move forward, maybe towards citizenship. They can have less fear of reporting crime and things like that. We have to keep it so people can talk to other people and that is so important. And having a good sanctuary city policy with no cut outs so everybody can feel like they have a place here that builds trust and that builds love. And it means that children get education and people have jobs, and we need to do that. And I think that is what you're being called upon to do here. And I want to see that as a person in this city and of this country, I want to see those gates open people from all lands to come here. And by the way, every time this would ever come up in this country, or at least over in my life and I'm 78 years old, it's always been people of color. They wanted to get rid of whether Mexicans or other Central Americans or Asians, whatever.

For some reason they never say, Well, let's kick out Irish or Let's kick kick out some Brit. And if you go to the west side of this of L.A., you know, there's a whole lot of illegal Irish and other British over there, but nobody ever said, let's go get them and round them up. No, it's always one that the people of color from the parts of the world, there are people of color. We have to look at this as a real justice issue and you can help do it. Thank you. Thank you. Next week offers. Good evening, Major Cashier Vice Mayor Reg Richardson and all members of city councils. My name is Occupy. I am the community operations director at the Community Development Y.M.C.A. at Long Beach. I and I am an immigrant and I am a resident of Long Beach. We are one of the YMCA across the country focusing on providing and focusing on providing comprehensive services to immigrants to help them better integrate into the communities and preparing receiving community to be more welcoming and inclusive. The Y is very committed to helping immigrants and their family become more civically engaged in the community and building bridges between U.S. and Western and immigrants for more cohesive community. For example, over the last 17 years, our YMCA Youth Institute has inclusively connected and integrated over 4000 immigrant youth and youth immigrant parents into the community. We train them to be community leaders, social in top in law and civically engaged. We also host a community event like welcoming event to unify immigrants and as one resident, to have them build relationships between people of all backgrounds. By building bridges, we have to break down the often negative perception and still types often associated with the national immigration debate, since they are immigrant, dreaming to stay united with their family and keep their livelihood. It matters to us. That. They can be our family members, our friends, our colleagues, or even know we don't know them. It is our solemn obligation and social responsibility to ensure that we are here for them as they will people who will volunteer for us. Let it be the change and vote to make Long Beach a more welcoming and inclusive century city and bold stand up for all immigrants, including Dreamers. Let us feel our love, passion, commitment and social responsibility. And I. I faithfully believe that we all can do it. Can you say beat me? We can do it. We can do. We can do it. Yeah. I want diversity. Our diversity is always the greatest strength of this community of Long Beach nations. When we are. Protected, invested and supported with equity and inclusion, all of our children deserve a better community. We all are treated equally. We all are protected. We all are supported with. Equity and. Inclusion, and we deserve a better America. We all are treated equally. No matter where they come from, we can do it. Let's pass the where you ask at Long Beach. Thank you. God bless you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and council members. My name is Ann Burdette. I'm a member of the Long Beach Sacred Resistance and also the Sanctuary Coalition. Sacred Resistance is a network of dozens of local faith communities that stand firmly in the belief that sanctuary is a sacred and moral act of solidarity with our immigrant neighbors under attack from our federal government. Sanctuary is a historical response to a government which unjustly persecutes members of its own society. Starting with Sojourner Truth and the Underground Railroad to the Sanctuary Church movement in the 1880s, which offered sanctuary to Alaskans. Mr. Pete, you can't yell out when someone's talking during the clapping or booing. You cannot yell out when someone's talking. Please, please, please continue. Thank you. Sanctuary is an ancient religious practice which precedes and will outlast the policies of this current administration. As a sanctuary network of congregations, we are committed to advocacy, accompaniment and building network networks of protection for immigrant neighbors impacted by detentions, deportations and a broken immigration system. Sanctuary today is an act of decency and moral action in the face of the Trump administration's

including those who have a past conviction. Those who have passed convictions and have paid their debt to society are now a vital part of our families and communities. We believe in transformation. No one should be separated from their family and deported to a place they hardly know. We call on your leadership to stand firm in Long Beach values and allocate resources to strengthen networks of protection in our city. No amount of political intimidation will deter us or silence our unwavering commitment to defend our values of equality and compassion. Thank you. Thank you so much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. My name is Andrew Guy and. Probably the less. Well known co-chair of the Democratic Socialists of America as Long Beach chapter. We worked on the Sanctuary campaign. I'd like to just acknowledge the. Work and dedication that everybody else on the Sanctuary campaign put into this proposal. I think it says a lot about the power that ordinary working people have when they come together in solidarity and demand change. The Long Beach Values Act, as proposed here tonight, though, while a step in the right. Direction is not the same as the one proposed by the Sanctuary campaign. As its protections unjustly exclude. People with certain criminal convictions. I think in discussion, discussing the protections proposed here, it's worth making it plain exactly what we hope to protect people from. Mainstream news articles written over the past year have described parents being dragged. Away from their children in handcuffs. In front of schools. Mothers and their toddlers separated and imprisoned in detention centers thousands of miles away from each other. Dozens of people shackled to the floor of an airplane for hours, waiting to be sent away to countries ripped apart by war and violence. They tell us about lengthy stays and for profit private prisons with records of unexplained deaths, beatings. And charges. Of sexual abuse, where people are forced to work for next to nothing u nder threats of psychological torture and solitary confinement. And they tell us about people whose lives are ruined after they sent away from their families, their friends, their communities, their homes and everything that they know to places they haven't been for decades, where they no longer have any roots or connections forced to try and rebuild their lives from nothing. The Long Beach Values Act, as proposed tonight, says the Long Beach will not help throw anyone into that situation unless that person has made a mistake with the carve outs in this proposal as written. If you've made a mistake in the past, no matter what you've done to remedy it, no matter if you've served your time, if you were born in another country, then your city reserves the right to tip off an ethnic cleansing squad so that they can come and. Snatch you off the streets. That is all. Ice is dressed up as it may be under the color of law. Ice is the latest in a long history of white supremacist organizations engaged in a campaign of ethnic cleansing and racist terror. Its director, Thomas Homan, has acknowledged as much, telling immigrants, You should look over your shoulder and you need. To be worried. Those are our neighbors he is threatening. Those are people in this room. Thomas Herman's bosses in our state tonight, the council should take the opportunity to tell them both that in Long Beach, all immigrants can breathe a little easier because we're going to make it hard for them to take any of our neighbors away. Pass a clean act, one that truly reflects Long Beach's values and protects all immigrants with no exceptions. Thank you. Thank you. Speaker, please. Senator. Thank you. Mr.. STEPHANOPOULOS And, sir, Democratic Socialists of America, Long Beach Chapter. Good evening, Mr. Garcia. And congratulate and go to the fundraiser over the weekend with the college fraternity. I'm sure the discussions were very enthralling. I don't know if you had the opportunity to talk with your chief of staff, Mark Taylor, about his experiences at Brandeis University. Our shared, shared college alumni. But one of the privileges of attending that fine institution where there are many opportunities to speak with survivors of the Holocaust, those individuals, perhaps better than anyone in the world, are able to articulate not just the specific warning signs of impending fascism, but the corresponding lesson that such a dissent is not inevitable if those of us on the left unite in opposing forces by any means necessary. Make no mistake, residents of Long Beach are being targeted for forced removal on the basis of their race. National origin and political values right now turn on YouTube any day and you could see ICE actively breaking up families for no discernible or legitimate reason. And this is just the beginning. ICE is detaining witnesses at courthouses. Parents dropping off their children at school and community activists agitating for a better Long Beach. This is an intentional ca mpaign of pro se ethnic cleansing. The pretense of respectability is gone. Trump has appointed explicitly white nationalist ideologues to DHS, ICE and the DOJ. Attorney General Sessions, he of I like the Klan before they found out they smoked weed fame recently claimed the Anglo-American iteration of US policing right before coming to California to denounce sanctuary protections for all residents. What clear sign do you need that ICE is the modern Gestapo when deciding whether or not to vote on the right and aligning us with the state bill or providing additional necessary protections for our especially at risk residents. Ask yourself how you expect to justify this vote for generations that will come after you. Will you be able to tell your children or grandchildren that you did everything within your power to stop the fascists looking to destroy our city, or you appease the likes of Trump while he is in our backyard? The survivors who spoke at Brandeis were very clear about the origins of totalitarianism. Racially motivated deportations are one step away from many of us sharing the same character. Join with us and send a clear message to these fascists that they are not welcome in Long Beach. And way to the peel away mail is not worth voting on your conscience. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Mr. Pete Amos. Repeat, you need to take. Grab a seat, please, sir. This area is for two speakers. You already spoke, so you can grab a seat. You're welcome to record, but I need you. Grab a seat, please. We've got a lot of speakers, so we just need to clear the area, sir. Okay. Hold out through the room. Say, I cannot, sir. The rule. This area furnished for speakers or for some of that's with the speaker. Mr. C. Mr. Peet, I need you to grab a seat, please. Mr. Senior Attorney, can I be over here? Mr. Peet, I think you should grab a seat. I want to ask if. You can take a seat and record from wherever you want to sit. I can't stand. That's correct. Okay. Thank you, sir. On 1/2, go grab a seat in the late start. Okay. Okay. Thank you. Yes. Honorable Mary Garcia, thank you so much for that. And city council members, city staff and to everyone here. My name is Amy Ericson. I am the lifelong resident of the second District, but I'm also the chair of the Human Relations Commission here, appointed in the city. I would like to share tonight the letter that we have in support from the commissioners of the Lombard Values Act. The Human Relations Commission strongly expresses support for protecting all undocumented immigrants, refugees and Dreamers. We as a commission have witnessed heartbreaking testimonies of our very own undocumented community members who live in fear, particularly mixed status immigrant families with over 26% of our citizens being foreign born. All undocumented immigrants and refugees are part of our community. Neither nationality nor citizenship define a community and it should not be used to divide us. It is crucial to state Long Beach stands with our own immigrant neighbors and to draw a clear line between the roles of the federal Immigration Enforcement Agency and our local agencies. This is about our values. As the city of Long Beach. When our immigrant neighbors are in danger of being deported, we should stand by them instead of having policies that help split up families and drive immigrants underground. We are not confident that the Language Values Act as it is written, demonstrates that we stand by our immigrant communities. This policy perpetuates the narrative of good immigrants versus bad immigrants. This, as individuals with decades old criminal convictions, convictions that they have served time for can be used against them to make a case for deportation. Almost 16,000 Southeast Asian Americans have received deportation orders since 1998. More than 76% of those final orders were based on old criminal convictions, according to Southeast Asian Resources Action Center report released in 2016. Southeast Asian immigrants are the largest community of refugees ever resettled in the United States. And so the issue of deportation is always a looming threat. These deportation orders violate due process and doubly punishes our Cambodian community. If we as a city want to send the message that inclusiveness is one of the core values we build our community on, then we cannot turn our backs on our immigrant communities. As a city with the largest Cambodian population outside of Cambodia, we are in a unique position to implement a policy that provides a sanctuary for all. We call upon you to amend the Values Act so that it strengthens SB 54 and remove the carve outs as stated by the saying Sanctuary Language Coalition. Thank you for all being here. Thank you, Sir ERIKSSON. Further. We support the creation of a robust $600,000 defense fund to strongly demonstrate that there is a weight behind our words. The purpose and function of the Human Relations Commission is to promote full acceptance of all citizens of the community in all aspects of community life. To recommend to City Council measures, including legislation which will serve to improve positive human relations and the elimination of discriminatory practices, and to enhance and improve mutual understanding and respect for all citizens of the community. It is in this context that the Human Relations Commission submits this recommendation with the hope and vision of Long Beach, where our city continues to embrace values of justice, respect and dignity. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week, a police. So. Dr. Brown. ALL 1/2, please. So just again, Mr. Pete, you're not allowed to yell during some when someone's speaking, when when someone. No one is yelling when they're speaking. You can you can you can clap. What's the difference in during when someone is speaking? So I've warned you twice now I'm just letting you know you've been warned twice. We're not having a conversation. Just warning you again. Dr. Brown, all your ti me. Thank you. My name is Dr. Lee, and they were a webinar and I am a resident of the fourth District, and I also served on the Human Relations Commission. My address is on file. I want to tell a story of how I became a U.S. citizen. So my father is a Vietnam vet and he served in the US Navy for 20 years. It wasn't until after his service of 20 years that he got his citizenship and my mother had to wait another 20 or so years to and also another seven years of living in this country to get her citizenship. So my my thought is, you know why you know, the folks that say that, you know, oh, just get in line, you know, get a citizenship. It doesn't work that way. Okay. So and also another thing, my thought is growing up, why does it have to take a war to get a citizenship? Why? My dad fought in Vietnam, right? To get his citizenship. So why does it have to take a war? And so with that, in closing, why do we have to continue with a war with ICE and law enforcement and have our immigrant communities be impacted? Please pass a Clean Language Values Act with no carve outs. So that because we are here now and what matters now is what we do right now. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name is Zoe Nicholson. I live in the second district. I'm a member of CLU, a proud participant in the Sacred Resistance and a member of the Human Relations Commission. You know, it's Women's History Month. I get up every day and I think it's Women's History Month. I want to talk about women. And so I will. My version of being separated from their children while they're being separated from their husbands, daughters separated from their mothers and grandmothers. And you will hear from many of them tonight, safety, sanctuary, security, family. For women, it's everything new. There are so much suffering here. It is hard to believe we are having this conversation. I don't really believe. I choose to not believe that you want ice to knock down a door and break up a family. You don't want. To go into the schools, the workplaces, the hospitals and break up a family. Frankly, we never voted to empower you to tear a family apart or to deport good people who are here without family. I want to take a moment and recognize there are wonderful people who have no living family right now. I think this is too much power for any elected for any person in office. But here we are. Families and loving people are exactly what we need here in the USA, now more than ever. It's exactly what we need here in Long Beach. Tonight you can open up your arms and wrap them around this wonderful city and say you are safe here. Creating and sustaining a defense fund is your privilege to vote on that tonight. Way beyond Judy. Honestly, I think that no one should have this unholy right to break up a family. Which is to say that you are gifted by virtue of our vote to hold us close and be champions of a sanctuary. Thank you. Thank you. Because the next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Alisha SI

M and I live and work with. Cargos in Action District six. I am a 21 year old. Cambodian American. Full time student and worker. Born and raised in the city of Long Beach. From low income parents with a family of nine kids. Which five of. The nine were refugees? My family fled here to escape the Cambodian genocide. Living in Long Beach, my family struggles with language. Barriers, finances, transportation and health. Issues due to the lack of our resettlement support. Both of my parents work as seamstress. As a seamstress. And struggle every day to make sure they had a roof over our head with our with all the help and financial issues my family faced. My brother made a mistake when he was young and served his time. After integrating into society, he got a life sentence and was detained and deported to a country he isn't familiar with . My brother was born in a refugee camp, raised entirely on Long Beach, and after he was deported, he had to start over in Cambodia with no one there to support him. My mom loving, caring mothers have remained heartbroken. No, my husband is no longer around him. With whom he. For the first few years, my mom has been trying to help my brother by sending him money so he can get back on his feet, even if we didn't have much ourselves. Deportation has broken my family. It caused so much stress financially, physically and emotionally. Deportation affects families and our entire community, not just the individuals who are deported. Our families are suffering and struggling because of our history as refugees and a lack of support. And now we're being sent back. There's this double punishment. I am here today talking, fighting for all families and friends to make sure that the city of Long Beach does not contribute to other families. Experience what my family and I face intergenerational trauma that exists and the time is now to pass a Clean Language Bias Act with protections, including no carve outs for criminal history and a fully funded deportation defense fund. Thank you. Thank you so much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Next speaker, please. My name is Paul Szoke. I work with the Youth Justice Coalition. I work with at risk youth and I do Men Circle and a lot of other things. I also am standing member of ICE out of L.A. so I got in that line of work because when I was 16, I was living here in Long Beach. I've been here. I grew up out here. I was brought here as a child, a refugee, when I was 61 days old. When I was 16, I became parents. I wound up pushed out of school. I wound up in the streets and I wound up in the juvenile justice system only to wind up in prison. And so this is in 1998 and 1999. I don't come home until 2016, only to face deportation. We're talking about nearly 20 years later. So when we talk about violent felons talking about me. And we don't look at the character of who I am today at all. When all you see is immigrant and you want to deport me. You don't see what I do. Good for the community. No, that none of that is in the equation. And that's not valid because many of the folks in my situation now, business owners, maybe gone to school. And lately, because of the work that I do, been fighting my own deportation by myself because I taught myself law. I had to. It was the only way because there was no money to get me an attorney. I don't come from wealthy places. I come from low income, impoverished neighborhoods. A lot of us are in the same boat. But because of that work, I get calls from wives, mothers saying what I do about my son, what I do, what my brother, what I do about my husband. I can't pay the rent this month. They're gone. They're stuck in detention. So when you talk about deportation, you're talking about taking breadwinners. It's all about taking money away from families. So where does the money to support these families going to come from after that? It doesn't come from them. They have to find a different way. All it does is perpetuate the underground economy. That's why I told you where they're going to go, because they have no other means to pay the rent. Right. Same with me. I got in trouble because I made it for myself. There was no resources in the community. Nothing going on. Went to school. They idea. Here's your paper. Turn in your book. Goodbye. That's not a way to deal with the problems. Right. And if we want to punish people by sending them away, that doesn't address the problem, because that's still the case that somebody was hurt, the community was hurt. The solutions are in resourcing the community, so those things don't happen to begin with. So that's a real solution. But on any note, I just want to say something about people. What human nature? Illegal? Who would Jesus deport, if you want to talk about it from a Christian value perspective? And lastly, there are roughly a thousand people that are in our military, the US military doctor. There's a doctor all across the United States that are nurses, doctors, firefighters, even in some places. It's not about a piece of document. It's about their identity. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. I did. Evening Council. My name is Sheila Assi and I'm a lifelong resident of Long Beach, a homeowner in the city's district. And I worked with five year olds in Action, a youth led organization located in the fourth District. And we are a part of the Century Long Beach Coalition. I'm here tonight to urge the council to amend the Long Beach Values Act and pass a policy that is inclusive of the Cambodian community. As proposed, the protections granted by the Long Beach Values Act would not be extended to people with certain past convictions and thereby would not be extended to the majority of the Cambodian community. Vulnerable to deportations. Because of the repatriation agreement between Cambodia and the U.S.. Cambodian refugees, including those with green cards, are vulnerable to deportations for past convictions, even even convictions that, like we heard earlie r, are decades old. To pass this policy as proposed, leaving out a segment of the population would perpetuate double punishment and would weaken relationships between our city institutions and the community. CG What's directly with impacted families? And we know that most in most of these cases, these these crimes were committed in the nineties by children from Southeast Asian families who became involved in crimes as a direct result of economic insecurity. Right now, 1900 Cambodians nationwide have deportation orders. A large proportion of those are located in Long Beach, specifically in the forth and city districts. Long Beach right now has the opportunity as the center of the Cambodian diaspora to pass a policy that is a model for inclusivity and one that respected its residents, including the Cambodian community. Thank you. Thank you. Speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and council members. My name is Alex Montanez and I'm a community organizer with the Filipino Migrant Center of Long Beach, which is in the seventh District. I'd like to thank all of the city council members who brought this important policy to the table, especially the council members who are voting for a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs for community members, with past convictions and protecting all of our Long Beach. Undocumented immigrant residents and keeping. Their families together. It's the right thing to do. And we thank you for standing with us. But today, I really want to address the need for a fully funded deportation defense fund. There are close to 30,000 Filipinos here in the city of Long Beach, most of them residing in the seventh District or the west side of Long Beach. And every week in our little office on the west side, we receive calls and meet with Long Beach, Filipino residents who seek direct services and. Legal aid for any number of reasons. Whether it's housing and eviction, domestic violence, wage theft and abuse, human trafficking, or undocumented immigrants and families seeking relief and advice and even experiencing deportation orders. Now, a vast majority of these undocumented Filipinos are low income workers and families. Some work as caregivers for the elderly, grocery and shop workers, and others doing low wage work. But many cannot afford to pay for legal services and an attorney, if they. Receive deportation orders. Let alone their basic needs like healthy food, rising rent, health care or child care. And unfortunately, what I've seen time to time at the center is that many of our community members have sought help from Notorious, who pose as lawyers or paralegals and scam undocumented clients for hundreds and sometimes even thousands of dollars, leaving them high and dry when they seek help. And many of our clients and community members experience being scammed multiple. Times before they met with us. So we have to do more not only to protect Long Beach immigrant residents through limiting the sensitive information and cooperation with ICE, but also to make sure that people have the means to legally defend themselves from deportation, especially are undocumented immigrants. So that's why we at the Filipino Migrant Center support a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs for folks who have past convictions. And really fully funding a deportation defense fund with 600,000 or more in public or private funding. We need your leadership here, city council members, and especially for us in the seventh District. We need your help. We need your leadership. Councilman Aranda and I just wanted to give it up to the to the committee members who have something to say. Some of them are lucha oranga escuchar estamos n la lucha. That's mucho estamos em lucha. All right. Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. My name just started. My name is Native Tushnet and I live in the third district. I'm addressing the city council tonight on behalf of the Long Beach Area Peace Network, and we urge you to pass a clean Long Beach Values Act. To me, ensuring the safety of immigrants is crucial to preserving the exciting, diverse nature of our community. Equally important, we need to guarantee that our police force will not or anyone will not share information with ICE about any Long Beach resident. A values act that says it's okay to share information about some people does not reflect the needs of the community or our underlying values. For many, the convictions are years old and do not reflect the individual's current status. Since conviction, they have become positive influences in the community. They go to school, they hold jobs. They pay taxes. They raise kids. Crimes committed as teenagers should not be reasons to break up families and hurt lives. I also want to talk about the the the deportation fund. Deportation Protection Fund. I'm going to tell a story that has a little bit of bragging in it. In Michigan, a large number of Chaldean Iraqis were rounded up by ICE for immediate deportation. Most of their crimes were committed over 20 years ago. They have been law abiding citizens since. And we all know that the Chaldean Iraqis will go back and be killed. We have people here who will go back and be killed. And we know that the difference with these people in Michigan is that they had good attorneys. One was my. Daughter in law. That's the brag. They now are. Out of deportation, the deportation holding. They have full hearings to be held. They will not be deported until they have due process. And that's the importance of having legal assistance. It saves lives, literally saves lives. So I urge you to reject the carve outs. And I also urge you to fully fund the deportation defense fund to protect Long Beach residents from what we all know is ICE overreach. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Reverend John Forest Douglas, and I'm the associate minister of First Congregational Church in Long Beach. I'm here as a rep representative also of clergy and laity, United for Economic Justice, which is made up of thousands of lay and ordained faith leaders all around Southern California. So I rise today to ask you to vote yes for a clean Long Beach Values Act without carve outs for criminal history, and to include a legal defense fund throughout the Hebrew and Christian scriptures that people in positions of power are reminded that it's their responsibility to provide radical acts of hospitality to straight to strangers and immigrants in their midst and to provide for the needs of the poor. In the past year, our congregation has been engaged in deep conversations about racism and white privilege, and many of us have committed ourselves to speak out against racism when we see it. Our broken national immigration system is racist. It is deeply rooted in the sin of racism because it excludes people of color from opportunities to pursue safety and dream of a better future. It's racist because it dehumanizes people of color as criminals instead of dignifying them as people created in the image of God. Carving out people with criminal history from our ordinance is another way of degrading people of color who are vulnerable to economic insecurity. Many individuals with criminal history, committed crimes years ago for which they have done their due, have done their time. Mass incarceration and deportation are not ways to make our communities safer or a community that thrives. I'm particularly concerned about the Cambodian community members who are my neighbors in the sixth District, many of whom fled. War and. Violence in Southeast Asia decades ago and have criminal histories for many years ago. There's no reason to add more trauma of broken families to this community. As a person of faith, I'm not. I am reminded that our most important calling is to figure out how to live faithfully in times when it's hard and times are hard. And so we're called to live with courage, recall to live faithfully. And so I ask you to vote yes on a clean Long Beach Values Act without cutouts. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Thank you. Good evening. Mayor Garcia and city council members. My name is Hailey Seawright. I am a resident of the third district, a registered nurse and a graduate student at Cal State Long Beach. And I have had the privilege of working on the Sanctuary Long Beach campaign. I wanted to bring your attention to some of the health impacts immigrant community members struggle with on a daily basis and often compound resulting in latent detrimental health outcomes. Consideration must also be given to their children, many of which are U.S. citizens who also suffer disparate health risks as a result of their position in this minority community. A Human Impact Partners survey found that 36% of immigrant respondents reported poor to Fair Health versus 9.5% of nonimmigrant respondents. And poor self-reported health has a s trong association with increased risk of mortality. Food insecurity also disproportionately affects immigrant communities and leads to depression, diabetes, obesity and mental or behavioral problems. In 2015, 3.9 million children were recipients of SNAP benefits, and nearly 86% of these had an immigrant parent. A decline in the use of services has been reported by agencies around the country, with one agency reporting as many as one in five of their cases being closed. Use of medical services has also been impacted, with multiple reports of clinics seeing a decrease in use of services by immigrants out of fear of information sharing or enforcement activities. Children of immigrants are twice as likely to lack health insurance, and immigrant communities are also exposed to traumatic events and experience chronic stress. That manifest says depression, anxiety, headaches, blurred vision, dizziness, insomnia and as attempts of their integration in the larger community. Stress and trauma experiences can be intergenerational, and the children are particularly vulnerable to adverse experiences which have a dose related recent dose related relationship associated with negative health outcomes across the lifespan, leading to increased risk of cancer, miscarriage, heart attack and stroke. These health impacts are amplified by the other determinants of health which they are already facing as a result of their marginalization. I am standing here in solidarity with my with the immigrant community and call on you to pass the clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs that allow all Long Beach families to remain unified and lead safe, healthy lives. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello, City Council. My name is Jordan Doering. I'm a resident in the Second District and I'm also part of the leadership of the Associated Students at Cal State Long Beach. So I come to you tonight speaking as a resident of Long Beach, but also as a student leader that wants to defend the undocumented people in my 36,000 student body university. As a lot of you probably know. A few years ago, Cal. State Long Beach Police cooperated with ICE to deport a man named Jose Alvarez that set off a bomb on our campus of grief. And it's was very clear that our campus, our students made it very clear that they do not stand for subjecting undocumented people to double jeopardy where someone could commit. A minor crime before. I was even born, serve. Time, supposedly be rehabilitated. And then get deported back to a country they haven't been to in decades because of a speeding ticket. Or in

Jose Alvarez's case, because his car broke down. If Cal State Long Beach. I should also mention that our campus changed. Our policing policies to protect our undocumented students. And what I'm saying is, if Cal State Long Beach can protect. Its undocumented folks by changing their policing policies, I think at a minimum, the city of Long Beach can do the same. Please don't fall down where Sacramento did and keep these carve outs in the. Long Beach Values Act. The problem with 354 was those. Criminal carve outs to begin with. So if we've taken an entire year, as a councilmember pointed out, to get to this point, and then we just pass a city ordinance that doesn't do anything for the criminal prosecution and allows undocumented folks to be deported by ICE. Well, we're also funding a legal fund. We're going to be. Paying into a legal fund to defend people that we. Deported, which doesn't make any sense to me. So I just want to ask that you protect the students of Long Beach and also that you protect the residents of Long Beach. Please don't make Jeff Sessions. Lawsuit any easier. This isn't Trump country. I would ask that you. Defend the residents of Long Beach. This is the interest. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello, everyone. My name is Kenny Lara. I'm a junior at Lakewood High School. I'm a resident of District eight and a youth organizer with Captains for Justice. Both of my parents are immigrants. The majority of my family and one of my closest friends are also undocumented. My parents came here in search for a better life and Mexico. My mom was only able to receive an education up to the sixth grade because she was forced to drop out of school and work with her father in order to support her family. She came to the United States, too, but to build a better life for herself. She came in search for the American Dream, just like many other immigrants do when they come here. However, when they get here, they're faced with the constant fear of being deported back to their home countries. These people risked their lives to come to the US to escape the hardships at home, such as war, corruption and poverty. This is why I'm asking for a clean policy without carve outs. The police target marginalized groups and there is no set definition of a serious crime. All people should be given the right to a fair due process. These people are working hard for an honest living. They aren't citizens, and yet they still pay taxes. And these taxes pay for the police salary. So instead of deporting their own people, the police should be protecting them. We should be protecting them. Being an immigrant isn't a crime. They are our own people and they are part of our communities. Being born and raised in Long Beach, all of my neighborhoods I have lived in were full of people of color. I grew up surrounded by undocumented people, and now I live in fear of being deported, of them being deported and being torn from my family and some of my closest friends. And although I am a citizen, I still strikes fear in my heart. So I can't even begin to imagine what undocumented people feel when they hear of ice. A year ago, I heard that ice was raining busses and I take the bus to and from school every single day. So hearing this made me terrified. I didn't even want to go to school. So just hearing about ice was in a way jeopardizing my education, even i f it was just for one day. But a lot can happen in a day and so it's scary. So just trying to imagine with all these people feel. So this is why tonight I'm asking for all of you to stand in solidarity with our people and vote for a sanctuary city without exceptions. Thank you. Thank you. Mexico. The police. Thank you. When I started to throw those mean Mendoza so residents really st optimal informal pastoral parochial individual nurturing. Then obviously their clinical institute in Apollo and recommended immigrant. But I can only say I unless you that tend to you get a much more inclusive in practice personas getting a no record criminal bacchanal that this one that's a one that whatever this one letter said opportunity that particular committee only wrote in to Purcell mesa on Cielo Pego contrasted looking less familiar than ranked Begala's consequences for get Gwendolyn episode nice the patella turner circle of familiar sapphic tantaros aspect us inclusive in an economical most repetition parent I you wouldn't have me into escapism apparently resolution as had been on be on as you that centurion para todos illness incremental accounted elephant this parallel defensor the deportation vacation meal the latest notion sufficient. This is a similar petition he paid you most in minimal anesthesia and those meal dollars for colossal immigrants against which impressed us to memorable our common dream also. Yes. Yes, yes, us all. But I must have said the most translation. Okay. Good evening, everybody. My name is Elvia Mendoza. I am a resident of the First District and I am a member of the Church Divino Nazarene. I'm also a leader with ICA. I have I'm here to support the immigrant community so the Long Beach can become a sanctuary city. We want this even for those with a criminal record in the past, because everybody deserves a second chance. And why not even a third chance? Immigrants should not have to pay double for a mistake they made in the past, especially if they've already paid with jail. And why should their families pay for their consequences when a person is deported? The family circle is affected in all aspects, including economically. We are petitioning the council members to pass and make Long Beach a sanctuary city for everybody and to increase the defense funds for deportation. 100,000 is not enough, and we're petitioning a minimum of 600,000 because immigrants do pay taxes. So let's see this as a tax refund. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Thank you, sir. Good evening, honorable mayor and city council members. My name is Tiny Nelson Niue and I am a resident in the seventh District. I am a proud member of interfaith community organizations Long Beach, Echo, founder, Project Alpha and Physician Facilitator for the Coalition for Safety and Justice. My story is one of many that have been carved out and continues to be marginalized in the narrative of policies become. Some still see the dichotomy of unworthy versus wor thy people who are rehabilitative and able to reintegrate. This whole notion of worthy versus non worthy is an excuse, just as instill fear and to continue to divide. And we Long Beach must have a Clean Values Act period. Being formerly incarcerated with multiple serious offenses, my past has brought about 49,000 collateral consequences, and I firsthand endure these policies with carve outs. But today, I am committed to ensuring that every person is valued and embraced regardless of our past. My best friend and sister has been a part of my transformation for the past 18 years. She is transgendered. She is an immigrant and with a past history of 12 felonies. She and I both have endured the demoralizing and incomprehensible behind bars should it continue out here in the community? Within our addiction, I can only fathom what they do if they were in the hands of ice. We're both clean, living and thriving in our communities. Despite our path tonight, she had hesitations and she still lives in fear. I am not. I speak for the both of us. I would do anything for her. She is my family. She has been an integral part of my rehabilitation. She is my sister. She will always be my family. I dare not think again what would ever happen if she were in the hands of ice? The conditions are deplorable, inhumane. Today, I know that I have intentionally walked in every single one of your districts. We both have volunteered in every single one of your districts. And there is this love that we receive from your district members and even from some of you that continue to make us thrive and live and keep continuing to thrive and strive in our communities. This is the opportunity this Long Beach Values Act needs to be with our carve out and to see us now as collateral and to be part of this beautiful, diverse city where we have invested in the justice lab for the formerly incarcerated. Today, we need a Clean Values Act. Period. Roberto Council members, please pass a Clean Values Act. Thank you very much. Thank you. Let's look at this. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Thank you. Good evening. Okay. You know, Mr. Pete, you cannot keep talking when people are speaking like now. No one else is talking to the people who are speaking. So now I've now warned you three times. I mean, just for the record. Yes, please. Good evening, council members. My name is Patty Diaz. I'm a board member of the Long Beach Interfaith Community District eight. I'm looking at District eight and whom has an organization who has always been committed to protect immigrants and their families, especially with the current Trump administration. It has definitely become a top priority. With that being said, we have created Media Watch, a hotline of volunteers that provides them with approximately eight dispatchers, 50 rapid responders, their guides and supports them when facing ICE raids, which are happening a lot. By the way, one of my biggest concerns is legal representation. We appreciate you putting y our toes in the water with this sanctuary and sanctuary ordinance, one which values act of $100,000. However, what we are asking is that you jump into the water with us. We believe 600,000 will say to our Long Beach immigrant community that you are committed and all the way in it with us as a faith based organization. All of our religious traditions believe and stand for second chances being essential. Furthermore, another concern is a carve out picking and choosing who is disturbing and who is not. Isn't there a legal justice system already in place? If so, then why should our community members be punished twice for the same mistake or the offense? If you want to call it that, we some of you may remember who say Alvarez case, a family man deported for a broke until late. Many of you publicly supported his return. However, Mr. Alvarez would not have been included in this proposed defense fund. These cases are complicated and many, too many to count. Therefore, they need legal representation because a city filled with immigrants and need your support in dealing with unjust immigration policies. We hope you take a stand and walk this journey with us in making Long Beach a sanctuary city and definitely raising our fund for the immigration community. Thank you. Thank you. Next picture, please. Good evening. My name is Swimming Chair and I'm a senior staff attorney with the National Immigration Law Center. And like many of the people here, I stand before you to really urge you to pass a clean Long Beach Values Act. The city should not cave in to any kind of bullying or intimidation by the federal government either. We know that Sessions and Trump are going after jurisdictions that they consider to be sanctuary jurisdictions, and many places are standing strong. Not only is our governor and attorney general of California standing strong, we've also seen recently across the country places continue to pass strong measures. So just two weeks ago, King County, Washington, passed a sanctuary ordinance that has no carve outs. That includes no carve outs in terms of who they notify around notifying ice about people's release dates and no carve outs in terms of transferring people to ice. So I urge Long Beach to do something like that. This should be a race to the top, not to the bottom. We should all be in competition to have the strongest policy possible and not just count on SB 54 to do everything because it has its limitations. SB 54 was a compromise bill that factored in more conservative areas of California. Well, here in Long Beach, which, as you well know, is an extremely diverse place. It's a very progressive city. And so we should be doing better. I also wanted to share that I was formerly on the Board of Committee Growth and Action, and I had many Cambodian clients here in Long Beach who are facing deportation. And you've heard firsthand some of the very painful personal stories of that experience. And I also wanted to reemphasize that that, unfortu nately, is all too common. I saw many of my young clients get caught up in overpolicing, the overcriminalization of youth and of people of color in the nineties and early 2000s. They were pushed into surviving by joining groups of people for self-defense, which are then labeled gangs. They were then put into the criminal justice system and forced to take plea bargains many times. This was a time, too, when people were not informed of the immigration consequences of pleading guilty to criminal convictions. So many people took guilty pleas not knowing that this will lead to their automatic deportation. And when they got in front of an immigration judge, often they were unrepresented or they faced the pressures of being in detention and decided to take a deportation order in order to get out as quickly as possible. So those people I knew who are lucky enough to win their case and get out of detention, they've come back into the community. They've gotten married, they've had children. One of them just recently opened up a cell phone business here in Long Beach. So this is what's possible if we give people a second chance. And therefore, I want to urge you again, please pass a Clean Values Act and do not have any carve outs for people. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Thank you. Hello, everyone. I'm Bernice Osorio, and I'm a lawyer. I came to the U.S. to study a masters of law at UCLA. I was born and raised in Mexico City, as well as my whole family. However, since the day that I arrived here, I couldn't avoid feeling empathetic and identified with the people establishing California who shared my same roots. I believe that the only way that people can take action is to speak out through their use of the law. That's why. Grant Currently, I'm also part of the UCLA immigrants rights policy, and we are working together with the Long Beach Centauri Coalition. So here we are today in order to support this century Long Beach Coalition to speak on behalf of the immigrant community against carve outs for notification and transfer requests to ICE. These carve outs suggest ongoing collaboration with immigration enforcement on the fullest extent. They lead to a mistaken perception of immigrants as undesirable. Exercising control over certain groups of immigrants creates an oppressive environment that turns intolerable. This situation also generates racism, discrimination that turns into a social disintegration. Families are the foundation of a strong society and DNA part A home is not the way to build a united community. Assisting immigration enforcement simplifies ice school or deporting undocumented immigrants efficiently. As a result, the immigrant community becomes an easy target for a violation of civil and human rights. So that's the reason why we ask for a clean Long Beach values ordinance without carve outs. Because immigrants make an important contribution to the country and because this is an opportunity to extend to them the protections that they deserve. Also, we ask for a Clean Values Act with no carve outs because it will offer harmony and acceptance to everyone in the community. Thank you. Thank you for your testimony. Next speaker, please. Oh. Well, I start this and I'm going to ask how America is so little. I go viral and after a love me, they look what tragic loss all of the U.S. has become as an audience. I mean, I'm in Gaza and Muslim enterprise in the middle and so follows those two systems. But those pile up of similar deportation. We see Hillary will go near no extra silos. But let's start with Alaska, Walla Walla Walla. Just I mean, if we look at the members of Plan A, we see a lot of instability and really stress for our society. So until I see the media, Estabrook Studios see that I'm in Gaza. So whether you get to or through Solaris and I am most careful in front of my local LA Policia opponents, you know, and then I just in the almost when I caught it. But I'm asymptomatic and you're welcome. A policia necesita. But you're still up by know I look for the Jacksonville Annapolis here in any attempt. Yes, I get they know the man they were there but it could upset Pakeha by that also. Rhodes your legs La Sudan. I can know that you know, stress, gas us and also sky yes Burleigh that women but the potassium is primarily la policia. Well, what I see I'm going nice is I lost my mother. The family can access. My name is America and I am a leader of ICA. I live in North Long Beach and I have four children. One of them is a Dhaka recipient. A few days ago, ice came to my house and since that day, my whole family lives in fear and we are prepared for a possible deportation. My children live in fear and stress in the afternoons when I pick them up from school and if I arrive late, they fear that I have been deported. My children should not be subjected to this stressful situation. They are citizens of this country and the only concern they should have should be for their education. If I could come to my house, I'm sure they'll be able to go to yours as well. We believe that they were informed by their police or a neighbor since we have a court case. It is important to me to be able to trust the police when I need them. But if they are going to support ICE, I can trust them. Any immigrant, whether they have a criminal record or not, should be able to stay since they've already paid their debt. I understand that the city cannot tell ICE to leave our streets, but they can prevent deportation by prohibiting the police from collaborating with ICE. Thank you. Thank you for your testimony. Next speaker, please. Thank you, Mayor Garcia. Council members. I'd also like to thank the tangle of people on whose land we are gathered. My name is Joe Berra. I'm clinical faculty at UCLA Law School. I directed the Immigrant Rights Policy Clinic. We've had the privilege this semester of working with the Long Beach Sanctuary Coalition, whose initiative to expand the California Values Act here in L ong Beach and supported by valiant council members. Who support this initiative, seek to expand that in the Long Beach Values Act, and I commend the Sanctuary Coalition and the privilege to. Work with them. I'd like to address first any concerns about the legality of either the California Values Act or the Long Beach Values Act, given the recent lawsuit filed by Attorney General Sessions. I don't want this to be a constitutional class, but we all are aware that the Constitution defines our federal system, and the 10th Amendment specifically protects states and local government from the federal government's attempts to intrude on local sovereignty and to commandeer local government. Resources and authority. Similarly, there are certain fields of law, and specifically immigration law, which are the sole authority of the federal government. And so local law enforcement has no role in immigration enforcement unless allowed for or delegated by the federal government. But by the same token, and at the same time, the federal government cannot force or commandeer local law enforcement to. Assist the federal immigration enforcement. And so I can say, along with over 100 law professors who wrote a letter to Governor Brown. On this issue. The California Values Act, and by extension, a clean Long Beach Values Act does not violate the. Law and that lawsuit will not prevail. I do come here to speak in favor of a clean Long Beach Values Act without any carve outs. It's not only good law, it's good policy. What is the role of state and local government. With respect to our immigrant. Community? I would argue that it is integration and not removal. Removal has been a sad part. Of our history. And it's affected. State and local actors have been involved in. Removal since the beginning of our history. The farmers and settlers in Georgia pushed the federal government to remove Native Americans. Legislatures in Mississippi and Louisiana passed Jim Crow laws to remove African-Americans to the north. Businessmen in San Francisco pushed the federal government to. Remove Chinese and the Chinese Exclusion. Act. We should be about integration and not removal. The carve outs have nothing to do with criminal justice. They have only to do with removal. And therefore, I ask you for a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve out. Thank you. I expect the please. The the professor made a good note. I was just thinking. So my name is and I can. Say from sixth district, the professor he is. He reminded me, is crazy. You know, this country has had a long history of being a century. You know, our one point there was boats of rapists and murderers and thieves and they allowed them to settle in. And that became the state of Georgia, you know, for a fact. Excuse me, sir. Excuse me, sir. He had three warnings of four others and he says, let. Me do what I got to do now. You can do what you gotta do. I'm here. I'm here to represent. You know, a part of the story that isn't really you d on't see as much today. You know, my father is an immigrant from the war torn country, destroyed by as many people in this room, completely destroyed by American imperialism. My father grew up in Ethiopia. You know, so most of his childhood was spent dodging American bombs, American missiles, American tanks, American mortars. And after, you know, this country spent the seventies and eighties destroying my father's country, he had the great opportunity of being able to come here. He met my mother here. I you know. Unfortunately, he came in 87, 86, the last Republican president at the time, Mr. Reagan, he was actually the last person to pass amnesty law. So because my father came a year late after his refugee status was expired, because what was once an American enemy became an American ally, he was suddenly an undocumented immigrant, as many people are in his country. You know, borders changed and laws change, and what was legal becomes illegal and vice versa. And its impact on my family, specifically my older cousins, an older cousin of mine who was in his teen years, you know, arrested with possession of a narcotics marijuana. Years later, he was deported and sent back to Ethiopia, where he unfortunately was conscripted into the military and died fighting in a war. And that's an unfortunate case for a lot of Cambodians. I know as well as the Salvadoran people. I grew up here who get sent back to war torn countries or countries with regimes that don't necessarily like the people who are coming back and they have to face the consequences. So the idea that being born here and, you know, the travesties of growing up here, you should have to be affected by it later is a travesty. So I don't believe in the carve out. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Madam Speaker, please. Hello. My name is Myron Wolin. I am the president of the Long Beach Gray Panthers. I am also a member of CLU, Clergy and Laity United for Economic Justice and a proud member of Migrant Watch, which you've just been told about. I want to compliment the Council for just for taking up the issue and going as far as you have in going for a Long Beach Values Act. If you were to be commended for that. However, you need to reconsider. No carve out. You need to go beyond what you've talked about now and think about what it means. Think about the stories you've heard and how it affects the people of Long Beach. Now, I want to tell you a little something about my history and why I am in favor of a Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs. Mike. I am the son of immigrants, as many of you are. My mother came here when she was three months old from England. My father came here from Poland before 1924. He was escaping a anti-Semitic environment. He was coming here to better himself economically. Now, why do I keep saying 1924, 1924 was when our country first limited immigration aside from the Chinese Exclusion Act. But for everyone else in the country, in the world, it became an exclusionary pol icy of immigration prior to 1924. Anybody could come here to this country. And that's why my father was able to come here. And that's why my mother was able to come here. And that's why many people many white people are here because they came here before 1924. In 1924 was a racist law. It said that the immigration policy should be based on the what the census was in 1890. Why did they choose 1890? Because after 1890, many of my people came here to this country. Many of the southern Europeans came here to this country. And many of the Eastern Europeans came here in this country. The history of immigration in this country is a history of racism. It's a history of trying to deny this country to do to have its citizens. That's why I'm saying, although I wouldn't say that if you vote for exclusionary thing, you're necessarily racist. But consider the fact that there is racism in this country. We have a country that talks about shithole countries. And what is that part of? It's part of a racist philosophy. Thank you. Thank you for your time. I speak. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Yeah. Chuck Brewer, first district. I'll give you a little history for 25 years. I ran a staffing company. We grew to 600 locations around the country. During that time, we had a creative was everyone who was colorblind. So where I grew up, I grew up in Chicago and I understand racism. What I'm going to tell you right now, I've also watched in my 65 years a lot of that dissolve. And we are a nation that is evolving. Yes, we are. So with that being said, I would just like to say, oh, by the way, I have I had family that fought in the Civil War for the North. I had family that fought a war to. I family fought the war of 1812, but they were for the Canadians didn't what the Americans have come over the border. So let's go to a real simple thing here. I am very empathetic to every one of the stories told here today. I know what it's like to put a paycheck in someone's hands and give them economic opportunity. But our company that we grew to $1,000,000,000 sales, over 600 locations was subject to be fined for breaking immigration hiring laws. So we went to verification where other didn't just so we would not be fined. So I say to you here, I believe that there are a lot of fine, but we moved to the city because it's culturally diverse. Not Irvine, Long Beach. And I've been here for over 40 years. Longer than that, actually. So I say to Patrick West, to our city attorney, to you all. Don't be the cool city. Be the city that does not break the laws but changes the laws. The laws need to be changed through lobbyists. They need to be changed through our states. We we all who have the privilege to vote, have the opportunity to put people in the representation to change the law by us as a city. Breaking the law. That is wrong. Should we and our last city attorney allow anyone to go through a red light this week to be in sanctuary if I don't pay my taxes ? Do I get a sanctuary from the city because I don't like to pay my taxes? I pay them because it's part of my responsibility. So I say to you, yes, we need change, but it needs to be done legally. Don't be just the cool city. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. Would you mind grabbing the mic for. We can hear you. That would be great. Thank you. So there we go. There you go. My name is Senior Year. Why you? I'm nine years old and my dad died in in Mexico a few years ago when I was drinking a lot. The only family I have is my mom. And I went to see there that my mom came from Mexico and headed to California. And I didn't want to say that and that I don't want those people, most people to take away my mom because the only family I have is my mom. Thank you. Thank you so much. Thank you. Hi. My name is Melissa Gomez. I am 15 and I am a member of Saint Athanasius Church and I call and to start this off, I want to say I am proud to be part of the Hispanic community. And we all know my parents came to the United States for a better life, only they know why they left their home, their hometown, and and then sending them back is is unfair because only they know why they left. And they came here to give out to get a better life, to give my brothers and sisters a better life. And we we all know at least one or more families that don't have papers are immigrants. They keep they all came here for a reason. They all should have oh, they should all have the rights to be here, live freely, to live without fear. Because I know at least I know many families with that with are immigrants live in fear and I don't want that. I was born here. I'm a citizen. But yet it hurts me to know, to see those families being deported because I may not be related to them by blood, but I am related to them through God because I am. And the way they they're separating their families, their children, kids my age, younger than me. And it hurts me seeing that a hearing about stories, how they've been deported, how some of them don't have parents, no family. And that is just very devastating. I hope you guys support and to protect the immigrants. Thank you. Thank you so much. Mexico police. Good evening, City Council Mayor Anna Kristensen, member of the Long Beach Area Peace Network, and Negro Watch Negro, which has these little yellow cards. And they have information that we like everybody to have. And one of the problems is that people are afraid to even call Negro white. That's how fearful people are. They are not they don't even know how to call for the people. Who who. Want to help them and to stop what is an illegal act, a violation of our Constitution, and certainly an immoral act. Now, years ago. There was a. Woman who said in front of the city council, all us media. Well, all of a sudden here tonight, you will make history. You will make. History. You will either vote for or. Against inclusiveness and justice for all people. You will make a law. Even if it's just an ordinance, you will make a d ecision. Do you ever Wonder Woman, if you had had the opportunity to make that decision, to round up Japanese people who are born here, including infants who were in orphanages and take them away from their families and shipped them somewhere. Do you ever wonder what if it had been your call? What if you had been Andrew Jackson, the president, who. Decided to remove indigenous. People from their homes? It's not about. Immigrants. It's about. Responsibility. It's about justice. And we all we all have that power. Jeff Sessions, you know, he didn't. Follow the law when. He was a state attorney general. His school, the state, the schools in his state were the last to integrate. He didn't. Follow federal. Law. Now he wants to come over here and check his idea of federal law down our throats, but we don't have to take that. And speaking of laws, the first immigrant from Europe was a guy named Christopher Columbus, and he had a on his side. It was called The Doctrine. Of Christian Discovery, came out of the Catholic Church, and it said that any Christian could go where there was a non-Christian and could take everything the land, the people, the kids, everything. And that law was the basis for the decision to remove the Cherokees. That law is. Part. It's woven into. United States are so bad. Laws are always with us. And should we fear a man who smoked marijuana 20 years ago or should. We fear. A. Bad law that separates a mother and her child, just like this mother who. Just came from a sanctuary. To our border. This week in the L.A. Times and is now even though she never crossed. The border, she ask for sanctuary. And she is in. Lockup and somebody is. Making money. Off of that. Private prison. And her daughter's in Chicago. Her 11 year old daughter. When you go home tonight, hug your kids, hold your kids and understand that nothing is safe here. Thank you so much. Man the model minority. And the next minute you're a terrorist. Thank you, Miss Richardson. Next week, a this. Thank you. Please. Good afternoon. My name is Jackie Mendoza. 14 year old my brother got deported to Mexico. He he he came here when he was four years old and got deported. I have another brother and he is also in danger of getting deported. I am scared that my brother and my mother get deported and I would literally give up anything. So my brother is here because I never know when like if anything happened to him. And yeah, that's pretty much it. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. But not only not Rosemary Antoniou being a global icon. Good afternoon. My name is Maria Antonia and I am from the group I call La Nina. Capaci is Mika a song alternative to Nina's? The young girl just spoke is my daughter. I am a single parent of three children. I'm the owner of a portable. My son was deported. It's the oil that they need and love attention. They the land to the eye they could not see then they don't. He was detain a deal until were he suffer an accident and he had to hav e surgery? Yes. Like almost all parallel asylum under 91. And right after surgery, he was sent to Tijuana. You'll be okay. But a lot of mamas get their normal six months report for our political reporter Cialis. I beg you, in behalf of all the other mothers to please stop. Deportation is needed is the better MCAT. And yes, it is not dangerous what Romano called Cornelia. It is very sad to see how my daughter feels when she has. She does not have her brother with her. Esther is dead north and if Caravaggio inattentive kidnaped boy, you better make work get the now but I give up Oh yeah yeah no it is very sad to not have a job did not have anyone to support me My son who was deported was the one who supported us . Our aid is in control and pays better say get us to work. It is a lot worth running of. So he is now in the country that he was born in, but he does not know the country because he came here at four years old. Yet without this period of our work. Give me an hour to look up Pasando. There are a lot of policy. They look familiar. And I am here asking you to look around and look at what's going on with all the deportations and military. Is David Gallo familia temporada you still cannot boyo, but we had a some of my mom's attorneys get the in and there's none of that. They need us. Simple story enough for you. It's very, very sad to see what's going on with the deportations. I am here in support of all the parents with everything that is going on. There are almost three stories, though. It's going to be Puerto Rico, Miguel. No. But the saddest thing of everything is the fact that my son is now here and that I'm not going to have him here with me forever. Liz Behar put her work in La Policia so you can look into all I'm thinking is what does that mean? I really want to look in ways, but I'm asking you please. I'm asking you to help so that the police now cooperate and as well with all the racist people who are acting like this. Or if we kill my Nancy, I will get a little special because I'm lucky. All because none of what I eat equal are separate. This is for millions, but far more than a consideration that almost others. Today I am here, separated from my family. But it could be anyone else on a different day. Please help us. Get us started. Thank you very much. Let's listen up. Next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Andrea Galicia, and I'm a UCLA law student. I am one of the founding founders of the First Generation Law Students Association at UCLA, which is a group to support students who are the first in their family to go to college. I come from an immigrant family and the cities that we will be allowed to visit out of as a child, depending on how immigrant friendly they were. My family perceive Long Beach to be diverse and welcoming community and would often work as parking attendants here in order to help people enjoy the holiday events like the 4th of July that the Long Beach community would hold. And Long Beach should create a public

all Californian children have at least one immigrant parent, meaning many families are in danger of being broken apart and having a child put into state custody if their parent is deported or detained. Even those who are not in state custody suffer long term health consequences that lead to poor education and inability to lower earnings. The state bears additional costs in assisting these traumatized children for years. Even employers suffer with the turnover cost of all these lost workers. So it is therefore, it is more cost effective to develop a legal representation program for detained immigrants. And it is both physically and morally necessary for Long Beach to defend its residents from the detention and deportation. California immigrants who had legal counsel in their immigration cases succeeded more than five times, much more than did their unrepresented counterparts. This means we have the opportunity to keep families that contribute to the Long Beach community together by providing them this representation. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Katrina Landecker and I am a director. Of the UCLA Law Students for Immigrant Justice, and I'm also a student in the UCLA law Immigrants Rights Policy Clinic, working to advance policies to protect immigrants in L.A. and around the country. I'm here today with a Long Beach sanctuary coalition to call for the removal of carve outs of certain people from protections under the Long Beach Values Act. Excluding community members who have some prior criminal conviction from the Long Beach Values Act is inconsistent with the Council's stated commitment to the equal, respectful and dignified treatment of all people and excluding community members. The Council enables the Trump administration to carry out its mass deportation of so-called bad immigrants by handing them over to ICE. The city should not reinforce Trump's rhetoric of separating the community into good and bad immigrants and helping separate families in the process. Our communities of color are already overpoliced, and allowing those with criminal backgrounds to be transferred to ICE will only further entrench the systemic injustices in the criminal justice system. While Trump has gone so far as to sue California for its protective policies. The lawsuit is baseless and only serves to underscore the need for local leadership to stand up for our immigrant communities. The constitutionality of SB 54 has been well-established, given that the federal government cannot commandeer local resources to enforce federal law. The lawsuit is simply another attempt by the Trump administration to instill fear in our communities and to bully states and localities into cooperating with its mass deportation agenda. I urge you to resist this scare tactic and to stand strong to protect the entire Long Beach community. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Good evening to you. My name is Ideas. I am sent to be a see as UAB graduate in political science and a member of the Board of the Future Underrepresented Educated Leaders Club on campus, better known as Fuel. I am here to request that the Council consider what it would mean for the Long Beach Values Act to be passed. This is not simply another day at work or another policy to vote up or vote down, or another opportunity to pretend the city government and its different branches care about the will of the people as an undocumented sea, as your student. Knowing that no city ordinance or protection from the federal government, specifically from its ICE agency, is currently in place, adds unnecessary stress, worry and anxiety. The thought that I could be taken away from this place I call my home haunts me daily like that. Hi, Bill. That's due soon. Or like an upcoming exam which can make or break my future. Or like being aware that I don't know where my next meal will come from. That kind of worry, that kind of continuous and draining reality that on top of ordinary things like school, work, friends and activism. I must also include in my agenda waste to prevent myself from being deported. This includes assuring my car is in top shape and not exposing myself by simply going out or going to school or participating in volunteer efforts or the many other activities where I question if I should be involved. If it's safe, as stated here earlier. Sometimes our dream can come to an end by simply being present at the wrong place and the wrong time. And so, again, I ask you to consider your position. You have the power to provide some protection, which will alleviate some of the daily stress, fear and heartbreak caused by deportation. I especially urge you, Susie Price, to consider how your vote will help or harm students and other members of the Third District and Long Beach as a whole. Waiting on the federal government isn't an option. Thinking this issue is not a priority isn't an option. Therefore, passing a clean Long Beach Value Act is the only option. The Value Act will provide much needed protections and inclusion for the many undocumented Americans like myself. Thank you. We are the change. Thank you very much. Next week, the first. Hi. My name is Caitlin Bellis, and I'm an attorney with Public Counsel, a nonprofit organization in Los Angeles. We're a member of the Los Angeles Coalition for Universal Representation, and we're a grantee under the L.A. Justice Fund. I'm here to urge the council to create and robustly fund its own Universal Representation Fund. In my work, I go weekly to the Theo La cey. Facility and the music facility, both in Orange County. My experience at these facilities, as well as at the Adelanto Detention Center, have shown me the immediate and overwhelming need for counsel. The L.A. Justice Fund is an important first step, but does not come close to meeting this need. There are nearly 2000. People detained in Adelanto and hundreds more detained in Orange County. Every time my colleague who works under the L.A. Justice Fund conducts an intake, the person he meets with inevitably brings a list of the many others detained. They're all desperate to meet with him and all desperate for counsel. When I conduct. The legal orientation program at the music facility every month, I likewise meet with dozens of detainees desperate for legal help. I also know from our experience in building our L.A. Justice Fund program that building these programs takes time. It's imperative that Long Beach quickly and completely fund a universal representation program. Additionally, in making the program truly universal. Long Beach would. Become a leader. A truly universal program is better than the L.A. Justice Fund, both on principle and in policy. It is an acknowledgment that the system is unjust. Rather than a. Judgment about who among us deserves justice. The Council should likewise acknowledge that all the city's. Residents deserve protection from ICE's devastations and reject all carve outs. No one should face imprisonment and exile, and certainly no one should face them without a lawyer. Universal representation is also more efficient and will ensure that more people can be represented. We need Long Beach to. Lead the field and to contribute now to the protection of our families, friends and community members. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Cameron Tabler and I'm with Clear Clergy and Laity United for Economic Justice. Though he couldn't be here tonight, Reverend Leon, Reverend Leon Wood would. Like to have you speak on his behalf. Tonight. All over this nation and our local communities, men, women and children are suffering from mental depression, causing both physical and mental pain. This pain and suffering is being caused by a nation's leadership that is regressed to the times most of us thought had passed. America is returning to its racist roots, which manifested itself by the oppression and enslavement of people of color. We must not deceive ourselves. This nation has oppressed, enslaved and abused people of color for over 500 years. This must stop. It's my hope and pray that the citizens of Long Beach will stand united and ending these oppressive actions by the federal government and targeting our brothers and. Sisters. Who came here seeking safety and opportunity for themselves and their families. America is a land of immigrants. This nation has used immigrants for its growth and development for over 500 years. The problem with that is the development has abused millions of people of color in orde r to reach those materialistic goals. Mother Teresa expressed it best when she said There are many sorrows in today's world, these sorrows, hunger, dislodging all kinds of illnesses. Yet I am convinced of the greatest of all sorrows, is to feel alone, to feel feeling one, too deprived of all affection. It consists in not having anyone, maybe all the. Instruments of peace, of love and of compassion. Long Beach. Please show love and compassion to our immigrant brothers and sisters. Let's give them a chance to help the nation become worthy of the reputation it attempts to sell to the world. Please, Pax, a sanctuary ordinance for all immigrants without carve outs. Please, let's support the immigrant brothers and sisters in every way possible. Thank you. Provide me with this opportunity to express my concern. Thank you, counsel. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name is Rabbi Jonathan Klein. I'm the executive director of Clergy and Laity United for Economic Justice. And I'm so grateful to have Pastor Wood making that statement, which he shared with me, really wanting to make the point that it is time for action here in this community. And he's a long standing member of this community. You can't put can't please society, can one, can't police society with this trust. If ICE has the access they seek, why on earth would anyone ever report a crime knowing that it can result in deportation of friends and family? It's a simple fact. And how does inaction impact the most vulnerable in our community? Among the immigrants, the homeless immigrants, the people who are on the streets? Why are there only two opponents to this policy speaking here? Either they're just embarrassed or perhaps it's because people of conscience, mostly most of Long Beach, they know that this policy is a necessary step and critical to shifting the culture to one of compassion for the most vulnerable. The Bible identifies the most vulnerable the widow, the orphan, the immigrant. My people, the Jewish people. Less than a century ago were commonly known as wandering Jews, expelled from England and Germany and Spain and so many other places. That is the policy of this ungodly disgusting president who has no commitment to anyone but himself. No one should be harassed and forcibly deported by the state. It's a human right to live without such interference, no matter our long journey along the way, whether we have been jailed or not. And this session sued. Is an incendiary device meant to ignite fear and to derail our forward march in history, which we've been doing pretty well in this state. It has no merits. It's a last gasp in a state solidly opposed to the Trump administration's heartless, not even conservative, just ultra nationalist agenda. It should be the last thing on your minds, as it was the last thing on the minds of California when it passed SB 54, the California Values Act, as it was when Santa Ana and other cities passed their own sanctuary ordinances, as it was when Los A ngeles passed the L.A. Justice Fund, including Supervisor Janice Hahn. The fund is life and Death, one of the best investments in the community based on results. What has Long Beach done to protect our immigrant communities? Today is that blessed day. You can take action and you can make a difference in the lives. Thank you so much. Thank you. And this man should be removed. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and council members. My name is Zack Mohammed and I'm an organizer with the Black Alliance for Just Immigration and a member of ICE out of L.A.. I'm here to urge support of a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs. That is counterproductive to the white supremacy that is separating and disproportionately impacting all migrants, people of color, vulnerable and marginalized community. Black migrants are a growing share of the population in California. Currently, there are about 177,000 black migrants in the state, while Los Angeles County and Orange County cluster have the largest overall numbers of black migrants with 71,000. We have to understand the realities of four black migrants as we are racially profiled for being black and having to be impacted with immigration policies. Since 30% of all black migrants in California are green card holders or LPR legal permanent resident and 16% of black people in the state of California black migrants being undocumented. Undocumented communities are definitely impacted at stark rates than all migrants. But understanding that immigration policies and deportation affects green card holders, TPS recipients and more temporary statuses. And although being a naturalized resident or U.S. born person may think folks are safe, but the prison industrial complex affects all people of color. As a refugee born in Somalia, fleeing a civil war, I know trauma. And that trauma will stay with me till the day I die. I know firsthand what the prison and criminal justice system has had its effect on my family, my community, and people who I feel fearful and don't trust government or law enforcement. One out of every five immigrant detained while facing deportation on criminal grounds before the eagle eye, our courtroom responsible for adjudicating immigration cases is black. Black migrants are more likely to be detained for criminal conviction than the immigration population overall. Black migrants are much more likely than nationals from every other region to be deported due to a criminal conviction. I think a quote from Pastor Martin Memorial should speak on how injustice begets injustice has perpetuated to our history. First they came for socialists and I did not speak out because I was not a socialist. Then they came for trade unionists and I did not speak out because I was not a trade unionist. Then they came for the Jews and I did not speak out because I was not a Jew. Then they came for me and there was no one left for me to speak. Many residents of Lo ng Beach and concerned communities from neighboring areas are speaking out today for a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs. We have to be intersectional in our liberation fight with the Clean Values Act with no carve out and a deportation fund. This is the continuation of having a long beach the residents deserve. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hello, mayors, mayor and council member. My name is Cynthia Valencia and I work for the ACLU of Southern California as a policy advocate and organizer. And I'm here because I do commend the Long Beach and City Council has been working with SAC or with the Long Beach Sanctuary Coalition to work on a Long Beach Values Act policy . However, it is significantly flawed since this policy does not protect all immigrants. As we have heard, there have been many moving stories about mixed status families that have had interactions with ICE. And we do not want the city of Long Beach to be part of that process where most deportation proceedings that happen are through interactions with local law enforcement and not because ICE just discovers them. So that's why we think that protect that no carve outs and protections for all immigrants is extremely important. And no carve outs of any kind or any sort of time limit are acceptable for us and other civil rights organizations. As someone previously spoke about their son who died in an adult Adelanto prison, our attorneys have frequently been working an auto on to a prison and many of the people who are in there are there because they had interactions with local law enforcement. So if Long Beach Police Department and if Long Beach, the city would want to prevent this from happening, we cannot allow any sort of interaction with ICE, an additional policy that we think that the city should look into. As we recommend that Long Beach law enforcement review any active joint task forces with the Department of Homeland Security and also in the future use discretion in any possible joint task force. This current California Values Act does not allow local police departments to work with ICE specific or with Department of Homeland Security specifically for immigration purposes. However, frequently a loophole used is for human trafficking and for drug enforcement. However, the National Immigration Immigrants Women's Advocacy Project has shown that communities are less likely to want to work with police departments if they are at work, if they know that they are working with ICE. So if the Long Beach Police Department truly wants to be trusted by the community and Long Beach, any sort of interaction with ICE needs to be completely subverted because we want to make sure that our communities are safe, but immigrant communities are safe. And the only way for that to happen is that they trust the police and local law enforcement. And lastly, I just want to say that our coalition of civil rights organizations are not concerned with J eff Sessions lawsuit with the state of California. We have been anticipating this. The attorney general has been anticipating this. And we really hope that Long Beach is one of those Southern California cities that is a pioneer in making sure that all immigrants are protected. Thank you. Thank you so much. So thank you so much. Just for the council's practice. Unless there's any objection, we'll go down to 2 minutes moving forward. See? No objection. Please continue. My name is Alvarado and I'm a I'm the first district and I am a proud daughter of an undocumented worker. He fought in World War Two and that's how he got his citizenship. I'm also the mother of a Navy veteran for 30 years who just retired. I also am a videographer. I do videos and this so I did parabola, which means I am of the people. I recently did a video for my first show, Military Family Speak Out. They talked about PTSD and about how many parents were talking about how their children had committed suicide. One of the symptoms was alcoholism. The other problem is that many undocumented veterans are in our society and some of them have been arrested. What for? Homelessness, substance abuse. This just part of the PTSD, right. Also, I want to talk about military families speak out. Recently went to Tijuana where they talked to a vet who had been deported. And they are these are vets who had been deported. And it was because they were undocumented. People get out of the service and they are dealing with PTSD. They they can't always apply like my father did after World War two, to become a citizen. So what is going to happen? We're going to have vet who fought for our country. We have had fans who have fought for our country and have been have been deported. That's when the against these cut outs. Well, these policemen who are who are vets arrest another vet because he maybe he was actually was homeless, maybe because he's suffering from PTSD and then have him deported because he didn't get his papers. And then we have a classic example in front of us. Our mayor was undocumented. He became a citizen. Under Ronald Reagan. Very much. Right. Right now, she her mother is was undocumented. Thank you very much. Right. So why are we doing this to people who could become our mayors like you? Thank you very much. Thank you. We have to thank you. Now. Does he know? Does he. Know that I. Hadn't been taking. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker Finkelstein. Good evening. I'm Linda Valdez. I'm a resident and a homeowner in the second district. I'm also a member of Media Watch and an advocate for deported vets. Let me say that one more time. So we could all say to ourselves. Deported. That's okay. First, I'd like to thank the mayor for bringing much needed order to this council meeting tonight. Thank you. As you may know today, James Traub, a Northern California ICE spokesperson, resigned based on and I quote, false and misleading statements made by Attorney General Jeff Sessions and ICE acting director Thomas Homan. And quote, Homan released a statement stating, and I paraphrase 864 criminal aliens and public safety threats remain at large in the community. I have to believe that some of them were able to elude us thanks to the mayor's decision. And Homan is referring to Oakland's Mayor Sharpe, who alerted the community of an imminent ice threat. The former spokesman Schwab as Homan to chase the message to reflect the truth and was told to deflect the truth. I bring this up because this is just an example of the lies that this administration and ICE are spraying to feed the fear to the anti-immigrant sentiment. And it gets widespread media attention. OC Schwab also said they were never going to pick up that many people to say that 100% are dangerous criminals or that these people were picked up because of the actions of the mayor. That's just wrong. And he quit because he didn't want to perpetuate misleading facts. And this is a nice member. That's. That's my note tonight. I wanted to bring that up. And I implore this council to pass a Clean Values Act to truly reflect this city's commitment to the entire community. Not just a few see where they think you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Honorable Mayor and council members. My name is Barbara Farrell and I'm with Clu. And I also am a team. Leader of friends of Orange County detainees. We, the people had a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. People are living in terror. They're in terror that their parents are going to be torn away or their son will be torn away or their brother will be torn away. Young people, this is really terrorist activities that. Are occurring in the way. And it's they're making it very clear that it's a racially designated activity. That we should be afraid of the others. My parents came here. As uneducated people from Ireland. They were looking for a better life. They really wanted their children to have a life and to live and to eat a lot better than they did. So there were seven of us children. A police chief of the Port. Authority that participated. 911 Vietnam Vet a brother who is the highest paid guy CEO on Wall Street the year before he died. Health administrators and teacher. So that's. Our family. My parents got our kids educated. They worked. Hard. We all worked hard. That's the way it is. But this history of this country has some very bad history. And we should say never again. Never again. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Members of the city council. My name is Mark Cardenas. I'm a father, a voter, a resident. A resident of the ninth district and the youth organizer with my Girls in Action seven Today's young leaders from mostly the sixth and fourth District. I'm a son of immigrants. My parents came to this country as a migrant, as migrant workers from Mexico to make sure that American families have fresh. Fruit and vegetables on the table. And they can raise their children to be. Healthy a nd together. Many of many of my relatives had migrated here with the same purpose and values at the same time, have lived in the fear of being torn. Apart from their families as a result of policies that undermined the values this country has been founded on freedom, liberty and diversity. I'm here to urge the City Council to pass a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs. As a youth organizer with Carmichaels in Action, I heard countless stories of. Youth members who have been living in fear as a result of federal administration's racist and xenophobic policies that unjustly target their family members and Cambodian communities. The context which our young people are forced to navigate is a direct result of immigrant policies immigration policies that have created a higher standard for immigrants by reclassifying everyday. Common misdemeanors. And aggravated as aggravated felonies, making it easier to detain and deport Cambodians and other immigrant communities. The U.S. immigration system has created an uneven playing field the lobbies should not perpetuate. The carve outs are almost all exclusively. For past convictions. In almost all situations, these are. People who committed crimes years. Ago. And have since turn their lives around. This is the case for Cambodians, who typically have convictions. From the nineties and early 2000 and after release have been contributing to their communities and helping out their families. Let the legacy of this Council be written today that you all stood on the right side of history, that you all voted with compassion, humanity, our Cambodian community and. Immigration and immigrant community are counting on you. And we got a message for you all. And so when I say when I say no, you say carve outs. No, hard no. And I say no. You say carve out. Oh, no, thank you. You say carve outs. No, no. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next week for peace. Okay. Okay. Okay. Thank you. Next speaker, please. It's not just. Good evening. My name is Helene Hoffman. I'm an immigration lawyer. I'm here for a personal reason as well. I'm Jewish. My parents are Holocaust survivors. They were in concentration camps in Europe. And I want to tell you that to me, in a sense, what's going on with the federal government is its own version of that in some respects. And it just makes me really sick that a country like the United States. We are doing this. I what? Because we're cut short on time here. I want to tell you a couple of things. I've lived all across this country. I'm from the Midwest. Long Beach is the best place I have ever lived. And I want to thank you, because a lot of communities would not even entertain any sanctuary kind of. Bill, I want to also tell you that immigration law, I practice different areas of law. It is the toughest area I have ever practiced. So I want to talk about funding, not to just give lawyers money, but

ecause it is so difficult. This area of law, I cannot imagine someone coming here without an American education who doesn't speak the language to represent him or herself adequately before an immigration court. The we all need a lot of education about immigration law. There's a federal justice officer who had the gall to just say that a child, a lot of these undocumented people are young children, that a child, three or four years old, he has taught them immigration law adequate to represent themselves in an immigration court. This is what we're dealing with. Of course, that can't be the case. Also, two out of three Californians who are undocumented go to court without a lawyer each year if they have a lawsuit to obtain relief from being removed from the United States for their are for 15 times more likely to get a positive judgment from the court. Thank you. If they don't have if they do have a lawyer, I want thank you very much. Thank you for your time. Thank you for your testimony. Next week, at least. Hello. My name is Andrew. My cousin was supposed to be here today to share her story, but she's currently undergoing surgery. Her father, Felix, her mother Liana and her brothers and sisters were stripped away from us when I tricked Felix into walking into a police station under the guise of filling out paperwork, they had to leave behind a newly bought house, their friends and their family and their jobs. My mother and I did not see them for years. Neither did my. Nieces and nephews. But the thing that hurts the most is that my brother never got to see them again. My cousin Felix had to attend his funeral through a webcam. That's the thing that hurts the most. As a matter of fact, now that I think about it, my brother might still be alive today if my family was not separated. Why? Because family is the best support network that we ever have. And it's all because it's all because of these this narrative that the police department, the city staff, most of which don't even live in the community, in some of you behind the dias have put forth the good immigrant versus the bad immigrant. Susie. If your family were immigrants, then you support the Tongva community. Who are the original inhabitants of this land? D You represent blacks, Latinos, Pacific Islanders and Asians. That immigration is all of their issues. It's not just one. I want you all to understand that. And I know Roberta's not here, but I looked at all my hope. I still continue to look up to it. And Lena, as a former staff member, please don't let these Corvettes go through. I please. I look up to you. And what? And lastly, lastly, Robert, I know you are not out here right now, but I know you can hear me. I don't know if you've ever canvased in central, west or North Long Beach, but there are immigrants in those communities who grew up poor, just like you. Thank you for coming out. Thank you. But those communities. Well, let's be fair. That leads you to stand with them. Thank you. Thank you for your time. And I just want to mention to the Journal that just because we were able to hear everything, so I heard everything just in case. So as I was walking in. So take. Thank you. Next week since. My name is Marina Soto. And today I got a call from one of my workers, one of my coworkers in the hotel that she was on the way to work. Her husband was taking her to work here in a hotel on beach when she stopped by to get a donut before work with her husband. And Ice came out of their vans in civilian clothes and arrested her husband as a leader in the hospitality industry. What? I told this housekeeper. I didn't know what to say. Last year, I had to get as many friends possible together to send to my dad that was deported. His crime. Driving without a license. He's he's lived in Arpaio death camps for almost a year without representation. Lina and Roberto. I looked up to you during the Love for the Girl Stand with Women Line. You stood with us. Rex and Janine stood with us. Don't make the mistakes your colleagues did and stand with us now. Don't wait until another Time magazine Woman of the Year comes out for you to speak to us. Enough is enough. We're indigenous people. This is our continent. We are not immigrants. Robert Garcia, you are not an immigrant. This is your land. Claim it. Claim it for your people in Long Beach. Claim it for your indigenous people. This is ours. And we're here to stay. I vouch today to defend to the fifth day. Sorry to disobey Trump. Do you stand today to disobey Trump? Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week, a piece. Next beaker, please. Hey, we got be your next speaker. Hello. Good evening. Okay, that's enough. This work. That's actually a threat. Now that's a threat. You're going to be asked to leave. I'm taking. We're taking. We are taking everyone. I want everyone else. There's a stereo seating. We're taking a shower recess. Are going to deal with that right now. What about you? You know. Thank you, guys. We're going to we're going. To go ahead and start the meeting again. We're going to go ahead and start training again. Thank you. I'm at the Carlyle. I'm going to call a meeting. Okay. We're going to go back into recess. Well, thank you. So we will we will continue. Just just so everyone is aware, too, there you know, when we have when someone is removed, there is a process and a legal process that we have to go through. So I just want to make sure everyone is aware of what we do have a practice at the council that we have to follow. And so if you're wondering why, you know, folks came out and came back in, we're just following with that what that practices. Mr. City Attorney, you want to add to anything to that? Okay. Thank you. I want to make sure whoever was in line to speak as everyone back in line. Okay, great. Please go ahead. Hello. Good evening. My name is Farley Hakimi. I am. I'm pretty. I'm pretty meeting with Orange County and we get intimated as well as we. The policy, the team members for the policy rating of the S.A. City Sanctuary City Ordinance. And I'm here today to talk a little bit about that ordinance, which is, well, your council or your community members have modeled for the one that is presented in front of you, but also a little bit of changes for it. So it was a really long process for us to come up with an ordinance that would that would fit in with the spirit of the community to protect undocumented people. Our city ordinance includes it prohibits all city departments from collaborating with ICE, including local police departments. And the reason for this is so that there would be more trust for survivors of domestic violence and other people that have gone through different violence in their homes to come forward and put. Trust. In the people that would help them. We also have the prohibition of any city resources to be used for immigration enforcement, and we also have a universal representation item that helps community members acquire immigration, help through the city, through immigrant defenders. All of this was done for the community, by the community. All of it has is very inclusive of everybody, whether they have convictions of not or not. And I'm here to encourage you to do the same. Just because it has been a huge help for everybody in the city of Stanton, and we're not stopping just in that city. But please help your community members. And if you need help, feel free to reach out to us. The Orange County Red Rapid Response Network. And if you all have any questions, I'm here to answer them as well. Thank you so much. And we are Mr.. Mr. Rivera's Rivera is the last speaker, so I'm closing the speaker's list. I don't see any more. There's more. Okay. Mr. Suozzi is the last speaker on the speaker's list. Okay, we've got to close speaker's list, so if you please get in. So the gentleman in the back will be the last speaker. And the speaker's list is close. 1 to 3 close officially. So the gentleman in the back with the cat. All right, next speaker. Thank you. My comments, I think, for all the city council members, but in particular for one and for seven. Roberto Dunga. But I mean, you know, the mayor here, the carve outs ultimately are the test of how and what kind of policy the city is going to enact. It is the ultimate test when Trump is literally visiting California to bully California. A week after Jeff Sessions filed a lawsuit to instill fear in officials in our state officials and local officials. That's why they filed a lawsuit to instill fear in each and every one of you. So this is really a battle between courage and fear. There's a lot of policy in there, but it's really a battle between courage and fear. And we know that the only person that should be afraid is Trump. That's why he does this. So this is an ultimate test for you. Are are you going to side with the politics of fear or are you going to step up and enact a policy that doesn't move us backwards, that moves us forward because the SB 54 i s the best we can get in Sacramento when we're dealing with regions like Kern County and Fresno and, you know, the Inland Empire, Riverside , these are very conservative counties. This is Long Beach is this Long Beach. This is what we can expect. We need a better standard, a standard out of Long Beach. And what do we mean when we say carve outs? This isn't abstract. This is Hawk Alvarez. We met his family. This is. This is the Cambodian families that are here. And this is their home. And this is not just an issue for Long Beach, because this is a national conversation. And we need the places like Long Beach to push because we're also dealing with Texas. We're also dealing with Alabama. We're also dealing with Georgia. And yes, we are dealing with Kern and Fresno and Riverside. And so we need you all to step up and create a higher standard here in Long Beach. The carve outs are the ultimate test. And what a better message to send Trump here in California that we don't turn our back on anybody here in California. Let's do it. Let's do it. Big mamas, let's do this. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Sure. Thank you. Good evening, Mr. Garcia. Members of the council. Everybody who is in the room. My name is Hilda Guyton. I am a community activist and leader here in Rome. I came to America in 1989, and during my first years as undocumented, I lived in fear to go out after work. I lost my frontier because I was afraid to see a dentist. However, as an undocumented, I pay my taxes supporting my family. And I bought my first house here in Long Beach. I did all this because at work there was a man who lived who believed I was a worthy. He supported me all the way. He even had a place where I can hide in case in immigration show up. I flourished because of these people. And thanks to all the people who gave me the opportunity of being me, regardless of my legal status. Today. Today, you can do the same thing. You can give the opportunity to everybody who is here and who is not here to have. The flourish, because if someone, one person flourished in the community, the whole community flourishes. I leave that and I ask you to please support this item in their agenda and to support you guys. This support. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next, pick a base. But it's just a bonus when an artist most likely conceptualist. I mean, nobody's my alter ego. We want to know. Medal winner represented all Latinos in action, California. Good evening, everybody. Council members. My name is Marta Cota. I live in the first district representing all the Latino Latinos in action. California. California. Okay. Can you give me a speech? Me, this lawyer. We are going to look at the L.A. campus hierarchy and the Lonely Society. Also look at the issue. Okay. I believe I believe my speech is going to be copied because I believe that everything that has been said here is everything that I believe in and what needed to be said. Better get on. You got to direct them. I ntel of class, status and class. And they live across the country. They wrote it with anger. You know, they must stand in front of Latinos. Get in long. But. But I do want to reach Lena's heart, Robert's heart and Robin and Roberto Tango's heart. And I'm mentioning you because you are the Latinos who are representing us. You're going to get all you can say. I'm not sure about me, but I started like Orlando got up Alhambra. He got up at this union community. I got here. I believe that tonight when you go to bed, you will be remembering every word that was said from our community in Venice. The moment is the moment of their hit that still there is inspiration. Let us tackle money that ghetto can save my case. One of my sins were let go Southampton Anita. Bill Belichick blessing custom baby a little ceremony and in witness you know the desperation and now agitation for our community. I want you to be aware that that is just a small portion of what our community is going through. Missing three systems. So this cannot be a latency that I see on the planet. Is there be a lot of noise through the low rate or sentimental in most cases. But I still am promoting. Your new. Status and I feel sad for the insensibility of the people who have not allowed us to speak about our desperation or sadness and frustration to not be able to speak Lina, the innocent baby eaten in those eyeballs in this eternity, making us want this magic like Aslan Aquilina even organization and settle this blessed are also says both of you know you have a baby. You also have two teenagers and you don't understand how many people here have many husbands who have been separated. You are not Alcala is that not yet? Is Omega? He goes, like you say, No, not one other thing. I do not know. My book is one for families immigrant this but also be in La Familia go on separate us little seahorse in also special formula lost a companion I thought it was special if one with respect you know this woman, a new mayor I know you will let us down and there you will. Sorry, I get into another face. Let me confirm. It's as long as all three of you understand me. And I know that the epoch is another day. So I don't think they don't look again. They feel this social status is said can make what I saw exception Kyrgyzstan is going to stand is getting ambitious you know no matter what no intent of course as a project look at same of poor Colombian not the images sad in middle ASEAN but I can see it all those look on say they spent a lot of money that they cannot feed adults yet. No no I think that about that we can ask you. Thank you. Next week, please. Hi. My name is Charlie Trejo. Are we allowed to ask a question? I just. Just. Just comments, will. We'll ask questions. If you have a question that you'd like someone to ask later on, we could do that. Okay. I pray that all of you are with us and not with them. I pray that you are not going to tip ice. And let the police department give identity records. To si ngling out the profiling as to who gets to stay and who doesn't. We need to carve it out. This is a loophole. Please do not let these divisive. And evil tools. Help Trump meet. His race based quotas. Let's not let him brag about his numbers. The number of immigrants he captures. Trump is going to build a wall that we can count on. That wall will be a progressive wall. It will be made of all of us holding hands across the border. I ask you to seize the moment and hold hands with us to stop this agenda, to stop the wall, to stop this loophole, and to stop this divisive tool and carve it out. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hello, City Council. And Mayor Garcia, my name is Haugaard Rivera with Libra here representing the Sanctuary Long Beach Coalition. And we're asking you to adopt a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs. I'm standing here right next to, you know, my people of color. And and we're asking you to stand with us because if you're not standing with us, you're standing with. Blue because blue is where the carve outs came from. And either you're on the right side of history or you're not. And if you're not standing and if you're not standing with. Us, you're standing where you're standing with the folks that. Actually made the carve outs. And that's why, as I recall, Blue has never been known to represent any. Kind of race. So so we're here standing. For people, not for somebody that had made. A choice to become blue. And so we're asking you to stand with us. And most recently. Robert Garcia, you you. You announced on the Twittiverse, you honored your man, International Women's Day. So I want you to imagine. What it would have been like for you if your mom was deported. What it would have been what would it have been like for your family if your family was torn apart by deportation? What would you have been here? Would you have had the same opportunities. That you are now, you know, being. Endowed with I mean, what would your family have done if that had. Happened to you? So today we're asking you to stand with your immigrant population, with your people, and to represent us in the way that we we want you to represent us. That's why we put you in that seat. So represent us today. Make sure that you pass a clean Long Beach Values Act with no carve outs and start protecting our families. Stop protecting them from being ripped apart and stop protecting. Stop protecting the folks that actually want to carve these things out. Stand with us today. And we're asking that of you. And the rest of the city council. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Better. Next week, a police. Good evening. My name is Pastor Cue from Clergy and Lady United for Economic Justice. Dr. King said injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. But I would like I would like to add that injustice to anyone is a threat to justice for everyone. Why do I say that? Because my brother served in the military. My brother went to Desert Storm. He went to Iraq and he was convicted of a crime. He did his time. And as soon as he left the prison, he was deported. A veteran deported. He had been a military for quite a long time. So I'm here to say America owes people like my brother because my brother put his life on the line for this country. If America didn't want to be a country of immigrants in 1820, function of the Pilgrims shouldn't have landed in New England. America didn't want to be a country of immigrants. They shouldn't have come here because they were already natives here. If America didn't want to be a country of immigrants, they shouldn't have gone to Africa and forcefully taken black folks and brought them here. The legacy of America is sitting in this room. We're a nation of immigrants, whether we like it or not. The Pilgrims were not deported. They chose to come here and they weren't asked to leave. Thank you. Next week. At least I want that that aqua nature school here require teaching David de la Plata. Good evening, everyone. My name is David De La and more specifically, good evening, Lima and Jenny. September Heart. So it took my family 15 years to become legal. And there are some of the hardest workers that I know. They were six days a week, no paid sick leave, no vacations every single day, working and trying harder than most of the people in this room, to be honest. And but they finally got legal. So that's good. But I know there's still a lot of people in Long Beach that are living in fear every single day on the way to work. You can't even drive to work without having that weight on you. So with that, I just want to say we didn't cross the border. The border crossed us. This is Turtle Island. And if you're not a native person, you have no business saying who gets to stay or who gets to leave. Now, I've watched you support murderous policies like the poisoning of our people with 200 million barrels of oil. I've watched you guys ignore the police on women in the hotels. And if you make the wrong decision here today, you know less than supporting white supremacist ideology. Thank you. And next week, the police. Good evening, everybody. My name is James Sweitzer, the associate director of Building Healthy Communities Long Beach. Organization has been part of the Sanctuary Long Beach campaign, and we've started this effort over a little over a year ago. It's crazy to believe that it's been a year, but this is a campaign that's been really important not only to the organization, our organization, but also the community. As you can see, I have to say that I'm over so many emotions that so many people are behind me, still here late this night in preparing some comments, I thought a lot about the title of this act, the Values Act and the values that I've heard hear from you all in terms of what we value. And I think one of those is collaboration, and that's something that we have done a lot. And I think I also hear a lot of respect, great respect for this process, for what we've been through.

I also was one of the first people to say this. I'm sure you all will add. I have to commend city staff who worked with us, specifically Kevin Jackson, Monica and Katie, who have worked with the campaign for five long months and buried our scheduling with this is a labor of love for them and we wouldn't be here at this point without their dedication. I have to say I am disappointed that we haven't been able to work and have the same as close of a relationship with all the council offices. I think we've had a really difficult time and I think one of the results of that is this line of folks here. But I think the other thing too is that we value is the inclusion, right? Inclusion of our Cambodian community, which we know is very politically divided. There is not one councilmember here that has a majority of the Cambodian population, and that's why we stand in solidarity, whether Latinos black and in solidarity with the Cambodian community to not be left out of this. And I get it. This is a hard decision for you all. And I'll be honest, we don't have I know chief love of here before we've been in the meetings with PD. We don't have the political clout that they have. We have the community. We have the courage to come here, share our stories, and talk about what's real and what the impact is to our community. So I implore you, please support this with no carve outs, a fully funded deportation defense fund. Thank you. I had gained two accounts on the day. Now we're going to go ahead to the council that they now have. Thank you very much. Thank you. Thank you very much. We're going to go ahead and go back to the the city council. So I do have some people that are cued up and sort of go through the debate. And I just ask everyone, of course, is to be respectful of folks as folks are speaking and allow everyone to give their their points of view in the comments. And I'm sure there's going to be some questions back and forth as well. And so first up is Councilwoman Rice. Thank you. I have a few notes that should be displayed in just a second here. To go through. I appreciate everyone coming out and for all of your comments and regardless of what we do tonight and I look forward to what we do tonight, I think it's important. I mean, I certainly can only control what you do. You can't control what others do. But I think it's really important that we stay away from things like calling people who don't agree with us, white supremacists and things like that. I just I think that is not very helpful to the conversation. So you guys, guys, listen, everyone everyone is getting a chance to speak. And I just asked you guys, please just be respectful of now the council's debating and so we've please everyone has a chance to speak council. And I would say on the thoughts about having good relationships, it's interesting that one would get booed. Before. They've even talked about what their position is on something just because they don't like what what someone do esn't like what they're hearing. So it's especially from our religious leaders. So let's try to be respectful in this conversation. We are a very diverse city and we have residents all over the city who have thoughts and opinions and concerns about things. Today, my office received between yesterday and today, when the Press Telegram article came out over 100 emails, I believe almost all of them were an emphatic no on tonight's vote. And I think there's a lot of misinformation on behalf of a lot of residents in regards to what we're voting on tonight. So I want to do a little bit of clarifying on that so that the biggest concerns that have been expressed by my residents is a request that we vote no on sanctuary cities. And I think that it's really clear to me that there is no official definition of what a sanctuary city is and what that means. Some of my residents have believe that it means things that it really doesn't. In my opinion, what I believe the term means, as it's been implemented by over 300 jurisdictions in the United States, is that it limits information sharing between local authorities and federal authorities, which I support. There is no legal definition for it. And again, there's a great deal of misinformation about it and the context of tonight. We are a city of immigrants. Several of you pointed out how many of us are immigrants and several of you talked about the different backgrounds that some of us have. I for one, I was born in America, but I went back to the country of Iran as a baby with my mother and my father. And in 1979, my mother and I left the country because there was a political revolution taking place. And we left behind my father and my sister and I was separated from them and did not see them for over 20 years and I was reunited with my sister about 13 years ago. I share that with you because sometimes it's really, really easy to pick apart things that you don't like or support things that you do like. But I think it's really important that we step away for just a moment of advocacy and realize that we are all citizens. Many of us are citizens of this city, and we're doing our very best to walk along this journey side by side. And at the end of the day, as Rumi, one of my favorite poets, has said, we are all walking each other home. And I think that's really important to think about as we're going through this dialog, because we may not agree on everything. And I'll I'll share with you a little bit of what I'm talking about. So this is really for my residents. I will do a little bit of an education for the over 100 people who reached out to my office and asked me to vote no on this item, which I'll tell you in a moment. I do plan to support the item and why, but every city in the state of California has to follow state law, and that is a requirement. And that's necessary, of course. And SB 54, which passed, really went through a great deal of changes to get to the place that it did its original Version. An d those of you who are here and some of you may have heard me then who might be booing me tonight, really didn't like some of the comments I made about SB 50 Four's original introduction. And it turns out it wasn't just me. Local law enforcement leaders and even our governor didn't like the original version of SB 54. And that's why it was amended to a place that I think makes a lot of sense. It makes a lot of sense to me, and it includes the law enforcement exception. But SB 54 is limited to law enforcement agencies only, and I think that it should be expanded as the staff proposal recommends to all city departments. For those of you who don't know and again for any of my residents watching at home. SB 54 allows a law enforcement official to have discretion to cooperate with federal immigration officials by detaining an individual on the basis of immigration hold after an individual becomes eligible for release from custody. Only if the continued detention of the individual on the basis of immigration hold would not violate any federal, state or local law or any other local policies, and only under the following circumstances. And it lists approximately enumerates approximately 34, I think it's 35 crimes, including felony DUIs, which for those who are familiar with with my career as a prosecutor, was a really important concept for me. And I support fully support those law enforcement exceptions. Many people don't know this. And again, this is for a lot of my residents who are at home who don't know and understand that immigration status is not something that is at all considered in the context of local criminal prosecution. Prosecutors and I've been one for almost 19 years, never know the citizenship status of victims or defendants. It's absolutely irrelevant to our core function, which is was there a crime committed and who committed the crime? That's the limited focus of local law enforcement. And so the immigration status of the individual is irrelevant and should not be known to prosecutors and law enforcement. I believe that very strongly. Over the course of my career, I have represented the people of the state of California and domestic violence cases and rape cases and in murder cases. And I have helped thousands of people through the trainings that I've done in my office on helping victims and witnesses apply for U visas so they could stay in the country after cooperating on a criminal prosecution. That's not me just talking. That's me actually doing. I've sat across the table from victims of domestic violence, and I've helped them stay in this country after they have cooperated with law enforcement. And I'm so proud of those efforts. Having said that, I've also prosecuted many, many white American born evil people. So in my opinion, immigration status is absolutely irrelevant to the concept of whether someone committed a crime and what crime they committed. I do believe that the fear of deportation, that information is shared will result in less victims and witnesses cooperating with police officers. And I am a proud justice seeker. I got into the job because I wanted to fight for victims of crime. I don't care what their immigration status says. They're going to get 1,000% of my efforts and I want them to help us solve crimes. So I feel very strongly about that. So I learned my lesson with the hotel item. So I'm going to make a few things really, really clear because I don't want someone to come back later and say Suzy Price doesn't like immigrants because that's not the case. So I just want this to be clear. I support the exceptions which allow information to be shared under SB 54. And as a prosecutor, I know what it means for someone to be convicted of the very serious crimes listed, the crimes enumerated. It doesn't involve arrests, it's convictions only. And so to me, that makes a huge difference. And I do support that. The proposed values act as as presented by council has three components, if I understand it correctly. The first is that city departments should follow the current guidelines of SB 54 that the city should provide financial support for a legal defense fund. This is the one area I'm going to talk about that I have an opposition to and that the city should allow for federal and state legislative advocacy, which I fully support. I do not support using taxpayer dollars. Public funds to fund a legal defense fund. And I'll tell you why. Using city finances to fund a legal defense, in my opinion, is in violation of our city charter, even if it's not the city attorney who's actually advocating on behalf of the individual. I believe that the intent of our charter is to limit our functions as a city and limit to what we can do in terms of municipal affairs. Currently, the city cannot enforce or defend against against laws on behalf of those who are not employed in the city. It's actually in our city charter under Section 603. I think what's being proposed through the staff policy, in my opinion, my personal opinion is in violation of the intent of the charter. Let's take, for example, the situation where we ask our city attorney to defend against an action for the city. And the city attorney contracts out with a public I mean, with a private law firm to do that city attorney work. Our charter and the limitations of our charter would apply to the firm that we have hired to work on behalf of the city. That firm cannot represent an individual in a legal action by going through a nonprofit organization, which, by the way, the staff report, as great as it is, is completely void of any details of how this financial allocation would work. So I would be urging my colleagues not to vote on that tonight anyway. There's no implementation plan. It's unclear to me what nonprofit is going to get the money. In the past, we have allocated large sums of money, and I know $100,000 isn't a large sum of money, but in the past we've allocated large sums of money for causes that I've exp ressed concern about, and there's been applause that's been erupted in the council chambers. But I would ask folks who applauded in those situations, do you feel that the city's allocation of that large sum of money has moved the needle on that issue? Because I tell. You, it has not, because we didn't identify exactly how that money was going to be spent or where it was going to go. In my opinion, allocating the money the city tax dollars to a nonprofit to implement a legal defense fund is a way to get out creatively, get around the intent of our charter, which is city money should be used to defend the city and city employees if it's going to be used for legal action. It's not the intent of our charter that we allocate taxpayer dollars for individual legal battles. So just to be clear, I do not believe that we should use public funds to support individual legal issues. So my vote tonight will be and I want to hear from my colleagues, but I think my vote is going to be I support following SB 54 because it is the law. I support staff's recommendation to expand the law so that all city departments cannot share information as to immigration status only. I support staff's recommendation, which does not eliminate the law enforcement exception that allows information sharing in the three or four enumerated circumstances. And I do not support using city funds to fund a legal defense fund. So at this point, I know there's been a motion and a second, but I would like to make a substitute motion that we adopt the recommendations of staff. Absent the legal fund portion. Okay. That's a that's a motion. Is there a second on that motion? Okay. There's there's a second on the motion. So that's a now substitute motion. We still have people cued up and we're just going to go right through the queue and hear from other folks. Next up is Councilwoman Gonzalez. Okay. So thank you all again so much for being here, telling us your stories, talking about your advocacy for this issue. It certainly, you know, means a lot to many of us on the council, whether we are or we come from immigrant families or not. I think this is an issue that all of us have to be aware of and care about, not just because I'm Latina, but because it should matter to all of us. We have neighbors who are being affected. We have friends who are being affected. We know we know the stories. We've seen them. We've heard them. We've looked at them on TV. And clearly there's an issue here. Now, I actually have a a line of questioning for chief for our police department. I don't know if Chief Luna is going to respond to those questions, because I do believe that we need to clarify a lot of what is out there. There is a lot of misinformation. And I want all of us to understand that this policy we're putting forward is to support immigrants as much as we possibly can. And I do believe in a legal defense fund, which I will talk about. So first, I want to get some clarifying answers to the questions that I h ave for our police department. Of course, we know what SB 54 includes, but a lot of us know what it looks like on paper. But we don't know the exceptions, the situations that were in, in order for us to really realize what we can and cannot do as a police department and also as a city department. So first and foremost, and I appreciate you, Chief Luna, for being here today. I first want to ask you, because there's quite a few questions here, and so I. Please bear with me. I think this is all very, very important for us. First question, as it relates to making arrests on civil immigration warrants, can you explain a civil immigration warrant how that differs from a criminal warrant in terms of live PD participation? Mr. Mayor, and members of the City Council and specifically to council member Lena Gonzalez. The way that differs is we don't enforce civil law as a police department. Civil immigration warrants can be issued by a nice agent. A criminal warrant needs to be issued by a judge. We actually in our department currently have a special order that explains the difference to our employees between a civil warrant through NCIC, which ICE issues and criminal matters that we deal with. I'm looking for the special order. Give me a quick second here. Because I'm just going to paraphrase it if that's okay, because I know we've been here a long time on this, but anyways, it does describe what a civil detainer is and just reading from it, it says Unless immigration status is relevant to another criminal offense, the fact that an individual is suspected of being a non-citizen should not be used as a sole basis for contact, detention or arrest. That's primarily what the special order calls for. The next paragraph deals when we do assist other law enforcement agencies, including ICE. Okay. Thank you. So I just want to summarize and make clear that we are not actively enforcing civil immigration warrants. We do not ask people in the three situations I named. We don't ask people for their immigration status even when we arrest people. We are not asking them for their immigration status. We are arresting people for criminal charges. Statutes under the penal code. Vehicle code at times. And welfare and institutions code. Nothing to do with civil immigration process. We do not do that here at the Long Beach Police Department. Okay. Thank you. And that is clearly stated in the special order, as you mentioned. That's correct. Okay. The second question I have and this has been sort of not clear and I wanted to get clear on this as well, was does the LAPD affirm that they do not ask about citizenship status, as you mentioned, but specifically, are we inquiring about country of birth at any time? So as stated prior, ma'am, we do not ask people for immigration status on these routine contacts, detention or arrest. There are some instances where we will ask people the country of origin. But I think that's a citywide thing. And the only two instances

I could think of is for pre-employment applications if somebody is applying for the position of police officer. We obviously ask them what their immigration status is and then when we get into U visas. Councilwoman Pryce talked about the U. Visa program. Obviously, that is an effort to assist somebody who's an immigrant who's been a victim of a crime. We're going completely out of the way to assist in those situations. Now, you asked about the place of birth, which is a little different than immigration status in our booking forms. That is an L.A. County booking form. There is a box there that we have to fill in that asks for place of birth. There is no follow up questions after the place of birth to somebody's immigration status. Okay. Thank you. And can you. So you've said I don't know if everybody understands certainly the process of the U visa. I understand it is for immigrant residents who want to receive a visa to stay in this country if they were a victim of a crime. And do they divulge the information? Are we. I just want to make sure the process is clear on what that visa is and what the process is in terms of obtaining that information. So are you visas an immigration benefit that can be sought by victims of certain crimes who are currently assisting or have previously assisted law enforcement in the investigation or prosecution of a crime, or who are likely to be helpful in the investigation or prosecution of criminal activity. And just to give you an example, in 2017, there were 284 incidences where people applied, and out of the 284, 212 were approved. So that's a significant amount that were approved for for that purpose. And again, we are focused on the fact that individuals are victims. We don't care what color, race, religion, affiliation or immigration status. That does not matter to us when we're dealing with victims. Okay. Thank you, Chief, for the clarifying information. I just want to make sure we're clear on why it's asked in the context in which it's asked as well, which is actually to, it seems, from what you're saying, to support our immigrant populations for staying here, in fact. A few more questions. So under in terms of sharing personal information, which was a big one for SB 54 and of course here in Long Beach, not just for the police department, but we want to make sure, as I mentioned before, that sharing personal information, retaining the information, disseminating the information is not it's prohibited not just from the police department, but from every single department in this city. That means code enforcement officers should not be doing that. That means health department officers should not be doing that. Public works. However, people provide information. It should not be disseminated, shared at all. Now, Chief, I just have to get clear on this one. Under what circumstances do we, if at any time, share information, do we still have to share it if the information is public? Because I know personally information as well as release dates are an issue. I know that there may be some. Well, there is a large question about that. Yes. There are definitely questions about that and very good questions. Basically, when we're dealing with arrest information, the majority, if not all of that is already public information. So, for example, when we arrest people within, I want to say 24 hours, maybe just a little bit more, we're actually providing a list through relationships and previous agreements that we have with the media. So when you're arrested, people say, well, you're not supposed to give that out. Actually, we do give it out, and that's for everybody. It is important to note that because we are tied into the L.A. County booking system, when an individual gets arrested in the city of Long Beach, they get life scanned. The minute they get life scanned, their information automatically goes into that booking system. ICE has access to that system. So whether we want to share it or not, it is something they have access to. That's important because I think a lot of the people who spoke, I don't think definitely understand, understood that the only exceptions would be consistent with SB 54. And I think Councilwoman Pryce talked about that as well. Okay. Thank you so much. Okay. I'm just going to get my notes here. I'm sorry. The next question is transfers to ice. Can you explain whether there are transfers to ice occurring from the Long Beach Police Department? The simple answer to that would be a quick one. And that would be not to my knowledge, at least during the time I've been the chief of police in this city, in our city, the last three plus years. But it is important to note that if ICE wants somebody in our custody, we do have a procedure in place to comply with the current law. And that's very important. And again, going back to the previous question in some of my answer, when ICE automatically gets the booking information they have in their system, when somebody is wanted by ICE for one reason or another, it is important for everybody who is listening to me to understand that when ICE wants somebody from the Long Beach Police Department, we do not automatically release people to ICE unless they provide us with a judicial warrant. If they have a civil civil paperwork, that does not work for us. It has to be a judicial warrant and that is per SB, it's actually a before and then SB 54. So we're following state law when it comes to that. Okay. So a judicial criminal warrant and is is needed on all of these cases. So for specific release date information and also for transfers to ICE as well. Is that correct? Yes, that is our current practice. And I believe based on what we're doing, we are following state law. SB 54 and 84. Thank you. Now a few more questions here. How are we handling criminal immigration reentry? I'm sorry. Just immigration reentry after someone has already been deported when they come back. Is there a specific. Way we a re handling our process. We are handling these types of individuals. We comply with SB 54. We don't proactively enforce any immigration related offenses. The only way we're going to come in contact with somebody under the circumstances I think you're asking about is if they get rearrested for one reason or another. Okay. And then access to jails or ICE agents or federal agents using our Long Beach jails to conduct business. I did some research on that because sometimes you ask the question and people say either no or I don't think so. Based on the research we did, I didn't find any instances, at least recently, where somebody from ICE visited our jail. But under if you look at SB 54 or something, I want to make clear to everybody in this room and anybody who's listening is I don't if you are committing violent crimes, serious crimes, or you are impacting this community in a very negative way because you're a repeat offender, I'm going to allow any agency that will assist us in making sure that that individual, whether they are documented or undocumented, gets the full force of the law. Because at the end of the day and something I didn't say earlier, I'm people have said it over and over. I'm the son of an immigrant, too. I grew up in an immigrant community. I know firsthand what it's like to be victimized by individuals who I'm always looking around saying, boy, somebody needs to do something about these individuals. I live with that I know a lot of you out there, people I've worked with hand in hand, you know who I am. You know where my heart is. We don't go after the ice cream vendor, but I'm going to tell you something. There will be no sanctuary for anybody who's committing serious crime in this city. I don't care what your immigration status is. Okay, Chief, thank you. And the next question I have is in regards to the types of joint task force meetings we have and we've been involved with. And I know we do have an M.O.. You contract with the Port of Long Beach. Perhaps we can talk about maybe what's included in that M.O. you respective to how we can we collaborate on our waterways. We have an individual that's assigned to the best task force, which is maritime security, as you know. And we have spoken about this issue on many occasions. We are a very unique city with many homeland security needs. Part of one of our biggest responsibilities we have in this city is maritime security, waterside and and landside. Part of the task force that we're on. They focus on maritime security type issues which deal with homeland security. There is human trafficking involved. There's narcotics involved and other long term investigations. That is a very important part of keeping this community safe, our homeland safe. So we participate with many other law enforcement agencies that include include other federal law enforcement agencies. Okay. Thank you very much. And then, Kevin, I just have a couple of questions for you. To 87 G, if you're familiar with tha t program, if you'd be able to just quickly talk about the 287 G program. It's in essence, I'll just say it real briefly. It's a federal program in which states can participate in deputizing their police officers to enforce immigration law similar or in conjunction with ICE. Do you are we saying in this proposal that we will not enter into any new M.O. user contracts with respective under this under this 27 G program? Councilwoman Gonzales. The answer to that question is yes. Okay. Thank you. Great. And then the last one for you, Kevin, is which city entities outside of our own city departments have we engaged with? And are we asking in this policy to implement similar policies because we want to make sure outside of the city if a student at Cal State, Long Beach, Long Beach, City College, the port, the water department, I'm hoping they were all engaged with, and that we can start recommending whatever we pass today to make sure the whole city is included. Councilwoman Gonzalez is part of the the process of developing the ordinance. We limited we limited our interaction to city manager departments. But we did discuss. The the need to, to reach out to non city manager departments. And as, as I indicated in the presentation tonight, we would encourage non city departments to, to either comply with whatever, whatever policy the City Council adopts or a similar policy. And so we have we have, you know, taken an interest in that. We've also engaged with Cal State Long Beach as part of the engagement process. We collected some information on the Long Beach Unified School District and some things that they've been they've recently done. I could I could have Katie come and speak to some of those things that those recent actions that have taken place. But I think for this this particular this particular item that's on the agenda tonight, our efforts are really focused on the city of Long Beach and its departments. But I would like Katie to speak to the engagement work that we did and what we found with some of the other agencies in the community and what they're doing to limit cooperation with immigration authorities. Good evening. Good evening. Yes. Good evening. Sorry. Getting the hang of that. Good evening, counsel. Councilmember Gonzalez in particular. As Kevin mentioned, we did some outreach with Cal State, Long Beach, both with the police department. As well as the Dream Center. And what we learned through. Our outreach there is the police department following the incident where a Cal State Long Beach police officer pulled over Jose Alvarez past what they refer to as General Order 55, which is similar in some ways to what we're proposing tonight. And the officers shall not stop or detain persons for determining, based on their immigration status or arrest persons solely for alleged undocumented entry into the U.S. and because their law enforcement. Cal State Long Beach Police Department also must follow SB 54. Additionally, what we found in outre aching to Cal State Long Beach. Is through their dream center, they do. Provide resources for students, including an investment of $200,000 to pay for fees for students. And they work to connect students to resources and help normalize the college experience. We also learned through just some research that Long Beach Unified passed a resolution in February 2015, essentially designating schools as safe zones and ensuring that any request by ICE, either for access to schools or for student information, must first go through the superintendent's office. They're not collecting any data with respect to immigration status for their students, and they also partnered with their afterschool providers to. Ensure that they're. Also abiding by those same policies. Thank you, Kate. Okay. Thank you very much for that. The clarifying information. So I'm going to have I have a motion that I'm going to put on the floor, a couple items that I'm going to put on the on the floor here, just including all this information, because I think, again, a lot of the information that we heard today was just not we haven't heard before. And I really appreciate the police department for and Chief Luna for answering these questions, because I think there were a lot of muddy points for many of our residents who didn't really understand what our LBB PD policy was. And before the special order came out and it just states one simple thing, the administrative warrants versus criminal warrants, I think we could possibly add more in the special order respective to what you're mentioning today and the answers you provided. So if that's something we can do, I want to make a motion, my first motion, you know, the special order. And I don't know if you've seen, but the city of Los Angeles created a special order back in the seventies, 1979, when Daryl Gates was the chief of police back a long time ago. And the special order was because of many raids happening, similar to what we're going through today, lots of raids happening to the L.A. community. The city of L.A. decided they need to do something and take a stand. And so the chief of police at that time put forward a special order, as we did, similar to what we're doing now. But it clearly outlined what we can and cannot do in terms of being a police department. So what I would like to to ask Chief Luna and adding in this motion is to include the a mandate, the special order that outlines the procedure not only for civil versus judicial criminal warrants, which you've included, but also includes these special cases that we've discussed today. So the questions that I've asked Chief Luna and the answers provided, I would like that to be included. So it's clearly dictated what we can and cannot do as a city Long Beach Police Department. In addition to that, we do need to make this publicly available. I believe that many other cities have their policies publicly available online. Whether whatever happens today, we still need to educate indiv iduals more than here that need to understand what this policy actually means and what we're going to do going forward. So I'd like us to have a a site, a city website similar to what we did with the land use element. Long Beach dot gov slash Long Beach Values Act that clearly defines maybe facts and questions so people understand in various languages what this means tonight. Thirdly, I'd like to ensure that we provide this resolution as soon as possible to all city departments. I'm sorry to all city entities outside of the departments for recommended implementation as soon as possible. And with that, with our city departments, it would be good if we had a letter of commitment from each of our department heads in that we make sure that this is protocol from now on, that the Long Beach Values Act is something that each of us are committed to, not just the Long Beach Police Department, but every single city department is committed to. And lastly, I do believe in the legal defense fund. I think many other cities have done it. If you look at the city of New York has $16 million that they have a lot of money that they privately funded, which is fantastic. We have New York City. I'm sorry, I already said New York. It's been a long night. Washington, D.C., $500,000 as little as Santa Anna, $65,000. But I know we can do more here. And so and this is why I'm saying this is because regardless of what happens, I the police department, from what we're gaining and commitment from our police department in all of our city departments, is that we don't have a crystal ball to see anyone in here or ourselves or anyone who has any criminal background. We don't we don't know who does or does not. But we want to be able to protect all of our immigrants, as well as all of the individuals who are high need individuals outside of being an immigrant. Right. We talked about people of color. We talked about people who need to be universally represented. And much of the funding and various other cities do have universal representation. So that's what I'm going to ask for tonight. I would like to direct the city manager to secure. We've asked originally for 100,000. I am going to ask for $250,000 in general fund dollars perhaps as a baseline. Perhaps we can do more, starting with any surplus from 2017 or any unused moneys from other special funds for the exclusive use of legal defense in response to deportation cases, including individuals who need universal representation. And this should be in conjunction with organizations such as the Vera Institute. We know that this institute has a longstanding history of working with municipalities. It is an organization that works with us that could work with us, possibly matching funds, so giving us another 250,000. It also provides key performance and metrics, and that's really important. How are we doing in this policy? What? Where do we need? Where are the gaps? Two years, three years, four years down the line and reports for ongoing policy suggestions and how we can continue to report. I will say in that fund, whoever we work with, whether it's whether it's the community foundation or central charge. Whoever it is. We need to make sure that impacted communities like the Cambodian refugees do take priority depending on what the public feels. I also feel that if we're going to use this fund as well to look at all of our communities, high risk individuals who have maybe some background that they need to get expunged or need some additional services that we're also looking to places like our African-American communities and our Latino communities, whether immigrants are not. So that's what I'm putting out there. The last thing I will say is we need to provide updates on all. I'm sorry, this is another add on. Provide all updates on state and federal policies to the City Council. We've done a really great job at that. There is one bill that we I don't know that we've supported in the past. It's the Senate Bill 1506 that basically states that landlords should not be retaliating against immigrant populations. And I think we need to take a stand and support that as well. And then the last thing here is there is a initiative that we have not taken a part of. Los Angeles has taken a part of this. San Francisco has taken a part of this, but we have not. So we're missing here. And someone from the Cambodian community spoke to it. The Long Beach YMCA is a partner in this, but we are not as a city. So I'm asking us to be a partner. Welcoming initiate I'm sorry, welcoming America initiative. Becoming a member of this initiative cost as low as $200 annually. We can do things like create certification processes for how well we're doing with inclusivity respective to immigration populations, and it provides additional resources with a mission to provide a roadmap for training and in becoming a more inclusive city towards immigrants and really all residents. So I'm asking us to be a member, official member of this initiative. So with that said, I thank you all here for for being here tonight. I hope that this is a very robust motion for everyone. And I also want to say that the work is not going to be done. It's not going to be done here. And we have a lot of work to go ahead and continue doing. But this, I know, is a great starting point to support our immigrant communities. Thank you very much. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. I know we have a long speakers list. I'm going to just say a few a few comments and questions and I'll I'll let everybody else cue up. I know we're going to second round now, Jessica, but a couple of things. The first is obviously just a a I think that she just amended her main motion is what she did. There's a substitute on the floor. This would be a substitute. Substitute. Correct. Is there a second? Is there a second on the substitute substitute? Well, we got a. Is there a second on the substitute? Substitute. Okay. All right. So that is the substitute m otion on the floor. So a couple a couple a couple questions for the staff and the city attorney. So just the thing I think that's important and I want to make sure and I appreciate everyone's comments and I appreciate whether there will be is and where they're coming from. When when I think when we talk about public safety and one of the reasons why I believe that folks advocated and we have had a coalition of folks come together with the sanctuary coalition is because public safety, as we know, is not just about policing, but public safety is also about making sure that people in the community feel safe as part of that community. One of the reasons why sanctuary policies are important for all those folks that have also contacted to our office, is that in the current environment, a lot of people in our community just do not feel safe interacting, not just with law enforcement, but also with government. And so what we're seeing right now, and I've talked to folks in the police department, I've talked to judges at our courts, I've talked to residents in the community. There is a real fear from people to even interact with the judicial system or the public safety continuum system that we have in Long Beach. And so for for all of us, where it might be very easy and we don't have a problem with picking up the phone or calling 911 or asking for help. I think it's important for everyone to know, and particularly for those that are watching tonight, that that is not the case for everyone in the city. And so the fear that people feel with interacting with the government actually makes us less safe. It makes us less safe as a community because crimes and serious issues are not being reported. We have some cases out of the Long Beach courthouse where we've had women in particular. I'm not show up to some domestic violence cases because of their immigration status and because they're afraid of deportation. So those are real fears. And that's why I believe this council is having this this debate today. The first the first thing is a question I know I had asked the city attorney this, but it's my understanding on the legal defense fund question, I fully support a legal defense fund. I think that not only should the city have be a part of that, and I think it's important that there are and there is public dollars to a legal defense fund. I think that says a lot about the city's commitment, but also, of course, that the city would engage like like L.A. or the county has an additional fund raising, a nonprofit support. But Mr. City Attorney, is it your legal opinion that we can develop a legal defense fund, essentially have a system that creates one? I know I have asked you that. Mayor, members of the council, I think the answer is yes. But we couldn't, as the councilmember from the first District described, we couldn't do that tonight. What we would do is take direction from the council, as I'm taking notes here on what it is that you would like to do, how you w ould like to set it up , we would need to do additional research, look at what the other cities are, and come back to council for an authorization for the Fund. Who the partners would be to provide council with the information necessary for the defense fund that then they can approve that as a policy decision. But I think at the end of the day, the answer is yes, we can get you where you want to be. Okay. And I just want to make and I want to just add to that as well. And so I think I'm clearly with both the County of Los Angeles and the city of Los Angeles and other jurisdictions establishing legal defense funds. Long Beach can establish one and we should establish one as well. I do have a question for the chief because I mean, obviously, the main conversation debate is around the carve out piece and those particular sets of crimes that have occurred in the past. And so when when SB 54 obviously was adopted, there was no in the law. I believe there is no set of kind of check and balance about what that meant. It was kind of it was kind of penal as a brush, a kind of an overall crime that was listed. I don't know that it got overly specific or had any types of additional measures to protect undocumented people within local jurisdictions. And so I guess what I'm wondering is within within us here in Long Beach, is it possible that we could develop an additional policy that focuses if if there were going to be a carve out, if the carve outs, let's say, in some cases in other jurisdictions, have been abused or could be abuse, could we have a policy that could be developed that would essentially create either either oversight or checks and balances or triggers within within our policy or law? In order to afford for the police department to actually at that point with those types of crimes, interact with the federal government. Mr. Mayor. Members of the City Council. A policy can can be developed. It can include supervisory or management oversight of anything that would come forward and be approved at the at higher levels within the police department. Okay. So what you're saying that if there is a that there could be a there could be a additional level of approval if there was going to be a a transfer that was going to take place, that it just wouldn't be automatic, but there could actually be a different level of protection or there could be a policy created that we could have to have some kind of approval at the highest level for that to occur. Yes. The only thing I would ask is to confer with the city attorney, make sure we're looking at SB 54 to make sure that that's possible. But based on the way you're describing it, it seems completely plausible to be able to do that. Okay. And I just want to just throw that out again, as I think there regardless of where and there's a lot of folks that are keyed up to speak. And so I'm not sure exactly where this will this will end tonight. But I just want to make sure, as we keep going, that we look at ways o f strengthening beyond what we have with SB 54, that the mandate because I believe there are still additional ways that we can strengthen the law and create additional protections for undocumented members. So I think that would be one way. I think there are many opportunities beyond that that would be able to, I think, make make good beyond just be 54 and make a little bit stronger for us here locally. Let me keep going on on the speakers list, Councilmember Pearce. Thank you and thank you to my colleagues and Mayor and Chief Luna. Typically, I would have talking points right now, but this is definitely it did not see where the night was going. I want to first say how much again, it means to me that you guys came out that not only did we have residents that we see come out to a lot of these issues like Claudia's law, but that we had clergy in full force and more importantly, that we had the opportunity to hear from from attorneys, some attorneys that have taken a look at this and written, you know, I've got the letter from ACLU in front of me that's very easy to digest and a lot of points around what legally we can do as a city. And I think that coming up to tonight, there are a lot of questions. What we're hearing from PD on what is practice, where there's transparency and actual policy, where we get to see a policy that says this is what we actually do versus , you know, the situations are different. Every single situation is different whenever we have somebody in a community. And I remember in my first year in office getting the calls early in the morning about the Cambodians that were facing deportation and hiding out families that have lived here, hiding out in fear. And while that wasn't a situation where it looked like PD had somebody in custody and then communicated with ICE, it seemed to folks that there was some collaboration. And so I think that that's the message we need to make sure that we send tonight. I do not support the carve outs. I know that there are. I know that my my colleagues are listening to the discussion or digesting a lot of the information that you guys provided to us. And again, having legal letters in front of us definitely helps. And so I know that it seems like there's some movement on that, and I know that there's a very easy way for us to have that conversation. But there's already substitute motions and subsub motions. So what I'd like to ask a couple of questions just to get us coming from some of these letters and making sure, again , that we're having a transparent conversation. One of the questions that was brought up was that agencies allow in-custody transfers of office. And I know, Chief Luna, you already made mention that since you've been in your position that you don't have record of that. But is that in fact a policy not to collaborate? And I know some of this is going to you're going to hear it twice, just a little bit. I just want to make sure that we're getting the answers correct. Did you unders

Are those exemptions, I should say. With SB 54, and I don't have it in front of me, but there is a clause in there that if you get rearrested and you had committed, I believe it's a felony in the last 15 years that SB 54 states that yeah, you can absolutely get deported. Okay. So what I have in front of me is that if it's a conviction for a serious or violent felony conviction for a felony that's punishable by imprisonment conviction within the last 15 years or any other specific. Yeah, well, I'm looking at some of the top ones that are that people have talked to me about recently and a conviction that's occurred in the last five years of a misdemeanor. So these are all opportunities that ICE would be able to come in and work with PD to to remove somebody. Is that correct? Yeah. I'm sorry. With the list of crimes like assault, battery use of threats, sexual abuse, sexual exploitation of a child, burglary, robbery, all those things are listed under there. And that's within 15 years. And so that as we move forward, I'm not going to be able to to vote yes on something tonight that still leaves those in there. If there's a move from the council to continue having this conversation. And I'm open and I want to say that I you know, I'm a mother. I'm somebody that has been a victim of violent crimes. I have a five year old daughter. I do not want to provide an opportunity for more violent crimes to happen. But I think it was said by, you know, one of my colleagues and also attorneys that we're here tonight. Immigration status has nothing to do with the crime that was committed and that we have seen people be rehabilitated. We've seen people be rehabilitated. We've seen change that has been able to happen. And so how are we as a society talking about rehabilitation and second chances? And I know it's something that another one of my colleagues cares deeply about our our prosecutor cares deeply about. And so what I'm interested in is that there's a conversation around instead of 15 years, that there's a small maybe there's not exactly what everybody in the room wants, but maybe it's five years. Is there a conversation that we can have here that brings us a Long Beach policy as a starting point, and that we can continue to have this conversation about what other items we have in here or don't have in here. And so I'm probably going to queue up again, but I want to hear what my colleagues are. And again, the carve outs are not something that I support. And I really appreciate all the efforts that my Councilmember Lena Gonzalez, have put in here. And I really support all of those and continuing to make sure that we're transparent, that we're working with PD on those conversations, but curious to hear what my colleagues are. Thank you. Thank you. Counts membership or not? Thank you. My topic was going to be the justice fund, but it was somewhat defined yesterday and certainly earlier this evening. But now it's become somewhat amorphous. So I'm not sure if this will make any sense. But my original objection to the way the fund funding mechanism was structured was, I understand why we didn't want to be part of the Los Angeles Justice Fund. We don't want to be a small fish in a big pond, so we come up with a legal defense fund. So my point was just continue that philosophy right down to the council office level. So for instance, for public works, we have something called divide by nine funds. So I just wanted to get my fair share for the folks in need in my district. And I met with the. City manager and deputy city manager yesterday. And they said, well, is it possible under this system? And that's that's a tough one for me. I guess the worst scenario for me would be to have a constituent in need and say, well, you know what? I don't think the money's in the fund, but I don't control it anyway. I hated a system that would potentially lead up to that. So I think we also have a discussion. Well, I don't know where that's going to go, but because the funding mechanism has been questioned tonight, I'll leave that one alone. Also, I found it interesting because we're talking about Cal State, Long Beach in terms of jurisdictional issues and the fourth District borders, Cal State, Long Beach. So we have that. But I think I count four other agencies that border my district alone. Our northern border is a four or five freeway. So that's the California Highway Patrol. I border Orange County. So that can be the Orange County sheriffs or Los Alamitos Police. Then I have a long border with the Signal Hill Police Department, and ironically, there's a large Cambodian population within the city of Signal Hill. So I think that speaks to the fact that these issues are more regional, are our state in nature, because it's tough to have all these different jurisdictions. I think that's all I have to say for now. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Vice Richardson. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And this has gotten to be a very, very complex conversation. I'm actually really enjoying enjoying this conversation. So, first of all, just thanks to everyone here who's given their stories, particularly, you know, I want to shout out Hilda, my ninth district resident here. Hilda is one of the most active leaders in North Long Beach. And, you know, from the Lions Club to the neighborhood associations to the healthy eating, active living hill zone. And thank you for stepping up and telling your story. I think you you nailed it for me in terms of the value that that folks, you know, that are undocumented or have a history of being different, imm igration status, their contributions to our community. So thank you. And and Councilwoman Pryce, thank you for sharing your story as well. And that was really that was really interesting to hear hear your perspective, hear your story. That helps to help me understand where everyone is. I would say under normal circumstances and in normal times, we would encourage our local government to coordinate with other agencies. In normal times, these are not normal times. You know, frankly, these are not these are not normal times. And we have to protect the institution of government, the faith that folks have in the institution of government for a number of reasons. And a lot of them have been articulated. So I won't I won't repeat them. But we've seen when when states and cities have or have not done the right thing and the federal government has had to step in and help enforce state cities and states to do the right thing. I see this as sort of an inverse of that. And what I'm talking about is sort of the end of segregation, a number of things that were happening in the South. Many people don't know this, but I moved here from Alabama, from from the south. And, you know, we do have a history of understanding the difference. And when the federal government, state government and local government are on the same page, and I think we're just in one of those moments right now that we have to be very clear about the experience that we want our residents to have. And so just to be very clear, I support this policy. I support this policy. I want to be very clear that, you know, I didn't like you know, I want to better understand this situation and carve outs because the reason I signed on to this to begin with wasn't to create loopholes or wasn't to create opportunities to game the system. The opportunity. What we wanted to do was protect citizens and have confidence for all of our citizens to make sure that they they have confidence in their government. So I want to understand this a little bit more. So I'm just going to ask just a just a couple questions, Chief. Just walk me through just walk me through my understanding my understanding what went through what happens under two scenarios. One, someone gets stopped for non felony local issue that's under sort of our responsibility and our local prosecutors responsibility. Let's say it's a like a misdemeanor type citation or a citation, something like that. What happens from the moment an officer detains someone? Can you walk me through from that point from particularly from sort of information sharing with with ICE position? Oh, Vice Mayor Richardson Members of the City Council, if I understood your question correctly for for a misdemeanor citation, the officer would make contact, determine that a misdemeanor crime occurred and then probably run the subject either on the radio or in their computer to see if they have any outstanding warrants. And if they determine that they can be cited out and not taken into p hysical custody and to the station, they issue the citation. The citation has information on there that has to be filled out. The subject then signs a citation, they're released and the citation gets turned in to the station where it eventually makes its way through the to the court system. And then they're held they show up in court to answer to the charges if they are, in fact, factual or not. Basically, that's what happens from an information sharing perspective. If we're specifically talking about ice, it goes into our system and I'm trying to think really hard in regards to ice, getting that type of information because the person's not actually being booked into the L.A. County system. So their name doesn't pop up because if, for example, we change that hypothetical around and the individual actually gets taken to the booking facility, they do get life scanned. And that's where the that life scan portion is, where it goes into the county booking system. And then that does become available to ICE. And I'll stop right there because you probably have some questions. Okay. So at the live scan, so someone's getting booked, they get a live scan and that becomes public to all law enforcement agencies, is that correct? That's correct. You're you're you. Forcibly send this information to ICE? We do not send the information to ICE. The the life scan goes into the L.A. County booking system and becomes available to other law enforcement agencies. ICE is one of many tours. And so from there, let's say that this this person, we haven't checked their documentation status. We just do a live scan on everyone. And then let's say ICE reaches out and says, hey, we want this guy. What is the protocol there? So sorry about that. So we don't check documentation status at the Long Beach Police Department. That is not something that we check. We check criminal history. That's what we're interested in, but we're not interested in in legal status. Now, what would happen in the in the case that we're I'm giving you an example of ice. If they are interested in somebody, they would send us an immigration detainer notice of action. And it's basically a form that they would send to us telling us that they're interested. It's signed by an ICE agent. At that time, we determine one, does the individual that they're looking at even meet the criteria that we've been talking about for the last hour? Do they meet that criminal criteria? If they do, then we inform ICE that if they want this individual, they have to provide a court order in order to retrieve this individual. That's what I talked about earlier, that in my last three and a half years, I have we have not seen one court order that was presented to us where we turned somebody over. So at that point, so you've live scanned them. Ice reaches out and says, we're interested in this individual. Then they have to produce a formal request from their agency. We don't act on that request. We push back and say, you have it has t o come from the court. It has to be a a court action, a court order to respond. Correct. We have additional requirements. And if they meet them, then that happens. And if they don't, they don't get them. And they haven't gotten anybody in at least the three the last three and a half years. And here's where I'm unclear. And Mr. City attorney under was in front of us tonight. Will that step change at all? Because, you know, what I'm hearing is that we do not provide the information unless there's a court order under the motion, under the law. And these values act, no matter what the crime is carved out, not carved out. Does that process change at that point? Well, I think what you just said at the very end would change it. But if we are currently in compliance with SB 54 and we would remain in compliance with SB 54 tonight. So so the answer would be no. The process would not change if it's current. So we. Don't give. We don't we don't turn anyone over to ice unless there's a court order and there haven't been court orders. That's that is one way. Yes. That with a court order, we would we would turn the individual over to ICE. And we have not received a court order that I'm aware of. Do we have the legal ability to say if there's a court order from a court that we don't turn them over? No, we would be in contempt of the court order. So from a legal standpoint, there's no way once the courts get involved, you have to local cities have to comply. That is correct. Okay. So at this point, we haven't I'm trying to figure out where the carve out exists, because right now, whether it's a you know, someone that's in that kind of carve out category or not, the question is if the court or some if the courts require us to take action, we don't have any I mean, we don't we don't have a choice. Well, I think one of the distinctions would be with with the exceptions under SB 54. Law enforcement has discretion. If you remove that discretion from them by a policy, then they couldn't do some of these enumerated things. So I'm still. Mr. Chief, could you clarify that a little bit more? Yes. Sorry about that. Yes. So what I have explained to you is the way our process works. SB 54. Allows us to look at a certain set of circumstances, and I could read those to you if you'd like. And based on those circumstances, we can turn somebody over to ICE. And are all those circumstances federal like felony level circumstances? I'm going to look. For my piece of paper. And I'll read one portion of it. But it's never healthy to read one piece because you got to get the whole picture of it. Says The individual has been convicted within the past five years of a misdemeanor for a crime that is punishable as either a misdemeanor or a felony for or has been convicted within the last 15 years of a felony for any of the following offenses. And that's the one that I started to list. There are some very serious, significant crimes on this list. And as you are trying to look at this policy and evaluate it. I think it's very dangerous for us to limit what your police department can do. The tools you have, you are taking tools away from us in a toolbox when we're trying to deal with crime. And I'm not suggesting that crime is only committed by undocumented immigrants. It's it's it's all across the board. I. I'm going to leave it at that. And you ask more questions. Listen, I. I mean, what is what I like, what I heard tonight that I like is that we should be treating everyone the same one way or the other document if they commit. I mean, but that age court cut, that sort cuts both ways. I mean, frankly and Councilwoman Price said it, if, you know, if someone committed the crime and they did it, we should treat it a certain way. I think the question is how we treat it. And if it's a felony, I and as I understand it, we don't even prosecute felonies in the city. We do misdemeanors to a prosecutor and the D.A. handles felonies. That correct? That is correct. So how does that translate when I'm under I'm not a prosecutor. I don't understand this piece. But what happens from how what does the transition from, say, our shop to the D.A. shop? How does that work? Like if let's say let's say it is a felony. Right. And this is something that we know our prosecutors are going to handle. It's a big deal. Crime probably falls in a list. How does how does it end up in your shop, Mr. Chief? To the prosecutor shop. How does that happen? So what happens in the field is that a police officer will take a crime report or a department record that depending on the crime. So if you're dealing, for example, with assault, sexual abuse or child abuse or robbery, those crime or I'm sorry, those reports will go to the individual detective detail that handles those crimes. Okay. Once they evaluate it to make sure the elements of the crime are there, they may have to do further investigation at that. At the point that case is ready to be presented, they decide again, based on the elements, is it going to go be presented to the district attorney's office here in Long Beach, or is it going to be presented to the city prosecutor here in Long Beach? If hypothetically, we go to the district attorney's office and they don't feel the elements are there, they will either decline the case or refer it to the city prosecutor because they may believe that a lesser crime may have occurred. Does that answer your question? No, it does. That really illuminates things for me. So I think the issue here, you know, I mean, signs and politics aside, I just think I just think the issue here is sort of we already if it's a significant crime, we already know we're not going to be the ones to handle that. It's going to be the county. And there's a process in place for that. And I think anybody who commits a crime should be punished or, you know, this should be handled right. I mean, we should address crime in our city. I think the issue is at what point we hand them over to ICE. And I thi nk with the council saying, I think what the public is saying and what I what I think we should where should we should try to get to, frankly, in all the motions we're taking. I can't make another motion here. I think we try to get to is we evaluate if there's just simply away. If they meet this criteria, it goes directly to the D.A. to try to treat them the way you would treat anyone, regardless of documentation status, that we just treat sort of anyone who commits a crime. Documents, as, you know, blind to documentation status, we treat them the same. And I don't know I don't know if that's something that city council can just. I don't know if that's something we could figure out, like on the dias, like wing it. But I think I think that's, in my opinion, that's kind of where we should be talking about. And I don't know if there's an easy way to. Well, if I understand what you're saying is, please remember that within the SB 54 and what we're talking about, if this wasn't clear in the previous, is you've got an individual with a past record. Yeah. In order to go with SB 54, they have to be re-arrested for something else that they've done. Now. They're at the end of the day though. Yeah. That carve out says convicted of not arrested for. So we have to be convicted. Of the crime. On the set the first offense or that second when you stop. Them for the second, first and second. So if the second crime is a murder or something like that, that's listed in this group. So if someone committed the crime, let's say you committed something, you did serve their time, whatever you got out, and then you do a lesser offense on the second incident. And that's not a felony, just a traffic stop. Right. And you end up getting live scanned on that traffic stop. Do we would we under under this law because of their past, would we have to comply with ICE? What we have. Not for a traffic stop. But if you were you committed murder and you did your time and then you go out and commit another crime, say you commit sexual abuse. That is one of the crimes listed on this list. So if you get convicted of that sexual abuse, then that's when SB 54 kicks in and you get deported. But that wouldn't be that wouldn't be us. That would be the district attorney. The court conviction. Would be through the district attorney's office. So I think I think we're at a point I mean, if you just said that, we wouldn't be actionable on that anyway because we'll be the D.A.. Right. Because if it's a conviction on one of those laws, those are all the laws, right? Well, the conviction would have to come through the at least in our case, the L.A. County District Attorney's Office. So I'm going to look just this way, because I'm not in a position to make a motion. But what I'm hearing right here is that what I'm hearing right here is that, frankly, it wouldn't happen in our shop because it would happen when it got to the next step. Maybe I don't want to give up the floor, but I would like like some I ike clarity from from Lina and from from Suzy because it seems like it seems like there's not much of a difference from a procedural standpoint here. But. I am. I am I am I here now? So. So if I can just attempt to. I understand what you're asking him. And the SB. 54. Is. Designed to prevent local law enforcement from sharing immigration information with federal immigration authorities. But if there's a category. Of enumerated crimes, then they have the discretion to. Not that they will, but they have the discretion to share that information. It doesn't matter how the case gets prosecuted. Or if the case. Gets prosecuted. SB 54 is designed to prevent local law enforcement from communicating with federal immigration authorities. So what happens is, if you're a prosecutor and I know there's at least a couple of attorneys in the audience who who can attest to this, but if you're a prosecutor, you're going to get a police agency if if federal immigration authorities find out that someone has. A is is here illegally. Then they will put an ice hold on the individual, which means if they get arrested, there is an ice hold on there. If they know of the federal authorities know that the person's illegal. They'll have haven't they'll put an ice hold on them so that they cannot be released without going to ice. Right. It doesn't matter if it goes to the prosecution office or not or if. They can be released. They can't be. Released if there's an ice hold. That's what an ice hold means, is that they can't be free. They can't just walk out of the jail. They have to be released to the custody of federal immigration authorities because there's a federal immigration hold on there basically for the days that would show up on the rap sheet. It would say ice holder would show up on our file. Basically, we know that's the only way we would know if someone is there, their citizenship status. But. SB 54 it doesn't matter if it's at the local H police agency level, at the DA's office, at the city prosecutor's office. It doesn't matter because it's about information sharing and how that information gets to federal immigration authorities. So I got what you were trying to say, but actually that information can come before the item goes to and I might be wrong on some of this, but am I wrong on some of this? Okay. Okay. Sorry. Okay. Maybe before you guys jump. Jump in. I think the point here is that I think there is more to this conversation about. The car was I want to better understand it and I'd like to give direction to city attorney, to the police chief to figure out how to get it done. And what I mean is like, in a way that because there's there's and correct me if I'm wrong, but I like to, you know, sort of preserve the rights of workers as well. But is this is there anything related to this that might trigger any type of meat and confer process? The answer is yes, depending on what you direct to do. If if you are eliminating the exceptions or the carve outs, the n you are. We are back to meeting confer with the unions because you've changed the conditions working condition. Yes. So I think there is a step in this direction we can get to that respects the parties at the table. I haven't heard anybody here say that we want criminals to to go free. I think what I've heard is I've heard people say, frankly, we don't want to be in a position to directly sort of participate in deportation actions. Right. But that doesn't mean we want to stop a step in prosecution for someone who's committed a heinous crime in our community. I think there's a difference there. So what I'm saying is I think I think, you know, Lina's motion and I think she's cued up is going to say some more stuff. I want to hear more. I'd love to see them work that out. So I want to just, like, stick a pin in that for now and go to because this I think there's something there. I want to go to the the fund part. So. So I know that cities do establish funds and charities non-profits thing like our health department has Long Beach cares and they do a lot of work that, you know, they can't do within the city, you know? You know, you've got partners of parks. You've got other things. So I think there is a way to do a fund and I support a fund. And if we're able to figure it out in our budget to use public resources to do it legally, then I want to do that. I think we should make that statement. I support that. We did hear today, though we did hear today, though, that the city attorney said he that the step is they have to come back to with we have to give clear direction and come back. So I'm just going to ask Councilwoman Gonzalez, because I'm supporting your motion. I'm going to ask, are you okay with sort of adding that city attorney gets the word, you know, city attorney, city manager gets to vet that out and bring it so we can actually establish it. Can that out the what is it? So separate out the the fund. So city attorney says we have to. And city attorney correct me but didn't you just say for us to move forward with that? It wouldn't you couldn't actually do it. Tonight was just the direction. That is correct. The the action tonight and the agenda item tonight doesn't allow you to actually establish the defense fund. We don't have enough details and information in front of you this evening for the council to take an action on. We would need to come back to you with how is the fund going to be established? Who's our partner going to be selective, all of those details so that the council then can decide whether they like that proposal, want to amend or change that proposal. So this evening, you could certainly give direction to staff and to my office to investigate that defense fund. And you had mentioned in your motion a 250,000 in the staff report. It talked about 100,000, whatever dollar amount you wanted us to look at. And then it would come back to the city council for a vote to establish that fund that the dollar amount you determine to be appropriate. So like separate so we can put the fund on one track and the sanctuary policy on a different track. Sure, we can do that. I'd like to hear from colleagues, but absolutely I. All right. Well. Those are my comments. Thank you, everybody. I think this is I think it's a healthy conversation. I learned a lot here. But I think in general, like the reason we proposed this was to keep people safe and to not coordinate with with with ice. And thank you to the community for helping us better understand this issue. I didn't hear understand anything about carve outs until about 48 hours ago. So you community organizers keep up the good work in informing you're speaking power to leadership and and we understand you. We hear you. But thank you. Thank you, Councilman Price. Okay, so I'd like to hear from the city attorney, because I think maybe Vice Mayor Richardson and I were talking about very different things. I know there's some correction that needs to be made in terms of the procedure of SB 54. So if the city attorney could clarify that, that would be great. So I think on a couple of things, I think the chief was indicating that you needed a conviction on the second arresting offense. And the way I read and interpret 54, that's not correct. If the person is arrested and put into the system, then with these carve outs, there could be the cooperation if there are these enumerated crimes, as everyone's been discussing. So that was the first issue. The second issue was that you brought up was the ice hold prevents the release. That is my understanding. It is not correct and is not how it's handled, at least in Long Beach, in that if ICE does notify us of an administrative hold on that person, we tell them you need to get a judicial warrant for us to hold the individual. We are not going to hold them past the release date. And that's very clear. I think the law is very clear on that. And so we do not there is not a hold put on a. Person because I said there's an ice hold. So that was, I think. Yes, statement. Yes. So those are the two items. And then if you had another question. Now, so what I'm talking about is an ice hold. That is a judicial determination that there's an ice hold that appears on their rap sheet or other place because it's been judicially identified as a hold so that the person, the custodial entity, whether it be the L.A. County Sheriff Sheriff's Office or whatever county sheriff's office they can't release if there's been a judicial order to hold the individual. Okay. So so. Without. What I'd like to do is, is, is, is make a friendly motion because I think there is definitely and the record should be very clear on this. Definitely some agreement here that we want to protect information sharing, that we want to protect people from being able to talk to the police. We want to encourage that. So what I'd like to do is make a friendly to remove the funding for a legal defense fund from the current motion to bifurcate it and have

that be a second motion that we can vote on in regards to what happens with the funding of a legal defense fund, because I know for me, I support and will will actually work to do whatever I can to help put money into that legal defense fund. But I think for the city, given the fact that we're talking about deficits in 2019 and we just had a meeting two weeks ago where we talked about some best case scenario assumptions that would allow us to not have to lay off employees. Every single dollar is going to mean something and every one of our departments is going to be competing for money right now. And even though 100,000 or $250,000 may not seem like a lot of money, I can tell you our police department, our fire department, our Parks and Rec and our public works and our libraries could find something to do with that $250,000. So we're going to be competing for funds. So what I would like to do is separate and bifurcate the funding option so that we can, you know, maybe evaluate that in another time. So that's my friendly to my colleague. Good council member. GONZALEZ Yes. Given the discussions going on today, I think as you can see, a lot of us are, you know, going back and forth, but it's with good reason. We want to make sure we get this right. And so with that, absolutely, I'll accept your friendly amendment. Thank you. Councilwoman Mongo. We're going to keep going through the speakers. Councilman Mongo. Well, here we are. I would just like to say that. To get clarity of the motion on the floor. It's to enumerate the policies. Would you outline. If I if I may, as has just amended, we've divided the question. And so the motion is to adopt staff's recommendation, including the special order as described between the chief and the council member from the First District to make that special order public, to make the resolution, if adopted, available to all the city departments and encourage their adoption. Six five to provide regular updates to the City Council on the legislative efforts at the state and federal level. And six, to join the Welcome America America Initiative. And then the Legal Defense Fund would be separated out of that question and a separate motion and action would be taken on the legal defense fund. Okay. I'll also say that in law enforcement, I have felt that it is so important that the community are our eyes and ears. There are never going to be enough police officers to keep everyone safe. And that more often the victims of crime are actually immigrants. And so we need to continue under the current version of SB 54 to be partners with our community and ensure that they feel safe working with local law enforcement. A felon is a felon. Is a felon. Regardless of where you came from, where you live, if you are a predator in our community, I'm very appreciative of our men and women in blue who are out there working hand in hand in those communities to make sure that we're safe. I, too, am open to helping support the nonprofit deve lopment. Long Beach is a very, very generous city. When you talk about $250,000, I will tell you over the last three years, it has taken Councilmember Andrews years to build up the four afterschool programs and summer youth programs and the Parks After Dark program. And to get four parks after dark program. That is $250,000. It took four years to build a program that we know is universally used and supported. And when we do have to make those tough choices, I believe that those decisions should be done through a budget process. And we have fiscal policies in the city about making budget adjustments outside of that process. And so I appreciate bifurcating the issue and potentially either referring it to Budget Oversight Committee or another method. But we don't allocate funds mid-year. It's not a smart way to budget personally and or as $1,000,000,000 city that is responsible for so many. And when when you talk about our workers that are working hard to make a living and we have tough decisions to make, it's important that we protect those who have stood with us. And we want to also protect those who want to stand with us. And so we want to move forward. So with that, I appreciate the dialog and. Look forward to finding a way for us to unite as a community behind something that the community finds as important. And that's how we we can all put our money where our mouth is, because every single person here can pitch in in a similar way to the way that we are looking to help fund our small businesses and our immigrant communities. Through social crowd crowdfunding, we can help fund the legal defense fund. Guys, everyone gets a chance to speak. So, Councilmember Yallingup. Thank you, Mayor. I knew that if I waited long enough, we'd come around to some sense. But, you know, unfortunately, I disagree with a lot of a lot of some comments that were made here, because I believe justice is not blind, given the fact that the high number of blacks and Latinos in our jails basically says is not colorblind. And why is it that we know when we're talking about this issue here, we're talking about, you know, Latinos or people of color with an issue with their immigration status and that we have to report that out and we have to to turn them over to ICE and to immigration. Again, people of color. I disagree with that. I have I have issues with a car, but I really do because some of the crime boats that are here, some of the crimes, I don't see them reaching that level of having to be deported. For example, a DUI, embezzlement, forgery. Those are I see those as perhaps white collar type crimes. And I see and you know, there are some people in jails now that I wish I could deport. Right. He'll be back. He'll go back to Europe, twitching in despair. But you know that in at the risk of saying racist race only races, this is a little reversal type. Of thing here. But. But the bottom the bottom line is, is that, you know, SB 54 went through its struggles. I was there. I supported SB 54 when it came to us, what, a year and a half, two years ago, I supported putting it there and I supported Citrulline, which being part of the number of cities that supported it because I thought it was it's a good it's a good policy to have. But now that we're here with our Own Values Act, we have to talk about our values and what we stand for in Long Beach. You know, we're always talking about the Long Beach way and how we do things differently. And we need to look at those carve outs in a different way, in a way that it's much more justifiable for those that get who are in danger of being deported because of their their status, legal status here or not and because of the level krone did. You know. I was I was concerned Janine Pearce took it from me in the sense that, well, maybe we. Should look at, you know, instead of 15 years, we should look at five, make it even stronger, make it even. Less of a time span. I mean, I know. Some of these crimes have have. Term limits. For example, what is it? Do you wait if you. Don't get a second conviction. Within the ten years, it's like it goes away and you start fresh again. Why can we do something like that? What's some of these other ones? Like fraud or or embezzlement? Now, there are some crimes because of the nature of their their seriousness that maybe that we do need to to look at those more seriously and consider if you are an undocumented person and you committed a serious. Crime, maybe you should be kicked. Out of this country. But again, it's we're looking at possibilities of of deporting someone that you did it the first time for first time or so we do we have a3a3 strikes law on deportations. I don't think we do it when we're in your pocket once and ice comes and says it, put a hold on you. You're out, you're gone. It doesn't matter. So anyway, I have no issue with that. With the carve outs, I'm not going to be voting for that only because, like I say, it's it's it's it's a slippery slope. I really don't really agree with it. I think we could do better. 15 years is an extremely long time. We should look at modifying it in terms of maybe having it strengthen it. And we were

parent conversation with PD, with our city attorney and with our counsel. That really means that we all understand all of those components. And so I, I feel like we're not really prepared to have that up or down vote on the carve outs or not. And so I want to make sure that we all have the opportunity to have that in a transparent, open way. I would like to ask if we could have the vote today on both the items and then direct the staff to come back and do a presentation from PD on clear on what all those items are that are carved out, particularly in sections three, B, four D, four F in 4G. And I'm not going to go back and read them all because it's already late. But if we could come back and have a conversation where all the councilmembers and myself included, feel like we're having a thoughtful discussion and vote on those carve outs, that today we move forward with what we have. So voting I would vote yes for that if we could come back and have that conversation. Council Member Yes, we can absolutely have that conversation. Thank you very much for that. I do want just on the conversation. And around the financing and that discussion. I do have a lot of concerns and questions as well around giving that to a nonprofit or is it a city based or county based? I look forward to that thorough discussion. So with the coming back from staff, coming back with the police chief to have a thorough discussion around all the carve outs, I will be voting yes for this. Does that make sense? Yes. Councilman Andrews? Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I think everyone up there I've had a chance to listen to everyone, you know, conversations about what they think they should and should not be. I think it's very fortunate we have a staff to work on an item of this type, because the fact that, you know, we have a city made up of people from very unique backgrounds and the walk of life, you know, like refuge seekers. We all as people grew up here and the families that are, you know, relocated and the search for jobs and new opportunities, you know, I think just with that said, you know, this is very you know, this is the various effort we put towards celebrating the diversity. And I think is this is the time that we must use to protect that. You know, I've listened to all of these things, and I'm sure you have to and I know you're waiting for the vote, because, remember, this vote doesn't mean that these things are going to happen. It's just to let you realize that we are, you know, really supporting, you know, like I say, a sanctuary city. I think that's a no brainer. You know, but the thing about it, we have to follow certain laws. And I'm so glad that Nina and Mrs. President, the authorities on this, the agenda item, I want to thank you guys for doing a fantastic job. And I'm here to support whatever we have to do, you know, to make these things work. Thank you again. Okay. Thank you. And then our last last speaker is Councilman Gonzales. Okay. So we're going to tie this up together. And I just, again, want to thank you all. I don't want to, you know, go on too too long. But it looks like we have something on our plates here. So keeping with our subsub motion that asks for the special order that asks for to update our city resolution with that various departments, we'll keep that as one motion. Yes. Councilmember, if I could on if if maybe I don't understand. And updating the resolution the way I understood it would be it's accepting stamps for, I guess, recommendations. You're requesting the police chief to create or to update a special order. Correct. And can make that public. So on the website. So the special order would be a public document out on the website. As well as our policy, whatever we pass. Today. Yes, absolutely. Which is sort of the same. But I just want to make sure that. We wouldn't be bringing in if you adopt this evening, we wouldn't be bringing the resolution that's attached to the agenda item tonight. Back to you. We would be coming back, it sounds like, with a report on SB 54, and then we'll talk about the legal fund. Yes, SB 54 carve outs that were mentioned, bringing that back. So we have a presentation on that. That is the first motion. And then the second motion would be to address the fund legal defense fund. Yes. After after this motion, if the councilmember from the first District would have the floor to make the motion on. However, she would like to go forward on the defense fund. Okay.

Okay. Councilman Price. Okay. So I'm just clarifying right now that we are we're adopting an expansion of SB 54 in terms of its applicability to other city departments. Yes, we are not eliminating the carve out exception. Exception. That's in 54. That we are keeping those in. Correct. Okay. And we're not right now, by way of this motion, putting any money into a legal defense fund. That will be the subject of the second motion. Yes. Great. Thank you. Okay. And thank you, Councilmember Pearce. Just one more clarifying. We are at the time that staff comes back, could have that conversation around our carve outs then, but that we're not having that full conversation on each item today. But for the community members to know that carve out conversation is ongoing is what I wanted to clarify. Well, I think yes. I mean, you're having a continued conversation, but the action this evening will keep the in Long Beach Values Act as adopted by council if it passes this evening would have that language in it. And the way I understand your motion and as amended and accepted, would be that you're requesting the Chief of Police and staff to come back to council for a further discussion of those particular of the carve outs contained in SB 54, specifically the 70 to 82.5. Thank you. Okay. There's I'm we're going to take the vote first on the first part of that motion, which is the actual Sanctuary Language Values Act, piracy. Ah, with the friendly amendments made by both Councilwoman Susie Price and Councilwoman Janine

Pearce, that is the first vote. So Members, please cast your votes on that. Motion carries. Okay. So that so that passes. So that is the the sanctuary policy, the first part of that of the motion. That's the Values Act that was as presented by staff and described with the with the additions that Councilmember Gonzales described. The second vote right now is on. My apologies. Can we clarify the timeline to bring that back as well, to make sure that it comes back within 30 days, if not before, as soon as possible? Councilmember We have an eight day agenda. So in order to do this and all of our city council items have to go before the city attorney, the finance better to do that so have to get in 30. Days act is this basically like five. Days to do this. So we will do the college try and we'll give you an update where we are with 30 days. But I can't promise that we'll have anything that. Okay, well, let's try and then we'll go forward from there. You. I mean, the vote happened, so we can't. So many people. Put it. Out. Just want to make sure. Okay. So. So the the motion pass six two on the proposed language values act four that's passed. The second motion is on the legal defense fund as proposed by Councilwoman Gonzales. Do we any clarification on what that motion was exactly? I don't have a second. And I think there is there's a second on the motion. Thank you. And it's to direct staff to investigate the defense fund as a universal defense fund in the amount of $250,000 and report back to counsel with options to establish that fund. Councilmember. That's a motion. Okay. So that's the that's the second motion to explore the defense from the set to come back. Members, please cast your votes on on the on the second motion. Motion carries that carries as well so that that both both emotions carry. And with that motions, we were going to take a recess. And we'll start with rest of the agenda after that. Thank you. Okay. If I can have everyone, please. We're going to rejoin the meeting. If we want to be part of the meeting, we'll grab a seat. If you want to chat, please exit the council chambers. We can start the meeting if you want to continue to chat. If we can just please exit the council chambers and we're going to go and start the meeting in just a minute. We're going to. We're going to call you back to order. Madam Court, please call. Councilwoman Gonzalez. Councilmember Pierce. Councilwoman Price. Councilmember Supernanny. Councilwoman Mongo. Councilman Andrews. Councilmember Arango. Present. Councilman Austin. Vice Mayor Richardson. Mayor Garcia. Okay, I'm here. So we have to go back to the first hearing, which we didn't do at the start. And so hearing that we are going to a quorum for a quorum, they're. Okay, I'm here. So we have to go back to the first hearing, which we didn't do at the start. And so hearing that we are going to a quorum for a quorum, they're. Going to. Let me wait till we get quorum. I thought we had quorum. One, one, one. Ok ay. We have a quorum. Okay. I think we got enough quorum. So, Madam Clerk, we can please go and do the first hearing. Communication from City Attorney Recommendation received supporting documentation under the record. Conclude the public hearing and adopt negative declaration. Declare ordinance amending various sections of Title 21 of the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to unattended donation boxes, read and adopted as read and laid over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for final reading, declaring the urgency thereof and declaring this ordinance shall take effect immediately and adopt a resolution to submit a request to the California Coastal Commission to certify an amendment to the sort of. Certified local coastal program citywide. Thank you. There's a motion and a second. I know we've had a report on this in the past. Is any additional report from Mr.. Mr.. City Attorney, Mr.. Mayor. Only to add that if you if you recall, when this matter was here on. February. 13, Council requested staff and the city attorney's office to make additional changes. We've made those changes. They're all incorporated into this recent draft as requested. Thank you. Is there any public comment on this hearing? Casey no public comment on the hearing, Councilwoman Mongo. I just want to say how thankful I am for development services to take the time to consider the input of both the community and my office. We received some great feedback and we're really excited about the changes and we think that it will make it a stronger ordinance. So thank you for doing that. We appreciate the city attorney's office and developing services. Thank you. Thank you. We have a motion and a second is Councilmember Brown. Well, let's single out our assistant city attorney, Mike Mays, for all his hard work. Thank you. Goodbye, Mr. Mays. Of seeing no other counsel conversation will close the hearing and go for a vote on the on the hearing. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. And there are two. Votes, I believe, on this item, one for the ordinance, one for the resolution. So the second vote will be on the resolution, and we need to get a motion in a second on the resolution. Is there? Is there a vote on the second? Andrews motion carries. Okay, great. Two them hearing one and the both the hearings go through. Excellent. We're going to go to public comment. I know. I don't see Mr. Goodhue. I know. I just chatted with Mr.. Is Hank still here? We just talked. Motion carries. Thank you very much. Thank you. And we will. We're going to go ahead and move on to item 12, please. Just the next item on the agenda. Item two, I was communication from Councilwoman Price, Councilmember Spano, Councilman Andrews and Councilmember Turanga. Recommendation to require a city manager to develop a free voluntary bike registration program by partnering with Project 5 to 9. Thank you. I can have everyone just say we're going to keep moving the agenda as we exit. So please. Councilwoman Pric

e. I'm not. Is there anyone left from public works that might be able to. Speak about this? I know Mr. Beck is here. Do we want to grab Mr. Beck? We're going to grab Mr.. Mr.. Beck. This is a quick one. Well, I'll go ahead and get started since I think our colleagues have probably read the TFF already, but I'm glad to be bringing this item back before the City Council to establish a city wide bike registration program. As you may recall, I brought the initial item before council asking staff to provide a report on the feasibility of developing a free online voluntary bicycle registration program. They Richards staff returned with a report on March the eighth recommending that a bike registration organization called Project 5 to 9 would offer the greatest ability to deliver a robust, low cost bicycle registry program to our residents. Since 2011, the city has not required registration of bicycles. The registration program was cumbersome and difficult for residents to comply with. However, today, bicycle thefts are serious and growing concern throughout Long Beach. So a new approach is needed. Currently, many residents do not record this information for their bicycles, so if their bicycle is stolen, they are unable to provide the police department with detailed information that could result in the return of the bicycle. Additionally, if a bicycle is registered. The. Police department would be better able to proactively return stolen bikes to their owners when they are found, as well as prosecute those committing bike thefts. The police department currently has a large number of recovered bicycles that are unregistered, with no way of contacting the owners. And free and voluntary online bike registration programs. Will give. The police. Department a better chance of returning stolen bikes and confronting the. Bike theft problem head. On. Addressing bike thefts has become a big focus for me because every day we see bikes stolen and there is little the police can do to address this. If they cannot prove ownership of a bike and the crime goes unreported, stolen bikes are chronically used as currency for drug purchases, primarily the drugs that we've seen them used for purchases for as heroin and methamphetamine. So bike registration gives police an important tool to fight a number of issues, while also improving our ability to return bikes to their owners. The costs for us to be involved in this program is minimal, considering that we're servicing a city of 500,000 residents. And I see that Mr. Becker's here. So I don't know if Mr. Beck wants to offer any additional comments that I didn't cover. Councilmember Apologize. Yes. I think moving forward with an online bicycle program is the best approach. We have worked with our colleagues in the police department. They are very supportive of going in this direction and we look forward to getting it up and running for the community in. Okay. Thank you. I don't have any further comments. I ask my colleagues t o support us. This is, in my opinion, as as our city manager often says, motherhood and apple pie. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Supernormal. I support. This item. Wholeheartedly. Thank you, Councilman Andrew. Yes. And I want to thank Councilman Price for bringing this item, you know, to the diary, because the free bicycle registration program, I think it's a step in the right direction because we always kind of brag about our Long Beach bike friendly city. But our infrastructure is intact. Isn't the most effective regarding bike ownership or theft? You know, I believe a streamlined process for this registration will support our recovery effort and hopefully encourage more residents to ride their bikes. So I'm excited about seeing this progress in program, you know, coming to action. Thank you, Councilman Price. Thank you. Any public comment on this item saying no members, please cast your vote. Councilmember Ranga. Motion carries. Thank you. Support next. Thank you. Next speaker. Oh, excuse me. He's late. Item number 24, please. Note 22. Item 22, Communication City Attorney Recommendation to declare ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to the designation of the VIP record signing as a local historic landmark read and adopted as read. Thank you. Public comment, please. Hi. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Council members. It's been a long night. I Calvin wanted to be here, but he's dealing with some health issues, and he actually wanted me to come to thank you. He wanted me. It's been a difficult journey, and we wanted it to end on a positive note. As the mayor is working behind the scenes right now, hopefully to find a resolution, we wanted to thank the Economic Development Department. Honestly, they've worked so hard for us and Mark Taylor, our council members, and Pat Pat West, our city manager. So we appreciate it. I just wanted to leave on on a note tonight because the sign is down. And that's been very hard for us as business owners. It's sitting in city storage. And so we're hoping that maybe one of you as council members tonight can direct the city attorney to potentially or the city manager to come back with what the next steps are so that we can execute the contract that we have with the city, which is to bring the sign back to a home. Making it a landmark and having it in a public storage is not helping us. It's not helping the city. And so we're hoping that we can get past that. So I appreciate your support. I'm going to be reaching out to all of you in about a week or so with some exciting things for VIP records. And, you know, you guys are doing a great job, ups and downs. Hopefully we'll get we'll get past this. So thank you very much. Thanking customers. I just want. To say thank you to VIP. Thank you to the council members and thank you to staff. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. No, no further comment. Members, please cast your vote. Motion case number 24, please. Motion carries. Thank you. Item 24 Report from

Financial Management. Recommendation to receive and file the Fiscal Year 2018 first budget performance report citywide. Mr. MODICA I'm sorry that you're. The one guy. That's not here. Mr. West. I will call Mr. Morgan Hawaii. Darn, Tom. This is Grayson. Our budget manager is going to walk us through the how we're doing with our fiscal year 18 budget and whether is the director, John GROSS. Good evening, Mayor and members of the city council. This is the first performance report for FY 18. This covers the first four months of the year for the period ending January 31st, 2018, for all funds. Typically, this first performance report of the year is very high level. It is, as it is still early on in the year in terms of actual expense and revenue information available. As the year progresses, staff will continue to closely monitor revenues and expenditures and will report any significant changes overall for the general fund. There are some underperforming revenues, but this is looking like it can be offset with other revenues that are trending better than anticipated as well as planned budget savings in FY 18. However, it should be noted that revenues will also be adversely impacted by an estimated 4.8 million due to the water and sewer utility litigation. And at this time, we cannot say if this will be offset, but we'll be closely monitoring this. Specifically, some areas of concern that we are monitoring are the utilities, user tax and franchise fees that are trending lower than budgeted. We are also monitoring other uncertainties such as cannabis related revenues and other potential unanticipated costs, like Measure eight infrastructure project costs. On the positive side, however, sales tax, property tax and Measure A are trending higher than budgeted. The Fy18 mid-year savings targets on expenditures is also anticipated to save 2.9 million of the general fund. So we'll continue to monitor all these revenues and expenses as more information becomes available. All other funds appear to be on target and there are no revenue or expenditure concerns to report as of now. So this concludes the staff report and I'm available for any questions. Council on Industry have any questions or. No? Okay. Accounting in Boston on the second? Nope. Council woman mango. Thank you. I want to thank the staff. This report is very promising and look forward to over the next few weeks. Going. Budget by budget. Both S.a.b. and S.A. though when I was in

get Oversight Committee, the Budget staff and my colleagues on the Council for maintaining this fiscal outlook. Because if we do not stay the course and save while we can, we will be in a situation like other cities, and we are not there because of the fiscal prudence of this council and the budget staff. And I really appreciate your creativity and really pulling out all the stops. Great work. Thank you. Great. Thank you. Seeing any public comment, saying no public comment on this item, please cast your votes. Okay. All right. So that concludes our presentations. Thank you all for participating. Will now move on to item number one hearing. Number one report from Public Works and Development Services. Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the public hearing and adopt negative declaration and the 1117 Declare Ordinance amending Chapter 21.56 and Title 15 of the Long Beach Municipal Code read for the first time and laid over to the next regular meeting for final reading. Adopt a resolution directing the Director of Development Services to submit a request to the California Coastal Commission to certify an amendment to the Certified Local Coastal Program and adopt a resolution authorizing the City Manager to execute license agreements with wireless telecommunication providers and carriers for wireless telecommunication facilities for ten year terms citywide. Thank you. And I see that there's no oath required. Is that correct? That's correct. Okay, so I'll hand it off to Mr. Modica. Thank you, Vice Mayor. The presentation tonight for staff will be given by Craig Beck, our director of Public Works, and Eric Lopez, our project management officer. Thank you, Vice Mayor Members, City Council. We appreciate the opportunity tonight to come before you and have a discussion about small cell and some of the work that's been done, not only between city staff and with our technology partners. If we give me a minute to get this thing working. There we go. Okay. So just as background information, we wanted to kind of clarify why we're here tonight and where we started. The city currently does have ordinances and rules in place that govern the implementation and placement of macro cell sites. That requires a conditional use permit and is heard typically by our planning commission. But there's a lot of new technology upgrades and the telecom industry has been evolving and what they're looking for is an opportunity for more localized distribution and placement, and that is generally called small cell or micro cell sites. So why proposed regulations? What we're finding is the small cell infrastructure that the telecom industry is requesting to be placed really doesn't fit within that typical process that we use for the macro cell sites requiring a conditional use permit. And that whole process that goes along with issuance of a copy doesn't seem to quite fit again for small cell. So we're here before you to really try to clarify the difference between a macro installation and a small cell installation and have really tailored an ordinance for council's consideration around streamlining that process. So what we've seen in our due diligence in bringing this ordinance forward to you this evening is there are many locations where small cell is happening without any regulations. And what we're finding is that it is adding to some of the urban visual blight. What we believe is important for a city like Lamberts that's investing in its public right of way in its neighborhoods and the esthetics thereof, is that it's appropriate to ensure that these installation meet some of our new standards. So what you see on the screen are some examples of where that technology can work, where you can hide a lot of the infrastructure needed for small cell within a either new light street light pole or affixed to an existing street light pole, as you see in these images. The technology is getting smaller and smaller, and therefore the intrusion into the public roadway environment is becoming less and less. So what is before you this evening? So I just wanted to make sure that we illustrate what this ordinance would do. And the ordinance is really intended to do a couple of things. A streamline the process. So instead of going through a copy which can typically take somewhere between six, nine, sometimes 12 months, we want to make sure that we are fast tracking applications that are coming in. We are seeing continued interest in placement of small cell in our city and those applications are increasing in the number and the different type of carriers interested in and placement in Long Beach. So we would have two tiers, essentially. One is Tier A and that's intended to say if a carrier comes in, meets all the standards, it's something we would call an over the counter approval and we could get that done very quickly. Certainly within 20 days. We think it would be even less than that, likely two weeks. But then there would be a tier B, which is there are some requests to go outside of kind of the normal standards, which would take a little bit more deliberate deliberation and discussions with the applicant about what they're proposing and how it fits within the city's goals. So we want to make sure that we understand that our goal here is to make is to limit visual blight and to really work with the companies to address that. So where appropriate, we think undergrounding of equipment is important. We would like to explore co-location of equipment. We want to minimize the look of the antennas on street lights. And certainly if an applicant is coming in and wanting to use some of the city assets like a streetlight pole, that there would be some lease revenue generated from the use of that pole. And then that lease revenue we could negotiate if there was other consideration provided by the applicant. So just to kind of give some background of of the process that we've engaged in thus far, this ordin ance was taken to the Planning Commission for review and discussion. There was some comments that were made and we further deliberated and made additional considerations. For example, in our initial proposal to the Planning Commission, we had a prohibition against placement of wood poles. Certainly we believe that wood poles are outdated and we should move towards a different material type than the old wood telephone poles. But we do recognize that there may be situations within our city where it may be appropriate for a wood pole placement. And we didn't want an outright prohibition, but we wanted to have an opportunity to have a discussion with the applicant and have some discretionary approval over wood poles. So we made that adjustment. Some of the undergrounding. We do stress that undergrounding is our preferred method, but there may be situations where that isn't possible at the particular location. So again, we wanted to add some discretion and some oversight to give flexibility to the applicants as they come forward. We had a prohibition in parks and schools. We understand that those are areas where it might be important to provide public access to Wi-Fi. And so we softened that approach as well. So we believe we have detailed is an ordinance that addresses both the city goals, where we've listened to the telecom industry, we've taken many of their comments and woven that into the ordinance and made some adjustments. So we've taken a balanced approach that not only gives us the ability to regulate what happens in our city, but also promotes the expansion of small cell and ultimately 5G, which is typically associated with small cell. So that concludes staff presentation and we are available for questions. Thank you. Thank you. So at this point, we'll ask for a public comment on the staff presentation. Now be the time. Give us your name. You have 3. Minutes. Angela Meyer I'm here on behalf of my neighborhood today to talk about 5G. This is the first time I've done this. I'm nervous. Okay. 5G was vetoed by the state of California. Okay. So every city has the ability to choose where and how it's placed. The fire department in L.A. banned it. It was getting them sick, so they got rid of it. The state of Michigan banned it. They chose fiber optics, broadband for a safer way. To install it. 5G is a military weapon being used by the military right now at 95 gigahertz. So hours will be up to 90 gigahertz and we won't have any control over it. Okay. So it would be 100 feet from our homes, which is really scary if they let them do that. Okay. Now, I've been a realtor for 20 years and I can tell you that at least 93% of my buyers will not buy a home or a business that's at least 400 feet from a cell tower. Okay. So this will definitely have an impact on the property values, 20 to 30%. And you can ask any realtor right now, they'll tell you. That it will lower the property, value, the cost of the home. So there's already some lawsui ts out there. Okay. People are suing cities because they didn't put a public outreach out about 5G. And I was going to ask you, if you did that, did you tell the people put a public outreach out so they can see it ? So that might be a future lawsuit for you. Okay. So now we have proof from lab rats. Okay. Tested that. Do they get cancer? Leukemia, among other things. So we know that it does cause cancer. The EMFs. Okay. And close to cell towers. Now, the phone company needs to prove to us that it doesn't cause cancer. They have done nothing to prove to us that it's not going to cause cancer in ten years, which is what they're saying. What about our children in ten years? Are they going to die from cancer? I mean, they need to prove to us before they put this on our homes. So there's alternatives, too, for 5G to be safe. You can do fiber optic broadband technology. It's feasible and safer. I think, for everybody. Okay. So please read the information. I put it up for you. I spent all day printing. It and a ton of. Ink. So please read the paperwork. It's very crucial. And this is a really. Important matter. Thank you, alex. Speaker, please. I'm going to romanized this podium here. Make it a small peoples. Whatever you want to call it. Small guys think big. Okay? It's going to be little bit shorter than I'm going to use the whole 3 minutes. I just wanted to let you know that the. That this 5G stuff. Is is a big deal in some of the state. States have decided not to go forward with it. One of the states is Michigan, and that's in some of the documentation that was presented to you by Angela. The reasons they have the pros and the cons, some of the stuff that. I think Pat West put out. Saying that it's safe has been refuted in some of the the information that's there. I hope you guys will take a look at it. The state of California also had a 5G bill that was. Sent packing, basically it was defeated. So the the state is struggling to, I guess, develop a standard of some sort. So even our own state is having difficulty dealing with this and in how it works. I'm an electrical elect. I'm an electrical engineer. And this does have some some far reaching concerns for me. Certainly, I don't want to have it in my house that that's the main thing that I'm going to say. There's there's Bernie. There's there's safety issues associated with that. And I'm just going to leave it at that. I don't have a lot of material to put forward to you today. I haven't had enough time to really put together a coherent process, but I certainly wouldn't want to see this in a residential neighborhood. No way, shape or form, he thinks. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Council Members. My name is Damian Huggett. I'm a senior manager for engineering with T Mobile and wanted to speak to just for a moment about this proposed ordinance. We love what the ordinance is doing, streamlining the process that's associated with the installation of telecommunications infr astructure. We believe it does help accomplish the goals of both providing excellent coverage, capacity and capabilities to our customers and your constituents, while at the same time looking out for the esthetic issues that are associated with installations like this in the city of Long Beach. T-Mobile is committed to providing additional extraordinary capacity and capabilities for the city of Long Beach. That being said, one of those tools that we do use to provide this additional capacity is indeed small cells. The specific portion of the sources that I want to address specifically related to the ordinance are the strand amounts. These amounts allow us to provide a small form factor installation, utilizing the existing infrastructure that's there, maximizing the utility associated with that existing infrastructure without really having to provide anything additional. The fiber and the power that's required for those installations is already on site and it allows us to quickly target areas where capacity is a concern for our customers. The the small form factor associated with the Strand mounts is about the size of a small laptop. We know that this technology works and doesn't need to provide this targeted coverage and capacity. So our request for this evening is that the portion of the telecommunications ordinance that specifically prohibits the installation of the strand mounts be reviewed. We would like to request a motion that this go back to staff to take a look at that portion of the ordinance and see if we can't work out something that would better provide for these small cell strand mount installations on the existing infrastructure. We also do recognize that there's a initiative by the city to try to promote undergrounding of the existing utilities. And we do understand that should a small cell be permitted on existing IT pole somewhere and that portion of the pole was moved toward the undergrounding initiative that we would indeed have to remove it and we do acknowledge that. And so that we were hoping that you would understand that that wouldn't prohibit the undergrounding initiatives that are going before the city. So if you guys have any questions, I can thank you. Is there any further public comment? Now would be the time. Okay. Our final public comment. Speaker, will you do? I have no electrical back. I have trouble screwing and a light bulb. But I would suggest, given what we've heard from a number of people, that you take the requisite steps to make sure that the. Whoever is responsible for building these has the financial backing and will pledge a bond to cover any health. Issues or damage. Done to a structure or particularly a. Human beings, period. And if they're that confident, if they're that confident in their product. And their system. They should have no problem if they have a problem with it. Hopefully your olfactory senses will kick in. Thank you. Thank you. Next for please. Mr. Chair, members of the Commission. Good evening. My name is John Lee. I'm a consultant for T-Mobile. I work closely with Damian as well and just wanted to add a couple of more points to make clear about two issues that came up in the meetings that we have with staff as well as the staff to your offices was the esthetics and the undergrounding and as it is, stacks, I think there there was a letter sent to all of the all of you as members and your staffs about just exactly what the small cell looks like on the street amount. And it's no bigger than a laptop. And there was a photo that I saw in the presentation which so the little loops, the, the the mechanism that T-Mobile puts up, this is a cut and splice on it and an overhead wiring where Crown has existing power and fiber. So it doesn't look quite like that. The other issue that came up in our meetings was the concern about undergrounding. So let's assume that this council was so inclined to ask the staff to amend the ordinance to lift the express prohibition, and we were allowed on to do the strand mounts. If, if, if that particular strand mount that pole location was slated for some type of citywide policy to underground. We recognized and acknowledged we wouldn't have any kind of reserve right now like any other public utility. We would, of course, find alternative locations. And so the point I'm trying to drive home is that we're not in any in any way trying to thwart the city's current policy and goal to underground to eliminate visual blight. Thank you for your consideration. And I hope that you would do a motion to direct staff to make some changes to that particular express prohibition. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson, appreciate the opportunity. Council members and staff. I'm John Heffernan, AT&T; External Affairs Manager for the region. AT&T; appreciates that staff efforts to consider our comments as it seeks to develop this ordinance to regulate regulate the wireless network upgrades in the public rights of way. I think you know, I think Eric Lopez the lead lead program manager for the public works departments, done a great job. He's been responsive and he's been considerate when discussing our concerns. And for us, you know, it's important right now to consider not only the pace of the usage of these connected devices, but also the advancing wireless equipment technologies such as small cells. So we think a city like Long Beach, you know, it's it's important, AT&T;, that's why we're investing in our wireless network here, not only for the residents, but for the businesses. AT&T; small cells will also foster public safety. AT&T; was selected, as many of you may know, by the federal first responder network authority, FirstNet, as the wireless services provider to build and manage the first ever nationwide public safety wireless network. So each of our new small cell sites, as well as modifications to our existing sites, are going to enhance our capability to improve your first responder communications in a crisis. Regarding the ordinance specifically, as a reminder, AT&T; has a statewide franchise right to install facilities in the public right away. And we feel like some additional work needs to be done on the ordinance so that it is a smooth and seamless process. And for example, right now, applications must be coupled with when appropriate prop maps, feasibility studies as well as alternate site analysis. And we're confident that we'll be able to work with the state public works staff to work things out. But, you know, frankly, Eric did such a good job. I have a feeling he might get recruited way to be promoted to another city. So we just we'd like it if the ordinance language was was real solid. And there's there's a 500 foot separation requirement in residential zones that continues there. There's also language regarding requiring the the carriers to install street trees or public art and also just, you know, city owned assets. A lot of these small cell antennas will go on city owned streetlights. And we think that the the negotiations for those license fees shouldn't shouldn't begin at $3,000 per attachment. It's high in all circumstances, but especially for small cells. Again, AT&T; recognizes all the work that's been done. We appreciate it. And we think we would support a motion to have the ordinance fine tuned just a little bit. So we're all on the same page. Thank you. Thank you for the next speaker, please. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Members of the City Council. My name's Scott Longhurst. I'm the government relations manager for Crown Castle in Southern California. And I'd just like to echo some of the comments made by my cohorts here from the carriers. We appreciate the efforts put forth by your staff, in particular, Eric Lopez. He's done a fantastic job as well as your staff as well. Those of you that took the time to meet with us and listen to our concerns again, I'd like to just reiterate that the need for this technology is based on the consumer demand, and the ever increasing demand for additional bandwidth is driving the need for the wireless carriers to build this type of infrastructure in your city. Crown Castle is not a wireless carrier itself. We are a fiber optic and telecommunications infrastructure company. What that basically means is we own wireless facilities and we own and operate fiber optic network. So we partner with the carriers and they access our networks in order to backhaul all the data and voice calls on their networks to their hub sites. So we're close partner with them. We also provide fiber optic networks to cities like Long Beach and other school districts, hospitals, large businesses that transport a lot of data. So these air interfaces or small cell nodes, as they're called, are really important because they allow the consumer to access it's an access point, if you will, to the Internet. And so as these 5G technologies that you've heard about are rolled

at this infrastructure is in place to support that. Now, the 5G standards themselves are going to be approved later this year. Once that occurs at the federal level and at the Standards Committee level, then the manufacturers, the content producers and the service providers will start adopting those and inserting those 5G chips into their products. And once the next generation of cell phones come out, they'll be able to utilize those higher speeds. And what we're looking at is download speeds of up to 100 times faster than what we're employing today. So, you know, the paradigm shift in the way that we've communicated over the last ten years since the advent of the smartphone, the iPhone in particular has radically changed how we all communicate as a society. And this next leap to 5G will be similar. It's going to be a real paradigm shift in how the public and business and everybody communicates with each other. And this infrastructure that we're proposing and building here in your city will support those services. So again, we look forward to working with the city in the future. We applaud the efforts put forth by your staff. You've taken monumental steps forward. There are, as I mentioned, a few little things, like we'd like some flexibility on the small cell design to be able to utilize that where it truly is the least intrusive means. So rather than have an outright prohibition, we ask that you consider treating that the same way that you've treated the wood pulse. So thank you very much. Again, we look forward to working with you down the road. Thank for your testimony. You bet. Max Baker. Police. Good evening and Cantrell. And I'm not interested in the esthetics of these small cells and where they're placed. I'm interested in the health of the community. I understand there was question about whether to put these in parks and near schools. And I'm wondering what the questions were. Is it because there still is unknown about how these cells affect human health, whether they cause cancer? My husband died of a brain tumor 25 years ago. And at the time, it was suspected that it was caused by his using one of the first car phones constantly. This has never been located by anybody but scientists at Caltech. Some of them were very suspicious of the effects of not only cell phones, but any kind of a microwave or any of these kinds of waves that are going through the air that how they affect our health. And until there are studies that are done on this, I think we should slow down on the amount of cells that we put in our community. It seems like you have talked to the people who are wanting to put these up, T-Mobile and the other AT&T.; I think it was asked tonight whether you have talked to the public about this. And as far as I know, there has been no public outreach on this. And before you make any decisions on this, I think there should be public outreach and you should know more about the possibilities of health effects. Thank you. Thank you. Ne xt speaker, please. Hello. My name is Dr. Linda Scholl and I am. The former. Vice president of Employee Public. Affairs and government affairs for Sprint. When Sprint was first being started, we were five people at the time it started. We hired all the RF engineers and we talked to all the RF engineers at that time. And based on that, I would just. Give the same advice that you've heard already. Please look at the technology. Understand the placement, and make it a public, transparent process. If you you're going to approve this so that the citizens and residents know what's happening and. That they can. Address any issues that they may have. It's serious. The technologies are changing. They may be fine. I'm not familiar with the new ones. But I don't know about you. If you are holding your phones. These days, I. Can feel the phone in my hand and I have to set it down. I can't put it in my head, so I don't know what the next technology is going to be like. I know I wouldn't want to be around it if it's going to be by my house and I can't get away from it. So where it's placed and what kind of influence that. Has upon the human health and the public. Health, I think is really important to know before we make something become an invisible process. Thank you. Thank you. Our last speaker. I wasn't planning on this, but I was thinking what to say in Europe as opposed to United States of America. A very different approach is taken to something new, whether it's new kinds of seeds, whether it's antibiotics in meat, and the approach is make sure it's safe before you do it. I don't find that much of a problem, but I guess if I were a developer of a new product, it would be one more thing to have to leap over. We do have some FDA testing. We don't and interestingly enough, we don't even test herbal teas or a natural stuff. So so what I would say is, let's look at who's bringing this product to us. It's Southern California Edison, for one. Well, gee, what else have they brought us in California, our nuclear power plant down the coast. And now they're going to continue to want they apparently have gotten even the approval of the Coastal Commission to bury nuclear waste, you know, on site. So people are going to be living with the consequences of that choice, even though the plant shut down. I mean, we're fortunate because of public outcry, public outrage and public outcry, we didn't have 22 or more nuclear power plants in California. I think we don't regret that. I don't regret it. I don't know about anybody else, but it seems to have been the case that maybe nuclear power has a lot more risk than people, the people who brought it to us imagined it possibly could. So I would say, use your imagination, think about all the benefits and all the best case scenarios, and then, you know, use that other part of your imagination, the part that gives you nightmares, you know, and decide because you're choosing for all of us. And personally, I have no idea. I know you did approve liquefied natural gas. I look right now the lithium battery storage. Now that has something futuristic about it. And you didn't even as a city, feel it was necessary to do an environmental impact report. And I don't know what to say about that. I mean, I know I've come up here a lot and I basically end up just kind of whining around like, please keep us safe. But, you know, it's a risky world. So I guess if we get these cell phone towers, we'll we'll survive somehow. Thank you. And that concludes public comment. Thank you all. We're going to close public comment now and begin council deliberation. We'll start with Councilwoman Price. Thank you. So I support this ordinance. However, I do want to. And by the way, Eric Lopez is not going anywhere. We can't afford to lose him. He's amazing. So thank you for your work on this. But the question I have for staff is, is there an opportunity to go back, as has been suggested, and further refine some of the issues regarding strand mounts and other nuances of the proposed ordinance that would make the process more efficient in its rollout and come up with something that's a little bit more suited to the concerns that were raised. Councilmember Price. We believe as staff that we've done that, that we've not only met and worked with the telecom industry to make some modifications, but the items that are remaining from staff's opinion are items that we're recommending council approve. And we put a prohibition against strand mounts because we believe that they add to the visual blight in our community. If council were to take a direction that they wanted to not just pull completely prohibit that opportunity, but to make that approval discretionary, that's something that we believe we could accomplish tonight if that is council's direction. But I think staff's recommendation is there for a reason. The other item that I heard really related. To fees, we understand that we are not the lowest fee structure, but we're also not the highest fee structure. We are recommending a fee for use of our assets at $3,000. But I would say that that is a negotiation point that we've structured that within the ordinance. So if a telecom provider came and had a public benefit that they wanted to provide in exchange to reduce that fee that is already afforded within the ordinance that we have before council this evening. So from our position, we have streamlined the ordinance. We have addressed the items that have been brought forward by the telecom industry. But we are down to these kind of last two sticking points, and we're moving forward tonight with those recommendations for council's consideration. Okay. Thank you for that. My motion is going to be to support the ordinance, with the exception that in regards to the use of strand mounts that it be a discretionary approval process and for the development services and public works divisions to jointly come up with a protocol for how a decision would be made in regards to the use of those such that esthetic considerations are taken into account. Mr. Mays has something to say. Councilwoman Price If that were to be your motion tonight, I would be glad to assist you with the precise language to insert in the ordinance so we could have that done tonight, and it could come back as a complete ordinance for second reading next week. So if we move in that direction and you do make the motion, I would be glad to help you with that language. Okay. So I know I have a few other comments cued up, a few other colleagues cued up to speak. So I am moving in that direction. So if you want to give me some language, I can read that into the record. I do want to say. That prior blight. Has been a major issue for us as a city. I'm not sure how many of my colleagues have been dealing with this, but this is something that I deal with all the time, and I'm grateful that we're taking steps to be proactive. About future. Installations, but I am concerned about what's currently there. Is it possible and if Sapp is prepared, can you cover just briefly, kind of where we're at with existing wire brite and what what jurisdiction we have as a city to move that issue forward, if any? Sure. Councilmember So there is something called Rule 20, and it is essentially funding that that we receive through Edison that allows us to underground some of our electrical utilities. And what we find and is typical in many cities and certainly typical in Long Beach, that many utilities will co-locate along the Edison

Poles. So we're not only running, say, electrical wires along poles above ground, but we're also running cable or other utilities. And I think that this discussion about adding this strand, Mount Small Cell, would be above ground on those wires. And that's one of the reasons that that staff is recommending that we not do that. One of the complications when you move forward with any undergrounding project isn't only the cost of undergrounding, but also coordination with all utilities to ensure that they are aligned with that undergrounding process. I think the gentleman representing one of the telecom companies said that they would be willing to relocate that. I think our hesitation is staff is, well, what does that mean from a process perspective? I would rather have more discretion to to address that if we did move forward with an undergrounding project versus looking at coordinating with yet one more utility when we move forward with that process. The utilities do have the right to place them in our right of way. So certainly Edison has done that over the years. But as we find in many new communities, those utilities are now underground in both from. An esthetic perspective, but also for safety. Great. Thank you. Thank you. I have a number of questions. I'll just add them here. So regarding the questions about health impacts, what is the agency that regulates or evaluates whether technology is safe to be deployed in the public? Vice mayor, the FCC, the Federal Communications Commission is the entity that regulates that. And do we have do we have are we comfortable from a staff position that, you know, the issues raised around the technology, it is safe for us to get behind as a community. Mr. Vice Mayor, if I could weigh in on this question. The city, as were pointed out in the staff report, does have the ability to regulate in areas such as esthetics, which is primarily what this ordinance is directed to in the Federal Telecommunications Act of 1996, specifically prohibits the city from imposing new regulations related to radio emissions. So this is one of those areas where the federal government has taken the lead and pretty much preempted a city's ability to regulate. And they asked cities to rely on the fact that they have tested this technology and that, in their view, it is safe for to be around residents and humans. So so it's not even something that the city can the the health issue can't be the basis for a decision on whether or not to allow this technology. That's correct. And that is correct. As to small cell and actually it's correct as to the larger cell sites that were. Pictured in the initial photos that were shown. Thank you. So my next question. So if the city were not to take any action whatsoever, could this technology still be deployed in our community? It could. And many of the telecommunications companies take a position that a lot of this they can do as a matter of right. And so that's the reason the city tried to get out in front of this back in I think it was March or April of last year when we adopted and the Council adopted at the Planning Commission recommendation, what we call the patch ordinance, so that we would have some form of regulation. So this wouldn't get out of control visually from an esthetic standpoint. So and I asked that just to be clear to the public. Passing a local ordinance actually allows us the ability to limit the technology and control how it's deployed. So it's important that we do sort of engage on this issue before sort of it gets out of hand. So the next question that I have, our next thought. So, Mr. Beck, you mentioned the ability. So the $3,000 is really a negotiation point and you're able to, you know, sort of negotiate the rate with carriers in exchange for a public benefit. I like that. So I want to take this opportunity just to toss out some technology or some ideas that I think we should be leveraging that amount for. So first, I would say expand expansion of publicly available access to Wi-Fi parks, you know, public corridors, things like that. And then secondly, I would say a few years ago, maybe five years ago, the city did entertain ShotSpotter technology. And at that point, it was too expensive. There was really only one or two companies doing it, and there was a subscription. But we could potentially leverage this, leverage this in order to sort of see if we can br ing that technology. And is that something we can we can discuss or toss on the table? Mr.. Beck. Vice Mayor. Certainly. Again, we are looking at public benefit options. So we certainly value access to technology in our public spaces. And ShotSpotter technology, from my perspective, is a public benefit. Okay, great. Okay. So I want to talk about the SRAM issue. So what is the cost difference between Strand Mount or undergrounding the small cell? What is is there a major cost difference? Why is there such a demand for strand? I think you would have to direct those questions to the telecom industry. I would imagine a strand mount option is cheaper than to. Achieve an undergrounding of a power source and a small scale integration into a new light pole, as an example. Hmm. Yeah. I'm not satisfied with that. With that answer. Well, I'd like to understand better is if we choose to limit and completely sort of exclude stranimillis. Does that mean that that sort of 5G will not be deployed whatsoever because it's not feasible, cost feasible? Or does it mean that it's just going to cost more and we'll ultimately get there? That's what I'm trying to understand. Well, I can give you an example. So Crown Castle is here this evening. They did speak on this item. The city actually worked with Crown Castle to move forward with a master license agreement for deployment of small cell down in our waterfront. They have roughly 25 to 30 locations of small cell. Those have been in operation for over a year. All of those were placed in New Paltz and almost all of them underground and the utilities as well. I would imagine that Crown Castle didn't do that for free and they aren't losing money on that. You would have to talk to them specifically about the economics, but that is one example of where this is working with the standards that we've shared with you this evening. Okay. So is Crown Castle still here? Hi. Good evening. Scott Longhurst, government relations manager with Crown Castle. Thank you, sir. Happy to answer any. So my question. My question is the reality of strained financially. If the city were to outright ban strain mount, does that make it financially and feasible to expand 5G or would it just. What would be the impact? The actual expansion of 5G, as was referenced by staff, really are the manufacturers of the technology. The Ericsson's, the Nokias of the world are always working to try and make this technology smaller. And that's evidenced by the fact that we are here before you and I talking about small cell. So that was a technology that was really not available to the industry up until about three years ago. So we deployed the traditional macro cells. Now we basically have taken that and we boiled it down to a small eight by eight by four inch box that has all the technology in it. So there are our recommendation is because we work with all the carriers and they all deploy slightly different equipment because of who their vendors are and wh at frequencies they transmit and and other factors. But rather than outright prohibit it because it may be a solution in certain instances, we would like to see the city at least have give the industry an opportunity to propose that it may be in an industrial area where you have lots of overhead, you know, utilities, and we can just integrate it into the existing fiber strands. It looks, you know, it's not much different than a splice box that are up there now for fiber optics. You know, cable companies are deploying wi fi nodes throughout the city. These particular units are about the same size as a Wi-Fi cloud. So rather than prohibit it, allow yourself the flexibility to choose that if it is the best option. Thank you. And then the cost difference between the cost difference is it's not significant. It really is. The cost is in the equipment itself. Okay. Thank you. Certainly. All right. So, Mr. City attorney and we're going to come back with some language of the second reading about the discretionary approval. I would suggest if we're going to do it, we're going to hit that route. I like how we do. Sometimes we have standard conditions that allow like on liquor store cups, for example, the city council sort of would be able to give direction that could stand up in all different all the different sort of conditions of approval. So, for example, if new technology comes out or there's a new standard and it's smaller, we'd like to be able to insert across the board a condition through this process that says this is the esthetic requirement. And then the other thing I would say is I would like to, you know, sometimes with the conditional process, certain areas of towns are just less engaged than other areas of town. And I would hate to, you know, to say that a conditional process to approve this technology, you know, under you know, in the years to come, you know, someone else say it's a different city council there and they may not be on top of making sure that we don't have this technology, this or that. So what I'd like to do is see if there is a way to sort of called carve out like major corridors and say, you know, we still want to if ideas blight, I don't want to see this on Artesia Boulevard. I want to see this on the major corridors, on strands or behind someone's house. If there's this esthetic and it makes sense, in my opinion, I think we can go through a process. So I like the idea of still creating a path for technology to improve and for us to address the esthetic issue and the blight issue. But I sort of also want to sort of protect the major our major corridors from having this visual blight. Is there a way that we can do both? Mr. Vice Mayor, members of the City Council, if I could read to you the language that we would. Propose to. To insert tonight that would. Solve the problem. I think we could do that. If you could adopt this language, we could do it tonight as a first reading, because it's actually a very simple, straightforw ard change to the existing draft ordinance. But if we get into a situation where we try to articulate on a quarter by quarter basis, there's no way we could do that tonight. And we would have to bring this back for first reading some other time. So what we would propose in regard to Stranmillis is if you have the draft ordinance in front of you at page 41. That small Roman numeral number four, we would. Change the existing language to add the word stranmillis basically two times, and the new language would read. New word poles. And strand mouths may be allowed by. The director of Public Works if the applicant demonstrates that a wooden pole or strand mount is less and. Less impact or tactful. From public safety, visual and logistic. Standpoints at a specific location. So we did the director of Public Works. The ability on a case by case basis to make an evaluation and come to a determination in an appropriate situation if a strand mount would be or would fall is appropriate. So the public works director could. Take into consideration, as you mentioned, things such as, you know. A. Corridor that is highly visible where you might not want to strand mount and maybe they would use their discretion not to allow it there. But in an area, in an industrial area where there's already a lot of overhead and it didn't visually add to the impact they could grant it. But again, it would be a case by case. I'm comfortable with that. If the maker of the motion likes that language, I'm comfortable with that language. Sure. I still have discretion for grand mal. It's to the discretion of the public works director. And so we would work with the public works director to make sure that discretion is well defined. And it would go in the ordinance where. We've already given the director discretion on a case by case basis to permit. New would poles so. They would have the same type of discretion to evaluate either one. Good. And then the final thing that I have is I want to I want to do we have the ability, Mr. Beck? You know, if the the technology is going to be deployed, I'd love for it to be deployed more like the LED lights than the bikeshare. All right. Let's let's have let's sort of have randomize it across the city map sort of a market based model that has something we can monitor. I believe that's a dig at Bikeshare. But no, the applications come in from the telecom industries and they're driving the locations, and I'm assuming they're basing that on some client service needs. Okay. I would say if there is an ability somehow and I know it's hard to figure out at the dice, but there's an ability to say you've already installed 20 of them over here. You need to get over to the other side of town before you approve any of the other ones on this site. We have ability to still do that. See the attorney saying no. We're really limited on on. The types of regulations. So if they come to us and demonstrate that there's a need in a particular location and they otherwise meet the criteria, the statute or the ordinance, then we would have to let that go in. And if their choices to deploy it first in one part of town and not the other. Trying to get to a cap and trade wi fi situation. But I guess we won't get there. Thank you. That's all my questions, Councilman Austin. Thank you. And thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor, you asked a lot of questions on a lot of the questions, actually, that I had prepared already. I do think and I want to thank Councilmember Price for. Her her. Her thought to add discretion and flexibility to our ordinance. I think it's very important that we have local control. Last year, the city council opposed SB 689, which was a a a bill that was mentioned, but in public comment that had overwhelming legislative support, by the way. And if it weren't for the governor vetoing the bill, it would be law today. Today we're talking about having the ability to negotiate up to and what is recommended here is $3,000 per site. Had that bill been passed last year, it would have been $250 per site across the board. One size fits all for every city in the state of California. And so to to the point raised earlier, I think it's important for us to to move on something today, because today we have local control and we have the ability to to do that, for our inability to to have a say where these sites are placed, how they're placed, and how much we charge for them to be placed there. So with that, I like the the amended motions and I will be supporting. So thank you very much. Thank you. Quick, quick question. What is market rate on that on these clearly very high low. What do we set in the market at 3000? So, vice mayor, as I mentioned earlier, we are not the highest. We are not the lowest in our review of other cities. An example is Lakewood, which is about 2000, San Francisco, which is 4000. So we're in between both of those. Okay. Thank you, Councilmember Stabler. Thank you. I, too, can support the motion. And in partial answer to the vice mayor's question, there are instances where it is physically impossible to underground. So I think this would be another application that's probably covered in your language that you gave us. Also, I think the language in a perfect world would have come from the telecom industry. I'm not sure if our assistant city attorney got it from that direction, but it did. It might have. It just didn't come to me. So I don't know if this suits them, but I'll support this. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce. Yes, I want to thank my colleague, Councilmember Price for her amendment. And I thank you guys for coming out and educating us. Definitely. It's exciting days whenever you have. A variety of issues, including small cell towers. So I did have a couple of questions for staff. Could you just remind us, when was the first time we. Heard discussion that this

up last year. We've been working on this ordinance for over 12 months. I believe it was February, earlier this year when it went to Planning Commission. It was scheduled to be read by council in March, and there was a request to spend some more time addressing some of the telecom industry's ideas about how to amend the ordinance. We've been doing that and we're before you tonight as councilman or excuse me, as city attorney Mays indicated, we did bring forward to council a patch ordinance, and that was, again, to try to ensure that as best as we can. Long Beach maintains some local control over the deployment and esthetics of how small cell expands in our city. Great. Thank you. And I just have two more questions because, yes, the vice mayor did a great job of covering everything in that conversation around basically. Having equitable distribution of. New small cells. Could the city at its discretion, since. We've listed 3000 as that revenue, could we reduce. That to say, 15. In areas where we see. The digital divide as the greatest. To try to incentivize. Putting them in? Yes, I want to amend my earlier answer because there is some hope as far as the city having the ability to control somewhat the deployment of these. And that is and what I forgot to mention, but Craig covered in his staff report. The city is actually the landlord on a number of these poles. So and that's a different situation than when they want to put their own poles in or they want to utilize an existing pool. So we're we're the landlord. If they come to us and say they would like to use a pole at a particular location. The city always has the ability to, as part of that negotiation process, to see if we can get them to say, okay, we'll let you put it in on these four poles that belong to the city in this area. But what we'd also like you to do is consider adding two poles in another location. So we do have that ability as part of the back and forth negotiation, being a landlord. That's great. So that's good. I don't think we were supposed to be able to recover cost recovery, so to reduce the amount would not necessarily be the correct thing to do. But we are. Leveraging. Ourselves as a landlord would be the better way to approach deployment on an equitable base. And that's already. And you're saying we already have that ability right now? Yes. As a landlord, we have that ability as a landlord. Great. Because I know. That from talking to some folks, I know there's an interest. In the industry to make sure that we're closing the digital. Divide. So I would ask that staff, when you guys are working on this, really try to identify I. Know that. Councilmember Gonzalez is cued up next and she's done a lot of. Work on the digital divide. So whatever information we have in the city, if we could use that as an opportunity. To try to close that gap, I think it would be really helpful. I think you guys covered all the rest of the questions. I would. Say in. In conversation around the S trand Towers. I mean, you guys gave us staff, gave us for photos, and then I have a photo. From the industry, which is a very different photo with a lot less wires. That definitely looks something that's more appealing. So as we're talking about installing those. Recognizing that we're not installing things from. You know, 20, 30 years ago, that this will be more esthetically pleasing than what we currently have. So with that, I support the amendment and the item. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes. Thanks for the work as well. I just want to ask if we can receive report back basically quantifying the amount of small strand mounts. Is that something that's easy to do if we're able to do that and see where there? I know I'm giving you extra work, but the reason being is because and we've talked about it, but just to put it out there again and reinforce the message, we know that these are concentrated over concentrated in certain areas. And from what I understand, new places like the western portion of the city, many T-Mobile users and many T-Mobile users, of course, because of the technology, require the small strand. But perhaps there's a way that we can quantify that and see if we can lessen that load, you know, for those areas with that with that blight. So I can't remember the exact question. I think what I would add is that right now we don't have any strand mounts that we've approved. So through the application process, I anticipate some will come forward if council takes the action that they're contemplating this evening. And we can certainly track that and be able to report to council where those requests are coming in. The locations of those requests, which request were approved and which requests were denied. Okay. Well then that would be great. And thank you so much. I appreciate it. Thanks. Thank you. So that concludes council comment. Let's go ahead. Members, please cast your vote. And just so we're clear, that. Motion includes the revised language that I wrote. Read into the record. Thank you. Motion case. Thank you. As have hearing number two. Just a moment. I have a request.

Councilwoman Price. Which was the. Item? Item number 25. We're going to move up to 25 quickly and take care of it. Motion carries. Thank you. We're going to take number 27 quickly. Congratulations, all. We're inside 27. Communication from Councilwoman Pierce. Recommendation to request city manager to study the impact of amplified sound from city permitted outdoor events in downtown Long Beach on adjacent residences and neighborhoods. Thank you, Mr.. Mrs. Councilman Pierce. Thank you, Vice Mayor. And thank you. Chair, for moving this item up. We have been working with Orca residents, ocean residents for a while on trying to get our hands around some of the impacts of noise and events in our downtown. One of the things that makes our downtown fantastic is that we do have events like the Grand Prix, which had a record year this year like Music Tastes

Good and some of the events that happened at the Queen Mary. Last year we had more events than we've had in recent history. And so this obviously takes a toll on the residents. And looking at our entertainment district as a district that is thriving, that adds a vitality to our city and wanting to maintain. That vibrancy, but wanting to. Do that in a way that has a partnership and respect for the residents that also live in downtown. And so we have taken several months of sitting with special events, city managers, office. And residents that are impacted by these. They're going to craft some recommendations for staff to come back. And I want to highlight that. One of the things that I think is most important is doing the. The actual reading of some of the impacts in some of these buildings, which I know has been a topic of. Discussion before we hear from residents. That are here tonight. I want to make it. Clear for the record. That this. Item should also include Councilmember Linda Gonzales as a co-sponsor. And so we had. That was a mishap on our paper here. So making sure that that's. Reflected that Councilmember Gonzalez is a co-sponsor. On this. With that being said, I really am going to turn it over to the residents to talk about what it's like for you guys to live in downtown. I don't believe special events is here tonight, but we have a clear path to move forward with some recommendations to come back on. How do we have a thriving downtown with thriving residents as well. So thank you. Thank you. So there's been a request to go straight to public comment and public comment on this item. Thank you. Now will be the time. Okay. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Pearce. I'm Margaret Mustafa and I'm with Orca and I support the recommendation and here's why. Imagine you go home tonight and a neighbor is playing amplified music so loud you can't hear the television, you can't talk on the phone and you can't sleep. Thankfully, when you call the police, they will come and they will enforce the noise ordinance. Now, imagine you live on East Ocean Boulevard downtown, and as hundreds of us do, and there is a city permitted event next to your home with amplified sounds so loud you can't hear the television talk on the phone or relax in your own home. Then when you call the police, they will politely tell you there's nothing they can do. Why? Because no ordinances are being violated. Why the unequal protection? Well, one in one area of the city are protected and the other you're not. Here's why. Long Beach Municipal Code eight 8280. The entertainment exemption allows exceptions from the city's newest ordinance for occasional city events, occasional city permitted events. However, the events are not occasional. There are city permit permitted events next to our homes almost every weekend, seven months, a year. Events often last 12 hours from ten a morning until ten at night and up to three days in a row. Sometimes there are events on weeknights. Decibel

Am in support of this recommendation for this. Study. My question is, how many of you have been angry when you're next to a car with loud bass amplifiers, which obviously the person's really enjoying and you want them to enjoy their music. But it's booming. Into your car and into your body. I'm sure you've all felt that before. Well, that's what it's like throughout much of the year at our homes when the outside events are being amplified to excessive levels. We're not opposed to events. We love events and we're not opposed to music. But we're being tortured in our homes by the amplified noise, by these events. And it's not environmentally friendly and it's not a green soundscape. If we're going to be a green city, we need to be green for the benefit of the hearing of all the residents who live here and find a way that's mutually beneficial to support events and businesses as well. The prolonged exposure to high levels of noise for continuous days and evenings without noise release is hazardous to our health and well-being. It affects many hundreds of residents who reside. Adjacent to these events. We measured the amplified noise last year from May to October. We have the photos, if decibel readings that show excessive noise, 41 of the 4140 days that we measured from May to October. I have some here and we charted it as well. So you could see where the noise just graphically is excessive. And from different buildings. We have different noise levels both the average, the max and the peak. The people who dismiss our complaints like we don't understand how the music becomes a weapon when it's amplified to excessive levels. Mus ic is. Fine, but keep it to the levels that the health standards already say. Are healthy. And we don't know why all these events have to be allowed to. Be excessively loud. Residents often get in a sleep at night because at night the tear down and setup of the beeping trucks prevent people from sleeping. And this puts the public at risk when they must drive to work the next day without having sleep. So let me just read a few of the comments for you from the other people. Who took. The amplified sounds are so loud. I have to go into the hall to talk on the telephone. The bass sounds from amplified music are so disturbing I can't rest in my own bed when I am sick. Some people would like you to disregard this matter because of the faulty view that it is the price humans pay to live in cities. But you should all know excessive noise. Is not the price we. Pay. And it shouldn't be. Even the former mayor and city officials confirm the importance of preventing noise increases and the cacophony. Of sound in the city's own noise element. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Vice Mayor. City Council members. Staff. My name is Bob Kelton and I live in the Alcoa building on Ocean Boulevard. I've been here for 12 years. Love living downtown. The number of events that we had initially were about a third of what we have had last year. So the number of events has increased dramatically. I love the events, so that's great. I do support this item and I want to thank Janine and her staff for putting this together for us. I know that it was a lot of work. Last year we had 41 different days that had 70 decibels or above at my unit, which is actually very loud. We had 17 more that were above 80 decibels. And so what that means is that some of the events sort of 5 a.m. with amplified PA systems. It is an issue and it affects a lot of residents. And the what we're trying to do is not to actually stop the events, but try to find mitigation methods, try to PowerPoint speakers out to sea, or to try to find other ways to mitigate the sound levels. And there's a lot of different tactical ways that that can be done. And one of the best ways to find out what the actual impact is, is to actually get a study done by the city so we can get actual real measurements. And that's why I'm in support of this particular agenda item, and I encourage you all to vote for it. Thank you very much. Thank you. And next speaker, please. Good evening, Vice Mayor and city council members. I'm Robert Fox. I'm the executive director of the Council of Neighborhood Organizations. You may have met me before. The Council of Neighborhood Organizations has outreach to our leaders and find that we all agree that the noise level and continued lack of mitigation or abatement in the downtown sector is unacceptable. The impact on the health and well-being of citizens is severe, especially as our population ages. As a side note, I know when I was 22 I probably enjoyed louder musi c than I to as I've aged, and I think maybe my ears have changed, but I just, I don't know, I can't even go into a bar, you know, and it intolerable for me because I can't talk to people and you know, I love to talk. So we are concerned about the the municipalities laws as recently tweaked by staff because they seem to be in in contradiction to the laws of the state of California regarding noise. Just because a staff wants to change a word or rewrite a definition does not mean the issue has gone away. Ultimately, in a contest between the city and the state, the state will prevail. One cannot just define something as temporary and exist and exempt it, which is in our statute right now. One can't use the word occasional and exempt it occasional. Now, in real terms is every week in the city of Long Beach. It is time now to address noise as a continuing factor as a city develops its tourism and attraction businesses in the downtown and shoreline areas. Our Special Events Director. Our suggestion is should not be the point person in defining new noise ordinance suggestions. Perfect. However, there's a conflict of interest here between her position as an advocate for the role of tourism and business activity in the city and the possible negative report that may come out of this particular request. So we'd like to see some outside agency perhaps selected to be in charge of this process. This has been a difficult time for the citizens of Long Beach regarding the process. They've it's been a stop stop thing a long time. And we'd like to see it go forward. And we hope that, you know, Council Member Pearce's project is going to work very well, hopefully as quickly as possible. And we hope we don't get to a place where we're having to deal with that conflict between state law and our city's law. Thank you so much for your time tonight. Thank you. Seeing no further public comment. All right. Speaker's list is closed. This is our final speaker. You may not be able to see much of me, but I hope you can hear me. And I'll give us your name. I am begging you to please approve this recommendation. The noise level is. So bad. That it's very difficult to live with because it's frequent and it intrudes our homes. I put in earplugs. I use a sound canceling mops. And I've invested very heavily and I'm trying to get some form of soundproofing in my unit. I've bought heavy curtains that cost me a lot of money. I have now tripled paying windows to try to deaden sounds and the sounds still come through. It's mainly bass type vibration. There's nothing that seems to stop it. And I would like. Very much to have some peace or a peaceful environment in my home. And yes, I do believe the city should have a lot of events. I enjoy music and I also enjoy the, you know, going to events. But I will tell you, the sound level is so unreasonable and we need to address it. Thank you. Thank you. All right. Okay. Okay. Well, I think I'm gonna keep mine. How many. How many additional speak ers do we have on this item? You got to say something. Go ahead. Okay. One more after me. Okay. These are final two speakers. The speakers list is closed. Okay. Well, my name is Latoya marshall. I usually come about homeless issues. Okay, so it looks like there one additional person. So this gentleman. Oh, the last speaker. Well, these two. Thank you. Yes. Please proceed. What I'm saying is, when you look at these new developments or whatever the case will be, you see that these gurneys are being. You know, built. Where you have residence at the top. But at the bottom you are turning them into retail stores in different commercial stores or whatever. They're making it inconvenient for you guys because is happening in your building or near your building where you can get away from this sale. Now, there's a difference when something else is going on across the street or around the corner. And the music in a base is not right there. You know, in your building, being housed or surrounded by. So sometimes it's just that, a, these are vets are placed in your buildings or in your communities where you guys, you know, don't have the option to be a quiet community. Like you want. To. They turn you guys into a live showroom or a stage and they're not understanding that you guys have to live there, but they are profiting when they're, you know, paying people or selling tickets or having these live events. So maybe sometimes you need to understand certain things that you guys. Let's address it to the chair. Because when you agree to them, they get the right to place them wherever they want. So sometimes you guys need to start really thinking about the people behind. The. Music or the events and think about the residents that suffer from you guys events. Have a good night. Thank you. Next speaker. Please. Oh. Hi, vice mayor, fellow councilors and staff. My name is people like I live on Ocean Boulevard International Tower for the past 23 years. My question is, why do you let allow the event to happen without checking the health impact of the noise, the smoke which affects Long Beach residents and animals like cats and dogs? We love events, but not the unacceptable noise and smoke which affects our health. Even the animals, like dogs and cats, get restless, disturbed. I have seen that myself. I understand what the health issue is because I am a registered nurse. Anesthetist means I put patients to sleep. It's not a one time issue. Several times throughout the years. It should be a must to control the noise in the hours, throughout the days. For example, if I drive very fast breaking the rules more than the limit, the police gives me ticket. What about you guys? Can't you control that? Do you prefer to have money? Or are you worried about the resident's health? We raised the issue several times. It has been presented in writing repeatedly by Marguerite Moustafa, Bob Kelton and Dr.. Show them that show. Can you hear us, whale? Or is your ear affected? And thank

or event planners, so they are going to the tee on all of their noise levels and environmental impacts and health impacts to residents. But I'm glad she brought it forward because this has been a long going, as you mentioned, long going and long, long standing issue that I don't think we've ever really solidified. And so thank you for bringing that forward. And I look forward to being in those discussions as well. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Price. Okay. So I'm glad that this item is here too. And I genuinely understand the concerns of the downtown residents because you deal with a whole host of nuisances and noise that you probably never envisioned when you invested in your home. So anything we can do as a council, individually and collectively to mitigate that, I believe we should. But I bring to this topic a different discussion, and that this discussion should not be limited just to the downtown area. I've mentioned this before, but last year at the Pride Festival they had amplified music and I love the Pride Pride Festival. I'm a huge supporter of it. But they had amplified music and art windows in Alamitos Heights. I live two miles away from the SEAL Beach border. That's how far east I am. Our windows were rattling in our neighborhood and our residents were. Nobody could sleep. It was on a Sunday night. Kids, you know, kids windows were shaking. And so we just. And if I could just make one request to the city manager. That should never happen. That should just never happen. Where a permit that we're allowing in one part of the city is impacting a part of the city that's two miles away from the next county. I mean, that that just just should never happen because my residents didn't have any notice whatsoever that that was going to happen. And I realize it was an unusual situation, and I'll probably mention this more than once as we approach Pride weekend, but that should just never happen. And if we can do everything in our power to make sure that doesn't get repeated, I'd really appreciate that. So that's it. And I support the item. Thank you. Councilwoman Pierce, where you queued up again? No. Okay, Members, please cast your vote. Where is she? Miss Mungo, are you voting yes on this or no? Okay, thank you. All right. Motion carries. Item. 30, please. Report from Long Beach Airport

Financial Management. Recommendation to award a contract to elite line services to perform maintenance, repair and support of the baggage handling system at the Long Beach Airport in an amount not to exceed 3,018,293 for a period of three years. Authorize City Manager to increase blanket purchase order with JB Aerotech services to continue maintenance on the baggage handling system by 396,000. Can there's a motion and a second staff report is requested? Mr. West. We have Juan Lopez Rios of the airport. Matassa, the members of the City Council. This item relates to the award of a contract with elite line services to provide maintenance, repair and support

t of the baggage handling system at the Long Beach Airport. This includes the in-line baggage system for outgoing baggage screening and the baggage carousel systems at baggage claims one, two and three for inbound baggage pickup. The airport requires a full time services of technicians specifically trained in developing and performing preventative and corrective maintenance for the baggage handling system. Our current airport system consists of components constructed in the 1980s, in addition to the newer, more technologically complex components constructed in 2008. This evening's item also requests authorization to increase the airport's blanket purchase order with our current provider, John Bean Technologies, doing business such as JB Te Aerotech Services to continue to perform baggage handling maintenance services through June 30th, 2018 and to increase appropriations in the airport fund. Staff request council approval of the recommended actions to ensure a smooth transition with minimal disruptions for the baggage handling system at the Long Beach Airport. This concludes my oral reports. I'm available for any additional questions. Okay. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Thank you. And I fully support this item. This is going to be a great enhancement to our already award winning airport support. That from Eureka. Okay. Any public comment on this item saying CNN, please cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you. I think there's a lot of folks here for the power steering items, so I want to do that next. If we get a quick motion for the concern of improperly steering item will be the next item on the agenda. There's a second person. A second for the consent, please. Okay. And is are we're going to do all of them except 1430 public comment on consent. Okay. Please come forward. This is an all consent items minus number 14. Stephanie Dawson So Democratic Socialists of America law, which I am number ten, specify concerns the destruction of items of items from the Internal Affairs Division of the Long Beach Police Department. We strongly oppose this as we believe that these items are very pertinent. If it's an issue of storage, we can make space for it and hold on to them. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. And with that, I don't think these are great. So please go ahead and cast your vote. Are you going to consent and the consent calendar, but not item 14? Okay. Come forward. Good evening, Marin, Fellow Council and City Staff. My name is Tom Evolve. I represent think you represent IBEW Local 11 and we're here in for support of item concern item number 22 and Amos and the IBEW, we have a partnership when it comes to the infrastructure of battery storage. And I think that's a great synergy because Amos brings to the other expertize when it comes to this infrastructure and IBEW brings to the good qualified electricians to install this infrastructure. So we are we are as a support on this item. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. I NATO-Russia

Council members and staff. My name is Robert Brink and I'm here on behalf of Advanced Microgrid Solutions. We're here to support Resolution 18 340. We're very excited for this advanced energy storage system. This project will provide significant cost savings to the city, improve local grid reliability and reduce carbon emissions, as we already heard tonight from me and others. Long Beach is has been and is a leader and innovator in more efficient use of its energy resources, promoting sustainability and reducing emissions. I think that ethos has been reflected in our discussions with the impressive team at Public Works, an equal amount of work, professionalism and diligence they put into evaluating this opportunity. And as mentioned, I'd also like to thank IBEW Local 11 for taking their time tonight to support this project. We're looking forward to creating local jobs and working with skilled craftsmen needed for these types of projects. So thank you for your consideration consideration of this resolution. We look forward to working with Long Beach to create a cleaner, more resilient and more efficient electric grid for the local community. Thank you. Okay, thank you. There's a motion and a second. Please come forward. Are you on the consent calendar. Please? Kitchen counter. My name is Victoria Marshall. I have a couple of comments to this. Say you guys. Are. Saying that you guys win. Which one was it? The legislation and the state issues. You guys want to turn around and, you know, destroy records from internal affairs or whatever, documentations or whatever. How does that help the community if I'm trying to, you know, file a complaint or issue with internal affairs about an incident and you guys are destroying records or any type of proof of the complaint that I'm trying to file or whatever. I don't really understand. How is that helping the community if there are problems, you know, are different things are coming up and these are the only records that I'm able to go by. If these, you know, items are being destroyed by the Internal Affairs Division, how would I go back and be able to, you know, target them or say that they're doing something wrong when the items would no longer be there? I requested a lot of of, you know, paperwork and documents from being harassed by, you know, police officers, different things of that nature, different organizations, paperwork that, you know, I'm filing, you know, with, regardless if it's the multipurpose center, Section eight, whatever housing paperwork that's supposed to be available to me every time we question is paperwork or whatever is either is not showing up in your eye systems or has no documentation of it. So I'm being erased. Every trail I go through, just be heard. The question is, find out why things are taking so long. All the documentation is constantly being erased and I don't know what to do, how to stop it, how to get the information before it is deleted. But it's like a cover up of anyth ing and everything that a person is doing. They do not want to be acknowledged, are aware of, and I feel like I'm not being protected by you guys and I don't have money to go out and pay for a lawyer or, you know, someone that knows the trail to get to these documents before they're destroyed. And it doesn't say which departments are destroying them at what time or what dates or nothing else. So I don't know if evidence is going to be lost forever by me not coming here, because this is only the only trail that actually shows that I had been here going requested help. Don't ask what's going on and everything else. But when I go in I try to get documentation of this is like it doesn't exist. Thank you. Thank you, ma'am. There is a motion any second on the agenda here to pass the consent calendar minus item 14. So please cast your votes on that. Motion carries. I, I do like the glove. It's a nice it's a nice look with that. I will be moving on from public comment and going on to their first item, which is item nine. Recommendation to receive and file an oil report from the Economic Development Department recognizing May seven through 12th, 2018 as Economic Development Week in the City of Long Beach City One. Thank you. Do we know we have a staff report on this? Mr. Mayor, council members enjoy an economic. Development. Week. John Keisler as team. Honorable mayor and members of the City Council. I'm very excited tonight with our staff to to present to you that it is a national economic development week. And we're going to start a short video to celebrate that here in Long Beach. So over the next week, we'll be pushing out messages and videos about the benefits of economic development in conjunction with the International Economic Development Council, which is doing this around the planet. There's about 350 events going on around the country to really celebrate the people like our small businesses, our developers, the people who create jobs, and also our commissions and our committees. And all of the volunteers in the city council who are doing such incredible work to promote economic opportunities for workers, investors and entrepreneurs in our city. So thank you for your ongoing support. We'll be celebrating Economic Development Week and you'll see more information coming out. And thank you for pushing that out to your constituents as well. Thank you, Country Ranga. Thank you, Mayor. Nothing shows the vibrancy and the desire and the dynamism of a city like economic development. And I'm so happy that within the last several years that we reinstitute and recreate it, refocus, reorganize, restructure our economic development bureau and department, because I think it's one that has really been a focal point and a key to having the city be as successful as it is. And I want to congratulate the John and his and his team for doing a great job with our economic development goals. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. Thank you. That was an amazing video

. It was a really great video. I don't know if I've seen it before. Did we show it at State and City? I have seen it before, but it was a really great video and I enjoy seeing it. So if you push it out, then we can share it as well on our social media. So thank you and thanks to the great work that you're all doing. I love the energy and the vibrancy that your team, your entire team is bringing to the economic development efforts. I can really feel a difference. It just feels very fresh and out of the box. And I love the anything as possible attitude that I feel like I've gotten when I've reached out to members of your team. There's never a hard no, there's always a, you know, a soft no. And so and and that's good because it allows us to to, you know, keep the opportunity open if things come along and they have and we've seen things come along. I do want to highlight a city department that I think contributes greatly to economic development, but we never really link them with economic development, and that's our libraries. I think first and foremost, our libraries provide Internet access to a lot of people who wouldn't otherwise have Internet access. They offer bilingual computer classes, in-person and online, teaching people marketable job skills such as graphic design, Microsoft Word, coding, robotics, ESL. They have free online classes on computer science, accounting, software programs, finance, entrepreneurship and business development. They have free access to online one on one job coaches who provide resume skills and cover letter assistance. People can visit the Family Learning Center to meet one on one with a guide who provides them job search, resume and cover letter skills they can practice tests, take practice test to become an EMT, firefighter or police officer. And they have free access to various databases full of sales leads, market research and employment opportunities. So I want to highlight the libraries because we rarely connect them directly with economic development. But for many of our residents and visitors, the library provides them a place to be able to get prepared for the job they want to have, so that when we do have investors coming into the city, we have qualified people ready to go into those jobs. So thank you very much for everything that you do. And specifically, I know you help citywide, but specifically you've been a real asset to the third district and again, allowing us to achieve things that may not be traditional. So thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilmember Hooper now. Thank you. Well, as long as we have John Stewart in the hot seat there and he's never even given me a soft. No. No, I would like to commend him and thank him for all the work on Community Hospital for over the past six months. And I think what a great job he does in economic development and still finds the time to work in community hospital. The community really appreciates that. Also down the hill from CUNY Hospital is the traffic circle area. And not a week goes by that I don't get congratulations, although it shouldn't be going to me on all the new development in that area and the removal of the blight, let alone eight brand new buildings, probably a dozen new businesses when it's all done and by my rough estimate, $50 million of private sector investment. And we couldn't do that without the team here. So thank you. Q Councilmember Councilwoman Mongo. I just wanted to say thank you first and foremost to our Economic Development Commission. They've worked very, very hard, and the Chairman and past chairman have really spent a lot of time on our economic blueprint. I'm thank you to my colleagues, especially the two members of the Economic Development Committee. Councilman Price and Councilwoman Turanga. The tough decisions have to be made somewhere, and I really appreciate the time that we spend together debating those things, because at the end of the day, without a engaged council and a staff and a department that is open and willing to make the implementations, and when we come up with something, you find a way. I don't think I've ever heard. No, either. It's let's think about it. Let's find a way. Let's find the funding. That is how a city of our size has the lowest percentage of unemployment in the recorded history of the city. It is because people come together and they're willing to have the hard talks. And I really appreciate everyone, every department here. The library. Yes. A big part of economic development and also development services. The big strides you guys have made in the last three years in putting things online and shortening the process and being open to refunding business licenses, things like that weren't discussed before. And your willingness to be a part of that with us is really powerful. So thank you. Thank you very much. Councilman Austin. Thank you. So I'd like to first of all, congratulate the mayor and the Council for having the foresight and commitment to restructure and create an economic development department. And then they have been doing a great job on the economic development team, the staff, the commission led by John Keisler. They bring a an optimism and energy and strategic approach that that I, for one, very much appreciate. Yes, they do have a get to. Yes. Kind of mentality, which I very much appreciate. And I think that's a quality that we want to have in our economic development team. I also want to specifically thank you for your efforts, the team for their efforts to to help us with our development on Atlantic Avenue. I know myself in the eighth District and Councilmember Richardson in the ninth District are really looking forward to some of the new developments in the North Village, new retail and restaurants that will complement the the new development of our new library, our crown jewel in the north, and also the new developments planned along Atlantic in Artesia, which will, I really think, transform our north part of our city. And lastly, I want to thank you guys for all the great work you do in support of our business improvement districts. They make a big difference. So thank you very much. Thank you, councilman. Accountant Pierce. I want to echo my colleagues and say how much I appreciate your willingness to partner with people that you haven't partnered with before. You're always very honest about what you know, what you don't know, and willingness to learn, which I absolutely love. I think in downtown, maybe as of now, we've got six cranes instead of seven. We saw one of them coming down today for the Civic Center, which is exciting to see them go up. It's real exciting to see them come down. I also want to just applaud Development Services as well. We know that economic development, while you guys are running as fast as you can, it's got development services working extra hard as well. And so just want to say thank you to the entire team. Long Beach is definitely moving quickly. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Andrews. Yes, thank you. I think a lot of the credit should go to Mr. West because, you know, I look at these guys history the hard way and these three guys walk into your office. I'm trying to figure out what is this? And I guess they do on the hardness. Yes and. No. Keep living, you guys. You know how to say no. You're doing a great job. Keep up the good work. I don't know about all this. No business. But but let me just add that really obviously proud of our department and Mr. Kaiser is in a great job of leading our department. This this city council restarted in its first budget the economic development department, which had been eliminated for for many years. And I think that was the first kind of bright step in creating the department and creating a director that is now Mr. Chrisler in creating the Commission, which created our economic blueprint that is now guiding a lot of this work. And in fact a lot of the I know equity work that's happening out of that blueprint, including the summit, is directly one of the commission's, I believe it was item number two in the blueprint that's being kind of implemented right now. I also want to commend the members of the Economic Development Council Committee, which includes, of course, Councilwoman Mango and Council Woman Price and council member Ringo. And I want to include also the and thank our partners at Bloomberg and many of the foundation partners that are allowing us to experiment and do innovative work. And that has led to a lot of changes on our interface with our businesses and our users, particularly when it comes to busy port and a lot of the upgrades that we have done to our systems, whether it's through the permitting process or whether it's been through the appointment process, the business licensing process, the list goes on and on that our team has worked. It is such a smoother experience to open a business today than it was a few years ago. And a lot of that has to do with your work.

I want to thank, of course, our community partners that are doing work with us. I know that you partner with our bids, with the chamber, with the work, with some of our work organizations and so many others that are particularly involved in the blueprint implementation. So I just want to thank all of you for that and and if any public comment on this. Please come forward. Hello. My name is Kimberly Obiero and I'm with the Long Beach Public Library Foundation. Thank you for highlighting the many ways our our city supports economic development and for also mentioning the library and the many programs we provide. I'll just mention one more. Many of the digital tools that the library provides have been mentioned. The Library Foundation is also very proud to fund scholarships for the career online high school program, giving adults a second chance to earn their accredited high school diploma at the library. Since 2016, this program has had 28 graduates and of course, the many literacy programs the library provides. Studies by the Campaign for Grade Level Reading show that students who do not learn how to read proficiently by fourth grade are four times more likely to leave high school without a diploma. And this can have a huge impact on our economy. We hope you will continue to view the library as a valuable public education center that gives people the opportunity to transform their own lives and create a more prosperous Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you. And ah, the comment. And then we'll go to a vote. Dave Shukla on file. Fellas, I'd really like to see more on manufacturing, especially clean tech manufacturing. We're losing a lot of market share in a lot of critical parts to San Diego, to San Francisco. As someone who grew up in this town, I really, really want to see a better focus on the things that we can say yes and continue to say yes to it, as. Well as some of the. Limits that we're going to have as a city. Cranes coming down is a good thing if we are the ones bringing them down and someone who lives where I live. Considering everything that we're talking about today, consider everything and choose wisely. Thank you. And with that of vice mayor, did you queue up? Sure. I just want and thank you. Obviously, this is this is a good thing. But I want to take a moment. Just give a recognition to the economic development department and also shout out to the team that's coordinating our upcoming economic equity summit at the Long Beach Convention Center on May 17th. So this summit is going to outline some national best practices and strategies. We've got a number of our council members, number of stakeholders engaged and want one level or another and essentially is going to make the case for, you know, when you think about everything from homelessness to public safety, education, these issues all have a common denominator and that's poverty. So cities who address that and make it the core of the economic development strategies are cities that ultimately thrive. So I encourage you if you haven't signed up. My understanding is that it's sold out. There is a waitlist. Go ahead and feel free to contact our economic development department or office at 570 6137. For more information on the summit. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor and I, we didn't mention also that I want to thank you guys. Also, I know the the beach poverty rate, which had been about 22% for for many years, is now down to about 18%, which is the first time we've hit under 20. I know a long time. And so as fairness, I do want to I do want to thank the team and all the work on that issue. And we did public comment. So Members Pisco and Castro votes. When we did public comment, I called for it. Motion carries. 22. Report from Health and Human Services recommendation to execute an agreement with HUD to accept and expend grant funding in the amount of 8,185,190 for the 2017 Continuum of Care for Homeless Assistance Program, and submit a renewal grant application for the 2018 Continuum of Care for Homeless Assistance Programs Citywide. Thank you. And I'm not sure there's a staff report, but or that we need one. But I just wanted to uplift that. This is a again, significant amount of funding that is being awarded to the city for homeless homelessness prevention, assistance for people experiencing homelessness and for a lot of our projects, we are a continuum of care and so we're very thankful for this and look forward to putting it to good work. Any public comment on this item? There's emotion in a second, Ms.. Bouchard, come down. This, too, is not new. We've had this grant and the reception of grants. I've said it and I'm very, quite a few of these recommendations and motions and they have been passed and carried year after year. When you want to show what the city has done and is doing, you will invite the women's shelter, the domestic violence , women, people, human trafficking people will be out there in the lobby and we talk about what we have done for the homeless. What new are we doing? And I understand I reached Cal State. Long Beach is getting in on. Something. I sat here one night and Mr. Austin, you asked Mr. West to do a study to see how much money we were giving. To what prior to the program of homeless issues. Somebody else asked for another study. We had a study. The mayor gave a study and the line went out the door. We have studied now we're going to have a summit of the summit. People downtown Long Beach said they were going to have a summit. Did you? I didn't go. I didn't I was making the point of nothing. Nothing new. Are we doing? And you're elected into office because you don't need the homeless vote. They can't book because they don't have an address. And you're able to get past the homeless vote and be reelected. This is the thing I'm telling you that God is watching. And in the courts of heaven, the city of Long Beach. You're not looking good. And so we have a president now who made a deal with God to raise fa ith in God above government. You heard him on May 3rd. God is above. All, all. Government. That was the deal he made. That's what that statement there got him elected. He made a deal. God, I will acknowledge you. And what is important to you the whole time I am in office. Never mind. I am perfect to my. To my family or nobody else. I may not be perfect, but I must state what is important to you. God. And He's doing that job. Now, what city of Long Beach are you going to do to your commitment? You made a commitment. I've run out of time. Thank you. There's a motion in a second. And Councilman Andrews. Has also started this. I want to thank Kelly for this building work that they do, because this is a great necessary for the functions. You know about homeless assistance, service for temporary and permanent housing and social welfare. So I give you my full support on this. I think it's wonderful. Councilman Austin. Just to let a public comment, I wanted to just clarify the question before us. Are we. Is the question for us to accept 8 to $10 million in HUD funding to help homelessness in Long Beach? Yes, this is our annual funding for HUD that provides permanent supportive housing, rapid rehousing and transitional housing and supportive services. And we've received about a half million more this year than we have in previous years. Okay. It has my full support. Yes. Thank you. And please cast your votes. Thank you. Item 32 Report from Health and Human Services Recommendation to receive and file a report from the Health and Human Services Department on the My Brother's Keeper Youth Leadership Program Citywide. Mr.

West. Mayor, Council members, this is a great program that we entered into several years ago. It's run out of the Health and Human Services Department through Kelly Colby's team. So, Kelly, could you walk us through this? Yes. With a grant from My Brother's Keeper Alliance, the Office of Equity launched the city's first MBK Youth Leadership Program. Over the last six months, these young leaders from across the city have come together to learn about health equity, violence prevention, and how to make Long Beach a better place for youth. I'm happy to turn it over to our leaders. They'll share a little bit about what they found, and they'll start with a language to put together and equip. So we'll start with that. And then the team will come to the microphone and give their presentation. In 2014, President Obama launched the My Brother's Keeper initiative. He issued a nationwide call to action for communities to address persistent opportunity gaps. Faced by boys and young men of color. I firmly believe that every child deserves the same chances, right? Long Beach accepted that challenge and in 2015 implemented a citywide plan to advance equity and opportunity for all young people in our city. We're very excited about moving forward to ensure that every young person has access to a quality education and access to positive experiences with their community and law enforcement, and a future with a good job to take care of their family. This year, Long Beach reached another milestone with the completion of the My Brother's Keeper Health Equity and Violence Prevention Youth Leadership Program. The purpose of the My Brother's Keeper Youth Leadership Program is for youth in our city, specifically boys and young men of color, to really understand how policymaking works, but specifically to ensure that youth have a stronger voice in the decision making process here in our city. During the six month program, 20 young men and women engaged with their peers to collect and present information on ways to make Long Beach a more equitable city for everyone. What I like best was that we were able to talk about problems that are happening in a community and we're able to see how it may be solved. Richard I met somebody before I was in the program. I really didn't think about how hard it was and how easy it was for kids to change Long Beach and really make it like a better looking place and how we can improve the way the streets look. But now I see like how easy it is that that me and my friends could get involved and really just change the community. Guided by mentors and support from the city's Office of Equity. These young men and women learned valuable communication, leadership and community organizing skills. This is a program that we welcomed everyone, and we made it okay for everyone to be a part of it. And we also wanted them to understand that we value education, but we value them as well. We like to be a leader because when you become a leader, every leader has like a genius breakthrough. And then once a lot of genius has come together, they can make something even better, something extraordinary. This program, it actually helps you learn about your community and the people in it. And actually being involved in that makes you feel like you're a part of the city. To learn more about My Brother's Keeper and how you can get involved, visit MBK Long Beach dot com. Thank you. And now we have a continued presentation, so please. Good evening, Mayor, Vice Mayor and members of the City Council. My name is Omar Thomas and I am a 2018 graduate of Jordan High School. Hello. I'm Andrew Wang, and I just recently graduated from Millikan High School. Good evening. My name is Melanie Bezerra, and I just graduated from Long Beach Poly High School. Oh, good. Good evening. My name is Emily Beshear, and I just graduated from Long Beach Poly High School. Good evening. My name is Abraham Gudino. I got a Millikan High School. Good evening. My name is Drew and my son and I attend Malagasy school. Good evening. My name is Eleanor Shakespeare Townsend, and I go to McBride High School. We are here tonight to speak on behalf of the city's first ever, My Brother's Keeper Health Equity and Violence Prevention Youth Leadership Program, or MBK Leadership Program for short. There are 11 of us here tonight, but as you heard in the introduction video, we are a cohort of 20 youth from all across Long Beach. And we represent we represent the north, southeast and western areas of our great city. My peers and I attend high schools throughout Long Beach, including Polly Jordan Beach, Millikan Reed and Lakewood High Schools as well as Long Beach City College. The program brought us together to learn about health equity, racial equity, and how to make a change for boys and men of color in our city. As a program, we are 100% youth of color, 90% male and 10% female. We aspire to be leaders in our community, the first in our families to go to college. Long Beach. Homeowners, artists, graphic designers, CFOs and positive role models for our families. During the six months that we spent in this program, where we had facilitators from across the city to speak with us about racial and social inequities affecting the language community. We learned about how youth can make a difference and making change in our communities. Our program included a retreat to campfire led by Leadership Long Beach, where we learned about our leadership potential as well as our training from building healthy communities, where we learned about improving community health. We received a training from a nurse, Del Rocha, from Community Coalition, who taught us about storytelling for social justice and the power of sharing our story. I learned about a public health campaign from the Long Beach Department of Health that showed us how using art and media in a creative way can reduce health disparities in our own community. Finally, each youth in this program was matched with our health department mentor. Our mentors showed us different employment opportunities available to the youth in our own city and may ask any mentors that are here to stand up. All of this training helped prepare us to complete a month. Long engagement process with our peers throughout the city. Each of us were asked to engage 40 of our. Peers youth ages 15 and 22, who live in Long Beach and ask them about what they love about Long Beach and also what they would like to see improved for themselves and others. Youth. Other youth in their community. Overall, we spoke to over 300 youth throughout Long Beach. We asked some questions about their schools. Neighborhoods, gangs, gun violence. Are there access to fresh food and afterschool programs? Throughout our engagement, we heard we we heard that a lot of youth in Long Beach loved their schools, friends and communities. However, we. Also heard a lot of youth. Talk about wanting their neighborhood parks to be cleaner and safer, and also that a lot of youth wish that the streets and sidewalks in their neighborhoods felt cleaner. The youth we spoke to want to see more youth programs offered in the city of Long Beach like afterschool leadership, mentoring, civic engagement, arts and sports programs. A lot of youth we. Spoke to didn't know if these programs existed. And if they did, they did not know how or where to access them. One we heard whenever we heard a lot about is about the relationship between the youth in Long Beach and Long Beach Police Department. Many of the youth we surveyed spoke about the presence of police. Either make them feel more scared, more safe. The youth we spoke to respect the work of the police officers and wish there were more opportunities for police to hear about what you want and need to help them feel safe in their communities. Some ideas we heard about. Where opportunities. For youth and. Police officers to have more opportunities to. Share their experiences with one another, to open on and honest conversations. Only if we spoke with ultimately want to make positive changes in Long Beach, but don't always know how or don't always feel like there are enough programs in the city to support them. One idea we heard a lot about was that the youth wish they had more opportunities to participate in public art projects. The youth we spoke to think that the public art in Long Beach is one of the things that make this city a really cool place to live. Youth wish there were more opportunities for them to participate and create more public art throughout the city, specifically youth led murals in public spaces and places. We want to thank you, Councilmember and Mr. Mayor, for giving us the opportunity to come in tonight and tell you more about our experience through the program and to tell you a little bit about what we learned about. The speaking to 300. Of our peers throughout Long Beach. We are excited to. Continue being. Leaders in our city. A few of us, as I've said, are going to college next year, but we are still excited to be involved in the city and making a big difference in our communities. Thank you for your time. Thank you guys very much. But let me let me just say let me just say that that we're all very proud of you. And I think you all obviously love your community and you love each other. And and you're obviously passionate about making sure that your peers and your friends and your community is strong and and are well represented and that are being treated fairly and are uplifting communities that have traditionally not had an even playing field. And so I just want to thank you for for that. I just also want to note, because it was in the video and I just need to say it again, that all of the My Brother's Keeper work across the country was initiated by President Obama. And I was there with another group of mayors when he announced the initiative from the White House and and asked, you know, mayors to accept the My Brother's Keeper challenge. And a lot of us did at the time. A lot of us didn't and chose not to to support the program. But I'm really I'm really proud that Long Beach supported the program in a big way. This council took up the issue and supported the became program in a very big way. And in talking to the Obama Foundation, which now serves as the nonprofit arm, that does a lot of grants and a lot of work with My Brother's Keeper, the Obama Foundation leadership will tell you that they feel that Long Beach is actually one of the best cities in the country that is doing the My Brother's Keeper initiative that the president had laid out for us. And it really was a challenge to us. And so I'm really I think I think we owe a debt of gratitude to to President Obama and and to the first lady, Michelle Obama, for for this work. And we're also grateful that before they left office. This program continues in a in a very large foundation that the president set up, that which is supporting you guys. And so so as you're out there and you're doing all this amazing work, make sure you're always thankful to to the president and first lady for for for doing that for for this city and for this country. And so with that, I want to congratulate you. Amateur this over to Vice Mayor Richardson, who has a motion. So I just wanted to be brief and and just say congratulations to all of you. When we talked about doing this work three years ago, you know what it was? It was one of the first things this council had taken on. We were a new council. Many of us had just joined the city council. But the president did issue a challenge. And, you know, I was there at the Congressional Black Caucus the week before he announced it when he said, hey, a big announce challenge is coming next week. Our mayor responded, we responded at city council. But really, the community responded and they stepped up. Community members held us accountable and said, this is an important issue. It's not a fringe issue as central to the to the success of our city. And when we look at so many youth, men and women from all across our city, all ethnic backgrounds, and we know the barriers that you face, we've seen the data to see you here and say where you've graduated from. It's a know that the best the best staff in our city leadership, Long Beach and all these folks have really come together to help support you and that you can stand here and be a testament that this is the kind of work the city of Long Beach should be doing. I say thank you to you. Okay. So there's there's you know, it's it's important that I'm glad that the Health Department brought you all here in the van. I see you, brother. I see what you guys are doing. You guys are doing really incredible work. I also want to thank leadership, Long Beach. Leadership Long Beach, you know, really stepped up with this program and craft and I don't think that ever done this before. They took the leadership lobby's model or the retreat and applied it to My Brother's Keeper and gave you a really quality program that's been really honed for the last 30 years. And so I want to say thank you and to the community that really fought and defended My Brother's Keeper to get us to this point. I want to say thank you to all of you. So this is this is just great work. And I can't say enough how much how proud I a m of the city staff and the partners that made this happen. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Pearce. So I got a little teary eyed while you kids were were you young youth were speaking. When I think about the difference of Long Beach today versus ten years ago. It is in the leadership of residents and our mayor and this council. I don't know if ten years ago we would have accepted that challenge with such vigor, with such commitment, with resources and staff behind it. And so I'm really proud to have you guys here in front of us. I want to I know that you are not only leading by example in your cohorts, but that you're having those conversations and that leadership is going to be with you for the rest of your life, and that it's going to come into your neighborhoods and with your families, where you're able to talk about some of these challenging conversations that sometimes are really hard to talk about. And so I want to applaud you all for stepping up. I want to applaud staff for taking that on. And I want to put a challenge to leadership, Long Beach and our health department. I know that we have some women in this group today, but also I know that we have a My Sister's Keeper. And it's one of the things that I talked about early when I got elected, and it's not something that I've fully followed through on. And so I want to challenge myself on that and challenge the city to make sure that we are doing this to the best of our ability. And so just congratulations and congratulations to the mayor and the vice mayor. I know. That their leadership early on really made. This happen. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Price. Thank you. I want to congratulate all of you in participating in the program and taking on a leadership role. And I can tell you that your results of your interviews with the youth would represent the views of the youth and every single part of this city. And I think that's it's really great. I'm sure you all have that experience because you go to different schools and you'll you'll appreciate that every child in this city wants clean and safe playgrounds, and every child in this city wants sidewalks and areas that are clean and safe. And so I'm glad that you guys are experiencing that firsthand and that you're taking on the challenge of being leaders in your community. I think it's a really tremendous thing that you're doing, and I commend you for participating in the program and for speaking to us tonight. You all did a really great job. I'm not sure if you've ever spoken at a council meeting before, but you all did a really great job, so congratulations. Thank you. Count summary Ranga. I do want to add my voice to it and congratulations you get to congratulations on first of all, you graduate from high school which is one that's that's the goal and you also participate in this program and graduated from that. So I know that there was a lot of sacrifices that you had to make personally, not only in terms of social activities t hat you might want to get involved in or maybe some sports because you were involved in this program, but also the sacrifices you had to do in order to finish your homework in high school. So I want to thank you and commend you for that. And I see Andrew right there and a friend. He worked with me this past semester as an intern in my office and the preparation that he came with to my office was just phenomenal. So I want to that's a reflection of the program that the mentors that you had there, that preparation that he had and the preparation he had to come up here and step up into the microphone and speak to us. Was it all of you? In fact, all of you is is phenomenal and really is it speaks volumes about the program and the level of mentoring and education that you provide them and exposure to leadership. And I'm looking forward to your next level of participation at the universities when you continue your studies up there and continue to strive to be the best you possibly can, because I know that we're going to be looking we're going to be seeing you again in the future as future leaders in Long Beach. So thank you for doing that. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes. I just want to say, I'm so glad that you each of you came. Each of you were really brave for coming up. I don't know that I would ever at at your age, have come up and spoken to a city council, you know, city council meeting. But collectively, you're so fierce, your age group, your generation is the most socially conscious and aware. There's so many issues right now that you that many of your your friends just even in the nation are taking on. And you know what those issues are. And it's so great that you're a part of the change now. And collectively, like I said, things are going to get so much better. But we have to have your voice at the table every step of the way. So congratulations. Thank you so much for your work and being here in Long Beach. Thank you, Councilman. And yes, I want to thank all you young men for stepping up. You talk about My Brother's Keeper, but I like to give a lot of credit also to the mentors and the mothers and fathers of young, wonderful individuals. So keep up the good work, you guys. Thank you, Councilmember Shabana. Thank you. And congratulations to all the speakers tonight. You did a great job. We have a fairly new high school in the fourth council district. It's called Browning. It's at the corner of Obispo and Hill. And we sure would like to see the program there. So contact my office if I can help with that at all. Great. Well, thank you all. We have a motion and a second on the floor. Appreciate that. Seeing any a no public comment for this item. Gordon, cast your votes. Motion carries. Great. Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you all to the youth. We appreciate you. Next up is item 23. A report from Health and Human Services recommendation to receive and file a presentation from the National League of Cities regarding the city's four Ra cial Equity and Racial Healing Technical Assistance Initiative citywide. Okay, great. That is a good emotion and a second in the motion. And Mr. West, Mr. Mayor, council members, we've recently been approached for the National League. Of Cities to participate. In a. Program with them. So the National Two Cities is out here today. They're going to be. With us for the next few days. They met with many of the council members today. There I'll be doing a presentation on this with our department heads tomorrow and the rest of our staff and do some other work on Thursday. So I'm going to turn this over to our Health and Human Services. Director Kelly Collopy to walk us through this. Good evening, honorable mayor and city council members. The City of Long Beach is just one of six cities across the nation to participate in the National League of Cities Inaugural Race, Equity and Healing Technical Assistance Initiative. We're excited to have them join us this evening's council, and they'll be meeting with a number of different folks throughout the city over the next three days, including the department heads tomorrow, and then they'll be at full day training on Thursday. So this initiative really adds to the momentum that we've generated by the Office of Equity through its equity trainings, policy analysis and development, the community engagement trainings for the city staff, and its participation in the Governing Alliance for Race and Equity. So with that, I'd like to invite Leon Andrews to the podium, and he'll be providing a brief overview of their framework and initiative for advancing racial equity and healing in partnership with our city leaders. Thanks for. The great. Thank you. Good evening. Thanks, Mayor and the council. So great to be here in Long Beach. My name is Leon Andrews. I'm with the National League of Cities in Washington, D.C. I'm representing this new center that we created called Real. Real stands for Race, Equity and Leadership. And so our mission is here to to strengthen the leadership capacity of local leaders, to eliminate racial disparities, to heal racial divisions, and to build more equitable communities. We're excited to be here in Long Beach because we are very committed to working with cities that are very much invested in the theory of change that the National League of Cities has built as part of our commitment to creating real. Our theory of change is, as we have invested in creating real, is that as cities, they recognize why the change is needed. They also are committed to understanding the potential for what solutions are needed in the city, but also recognize the urgency which I think is very much captured in the work that we do. And so coming to here in Long Beach, one of the things we think is so important is to look at data. Data for us, it drives the work we do in cities across the country. And so when we talk about the work that the National League of Cities has done to really advance racial equity, we recogniz e it's not just the moral thing to do. It's good governance. You know, it's economically the right thing to do. And so that's why we're excited to be here in Long Beach. And so one of the data points that we highlighted as we came here to Long Beach was just looking at what the economic value would be as a city that is really committed to really advancing racial equity within your city. And so as you see here on the data, the economic value for if there was no racial gaps in income within the Long Beach area, there would be over a $500 billion increase in your economic value by addressing the racial equity implications within your city. And so one of the reasons why we're here is because you as a city have recognized that you've recognized that in your economic equity summit that you launched a year ago, recognizing that as you are addressing issues of racial equity, you recognize the economic value. And so as we're working with you, we are working with you to really recognize the importance of really being able to really engage in that work and understand the importance of that. And so many of us that engage in this work recognize one of the things that's so important as we do this work with cities across this country is understanding the difference between equity and equality. So as we work with city leaders across the country. There is this kind of interchangeable language. And as one of the things that we do this work is recognizing just the difference. This diagram is one of probably many versions of understanding the difference between equity and equality is looking at three people trying to watch a baseball game behind the fence. And all of them have very different needs. Right. And so as we look at issues between equity and equality, equality is giving people the same thing. And as we understand what the goals are here within the city of Long Beach, as you're thinking about your economic equity issues, how are you thinking about what your clear goals are as you are not trying to give everyone the same thing but to the right looking at what do people need right? As you're defining what those goals are, recognizing where people are setting very clear goals. And our job as we're here working with the city, is both lifting up the great work that you're doing here within the city, but also figure out how we can support you. So we're excited to be here over the next three days, both to learn and share across the country about the work that you're doing, but also to figure out how we can support you and the city as you're committed to really driving this work forward. And so we have been very clear in launching rail that when we launched it, we were very intentional about putting the comma between race and equity. It's called race, comma, equity and leadership. But we also recognize the reason why we're leading with race is because we've seen the data across this country. Also here in Long Beach, when we look at infant mortality to life expectan cy rates. This is still the strongest predictor of one's success in this country. So I'll say that again, race is still the strongest predictor of one's success in this country, whether we look at infant mortality, to education, to criminal justice, to jobs, to housing. Looking at data across this country, including the data we've looked at here in Long Beach, and so how do we be very much intentional about calling that out in doing this work and how we work in collaboration with all the great work that you're doing here in this city? And so our job in really advancing racial equity is to close the gaps where racial equity is no longer predicting one success in this country while improving outcomes for everyone. And so we're excited about how we take that very targeted approach. It's referred to as targeted universalism being targeted in our process, but universal in our goals and recognizing that to really take this work on how do we work with you in all the great work that you're doing to really be committed to really taking on that kind of investment and really looking at the policies, the practices and procedures that really are committed to really being targeted in your work. And so I knew my time was really limited, so I wanted to bring a voice into the room that can say in three and a half minutes that would probably take me 30 minutes to say. And so this was the launch of our when we launched real three and a half years ago, our CEO Clarence Anthony, really and our board charged us to really figure out what does this work look like? And so I wanted to bring the voice of Tim Wise in who serves on else's real board to really help frame that work, to really help kind of bring to light the things that I'm trying to really articulate here in the room. So I hope the video works. Let's see. I the tech folks in the back. Welcome to the video. If I had magical hands, I would try to do something with my magical hands. It's going to be all right for three days. Yeah. Or left. Thanks. Well, I know that they're probably working on it. Okay. Why don't we. Why don't we keep going and. Yeah, we're working on the video, but it's. Or is there anything else that you'd like to say? Yes. No, thank thanks, Mayor. And so what Tim Wise really brought to light was really acknowledging the charge of being very explicit about calling out critical issues that really drive why it's important for us to do the work we're doing here in partnership with the city of Long Beach, really acknowledging the importance of looking at racial inequity , institutional and structural racism, understanding the impacts of implicit and explicit bias. And so we're excited over the next few days that we have an opportunity to work in partnership with the council, with your leadership here, and also the agencies that are really invested in this work, that really are committed to really building on that work. And so our commitment over that work is really acknowledging that what we do is b oth training, it's both technical assistance, it's creating opportunity, you as city leaders to be connected with others that are engaged in this space across the country. And so we are very much passionate about being able to connect you as peers, but also recognizing that there are a lot of intersectionality of this work. And so we are one of the things we'll be able to do while we're here is to be able to offer a training on Thursday. I think we have over 80 or so that are registered for racial equity training. That will be an opportunity to really introduce a lot of the concepts around racial equity. How do we normalize a conversation on this that we hope will be a foundation to all of the great work that you're doing here in the city? But we offer a range of ways of really supporting cities across the country, but we also recognize it as cities that there are a lot of different ways for you to get started. And what we have appreciated in selecting Long Beach is that there are a lot of great examples of leadership from your mayor to your council . They're really setting the example, setting the tone, creating spaces to observe and listen to your community as you're having that dialog. But we're also looking to explore ways of of going further of what you could do in your city, whether it's making clear public declarations. The city the commitment to creating the Office of Equity was an example of your commitment to recognizing the need to have a dedicated infrastructure to action. So we really appreciated seeing that that was the investment that the city was making and having it housed within the the Department of Health Health Department, as well as recognizing the need it needing to exist within your your executive office and having your deputy city manager being accountable for really advancing that work. So we are engaging with you, leveraging what we have seen across the city, across the country and engaging this work and are hoping to be able to bring what we can to support you in that work as well as what we hope. And so as you see here, we've highlighted a number of examples of where racial equity is, strong examples of models that we want to lift up. And so part of what we hope to take away as we're here is to really lift up Long Beach as a model, given that it's here in California, we have not lift up a California city yet. And so we're hoping Long Beach is the first California city that we can really lift up as an example of the work that you're doing to really advance racial equity. And so we're creating these profiles. As you can see here, these are four of an example of a number of profiles that we're lifting up, and we're hoping that Long Beach is another kind of profile we can lift up nationally for people to see the leadership of the work that's happening here in the city. And so we excited as we are launching this work. We've been generously supported by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to launch a national learning community of cities that are committed to truth, racial healing and transformation. There have been now there's a list of 15, I think there are almost 20 now cities that have been a part of this network. And as you can see with listed here, Long Beach is one of six, as you've heard, that were competitively competitively selected to be a part of this National Technical Assistance Initiative and literally a diverse range of cities. We're in strongly conservative cities as well as progressive cities as well in the Midwest and across the country. And so what we're excited about is how can we support the great work that's happening here in the city as you're really committed to really advancing this work going forward. So really appreciate your commitment to this and recognizing that your commitment also started with your investment in the boys. Women of Color worked in My Brother's Keepers work, which was also another reason why the National League of Cities really saw this as a great opportunity to partner with the city. But we also recognize the intersectionality of not just boys and men of color, but a. A number of other special populations, whether we're talking about our immigrant communities, our LGBTQ, our religiously persecuted, particularly our Muslim communities, as well as women and girls. And so the city here has recognized the intentionality of all of these intersections. So we're excited both to celebrate your work, but also to figure out how we can support you as you're on this journey together. So sorry the video did not work because Tim would have said a whole lot more than I could have in the time they had together. But I'm also grateful that my a number of my team members are here. Both Bernadette O'Neill Naka and Alisa Wasserman, who is here in the crowd. Just wanted to give them a shout out as well. And we look forward to spending time with you over the next few days. So thank you so much. Great. Will, thank you very much for that presentation. And and thank you to the National League of Cities for for the work by Sammy Richardson. Thank you. And we had an opportunity just to meet today and I just wanted to chime in and say a couple of things. First, thank you for selecting long term. And as you have, there's written a lot. That wasn't. Me. It's okay. We're going to we're just going to keep going with the items which are good. But I wanted to say thank you for selecting Long Beach. I know that there's an incredibly diverse set of cities that you have there, and I know how difficult it has been to really have this conversation in cities that are far less diverse than Long Beach. Right. Cities in the Deep South with with deep, deep histories of segregation. And there was a lot of tremendous healing to do in the sea to see what's been what's what's been taking place in some of those cities and see the work that's taking place in cities like Seattle and Oakland. And to know that Long Beach is in league with cities that are really having a smart, data driven conversation about really acknowledging the community that we are today and the deficits that exist and how we need to be. And you said this word a number of times, intentional about calling out those deficits and really creating plans to address it. Sometimes this stuff is uncomfortable. We're a very diverse city, diverse in opinions on diversity, on political points of view. And we have to respect that. And we have to go about it in a way that everyone feels comfortable and sees the benefits. The fact that your first slide really highlighted economic disparities and how it's a better proposition for a city from an economic standpoint to really embrace diversity and to engage on race. I think that's the right move, and I think that really brings people together when you can really see that it's in the city's best interest to maintain your status as a world class city, if we think about it from a economic standpoint. So thank you so much for your presentation and I really look forward to the results of this work. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes. I'd like to thank you as well. Appreciate you being here and presenting in front of the council. I think many of us on the council believe very firmly in racial equity, in making sure that we're always looking through that lens when we're making policies, whether it's park programs, whether it is any policies that we're putting in front of of the public, it's very imperative. And we're a very diverse city, as you mentioned, LGBTQ individuals, people with various backgrounds. We've passed a language access policy as well. And I'm just so glad to see that you're bringing this forward and that we can actually integrate our policy work together. Thank you very much for making the trip. Thank you, Councilman Andrew. Yes, thank you. Also, I want to thank the national lead for cities, for, you know, bringing your expertise to our city. You know, we're living in times where racial equality is being allowed to be ignored and this is unacceptable. So I hope that as the city and we learn from your training and thank you for bringing this presentation to us. And I heard your name was Last Names and. I'm going to make the same comment. No wonder you did such a fine job. There you go. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you, Captain Pierce. Yes, I could talk on equity forever, but I will try to keep it brief. I want to thank you and Leah cities for all the work that you're doing. I personally was a part of the California Department's work with so many other community members that had this discussion around bringing this conversation, specifically governing for racial equity to Long Beach. And we really struggle with the conversation. Do we talk about equity by itself or do we talk about racial equity? And I think even in a city as progressive as Long Beach, to see us struggle with that kind of conversation just highlights the need for it. And I think you really us having to echo that systematic rac ism is real and it's not calling out a person as racist, but it's calling out the systems and that sometimes it makes the conversation difficult and understanding that whenever we look at the numbers, that race is that number one decider. And so I really want to thank you for coming out here, and I look forward to working with you guys in the future. And I just appreciate all the all the work. Thank you. Thank you. And finally comes from Ranga. Thank you, Mary. And I want to thank. We're choosing Long Beach to do the study, and we're going to be here for the next couple of days. And I'm looking forward to showing off a wonderful facility that we had, that we work with the homeless population here in Long Beach, the villages of Cabrillo. So I'm really looking forward to being able to show that to you, that it's a great program. It's in my district, in the seventh District, and hopefully we could take some back, some ideas as well with to share with you other cities as well as what we're doing here in Long Beach to address that issue as well . So welcome and and looking forward to more discussions. Thank you. Thank you very much. Is there any public comment on this item saying now we're going to go out and go to a vote? Members, please cast your votes. Just do this one public comment and then we need to go to a vote. We've got to do four items before 8 p.m.. The paper, one item. How's it going? My name is tonight Convey. I'm a resident of sixth district. How you doing, Councilman? Uh, I think is a great program. If I can get out of work in time, I will be there on Thursday. One idea this crossed my mind. An opportunity to push your agenda to help our city. Maybe we can get a citywide commemoration for Juneteenth. Today's Juneteenth. I didn't see any moment of silence or any energy put towards the the Juneteenth celebration. Juneteenth is for those that don't know, Juneteenth is a it's a holiday state holiday celebrated by 45 states in this country. And it is the official end of slavery in this country. General Granger, he led his army into Texas, which had over 500,000, sees me and over 500,000 slaves who were unaware that slavery was ended in the rest of the country. And unfortunately, they want to let it be known because there was a harvest coming up. So, you know, as is the systems that benefit to take advantage of free labor. But I think that would be a good example. Maybe you can bring that up on Thursday. Another one also relates to the see, maybe we can we can get some help on a change in the name of some of the streets in this the city. You know, I live on a street called BURNETT Street, and it's named after Peter BURNETT, who's the early governor here in California. He was also a white supremacist, and he led early settlers here in California to add segregation laws prohibiting people who look like me to settling into a free state. He also then later moved up to the Pacific Northwest and did the same. Now we did a great thing. We changed t he name of the school in my neighborhood, but it would be great to maybe change the name. The Street is a couple of other white supremacists. We got streets named after here, but just a suggestion. Thank you. Thank you very much. And members, please cast your votes. Motion carries. Great and think you're going to to the National League of Cities and for the partnership there we're doing item 22. Please read item 22. Well, I wanted to have our citizen group come up first, if that's okay. Sure. I think that's first on the item. And just to be clear, there's there's no relationship between the two reports. We usually get a report from fire leading into 4th of July on their outreach efforts. And I hope to do that. But but as if we can take up the item 26/1 and I can give a little bit of an intro. So so we have before our residents begin talking, I wanted to just highlight a few things. So probably about eight months ago or so, one of the third District residents can Weiss, who's here, reached out to me. Ken is an active member of the third District and Long Beach resident and often brings forth suggestions on issues that he's observed in the community. And he and many other neighbors in the city of Long Beach, and especially on the coastal areas, have expressed a lot of concern about the use of illegal fireworks every year. So Ken suggested that we put together kind of a citizen. Group that studies the. Issue, that calls other cities to find out what their rules are, that looks at outreach efforts, that looks at opportunities for improvement for city wide practices. This group of individuals spent countless hours. I can't even begin to tell you how hard they worked on this completely volunteer task, and their only goal was to come up with some recommendations that the city can incorporate. And I'm happy to report they're going to go through their recommendations, but that our the council office has actually started to implement some of the recommendations, including a PSA. I know the city already does. PSA is what we hired a recent graduate from Cal State Long Beach's film school to help us create a PSA that was, you know, hip with the with the teens so the teen age group. And so they've already, you know, been working on that. They've shot the PSA and they're working on First Cut. So we're in the process of that. But I wanted to just recognize this group of residents, let them do a presentation on what they've done and tell you their names. So we have Ken Weiss, who's here with us tonight, Eric Whitten, who's going to be doing the presentation for us. Sandra Rangel, Leslie Patterson, David Val Tierra, Jeff Dawson, Peter Hodgkinson and Jason Bollman. So these are our residents who were served on this committee, and I want to thank you on behalf of the City Council for your excellent work and for the folks in the back. I don't think this is the presentation that we're going to queue up. Did it did you. Guys send it? Yes. Okay. So hold on 1/2. Let's se

e. It's got some fireworks on the front cover, the white background. Jack. Did they get it? I look. There we go. Okay, so, Eric, take it away. All right. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and council for having us here. This has been a really wonderful process for all of us to learn to come together and learn as total strangers to take on an issue and and try and and see where it takes us. What I have here tonight at five, the next slide is to describe the process that we went through. We had two separate parts of this. One was the city departments that are involved and or impacted by fireworks. And what do the other cities do? And you can see here, we had an extensive list of departments and cities that we spoke to and met with in person over about a four month period. We had 21 sessions and more than 344 committee hours in a four month period to take a look at what people are doing with regard to fireworks. And the next slide, this is kind of the CliffsNotes version of what we found. And on the left hand side, I'd like to call your attention to the emergency call center this last 4th of July. These numbers are for last 4th of July. There's were 3200 calls received by the emergency call center in a 24 hour period. And this was about a 60% increase over a normal operational period. So the workload for the call centers is really, really significant. On July 4th, there were 1365 calls that were directed for a response. And of that, 1092 were fireworks related. And in the period between a 45 minute period, between 830 and 915, there were 715 calls from residents to the call center. And of these calls, there were 40 felony and misdemeanor arrests and 40, 46 citations. And to compare that, we looked at July 3rd also, and I only want to summarize that that call volume on July 3rd was 1000 calls. We also discovered that there's a lot of calls that we're holding. And so that becomes a significant impact to the enforcement of the four fireworks rules that the police have to deal with in the collective agency. We listed all of the things that we found here that have to be dealt with or were dealt with actually on July 4th. And there's a lot of medical responses. Both rescues assist at the beach, the arson department. So department. But that unit, they they made 11 block party visits and issued five citations and confiscated £150 of illegal fireworks. The actionable results just in review of that and I wanted to mention, because this was very significant, that the police department seized £7,000 of illegal fireworks prior to July 4th. I can only imagine what would have happened if they hadn't had done that. But there were a total of 80, 86 citations, 46 citations and 40 felony arrests, which I think was pretty significant. But by comparison to the number of calls for service, I think there was quite a few residents that were not happy about the response . On the next slide is the police department's logs for that night. So you can see that they're quite busy. A nd in fact, we talked to Commander Herzog, and in the police department, it's essentially all hands on deck that there are no days off, there are no special circumstances. Everybody has to work because of the high call volume. And we think that probably is a big impact on morale for the police department. Have to do this because we're all enjoying July 4th except for the police department. I believe this held true for the fire department, too, and the Marine patrol. So essentially what you have is all the public safety personnel are on duty on July 4th. That also relates or results in somewhere. And we didn't do an audit and we didn't look at people's budgets and we didn't really calculate. But what we did was take a look at some some averages. And it looks like maybe the cost for overtime on July 4th may be as high as $600,000. So doing something about fireworks has a fiscal impact as well as a morale impact and has an impact for the community at large. In the next slide, we took a look at the Long Beach animal shelter and it's hard to read these numbers and it didn't turn out quite straight. But what happened was that the animal shelter collects a lot of stray dogs and cats that are loose on July 4th and only in 2017, only 39% of them were returned . So it turned out that animal control is all hands on deck also, and they're overloaded with animals on July 4th. So our recommendations are kind of we looked at the whole group of what does a city do and what do they have possible right now? And in the winter, when you look at what the police and the fire department have to do, all of the enforcement right now is criminal enforcement, which requires the policemen or the firemen to actually witness the lighting of a fireworks. And when you recognize the calls you're holding for service, the police don't get the call or the fire, too. Don't get the call until after the fireworks are even lit. So the ability of the of the police and the fire to see the lighting and the fireworks is in our estimate was pretty, pretty impossible. So we need to come up with another strategy to get the message out to to the public. And so what we believed was for the Long Beach Fire Department, they were significantly involved in pieces and doing an excellent job. And what we wanted to do is support that. Let everyone know that that is happening. But what we thought is a recommendation is that the social science research and social websites and social videos and contacts and things like that is evolving very, very quickly. And the fire department needs to take a look at that. We found that the impact of fireworks tends to be more on the younger side than on the older side, like old guys like me. The you know, I'm not going to be a problem for fireworks, but some some are. The next step is administrative code enforcement. We discovered that there's a mechanism in the city to have administrative code enforcement for fireworks penalties. Or there's it's in the code, but ther e's no mechanism to actually carry it out. The only mechanism to carry out enforcement is through misdemeanor and felony contact. And I think we put our police officers, officers and our arson unit in a very difficult position to be successful when they have to witness the lighting of the fireworks. And we find that that doesn't really happen. So we would like to recommend that. The city. Take a look at code enforcement. And I'm not speaking of the code enforcement necessarily, like on housing codes and water heaters and things like that. I'm talking about more of an administrative process of the fireworks code. The Long Beach Police Department in the short term could also take a look at that and provide input on that. But I do the committee believe that we they're in an ineffective position to actually witness this. So there's got to be another another focused on a mechanism that is not as stringent as a criminal criteria that requires witnesses, that doesn't rely on other forms of evidence, like a neighbor report I saw it or a video even or photographs of a party going on were lots of fireworks. The other thing that we had recommended to Miss Price was data collection is kind of a. Not really happening. We have a lot of data on what responses are and who does what, but what neighborhoods are impacted the most. And so we've recommended to go Long Beach be extended so that people could maybe report the fireworks. They know that there's not going to be anything, no police response as a result of that. But it could take a load off of the call center and it would be a mechanism to collect data so that the next year the plans can be fine tuned based on data as opposed to let's just put everybody out there and let them go where they're called, which sort of I am critical of that because they do go where they're cold, but maybe they don't have to go to every call that that was the community's point. And then in the long term, I'll go through there. They're essentially extensions of these short term recommendations. And then you can see up there some of the administrative enforcement concept was that the administrative citations can be citations and warnings that we felt more could be issued by the city attorney so that if the call center takes a call, we would ask them to get the address so they could then compile an address and maybe a response is not required, but they could forward that address to the city attorney, who then could send what we called a courtesy letter to say, Hey, we just want to remind you that fireworks are illegal and there's no criminal penalty. We're not putting Dad in jail because he was trying to have fun with his kids. But we're getting the message out. So when you take a look at this list, there's there's citations that go through the city attorney's office. And maybe I'm speaking incorrectly about the city attorney. Maybe it's a city prosecutor. We didn't try to determine who would do that. But there also could be differen t evidence requirements so that maybe if if the violation is severe enough and someone has submitted a video of people lighting fireworks, say, in one of our parks, then that would rise to a different level for the city attorney to maybe pursue a citation or some other action. But it would keep the police and keep the fire department focused on things that may be more important on July 4th that they can't get to because they're dealing as best they can with a fireworks situation. That's really a no win for them. And so I would like to make those short recommended more, but I thought this kind of summed up what we found and gave you a good feeling for what we did do. I want to thank you on behalf of the Third District for spending as much time as you did. It's unbelievable to me that you guys would have volunteered 344 hours to researching something you care about. And I appreciate the presentation. I thought you did a nice job highlighting the great work of our fire and police departments and understanding the challenges that they face. There are some recommendations there that are certainly recommendations that we're going to follow up. And the first is the PSA that we hope to get into the schools, which I think is important. But also the administrative citation option is something that my staff is researching now to bring back as a potential agenda item in the future. So I want to thank you and Ken for your service and for sharing with us your recommendations. And it's unusual to gather a group of residents together to research a subject like this, but this is something that you're very passionate about, and you definitely rooted your energy to a very productive place. So thank you. Thank you. Thank you. And I just want to I just want to thank you guys also. I think that that's a lot of time for community members to go in and just do the level of research that you did on a topic. It's a very important topic across the city. And so I just want to thank you guys and the whole committee as well. Well, thank you. I wanted to. Thank the councilman's office, she and her office, because they. Really helped us a lot. And one of the things how we wanted. The message we wanted. To send was that the committee is while we serve at the pleasure of the councilwoman, we're planning on sitting down in July. After the fireworks and look and see what worked and what didn't. Work. We have other. Recommendations that are more long range that we need to work on, but we think. There's a lot of good things that can happen to kind. Of get a handle on the fireworks issue here in Homage. Well, thank you. And this will be, I think, all part of the public comment as any other public comment on this topic. Seeing none. Councilman Mongo. So thank you for your suggestions. I think the go Long Beach up add on is really important. We're already having issues with fireworks in January and so we've had even more recently and I think with the administrative process, the go long r ecap is helpful because when our Assistant Chief Brant and I were in an area last year watching fireworks go off, it's easy for everyone to videotape the fireworks. But soon as the cars come, the fire department or the police department, everyone runs and scatters versus with the go Long Beach up, you could actually take a picture of the person lighting the firework and save that into the app in the same way that you take a picture of the broken sidewalk. So great idea. I whispered to Councilwoman Price that if they are doing fireworks, perhaps their community service could be required on 4th of July the next year. So they couldn't possibly be lighting fireworks again. But I really appreciate the work that you've done, and I may have a few residents who are interested in talking with you more specifically because they have their own kind of dialog about the same issues that we've been having over on the fifth. So thank you for your work very well. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce. I want to echo I knew that Councilmember Mongo was going to talk about the goby job. I think that's a great idea. If we could figure out a way to work with the city attorney's office or somebody like that to send some letters, sometimes all people need to know somebody is watching. And so I know in my district also a beach neighborhood, we have a big issue as well. And so let me know how my office can get involved with you guys and any of our neighborhood leaders as well and keep up the great work. Thank you. Thank you. This would be Councilwoman Royce. I got to I received an email yesterday today. Asking for advice on the. PSA and we were talking about tonight. It might be a really good idea to put a little tag on the bottom. On it for. The Go on beach. App so that when neck goes out, they know how to. Go to the next step. Great. Thank you. Thank you very much. And to close Councilman Anders. Yes, thank you, Mayor. You know, I cannot thank the council Councilwoman Price well enough to bring in this item forward. You know, bringing this fireworks, you know, beginning at the fireworks are illegal in parts of the state. But I know that it is tough to control them. But we really do need to try, you know, as a city to put some sort of prevention, education and enforcement. On this issue. My residents, especially the ones in the regular area, deserve some sort of peace of mind. They heard illegal fireworks and those being set off in the Wilmington area. I know my office requested a meeting minutes from the fireworks advisory committee from June 5th. And still has not received the copies. Thank you to the Third District Committee and the fire department for working together, and I hope we can have a better 4th of July than the past. Thank you very much. Thank you. Please cast your votes. Councilwoman Mongo. Vice Mayor. Richardson. She's. Yes. Motion carries you item 46, which is also filed which related. Communication from Councilmember Pearce, Councilwoman Gonzalez

, Councilman Price, Councilmember Super Non recommendation to request city manager to work with Department of Health and Human Services and Long Beach Police Department and report back to council in the next 30 days. Long Beach's Current Suicide Prevention Methods and establish a suicide prevention plan. Councilmember Pearce. Thank you. And I want to thank my colleagues for signing on to this item last minute. I know that we have a long council agenda tonight, but we wanted to make sure that we started putting the wheels in motion for this item. And it has been something that I've wanted to put on the agenda since I got into office. And with everything that's happened recently and awareness around it, it seems like we've kind of missed some opportunities. So I wanted to agenda is this tonight, so I'm just going to read the item and have a little bit of public comment. Since the early 2000, we have seen a rise in suicide cases. In a recent report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, they found that from 1999 to 2016, suicide rates spurred spread to the top across the nation. In 2016, the highest suicide rate was among whites at 15% and Native Americans at 13% in 2018. On average, one person dies by suicide every 2 hours, making the at the 11th leading cause of death in California, and second leading cause of death for ages 25 to 34. In Long Beach, we have an average of 3 to 4 suicides a month. Action is desperately needed. Aside from mental illness, there are several risks that factors may contribute to the thoughts of suicide, attempted suicide and actual suicide. They include previous suicide attempts, substance abuse, incarceration, family history of suicide, poor job security, low levels of job satisfaction, history of being abused or witnessing continuous abuse. Being diagnosed with a serious medical condition such as cancer, HIV being socially isolated or a victim of bullying. Currently, the states such as Utah, Alaska, Colorado, among others, have taken steps in creating suicide prevention task force to do community outreach and provide training services with the guidance of methods such as applied suicide intervention skills, also known as Assist. Safe Talk Assist is a two day training that covers understanding of suicides, provide skills to recognize suicide risk and intervenes to prevent it. Safe Talk Trains individuals to learn how to respond to someone when expressing suicidal thoughts. Identify a person of risk of suicide and how to connect them to resources. Establishing a suicide prevention plan will educate the community on suicide risk factors, protective factors, recovery and healing process. Creating a community task force will be able to work with you with strategies such as education, outreach and support for the community. The goal is to reduce deaths by suicide, increasing awareness and understanding, and to connect individuals with resources that can provide methods of healing. And I want to applaud the city

. I know that we are taking on trauma informed work. We've got a lot of resources in the city already and I think working across the county with other organizations and leaders and I know we have some here tonight really will help us raise awareness. And when we look at these factors as a whole, the city is doing a really great job. But if we don't have that lens of preventing suicide, then it might not work. And for me and I know that I tend to share my personal story back here a lot and I could not do it on this issue. When I was six, I found my mother OD'd in the bathroom. When I was ten, she slit her wrist and in 2009 she was finally successful. And so I know the impacts of suicide. My district is a district that includes downtown in our waterfronts. The majority of public suicides happen in my district. I'm reminded often of these impacts. And so this item for me is important, not just as an item to say as a city that we're moving forward on suicide prevention. It is something that I'm going to put my heart into for the rest of my term to make sure I'm working with the health department, with the county, and with any resources that we can. And so I know our director of the health department, we haven't really talked in detail about this. And so I'm asking for a report back in 30 days just on kind of where we're at and where we think we can go and what resources we might need to implement a plan like this. I don't I'm going to put you on the spot tonight, but we can work together over the next 30 days. And I know we have at least somebody here in the audience that wants to speak. And so I urge my colleagues to wholeheartedly support this item. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes, thank you, Councilmember Pearce, for bringing it forward and sharing your story. I know oftentimes we're led by policy, through policy making, by our personal stories and backgrounds. And it's it's very profound that we're able to do this, of course, for a colleague that had dealt with that in her family, but also for a lot of the residents, you know, I really hated seeing some of our watch commander lists. We see all of the every action. Unfortunately, that is violent action happen. We see it come through our email, our city council members. And the last week or so, we had seen I think about two or three public suicides in the second district, and it was just really alarming. It was the same time, of course, we had heard about Tony Bourdain and then about Kate Spade, which is on a national level. But to see it here in your city is a whole different story. So I'm glad that we're actually putting some effort and energy to this to see what we can do to, you know, to to limit this. I know in the LGBTQ community, obviously, we have seven times more likely to commit suicide, especially within the transgender community. So we have a lot of work to do in looking at those specific demographics and then, of course, looking at it comprehensively to really erad icate this this issue and hopefully provide more resources in light. And I think our health department, too, because I know, Kelly, you've been working on this issue as well. So thank you so much. Thank you. Councilmember Muranga. O'Rourke. Thank you, Mayor. Great enunciation by way. I learn first language, brother. There you go. I want to, first of all, thank Councilmember Pearce for bringing this forward. Suicide touches are touches us all in one form or another, whether it's a national icon or a person across the street. I had a couple in my history, in my lifetime where I haven't witnessed it, but close family friends have taken that route. And, you know, when I reflect on those relationships, I wonder if I could have done something myself in recognizing some of the behaviors that were present at the time, such as a couple of very, very, very compelling to me is like self-mutilation or self hurt, pulling their hair, burning their fingers, or pinching themselves or cutting themselves with a knife or a blade. Just those types of behaviors that that eventually led to the ultimate sacrifice on their own cells, in their bodies. And and had I known more than what I know today, perhaps I could have made a recommendation, or I could have intervened in one way or another. And I think that this type of education is very important for all of us to note, so that we can do our part to prevent someone from from making that that from taking their own lives. So I'm glad that this is put forward. I totally support it. And I hope that we have a significant impact on it as well. And I hope that when we finally put something in place that we could get a report on it and to to see what the what we can what we can add or tweak or enhance, probably as we were as we move forward as to as well. So thank you. Thank you, Councilman Andrews. You know, just kind of mentioned on this the item that was brought forward in front of us today, because the last, you know, past Friday was Juneteenth celebration at Kings Park and that and help manage the nonprofit organization in my district, you know, which I partner with. And for the main focus, the celebration was bringing out mental health resources for the sixth District community. You know, in light of this recent tragedy, I think that this item is needed. And I would like to thank Councilman Price for bringing it forward. I'm looking forward to having six district residents on the Community Tax Task Force, if that's possible. And thank you again, Spice, for bringing that forward. Thank you, Councilwoman Price. It was my my twin Pierce who brought the item forward. But everyone always confuses us. But I was privileged to be asked to sign on to this item. I think, you know, what's happened in the last few weeks with the public coverage of high profile suicides is really been just. A. Huge exclamation point on this concept of mental health, mental health discussions, mental health awareness, and the fact that you just neve r know where people are at in their lives. You just have no idea what's going on in people's lives and what is causing them sadness and feeling like they're they have no hope. So I'm I'm I'm very supportive of this item. And I thank Councilwoman Pearce for council person council woman hope. I don't know what should go by council Lady Pearce for bringing this item forward. And I think anything we can do as a city to provide support, outreach and education we should be doing. Thank you. Thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson. And thank you, Council Lady Pearce as well. Hey, this is you know, it's a real issue. And, you know, you know, people in their kitchen tables, they're looking at the statistics. It's all over the news. It's it's an epidemic that's growing in our in our country. And and I don't know why. I don't understand the psyche of it, but I think it does need to be acknowledged by our city. So thanks for bringing this up and hopefully we can make a difference in somebody's life. Thank you, Councilman. Mr. Brown, thanks for the. Bringing the item forward and inviting me to sign on. You know, it's been a few hours now since we spoke about community hospital, but I'm just struck by the fact that we could use a lose 28 beds in that psych unit there and how critical that is to. This very issue. So thank you. Thank you. And I also want to thank Councilmember Pearce. I think this is a very important issue and it's one I think that affects everyone. I know that I think everyone is affected or has been affected by suicide or knowing someone that has had mental health challenges. And so I think this is great to look at and I certainly applaud all the cosigners on this item. So with that, I want to go take public comment. She waited. Honorable Mayor and city council. I'm her Linda Chico Phil Deputy for supervisor Janice Hahn. Mental health and and and well-being is very important to Supervisor Hahn. So it was important that she asked me to read a letter of support for Councilmember Pierce's item into record. I would like to thank Councilmember Jeanine Pearce for introducing this agenda item that would establish a suicide prevention plan. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention reports that over the last two decades, suicide rates have increased across the nation. In fact, suicide is now the 11th leading cause of death in California and second leading cause of death for ages 25 to 34. The Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health has established an access center which is designated to facilitate connections to crisis intervention and the Psychiatric Mobile Response Team 24 hours, seven days a week for all L.A. County residents through their Youth Suicide Prevention Project. The County of Los Angeles also provides outreach and support to schools, parents and high risk youth populations. Please count on the County of Los Angeles as a resource. The topic of suicide is a difficult but important conversation communities need to have. I am proud of th e leadership. The city of Long Beach is demonstrating to educate the community on suicide risk factors, as well as strategies for outreach, support and prevention. I look forward to expanding our partnership in addressing this serious issue. Janice Hahn, Chair Pro-Tem, Supervisor, Fourth District, County of Los Angeles, thanks. Thank you. Next speaker, please. My name is and I am resident sixth district. I want to thank the Councilperson Peters for bringing this up. Today I have a question I want to know. The state of the in my neighborhood on the 21st and long is provided as a mental hospital. It was used to be a mental hospital, I believe. I wanted to know the state of the reopening I saw on the news maybe a couple of months ago. I think the mayor might have spoke about it, reopening a couple of hundred beds there. What's the the state of that? It's under construction. And so they're actively working to open that site up. And they believe that that's something that'll be you know, I think there's still probably about six months plus away for Mr. West. If you want to quickly make the big facility on one boulevard there at least six months away. Right. Approximately six months. Okay. All right. Thank you. Thank you. There's a motion in a second and we had public comment. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you. We have two items are related to fire fireworks. So those are item 26 and 46. One is an item by Councilwoman Price. I think the other one is a report on fireworks from the fire department. Councilman, should we hear the report first from the fire department and then the item or how did you want to do that? Well, I wanted to have our citizen group come up first, if that's okay. Sure. I think that's first on the item. And just to be clear, there's there's no relationship between the two reports. We usually get a report from fire leading into 4th of July on their outreach efforts. Great. Thank you very much. We're going to go ahead and do our second and final reading for the recreational marijuana items. I want to move that up and that is item 33. Out of 33 is report from City Manager. Recommendation to declare ordinance amending the Long Beach Menace Code related to adult use cannabis read and adapted as Read City. Thank you. And this is the second reading councilmember. We have a motion and a second. Is there anything else you want to add, Mr. West? No, sir. Okay. Councilman Pierce. Councilman Mongeau? Yes. I'd like to make a friendly to move to declare the ordinance read and adopted as read with the following changes to the text of Chapter 5.92 as presented in staff's recommended action. This would not change the reading. It would still remain a second reading one that section 5.92.1520.8.3. B is amended to add or to the end of the sentence. And to that paragraph C is added to section 5.92.1520.8.3, which I'll read is a Long Beach resident currently receiving unemployment benefits. This is something that we discussed at the last council meeting and at the time it was thought it would force it into a second reading. But upon additional discussion with the city attorney's office, it's it does not do that and it still maintains the value and vision that was originally intended. And so that would make that possible.

Councilmember Pearce, would you accept my friendly. Yes, I have a couple of questions for the city attorney. First one, understanding that this change would simply expand, who would be part of the social equity piece? That is correct. We've talked to Councilmember Mongeau about her proposed amendment and it would expand under the social equity piece, add an additional category of making other folks available to participate in this program. That's correct. And I think that that's great if someone's on unemployment and we're making sure that we have new job opportunities for them. And to clarifying from you that this would be the final reading today. That is also correct. We looked at this and this is a small change in it expands what was already approved by the council the following week and by the motion is specifically identified where and what language we would be changing to this substantially large ordinance. And so, yes, we believe that we can do that this evening. If it's accepted and approved by the body tonight, this would be the final reading and the audience would go into effect 31 days after the mayor signs it. Wonderful with that. I'd like to just say that it's a historic night. I know a lot of residents have waited for this night. I think the staff has done a fantastic job of working with all stakeholders, from residents to industry to council officers, in making sure that this is an ordinance that moves the city forward. And so I urge my colleagues to accept the motion and vote on this today so we can have our final reading. Thank you. And this is the final rating, correct? Correct. Okay. That is correct. We're done. We are. Okay. Thank you. There's any public comment on this. I just wish you would. Do the right thing. You recognize? You have to recognize. And certainly cannot be unaware. The devastation that this will bring on this city. Period. Whatever our crime problems are now. They will near double whatever our homeless problems are. Those are all the intensification of those problems. This doesn't solve a single thing. If people want. They can go somewhere else to get that. They may come back here. But at least you can go to bed at night. And you can look your constituents in that eye and say, we've done that. We did the right thing. Approving. This is clearly not right. All you have to do is look at where the one is in Belmont Shore. In the middle of a. The pathways at school kids, period. There will be an increase in every single neighborhood like that. All it takes is character and backbone. I know some of you don't have that, but I know I think and I would hope that the majority do. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. I am Francis

. My two friends passing it out. I am Francis Henley Dyson Harris. I reside in District one and I've spent a tremendous amount of time putting together the document that you have before you. Mayor Robert Gates City Council members I'm Shirley Charles Pratt's hammers quote I believe that the the positive truth and right ideas through honest debate and rigorous arguments is a noble understanding. I am grateful to have played a small role in the conversation, has helped guide this ordinary nation's destiny as a great guideline to implement while making decisions regarding this ordinance. Because I'm a pediatric nurse, that's the only reason I'm standing before you. Because I'm a pediatric nurse. I'm reluctant to completely support the second reading of this ordinance. Why? Surely this ordinance requires and needs special care? Because there's too much at stake. Therefore, any reasonable and protective recommendations must be considered that is, be allowed, discussed and decided upon, even if a second reading is postponed to a later date. Now, combined, marijuana dispensaries exist in Los Angeles, Nevada. I believe that only existing medicinal marijuana dispensaries should be allowed to apply for adult use, recreational marijuana dispensary license and must coexist meaning same location. I believe in an adult use. Recreational marijuana dispensary needs to be initially operated as a medicinal marijuana dispensary. Now there are 23 pending movement to some dispensaries in Long Beach. After a six month trial period, then it may be a medicinal and or an adult use cannabis recreational dispensary. I feel strongly about a performance period. I believe that any medicinal and or adult use recreational cannabis dispensary which violates its permit must lose and forfeit is slicing to operate in Long Beach. I believe that any person who lives in Long Beach and whose low income and the district qualifies as being eligible as a local hire and a bit distant and or adult use. Recreational Cannabis Dispensary. I believe this ordinance must include mandatory notification to the public regarding hearings to applicants for a CFP conditional use permit, particularly for adult use of recreational cannabis. Surely public opinion is imperative a protocol regarding handling use less than 21 years and age who are illegally using and possessing medicinal and or adult use. Recreational cannabis is naive in smoking, medicinal and or adult use recreational cannabis and the public needs to cease. Yes, this ordinance is a living document which can be amended any time. Please do not permit this belief to prevent you from your profound capability creating and supporting and approving an ordinance that is noteworthy with accuracy and integrity. Thank you. Thank you so much. Okay. You're welcome. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Seven Orson silos second District coming in, talking and speaking in support of this measure. This has been many years in the work, in the works. Rea lly special thanks goes out to the city attorney's office for their patience and really just care in terms of making sure that this ordinance stayed in compliance with appropriate state regulations as they were being adopted. As a quick aside, however, at the current moment there are 86 non-compliant delivery services that are not paying into the measure m taxes. That means that they are not supporting that they are a negative they're a revenue negative source for cannabis within within the city of Long Beach. They are provided untested and on and frankly just on regulated cannabis to patients and adult use patients or adult use consumers across the city. And at this particular moment, members of the BCA as well, and frankly, anybody who any well minded cannabis consumer would really appreciate extra attention being paid to these particular delivery services in the form of perhaps some sort of ordinance emphasizing already existing enforcement measures that are that have been provided. Other than that, we're really looking forward to continued, you know, evolving and good relationship with the city and hiring lots of people locally. Thank you. Have a good day. Thank you. Any additional public comment? Please come forward. Hello. I'm Stefan Freeman. I'm not from Long Beach. But what I can tell you is that we're spending a significant amount of time in Colorado, has been spinning a significant amount of time in Canada, seeing what they're doing in their approach that they're taking right now. And I will tell you that I only came here just to come to this one meeting. You're definitely on the right track. The only way that you can take something that's happening like this with the marijuana business is to take the proactive approach that you're taking. And I'm also looking at potentially putting a business here as well. But the only reason why we make those kind of decisions is because we see the people that are on this council and the work that you're doing to make sure that this is a transparent business where things are being done the right way. So I just wanted to say thank you for letting me hear what's happening in Long Beach. And I'm hoping that as we go through this, that I become a business in the city as well. So thank you. Thank you. That closes public comment. Councilman Mongo. Thank you, Francis. I appreciate your comments. That was something that I worked on very hard last week or at the last council meeting, but it was not accepted by my colleagues. I will let you know that, though, there has been discussion both publicly at this dais that after the ordinance is in effect, there are a couple of ideas about things that could improve the ordinance. But to do those things, they want a opportunity to first demonstrate that through the nine that are available now to open and see how it goes and learn from that experience. And I'll tell you specifically, one that I've worked on with the community and I want to continue working with industry on is there are on both sides the way that the original program went. There were challenges for industry because they were locked into certain locations and therefore some of them have exorbitant rent. And on the neighborhood side, sometimes there were locations that weren't yet available but could be available 69 to 120 days. But if they didn't have their location, they couldn't get into the lottery. And so we're looking at options which would allow both the industry opportunity to move slight amounts without affecting the value of the ordinance and causing additional confusion. So we're in discussions with the city attorney, but those kinds of things, we really appreciate that you are so in tune and feel free to come to any of our community meetings. My district has had dozens of community meetings on this matter that industry has joined us in as well with the neighbors to have these dialogs. So thank you. Thank you. At the conclusion of a comment and the emotion in a second on the floor with those friendly amendments, there are slight changes. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Okay, great. Thank you very much. We're moving on to item 24. Thank you. Next up. Is item 24. Communication on Parks, Recreation and Marine Recommendation. Enter into agreements with as a landscape and park would landscape maintenance for grounds maintenance services and a total amount of 5,185,259 citywide. I think Councilman Mongo, you want to share with us. A short report. Yes. Hello, Tim. What can we do? A short report? Yes, sir. Good evening, honorable mayor, vice mayor. And members of the city. Council. I. I just finished my second month here, and one of the things that I have been doing is going to the different park sites. And I in a recent visit to recreation park, I bumped into Clemente, who is part of the ground maintenance team, and he was using an iPad. I was so impressed with Hurley and Kelly's team will be doing a very brief presentation on the landscape contract, the iPad tool, as a way to monitor our landscape contracts, to keep our park system. Green and clean. The other thing that I noticed that the team is so nimble, very flexible, they keep on anticipating problems. One of the issues that you may have heard about is Roundup with regards to being on the list of problem, Proposition 65, as well as a recent some some news with regards to a court ruling. And because of that and the quick thinking from Kelly Parkins and Hurley Owens, they believe and I concur and I recommend that we're going to be stop using Roundup in the parks and the maintenance contract is, you know, it's not just the parks, it's also the golf courses, the street medians, the landscape around the police, the library facilities. But right now, we're going to stop using Roundup, which is the chemical in question is glyphosate, glyphosate. And until so we can have time to assess. And have. An understanding of the regulations that are being placed on this

have to be on the safe side and stop using it in the parks. Now, let me turn it over to Kelly, who will be presenting the landscape contract before you get. Good evening. So landscape standards define how a landscape area is expected to look and function when the work is completed. Their consistent and have documented performance criteria, their line with the department's strategic objectives, they're defined by short and long term expectations. Give consideration to stakeholder use, horticultural function and esthetics and safety. Our landscape contract is our standard. It was written to achieve a satisfactory result across a broad range of landscape types, which include features as diverse as grass, lakes, trees and natural areas. This allows us to have an expectation that our parklands will be clean, safe and esthetically pleasing institutional landscapes, which are different from garden to residential setting and largely defined by horticultural elements such as plants, trees and lakes. But in distilling the landscape contract into maintainable portions, consideration has to include the institutional elements such as walking paths, picnic tables and playgrounds, which enhance the public's use of these spaces to simply recite the list of maintain areas which include over 3000 acres, 170 parks and 72 acres of medians, 45 acres of lakes, libraries, health centers, police stations really oversimplifies the unique challenges of what it takes to manage a 34 acre wetland park versus a park with 12 athletic fields. The breadth of scope is important, and this contract concisely specifies how these various entities are to be managed. This contract contains all the specifications to adequately manager areas, requires a broad skill set to provide the daily maintenance for a variety of landscapes and the amenities in each. It require sophisticated tracking and training of collected data and staffing to continually assess the data to make field changes. The work of producing a fully revised landscape contract began in the summer of 2016. Nearly a year long process resulted not only in the landscape specification, but the process by which the contract would be bid. In developing the RFP, staff consulted with cities including Riverside, San Francisco, Anaheim, West, Sacramento, Orange and Irvine to name a few. Additionally, the city auditor's part maintenance audit from 2016 clearly identified the need for a performance metric to gauge expectations. Crew defined service levels and the need to develop a worker system to identify deficiencies in mined data for trends and resource planning. The RFP resulted in a contract award based on the findings from a five member panel of staff and an outside consultant, a process which included a preliminary rating candidate interviews, reference checks with other cities, and a final rating. The award used a point system for gauging the candidate's approach experience as well as price to allow us to obtain the best contract. So what's different now? The framework of the current contract provides a landscape period of satisfactory level to the process of evaluating and revising the scope of work. Staff assessed areas where improvement is needed, how they account for a rate performance, as well as a measurement, a guide or a benchmark, if you will, for contract execution. Some of the improvements in the can in the new contract include irrigation. All repairs are to be performed within 12 hours of discovery. The majority of the class will be under central control and directly programed by city irrigation staff. By 2019, athletic fields are being inspected daily fertilize monthly and irrigation repair completed within 4 hours. Early permits permit site preparation 7 p.m. versus 9 a.m. for weekend use specifications for trash. Abandoned items and debris removal are more clearly defined, and the management of this contracts includes weekly park inspections against the prescribed prescription duties prescribed specification using a mobile inspection system. Deficiencies are noted on the work order, which would be utilized for reduction and payment of invoices. The proposed contract is a performance contract in that tasks, inclusion frequencies have to netty clean, safe and esthetically pleasing landscape. The landscape contract consists of the same primary geographical areas but are now managed as six individual entities instead of four areas. One, three four remain the same area. Five consists of Thailand basins which are required require a specified landscape scope and area six. The MTA blue line was formerly merged with an area three so areas one, two and four will be managed by a staggered landscape. There are new in this contract that they have previously managed. That area, areas three, five and six will be managed by park now excuse me, park landscape. This is a new contractor for this section of the city, but they are also they're currently serving the port in the MTA contracts. The fiscal impact. The contract designations with associated costs are listed by area on this table. Total cost is $5.1 million. This is a million more than the previous contract. This award fully finds service levels for all sites, parks, libraries, street landscape, police stations, health centers, lakes, the Rancho Historic Site and natural areas, including El Dorado Nature Center and the DeForest Wetlands. The increases since the last contract includes 17 new park sites such as Gum Via and Drake Chavez Park enhancements such as the reconstruction of Shattuck Park. There are eight new islands, street islands and medians such as Paramount meetings and six street roundabouts. And there are four new MCU sites such as the Michelle Obama Library and the police station on the east side of the city. Contract Management Site Evaluation and communication of the most important component. Of. Managing a scope of this magnitude. The electronic mobile monito ring system was developed in 2016 with the assistance from Technology and Innovation Department, an operation we employed since 2017. So allows for inspection against all of our sites, against the landscape contract. And if you wouldn't mind just breezing through these next two slides, I think we. Would just this is got to more inspection document has the landscape contract specifications listed ongoing deficiencies resulting in a reduction against the monthly invoice. Thank you. Thank you. So I had a couple of. Yeah, I think, I think we're good in the presentation. Let me let me turn it back over to Councilman Mongo. So I just I just want to tell you that I can see the considerable amount of work that has gone on over the last year. I met with the previous Parks and Rec director probably a dozen times on matters related to this contract specifically. I'm so thankful for the mobile monitoring. I want to give a special thank you to technology and innovation for adding the ability for the community to participate in the maintenance needs of the city by using the Go Long Beach app and how that will integrate completely. I think that it's important for the community to know that there are two or three big things going on in this contract. One is a 20% increase in in total resources being dedicated to park maintenance. That hasn't happened in a really long time. I know that Hurley and his team are doing everything that they can as often as they can. But without increasing this contract, we just would not be able to meet the needs of the additional park space. Not to mention the under service to some of the park space as it is today. Additionally, I really appreciate how much there is in the inspection side for us to be able to hold them accountable. We've had complaints in the past where certain contractors were in violation by either driving their trucks across our fields and breaking sprinklers and or matting down what we had just aerated. And those are the types of frustrating things the community sees that are just not acceptable. I appreciate our new Parks and Rec director kind of mentioning the potential for a pilot program and discussing. Our. Alternatives to some of the poisons that we're using in our parks right now. And maybe if we can identify some areas where we set them aside. But I do want to do it with a full picture in mind. I know there's some council agenda items that are potentially coming forward, some that I've been asked to sign on to and others I'm considering. But I think that when we talk about poisons use in our parks, we have to recognize that the ones we're using now aren't the worst available. And so if we're going to ban one, we need to ban anything worse than that as well. Some of the ones that are considered worse are more expensive, and that's why no one uses them. But should we eliminate some of the options? Park maintenance organizations that have won these contracts might be interested in using them. So for the area s that we know or want to do pilot programs, I'm very supportive and I look forward to an opportunity to discuss and whatever different weed abatement options are available in the future. So thank you for your hard work on this, and I look forward to our continued partnership with our new park advocates in maintaining the parks together in cooperation. Thank you, Vice Mayor Andres. Yes. I mean, I also would like to thank the parks for the hard work you guys have been doing with the city manager or the park director. You know, before we move forward with this, you know, can we look at some of the added signage, you know, in our parks listing the contractors and the phone numbers to report day to day issues? My office, we see cars on a regular basis reporting problems that need to be, you know, related to the contractors. And I think signs would help residents report problems as they see needed. So this is something I would really like to see because a lot of people just think that we're supposed to go round and pick up everything. But some of those signage might in the phone numbers there could help you guys even with the work that they're doing out there. I think you could have both individuals. Thank you. Thank you, Catherine. I just wanted to say great job. I know that my constituents have been waiting to end Roundup for a while, and I also appreciate the thorough recap of the contracts. I like the idea of signs with phone numbers, though maybe that would decrease all of our energy. Thank you, Council Minister. Thank you very much and thank you for the report. This is good news. Any time we can talk about our park maintenance and getting new contracts and taking into consideration for all of the new work that we're doing and maintaining maintenance issue. I just wanted to clarify something. I note that this this contract is a little bit more expensive than than before. To the tune of about $1,000,000 more. I want to know, is this the money budgeted in the city manager's budget? The 1.5 million is to take into consideration here. Is that separate from this contract? No, this is totally the. You mean the water? The water. The water is separate. The water is a one time. Okay. This is structurally, structurally budgeted. So great news. This is good. More resources for Parks and Rec to to to make our parks excellent and keep them excellent. No pressure early. Thank you. No pressure taken off. We have a motion and a second. I want to just just to clarify. So are we saying that we're no longer I mean, completely stop using Roundup. Parata. At the parks at this time? We are going to stop immediately in the parks, the golf courses, the mediums are we're going to still use them, but we're going to take this time to really assess the new regulations and the alternatives so that we can be able to have a more proactive plan. But for sure, the decision. Has been. To stop roundup in. In the parks. I mean, listen, if we're gonna stop using Roundup in th e parks, I'm not sure why we just don't stop using Roundup period. It's been I understand that, you know, my interest and I agree with some of the other comments there. There's so much I think data and research on there about Roundup that it's just it's very concerning to me that I'm glad that we're finally almost there. But I would feel better if we just stopped completely using Roundup. So we're going to beat it next week, you're saying? Okay. Well, then I'll wait till next week. But I think I think it's time to be completely off roundup up. And this is the time. All right, good. Any public comment on this? CNN, please cast your votes. Is there an agenda item next week? Yeah. Okay, great. All right. Councilwoman Price. Motion carries. Okay. Next item is. Dominate by. Noting case A2. Thank you. Item 19, which is the outdoor smoking areas item. Yeah. Item 19 is communication from Councilwoman Price. Councilwoman Gonzalez. Councilmember Richardson. Recommendation to require city attorney to drive an ordinance banning smoking on outdoor seating areas of publicly and privately owned eating establishments. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. So this item is pretty self-explanatory. I'll spare everyone the wordy comments in support of it. I do ask my colleagues to support it in drafting the ordinance and. It. Should. The item passed this evening. One of the things I would like to ask included in this motion is that the city attorney look at including language. Which. Would allow an exemption for special events where people they might want to have a cigar party on a patio and they apply for some sort of a permit or special permit to do that that they could be able to do so. Additionally, since the the the gist of the item is really to provide healthier spaces at food or eating establishments, I think providing some sort of a carve out for patio areas where there is no food served, but rather it's used as a smoking patio. We have that at some live entertainment facilities, at some bars, things like that, where their food is not really served, but the patio is used as a space for smoking. I think it be the limited circumstances where those restaurants or I'm sorry, those those facilities would have an outdoor area where food is not served. But I'd like to include some sort of language that gives of some flexibility so that those particular establishments that are not serving food on the patio can be exempted. And I'd love to hear from my colleagues. We did do extensive outreach on this item and have received overwhelming support from the business. We did extensive outreach to the business community and have received extensive support from the business community in favor of this item. So thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And thank you, Councilman Price. And a lot of the conversation on this stems back to the smoke free Long Beach campaign. The health department drove back when L.A. County was just driving a lot of money arou nd tobacco prevention. And and so I'm supportive of this. The pilot that happened, the smoke free dining pilot was successful. And I think this is the next natural step. Thanks for including some conversation or some thoughts around those exemptions. I would also say one thought that we should ask them to consider is or figure out is, you know, if it's like adult hours, right? Like, a lot of times if you think about patio dining, you go with your family. You don't want to you don't want to deal with the smoking. But if it's 11:00 at night, I'm probably not going to have my three year old out there. And if there's a patio, I wouldn't want the businesses to have to go through a special permit for nighttime stuff. So some. That's when the rules get relaxed a little bit. So there's just something to consider. You're open to something like that? Absolutely. Absolutely. Great. Thanks. I mean, I think if the city attorney were to look at some maybe best practices of how those carve outs, because the intent is really. Adult or child. The intent is really in eating establishments to save everyone the the the requirement that they have to now inhale that secondhand smoke if they don't want to. I also think it's I mean, in addition to just the eating, I mean, when you have patio dining, if someone's walking down the street, they shouldn't have to smell it when they walk past. But I mean, around 11:00 at night, you're probably an adult at that point. So. So, yeah, I like this. I think you got to Amber Peirce. Yes. I want to thank my colleagues for bringing this item forward. I did have some conversations with the Heart Association as well as some of the businesses in my district. And so I think following along that same idea, you know, we've got some, you know, like I have Fourth Street Vine in my district that has a back patio that closes at 10:00 at night. But they have entertainment license, but they have finger food. So they have a cheese plate and a pretzel plate, you know, so it's not weight service. It's they go and pick up a little snack and they take it outside themselves. So again, looking at some options that don't limit adults, I think venues would be ideal. And then thinking about as a weight service like Lola's outside, there's waiters, it's very different full meal that you're sitting down to enjoy versus just kind of snacking on some, you know, simple food. So I support the intent of this item. I look forward to seeing what the city attorney comes back with with some of those ideas about how we create a healthier space. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Gonzalez. Yeah. Thank you, Count Councilmember Gray serving in this board. I think many of our downtown residents had that exact concern. A lot of the smoke goes up into the buildings and into their units and oftentimes, you know, poses an issue. And so it's great that we're bringing it up. But I do like the flexibility in ours and looking at some other options, I look forward to coming back

. Thank you again. Thank you. And I'll just add, I strongly support this and this is a great next step in all the work that's happened. And so I want to thank Councilman Price for bringing this forward and for doing the work of meeting with folks on this. And the one suggestion I'll have to our city attorney, obviously, I know how we classify a restaurant versus a bar or bar bars that sell food versus a restaurant I know is very different in the city and there's a very strong classification difference. And so I'd be interested in that language as well because I know I can think of of many places that are not restaurants that are essentially bars, but that also serve food. But they're not it's not suite service, but, you know, just walk down the promenade or anywhere on Pine Avenue on any given Friday or Saturday. And there are specific places that are bars that are not restaurants, which is very different than, you know, restaurants with patios. And so I just as we as we have that conversation, I'll be interested in that. I think this is a really good policy and step. And I know that when we have done these types of ordinances in the past, there has been some good communication between the city and the kind of restaurant owners or the bar owners, and I'm sure that will exist in this as well. So a very good item, Councilmember Pearce. Any public comment on this item? CNN. Yes. Please come forward. And I'll make it brief very, very quickly also. My name is Primo Castro with the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network. Mayor and City Council. The American Cancer Society Action Network supports evidence based policy and legislative solutions designed to eliminate cancer as a major health problem. We are asking the Council to move forward and support this ordinance in the city. I currently serve as a co-chair of the Coalition for a Smoke Free Long Beach, where we have been working on this issue for over four years and are excited to see this item coming to fruition. Finally, a smoke free dining patio ordinance would make our restaurant patios in a city 100% smoke free, which over 80% of respondents prefer. And a survey conducted by the Long Beach Health Department a couple of years ago. The current law calls that two thirds of a patio is to be smoke free. That's current law right now. We all know that tobacco, obviously, and other types of smoke does not stay in the same place, and which is truly a danger for our children and restaurant staff. Establishments like Berlin Bistro and and Portfolio Coffeehouse, along with Lola's and countless others, have voluntary smoke free patios currently in the city. Recently, the Long Beach Police Department was awarded $211,000 from the Tobacco Law Enforcement Grant Program from the California Department of Justice. And the Long Beach Health Department was also secured over $640,000 for fiscal year 1819, which will help support this particular effort through the coalition. We not only surveyed residents on their thoughts, but we also engage the business community via the Council of Business Associations. We're asking for a comprehensive policy that includes restaurants and bars. Thank you. I would like to be, you know, be more than happy to answer any questions. I also ask that as you make your decision as to please I have the the city attorney consult with the Long Beach Health Department in terms of the language on this. Thank you. Thank you so much. And with that, please cast your votes. I'm an I. Motion case here. Thank you. And I missed an item. 23 was also on the list to be moved up. So sorry about that. So. So next up is so 23. It was 24, which was the dock management system, affordable housing and roundup. I am 20. There's that. Yeah. Yeah. Communication from Councilmember on the recommendation to increase appropriations and general fund in the City Manager Department by 35,000, offset by the seventh Council District one time infrastructure funds to fund a community concert and community engagement in the seventh District. KATZENBERG Duncan Thank you, Mayor. And it's gonna be very short that when I basically invite everybody to the peace in the park on September 28th, this funding would provide us with a great opportunity to celebrate culture with music, dance and food, and that they were celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month, which goes from September 16 to October 50. Thank you. Thank you very much. There's a motion and a second is for public comment on this. See none. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you. I'm not sure if we did public comment when I was out there or not. Denim jeans. We did it. That's not a comment. The only one. Okay, great. I thought that was underwritten with public comment. Right. Okay. Item 20. No, I'm sorry, I'm 21. We haven't done official public comment. I'm not sure if any of the other speakers are still. Working on. It. Okay. Okay. Okay. So Daniel Jeans, Larry Goodhew, I think just two spoke. Michael Caldwell. Dave Shukla Okay, thank you. I am 21. It. Okay. Okay. Okay. So Daniel Jeans, Larry Goodhew, I think just two spoke. Michael Caldwell. Dave Shukla Okay, thank you. I am 21. Communication from Councilmember Wodonga Councilwoman Gonzales, Councilmember Pierce, Vice Mayor Andrew's recommendation to direct city manager to organize and host a community budget meeting with translation services available in multiple languages. Starting with fiscal year 2020 outreach. There's a motion in the second council. I'm very ringa. Yes. I want to thank my fellow colleagues who signed up with me on this one, because it's obviously very becoming very important to today's discussion on language access and the need for services there that we haven't had. I know we basically adopted a budget tonight or we will be in a few minutes. So we missed this opportunity. But I would like to have for next year for the 19, 19, 20, 19, 2020 budget year that we provide at least one or two workshops in multi languages so that people can have a full level of participation during these conversations and direct the city manager to see what to make sure that we get at least one scheduled. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzales. Yes, thank you. Councilmember Dunga just falls in line with what we've been talking about. Historically, my office has held. Two. Budget meetings. We've done some together and one in English, one in Spanish. Where all of. Our city departments have to speak in Spanish. And we actually have translation services in English. And I appreciate all of our. Departments being there. And oftentimes the Spanish budget meeting is well attended, more attended than the English speaking budget meeting. Which is speaks volumes. To the need for this. So thank you so much. I look forward to this item. I thank you, Vice Mayor Andrew. Yes, thank you, Mia. You know, because when I came up with the link to access policy, the goal was, you know, to sort of, you know, available for everyone in the language that they needed. And this year, I hosted two community budget meetings and one of them, the kumite was, you know, translators was what's wrong in locations ? And I had several Spanish speaking residents and to my who did not understand the presentation. So that was completely unacceptable. And I do hope that in moving forward, we think a grand scale and how to provide these presentations in the central locations with our translators available. And I really appreciate that we could make sure that this into any moving forward that this would be available. Thank you very much. Thank you. Vice Mayor Councilmember Pierce. Thank you for your leadership on this. I fully support it. It's rock and roll. Thank you. And also, I want to thank you guys for bringing this forward as well, especially I want to thank our vice mayor, Andres Councilmember Gonzalez. I believe a councilmember and I know that comes from a also in some of his meetings also had for the for my speakers. There's been efforts that have been made in those communities to try to be inclusive over the last few years. And I think this is just the next natural step. And so I just want to thank everyone that's already kind of been leading this. And I thank you guys. And I think this is a great item. So any public comment on this scene? And please cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you. Item 22. Report from City Manager. Recommendation to Request City Attorney to prepare a resolution to oppose Proposition six. The voter approval for future gas and vehicle taxes and 2017 tax repeal initiative citywide. Thank you, Councilmember Ringo. Yes. Given the importance that SB one has provided for not only the city limits, but for the state as a whole, I think it's very important that we oppose this proposition because it would have a devastating effect on all the projects that we currently have going in the city alone, which because of SB one, and when you look at what's going on with the replacement bridge at the replacement Desmo nd Bridge, it would be a bridge going to nowhere if we didn't have the funds to finish that project. And we have as well some other projects in Long Beach, including the Long Beach Boulevard and Pacific Coast Highway and a lot of other projects that we have because of SB one. So I would strongly suggest let's just so strongly support the city council opposing measure. I mean, Proposition six. Becky, there's a motion and a second seconded by Councilman Austin. Councilman Austin. Yes. I'd also like to just weigh in and say, I think it's important for us to stand by what we've worked for as a council and support it for for several years. It was the Fix Our Roads kind of campaign through the League of California Cities, a lot of our legislative advocacy for infrastructure support and dollars for state highways, but also for local roads as well, that this these dollars actually will go a long way, if I'm not mistaken. Stephanie, can you tell me specifically how much if SB six does pass, how much we would stand to lose as a city? Diana Chang. Good morning, Mayor. And Members of the City Council. SB 145 19 We've budgeted $8 million for. Projects in all nine council districts, and so those revenues would would likely. Be. Repealed and, and the projects would be without. A source of dedicated funding. So that's that's $8 million annually, correct? It's $8 million for FY 19. And as the revenues continue to be implemented as part of SB one, we're expecting them to grow to. 11 million in about FY 20 and then indexed to inflation thereafter. I would also like to note that this essentially doubles what the city currently receives from the state for streets. Streets and. Roads. Currently with just hooda the traditional source of state funding for streets and roads. Our our budget, it's about 10 million annually. So with SB one, we add another eight for FY19. About 11 for FY 20, and then adjusted to inflation every year thereafter. So I think it's a the the, the gas tax that we have is a small price to pay for, for good infrastructure investing in our future. The impact would be obviously significant for our public works infrastructure budget. And if we didn't if we lost those dollars, we'd have to be made up elsewhere. We and that would be less dollars that we could actually put toward residential streets, which I think are so important to our residents. And so for those reasons, I support this this motion to support to support or oppose. SB I'm to be very clear to oppose SB six. Six and let me add one thing that wasn't, I think unless I missed it in Dana Takes presentation, which is that the SB one not just not only includes all the street work and the annual funding that comes in, but they're also doing specific, larger streets. And part of SB one separate of what we're getting annually this year is the entire reconstruction of PCH from our entrance point in Orange County, all the way through the city to our exit point in in western Long Beach. And so that is a project that the state's doing that's in Long Beach that doesn't count towards our our amount. And so that that's a huge project that is obviously incredibly, incredibly expensive. And so that's why work goes through most of the city. There's a motion of seconds are public comment on this item saying none please cast your votes. Dr. Allison Diggins class over there. How are you doing? She's a great instructor and thank you to the class for being here from class at Long Beach. So thank you guys also. Next up is our is our next hearing if we can please have that read. And I'm Kirk. Report from financial management recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the hearing and grant an entertainment permit with conditions on the application of Ashley's located at 1731 East Fourth Street for Entertainment Without Dancing District two. Mr. MODICA. Yes. I believe an oath is required for this one. We're witnesses providing testimony. Please stand. Do you and each of you solemnly state that you will, that the testimony you may give in the course now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of the Council. We will have a staff report by Sandie Singh Palmer. Our purchasing and business services manager. Good evening, honorable mayor and members of the city council. Tonight you have before you an application for entertainment without dancing formal hospitality LLC doing business as Ashley's. Located at 1731

East Fourth Street, operating as a restaurant with alcohol in Council District two. All of the necessary departments have reviewed the application and have provided their recommended conditions as contained in the hearing packet. I, as well as the police department, stand ready to answer any questions Council may have. And that concludes staff's report. Thank you. The transfer of the council appears. Yes. Thank you very much. I want to thank staff for your work with the applicants. And I want to give a little bit of context because I know I've had some dialog with some of the constituents in the area. As many of you guys know, Fore Street and Between Cherry and Alamitos is one of the key areas that we are trying to make sure we have monthly cleanups, that we have our businesses meeting. And I just want to say that the owners of this establishment have done a fantastic job about opening up. And we've had not just community meetings there, we've had public safety meetings where we've had our commanders come down not only work with the community members, but work with the business owner and making sure that we do our crime prevention through environmental design with them. And so I wanted to invite the applicant up just to give a little bit of context to the history of of Ashley's and ask them to speak. And then I'd ask for my council colleagues full support on this. Thank you. Thank you. Hello, Mr. Mayor and Council. Thank you for taking this time to review. We took over. Ashley's back in February now. And what is. What a journey it's been? Being down in that area is much different than the other businesses that we have and being coming from. Broadway and Councilwoman Susie Price's district and opening of the attic and cleaning up that area then going to saloon and fourth and cherry over there and trying to clean up what was over there. And now being a little bit further down, we've we've noticed the amount of work that's ahead of us. What we plan to do here. We're obviously restaurant people. We're not bar style people. But what the place is now is is a bar. And we plan to take take what's there now and make turn it into a restaurant for the future. And what we're asking for is to continue operating the way it is now and give us that time to make sure that we we do the right things there with what's what's there now that can only support so much. And so what we're asking for is give us the time. Let us put the right, right business in there to help clean up the area and to connect it all together. If you guys have any questions, I'll be more. Than happy to ask. Great. Thank you very much. Is there any other public comment on this hearing item? Please come forward. Hello. This is out of my arena. So sorry for my quavering voice. I own a property across the street. From the restaurant. And it's allowed. It's allowed bar before they bought it and they've had a dance competition that was loud. Uh, the people that I live, I purchased in across the street at 1738 East Fourth Street, the apartments in the front turn over quite a lot already because of the noise. Parking is incredibly hard at night and and tenants cannot just easily park in front. So having something that's creating more congestion at night will be hard. The parameters have not been made clear to the people that live in our building. We've gotten a notice from the police department and we've called in thinking that was enough to to create a stir that we don't want this. But now we have a poster that was dated May 23rd, 2013, that was on the public hearing paper. So people were throwing it away, thinking it was mailed egregiously. I was told we couldn't get this on a later date, that this was good enough because buried in the in the text is the real time for this meeting tonight. And people couldn't take time off of work. I did. I getting a I had a run around just trying to get somebody to tell me what are the parameters? Well, how is this going to go if we do have Senate Bill 905 pass? Are we having live music till 4 a.m.? I mean, I just think we really need to think about this a little harder before we go. Yahoo! They've got some nice businesses. I wish they would do something a little more like what he's got in the attic. And salud. Across the street from my building. But I guess we just because we are on the other side of cherry, we're going to go loud and crazy. It's a beautiful 1923 building that we'

ve got and we've put a lot of money into it to make it nice. We we sweep the trash, you know, twice a week and we've redone the the the outside plants and it's newly painted. And now we're going to get a bar that's open till 2 a.m. with live music. I don't think that's really going to be adding to my property value. I really wish you would reconsider and really have some parameters. They're very clear about what it's going to mean for that. About one block. I thank you for your consideration. Thank you. With that, we'll go back to the council on this public hearing. Councilmember, did you have anything, Councilman Austin. Nope. Back to Councilmember Pearce. Great. Thank you. I do want to ask that you or my staff will follow up with you in every body that sent the letters that we haven't talked to so you can see the parameters of the night. I do want to clarify for the forum what's on the table right now is a is just for downtown, an entertainment district that I would not at this current time should it pass impacts where you were at. And I also want to echo that. I'm not sure if you guys have had the opportunity to work together, but definitely want you and my staff, Connor, who's sitting up there to work with Steve as well. I think that the vision for the property is what we need to have on Fore Street. And it's I know he came in hoping that that was going to be what he could open with and it's going to take him some time to get it to be that establishment that we want it to be, as though it's a commitment of partnership, I think, between the three of us and the city to make that happen. And again, I encourage my council to to pass this because we know that doing the step is the right step and that we can continue to work on noise mitigation and other issues as we have them there a little bit longer. Thank you. Thank you very much. There is a motion and a second on this item. Members, please go ahead and cast your votes. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you. Okay. We're going to we're going to go ahead and continue here. We had two hearings. We're going to go to we have a series of items. We also have some public comment. Let me also I want to make sure that just for for the for the mother with the baby as well. I want to get to your public comments first. So I think we have some groupings. Is Melo. Melo, Desiree. Pamela Fields and Betty Trotter. Yeah. So what if you can come first, please? In that order. Mello, Desiree, Pamela Fields and Betty Trotter. All right. Thank you. Would you please cast your vote? Motion carries now removed item 21 1:00 please. We report from financial management recommendation declare ordinance approving resolution number WD dash 1392a resolution of a Long Beach Board of Water Commissioners establishing the rates and charges to be charged for water and sewer services and declaring the urgency thereof, and providing that this ordinance shall take effect on October one, 2018. Read and adopted as Read 21 permit. I'm sorry, si

r. Staff. Is there a staff reporter now? No, I don't. No. Oh, no. Okay. That's fine. There isn't. Others must in a second the public comment on this. Unit. Tom Stout Information on file. Wow. Didn't take long to get that race going again. It's not a new tax. Well, it sure is. But I guess the money's gone to the families, so it's always good to have the family well taken care of. Maybe it needs another lawsuit to see if this can be turned around. The last one lasted, what, three months? So maybe this one will be a little more in duration. You guys always talk about you're trying to help the the needy, the less fortunate, the lower income people. Well, this doesn't help anybody but you and the city employees. It's sad. You spent, what, $1,000,000? $1,000,000, most of that taxpayer money, a large percent of it donated by the police and fire union. It's tough to compete with you guys when you can take our taxpayer money and fight us with it. Maybe we need a new ordinance that would make it so. You have to provide taxpayers with the same amount of money that you piss away on these measures so that we could have a fair and level playing field. Maybe that's what we need to change in the city charter. So you can't keep stealing money and fighting the taxpayers with it. It's pretty pathetic on your part, but it seems to be the way this mayor and this council want to do business. And I'm glad to see that the no button actually does work. I was going to ask you to get Carolyn Barnes husband, an independent contractor electrician, to come down and check the button. It seems to work very intermittently on the no side of this anyway. So like I said, it's sad that this is going to happen. You guys lied. You lied on all those brochures, and you got away with it so far. So I guess lions. A way of life and politics. Thank you next week. Carolyn Byrnes I am guilty as charged. The wife of the electrician. I have to correct one thing that Tom said. He was unfortunately, at the district budget meeting the evening of the water hearing. So he missed the announcement by Diana Liggins that there will be another lawsuit against the water department. Personally. I'm against these lawsuits. There's only one person, two people who make money on those lawsuits, Trisha Pesci and Eric Benet. Eric Benet is running a mill. Shame on him. City after city after city. We are not first, we will not be last. We're five years behind the rest of them in being sued for these amendment violations of Prop 13. It's another matter. I went to this water commissioner's hearing and I saw a lot of my colleagues from the neighborhood groups there. And we spoke and then we found out from Michael Anthony, the city attorney. That in order to block. Them. From having you vote to approve the water increase that 50% plus one of the customers needed to be protesting either by mail or email, by telephone or by public presence. Well, I think the grand tally was 57 or 58 for all of those things that I just m mentioned as far as protests. So didn't quite cut the mustard. And here we are ready to vote again for an increase in the water tax. There's a lot of things on your agenda and it ain't number 11, number 13 and number 15 that all have to do with grants for people who are in need, people who are on the cutting edge crisis of homelessness, people whose budgets they can't afford to live here. They need housing. They need mental health services. I am not saying we shouldn't give it to them. I'm saying that we should make it easier for them. We shouldn't keep taxing and taxing. I see that you're going to look at the cash tax and potentially support the no vote to repeal the gas tax. The average family with two vehicles. Will have received a burden of $778.39 per year as a result of what our state legislature did when they passed that gas tax. Tom and I have gotten thousands of signatures, as have others. But we really strongly encourage you to endorse a no vote on Proposition six. It's stealing more money out of the pockets. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you very much. Would you please cast your vote? Okay. Mm hmm. Michigan. Jo Jo Weinstein And in case my information isn't on file, the 4000 Linden and District eight. I was at that hearing, that protest hearing. And what upset me is that it was called under misleading and false pretenses. For one thing, the I don't recall the meeting actually ever being formally adjourned properly. Instead, the city attorney volunteered an opinion that seemed to imply that because half or more of the customers weren't up in arms, that it would automatically this this fee increase should automatically happen. The water board didn't have to do that. The water board could have said, you know, we had only 57 protests, but some of them made some good points and we should reconsider. And they could have done that. Instead, they dumped it on to you. And as you have been warned because. The possible result of this increase and the stated the stated purpose of the increase to those people who looked at the notice of hearing was that Measure M had been passed. The passage of Measure M does not require a water rate increase. It purports to allow it, but it did not require it. So the fact that Measure M was passed was no justification in and of itself for a water rate increase. And yet that's what I recall being. Receiving in the notice of hearing, which was so way in advance of hearing that people forgot about it, of course. That was the alleged justification for this increase. It's not a justification. And as you know, the courts have held that the utilities are supposed to public utilities supposed to use that money just for the purpose of solid, well-maintained, well-planned utility service, not transfers to a charity or to a general fund of a city or anything else. So of course, there will be a lawsuit. And as you heard, the likely winners of the lawsuit will be the lawyers. The losers will be both the city budget. And the taxpayer

ers. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes item 21. Members, please go and cast your votes. Thank you. Now we'll go to a hearing. Number three. Report from a financial management recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the public hearing and grant an entertainment permit with conditions on the application of the sales located at 6 to 8 five East Pacific Coast Highway for Entertainment with Dancing District three. Thank you. There's an oath required. Yes. All witnesses. Please stand. Do you and each of you solemnly state that the testimony you may give in this cause now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God. Mr. Vice Mayor, the staff report will be given by Brett, Jackie's our business services officer, and Emily Armstrong, our business from the Business License Division. Thank you very much. Good evening, honorable mayor and members of the city council. Tonight you have before you an application for entertainment with dancing for ABP. Food and Beverage. LLC. Doing business as. The sales located at. 6285 East Pacific Coast Highway. Operating as a restaurant with alcohol in a council district three. For some background. This hotel. With a restaurant has been operating at this location with entertainment since. 1991. The ownership changed in June 2017, which required the new owners to submit this application. The new owners have since been operating under a temporary entertainment permit. All of the necessary departments have reviewed the application and have provided their recommended conditions as contained in the hearing packet. I, as well as the police department, stand ready to answer any questions Council may have. And that concludes staff's report. Thank you. Is there any public comment on this item? I think this is a very good view, clear consideration. This is a commendable project. The only concern I have is relative to the dancing and what type of dancing there will be. Will we be saddled with the type of. Sidestepping or tap dancing around the truth, such as we get almost every time Robert Garcia opens his mouth. You can see what can be done to stop that type of dancing. That's something you have to consider before you approve it. And I think you have excellent examples of how proficient he is if dancing around the truth and sidestepping the facts and truth. Give that some consideration when you issue this permit. Thank you. Thank you. General public comment on this item. Mrs. Price was not clear if he thinks. Ask urge my colleagues to support this item. This hotel is located right next to the Gaslamp, where it currently is dancing. There's no dancing, sidestepping the truth, but there are sidesteps when they do their country Sunday line dancing. But this is this is just straight up dancing. Mr. Good here. Councilman. I thank you. And I'm happy to support this. I'm not sure how this has progressed, but I can remember several years a go entertained going to the Golden Cells Sunday nights for reggae and having a great time. So I wouldn't want to deprive anybody of that experience here in Long Beach. So I'm happy to support. Thank you very much. Cinnamon public comment. Would you please cast your vote, please? Now. We're going to have a clip. Yes. Now we can go to public comment. But these individuals, you can eat our lineup. First of all, we have a just tiny ranga. Yes. I'm going to move that item 25. Report from Parks, Recreation and Marine recommendation to receive and file a report on approaches to Park Equity in the city of Long Beach Citywide. All right. Councilwoman Gonzalez, you want to speak on this? Actually, we can go to public. I'm sorry. We'll have the staff report first, and then we can go to public comment and then we'll go from there. Thank you. Thank you. Vice mayor councilmembers. We this is a report that. We've been working on for some time right now. I know our new director, HURTADO Mowatt, has been working closely to prepare something, and he's going to make that presentation tonight. So I'm going. To turn it over to Harlow. So. I mean. Thank you, Mr. City Manager. Good evening, Vice Mayor and City Council. My presentation today is called Long Beach's Strategy towards Equity in Park Services or Steps for Short. This is an approach that will incorporate innovative strategies and incorporate a new prime strategic plan. In March, when I received a recruitment flier for the position of Director of Parks, Recreation and Marine Department, I began doing my research. I was excited about the possibility of serving the Long Beach community. I started I started my explore on my exploring the park equity issue on June 18, 2018, when I began my job as your PRM Director. I thoroughly reviewed the July 18, 2017 and the February 20th, 2018 City Council discussions on Park Equity. I took notes and began talking to a lot of folks about the best approach based on best practice and to be responsive to this issue. I began exploring parks, beaches, neighborhoods, people, nonprofits and of course, the occasional restaurant or two, because we all have to eat. It has been fascinating so far these first few months and a great deal of fun. To give you a taste of my exploration experience, I selected six parks across the city to help explain the contexts of the steps approach, which goal is to help advance the development of an efficient and effective Long Beach park system. Here's a quick review of these parks. Silverado Park with 10,000. 10,081 people living within a half mile radius of this park. Cesar Chavez Park in thousand, 500 people living within a half mile radius of its center. MacArthur Park with an amazing density of 25,228 people within a half mile radius of the park. Eldorado Park West with 3566 people surrounding the park. Keeping in mind that there's a lot of open space from the center moving out. Long Beach greenbelt with 8352 people surrounding it and. Highland Park with 10,800 people, 805 people surrounding it. A park system for all. And these parks that you just saw along with the other 165 parks, beaches and prime centers make up one park system , a park system for all, a system that can be strengthened when we apply creative solutions to remove barriers to benefit and serve the whole community. The coordinates key to successfully navigating through Long Beach strategies towards equity in park services path known as steps are. Access. How to get from a particular neighborhood to a primary source A or a primary source B? This is where different types of transportations will fall in place. Equity, fairness, challenges can be structural, historical or appear today or tomorrow. Having Fair Parks and Recreation. Having a fair parks and recreation system means removing barriers in a way that makes sense strategically for the benefit of the functionality of one park system. Going green. Forces that pollute, contaminate or negatively impact our environment can unite the community and come up with creative ways to mitigate. Inspiration and creativity, empathy and sympathy towards others, and a quest in leveraging beneficial opportunities for winning solutions to improve PRM services. This helps come up. This helps us come up with feasible outside of the box possibilities that otherwise would not be noticed. Inclusive community engagement. Getting to know people, their preferences, their culture, their ambitions, and using this information for creative programing and design of projects is an important driving navigational force. Effective, effective communication. Use the tools available or create new to be more effective in communication and use different languages used in the community. These are driving forces that helps us explore the Long Beach community and become guides for the steps approach. These efforts must be tested in a reality based, balanced approach to ensure effectiveness and efficiency. This is something we have started. Not something for tomorrow. The intent is to walk the talk today. The mayor and city council did walk the talk with their approval of the fiscal year 19 budget. That included. $100,000 for adding additional senior services. $200,000 for continuing the Be Safe program. $70,000 to launch the PRM strategic planning effort. It's not just the budget and but an investment in the direction of the department. PRM will be piloting new innovative ways for enhancing team programming at and Hampton and McBride Parks and $40,000 to launch the strengthening of prime volunteer operations. Since February and even before I started Prime gone to work in the following added contract classes such as karate, basketball, resume writing, interview skills, Zumba, reading and math, enhanced water exercises and ceramic classes in in the past spring and summer season at recreation facilities that had recently not experienced these types of classes. Content redesign of the of the Recreation Connection catal og has been started in this current fall issue. We added eight pages of free base classes for this fall brochure and will only get better as we continue to publish these issues. Continued Arts partnership with the musical Theater West for Youth and Seniors is another example of partnership efforts. Outdoor experience enhancement is important for our youth. And and there's so much more as well. As mentioned previously when I joined Prime, I immediately started exploring parks, beaches and existing social networks around neighborhoods. I see this type of work as as foundational for the preparation of the launch of a more targeted community engagement effort to develop a vibrant prime strategic plan that will be launched in more in a formal in a more formal way in January. Also thanks to the City Council for supporting a new component in the Prime Department structure to help increase capacity to assess community needs. Grants. Grant Development. Effectiveness. Part Planning and partnership development. The Steps approach will not ignore any of the components of the department. The goal is one department, one culture. Animal Care Services is going through its own review, led by the quest to develop a strategic plan as it continues to serve the needs of the community, listens to leadership direction and gets ready for the appointment of a new bureau manager. Facilities and ground maintenance are key components of the department's mission. The department appreciates its increased capacity for landscape work and money to irrigate more and is exploring best practices for piloting weed control methods. Beaches, boat slips and beach water quality adds to our One Direction quest to make community conditions more livable. Thank you for the added capacity to use new technologies to help with trash that reach our waters from the flow of the two rivers are unifying force. Will be a focus on respect and responsiveness, which is key for step success. Collaboration is an important word, but it's also an important way to work. Not easy, but more long lasting because of the ability to get a larger net of resources to align citywide for greater impact. Not so much an economy of scale as much as an ecology of scale. This is similar to a healthy watershed system helping the flora and fauna of the region. I mention here a lot of our city departments that we're collaborating with, and it is an amazing ecosystem, very similar to the watershed system. An important component of the steps alignment with all the city efforts is the focus on making sure that this very this very diverse city is served well. Partners of Parks. And PRM are aligning together to strengthen their respective missions. It is a creative tag team that yields scholarships, enrich classes and support of friends of groups and so much more. Our efforts to create a strong partnership to enhance parks, programs and services will identify how best people and organizations can help develop a vibrant one park s ystem for all. Our goal here is to advance opportunities for our work on sustainable environment, urban agriculture, workforce development, arts and culture. Community awareness through local history. Exploration. Healthy lifestyles and livability. Resources. Key in these efforts is our collaboration with both higher education, K-12 schools and sports organizations. Collaboration with education, businesses, nonprofits and individuals in these efforts will expand the capacity to make sure the park system strives for complete functionality for a diverse city. The potential for the community benefit return is huge. The steps suffrage sets the foundation for a successful 2020 prem strategic plan. Inclusive community engagement is the lever that leads to data analysis that goes from neighborhood specific to broader variables of healthy and functional one park system. This will allow this will allow us to be more competitive in grants and partnerships to be effective in this way. We need to increase our ability to communicate effectively with a diverse community. This requires creativity, cultural sensitivity, and multi-language abilities. Creative ways to heighten the awareness of transportation options is one example. With this evolution, PRM staff will be able to be more supportive to event and program development so that these events and services align with the one park system that serves all. It is hard to envision a sustained effort in this direction without the heightened awareness in the importance of respect and responsiveness. So these values are key. Steps is a solution approach that leverages the strength of diversity, whether it's 0 to 5 age, the in-between ages before you get to your eighties and nineties are sensitivities to unique attributes of groups, whether variables are economic, educational, cultural related to disabilities, gender based lifestyle or racial. The approach has to take all these diverse wealth attributes into consideration. From. A gazebo is the most famous, iconic structure for parks. It comes from the word to gaze. From any Long Beach, Park, Beach or recreational facility. Our goal is for any community person to be able to figuratively gaze through the one park system and choose what best experience will delight that person and add to the collective citywide joy of a strong, livable community. I really want to thank all of the following for helping get to this point on for this plan. The Long Beach neighborhood groups and the residents, the mayor and city council, the city manager and all the other city departments, the PRM, executive team management and staff, Parks and Recreation Commission, the partners of Parks Interpark and the Interdepartmental Park Equity Change Team and the local nonprofit organizations. Thank you very much. I the last slide I just want to mention this is a picture of the all city beach day. Not only does it create memories for Long Beach youth from across the city, it's also a great symbol of what steps is all about. I'm excited. I'm excited about this beginning and look forward to more to come. Thank you very much, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Mm hmm. Yes. First and foremost, I really want to thank you, Heraldo, and all of your park staff. I know Stephen, who is interim director. Meredith, who's with you and many of our park and Rec staff members, if we can give them a big round of applause for their work here in the city. And I'm just personally very grateful because this has been a long time coming. And I'm very I just will say very succinctly that I'm very excited about the direction this Park equity item has now taken and evolved into. It started some time ago, and I'm glad we finally got it right, from what I understand and what I'm seeing here. And I really appreciate the effort that has been put in from all of your from yourself being new to the city, but also from your staff members. So, you know, when I brought this forward some time ago, this was not to say who has something, who does not, but it was really just to look at the systemic issue that I feel has been in our park system. And it may not be inherently apparent to everybody. But, you know, when we represent some of us represent areas that have a lack of programing, have had a lack of we have more dense neighborhoods and maybe have the same services as everybody else. And so it looks like a lack of programing oftentimes. And oftentimes it is, especially when you compound that with high poverty rates in some areas and high unemployment rates. So I don't do this because I want to, you know, say one place has something and one place doesn't. But I just want to detail the fact that this is it's a really important issue. Not only to me, it was I was elected to to do this, but to many of the families and community members who are here today, and I think many of our first district residents for being here from Craftsman and Willmar and North Pine and the seniors at the many various places in downtown, I really think them for being here as well as our park commissioners. I've talked in length with many of them, Margot Morales and David Sonata, and I've chatted with Stella, Ursula and Maria La Salgado, who is our first district representative. I appreciate them as well as our Karen reside from Partners of Parks. I appreciate the collective input. So a few things I will say about this. I think, again, it's a great step forward. It's a great job that we've done on this report. And I would like to add that and I know we have the data analysis that we've we've mentioned, but I just want to point out in terms of data analysis and what we've talked about in the past and where this sort of stemmed from it was the lack of contract classes for a multitude of reasons. And we know that the contract classes are based on zip code, from what I understand. And so I'd still like to see and I'm sure you're already looking at this data on resident zip codes so we can see exactly where reside nts are coming going in our park system. For example, I attended because I wanted to try it out with my toddler. I went to a park I'm sorry, a cooking class in Eldorado Park. And I asked most of the there were probably about ten families there. And I asked the families I said, where are you guys

from? Just want to know. They had no idea who I was, right? So I'm like completely blank slate and most of them were from the West Side or central Long Beach. So thinking about Eldorado Park, you're in from West Side, Central Long Beach. Maybe we should have cooking classes there. Or just like I mentioned before, if we have a high unemployment area and a pocket of 90813, which we know city wide has been an issue, maybe we should have resume classes there. And I know we understand that, which is great and I'm looking forward to seeing that come to fruition. Just some things to highlight before I will ask for support on moving this forward and thinking you again for your work. So the department's strategic plan and what we see here and communication, I think are great efforts and I look to continue supporting those efforts to ensure we create a more equitable plan. And not only that, but just talking about equity a bit more, because I think, to be honest, I think you're the first director that's we're laughing here. But it's great because you've said both equity and community benefits, which has been a mainstay of this council for some time. So we appreciate that. And the created creativity around positioning park programing as the beneficiary of the coastal zone permitting process, I think that is a really creative way that we could look at in funding gaps for programs. Lastly, the Peps program, which I know partnerships which has been big with Council Woman Mango, she's brought up multiple times adopting a park and talking about how do we streamline the process for nonprofits citywide. You know, all of our council districts somewhere along the line, many community organizations are the ones oftentimes activating our parks, whether it's yoga classes or whether it's whatever it might be, summer and music classes. Those organizations are doing the work and we have to just decrease the red tape and in issues that they have when they want to come to our. And hold a workshop or conduct these activities. So anything we can do to continue doing that work I'm completely supportive of and I appreciate it's been indicated here in the report. Other than that, I just I look forward to my colleagues questions, ideas, if you'd like to make this more robust. But again, I think our Parks and Rec staff and are on our team for really moving forward with this. Thank you again. Thank you. Congresswoman Gonzalez, Councilman Brice? Yes, I also as Councilmember Gonzalez mentioned, when you said community benefits and when you said equity, I think it just really shows how much we've changed as a city. And the fact that we've talked about it a lot and to have directors talk about it I think is wonderful. Your presentation did a wonderful job about showing the greenspace that is in each area and also how many people live near those areas. So I think that that is that density is a key issue. I want to say that I really like the approach of a one system which I know is challenging with a city of our size and highlighting that, yes, we have a cooking class in one area and maybe we need another one in a second area. But also that that conversation around how do we get people down to our sailing classes, you know, how do we look at this as one whole system while also tailoring needs to each area based on poverty needs. And so I really appreciate that you have done a job of highlighting every single aspect that comes in contact with our parks from from youth to seniors. And the fact that it is around the resume building is around jobs, it's around creativity and innovation. And so I was really pleased to see all of those comments throughout this presentation. I am happy, very happy to see that you have on here also a link online for people to donate to our parks system where there's a need. I know that one of the conversations that I've been wanting to have is around how do we get maybe corporate sponsorship? And I'll start saying we're naming a park after them. But, you know, at Bixby Park, where we have so many needs, we do have corporate sponsors that have said, yeah, we would like to come in like Spaulding, and that we don't necessarily have a policy that's in place yet. And I know we haven't taken that up yet, but echoing that with you, I think is really exciting. And I'll just highlight one more time around the memo due process with our friends of the Parks. I know that this is something that you're going to be looking at in the strategic plan, but for those residents that are watching and listening, having an email you that's most transparent, that we have knowledge and access to who the boards are and understanding how much money are they bringing in and where the needs are so that we can really be a partner with them to invest in our parks again, are just thrilled to see a presentation on equity from a director that has has jumped in all the way. Really appreciate you very, very much. Thank you so much. Thank you very much, Congresswoman Richardson. Thank you, Vice Mayor. So in following this conversation on on equity in our city, I want to concur what I've already heard tonight. I'll raise up two things just quickly in this report. I think we have to address systems, so we need geographic diversity on the Parks Commission with North Long Beach and the lack of open space , you know, 1.1 acres per 10,000 residents, we have to make sure that that area is represented on our Parks and Recreation Commission. And I know that that right now it's the way our policy is set up. There is no geographic requirement. So it's not on the commissioners, but it is on us to acknowledge that, you know, systems do contribute to inequities.

So that's number one. Number two, as we move forward in this strategy, I think it's smart for you to infuse equity into your your your Parks and rec strategic plan as discussed. But I'd like to see some measurable, like tangible measurables that help us understand which needles we're specifically looking to move. How can I take this to my residents and say and boil it down to what this means? Does this mean that we're going to receive more access to contract classes? Does this mean that we're it's going to be a more equitable distribution of, you know, resources to develop more open space opportunities? Does this mean that we're going to, you know, direct our work to identifying grants and resources to move the needle a bit? That's what we want to understand. What are some tangible things that we can, some tangible measurements that we can track as we move forward. But that said, I think this is really important work. I think Councilwoman Gonzalez and everyone who's been a part of this conversation and. Our staff in the office equity. And I look forward to future iterations of what's to come. Thank you. Thank you. Next counts among all players. Yes. I want to thank the Parks Rec team for all their work on this. I know that you guys have spent a considerable amount of time over the last few weeks. I appreciate the number of meetings that you've been willing to have with me and my residents and the friends of groups. A couple of things. I appreciate the need for additional park space. It's always great to do that. I think that as we bring that park space online, we have to talk about where is the money to maintain it come from. Because what we have not done is maintain our parks. And one of the things that I want to make sure is measurable in our strategic plan is what is the level of park system of maintenance that we expect to deliver to our community? Because what we don't want to do is just have a new park of the week. And then right now everyone from all over the city is rushing to the eighth District because they have the coolest new park. But as that park gets desegregated over time, what funds are available to make sure that it's maintained? There are lots of mechanisms in place for starting new parks. There's a fund for that. But as you do that, if your park abatements budget is X and you've added. 20% more parks and you haven't added 20% more maintenance funding. And then you have a. A drought and now you need 30% more water. That's where we ended up last year. And so I don't want to see us in those positions. I think we need to start thinking about reserves for our parks as well, so that in certain years, as we have good years of there's lots of water that perhaps we set somebody aside that could only be used in a year that has a drought year or things like that. Then finally, I just want to say that. The communication is a huge part of it. What Councilman Gonzales mentioned is something that I've known since the first month I was on the job when I was elected in June of 2014. I quickly was invited to pop water and soccer and all the different groups. And a majority of the kids in the programs on the East Side are not from the east side, but a majority of the park space is on the east side, so people have to commute to get there. We have to do a much better job of linking our parks through our our bus system. I know that when my brother was was a youth, he was actively a part of the bus system. And that wasn't something that my mom learned about until my parents got divorced. And we had to be able to move around the city and get to soccer practice and get to these places. And now I was a kid learning the bus system and. A lot of the routes are not conducive to getting the people where they need to go. They're conducive to maybe getting people to the jobs they have, which is great and important. But we have to talk about all three levels of systems. If all the seniors live here and all the senior program, be this here, we either need to move the senior programing and then communicate that to the people because a lot of where people know where to enroll comes from tradition. So often I was talking to the North Long Beach Pap Water Group. I help them fundraise that I go to their events and they've always practiced in El Dorado Park, even though they're the North Long Beach Pap Water Group. And so they came to me and said, we need better maintenance of these parks because this is where we're practicing. The parks on our side of town are actually in better condition. But the the tradition of where you get your park permit has been the tradition for so long. Your first right of refusal of the certain fields is what it is. And so we have to talk about that. And most importantly, we need to talk about rest. We need to have passive park, space and park rest regularly because the playability of parks over time is segregated by the amount of use. And I think that you've addressed all of these in your park plan. I look forward to continuing to support resources. And then just as a final component to Councilman Pearce has called it, the Pep's program is for sponsorship. So if Spaulding wants to do that now, that is available. The policy was passed by this council 18 to 24 months ago. We just need to have that person on board who will work with Poppy, the Parks Rec Department in the commission, and kind of facilitate it. So if there's a contact person at a specific park in mind, I know that a couple of them have bubbled up, but they just haven't made it to the forefront. And so I think that those times are here and now and and I think that as we talk about what these things cost, similar to the way in which you can do something at the library, you should absolutely be able to name a soccer field or a baseball field for a designated amount of time. For a designated amount of money. And that money should be proportional to what it costs to maintain it at a level that you'd want your team name o n it. And an example of that is right now, the Kings are going to be refurbishing a space for us in the city, and we're very lucky for that. But the Kings to put their name on something, what's a certain level of a field? They're going to be paid for the resurfacing to do that, and we need more and more partners to be able to step up and do that. Target has been producing lots of commercials about it online. Get on the phone, call Target and tell them we want a soccer field named after Target and we want them to refurbish it. Long Beach, because those are creative ways to continue to support our park programs. So once again, thank you to our commissioners. Thank you to our staff, thank you to our management team. And I really appreciate this moving forward and the extensive effort that's been put in. Thank you. Councilwoman Mungo comes when I say. Thank you very much and thank you of Mr. Mowat for a very comprehensive presentation. I think this is this is great work and we certainly I think we're taking steps in the right direction. I, for one, appreciate how this conversation has evolved about park equity. Didn't start out so, so civil. I was it was a lot of uncertainty around it. But like I said, I'm glad that we're headed in the right direction in terms of the decorum as well as is the approach. I think this is a this is a comprehensive approach that takes into consideration just about everything I to represent a district at a programing. It was evident and made evident in the last of Parks Recreation, a marine report on on equity. I still have a great deal of poverty in my district and particularly in North Long Beach communities. And however, I'm very thankful of the strides that have been made recently. To add greenspace in North Long Beach, dozens of acres of greenspace and investment in parks upgrades in the district. And I think that that also needs to be balanced out and considered. You know, we talk about new parks, we talk about green space. You know, not not every park needs to be programed. And I recognize that I said it here before. You know, there are parks that we have that, you know, if you try to program them, you're going to have a problem with the neighbors. You know, so one size doesn't necessarily fit all here. And so I do give a great deal of discretion and credence to the professionals who are who run our parks. The last time I checked and I will say this, our parks are still winning. Our Parks Recreation Marine Department is still winning awards on a national level for the delivery of services on and on and on again. And that's because we have awesome partners. And I love the fact that we are talking about, you know, continuing to build and leverage the partnerships that we have, partners of parks. I know there's some some exciting things happening with that data support organization. And I saw something here that really jumped out at me looking at partners, partnering with Colombia's unified school district. And I think that is certainly in line with the the the aims, the goals of this this this council, as we have recently, you know, we generated the Joint Use Committee with Long Beach Unified. And we'll certainly be discussing these items on the agenda, you know, with with the with our Long Beach Unified Partners as well. I think engaging neighborhood groups and adopting parks is right where we need to be. And and making sure, like you said, this comprehensive approach engages everybody and takes into account and to our entire population, including, of course, most importantly, our youth, but but also our senior citizens who who contribute so greatly to the city. So I'm actually looking forward to this. As I understand it, this is a strategic approach. This is a beginning, right, of a process that will will engage several community stakeholders and partners. And a plan will come back to us at a later date. Correct. Thank you very much. I just wanted to make sure we were clear. Thank you very much, Councilman. I assume Councilman Supra, now. Thank you. And to staff, thank you for an excellent report. Really enjoyed it. The only downside was the fourth district parks were included in it. So I'd like to make a request right now, and that is if you want to just deliver it from the fourth District Office. And that is I'd like to see a crunched the numbers on AWS of a park the corner of 14th and Zaba. I think those. Density numbers will probably rival MacArthur Park. 90804 is one of the most. Dense areas of the city. And I mentioned that because. When the numbers get that high and then you have a part that is challenged with access. Because of any variety of issues, then it's a double whammy. Then you have more people not being able to get to that park. So I would like to kind of address things that that very basic level. We had a situation at Whaley Park. When Cal State Long Beach changed their parking policy for. Freshmen. Suddenly, the students. Parked all around the park 24 seven over. The weekend and everything, and suddenly not only the neighbors couldn't get to the park, but we talk about that factor of people coming from the west side or the east side, and there was no place to park. Very simple solution we put into our parking bingo in a problem. So I'm looking at for some simple solutions where we have issues that are preventing the neighbors from utilizing the park. And I would love to see. PRM involved in that process. We have PD, we. Have homeless outreach. We have the city prosecutor's office. But really, PRM is kind of the eyes and ears right there. You have staff. There all the time, and. I know I'm a little bit off topic here, but the greatest equity programs in the world are of no use if the residents don't have access to the park. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Miranda. Thank you, Mayor. And I want to add my my voice to the compliment state. Mr. Miller is receiving care out of the. You're a quick study. Very good. I recall not too long ago

o where I say you got to stop using the term that you're new to the city, where this report right here shows that you've really made a great effort to go out and see all our parks, make a quick assessment, and determine what needs to be done to ensure that there's equity and equality in all our parks. I'm especially pleased to see that you're looking at creating more opportunities for contract. Contract programs in parks especially are lacking in some of those and some of those areas, such as dance or even the resume writing. So it's it's comprehensive. I'm very glad to see that you jumped right in and you go in hard and and you came up with a report that I think we all can be very, very happy to see because you're headed in the right direction. I think all the comments that I've heard so far from my colleagues is that this is going in a direction that we need to see. Well, one point that I that I missed here earlier and it's fairly new, I guess, and it'll be, I guess, in future reports we're looking at at a new park, if you will, to be activated. Will Springs Park. That's still evolving, as we know, and we're still trying to look at ways to get a a community resource center there, or at least to a reception center there so that people can know what the what the park is all about, its history and and what's available there and walking paths and all that. So, I mean, hopefully in another report, we can look at Will Springs and include that in in this area here, because it's greenspace and it's another opportunity for our residents to enjoy open space. Nature walks, as well as being able to learn a little bit more about the history of Long Beach and why it's called Willow Springs Park. It's a very little known fact there. So I see that we have some members of the Parks Recreation Commission here. Welcome. Glad to see you here. And that shows our support that you have with our Parks, Recreation and Marine Department and the people who work there. And I see that some of the staff is still here. Of course, they probably need to be here. They have to be here to support the director, but that's neither here nor there. But I'm glad to see that you're all here to support this item and to support this report, because I think it's obviously one that's headed in the right direction. And we this is not something that we're going to shelve. I think this needs to be a live document or a living document like this is a terminal we need to use so that it could evolve and and change as we move along and make those changes into our park system to make sure that we address all our needs in the communities. And you're absolutely right. That comes from basically what we were taught. We're about access. And that's that's a big issue with me everywhere and everything that I've done that I do. It's about making sure that our communities have access to all the opportunities that we offer here in the city of Long Beach. So thank you, Mr. Watt, for this report and I'm looking ng forward to working with you even further as we go, as we move along. Thank you, Congressman. Uranium. Councilman, Mongo. I thought it was great that one of my colleagues mentioned how aware our new director is of the parks. If you don't already follow him on Facebook and you have not been to all of our parks on a regular basis, he is at a park taking photos of the park, participating in or talking to participants at the parks. I've lived here almost my whole life. That was a quick exception to go away to college and I've been to all of our parks over time, but in such a short amount of time for you to have been to so many parks is very impressive. And then to follow up on something Austin said about the Joint Use Committee, I would love to see us get to a place where Long Beach Unified and the City have a better access policy. I know that right now there's differences between pools and fields and there's lots of opportunities where the principals have the discretion there. Oddly, Park Reservation system is very their online field reservation system is very different than ours. There's no congruency. And so what happens now is we allocate fields based on. A formula and that their allocation of fields is not based on a formula. And so there are winners and losers that we could really prevent if we had a better relationship. And I know that part of the relationships challenge is our on our side related to timing, because the timing of how many fields are needed is based on the timing of when the enrollments are, which really doesn't give us a lot of communication opportunities in that short little window between when we find out how many kids are in each program and when the season starts. And so for that, I look forward to any opportunities and solutions that I know Long Beach is ready and willing to be supportive of that. Understanding that principals change and move regularly. And so that's part of the the complexity of it all. And same with our, our our sister sports system commissioners change regularly as well. So thank you to everyone. Great presentation. And again, thank you, everyone for being here. Thank you very much. Councilman Michael, I first of all, I'd like to just say I'd like to thank Councilwoman Gonzalez to bring this item forward, because in a lot of our communities, our parks are a lifeline. And I just can find that, you know, this is where you go to gather and find out how to get together, come together. And this is what's so important about, you know, our new director here, he and his staff. You guys are very, very hard workers. And I say once this was brought forward, this you he just went all out. And I just want to thank you, because the first time I met this individual, you know, I met him at Vets Park and, you know, and the residents. So I felt even though there was a lot of work to do, I knew we were in the right direction because I'm looking forward to a masterplan citywide for MacArthur's Park, which we've had man y conversations about. And I just want to thank you for getting on top of these things so fast. And and you and your staff, you guys are really wonderful. And I want to thank you guys for being so hard, such hard workers and working with the community. We have so many parks and you have such a large responsibility. But thank you again for being so supportive. And with that, the web and the community, I mean by coming. Yes. Certainly is a great presentation. The one picture you had up there that showed and I realize it was designed prior to you being there is that building makes sure that is high definition in this case me. But make sure it's an ADA accessible period. Also, it would be best to advise people relative to the waterfront areas. Remember that you do not fish off the company pier. Some people fail to understand that. Even some. Council members had also their full array of services offered by the commendable Parks Department. Psychiatric care is not one of them. So if you if one has some psychiatric problems or if you have a friend that knows one. If you have a friend that needs it, recommend they go and take it to the Health Department. A park facility is no more appropriate than that, than a city council seat being used to tell, you know, somebody to impart their tale of woe and so forth. But overall, absolutely tremendous job and the presentation. And again, given the short time that you've been here. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Council members, our new director and the Parks Commissioners. My name is Michelle Aaron Eckhoff. I am the co-chair of Craftsman Village Historic District, and I'm here tonight to speak about park equity for our neighborhood and for all the other neighborhoods in our city that have been underserved. Our little park, Craftsman Village Park, was a dream of our neighborhood about ten years ago. The residents of Pressman Village worked together with our first district council member, who was Bonnie Lowenthal at the time, and then Robert Garcia, and then finally Lena Gonzales and the Parks Recreation Department to create a beautiful park, a park for our neighbors to enjoy. With a very robust effort by parks in writing grants to help fund the project, our park was completed in 2013. For the last two summers, we have been very fortunate to have the financial support of Councilwoman Lena Gonzalez. She provided our park with a summer recreation program for children ages 5 to 12. In addition to this, she partnered with our historic district this summer to provide a movie in the park for all of us to enjoy. Much to our surprise and amazement. We had a very large turnout for this event. Over 110 residents enjoyed a movie under the stars. Families gathered shared company and camaraderie. Create creating a bond that will continue. And I want to go off script just for a moment and say that our last Craftsman Village historic district meeting, we had a record turnout of 30 plus people. And I really feel it's due to the fact that we had that beautiful evening that night, and it brought out more people to that meeting. So it really does have a lasting effect, the effect that continues. Councilwoman Gonzalez provided the funding for the permit for this movie in the park and the insurance. And one of our residents completely donated all of his equipment and expertise to make this a night of pure magic. Gladys Kiser from Parkes helped with the logistics a little bit and we were all set. Overwhelmingly, our residents asked for another such event and regular programming at our park. We are asking our council to support specifically programming at Craftsman Village Park, a regular summer recreation program for our youth, and two movie nights next summer. More broadly, Craftsman Village supports other neighborhoods all across Long Beach who who deserve equal access to a recreation program. Thank you all and goodnight. Hello. Good evening, council. My name is Jim Danno. I'm here to talk about the new Parks and Rec. Director. Director Monet. I think you've done a fantastic job. And I say this because your actions speak louder than your words. I've seen you at two different events. You've been out serving the parks. And I really, truly believe that you're sincere in wanting to drive home the right direction of parks. And I really appreciate that. I would also commend the Council and what you're doing with partnering with local nonprofits. I think that there's a pool of money out there with different grants that can be reached. And if we can work together, we can help offset some of the costs that the parks are having. Also recently, I am now a card carrying AARP member and I would goldthorpe i would like to see more of senior activities at the parks, not just at senior centers, but things geared towards, you know, older people at the parks. With that being said, I thank you very, very much for what you're doing. Thank you. Thank you. Next video. Good evening. Council and vice mayor and Park Staff. Park Commissioners My name is Kathleen Irvine. I'm first district resident and president of Willmar City Heritage Association. The first thing I want to do, of course, is thank Mr. Mowat for his wonderful work. I talked to him a number of times. And like the. Previous speakers and this. And the. City council, I think that his work and his commitment in such a short period of time is really amazing. It is certainly something I would never have. Expected in the past. So I'm very surprised and very gratified. I appreciate Councilwoman Gonzales for bringing forth the Park Equity Challenge, and I look forward to working with park staff in improving things. I do not have children here. Most of our board do not. But we recognize the importance of our parks for our youth and that they are involved and have access when they can get in trouble, that there's someplace for them to go. So that's really one of our primary concerns, is that they have things that will assist them in getting jobs and entertaining them and keeping them out of trouble. So thank you, everybody, very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker. Good evening. Thank you. Honorable Vice Mayor, council members and director, mouat and all of the parks people who are here tonight. I'm Carol Sergey. I'm vice president of North Pine Neighborhood Alliance. And I live in the First District and I volunteer and care for the raised beds at Cesar Chavez Park that were so lovingly developed by Jim and Kathleen, who were just standing up here. And with the help of my neighbors and with neighbors and kids from the neighborhood, we are doing a great thing at this park. And I also host a weekly potluck lunch there. And I've met neighbors, staff and I enjoy building community there. I've really fallen in love with Cesar Chavez and I can see how important this park is to our neighborhood. The community center is a treasure, but it suffers from what most of our parks, city parks have or experienced broken equipment, lack of maintenance and a lack of programming, services, understaffing being closed on the weekends, a lack of bathroom on weekends, and no recycling program. Our neighborhood is experiencing rapid increases in population without park space that's so badly needed. But we have a rich network of parks in our city that can provide green time for all of Long Beach. And I'm looking forward to working with director Mouat to make all of this much better. Thank you so much. Thank you. Next week. Good evening, Vice Mayor Andrews and City Council members and happy belated Indigenous Peoples Day. My name is Omar Cardenas, a resident of the sixth District and community organizer. With my goals and actions, I'm here to speak in support of the Park Equity Report and in the recommendations put forward. Our vision for a city is to foster a sense of ownership and pride among all our residents, from the youngest to the oldest, where public space is accessible to all and a vibrant energy is felt wherever you go, no matter which council district you live in or where you come from, whether you come from a low income family or an affluent household, everyone deserves the right to have a safe, welcoming and empowering space to go to in their communities that are equitably resource and uplift the needs of those who have the most need. I believe this Council has taken the steps in the right, have taken steps in the right direction to open up more parks and renovate existing ones. However, the reality is that we are a long way from reversing the devastating impacts of discriminatory policies like redlining. They have created intergenerational poverty and low income and working class communities. A study by the National Community Reinvestment Coalition has shown that a vast majority of neighborhoods marked hazardous or coded in red and on maps have both by HUD and Homeowners Loan Corporation are much more likely than other areas to comprise of low income minority residents.

Other studies show that two thirds of community of residents who live in these neighborhoods are inhabited by mostly black and Latinx families, compared to 91% of green neighborhoods that remain upper middle class income homes today and roughly 85% predominantly white. When putting this into perspective, it is quite alarming to see that from the 2017 Park Equity Report, we continue to see that examples of redlining, maybe it's a stretch, but that some communities are being less invested in than in others. Furthermore, community based organizations like Margaux's In Action and other smaller community based organizations working to access spaces at our parks can be extremely difficult given the burden of costs we often have to carry, in addition to oftentimes the million dollar insurance policies that are required to reserve space at parks, creating barriers to increase our engagement and service in these communities. I want to thank Councilwoman Lena Gonzalez and Director Mowat for championing for bravely championing this Park Equity Report. Their efforts are aligned with priorities of Long Beach residents. As you all know, the Long Beach Long Beach Invest in Youth Campaign recently released a report where over seven seven out of ten Long Beach residents support greater public funding for youth programs. And 78% believe that Moore Park programming should be a top priority for this council. In conclusion, we call on the mayor and the City Council to create more streamlined process for community based organizations to activate park space and prioritize park programming hours in communities that have been historically under invested and families have been asked to unjustly take on the financial burden and unrealistic, unrealistic cost of programs. Thank you. Thank you very much. Good evening, everyone. My name is Christine Pettit. I'm an executive director for Long Beach Forward. Our vision for Long Beach is that race and income do not determine one's future. It's a community where everyone is safe, connected and healthy. I really appreciate the leadership of Councilwoman Gonzalez in bringing this item forward initially and continuing this work, as well as the new leadership of our Parks Director taking this on and really reflecting the conversation. I'd also like to encourage a strong collaboration with the Department of Health and Human Services and the Office of Equity. As you continue this work and really tonight, I want to encourage us to keep the spirit of the original item going throughout this conversation. In that initial presentation, we saw the disparities in the contract classes. We saw the disparity where you have high rates of unemployment and one in the central area of Long Beach in particular, and other areas in the city, but all the adult enrichment classes being held at Eldorado Park. And so it's really important. I think density is one way of looking at that, who's served, what the needs are. But we really need to keep these other ki nd of indicators, whether it's the the areas in terms of the zip code, what the employment rate and access to other opportunities are in those areas. And really just to stick to the intention of this item, another important one being streamlining the process, reducing the red tape for community organizations to activate parks and to be involved in the planning process. I was really happy to see items like community engagement and language access as priorities in the Parks Strategic Plan. And I've just seen so many examples, whether it be at MLK Park, MacArthur Park, Admiral Kidd, where there are community residents who are really wanting to make changes and activate those spaces and coming up with a lot of barriers. And so community involvement is very important to make sure that this is part of our process moving forward. Additionally, our organization worked with others to support. We do a lot of community events and I know in one particular instance and there have been several others where we were trying to hold a workshop at a park space and the cost was so prohibitive that we ended up, you know, using a church with no air conditioning in the middle of the summer. It was still packed, but it was not very comfortable. So it's really important that we have programming that's relevant, that's dispersed throughout the community, and we really need to keep the focus on equity. I'd like to see numbers about how we're really moving the needle in this conversation. Councilmember Richardson took the words right out of my mouth. We need to make sure that we're staying focused on how we're actually making change around equity in our city. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker. Charlotte Hi, my name is Mariella Salgado and I am also a commissioner for District One. I just wanted to say that I support the city and parks in the interdepartmental and collaborative approach. It's great to see a comprehensive approach to our park system. There's and I second some of what said here, there's a lot of opportunity here to leverage relationships. Like I saw Long Beach Unified School District. One of the things I always noticed is how come our students are kids don't know about the great things that are happening at the park and community partners. Some of the folks that have spoken here and build relationships to increase access to our park system and provide educational opportunities and programming to our children. I look forward as Commissioner to supporting an increase in inclusive, safe and accessible infrastructures within our parks to its residents and in my opinion, more importantly, our children. Thank you. Thank you. You. Karen Reside, resident of First District. And I'm also honored to be almost an eight year volunteer of partners of Parks Corado. Thank you so much for this comprehensive report. We've really needed something like this for a long time. I work almost every day with the dedicated park staff. I have never seen staff give so much to our community and be so unrecognized. Lena, thank you for bringing this forward. Parks are such a vital part of our community and we need more of them and we need more activities, particularly in the low income neighborhoods. I also want to reiterate the fee barriers and also parks. We pay taxes on our parks. We all do. We all support our parks. So asking for fees on top of it sometimes, as Christine mentioned, through the work I do with the Long Beach Gray Panthers, sometimes that's a barrier, too. So it's it's not just within the community. It's with our groups and bringing our communities together. So I want to mention those things and please include teams in the planning process for their particular programs. Through my work with with the Boys and Girls Clubs, teens will not participate unless they are engaged in the programming planning and its programming that they want. And it's absolutely critical that they have a place, a safe place and our parks, so that they can create and grow on their own. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker. Good evening. My name is Andrew Carroll, second district. I was happy to attend the sort of reopening of the East Village Arts Park that was helped to fight for. I'm very encouraged by the conversation here tonight. Very happy to see the new director as well. I'd like to add, I can't resist bringing this up when I hear about. Economic inequalities, and I think especially given the history within Long Beach of economic segregation. I like to remind if we're worried about money money echoing counter one Mungo's comment and also Councilmember Joe Rubinoff that the parks can be as great as they can be . But if we don't have access or if we don't have money to continue maintaining them, then it almost it's going to make the efforts twice as hard for us if we're interested in funding. I just like to bring this up because it's kind of my pet issue. As we know, certain parts of Long Beach in which the parks are better will by and large have higher property values as we make improvements to our parks. It is statistically very likely that property values in the surrounding area will go up. This could sadly, ironically, work to price people out of the. Areas that parks. Are in. This has happened with gentrification and other issues like that. So I would encourage the city to continue to look into finding a way to capture the value that reify itself in property values as parks become more valuable. That is public investment, public money. Parks belong to the public, but the money ends up in the private pockets of landowners through rent. So there is ways to catch this. The Belmont Shore area already does this with its parking, for example, and there are ways to get around Prop 13 with catchment areas. And I would encourage Long Beach to continue looking into that. This is probably not the best forum for me to bring that up. I should probably actually attend a, you know, Parks meeting one day and just sort of talk. But I just wanted to take things that we often forget is the costs associated with that. And so I think that across the board, there might be things that we've been subjected that maybe we didn't want to add, other things that we think we should be. 17 And I think that that's where the core of the question comes from. And then we talked a little bit about metered said recycling programs, that additional park programs that could be available at different parks. If you have park programs or specific contract classes that you're interested in and you have a specific group of individuals where you can say, I know that if you give yoga in this park, we'll get 12 participants. That's really where we've had the success with some of our contract classes. The instructors are always very eager if they know they can get the participant levels. And so if you are already having those meetings in your community and you know which specific classes those are reticent email, please feel free to call. I have a lot of contact with a lot of the instructors because a lot of them already teach at Eldorado Park, so they reach out to me quite often. They are looking to add a second park, but they don't really have a gauge or understanding of which park should be that second park. And making those choices can often be bad business decisions because if the community that that gets yoga is actually the community that wanted resumés, then they have a class with two participants that they lose money. And so if you already have an engaged base that they're really eager to help and I'm happy to help as well. Thank you. Thank you very much. Councilwoman Gonzalez. I just want to close this up by saying thank you again for everybody coming today. And I look forward to connecting with the Invest and Youth campaign and all of our groups to start really talking about what those programs will look like. So thank you again. Thank you very much. I see I have a first and second which has two votes. Now we move to item 12 with the clock. Please read the item. A report from Police Department recommendation received and filed the application o f Simos for a premise to premise and person to person transfer of an ABC license at 5 to 7 one East Second Street District three. Yes. Would have to me. Vice Mayor, councilor councilors. We have a quick report from Commander Lieberman here. This right here. Good evening, Honorable Mayor and City Council. Item number 12 is an. Application for a type. 47 on sale. General, a license for a restaurant. This license will authorize the furnishing of beer, wine and distilled spirits to patrons. The police department has conducted our investigation. And do not. Anticipate. Any adverse impact. With the issuance of the license. That concludes my report, and I'm available for questions, if you might have any. Thank you very much. I appreciate that report. We I strongly support this item. We did do community outreach on this. I received no objections that I'm aware of since this has been a very responsible partner in the shore. The entire block adjacent to this location is supportive of this concept because these operators are incredibly responsible. So I ask my colleagues to support this item and wish sympathies. The best of luck continuing to operate in the store. Thank you. Councilman Soprano. I enthusiastically circumsise it. Thank you. Any public comment on this? Not. Please cast your vote. Now we're going to move back to Paris. Okay, fine. Now we move that consent count. Do we have a motion for all the items on the consent count of four and 12, which will be heard separately? Next item. Item 41 is a communication from Council Member Richardson recommendation to increase appropriations in the general fund in the City Manager Department by 5000, offset by the ninth Council districts. One time district priority funds to support the 2018 Veterans Day celebration. Councilmember Richardson. Thank you. We support the Veterans Day celebration every year. Fundraising is a little bit slower than we originally anticipated, so we're allocating $5,000 to help offset the cost of the Veterans Day celebration this year. And if anyone like to help to contribute to support this. Feel free to reach out. We are raising money to help support our Veterans Day celebration. Thanks. Thank you very much. Public comment. Councilmember Price. Members cash of votes. Councilwoman Mangal, thank you much in case. Councilmember Richardson. Thank you. Bush and Kerry's. Next item item three nine Report from Public Works Recommendation to execute an amendment to contract with concrete concrete construction for concrete repairs and related improvements. Increasing the contract amount by additional 7 million city. Okay. It's been motioned and seconded their staff report on this one. Craig Beck. Yeah. Just real quickly, council on this one. I wanted to bring the council up to speed as to where we are. Normally, we wouldn't come forward with a request to extend a contract this many terms, but we are doing an RFP for concrete replacement. And the last RFP that we had ready to bring forward thi s past summer through the RFP process, it was deemed that none of the respondents met all the criteria and so purchasing essentially denied acceptance of the different bidders under that RFP process. And so we are going back out. In fact, there is a new RFP on the street. As I present this this evening, I anticipate having the responses to that RFP and being before council, hopefully by March in the New Year. This is a very important contract. This is for concrete work, spot work associated with both our street programs and our ADA programs. This is, for example, preparing and installing new ADA ramps, path of travel repairs, bus pads, etc.. CGA Construction has done a lot of work in the city. They have always performed to our standards and at a reasonable price within market, and we're asking for this extension until we can bring forward a permanent contract. That concludes my report. Thank you very much. Is there because we were younger? Yeah, I. I'm going to go ahead and move the title forward because it is an essential piece of work that we have done in the city. However, I received information that the current contractor has some issues that need to be reviewed, and this brings up a broader concern that we might have with a contract that when we extend contracts and give additional money and that's doing such extensions without some kind of evaluation or or review of these contracts so that we can feel comfortable with renewing a contract or providing more money or extending it, that it's within the scope of the work that they're doing, doing it up to up to the standards that the city wants. So in the future, I understand that there's going to be a new RFP going out. And I would I would hope that if this current contractor reapply for a renewal or to continue to work in the city, that there would be a review of the performance this period. So that when it comes back, we have a better understanding as to the performance of this current contractor. Councilmember Price. I agree. Very well said. Thank you. I would just add that Public Works would be happy to work with Councilmember Turanga and this Council to review any performance issues and make sure that all of our contractors are meeting our standards. Councilmember Pearce. I'm going to be more specific. How are we ensuring that our contractors are paying prevailing wage? Is there any role that the city plays in that? Councilmember Pearce? That is correct, yes. All contractors that work on city projects are required to pay prevailing wage. We go through a pretty extensive process where the contractors need to provide certified payroll. We work closely with financial management who does our our prevailing wage analysis and review process. We also work with them to ensure that we're meeting all job criteria, including our place standards for those those projects that are covered by play. Great. Thank you. Is there any public comment on this? Hi. Good afternoon. Uh, my name is Nicholas Santos, and I'm a investigator for the Center for Contract Compliance. We monitor public works projects subject to prevailing wages and apprenticeship requirements. And I wanted to bring a couple of things to light this evening. Um, I have a public file here. It's a, it's with five of the C.J. workers going after C.J. for wages and overtime for every L.A. County job that he's put out to bid for the past couple of years. That's one of them. And there's five workers that also worked on the Long Beach project that's been ongoing the past six years. So that will be visited in the future. We also have a couple civil wage and penalty assessments that have recently been issued. And that was through the Labor Commissioner's office here in Long Beach, the Department of Labor Standards Enforcement. Um, the closest one being in La mirada, where they owed 100 and well, roughly $180,000 in wages. And with the total liability of 282,000 after the penalties and apprenticeship violations, there's also another one in the city of La Palma, where they also have violated apprenticeship requirements. And there is also public knowledge that there's three current investigations that have been assigned to deputy labor commissioners that are currently ongoing. So aside from that. Well, in conclusion, I urge that the Council I urge that the council postpone the motion and consider rebidding the contract to the outset due to the outstanding state investigations and the likelihood of obtaining favorable pricing by utilizing the competitive bidding process. And if not, I recommend that the future RFP include a requirement to disclose any outstanding state investigations. So when the proposals are renewed, a contractor's recent wage judgments will be taken into consideration. Thank you very much. Okay. Thank you. By the way, do you would. Where are you going to provide that to the clerk for for a counsel benefit? Yes, I can. I got kind of this was late notice for me. So I have copies here that I can leave. Great. Okay. Thank you. Councilmember Mongo. Yes. Just a little bit of information that I think is helpful. Mr. Beck, when we discussed this option items earlier, I think that you'd brought forward and a point that I thought is very, very important to Long Beach and why we stand out from other cities and don't have as many violations. You talked about certified payroll records that we require from our contractors. And one of the things that perhaps one of our committees could consider is from a influenced, influential standpoint to some of the smaller cities that don't require that that maybe we could talk to other elected official bodies, that they would want to require that because one of the benefits we have is we have less violators because you actually have to provide certified payroll records. And a lot of these smaller cities where these violations are happening don't require such things. And so I know that a lot of us can either start to use that kind of influence or on any of the regional boards or county boards that we sit on or talk with. Because what we want is everyone to be paid prevailing wage, even if it's not within our city. And so just something that I thought was really unique about our city. And I applaud you and the city auditor for your work on that. And I think the certification process actually puts them in a position where they are really in a position to comply. And I think that that's great. But people that work in our city have that. So thank you. GONZALEZ Yes. So how do we you know, because I've heard this come up before with C.J., not just here tonight. So how are we still working with them, if this is in fact true? And if they have provided certified payroll, how does that all work? I'm just trying to get that in my head.

Councilmember Gonzalez I'm not aware of any wage violations for Long Beach work. If there is a wage dispute, typically there's a number of avenues that a contractor and or employee can go forward with. To my understanding, the the. Athat is typically used is to go to the Department of Industrial Relations and file a complaint. They will then research that complaint. They will work with the contractor and the certifying agency for Long Beach work that would be us and ask for those records and those certified payrolls, review those with the work force that is on the job and the type of work that they are performing. And compare that to the prevailing wage tables and ensure that they are paying the appropriate prevailing wage. Sometimes those disputes are elevated into a lawsuit. Again, I'm not aware of any of those issues in our city, but we're here to work closely with the DA on any questions they have or information they need to do their investigations, if in fact, that's what they need to do for our projects. Okay. Thank you for that. And I will. Okay. Thank you. Appreciate it. Councilmember Pierce. There was no one and then there was everyone queued up. I have a question on the RFP process. Is there and I know we're dealing with this in another industry, but is there a process where we could require them to disclose any lawsuits brought against them for, you know, any wage prevailing wage issues? I actually believe that's already in the RFP as part of their requirements for submittals. But if it's not, I will ensure that that is included in any particular RFP process. Judgments only currently. Okay. Well, and the reason I ask that is because I think the concern, particularly with this contractor, is that this is not these concerns are not brought up just this year, but that this has been ongoing with this contractor. And so making sure that we are doing RFP with contractors that are good practice and in compliance with with labor law. That's my only question. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson. It's one of the chime in and say this. You know, we've seen this happen a number of times when sort of the public brings you know, raises issues with contractors is no way for us to stay on top of this. But what I'd like to understand or move to and maybe this is a broader conversation, but I'd like to understand when we go through a process of vetting contracts, there should be some some eligibility or some standard in place that talks about compliance with with sort of, you know, labor standards. And we should have an understanding on what that is before we are presented with an opportunity to extend, you know, a contract by $7 million. I'd like to I'd like to personally know that I don't know if this is the venue to have that. So I'm going to vote and support this. But I think we definitely need to figure out a better way. I don't want to I think it's unfair to the projects. It's unfair to public works. If every you know, if when these contracts come up and these issues are are not necessarily vetted and we're not in a strong position to say, hey, are we setting a bad example for all the good contractors that are out there that's frankly a lot of money into local economics. And and we support, you know, using leveraging our expenses to create economic opportunity for our communities. So those are my remarks. Thanks. And so I will take this opportunity to chime in as well. I just had a question regarding our own city compliance officers. And has there been any issues with this particular contract here in Long Beach? That you are aware of? Again, I'm not aware of any issues associated with Long Beach work and prevailing wage or any judgments against this contractor. And as we move forward with the permanent RFP, I will ensure that we collect that information and provide that to this council when we bring the item forward for an on call concrete contractor. So I'm gonna also just go to the time sensitivity of this particular item. You know, are there projects lined up? Can you just tell me what they are? Yeah.

So currently we don't have anybody under contract that can provide concrete work other than all-American and all-American is our street contractor. So, as you know, this council has supported a complete Street's approach. So when we do any street work, we are also doing sidewalk repair. So all-American. When they do a street, they will pick up concrete. But any ADA ramps, any path of travel issues. As you know, as part of the A419 budgeted option, there is $2 million allocated towards sidewalk work. There's $500,000 towards our ADA Rapid Response Program. We do not currently have a contractor on board that can provide that work. So C.J. would be use to install many of our ADA ramps, etc. until we can get a permanent bidder in place. And as I mentioned earlier, that RFP is on the street currently. I anticipate having all those bids closed and have a recommendation before council in March or April of 19. So my question is, I mean, we just heard some information and public comment that, you know, I think gave the council some pause and concern. I've asked questions regarding our own city compliance and d ealings with this particular contractor, and you're not aware of any any issues. But I would feel a lot better if if we could have an opportunity and maybe a couple of weeks to look into this. We're continuing this item for two or three weeks will hurt the productivity of the projects. So your agenda is that in December, that means no work will get done until December and this council can move this item forward. So I guess as Margo, did you have something. To say. If you're if you're calling me? We we have already communicated work that's been scheduled by public works to the district. So we have residents that are specifically told that their work would be done. And so now that just does bring up some other concerns from what I was understanding when I met with Mr. Beck earlier today to discuss the potential concerns. This is only through March or June. The item before council this evening is to provide a one year extension for CGA construction and add some funds to allow us to move forward with many of the concrete responsibilities that we have to do under our ADA program and our street program, etc. There is an RFP on the street that we will have a vendor selected to bring forward to council, and I'm anticipating that will be in March or April. And the concern is that we might be in violation of our ADA requirements of the lawsuit if we were to pause. Right now we are behind our agreed settlement stated goals in our settlement agreement where we said we would complete up to 4500 new curb ramps within the first five years. Correct. Okay. Well. And Mr. Beck, if I'm sorry, my train of thought was still going, keep going. Thank you. And, Mr. Beck, you have the option at the time when you bring back the vendors that respond to the RFP and your selection, that you could terminate this at that time you're just asking for in case we are ending up in a situation where we were before? Councilmember That's correct. Thank you. And I would take it a step further. Again, I've stated I'm not aware of any issues with this contractor in this city. I will review that and provide counsel at TFF stating that position. If in fact we find that we have those violations for any of our projects, then I will also recommend that we suspend this and not bring forward. I really appreciate that. Many people don't know. But. When I was younger, I actually was a complete infant in a labor dispute for not being paid. And I take this very, very seriously. But I also recognize that there's a process, and I'd like to know the difference between judgments and accusations and all those types of things and and make sure that we're doing the right thing all the time. So thank you for that. I appreciate the TFF and I'll be supporting the item. Okay. So I'll support the item too, especially after hearing our public works director commit to looking into this, providing that information to the council. So is there any other public comment here in non members? Please cast your votes. Mot ion carries. And next up is Richard Lindemann. Linda been here? Nope. Okay, then let me go back to the regular agenda. There's been a request. I just want to make sure. Just that we hear this item, because I want to make sure that we're moving all the items up that we have request for item 28, which is the utility wires audit. No. Item 28 Communication from Councilwoman Price. Councilmember Super Councilman Austin. Recommendation to request City Manager to report back in 60 days on the feasibility of directing public works to conduct an audit of utility wires throughout the city to identify maintenance needs and violations. Okay. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I am encouraging my colleagues to support this item tonight. Throughout the city of Long Beach, you can see large collections of utility wires crisscrossing streets, alleys and over residences. Often these wires are wrapped in bundles, hanging from telephone poles or tied to other wires. Sometimes these wires are tangled among tree branches or appear in disrepair and have been left and removed when a previous business or residential tenant has moved out. Violations of maintenance standards by the utility provider can cause safety concerns, including increased risk of fire, high wind, disconnecting, poorly maintained wires, tree branches causing service interruptions and downed power lines, resulting in damage to private property. Additionally, utility wires that are not well-maintained create visual blight throughout our city and can contribute to the overall deterioration of a community. Individual resident groups have begun conducting their own evaluations of wire issues like these and have begun documenting these maintenance and safety concerns with only volunteer time and expertise. This effort is severely limited and I want to acknowledge the Belmont Heights Community Association for taking a leadership role in bringing this issue to light. This issue could be addressed more comprehensively if city departments were to conduct an audit of major and minor corridors, alleys and other areas to assess the locations of maintenance issues and safety concerns with the goal of providing this information to the utility providers, as well as the California Public Utilities Commission. Most recently, we've seen fire danger that has spread throughout Southern California. And if we have ways to identify fire risks, such as abandoned wires in areas that can cause fires, we should be addressing those and addressing them as a public safety and public health issue. Long Beach is a beautiful and amazing city, but there's always room for improvement and taking more action to maintain something we all see every day, like utility wires, is something we can do to improve everyone's safety as well as make residents feel better about their community. Sure there is. This is not the biggest issue facing Long Beach today. That's definitely clear. But this is another way that we can continue to work to make sure Long Beach

h residents feel proud of their neighborhood and that we minimize the risk of fire danger in our communities. So with that, I'd ask my colleagues to support this item, and I know we do have some public comment on this item tonight. Thank you. I want to go to a public comment or councilman, you want to go first? Well, I'll just say I second the motion. I think this is a very responsible item coming forward. And I want to thank Councilmember Price for bringing it forward and asking me to sign on as a coauthor. I think this is the only concern I have is whether or not 60 days is long enough for for this order to actually happen and what sort of proactive efforts will staff make once they find hazards out there so that. My comments, but I'll be happy to support this. Okay. Let me go and do public comment then. Hello. My name is Sydney Simon. I live at 4115 East Second Street and I am wholeheartedly in support of this agenda item. Um, I have been interested in this issue for a long time and 202,013 I wrote an article for the Belmont Heights Community Association newsletter about the egregious wires going all over my driveway, patio, backyard, everywhere, and people just came out of the woodwork on this issue and everybody was interested in working on it. So we developed a team to go out and survey our our neighborhood using the criteria of if there were. We called out locations of lines that were more than two lines going to one house, low drooping lines, and the big rat's nest of wires that's at the at the poles. We filed a complaint with the CPSC, sending in our survey pictures, supporting letters signed by nine other community associations. And we were told that we had no standing unless it was on our property. We couldn't contact the service CPSC. So I just kept going up on their organizational chart until I finally found a fill in as Mr. Fill In, it says, was a program director of consumer affairs for CPSC, and he sent out their chief engineer to meet with us to go over the survey and to meet with Verizon and Charter. He called out many infractions that the charter companies had done and the CPSC sent a notice to Verizon to fix them and they basically refused. So the engineer said that he would send it to their legal department. Well, they heard nothing back. So a year later, we wrote a letter to the city attorney asking for help if he could contact. And it was eventually turned over to. Two, Art Sanchez, who is deputy city attorney, taking care of those issues. And he sent an email to the CPSC general counsel asking to be enlightened on what has happened. And we got no answer at all at that point. We had a meeting with Diana Tang and Art Sanchez, and at Councilwoman Price's suggestion, it was turned over to the legislative state committee here. And we have heard nothing more about that. So so anyway, I want to say, I don't 100% support having a survey for the whole city. Thank you. Thank you so much next week for please. Good evening. My name is

Diane Sundstrom. My address is on file. I also live in Belmont Heights. I'm a board member of the community association and I'm Sidney sidekick. In this effort. And I also want to encourage the council to support this motion. I think it's very important. And to add on to Sidney's comments, when Verizon refused to comply with the CPU Seas directive to correct safety violations, we decided to go to the PUC. Hearing in August of 2015 that related to the Verizon Frontier transfer. And I spoke about Verizon's refusal to comply. And as one would expect, there was a flurry of activity after that meeting, but that was not sustained. So we continued, as Sidney said, speaking to the city, Diana Tang was very involved. Councilwoman Pryce And eventually we also talked to Congressman O'Donnell's office and met with Senator Laura. And our meeting with Senator Laura. Ended up in another meeting with the. CP you see in our community this year. And as a result of that, again, representatives from all the offices I just mentioned came as well as, again, Raffi Stepanian, who's the. C's chief engineer. And also Elizaveta Malashenko, who's the director of safety and Enforcement. At the CP. You see, and it was very clear from that meeting that wire safety. In other words. Wires that are not compliant as well as wire blight is still a very big issue. In the city. Rafi stood at the corner of a street between between Roswell and Examiner. On third and in his line of vision. And I quote him There are many safety violations. So Elizaveta, after. That meeting, sent us an email copying Diana Tang and others. And said that there are a couple of proceedings that would be of interest and that would likely result in some action. And one of those is a combined poor management proceeding. In other words, creating a. Shared database or a statewide census, which might be beyond our ability at this point of utility poles and conduits. And conduits, meaning. Wires. So again, it's become very. Apparent. In discussions with the CP, you see that safety as well as wire blight are a major problem. It's also clear that as a small community organization, we have no clout or nor influence. So we fully support and encourage passing Councilwoman. Price's. Motion. It's a recommended course of action from the CP you see and does have the potential to effect change. Thank you very. Much. Thank you very much. And our last speaker on this topic and then we'll go back to the council. Good evening, Dave Shukla on file. I'd like to thank my councilwoman and Mrs. Price. As well as Councilman Austin for bringing this forward. It's a tremendously important move for safety, to assess. The fire risk as well as possible explosion risk from the electrical transmission conduits, the infrastructure that we have, the transmission lines. I'd like to make just a couple of quick suggestions to improve this process, because I think it's very important and I hope you all support it. The first is pulling together t he volunteer efforts of the HCA and others into a database, as suggested, even if it's just for the city. This info that that data shouldn't just be shared with the investor owned utilities and the CPU only, but it should definitely be shared with the three companies that we're contracting with to perform a feasibility study for a community choice aggregation program. And it should also be shared with the neighborhood associations and residents who live with these fire risks and potential for explosions from the undergrounding, as we've seen in more than one place in the city, certainly downtown over the. Past couple of years. And it should be expanded to include the type of. Alliance. Electric as well. We've heard a lot about telecom. Electric, you know, long distance transmission lines from generation telecom, the conditional use permit for putting telecom infrastructure, cable, DSL, cell phones, whatever it is on existing electrical infrastructure. And also looking at potentially the undergrounding. And if a city wide map or citywide database of all of this risk can be achieved, we should take the time to do it right. If that means take. 120 days. 220 days. This may be the first and best opportunity you have to completely understand before we have a precipitous development. What our full set of risks are, I think. Thank you. Without. Go back to the council. Councilman Pierce. I just want to thank my colleagues for this. I know this is a big issue in my district. We've had several neighborhood associations from Rose Park to Alamo Speech that have called on these issues and however much time it takes of it, 60 days or 120 days. We fully support this and want to thank everyone for bringing this forward. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzalez. Yes, thank you, Councilmember Price, for bringing this forward. And we do have this on the state legislative agenda. I know Councilmember Austin chairs that. And there's under local control and our priorities, we have them both to support policies that will ensure that blight is eliminated relative to utility wires. Aside from that, I have a question that's probably not within this ordinance, but it just came up in a downtown community meeting. And it was the the it's more of a private issue, but I don't know if we have an answer for it now, but it's the cable or satellite dishes that are that exist on these buildings. And we have a multitude of them in downtown that could also pose a major risk. And I don't know if there's any sort of. Incentive or something that we can do to get these removed, because a lot of the downtown residents, they move into these places that already have satellite dishes. And not only is it blight, but it could pose another issue. I don't know if we have an answer for that right now. If not, I can maybe just do another item. While we're doing this, we can also research the possibility of looking at the dish satellites that may have been abandoned and are still there and stuff. But th ere's certainly a lot that have been abandoned and we'll take a look at those. To create may add a friendly amendment to do that. Thank you so much. I appreciate it. Thank you. There is a motion and a second on the item. A roll call vote, please. Councilwoman Gonzales. Councilmember Pierce. Councilwoman Price. Councilmember Superman II. Councilwoman Mongo. I. Vice Mayor Andrews. Councilmember Miranda. Art. Councilman Austin. Councilmember Richardson. Vice Mayor Andrews, I. Councilmember Urunga. Hi, Councilman Austin. Councilmember Richardson. Ocean carries. Now we move to item 33 clock. Please read item. Report from Development Services Recommendation to receive and file a report on the results of the Nuisance Motel pilot program by the Office of Civic Innovation and Development Services Department, and request City Attorney to prepare an ordinance to establish a nuisance motel program citywide. Would you like to do a public comment on this or you. We just had to start reporting this. Yeah. Oh, fine. Grahamstown report, please. Yes. Tracy calling the. Honorable vice mayor and City Council. In October of 2018, the Innovation Team coordinated an interdepartmental team to explore strategies to reduce nuisance activities at motels, as well as those motels that affect quality of life in their surrounding community. We partnered closely with the city prosecutor, city Attorney's Office, Development Services, Health and Human Services, Police, Fire and Financial Management to develop a task force to look at these particular properties, as well as develop procedures and recommendations to reduce criminal activity and nuisance on those property locations. We really want to thank all involved departments for their commitment to tackling these issues. This multidisciplinary approach to solving such an important problem really came in handy in working together. The staff report includes a compendium of the work that we've completed over this last year together, as well as recommendations for moving forward. I would like to turn it over to Oscar Orsi, our deputy director, and Alejandro Sanchez Lopez, a planner from both from Development Services Department, to provide the rest of the report. Good evening, honorable Mayor and members of the City Council. This presentation serves as the final update to Council on the Nuisance motel's pilot program due to the program's results, which I will cover shortly. Staff is recommending to move forward with an ordinance that codifies a nuisance motel compliance plan and establishes a review process for all hospitality locations in Long Beach. Finally, staff also research other programs and policies to address nuisance motels and bolster the ordinance effectiveness. In 2017, staff first examined data from Long Beach Police Department analyzing calls for service. And incident report levels at all hospitality locations in the city between January 2014 and May 2017. After the pilot program was first implemented, a second data analysis of police activity. From May 2017 to. May 2018 was conducted to determine the overall effect of the pilot program at. The six selected locations. As a reminder, the two data sets were analyzed separately and weighed by activity type. They were then combined into a single index or score and given a standardized score out of 100, then accounted for the number of rooms at each location. Finally, staff selected six locations out of the top 15 scores for the initial pilot program based on size, spatial clustering, site history and other contextual factors. These locations are the Colonia Motel, the Greenlee, the luxury in the Sewer Motel, the Stallion Motel and Travelodge. Following the establishment of the pilot. Program, the interdepartmental task force coordinated with the pilot program hotels to implement nuisance and crime abatement procedures such as environmental design features, lighting and safety improvements and additional private security on site. These procedures were developed, assess research and adopted practices. From other jurisdictions and programs. Concurrently, staff also presented research. Conducted research on long term policy solutions to address the use of motels to pair with a compliance plan. The results of this three pronged approach is evident with the data that follows. Firstly, when looking at police activity, hotels and motels citywide, we did not see much change from the pilot program transaction. Effectively, we saw no change in the control group that is all locations across the city for the program, as calls for service levels remained relatively stable. However, when looking at only the six pilot locations, we saw a significant reduction of about 30% in calls for service levels, going from nearly 230 calls for service in the three years pilot prior to the program to about 160 quarterly calls for service. And perhaps more significantly calls for service levels job that all six locations. Anecdotally the locations that work most closely with the city team to implement the compliance plan experience the greatest drop in calls for service. As a result. As a result of the program's success, staff is recommending that we move forward with the Nuisance Motel ordinance. The ordinance will consolidate the existing regulations that affect hospitality locations in the city. It will codify the best practices from other jurisdictions that staff identified and piloted and establish an intercontinental action team to implement and monitor compliance of the ordinance regulations and identify development services as the lead agencies. Lead agencies for the Action Team Coordination and Ordinance Compliance Excellence. In addition to the recommended ordinance, staff pursuant to counsel's direction, have researched additional policies and programs to address nuisance motels, focusing in particular to a longer range solution that can come back the structural factors that lead to nuisance and criminal activity. These include mot el conversions, zoning regulations, amortization and motel acquisition for motel conversion staff research the interim model excuse me, motel conversion ordinance from the city of Los Angeles, which allows for a ministerial approval process of temporary conversions to supportive housing that can be scaled on a citywide basis. A similar program in Long Beach could allow for applicable motels to be converted to permanent supportive housing on a temporary basis. Staff also researched, and this type of ordinance, coincidentally, could be something that we could develop by second quarter of next year. Staff also researched zoning regulations to discontinue motel uses in certain parts of the city, most notably the plan in North Long Beach could be that could designate motel uses as legally non-conforming use as meaning that they would no longer be allowed to operate after a certain period of time. This could be a more immediate step that would also serve as a precursor to additional regulations. As the Council is aware, the the plan is now moving forward and should be completed by the fourth quarter of next year. An additional tool that staff considered is the amortization or the phasing out of motel users. As most of you know, the amortization would terminate motel uses completely within a given period of time. That period of time is typically assessed through a study that allows the either businesses or the property owners to be whole of their investment. In order for us to move forward, we would need to identify revenue resources to be able to prepare the study and that direction would be needed from the council. An additional program that is essentially on a case by case basis is the acquisition of motels in order for this resource to be moved forward. Obviously, we would need revenue resources as well as the opportunity for vacancies or opportunities to purchase motels. This would allow the city the flexibility to redevelop the motels to either a supportive or additional housing or other commercial ventures. In conclusion, staff recommends that the City Council request the city attorney to prepare an ordinance to establish nuisance and motel program. This concludes staff's presentation, and we look forward to answering any questions that you may have. Thank you. Is there any public comment on this item? Look what you can learn about this world. Excuse me. We'll go behind the guy's house first. Comes from noticing. Thank you, Vice Mayor. So so first I want to thank the entire team, the multi departmental team that worked on this pilot. This was in response to a call from the community to find some short term and long term solutions, specifically for the Long Beach Boulevard corridor. But that widened in the pilot was extended to, you know, six, six motels citywide. And I think the fact that we can and we've all watched this process, you know, in fact, just raise your hand if you've been following this process from the beginning. So there's a number of people who've been, you know, following this process to come back and say that we looked at the control group and then the pilot group, and they've seen a 30 plus percent drop in calls for service. I think that shows that give this additional attention. Attention has been working. And so I'm glad that we use the data to demonstrate the results of this pilot. And so I'm supportive of moving forward on the recommended recommendation to move forward with an actual ordinance. I like the I like the approach that we did a pilot. We evaluated the pilot. And then we move forward with creating the law. This is the same approach that we did with the Alcohol Nuisance Abatement Ordinance, and that's been a success. And, you know, it's been recognized as a as a best practice. And I like that we took that approach here. So I support that. And I'm going then within my motion request, I'm so concurring support for establishing this ordinance. The second thing I want to pull out is the mention of, you know, beginning the conversation on streamlining the motel conversion process and creating that ordinance similar to Los Angeles. And Oscar, you mentioned that this could be possible, possibly done in Q2 of 2018. I'd like to include in my motion to move forward on on that process based on the timeline that you presented, the Q two for the conversion, I think that makes sense, gives us enough time to move forward and work for next few months on this ordinance before moving on to next. And then additionally, we mentioned both the, the, the zoning approaches with a plan. I'm very comfortable with that. That's beginning the long term conversation. And we said we want to be very clear about short term, immediate solutions, but also addressing the long term problem that there's, you know, a concentration on this one corridor. And we need to talk about what the core of the vision for the corridor in the future. And I think that is appropriate in the land use document. So thank you for that. But the other the last thing that stood out was the fact that in order to pursue amortization is going to require additional study beyond the capacity that what we have. And so I would ask that we don't leave it there, that we do forwarded to city staff into the Budget Oversight Committee to think about this, because we looked at amortization as a solution citywide, not just for North Long Beach, but when you have outdated out, you know, when you have corridors with multiple motels, you know, Long Beach Boulevard, for example, as motels were in place before the 17 freeway had very different use. And, you know, the land use didn't keep up when the 710 was built. And so now you have these outdated land uses that we may need a tool like amortization to address. And the same is, you know, the case on other corridors like, you know, PCH or Anaheim, you know, some of the other corridors where these motels were. So I'm going to add the third thing here is to refer to the Budget Oversight C ommittee and to to and city manager to evaluate potential funding solutions in the next fiscal year's budget if available. So again, this is this is amazing work. I'm very proud of this work. We're going to be talking about this with with the Long Beach Boulevard community very soon. And many of them are here to follow this. But I think this is a good, important step and we've made some incredible progress. Thanks a lot. Thank you, Councilman Richardson. Councilwoman Pierce. Thank you. Yes. I want to thank Scott for their work on this. I think the numbers on some of the graphs are are very telling. On Councilmember Richardson's third note around the acquisitions, where we get funding for I know that we've amortization. I just looked at acquisitions because it was in front of me. Thank you. The idea of getting these motels into being some housing solutions, I know that we've talked a lot about villages of Cabrillo, and I wanted to ask staff if they've had any conversations with them in regards to this motel item. We have not. Okay. I've had a couple conversation. We can talk offline, but they basically have been building up funds to be able to go out and purchase properties like this. So yes, we as a city need to identify funds that we can use. But I think there are some entities in the city that are willing to step in immediately, that they're actually out there scouting properties right now, that if we had a motel that fell into one of these categories might not be on our we might not need to spend our taxpayer money to do that, but we could rely on some of our community partners to do that. But I definitely think that this has been a great model. I think had some questions on what's the pilot program? What exactly did you guys do to get some of these numbers down all the way? It says that you guys monitored, but maybe I missed it. Sorry. Well, the pilot program consisted of, again, multiple disciplines from throughout the city, meeting with the property owners on a regular basis, identifying potential improvements to the way either in security and signing and their operational characteristics that would allow them to reduce their calls for service. And we would meet with them on a regular basis to to check to make sure that those items were implemented. It's a menu list, if you will, a compliance plan, a list of items customized to each hotel. And those items would actually help improve the way they operate their business and hence reduce the calls for service. Thank you for that. And just refresh my memory. I know that when the Human Trafficking Task Force started some of their work here in the city, that some of that had to do with signage in hotels. Did that include these motels as well? Yes. There was staff from the health department that went on site visits and spoke with motel managers and owners regarding human trafficking and putting up signage. That's more of a recommendation, but it's something that we're looking to integrate more ful ly as a compliance plan looks forward. Okay. Thank you. Fully support this. Think it's great work. Thank you. Yes. Councilwoman Gonzalez. Thank you so much and great work to staff. I'm glad we as Councilmember Richardson said, I'm glad we started with the pilot and now we're moving towards an ordinance. And the first, we personally have lots of unfortunate motels along PCH, a few off Alamitos and Seventh Street. So I'm looking forward to seeing how those sort of interplay with with the ordinance and where we can get some some progress on those PCH. And it has been a major issue. It actually has deterred businesses from receiving ABC licenses. The businesses are really good standing, but the crime and areas around it, because the motels are such, you know, for poor behavior has really deter them from getting licenses, unfortunately. So just something to put out there. But relative to the presentation you had mentioned 15 locations, six of them that were piloted. What were the other locations and do we have? Addresses on them. I had to look up the locations you had in the presentation just online. But what were the other locations? Do you have just that information? Yes. So the other nine locations from the original study were the Grace Hotel, the Slumber Inn Motel, the Palms Motel, the Liberty Motel, the Belmont Sure Inn Motel, the Rocky Inn Motel, the Inn of Long Beach, the All eight motel. And the Royal Inn Motel. Yeah, very fancy names, right? Royal and luxury. I love it. Nothing. But if we can get that list. I don't know if it was in the. I didn't. Oh, was it in the original presentation? Okay, great. Then I'll go ahead and look at that. That's great. As far as an enforcement mechanism, I know the ordinance. I know there's an action team that will be put in place. But is there any other sort of enforcement mechanism? I know in the past we've done, you know, calls for service that could be charged to the owner. What other sort of enforcement mechanisms are we exploring? So some of the the. Mechanisms that have been research are related to citations, charges for police activity and increased calls for service levels. And some of the compliance measures are actually already within the municipal code. So this would kind of centralize them and make motel managers and owners aware of everything that they already have to comply with and then any additional regulations that would come down the pipeline as well. These and these items would be subject to citation as well as city prosecutor. Great. Another two questions. So outreach about the program. So once the ordinance comes into play, I would love for us to I want all of the motels to know that this ordinance is alive and good so they could hopefully change their practices. What are we thinking about that? The the idea is, is to establish a marketing campaign once the council approves the ordinance and and be able to communicate that to all the the hospitality establishments, especially those that a

re near or over the thresholds for calls for service and to again, solicit input from the community as well as the hotel. Hoteliers should be able to discuss the compliance plan and move that forward before we begin the compliance planning efforts. Okay, great. And last question and I had this question before when we had the conversation about bad actor landlords, about future projects. I know a lot of these property owners, they may come to Planning Commission and they have a brand new project. And oftentimes we as council members or planning commissioners don't know that they have a problem with Project A, but now they have a brand new project that they want to build or they just think there's got to be something that we as a council body should know of, that they have issues. Sometimes we don't. We often don't know about that unless we dig into the details and research that. But I'm just wondering if there's anything that could be flagged for us knowing that, you know, they may want to own multiple properties or have, you know, another copy or another permit of some sort, and that we at least know that before going into a decision and making a decision on a new property. So that's actually one of the first research efforts that we undertook as this will be housed primarily within development services. We fortunately have the greatest amount of access to property ownership information. We're looking to include that in some way and mitigate any issue there on back end data gathering to make sure that we understand the full context of of these sites, that property owners and property managers that may be related to other sites or to other nuisance issues throughout the city are included within whatever efforts that we have going forward. Great. I think thank you very much for that and great work again. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson. Just wanted to clarify, the funding that we talked about was the 150 K referenced in here as a need to evaluate the amortization piece. Just just to be clear, between that and funding for conversion. Thanks. Thank you. Did you have a chance to do public commentary on this? Any public comment on this case? None. So there is a motion at a second on the floor. Please call the roll call. Councilwoman Gonzalez, Councilmember Pierce, Councilwoman Price, Councilmember Supernova. All right. Councilwoman Mongo I. Vice Mayor Andrews. So for me. I have. It. Councilman Austin. Councilmember Richardson. Yeah. Yeah. Yes. When you. Motion carries. Thank you. With that, we're moving on to the next item, which is 42. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment. We're going on to Iowa. We have the hearing and the Long Beach Airport noise ordinance next to items. So, Madam Clerk, the hearing, please. Hearing item one is a report from Development Services recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and adopt resolution. Amending the master fee and charges schedule citywide.

Mr. West, who's who's doing this? Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Staff report will be given by Linda Tatum. Good afternoon, Mayor, and members of the Council. This item is a public hearing to consider a resolution to modify the city's master fee schedule for development services by reducing selected entitlement fees and adopting new fees related to the mailing of public hearing notices. As you recall, on September 18th, 2018, the City Council adopted an ordinance that amended various sections of the zoning code related to conditional use permits, and it also. This action that the Council took at that time also updated the public notification requirements. Since then, our staff has evaluated the specific entitlement application fees, which currently include the cost for mailed public hearing notices. So of what we found from that analysis is that approximately $950 of the current application fees go toward the costs of producing and mailing these public notices. So adoption of this resolution would effectively unbundle the noticing fees from the application fee for most of the entitlement applications that we process. This resolution would also establish a tiered fee structure for mailing public notices going forward. The proposed fee reduction is $950 less than the current application fees and the new publication or the new public noticing fees range from $410 for the standard 300 foot noticing radius for Tier one. And this is explained in a little bit more detail in your staff report. But there's also a Tier two noticing four or 500 foot radius, and that is whenever a project is within 300 feet of a residential development and it goes up to Tier three, which is $950 for noticing whenever a project is 750 feet or greater from any application that addresses either a reduction of parking, shared parking or a project where there is a code requirement for some kind of distance buffering, like in a tattoo parlor as an example. So I just want to make sure that you're aware that this particular action will address mail notices, but it does not change any of the other standard notices that staff provides, and these include posting the notices in City Hall. We also post individual development sites with those large noticing posters. We also notice post notice on the city's website. We also notify city council offices as well as neighborhood organizations for all of the required public noticing for discretionary approvals. So I just wanted to make sure that you were aware of that. And we feel that the proposed resolution tonight balances the direction of the council to reduce the costs of the conditional use permit process. But we think that it also provides ample notification to the to the public for discretionary actions. So staff recommends that the city council adopt the proposed resolution to reduce the application fees and also to establish the new tiered fee schedule for public noticing. That concludes the presentation. But I'm here as well as Lisa Falls, o ur Administrative Services Bureau manager, who assisted on this project. And we can respond to any questions you have. Thank you. I got a motion in a second. Let me just do is there any public comment first seen a public comment? Councilor Pearce. I just want to say great job staff are really tackling how to reduce those costs in a creative way. Thank you for your hard work. So Mango. I completely concur. Well-written agenda item. I appreciate the work that was done and I think this is a good solution. Thank you. Thank you, members. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Great. Thank you very much. Next up is item 17. Okay. Cooked, melted now. Also the. Cape motion Kerry. Motion carries. Item 19, please. Item 19. Communication from Council Member Appears Councilwoman Gonzalez. Councilwoman Praise Councilmember Oranga recommendation to require city attorney to drive an ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code and adding hotel worker safety provisions to the existing ordinance. Councilman Pierce. Yes. I would like to thank the city attorney's office for assisting us with drafting this with a quick turnaround. I'd like to think, Councilwoman Price, for partnering with me to make sure that we have not only panic buttons for all hotel workers, but worker protections to ensure that these workers do not have retaliation. And so I'm very happy to be here at this moment today. It's been a long time coming, but I appreciate everybody's leadership on this council. Councilmember Rex Richardson, Roberto Urunga, Lena Gonzalez and Susie Price today. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. I support the amendments. Councilman Gonzales. It's me. I just want to say thank you as well to council members Pearce and Price for working on this and finally getting us to this point. So thank you again. Thank you. Councilmember Gringa. Want to add my voice to. Kudos for the council. Council persons council. Persons peers. Embraced that a in their work for working this out together. I think it's an excellent way of saying that, you know, we can work things out together. We have done a good job. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes council comment with the we did the we do public comment a public comment on this item saying nonmembers please cast your votes.

Wishing Karis. Q I wish Thanksgiving was every week. Next item is second public comment. Any seeing none on that in any business? Vice Mayor Andrews. Motion carries. Item 18. Report from Public Works recommendations through finalize and execute a master license agreement with Verizon Communications for the nonexclusive use of city owned properties for wireless telecommunications facilities citywide. Any public comments on this item? Good evening. My name is Susan Roman. I'm vice president of government affairs for Verizon. Thank you very much for the opportunity to support this item. Mr. Vice Mayor and Council Members, we've been working with Mr. Craig Beck and city officials for over a year on coming up with a term sheet that will allow us Verizon to partner with the city. We're very excited about partnering with the city to invest tens of millions of dollars in infrastructure improvement, to improve our wireless service to the community and to provide the foundation for the next iteration of wireless services, which is called 5G. I'm here to answer any questions that you may have, but I want to support this item and again say that we're very excited to partner with the city in improving the infrastructure for all of the residents. Thank you very much. No. Similar question is behind the diocese. Would you please take a vote by square? Just a point of information. I appreciate the city staff for meeting with me and going over the variance for those who called our office with questions. There was a change at the national level regarding how some of these small cells are instituted. And so I really want to thank and appreciate Verizon for stepping up and providing the conduit and infrastructure as a trade in terms of the ability to move forward with this project in a meaningful way. I know that there's still a lot going on at the national level, and for you to move forward for the residents of Long Beach in this agreement is very helpful to us. And we really appreciate your generosity. Thank you. Thank you. Let me first get a motion in a second again. Okay. Perfect. Okay. I went away and I'm just. It's back. Okay. Did you have anything to add, Councilman Gonzales? Thank you. Everything that my colleague had mentioned. But on the digital inclusion aspect, I really appreciate that component being included in here. So thank you Craig and to by Verizon as well. And in some of you already had your comments. I just want to add before that I really appreciate Verizon's partnership. I think obviously Verizon, you know, leads the state when it comes to this type of work. And certainly we always want to grow our partnership with Verizon and there's a huge presence that we have already in Long Beach. And so I'm just really grateful to the entire the entire Verizon team and also to our staffer for working on this agreement as well. So we're very excited about where we go from here and and the rollout and all the next steps. So just thank you very, very much. Thank you. And there is a motion any second on the floor, so please go ahead and cast your vote. Motion carries. Thank you very much. And we'll be hearing the next item, which is a 1919. Councilmember Sabrina Motion carries item 17. Report from Public Works. Recommendation to award contracts to Corbin and C.J.. Concrete construction for construction of curb ramps and concrete related improvements in an aggregate amount not to exceed $30 million citywide. To any public company inside of. She no further comment. Oh. Councilwoman just had a. Question for I don't know if Councilmember Tonga or Mongo has a question. Okay. Just really quick. I know we had talked about with this particular contractor, I don't know i f we have an update on from public works on where we're at. You know, we had requested some information to be brought back relative to lawsuits and all of that. We do. Craig Beck should be in the back. He should be here. Just a minute. Tom went to look for him. Basically, we found no evidence of anything. That was a concern in the city of Long Beach. I think there were some concerns in other places in California, but certainly not in the city of Long Beach. And here we go with Mr. Beck. Could you repeat the question for Craig? Yes, we had discussed relative to this concrete construction about lawsuits that this company had and any updates. And I believe I don't know if we had asked. I can I don't know. Through my recollection, if we asked for a two from four or how we asked for that information back. But I wanted to ensure we addressed that. Yes. Thank you. You are correct. Councilmember Gonzales, when we met at the it's fine to say it was about six weeks ago when an item came forward asking to extend the previous construction contract for concrete and C.J. Khan. C.J. Construction was the contractor to do the work. The timing on closing the RFP for the ADA ramps, which is what is before you this evening had closed. And instead of extending the previous contract, which I think was on its fourth or fifth iteration, we thought it would be more prudent to move forward with a new contract that had all the current specifications in it. That's part of what we have here tonight. On the wage compliance concerns that were expressed that evening. We did meet with the Center for Labor Compliance and we did meet with C.J. Construction and addressed all those issues. There were two items that were found to where C.J. was out of compliance, not in the city of Long Beach. These were in other jurisdictions where they had to make corrections in their prevailing wage payment structure. But we reviewed what was provided in Long Beach, and thus far we've not been able to identify any situations where they did not pay prevailing wage. Okay. Are we able to get that in a two from four? I would just like to see it documented because I think, you know, I still have concerns. With that, even though it's not in the city of Long Beach, there's still concerns with that. Yes, Councilmember, certainly we can put that into far from and send it to everybody. I appreciate that. Thank you. Cinnamon, you comment on this, would you please take a vote? Thank you very much. And we'll be hearing the next item, which is a 1919. Report from Technology and Innovation, Financial Management and Public Works recommendation to amend contract with plenary properties. Long Beach for critical technology needs infrastructure in an amount not to exceed 4.3 million, execute multiple lease purchase agreements and authorize related financing documents with Bank of America citywide. Thank you very much. The motion of the second councilman, Mongo? Yes. If city staff could provide a little bit of detail,

I know that officers have received questions and I appreciate staff providing the answers to us. But I think it important to be a part of the public record regarding the use of ACP funds on the media wall and that that funding is not eligible for uses such as street repair, sidewalk repair, any of the other kinds of things that we are always looking for funding for. Sure. Absolutely. Mayor Councilmembers. This is the last breath effort to get us into the city hall and July 4th when we cut the ribbon. So this is the last piece of one time dollars that will need to to wrap up the facility. I'm going to turn it over to our technology innovation director, Lia Erickson, along with Jason Lee and our public. Works directors here as. Well. Craig Beck So whoever can respond to those questions. Council women. Mongo Yes, I'll answer the question regarding the use of the special advertising and promotion funds that that is funded from a portion of our hotel transit occupancy tax, and that is restricted for communications and marketing of the city's facilities and art and public relations projects. It can't be spent on street repairs and other purposes. I also wanted to say that we do have a public art component. This is our public art component, this video high definition media wall. And so this project, this funding with the special advertising promotion funds, goes to fulfill our commitment to our percent for the arts program. Right. Thank you, Councilwoman Vice Mayor Andrews. Oh. But you're okay? Yes. Okay. Katherine Austin. So thank you very much. I was just kind of caught off guard by this and was not a. Made aware that we actually had so much money in our AP fund. And if staff could really explain what the timing of this issue is and the is there some time sensitivity on this particular item? But so we are in the middle of Construction Council member Austin two for the project and we do need to make this commitment to keep on schedule so we can open the building and move in on time. And this particular component, there will be some time to program that that media wall and have it ready for for July four, when the building will open. So that is why this is time sensitive and why we recommend moving forward. At this time. I don't believe that the media wall was part of the original plan. Was it or is this something that just just came up as a great idea? Councilmember Austin That's correct. The media wall was an enhancement that was added to the building. As we look towards a 21st century city hall, we look to 21st century technology and experiences. And having this media wall is an opportunity to really engage our whole community. I mean, if you think about the opportunities to have a webcam from a playground or a webcam at the beach or to show videos from different neighborhoods and in art displays from different communities, in allowing us to engage with our university, really the opportunities are almost endless when you think about what can actually

irony of this situation that we are talking about building a wall at Long Beach. But that said, I I'm really curious about the the appropriation from the SJP fund because as a member of the Budget Oversight Committee, I was not aware that we actually had this this this extra reserve or these funds available. And so perhaps Miss Erickson can explain to us how that how we're getting this money. Councilmember Austin. I'll put my budget hat back on. Yeah, that's okay. No. Yeah. So we do have if you actually look in the budget book, we do have a description of every fund and the how much funds available is in the fund. And so there was a funds available in the special advertising promotion fund, as I said earlier, because of the restrictions for its use and also the funding source, the transit occupancy tax. We have to make sure we're using it for the proper purposes. And for instance, if we want to make sure it's structurally balanced, so it's actually the funds available is appropriate for one time purposes like this, using money for equipment, but building in use of the structure, the special advertising promotion fund for ongoing budget operations. If their revenue is not there to cover their costs, that would not have been recommended. So it probably didn't come up explicitly in the budget process because there wasn't extra structural revenue per se. But this the surplus was this funds available was shown in the budget book under the this fund. Okay. So I raised that because it seems like you went through too quite a bit to just secure $25,000 out of the S&P; fund for for something that there was a lot of haggling to make that happen. And so had I known there was more money available, I think we would have been a little bit more ambitious with funding. You know, one of the the projects that this community lined up, you know, out the door to to support, and that was the the creation of African-American arts and cultural center here in the city. So I'm willing to hear from my colleagues again, this was kind of an unplanned thing. I understand that. You know, it's an element that's going to, you know, make our downtown or city hall look a lot nicer and feel more 2

1st century. But, you know, the building in itself, I think, accomplishes that without a 60 foot billboard. Thanks. And Councilmember, if I can just add to that, for the African-American Culture Museum. If I remember the discussion, it was less about. The dollar amount and was more about. The finding the right way to use that money. We did 25,000 in general fund. And then just recently in the in the Fy18 adoption, we actually did find a way to use. An additional 25,000 of SRP for that project to get it to a 50,000. So that's been allocated and that's. That's moving forward. Thank you, Councilmember Schubert. I'll defer to Councilwoman Mongo and then I'll speak after her. Councilwoman Mongo? Yes. Just as another point of information, since we do have the art component, this amount was already envisioned to be something art related. And so I think that the choice of what was utilized is really great. I think that it's important when we talk about broadcasting the council meetings on the media while we talk about also that it would be for visitors, that they would also be able to see and experience our meetings as. When I went to Australia, I had the great opportunity to see councilors from the Australian Government conduct business. And so as long as it continues to align, and I appreciate Mr. Modica reminding us about the discussion, because while we would even be able to potentially a lot additional funds, they have to be specific utilizations of those in a meaningful way. The other thing that I would say is, especially since we're so conservative on the Budget Oversight Committee with the public funding, we only try to utilize the funds that are coming in that particular year in the allocation process. It is we have not as a budget oversight committee since I've been on BMC, drawn from funds available ever. We've continued to stockpile that for the upcoming Olympics and other things that we've seen to be a major priority and we have not yet had to dip into it. We actually have been so conservative that this year's the first year that we think we probably expended the entire amount available. And I think that part of the questions coming from the community about CEP funds and how they're available for general fund is that first the funds come in, then they're bifurcated in half. 50% of it goes into available for city uses. And then the other 50% is what's restricted. And this is a great use of those kinds of restricted funds. Additionally, through the budget adjustment earlier tonight and through a item that came from Councilman Gonzales, his office earlier in the year when funding of general fund is moved over. We really appreciate when the Budget Office transforms that money and frees up more general funds. So we think that you guys are doing a great job in that. I mean, I know that's really nerdy accountant talk, but it's what I love to do. And so I just want you to know that I have dug into the numbers and I think that they're doing a great j ob. And anyone who would like to discuss them at length, I'm happy to grab a cup of coffee and discuss them at any time. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilman Schubert. Okay. Now that we had a count and talk and this is a low level conversation at this point, just to reiterate that these are not in general fund dollars. And I know the general fund has now been mentioned multiple times. It hadn't before. So I think we have to make that clear. And also the unique part of this project, as I see it, that that Craig Beck brought up. I can't think of another art project that has a dual purpose of a to an accessory to our council meeting. So thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Price. I agree. I appreciate the clarification from staff. I have to say I was concerned when I saw the item because we didn't I at least I didn't ask for, nor did I receive a special briefing on this. And when I saw it, I thought, that's a little much. I mean, I don't that's just my personal opinion, like media hopeful. It just seems a little not consistent with at least my vision of what we should be doing as public servants and as a city. I just wanted to make sure that it's not flashy. And so I appreciate hearing from Mr. Beck that we are going to be using this as an extra opportunity for us to show council meetings when we do have overflow. And I have to say, that statement right there completely changed my mind on the whole thing. What I would have a problem with is if we've got, you know, flashy signs promoting all the great work we're all doing that I would not like. That's just not at all. What I want us to be spending money on is promoting ourselves. So thank you. Thank you, Katherine Austin. Okay. You guys have convinced me that this is probably in the best interest of the city to do it, and so I'll support it. But I do. Well, we'd like to just add to Councilmember Price's comments in terms of the use of the board in the wall, in terms of imaging and promotion of of of elected leaders and things of that nature. I think that we need to establish some some policies and some some some guidelines in terms of what is what kind of content goes there. Because, I mean, if we don't, you know, it can can can get get out of control. So I think that said, I will be supporting this item with the with the understanding. I'm looking at a lot of nodding heads that my colleagues agree that that we may have to look at some parameters. Absolutely. And I and I agree with I think it's been my my interpretation that the wall essentially is like art or you'd have rotating art pieces, creations from the community that it would be kind of a welcoming. Hopefully not advertising. I think nobody wants a bunch of advertising for anything or for events or a bunch of things. But I, I'm assuming that I'm imagining I've seen some of these before. And so I'm thinking that these things are kind of like these permanent art pieces that they can change. They can, you know, they're more it's more of a welcoming thing. And then obviously you can use them, like you said, practically, to ensure that there's information for the public when there is when there's overflow. So I think those are all good. I agree with what everybody said up here. Things are all good. Good comments. And is there a public comment on this? Hi, Mr. Mayor, and congratulations on your upcoming nuptials. And I just want to say I had so many ups and downs in the past few minutes about whether I'm going to get up and speak. This, I think, jumps off of the, I believe, of $7.3 million that also was needed for, I guess, an anticipated critical technology need infrastructure some months ago. And I just hope that wasn't some sort of over overlooked the fact that you guys needed to have technology needs in that building. But anyway, you talk about the advertising and that brings up the thought, if I'm not mistaken, with the way things are going to work, plenary properties is going to be in some major. They're going to be playing some major role in the management of the City Hall Building as a as a piece of infrastructure, infrastructure in itself. And so what I'm not hearing I heard concern about whether there would be, for example, advertising or what type of promotion there might be on this wall, but who's going to control that? And it was going to be plenary controlling that. Then that's one thing. It's going to be you guys controlling that. Then what is the mechanism for you to control that if plenary is in fact the manager of the building? I think it's a good question. Thank you. Thank you. And our final speaker. Hello, Mayor, Vice Mayor Council? Kuzma asked. And there was a great concern that you brought up. $4.3 million. That's a lot of money. We say as far as advertisement is concerned, it kind of seems like it's a contradiction because we have art in the city. We also can see these council meetings by going to Long Beach TV. So I'm a little confused as to why we need a specification. Of a wall. To highlight what we can already pull up. $4.3 million. That's a lot of money. And I think that should be tabled. I think that should be tabled. To be reconsidered, to look at are we doing. The right thing? $4.3 million. I love also what Councilwoman Mongeau said. I thought what Councilwoman Price said as well with regards to, yeah, we may have the extra, but just because we have the extra, how are we spending that? So let's keep that list. Let's keep stand our ground on that. Like, do we really this a need that we need to spend $4.3 million? That's a lot of money. That's a lot of money to say, hey, we want to highlight the meetings and because another country has done it, oh, this is wonderful. You know, as a U.S. veteran, I've been overseas in advertising is not one of the things that we're too concerned about. We can see this, like I said, on Mommy's TV. So let's just really table this for a minute. Go back. And just really consider like I said before, Councilman Austin, I w as with you when you said, wait, wait, wait, wait, wait a minute. You know, and then when you go back and you do an amendment or to change the original submission, that was like, okay, we're going to do this, but let's add this on because we can kind of pull this revenue some more because now we can justify it. $4.3 million is a lot of money. Let's just think about it. Thank you. Thank you. Members. Reese Castro Rhodes. Can't memorize Bush and Kerry's. Okay. Now, Google's item here in number two, which requires no virtual. Item to report from financial management and recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, concludes the public hearing and grant engine and entertainment permit with conditions on the applications of Black LP eight. Broadway four Entertainment Without Dancing District two. This also required. Please raise your right hand. You and each of you do solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the court now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God. Could we please have a staff report in there? Thank you, Vice Mayor. The staff report would be given by Sandy Palmer and Emily Armstrong from Business Licensing. Good evening again. Tonight you have before you an application for entertainment without dancing for Black Albee L.P. Doing Business as Black. Located at 1800 East Broadway. Operating as a restaurant with alcohol in Council District two, all of the necessary departments have reviewed the application and have provided their recommended conditions as contained in the hearing packet. I, as well as the police department, stand ready to answer any questions that counsel may have. And that concludes staff's report. Why would you like to go public comment, please. Any public comment on this? And please come forward. Come forward, please. State your name. You have 3 minutes. Hi. My name is Maria Severance. I. My family has been related to Long Beach life for 50 years. We always have to want to improve their neighborhoods and we have done very good things about the properties. I don't know. You said that these black bees with they don't they don't have license for drinking. That's because what happened is that. They are locating in a neighborhood that is very residential. There's in the corner of Broadway and Sitka. There's only residential no parking at old zero. Not even the residents in the area have parking. So we have a very complicated situation there. We have before paradise was a bar and these people were mature and they behaved really good. But since these black these that year ago, they moved there. For us, the peace and quiet have ended. This this crowd is very loud crowd. And they come and they impact all the neighborhood. Everything that is here, most are down to second is fact it they the customers, they come drunk. They sit in your in the stairs of your of your house. They drink, they throw a lot of trash. They sometimes vomit in around your house and they wait for their over. They leave or whatever. And they are loud, they are fights, they are really loud. At 2:00 in the morning, maybe you have hear more complaints because most of these people that live there are tenants. But like I, we are the owner of one of the buildings that is located in Section A and I already have complained about this before and it didn't change. I thought it was the work of Broadway, but not this early commotion is there in second, second and Hermosa those are one one lane and and they are they are traffic loud and we have to live with this so we don't have any peace and quiet of our neighborhood that supposed to be residential I can believe they have a license to these kind of is for skateboarders young people they are loud they make a lot of noise and we are suffering the consequences since that is helping. So I don't agree that they're going to get another license to make more noise that don't impact our lives more. The owners of the properties are the the tenants. They go they have their they can move. But we have to deal every year to have another tenant that doesn't like the noise that is happening there, especially in the corner of Hermosa. And second day life is impossible. I hope that you don't agree with their license. Thank you. Thanks. Lois Leger, 1739 Appleton Street. I'm a block away, and I'm also a past president of Alameda Speech Neighborhood Association. When I was president, we cleaned up the neighborhood around the park, especially in the sandboxes where there were drugs and paraphernalia left. Now it's moved up two blocks. So in the morning you can find blood on the sidewalk, you can find paraphernalia. And she's right. It's loud. And they congregate on the outside. And I'm guilty because I haven't called the cops. I've talked to the police at the neighborhood association. But I'm going we're going to be in very close contact as well as with the city councilwoman, even though we've told our staff. So it is a problem. I don't like it. I don't walk there at night, but it's just nasty. And if you can help us, I'd appreciate it. If not, don't worry. We'll be on it. Thank you very much. Next speaker. Hi. My name is Lucas Myer. I live on the 1700 block of Broadway. Next to Hermosa. Very close to the black bar. Um, I'm very. I'm all for the success of this bar. I am a career bartender server. I've been in the industry for a long time. Um. There is a problem with. The riffraff that has caused. From the opening of this place. I want to fix it. I don't want to shut the place down, but I. Don't want to be afraid for my. Girlfriend's safety when I walk down the street at right to Rite Aid. For a bag of chips at. 12:00 on a Friday night. Paradise never caused an issue. I never felt unsafe whatsoever. But I do now. And I just wanted to come here and address them. So thank you for having me. Thank you very much. All right. Next speaker. Hi there. My name is Jennifer Peterson. I am a produc er, director and a local podcast host. And I live on Hermosa Avenue, which is directly across from Black Bar, and I am very much against this entertainment permit. I love my neighborhood, but since Black Bar took over the Paradise Bar, things have gone downhill fast in the months they have been open. My life and lifestyle has changed drastically. Now we have a very dangerous energy to our street, especially on the weekends. I've had to call the police numerous times a week on noise, trespassing, street blockage, driveway blockage. And when I reported to Black's management months ago that there were some guys doing of some drugs which I witnessed in their back area. I and I pointed out that zero security. They added security for a while, but now I've noticed it's infrequent at best. I never called the police once when Paradise Park was there. I want that to be very clear. I'm not someone who calls the police all the time. Until recently, we now have what looks like gang graffiti on lampposts and on the corner liquor store that we can that I know the owner can't get off. That was not there before. My neighbor had to leave. She was here and she wanted to speak, but she had to leave cash there, meaning she witnessed a fight that escalated into a bloody mess. The cops were called for that. And this is a residential neighborhood that has completely shifted its vibe since they have moved and especially the past couple of months. I can't even watch a movie in my living room because of noise mixed with this dread of a bullet. I'm not being dramatic here, a bullet coming through my window. I personally think that's where we are heading and why I am here today. I want there to be a record that someone spoke out about the escalation of crime in a very lovely neighborhood that I was excited to live in. My car has been broken into. My neighbor had her place broken into all since the bar moved there. I know you can't prove that, but I mean that there's a link there. But I don't think it's a coincidence. I'm just afraid that someone's going to get hurt, a gun will be pulled out. And I hope it's not me or one of my neighbors or my dogs. But seeing the kind of people this bar is now attracting, I believe it's really, truly inevitable. The weekend nights are loud enough beyond loud. Most of us who live near the bar can't get to sleep, fall asleep until two or 3 p.m.. And this was never an issue at the Paradise Bar, so I have no idea why they need a new license or an extended license. But I hope they don't get it. And a quick note from my landlord, Anita. She is and also an art teacher, Anita Sinclair. She's she says Black Bar has already started to destabilize our neighborhood since they took over the Paradise location. And we have had their clients parking in or blocking our driveway, bloody fights in the street. Uber, Lyft, taxis and personal vehicles. Thank you. In front and Maidan. Okay. Thank you for allowing me to speak. And I hope they don't get, you know, t his license. Thank you. Very much. Next speaker. How are you doing? Jonathan Robin Soil I live in. I've been a resident for 28 years here. Born and raised. I am the lead bartender at Black. I'm there all the time. Yes, we do have our problems, but it's nothing a new bar hasn't had before with change in Long Beach. We are going through a lot of businesses coming in and long, which is changing day by day. That goes with buildings, that goes to just infrastructure in general. They came from Hollywood and they landed on Hermosa and Broadway. And I happily work there. We do everything in our like in our we do everything in our power to keep it safe on that block, including myself. We have security every day. They're outside and they're hired. And we have three security guards on on weekends at all times. I wish no harm on anybody. We do hire everybody, especially people like an iconic cafe which are going to be affected by this. He is a DJ and. It's nothing that paradise didn't have before. Paradise had a license to carry out, you know, entertainment so as not having this license. It would just affect people in the community. You know, I don't. I don't think that's necessary for us not to have it. You know, we hire people in Long Beach from Long Beach and put money back into Long Beach. So I think it'd be wrong to brand to just brand us with such a black guy. No pun intended. So. Yeah. Yeah. Good night. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Next speaker. How's it going? My name is. And I can say I was, you know, on the way here, I was just looking at press telegram, archives of Alamitos Beach in the Broadway corridor just to give a an idea of things in the past and in the present. I welcome anyone to just do an easy Google search. And you'll see this conversation we're having now, the same kind of conversation people were having in the eighties. You know, my father lives on 31 and Pedro in 1984. And, you know, people were saying the same thing about older residents in Alamitos Beach, were saying the same thing about the proliferation of the bars. Then that they're saying now, you know, there's three bars up the street that, yes, maybe the clientele is different. But the reality of the situation is, is that there's a reason why the Paradise Bar is not there anymore. It's because they couldn't maintain the business. Now you hear here you have a new business coming in. This is a small business. They're coming into the community. They're representing a very cohesive members of the community, the skate community. I'm not a skater, but I do recognize that this is a part of the community, especially in this area with with the Bixby Park there that is well represented thanks to places like this bar. And they do have business there. And it has, as the man before me just said, they employ and they they provide opportunities for people who live in the community to live in the city. Yes, it's a young audience. And yes, they're rambunctious. And obviously with any bar, you k now, there comes the unfortunate reality of what people do outside of the bar. But whereas inside of the bar, there is ample security and there's, you know, people who are constantly observant and not even just on the reality of, you know, the people coming in day to day . You know, there's the food services that they provide, you know, the delicious impossible burger that you can get there. I didn't know about it until I went up in there and, you know, trying to do new things. But, you know, it's it's unfortunate for the neighbors who live in in the in the neighborhood that parking is in a already overburdened neighborhood is, you know, being impacted by this bar. But that's not the bar's problem. That's more of an issue with city government and the narrow streets that an older part of the town more in is this bar is issue. I'm I personally as a representative of the music community in this city. I'm happy to have this this bar come in and provide opportunities for entertainment. And I would have occasion for, you know, this anytime entertainment permit coming their way so that we don't have, you know, situations like fortunately Vine where, you know, you have a bar in a neighborhood area that that can only be open up until 1030 and 11. You know, this is something that can service and bring more live music and live entertainment and to a city that is devoid of those at the moment. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, is that the last speaker out there? Because I'm going to close out the speaker like you're a young lady. You'll be the last speaker. Thank you. Go ahead, sir. Yeah. My name is Jeff, Darling, and I own the mineshaft and brick bar in the next block. And the Paradise used to be my uncle's bar for many, many years. And then Michael Barber ended up with that bar, and we had owned the building at the time, and he decided to sell because he couldn't make it a viable business. And if you see what Shannon, Bethany Heath and Jessica have done there, they've remodeled the building, put great expense and effort into making it a beautiful, vibrant spot. Our clientele that has been LGBTQ centric for many, many years, we will see our patrons in that bar. So kind of categorizing it as a skater bar, I think really misrepresents it. And if you go in there, you'll see our clientele there. You'll see somebody in drag. He'll see somebody that might be a you know, a very, very diverse, ever changing Long Beach neighborhood. And so I know from a small business perspective, them not being able to have the ability to have a deejay or some form of entertainment is going to tie the hands of a small business person. I see 24, you know, they have security all the time that they're open there. And I know compared to what we do, I'm sure they far exceed what we do in security. And there seem to be very proactive to me in the community and very upstanding, easy to communicate with and have always come to the table when I wanted to have conversations with them about

will be effective all the time, whether they have the entertainment license or not. The Paradise had the entertainment license in its entire existences. So I don't think just by granting them a license, it would change anything. So I support them getting a license, as, you know, relatively competing business in the same block. So thank you very much. Thank you. Next week. Hello. First, I'd like to thank you. Honorable, honorable vice mayor and all the council people for everything that you do for us, for the city, and to all the law officers here. Thank you for keeping the city safe. You guys are all doing a great job. I live within blocks of the new black bar. I walk by there every day. I walk by there every night. I am not a skater. I've enjoyed going into this bar. I've seen all the work that they put into it. I think this city is proud of and has been built on diversity. It took a big risk for them to come into this neighborhood and bring something different. And that's what they did. They brought some diversity. They brought some new life into the neighborhood. I can only speak for myself personally. When I go to the bar, I feel secure. I have never been there when there hasn't been security. I feel safe. I feel like. It's a good mix. I don't feel like it's any one group. I'm very happy to welcome them to the neighborhood. And it also takes time when a new business opens to find your place and and to wheel in things and and to learn how to control your crowd. I'm for giving them an entertainment permit. I hope that you'll. Think that way. Thank you for your time. Thank you, sir. Next speaker. Hi. Um, my name is Layla. Um, I live across the block, the bar, the black. Bar, and I lived almost there two years since the black bars there. I have a window to increase the fights in noise that's keeping me in. My mom, my dad, who is currently struggling with cancer up all night. It's very hard to speak in a group because I'm from Brazil. I'm here at this school and. I ask you here today to not give the parents. License for them. I saw something that very scary, me and my mom other night. I saw a group, left a bar fight in front of my window. I called the police, but unfortunately they not. Come in time. So thank you. Thank you. Next week, please. Hi. My name is Shannon McManus. And I'm Bethany Black, and we are the owners of Black Long Beach. And we just wanted to thank everyone for seeing us. Today and introduce ourselves. You guys could see. You know who we are and we. Welcome any questions or. If anyone has any issues. I think really that we've had as as it happens, a lot of people talking about who the owners are, what they're about. We wanted to show our faces, show that we're. Young looking, middle aged women with children. And this was our dream to create bars and create a neighborhood place for people to come and get to know people that you wouldn't normally rub elbows with. And like Robert said, it is taking a second. There are some things that we've got gone we weren't prepared for. So we we understand and we're just asking for people to be patient. I do speak with the police and Jennifer, our soldier, to ask for different ways that could help us. This is a new community for us, but we do have all employees from the neighborhood. So we sit and have employee meetings and ask for any kind of opinions that could make things better. We are also having Sergeant Garcia come from Los Angeles to do a lead program on Tuesday with our bar and several of the bars in the neighborhood, probably a total of 50 to 60 people, including all of our security, to do a Q&A; and to go. Over like star training. Lead program. We do that of the bar in Hollywood and it's very helpful. Staff and security. So we just want you guys to know that although we do hear what everybody's saying, we want you to know that we are actively working hard to rectify any anything that could create a problem in the neighborhood. We are not partiers. We were not there till three in the morning and we're like, it's 138 to get home to my kids, you know? So we wanted to be here and show our faces and to take any questions or. I also wanted to mention real quick that getting the entertainment permit wouldn't change anything because we've had the paradise is carried over to us. So it's not anything different. It's not like we're going to get one and all of a sudden it's going to be different. Crazy. We we already have one. Right now we're just asking for a new one and a transfer. Yes. So is there any questions or comments? Yeah. Okay. Okay. Okay. Thank you so much for listening. We just wanted to know we're really excited to be a part of the community and we plan on being active and getting to know all of you and attending the meetings. Thank you so much, Long Beach. Thank you. Next speaker. Yes. My name is Ron Stiller. I run the wine mess liquor next door to the black bar. I wanted to take him succeed. That's not the point. I know everyone that has taken come down here and spoke. I personally, I have to clean up blood on the side of my my bar, my liquor store. I have to run kids off this smoking dope. I didn't know that you could smoke dope legally out in California. I know it's legal, but you're not supposed to do it outside drinking. They stand on top of my tables. I have people that has to stay later in the night time to keep them run out. My son on the. New Year's

Eve. He had to break up three fights. They fight outside. They run in the store. One to fight in the store. We had to take and close our door. I want him to succeed. I want him to be part of the community. But they have to take and realize the area that we're in is a residential area and the people that's in the area, they don't want to put up with it. I want them to take and succeed. I want them to take and do good, but I want to be part of the community and be responsible to be part of the community. All the things that everyone has taken and said, I can testify to every one of them. I know the owners. I know, Jeff. I know everyone on the block. We just want them to be responsible community with us, not the idea that we have to take and get used to them. They had to take and get used to community. That's all I have to say. Thank you, Mr. Spirit. Thank you. And thank you, everybody, for coming down and speaking today. I want to highlight a couple of things that we've in the last couple of days, try to go out and do some of our research. I do want to say, you know, the history of this location, Paradise, was very near and dear to many of our hearts. And so the transfer over to a new owner, I think, was very it had a lot of anxiety for a lot of people in the neighborhood because Paradise had been there for so long. The owners reached out to us well before they started doing work on the establishment. And I think every issue that we've brought up, either ourselves or PD or the community members, they have been really diligent in trying to address those. And so what I want to make sure is that we have an open communication and that we are addressing those quickly. I did receive probably from everyone that spoke tonight letters this weekend, and that was the first written kind of concerns that we had. So I made sure to follow up with PD and I'm not sure if PD you guys want to answer these questions, but over the last year, if you could share with us about the letters that were sent out to residents and what the response was, and also calls for service for a bar like this. I know it is a big shift. The demographics are younger, but if you could talk to us about the calls for service that we've had and so we can ask some questions about that. Sure. Commander Rudy Misa representing the police department once again. So in response to your inquiry, the police department conducted a comprehensive evaluation of the location in question during the timeframe of September 20th, 2016, December 20th, 2018 21. Calls for service were identified. I think it should be noted that since Black has taken over ownership, there have been 11 calls for service to incidents and zero arrests. Out of the 11 calls for service, six were actually placed by an employee from the business. The PD evaluation is actually very comprehensive in addition to the crime analysis that's done and that is evaluating the calls for service. We also reached out to the South Division commander and their staff, specifically the police resource officer. They reach out to police officers to get opinions, essentially evaluating the location in question. The commander of the South Division did not see any issues of concern in granting this entertainment permi t to the local business. In addition, Council Member, in response to your question as far as how many residents were contacted, 56 residents were contacted, and that would be within 100 feet of the establishment. 56 residents were contacted. Of those 56 residents, 46 we were unable to contact. But we did leave mailers and surveys to offer input regarding any issues or concerns that they may have. There were two residents that were not opposed to the entertainment permit and eight were opposed to the entertainment permit. And we have. I see that we have one noise calls. Did we do I see we had one noise call where noise measurements were made, but they were under the noise regulations that the information you have. There was one music call that was determined to be unfounded during the timeframe of September 18th, 2018 to January 22nd, 2019. That would have been during the one year short term entertainment permit. As far as evaluating the actual decibels of the noise. I do not believe that would be the case. But the musical was determined to be unfounded through P.D. response. Great. Thank you for that. I also want to highlight that you guys have voluntarily brought on security guards on the weekend that that's not required. I have a couple of questions for you guys if you want to come back down. I want to know for the days that you have entertainment, are those the days that you have security or do you just say security on the weekends, but maybe you have entertainment on the weekdays? Does that make sense? We have security. Seven days a week. There is one guard. Sunday through Wednesday and then two guards on Thursdays. And three guards. On Fridays and Saturdays. So if so, I want to make sure that whatever you guys that that statement is codified in your conditions, that if you have entertainment, that you have security guards on staff. Yes. So it's something that seems like you're already doing. But to make sure that we have it codified so that residents can have a process to engage in that conversation, it's not a volunteer thing, but it's part of the condition. So that makes sense. Yeah. Okay, that sounds great. It won't be a problem. Because nothing has to change because it's okay. We'll do anyway. Thank you. And then let me ask for your security cameras. I know that we have a program with PD where it can loop in with PD. Do you guys currently do that? No, actually, I wasn't aware of that until today. Okay. So we will get that done within the next week and I'll just need to know who to contact. Great. So we'll make sure that you have the right contact, but making sure that your feed is directly tied in. So if there's any issues that we can address those issues to the concerns, I know there were a lot of statements made about fights. I know that from speaking to PD that there was one incident that was outside and that your staff was the staff that called. So I just want to make that from our understanding and again, encourage folks to reach ou t to us if there's any issues that folks might have. The other requests that I would like to make in the conditions is that you guys have a community liaison person. Yes. And that you guys have offered from before you opened your doors to host community meetings. Yes. And so in the next. Two, we work closely with them at Hollywood. Great. So in the next 30 days, I would like to host a community meeting with you guys so that we can have our residents there, make sure they have a process of engagement, a point person, and that we're addressing any of these issues. Because I know that you guys have been really good about addressing issues that we bring up. We just need to create that space so that residents, it seems like it's one building across the street that have been the ones that have a challenge. So I don't know if there's a noise tunnel that goes that way to them, but perhaps there's a noise vacuum for them so that we're good with 30 days. Okay. And then the other thing I'd like to add is in this neighborhood, it is a residential area, but it is a business corridor. You know, Broadway has been envisioned as a business corridor. We're working on creating a business improvement district. I know we've had lots of conversations with Robert and everybody, and so a commitment to make sure that we're doing that and that we have things like power washing that's consistent. So I'm wondering, do you have a power washing plan? We do. That's funny. Donnie, you spoke okay. I brought my power washer. We do a lot of things ourselves. Yeah. So, yeah. So I have actually power washed twice and Johnny did it the other day. That's great. So it's great that you do it at your establishment. I think for all of Broadway, I mean, somebody who walks Broadway on occasion, I would like it for the entire block. So I know we're working on that. And we have yeah, we've implemented other. Things too. I think that can help with that along with the power washing. So on that, if you guys could talk really quickly about LEED because you've talked about it briefly, but just so community members understand, I think that doing a training with your bartenders both on serving and what that looks like would give some security to some of our residents as well to make sure that that training. So every one from our staff. Except for security has they've all completed the lead program. And where they actually went. And Jessica is the general manager of our bar restaurant. Yeah. And then the security all of our security has the California guard cards. And everyone has their food handlers and. Everything. But what we. Are also doing is we're hosting a star training course. Where we have invited some speakers. To come and our staff will be there. And also the. Staff of. The Mineshaft and the Brit are coming. And we've invited the liquor store. Staff next door at the wine, Miss Ron, who spoke about us. Earlier. So yeah. I mean, but that that training does what for your staff? I guess my que stion. Is, does star training at LAPD and that's all he does is either give the talks at they have, I think once a month different places around Los Angeles. But he will actually come to your location if you have more than 25. But it's it specifically talks about how to serve and how to notice if somebody is over the limit. Right. Got drunk two drunk people how to handle that, how like what kind of procedure to take implementing procedures and protocols for. I don't I'm like but. That that's very helpful. Yeah. So I think having that in place is yes, power washing but let's get it to where people are not throwing up outside. Yeah. I want to say real quick that the great thing is, is that he will go over everything and he does a wonderful Q&A.; And when we did it, Hollywood ended up being like almost a three hour meeting because the staff. To talk about their own personal experience in working behind the bar or being out the door. And he will give advice like as far as like rancid, the pot smoking, you know, how to deal with that out front. So it's been the most the greatest learning experience for our bar in Hollywood. So we asked him if he would be willing to travel down here and he said he would. So we're just kind of opening it up to other bars because we feel like it's so valuable to everyone in this business. And yeah, he'll address issues and. We'll have that forum that we can ask him. Stuff. Yeah. Anything as far as fakes, all that. Great. Thank you. I think those are the questions I have for you guys. Appreciate it. Staff, let me ask, is there a timeline on, you know, if we approve today versus approved in 30 days? I know that it's a limited time because it's a transfer. There's no set timeline. Okay. So I. I would like to make sure that we have the time to meet with the community members. So I'd like to. He's rock and roll. And Linda. I, I don't necessarily want to have to do a whole nother hour of show, but if you guys are committing to doing this community, meeting with the residents that are here today, myself and anybody else in their building in the next 30 days, then I would ask my colleagues to support this item with that addition and with the requirement that you have a community liaison person and that you have your police camera, your cameras are looped in with PD. Then I would ask for everybody to go ahead and support this entertainment license today with those amendments. Okay. Thank you. Sounds good. Thank. But what? Yes. Okay. Please. Mr. Gonzalez. Yes, go ahead. Would you second guess what you're doing? Do you want to speak on it? Yeah. Okay, fine. It's called for the voting. Motion carries. Okay. Okay. Okay, fine. Can we move? We're going to move. Item number 23, 22. It's a pleasure that I don't know a 22. And so with that, let me go ahead and do the hearing, Madam Clerk. There'll be a hearing to. Report from Development Services recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearin

g. Consider appeals from David P. Donovan, Jeremy Arnold and Daniel Wilson accept categorical exemption c18 152 and uphold the Planning Commission's decision to approve a site plan, review, conditional use permit and local coastal development permit to permit a change of use and renovation . Two of the Breakers Hotel into a 185 room hotel with food and beverage venues, banquet meeting areas and amenities in the coastal zone at 210 East Ocean Boulevard in the Downtown Shoreline Plan Development District District two. Thank you again. This is a hearing there's no oath that's required referring to. There is an oath that is required. There is it says no here. But if there is or if you're going to speak on this, please stand now. Okay. If you're hearing speaker and if you're not standing, taking the oath, you're not speaking. Okay. Please give the oath. To you and each of you solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the cause now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. Everyone else. Okay, so the and so as far as speaking for that hearing is closed beyond the people that are speaking. Let me go ahead and introduce our assistant city manager, Mr. Modica. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. We will have a staff report on this item given by Linda Tatum, our director of development services, and her team. I'd like to introduce Maryanne Cronin, our senior planner and team member Alejandro Placentia, who will do the staff presentation for this item. Good evening, Honorable Mayor Garcia and city council members. Before you tonight is an appeal of the Planning Commission approval of the Breakers Hotel project. As noted on this slide, this project was conditionally approved by the Cultural Heritage Commission and Planning Commission in 2018. The requested entitlements for the project include site plan, review, conditional use permit and a local coastal development permit, which were all conditionally approved by the Planning Commission on November 15th, 2018. Within the ten day Peace Planning Commission Appeal period, three applications for appeal were filed. Appeal topics include conflicts with the standards established under the Victory Park Design Guidelines, PD six Zoning and the local coastal program. And that the project introduces environmental impacts. The project is a 0.49 acre site located at 210 East Ocean Boulevard. The project site is within sub area seven of the Downtown Shoreline Plan Development District or PD six. The site is located within the general plan land use District seven, which is the mixed use district. The site is located on the south side of Ocean Boulevard, between Locust Avenue to the west and Collins way to the east. Victory Park. A public park, abuts the subject property to the north. An existing easement through the public park allows for vehicular access to the site via circular driveway. The east west ashley marine way to the rear o f the project site was previously vacated. The scope of work subject to planning commission approval included the following A change of use from a 233 unit congregate care facility to a 185 room hotel. The expansion of alcohol service to new food and beverage venues. The exterior building modifications, including restoration work roof modifications. And the addition of an enclosed stairwell. The addition of an outdoor rooftop pool and deck area on the east portion of the existing third floor roof. The expansion of the 14th floor rooftop terrace and addition of a new

restroom structure on the 14th floor terrace, as well as the conceptual approval of driveway modifications and re landscaping. A victory park. As shown on this slide, the site is developed with a 13 storey building with the 14th floor, cupola and rooftop area. Two additional lower levels are located below Ocean Boulevard at street level. The building is approximately 172,000 square feet in the area and is designed in a Spanish Renaissance revival style with a gable rooftop roof with towers. The building was designated as a city historic landmark in 1989. These photos are of Victory Park and the existing circular driveway configuration. The driveway currently maintains a one way drive aisle with one entry and one exit at Ocean Boulevard. Both entry and exits intersect with the sidewalk along Ocean Boulevard. Based on the previous entitlement for a 233 unit congregate care facility with banquet room and hall rentals and restaurant areas. The proposed use would fall within the non-conforming parking rights for the building as an adaptive reuse project. The new parking is new parking is not required. However, the project applicant would has agreed to provide 250 offsite parking spaces at the adjacent Long Beach Convention Center and an additional 150 overflow spaces across Ocean Boulevard. The provided valet parking is at a level similar to code requirements for new buildings. The ground floor uses would include hotel related uses such as a lobby area, retail space, dining areas, coffee shop, lounge and wine bar, a spa and fitness center. The areas in gray are historically protected and subject to all conditions included in the Certificate of Appropriateness approval granted by the Cultural Heritage Commission. The third floor would feature guest rooms and a new on the existing third floor rooftop. On the 13th floor of the existing Sky Room restaurant would be renovated as part of this approval. The existing Cielo Bar is located on the 14th floor rooftop. A new roof terrace would be added adjacent to the existing Cielo Bar restrooms, and a bar area would be located on this terrace area. These elevations of the building labeled the areas to be modified on the exterior of the building, which include the elevator edition, elevator and stairway edition, the new railing at the pool deck and the new 14 floor rooftop terrace. Rehabilitation work includes re-opening previously sealed window openi ngs and restoration of ornamental features. New period appropriate windows would be installed on the upper floors and period. Appropriate storefronts would be installed at the ground floor. All exterior modifications were determined by the Cultural Heritage Commission to meet the required Secretary of the Interior Standards for Rehabilitation. This slide shows the proposed east and west elevations of the building, including a view of the code required. Stairwell. Elevator edition. This is the proposed conceptual landscape plan for Victory Park. Vehicles will continue to access the site from a widened driveway at Ocean Boulevard, but the reconfiguration would relocate the vehicle exit onto Collins Way. This driveway relocation would remove a point of pedestrian conflict at Ocean Boulevard and provide a more continuous park area along the street. Frontage. New drought tolerant landscaping, fixed seating, a drinking fountain, a dog waste post and public park signage would be added to the park area. The overall Victory Park proposal increases the hardscape in the park but improves the landscaping and provides a new passive park amenities that are not present under existing conditions. While no net loss of dedicated parkland will occur, the widened driveway would reduce the active passive park space for private access as condition. The applicant will replace the display's parkland at a 2 to 1 ratio. In response to comments raised at the public hearing and in the appeals. Additional supplemental analysis in responses to comments were prepared and included in attachment j in your packets. To further demonstrate that the project meets all the required findings and that no environmental impacts would occur as a result of the re-use of the existing building. The use of a secure, categorical exemption was determined, determined to be appropriate. The project is the re-use of an existing landmark building. The findings for the site plan review entitlement can be made in the affirmative because the project would convert the Breakers Hotel building back to its original use. The modifications to the building are consistent with the Secretary of the Interior Standards for rehabilitation and would undo inappropriate modifications that were made to the building in the past. The addition of the code required stairwell and elevator additions would not provide usable square footage that represents an expansion of the existing structure. The new rooftop patios and swimming pool areas are accessory structures to the hotel use as condition. The building modifications are consistent with the Secretary of the Interior Standards for Rehabilitation. The findings for the local coastal development permit can be made in the affirmative because private development of the Breakers Hotel would provide enhancements to the existing public park areas in order to enhance public utilization of the existing recreational resource, which is consistent with Chapter three of the Coastal

t. The park would remain a public park area and appropriate signage would be added to further designate this area as public park space. In addition, the relocation of the driveway onto Collins Way would remove an existing point of conflict between the vehicles and pedestrians traveling on Ocean Boulevard, as well as provide a more continuous park area along the Ocean Boulevard frontage. The findings for the conditional use permit can also be made in the affirmative because the sale of alcoholic beverages for on site consumption was previously covered under a valid alcohol license for the property. The previous alcohol licenses would be merely transferred to the project applicant and owner. Consulted with the Long Beach Police Department on this application. And the Long Beach Police Department expressed no opposition, provided security measures such as security cameras and adequate lighting. Which are included as conditions of approval as such are required findings for the site plan review, local coastal development permit and conditional use permit can be made in the affirmative. As previously noted, the use of a categorical exemption was determined to be appropriate. Public noticing was distributed in accordance with the Long Beach Municipal Code and mailed to property owners and occupants within 750 feet of the project site. To date, staff has received seven written comments and one phone call in response to the appeal. Noticing three letter. Three of the letters were received from one of the appellants, Mr. Donovan, regarding Victory Park. Three additional pieces of written correspondence are in support of the project. One letter was submitted by the applicant. In addition, one phone call was received from a local property owner in support of the project. All written correspondence is included in your packets in front of you. The recommendation to City Council is to deny the ACT, the Planning Commission recommendation to accept a categorical exemption c18 one five to approve the project. This concludes staff's presentation. We welcome any questions. You may as well. The appellants are present in the audience. Thank you. Yes. Through our public comment on this item. Excuse me, Mr. Vice Mayor, now is the time for the appellants to make their presentation. There were three separate appellants identified. If they are here, they can queue up and make their presentation. Typically, the mayor would provide a reasonable amount of time, approximately 5 minutes for each presentation. Thank you. I mean, you start to. My dear. My name is David Patrick Donovan. My. Talks are going to take between five and 6 minutes. Thank you. I. I support the. Conversion of the breakers to a four star hotel. I support wording in the staff report that says that displaced parkland in front of the breakers be replaced. On a 2 to 1 ratio. That would be per the LCP. I am no longer insisting that the developer provide mitigations in the Long Beach coastal zone, including sect ions of victory in Santa Cruz parks. I believe that the Planning Commission was not acting in the public's best interests. On November 15th, 2018, when they approved the landscape plan. They seem to have ignored. The staff report statement that says proposed improvements in Victory Park are designed in a manner that a member of the public would not recognize that the area north of the Breakers is public space. This is from input from the Long Beach Cultural Heritage Commission. I urge the City Council at the very least two men with the Planning Commission recently approved for Victory Park. You could add in an amendment statement that supports the following retention of three patches of natural lawn on the lawn the installation of two wood and steel park benches facing north. NW on the east side of this section of the park installation of park signage two feet high, five feet long. That state's Victory Park established 1889. City of Long Beach. That those people passing by on Ocean Boulevard know that this is indeed a public park. The Pacific six teams new landscape plan would help accomplish this. Having said all of the above, with the exception of the trees, the access walk in my proposed park benches. I want all. Oh, the existing lawn to remain in natural turf. This would be south of the driveway and north of the Ocean Boulevard sidewalk. Following the Victory Park design guidelines. DEADLINE has been there since at least 1926. It is grandfathered in. The land used is protected by the LCP. In the Victory Park design guideline guidelines says When do we replace long established Park Lawn with ground cover? Which of our public parks is next for this conversion to ground cover? For 53 years, I run a gardening business for me. Ground cover says, don't tread on me. It is my it is my experience that ground covers are very vulnerable to foot traffic as opposed to natural lawn. Per the guidelines restrict the access walkway to eight feet wide with even not staggered edges. The Victory Park Design Guidelines support the intent of the LCP. They are not vague principles. The guidelines are highly specific in detail, meant to keep developers from further encroaching on these two parks. Examples of this are are overpaying for non park purposes. At 160 ocean gate landscaped retaining walls. BLOCK public use what was meant to be in 1898, to be used as public park for all of us to enjoy. In front of a union bank building. Precious parkland has been turned into a de facto front yard. This part lawn is historic. This simplicity really complements the breakers. It makes a lush green foreground. For The Breakers, nicely setting apart the iconic building from Ocean Boulevard. Don't clutter the lawn with blocked concrete seats, a busy looking, staggered access walk and a variety of groundcover types. Keep our park simple. Keep our park historic. Keep our park completely walkable. Two things I have I have never quite gotten over. One, the last time that Breakers was remodeled, renovated. Excuse me, the developer permanently. Sir. What we're going to do is I know that the 5 minutes is up, but we can during hearings, we can be a little flexible. And so I'll give you another minute, if you'd like, maybe 30 seconds minutes. Fine. We'll just go ahead, sir. Remove all of the parks benches. To remove the park managers from from in front of the Millennium Center. In the early 1980s, 12 civic groups successfully fought for the inclusion of those park benches in Santa Cruz Park. I want the city council to direct staff to tell the CEO of Molina health care to restore the park benches and a missing drinking fan from our Santa Cruz. From our Santa Cruz Park. This would be pursuant to the original development agreement with the city of Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you very much. We'll have the second. Appellant Please come forward. Good evening, honorable council members and Mr. Mayor. My name is Jordan Sisson from the law office of Gideon Krakoff, and we represent some of the appellants as Daniel Wilson and Mr. Jeremy Arnold. Staff is recommending that you approve the project and that it falls within the category of exemption. That's essentially what the 900 pages uploaded yesterday states. However, we respectfully disagree. Not only do we disagree, but experts letter submitted to the record. This for the hearing agrees with us. In short. They say that this project will cause significant environmental impacts, specifically noise and traffic. Additionally, that the adjacent nearby residents that's going to be only about 20 feet away from the proposed outdoor rooftop improvements, only 20 to 28 feet away will suffer environmental noise impacts and that a chemical exemption isn't appropriate in this instance. We apologize for the last minute submissions, but again, we only saw a staff report late last night last week, so it was difficult to provide it beforehand. Additionally, appellants have been working cooperatively with the developer to potentially resolve the environmental issues. Unfortunately, we cannot conclude those discussions before tonight, hence why we submitted the expert stuff before this hearing. In my remaining time, I want to kind of highlight some of the issues which are before you in your packets that the expert comments rose from first. The second or third floor improvements will cause noise up to 56 to 85 DBA. That's significantly higher than the city's applicable five DBA threshold on changes in ambient noise. These individuals, these apartments are going to be there at nighttime, and these hotels will have loud noises from several people speaking large crowds, potentially alcohol, alcohol, charged individuals, as well as live music. There are no conditions that require mitigation of that noise, notwithstanding condition of approval, number 29, which shows you has to comply with the city code and the city ordinance. There's no evidence in the record submitted by the applicant that shows what the ambi ent noise conditions are or that even compliance with the noise ordnance is even feasible. And even if it was feasible, you would still have significant impacts. This is substantial evidence, this apartment complex right next to it, as well as the city as the convention center constitutes an unusual circumstance. And as I'm sure everybody's were well aware and secure, there's an unusual circumstance and there will be significant environmental impacts . A chemical exemption is not appropriate. And my last minute and 50 seconds, I simply request you continue this hearing so staff can digest as well as counsel can digest those comments. You know, they're lengthy. They're hefty. Of course, it's going to take time to digest. So we simply request continue this item. Perhaps the Palins can resolve environmental issues with this project that must be resolved. If we're going to protect the community that surrounds this project. I thank you. I someone that. Thank you. I think we have one final appellant. Good evening. My name is Jeremy Arnold. Thank you. Mayor Garcia, Vice Mayor Andrew's esteemed council members. I'm a resident of Long Beach, and I oppose this project as it currently stands. I also encourage you to either reject the project or continue it so that satisfactory environmental mitigations can be agreed upon. Some important Seeger issues were identified in the expert comment letters submitted into the record today. Few of which I would like to name here. What particularly concerns me is the extensive noise impacts this project will bring to the area. Uh, as Mr. Sisson noted, the noise impacts from the proposed outdoor activities on the second and third floor rooftop areas will have impacts. Are people speaking. Uh. Outdoor amplified music, as he noted, from 56 to 85 DBA. And that doesn't even account for the cumulative impacts of all of those activities taking place at the same time. This is clearly a significant noise impact under secure categorical exemption is inappropriate as a result. Further, the project applicant has not submitted any noise measurements of existing ambient noise levels or evidence that compliance with the city's noise standard is even possible. Given all these factors, I strongly urge you to accept the appeal. Require an M.D. or ER before approving the project. Like I said, I am a resident of Long Beach in this neighborhood, and I'm not the only person around here who has serious concerns about this project. A lot of different folks for a lot of different reasons around this environmental issue. It sends a bad message to the residents. These kinds of categorical exemptions which place business interests over the public health. So again, I urge you to accept this appeal requiring mandatory I.R.. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes the appellant. We're going to now hear from the applicant. So we'll also give the applicant. 5 minutes. 8 minutes. Well, I believe, Mr. Attorney, that the applicant can request a little more time. So if you want. Well, we'll set it. We're going to do is will set the timer to six and we get the 615 more time. We'll go to eight. I will endeavor to be quick. Thank you, Dr. Mayor. City council members. I'm John Molina. I'm one of the partners of Pacific Six, the owner and developer of the Breakers Hotel. I've got a couple of PowerPoints to show you in a minute to address some of these issues. But before we get to that, I just want to say we have met with all of the appellants as late as about 4:00. I thought that we were going to be able to get something agreed to on this issue and didn't hear back. But we're more than happy to talk and and agree to certain mitigations with respect to Mr. Donovan. I will get into that in a few minutes and tell why some of the issues with him are not able to be mitigated, frankly, this project. And our goal is to thank you, sir, is to bring back an iconic building in the city. And and. Make it useful. We want to employ over 200 people in the city. We're investing over 85 million in this project. And I am thrilled that this is the first project that Pacific Six has taken on. And if you can watch the screen, I can step you through what this will look like in 2020. It was noted this is a long week. And we are applying for national recognition as a as a national landmark. So we've been very, very careful to make sure that we keep the historic look but bring it into the 21st century. This will be our new lobby. Within the lobby. We'll have a lobby bar. And then an all day dining restaurant of, I believe, 180 seats. 160 seats. We went to a little coffee shop that looks out over Ocean Boulevard. And then a spa that has ten treatment rooms. I do know that the Queen Mary has a spy. I don't know if it's a full service spa, but this will be the only hotel spa in downtown Long Beach. Welcome you all to come in and relax. This is the arcade. We're going to have about 12,000 square feet of meeting space. In this shows the hallway and believe the door at the far end. That's where folks used to come in to go to the Sky Room. This is the pool deck. This will overlook the performing arts center. And if you look at the far right, you'll see we're going to have a living wall. Our little contribution to environmental protectionism. This is a sample of our guestrooms. And then this is the this is a joke. This is the Sky Room. That a lot of people ask us if we're going to bring the Sky Room back. Yes, we are. Here are a couple of other. Views of the Sky Room. And you may be familiar with the Calabar, which was a small bar upstairs on the 14th floor, and we're going to open that up. This is the bar. And then looking out over the rooftop. We want to make sure that we're good neighbors. And so one of our partners has endeavored in visiting with neighborhood groups in the downtown area and, frankly, throughout the city, to show them what this is going to look like and get their feedback. We've got nothing but positive feedback on this project from the neighborhood groups. We've also talked to Unite here. And we're trying to work out an arrangement where a great portion of our employees can be unionized. Unfortunately, we were not able to finish those negotiations before today, but I think we're close. Down on the first floor in the far west, we're going to have a jazz club. Long Beach is home to jazz, the premiere jazz station in the country. And we want this to be a place for professional jazz musicians to come hang out and play. So please meet us at The Breakers in 2020. Now I also have one other presentation. I don't know how to get that on. Can we get the. There was an additional presentation we'll go through. So you saw the the rendition of. The Landscaping for Victory Park. Here is the challenge we had. We calculated the maximum water usage for the space out front. The maximum is 111,000 gallons per year. Under 100% turf. We would require 200,000 gallons of water. So we exceed by double the amount of water that we're allowed to have. I feel a little bit silly talking about droughts given the past few days of rain. But unlike 1926, we are in an era where. Conscious. Our plan would require only 67,000 gallons of water. So we're at 60% of what's the maximum. We feel this is not only responsible, but we feel that the design is appealing and fits very well with the park. And again, we did meet with Mr. Donovan and will continue to do so to see if we can satisfy his needs. But we just can't afford to do. ALTER Do you need another minute? Mr. Molina I think that I am. I'm done on the Sequoia issues. You have responses from our attorney who did all the research, and I think staff did a wonderful job at the at the Planning Commission meeting. Staff went through point by point by point as to why the objections wouldn't hold. So I am done. And again, I would welcome all of you to join us in 2020. Okay. Thank you very much. That concludes the applicant's comments. At this time, if there's any additional public comment. Remember, this is only on the hearing and this is not on anything else. Any public comment on the hearing? I only have one. I'm going to just do one. I'm going to close the speakers list. So two speakers and then the speakers list is closed. Okay. Only two. So we'll have. Our first one on our second one, 3 minutes each, then we'll close. Good evening. In control. You should not approve the site plan review conditional. Conditional use permit and local coastal development permit for the Breakers Hotel Project until. One. The Victory Park guidelines and the California Coastal Act have been followed. I've given you all a copy of the guidelines. To the amount of parkland being removed from public use has been determined. And three, the lost public parkland is replaced downtown, one for one and one for one. Elsewhere in the city, as required by the Coastal Act. You've all been given a copy of the Victory Park guidelines adopted in 1989, because these guidelines h ave not been followed over the years. Victory Park has become the front yard for most of the buildings on the south side of Ocean Boulevard. Tonight, you have an opportunity to return Victory Park at the Breakers to the public open space it was originally designed for. The current design concept. The victory part in the current design part. Concept for Victory Park ignores the following guidelines. All driveways in Victory Park are prohibited. Hybrid Bermuda grass, lawns, not oak, grass and succulents. Eight foot walkways not designed as an entrance to the hotel and wooden benches not uncomfortable concrete blocks. The Cultural Heritage Commission on April 2018 expressed concerns about the driveway, and staff recommended that the driveway be narrowed to match the existing conditions with an overall width between 20 and 22 feet. This recommendation was ignored and the driveway has been widened to 33 feet. I quote from the Cultural Heritage Commission minutes. The widened driveway and courtyard area would effectively remove public park space. The proposed improvements in Victory Park are designed in a manner that a member of the public would not recognize that the area north of the Breakers is public park. Staff recommends that the design of Victory Park is revised to align with the current driveway and planting areas. This is what we're asking and also that coastal law be followed and that one part one. 2 to 1 park space B. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. And I just I just want to remind the gentleman at the end. So I close the speakers list. I'm going to let you speak. But that's that's it. So there's no more speakers. I had closed it before. So for the gentleman at the end, but I'm going to let you speak, so come on down. But that's it. All right. Next speaker. Evening. Honorable mayor, vice mayor and city council. My name is Bob Stetler. I'm an attorney with Kiesel, Young. And Logan. And I represent the developer. Pacific six Enterprises. And I'm here to speak on behalf of the project. I think this is an amazing opportunity in. Front of us. The time is now to move the project forward with all developments. Time is not your friend. And so it's I think it important at this point in time that we move to move the project forward. All right. Echo the excellent presentation done by staff as well. As by the applicant. This is a very exciting project. The Breakers. Hotel, as you know, was. Designated as a historic hotel property by. The Long Beach Historical Commission in 1989. It's being brought back to that level. As Mr. Molina. Mentioned. It's going to seek to be put on the National Historic. Registry. Which again. Is part of the $85 million investment that this development. Team is making in. This property. It's an important aspect and it's going to be a great asset for our convention. And tourism business. And I know Steve Gooding. We're here right now. He would be. Jumping up and down saying, yes, we need this proj ect and we need it now. Jobs. It's all about jobs. 500 construction jobs. 200 permanent jobs once the hotel is up and operational. We need to get that done. We need to get that done now. Victory Park will. Receive a significant improvement. It's going to improve the safety. We're now we're going to have two exits on the ocean. We're going to have one. Ingress and egress will be off ocean. So that helps with the safety. It's going to be compliant with the 2015 California model Efficient Landscape Ordinance. As Mr. Molina alluded to before, we have limitations on how much water can be used. With respect to the Sequoia and the categorical. Exemptions, the. Project is eligible for category. Categorical Exemptions under Sequoia satisfies four. Different exemptions Class one. For an existing facility. Class 32 for the infill development, class 31 for the restoration and rehabilitation. Of a historical resource in Class three with respect to small facilities exemption. What's most important in addressing the. Comment made. Earlier? There's no exception available. There's no unusual. Circumstance. This property is adjacent to the Westin, the Renaissance, the Convention Center, the Terrace Theater and the outdoor area, as well as. Not too far away from the Hyatt Regency. There's the use of this property as a hotel. Is not an unusual circumstance. If there's no unusual circumstance, you don't go to stage. Two, step two under the California Supreme Court ruling in 2015. Thank you. Thank you very much. And our last speaker. And we'll add time for the translation. Thank you so much. We know, but I think Cappello better be walking in Long Beach for three, five years. My name is Frederico PEREIRA. I lived in Long Beach for 35 years. That's why I keep Capello for the rest of my life. I'm into don't get me wrong. I'm here today because I'm concerned with our environment where we live and. Heading back. Look at the net and follow the one that the media. And the impact it will have on the health of my family. Through their dedication. To the construction of this project. That Peter could say, I wouldn't look at the Proyecto Tenga. Let's play what I'm being told. Correct us. I ask that you assure that this project has regulations, the environmental regulations correctly bore Albion. The familiar is a local one with that and Terra. For the benefit of our families and the entire community. Temple. Thank you for your time. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment. We're going to go ahead and go back to the deliberation. So first up, we have Councilmember Pierce and there is a motion in a second. Thank you. I want to thank staff for your presentation, the appellants and the developer and their team for their hard work on this. I think, you know, when you think about Long Beach and you think about the images that we have in the city, the historic buildings on our coastline are one of the greatest things that really earmark what makes Long Beach wonderful. And w hen you look back and look at older photos, you can't help but notice how many beautiful buildings are gone. So I want to recognize that this is a very big project, that restoring this historic building is has to be a labor of love. Because I know that through your process, I'm sure you found some more costs and expenses through that process. So I just want to recognize that for the community members. I also want to recognize some of the concerns. I know that I've had several conversations with the developers on each of the appeal concerns, and I know that we are getting to a place where we feel like the park is going to be what we want, that we're going to have some historic nods to make sure that we are including that in the historic vision with the building, that it's accessible to residents, constituents and tourists that are going to walking by, walking down Ocean Boulevard. And I feel confident that those measures are going to be taken. I also know on the environmental concerns, it's an issue that's been extremely important to me. And my office met with the developer last week and owner, and we had conversations around the space program, making sure that we're talking about environmental integrity of the overall building specific to historic buildings and to hotels. And so I'm very thankful that that's something that you guys are going to be exploring. And what pans out? Pans out. But we know that we have the tool, we have the tools in the toolbox and that you guys are going to be using those when it comes to the noise concerns that were brought up by the appellants. I want to recognize that downtown is a unique location, that we have downtown events on Pine, on Ocean, the Grand Prix, and nobody knows the impacts of those like my residents on Ocean Boulevard. And so through my time on council, I've really tried to make sure that we hear all those concerns. I know that staff last April I agenda as an item around the impacts of noise in the downtown trying to identify what options might be. You know tools in our toolbox that we can use to mitigate some of the noise in our downtown. And so I just I know that I talked to special events recently, but if you could give me a timeline on when that's coming back, because that's not just for the buildings around the breakers, but it's for overall downtown. Yes. So that agenda item and a separate one talked a little bit about all kinds of activities that are related to noise. We're studying all those together. So we expect to come back approximately in June with the noise studies, in addition to kind of the buskers and that type of entertainment. So the noise study that was added is pretty comprehensive. So it is taking some additional time to do consultant work, but we expect around June to be back in front of the council. Great. And just I know that we hired an outside consultant, a third party that was going to come in and really measure the sound and also look at the future events that we have in downtown and really want to be mindful that we're able to have a downtown that's thriving but respects the residents that live here as well. And so I feel really confident on that. The area that I know has been of most discussion has been around the jobs component. And nobody knows the importance of hotel jobs in a tourism industry like I do because we have so many hotels in our downtown. So it's extremely important to me not only that, we have the construction jobs that are being added to our local economy, but that we have these jobs within this hotel that are going to be not just more jobs, but good jobs. When we look at the history of Long Beach and we look at the hotels that we have here, we know we've seen a trend where our job market is really changing. And to be able to have that balance of good jobs, of good union jobs is something that's important. But this appeal is based on on SICA, and I definitely have gone through it with a fine tooth comb and worked with staff and worked with the developers. I've asked that everybody continues to talk, to have conversations and to make sure that this project's on the right path. I know that it's far from being completely done. I know there's still a lot of work to be done, and I am thankful for everybody that's working on this project. And I want to encourage community members to continue to be at that table and continue to work with the developer to ensure that Long Beach is not only a leader in tourism, but that we have those good jobs that are paying good wages that allow us to change our economy for the best. So I encourage my council colleagues to vote to deny the appeal today and to know that we have a commitment that these parties are going to continue to work together. And I expect this to be a proud gem in our downtown with good union jobs and good environmental standards and a something that's accessible to all the residents in downtown. So I'm looking forward to seeing that pan out. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So this is certainly an exciting project. I've been following it for a while. And, you know, I can't say I didn't wake up as soon as, you know, wake up and pay attention to something you said. A jazz lounge, I think. Long Beach. You know, I've seen a lot of jazz lounges come and go in Long Beach. I'm hoping this is this one's a hit. But overall, it's an important project. It's a historic landmark. I think you're thinking big about doubling down on that historic nature of the site to add more value to the character of the neighborhood. I think the important you know, I want to give props to, you know, recognition a councilwoman Pearce for sitting down and really showing a willingness to work with the developer to meet timelines, make sure that the priorities in terms of good quality jobs on on both construction as well as the hardworking hotel workers that they are respected in this process. So I know that that's been a priorit

y. And and I know that Mr. Molina has expressed his support for that as well. So I love I love to see when people come together and there's a partnership. I would encourage that conversation to continue, and I want to see more updates. Best of luck to the developer. Best of luck to everyone involved, I hope. I wish this is. I hope for this to become a very, very successful project. And I hope I spend a lot of time in that jazz lounge. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you. I, too, want to thank everyone for coming out and for expressing your concerns. I do. This is a project of huge magnitude, and to get to a place where everyone is completely satisfied is unreasonable and impossible, frankly. So I want to thank the developers on working so closely with city staff. And of course I want to thank city staff who first and foremost are always looking at the interests of the community and the residents and of course, our regulatory interests in trying to determine how best to frame and structure a project. So I want to thank city staff for that. For the developers, I think the commitment to restoration is huge and I want to thank you for that. I think there are very few people that would have a love for the city as this particular developer does. And the the huge investment, ongoing investment in the city is is very much appreciated by the members of the policy board here. So I want to thank the developer for that. The facilities and the amenities look amazing. I appreciate that. Councilman Richardson was impressed by the Jazz Bar, but I do have to admit that I got the attention of my council colleague, Stacy Mango when the photos of the spa went up. So I think we have some plans in our future as well in 2020. So it's just going to be a top notch facility. And I think that it's going to make the city continue to move in a forward direction, allowing people to come and visit the area. And and, you know, every day when we talk with folks who live outside of the city, who are here for business, what we hear is I had no idea that Long Beach had all of this to

ussions does happen as promised, and there are some more opportunities to reach common ground. But with a project of this magnitude, I'm frankly surprised that there was as little issues raised as there were tonight. So thank you very much. Thank you, Councilwoman Vice Mayor Rogers. Yes, thank you. First of all, I'd like to congratulate on the hard work that went into this project. But most of all, I just like to say the beautiful pictures that you guys showed everything. And when I heard the word Molino and Keisel, I knew then, you know, my whole life, the whole lifestyle about jobs, I knew that this was what I was looking to hear. And I know when you talk about jobs, I'm just hoping that this will be local jobs because this is the type of situation we build. My district may not be able to go down there, but I guarantee you they can work there. So that's what I'm looking for, that we will be able to hire local individuals to be able to be a part of this wonderful project. Thank you guys very much. Thank you. We have, I think, council councilwoman Lena Gonzales on the line. Is that right? Yes. I just wanted to say thank you to all parties for, you know, just being invested in the continued progress of downtown and for the community who came out and spoke today. And I know that the developer, John Molina, and his team will certainly be attuned to all those suggestions and ideas and concerns. But I just want to thank you overall for the values that, you know, certainly are. Very important for Long Beach. Restoration job opportunities and the connection to the community and continuing that connection to the community. So thank you so much for everything. Thank you. And just I'm going to conclude and I just want to just to the entire team that worked on this project, this is a fantastic restoration project and one that I completely support and have supported since it was brought forward. I want to add just a few things. One is the update. What I think is unique about this project is that a few hotels of this size, which is which would be a, you know, a boutique smaller hotel, but but certainly for Long Beach, a good sized hotel has as many public spaces and opportunities for the public to actually engage with in the building than than this property would. And if you think about all of the public amenities and public open space opportunities, whether that is the food opportunities or the bar or what caught my eye, unlike the spa and the jazz club, which was the pool room. I think those types of opportunities for the public to enjoy the building, which is a historic property that is really important to the city and its history I think is really important. I also want to say that, you know, I personally have been also in some conversations with the development team as well as with some of the appellants. And I feel those conversations are going well and I feel I feel confident that there is going to be some good resolution to some of the concerns that a re on the table. And I think that the developer spoke to their interest also in in the jobs. And the jobs ensure that they are good jobs on site. And so I do appreciate that. And I know that those conversations are ongoing. And so, again, I think this is a fantastic project. I think that your timeline is it's aggressive, but it is. It's exciting. And we look forward to the additional opportunity for more hotel rooms and also the additional opportunity for the public to enjoy the building. Because right now, as we know, the building is not operational. And certainly you are opening up more of the building to the public than before. And I think that's really great as well. So so thank you. And with that, we're going to take a vote. This is to deny the appeals as per Councilmember Pierce's motion. And we're doing a roll call vote just because of we have one member that is at a remote location. So Councilmember Gonzales and then we'll go down. Councilwoman? Yes. Councilmember Pierce. Councilwoman Price, Councilmember Supernanny. Hi, Councilwoman Mongo. Hi. Vice Mayor Andrews. Councilmember Arango. Councilman Austin, Councilmember Richardson. Motion carries cape motion carries on the appeals being denied. So that concludes our first hearing. So thank you very much. And we're going to move on. Let me guess. We're going to go to the the shelter issue next. But I want to do the consent calendar and get that out of the way. They can get a motion in a second on consent. Any public comment on consent saying nonetheless, please. Thank you. Councilman Pierce. Okay. Fine. Would you please let your vote? Motion carries. Yes. Now we move to item 33 with the clock, please. With the audit. Report from Economic Development, Health and Human Services recommendation to execute all documents necessary with Paul M Stone for the purchase of certain real property located at 171821722 Hayes Avenue, and an amount not to exceed 1,830,000 District one zoning. Gregory said. Thank you for any public comment on this item. Okay. Councilman Gonzalez? Yes. I mean, we have a staff report, please. This is a pretty big item. Thank you. Sir. We've got a team back here with Kelly Collopy, Mary Torres and Sergio Romero. So I'll turn it over to Kelly to start. Good evening, council members. We're going to start the presentation by. Discussing. The property. And my charge will be leading. That conversation. And then we'll go and we'll go to the next piece. Thank you, Kelly. Honorable Mayor and city council. The item before you is for the acquisition of property located at 1718 through 1722 Hayes Avenue. As part of the state so far 19 budget. The city was granted one time funds for the Homeless Emergency. Aid Program, enabling local jurisdictions to provide emergency assistance to individuals experiencing homelessness. A portion of the city's. Allocation was designated for a location where personal belongings could be stored, while individuals experiencing homelessness could attend, wor k or. Utilize services at the Multi-Service Center. A search was conducted to identify properties located near the Multi-Service Center that could serve this program quickly and with minimal interior improvements. The property. At 1718 through 1722, Hays was identified. An offer to purchase a property at the listing price. Of 1,755,000 was made to the property owner and subsequently accepted. The property measures approximately 6520 square feet and is improved with the 5400 square foot building. An additional amount of $75,000 will be. Expended for due diligence and closing costs, and approximately $170,000 is anticipated for tenant improvements. I will turn this over to Kelley Kelley for further discussion of the operations. So the site will be utilized as a storage facility for. People experiencing. Homelessness. We expect that there will. Be. 100 storage bins for people and they would. Be. Utilized primarily by. Folks who would be coming in, engaging with the multi-service center or with other providers such as and and engage with the quality of life teams or the heart team. And so. As people, a lot of the. Times what we hear is that. People are. Concerned about coming in for services because they have their possessions. With them. And they don't have another place to store them. This allows that to be taken care of so that they can engage in other services. It would be open Monday through. Friday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., closed. Over the lunch. Hour and then on Saturday mornings. From 7 a.m. until noon. However, if someone is engaged with the quality of life or heart teams, they would have the. Opportunity. To access the facility at other times. We would have security and lighting and other things to make sure that the community. You know, and the businesses around are safe. And then if there if somebody leaves their possessions for. Longer than 30 days. And are not engaged in service, then at that time to terminate that space. And then we would open it open it for another. And with that, I. I can create my presentation. I'm open for questions. Councilman Gonzales. Your question, Sergio. I just wanted to say thank you so much for this, because I know that this is a citywide initiative, and I'm glad that we found a space that was amenable to all, but really is creating a really good solution for individuals experiencing homelessness. And we know that about takes about 17 or so plus interactions with our city staff in order to get people to the services that they need. And so this is one solution, but I think it's going to prove to be a very successful solution. So thanks to our city manager economic development and the health department and I know we have Andy Kerr here, who we really appreciate all of his work as well. And he's been a great voice in this. And I just thank you for being here as well. But I'm 100% on board. We've also I just want to say on the record, too, we have notified our West Side industrial groups who seem amenable and we' want to congratulate my staff and say thank you, Councilmember Gonzales. I know that homelessness is a citywide issue. We struggle with the impact sometimes in our downtown. And I know that you've been an advocate for ensuring that we all kind of share some of that responsibility. So thank you for that. And thank you staff for making this happen. Thank you. And I want to thank staff for this. This is an important part of our Everyone Home One Beach plan. And again, I'm just very, very proud of the whole city and every member of this body. Everyone's been stepping up and finding locations and solutions to our challenges around homelessness. And I just think it's great to see that everyone here is really embracing that. So thank you for that. Any public comment on this item? Please come forward. At. Good evening, honorable mayor and members of the council. I just wanted to. I'm sorry. Andy Kur, eighth district member of the Measure H Citizen Oversight Board and everyone at home long beach task force. Just wanted to voice my support for this today. This is just a really great toolbox, I think, for our city staff. Council woman Gonzalez, he mentioned the number of interactions it takes to have an impact with with someone experiencing chronic homelessness. And I think one of the reasons for that is because the lack of tools and a lack of creativity a lot of times our caseworkers have and this is a really big tool in the toolbox. And I just want to commend Kelly Collopy and her staff at Health. I think that this is going to be so much more than just a storage facility. It's another opportunity to interact with with people and to provide services that maybe they don't know about. To also engage them on a level that we haven't been able to do in the past. So. And and I just want to thank everyone in the city for continuing to advance the the goals that we set out and everyone at home. Long Beach Initiative. I think this is just another example of how we're going to have to keep moving the ball forward. And this is just a great step. Thank you. Thank you so much. That concludes for the comment. Members, please go ahead and cast your vote. Motion carries. Thank you. Hearing item number one. Recommendation to conduct a study session to receive and file a presentation on the Climate Action and ADAP

T Adaptation Plan. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of city council. So this is a study session that we would like to bring to you to really talk about our climate action and adaptation plan. There's an incredible amount of work that's been going into this. This is something the council has told us is a priority to really plan for the future on climate action. And so with that, I will turn it over to the team. We have Linda Tatum, we have Christopher Koontz, and we have Allison Spindler to give the presentation. Good evening, Mayor. And council members. I'd like to introduce Allison Spindler, who has lived and breathed this project probably for the last 18 months under the direction of our planning manager, Christopher Coons. And one of the things I'd like to bring your attention to during the presentation is that in last year's budget, the city council gave us an additional staff person to conduct a lot more extensive outreach. And this project in particular had has benefited significantly from that outreach. And you'll see that as we go through the presentation, given the the significant level of public involvement and not just outreach, but also very specific public engagement on this topic. And we're really proud of where we've come. And Allison can give you the details. Thank you, Linda. And good evening, Mayor, and members of the city council. I'm glad to be here before you this evening to provide an update on our work to develop the city's first ever Climate Action and Adaptation Plan. What is the cap? It will be our plan to reduce greenhouse gas emissions across the city. Prepare our communities for the impacts of climate change. All while using this as an opportunity to improve quality of life health and enhance economic vitality here in the city. I would. So first, in terms of using our terms, what do we mean by climate action or climate mitigation? That's really about reducing the impact that we as people have on the future of our planet by reducing our future carbon emissions. This photo might look familiar as this is our number one form of emissions is transportation here in the city. And I know we've all been in this freeway situation. On the other hand, climate adaptation is recognizing that we need to adjust our own behaviors or systems and infrastructure to reduce the impact that climate change has on us. For example, elevating a road to reduce flooding or flood proofing a house. And this is important because a growing body of research is showing that not only is climate change here, but according to the UCLA review of all of the local research, it's already impacting our health in Los Angeles County. These photos are all real photos from Long Beach from two January's ago. The one in the middle is kind of fun that someone kayaking down one of the streets during an extreme rain event. The one on the right is a little more sobering. That's our police and fire services actually rescuing a wheelchair bound resident here in the city. So why are we here today in particular? We're at a critical point in the cap process. As mentioned in the opening, we've been doing a lot of research and background analysis to understand how Long Beach is and will be impacted by climate change. And to be honest, the estimated safety, health and economic impacts are significant. So it's a really important time in the process where we've been gathering and analyzing the data and now we're actually putting together a draft plan. So council feedback and direction is requested as we look at other areas of study that we missed. Do you have guidance as to our process as we go about refining the measures being considered for the plan? Any guidance as to how we should think about evaluating tradeoffs regarding funding and financing staffing to implement the actions we're talking about? Also, in consideration of the cost of inaction, feedback on our greenhouse gas reduction target, which I'll get into in a few minutes, and other priorities are areas that the Council would like us to look at. So this is not new work for Long Beach. We've been a leader in sustainability for a long time. As this timeline shows, starting back in 2006 with the port's first Clean Air Action Plan, in 27, we formed the Sustainability Commission in oh eight, the Office of Sustainability, and then began incorporating sustainability initiatives into our mobility element in 2013 and our land use element in 2017. I also want to point out in 2015, the mayor agreed to the what was then called the compacts of Mayors. Now it's called the Global Covenant, which is local jurisdictions and cities around the globe, committing to a low carbon and resilient city structure. So given all of those sustainability commitments, you might wonder why? Why a cap? Why now and why in planning? So the answer is that not only will it help us meet our our commitments to the global covenant, but the CAP will help us meet a whole host of state and local requirements, including AB 32 or SB 32 , which requires us to reduce our carbon emissions to 1990 levels by 2020. SB three, 75, 86, 99, 691, which relates to sea level rise and coastal areas and our requirements to the state for that. SB 1000, which requires a general plans incorporate adaptation and address impacts to disadvantaged communities. We're also using this plan as a mitigation measure of the land use element. So understanding that our city will continue to grow. How do we do it in the most sustainable way possible? Oops. As Linda mentioned, there's been a lot of research or sorry outreach that's been done, starting with several working groups. We have a scientific working group of 13 experts from Cal State, UCLA, the Aquarium and other local institutions that have really helped us make sure the data is correct. A business working group of local businesses as well as a community working group. We've collaborated with every city department to gather our data and look at the actions we're considering. We'

ve done over 20 outreach events since June 2018 that were selected in collaboration with each council office and at least one event in every district. There was also an equity analysis that informed our outreach strategies, and we've had a real youth engagement focus recognizing that climate change is a multigenerational intergenerational equity issue. And so we're working closely with Youth Leadership Long Beach program, as well as various high school groups who are actively participating in this process. Here are a few stats. To Linda's point, we've had over 18 events where we've had cap tables reaching close to 8500 people at some events, large and small, such as Ready, Long Beach or Desert Nights at the Aquarium. We've also done 12 cat presentations, hosted two big city wide open houses, and hosted large events such as on the bottom right of the photo from our panel on sea level rise and what residents can do to prepare where we had over 300 people attend. We also surveyed every city department and 100% responded that they're already being impacted by climate issues related to infrastructure assets or core services. 88% of departments are engaging in greenhouse gas reduction strategies already. You'll note with the graph on the right that extreme heat is the climate stressor impacting the most number of city departments. Here are the climate hazards based on the data and science that are impacting Long Beach. Extreme heat, sea level rise, flooding, drought and poor air quality. Here are the community and infrastructure assets likely to be impacted, starting with our public health, housing and neighborhoods. City buildings are transportation, infrastructure, water supply, wastewater and stormwater assets. Our coastal resources. Parks and open space. As well as our energy infrastructure. I'm going to start with extreme heat because the data shows that extreme heat poses the greatest risk of life and health to the largest number of Long Beach residents. In fact, approximately 275,000 of our residents are in the high, extreme heat vulnerability zone. Extreme heat is very serious and increases the risk of heat related illness, and even death increases vector borne diseases, tropical pathogens and parasites. Especially vulnerable populations include children, older adults, people with respiratory diseases. And those who work outdoors can lead to missed work in school. We've already heard from high school students who have had this happen in Long Beach. Damage to roads, highways and rail from extreme heat. And you may remember the power outage a few years ago. That was during an extreme heat wave. The data shows that between 1980 and 2000 in Long Beach, we had four extreme heat days a year. By 2050, we're looking at somewhere between 11 and 16 and by 2100, up to 37 days a year where it's over 95 degrees in a day. And with climate change, the cooling effect we get here at night is going to lessen. And this is not a future problem. It's a current prob lem. This graph shows you how extreme heat days have played out in the city for the past ten years. You'll notice we're already well over that for extreme heat day, your average. And you'll notice it was in 2015 that we had ten extreme heat days. And I know that members of the council will remember the power outage that we had here in downtown that lasted several days, impacted many residents, including seniors living in high rises without access to medication or keeping things refrigerated, without ability to get up and down the elevators. Our departments were, of course, very impacted. Everything from fire, help and police checking on wellness to our public works partners working on the infrastructure issues. Extreme heat is most dangerous in central, west and north Long Beach. As the map shows here, the highest vulnerability zone is and read the existing white dots or cooling centers that will already have. Extreme heat can also worsen air quality. So that's another challenge. Here are some of the adaptations we're considering. I mentioned earlier we have 200 adaptations and mitigations we're looking at for the plan, and now we're going through that prioritization process. But some examples include creating shade shelters at bus stops or in parks, increasing the presence of cool roofs or reflective streets, increasing our public water supply access, expanding our cooling centers, not only locations, but hours, because, again, it'll stay hotter at night. And developing emergency response plan for power outages and continuing to plant trees through our urban forest management plan. I also want to point out the social vulnerability to climate change map, because we know that some populations are more vulnerable to the impacts of climate change due to socioeconomic and demographic factors. For example, those that walk or take the bus because they have no car are have less ability to be resilient in getting out of an extreme heat situation or to be able to stay at a hotel at night when it's very hot. Similarly, renters can be more impacted and may not have as much ability to provide some of those protective factors, such as whether weatherproofing. Next, I'll move on to flooding. This is there are three different ways and Long Beach that we experience flooding. There's riverine flooding. So when when the rivers get really high and flood over, there's urban flooding. When our storm drain system does not meet the existing storms happening and then sea level rise and the associated coastal storms. So if flooding events can contribute to injury, death and displacement. The aquarium analyzed that over 22,000 residents in Long Beach are at risk to flooding by 2050 due to sea level rise. That flooding can include damage to wastewater and stormwater issues, as well as sewage back up that can lead to food and water borne illness and can disrupt, as we saw in the pictures here, the transportation system that could impact neighborhood connectivity and getting to work or school. This map shows you where our riverine flooding takes is projected to take place from the blue with the 100 year storm event and the orange and unlikely 500 year storm event. That's a 0.2% chance. And then we looked at various scenarios related to sea level rise. This shows you the the mid range projection for 2100. As you can see, the dark blue, our king tides are fairly extensive in terms of potential flooding. And the light blue would be a 100 year storm surge on top of it. You'll notice that this is also the first scenario where we see potential daily high tide impacts throughout parts of southeast Long Beach, parts of the of of west Long Beach, north of the port, are potentially helped out by the fact that the port is already doing an adaptation plan. And so this is, of course, under a no action scenario if we do nothing. And that's why we're here to develop the plan. We know that over 10 million square feet of residential property, 2 million square feet of commercial property, and another 2 million square feet of industrial property are in this flood area. Additionally, additionally, 74 miles of roadway, an electrical substation, three storm drain outfalls, ten stormwater pump stations and nine wastewater pump stations, as well as three portable facilities in that in that flood risk area. There is, of course, considerable uncertainty into the actual timing and extent of flooding. It depends on a number of factors, including the extent of any future shoreline or stormwater system improvements. But it's important to consider our best understanding of what these impacts could be. You'll also notice on the map several specific city buildings noted. This slide shows you how many city buildings are impacted by the different sea level rise scenarios. And the different scenarios are mapped out on our website in more detail. But you can see, for example, that we have in 2050 potentially three fire stations, a library and a parks building that are impacted. These costs would be substantial if needed for full replacement. And in terms of what we do about it, there is a whole host of adaptations we're considering around flooding, everything from updating the emergency response plan to updating our floodplain ordinance so that new building would consider that flood elevation, prioritizing low impact development and stormwater practices, relocating and elevating critical infrastructure, especially as we improve that infrastructure, elevating homes or businesses, looking at active or passive dune restoration as well as groundwater monitoring. And it's important to note the costs. Of these. Sorry, the costs of these actions are very substantial. And we're already in talks with the financial management department understanding that given today's budgetary constraints, it would be impossible to meet the full cost of all these replacements. And that's why we need to be working together now. So here is our greenhouse gas reduction target scenario. We've looked at several different options based on the state guidance and the science available. There are several options here, but the main trend line, of course, is that it needs to go down. Staff has been recommending option D, which is a per service population. So that means for people that live or work here, how we reduce greenhouse gas emissions per person. We're recommending that per service population reduction for 2030 and 2040. We've also heard a good deal from community members who would like to see that carbon neutrality target in the plan. We think it's important to then consider an aspirational target for 2050, and that would be stocks recommendation because this plan will be something that we're held to in order to meet our SEQUENT obligations and therefore having the the D scenario option as well as the aspirational net carbon neutrality option, we see as a good balance for being bold and making a big commitment, but also understanding that as of today, there's no feasible way to get to that net zero given the technology out there, but that we want to continue to to have that aspirational target. Here's where our greenhouse gas emissions come from in the city. Over half is from our transportation sector at 54%, followed by the buildings where we live and work. Turning on the heat. The lights, the air. And then our waste sector is the third one. Here are some sample actions that we're considering on the transportation side. For example, making transit service enhancements both to improve our bus stops environment and also to increase our service and connectivity. You'll remember I mentioned shade structure. The bus stops on the adaptation side. This is where it could be a benefit on both the mitigation and adaptation side. For mitigation, you could help get more people on busses with better service stops. On the adaptation side, it helps reduce the heat for those that are already taking it. We're also looking at active mobility actions, such as increasing our bike and pedestrian infrastructure as the city continues to do electric vehicle deployment, as well as transportation demand management, working with large employers and of course land use and transportation planning. So increasing our density and mixing of land uses near transit stops is a really important way to achieve this. In terms of next steps, we're continuing to review and get feedback from the public on these actions as well as from other city departments. We hope to have a draft plan by the end of next month. We invite you all to our next open house June 1st, and then we'll be going through the Sequa process the latter half of this year and hope to be back before the Council in January 2020. We have a whole bunch of ways for people to stay involved. We have a business survey and a resident survey on our website, as well as more information and all of the maps and data that you've got here today. You can follow our hashtag Kapu Albee. Sign up for alerts for link. We have a special event coming up March 30th at Silverado Park on extreme heat and how it can impact older adults, children and other vulnerable populations. We hope you'll join us. And then you're all invited to our final cap open house. That'll be June 1st at Marine Stadium. There'll be interactive activities. We're going to have high school students running different booths and parts of the event. We hope you can all join us. And with that, could my presentation and I'm here to answer any question. Well, thank you. Thank you very much. I know you've been working a lot on this, and I know I've had a chance to to read the plan earlier. And it's it's really substantial. I want to thank staff that have been also briefing us on the progress of the Climate Action Adaptation Plan. And it was important, I think, to bring this forward and to do the study session as well. Let me start with Councilmember. Let me go through some of the councilmember comments and questions and then

we'll go from there. Councilmember Richardson. I think he just stepped out and we got to find somebody, Ringo. Thank you, Mary. And I want to thank staff for a very comprehensive report on clarity. I mean, we all know that our. Incumbent president doesn't believe in climate change. But I think that a report like this is very compelling and speaks volumes about where we're headed in a very near future within the next 20, 30 years and where we're going to be. And many of us who live under and on the plains know that we're probably not always going to be underwater. So a lot of the most important thing that I see in this report, and I know it's only a study, but it's okay, is to basically inform people what's coming. And I think that's the most important aspect of this of this report, is that we need to share it as much as we can. We had a discussion earlier today about the digital divide and and needing to increase our access to information. So I would like to see that we can get this report out as as far and wide as we can, especially for those individuals who, like myself, who live close to a river or a tributary or a location where we're sea level rise or flooding is very, very impactful. One of the things that I didn't see in here, obviously, and it's probably inferred, is that a lot of residents kind of look at their insurance policies when it comes to flooding and and the impact that that's going to have on their future in terms of housing, where they're going to be by any halt or where we're going to be constructing new homes and what the requirements are going to be to move into those areas where where flooding or and or a sea level rise is going to be a major impact in those communities. So I want to thank staff for this very comprehensive report. Looking forward to your open house and especially looking forward to your event on March 30th at Silverado Park, which is in the seventh District. Thank you. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce. I yes, I am very excited and I think I've expressed my excitement for doing a community action and adaptation climate plan. I do. I have some concerns. One is that we haven't had a community meeting in the second district and we haven't fully engaged the stakeholders in the second District on this plan. I appreciate and totally support all the actions that are that are listed here. And I do think that they seem to be kind of low hanging fruit. And so I would I do look forward to sitting down and meeting with you guys and engaging the second District and making sure that we have a plan that is similar to vision with L.A. and other cities that are really thinking outside the box and thinking about different funding sources, different grants. You know, we shouldn't just be, you know, increasing bus routes, but we should be talking about how do we get every single bus to be electric and how do we make sure that we're leveraging our resources and community partners as much as we can? So I appreciate where it's at. And I guess I just I'm a little concerned that the data is supposed to come out next month when we haven't had a full engagement yet. So I hope to meet with you guys soon. And I know that my staff is working with you guys on a date on April around Earth Day, and I think that's been the talk for the last month. So I hope that we can pin that in and not pencil it in. I look forward to hearing from community members as well. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Thank you. I would just. I'm actually going to commence that for the the great report here. I think it's pretty comprehensive and certainly eye opening for for me. I did want to get some clarification and go back to the to the map where you. That bet. That map and you mentioned the amount of square footage in terms of is that residential square footage a million square feet? Yes. Let me just pull back up the numbers so I'm certain. So this is under the 2100 mid-range scenario, and there is an 80 page assessment on the website that goes into a lot more detail. But under this particular scenario, it would be over 10 million square feet of residential property, 2 million square feet of commercial, and another 2 million of industrial in that zone. And that's under a king tide scenario. So that's a couple of times a year flooding as a sub area. That would be the daily high tide scenario. And we can send that map along as well. But it is a significant amount of property if nothing is done to prevent it. We said nothing is done. The the recommendations in this plan, if we were to fully execute on the local level, all of those those those recommendations where we have an impact on on that forecast and happening now. So to do that. Thank you for the question. Yeah. So I only gave a few examples, but we are looking right now at about 200 potential actions. I don't know that you would all want to hear every single one, but we are doing the analysis to look at how it would protect sort of area by area on the adaptation side and that would have a significant impact in terms of protection. Now as we get to these longer term ranges such as this one, the 2100 mid range, it becomes a little bit trickier when you think from maybe once or twice a year flooding to that more daily high tide, but everything from the sort of natural protections to elevating and flood proofing, really, it's going to take a whole variety, but would have a substantial impact in protecting us. And Councilmember Austin to expand further in the focus of this effort is to protect city assets and protect our ability to respond to disasters and provide lifesaving services, ticket to life and property. It's also to facilitate the private sector ability to storm proof and relocate improvements. But it's not the city's responsibility or intention to be able to mitigate the potential damage to those millions of square feet of private development. They're privately held, and they'll make financial decisions and their insurers will make financial decisions about the future of those properties. And certainly we have an obligation to make that process as fruitful as we can. But the city is not taking on the financial or liability to respond to the risks to all of that private property. I understood I guess I was looking at it from a standpoint of being a resident here in the housing and neighborhoods impacts and how many families would certainly have to relocate or thinking about how the city will look in 100 years. It's pretty interesting, pretty thought provoking. Thank you very much. Thank you, Councilwoman Gonzales. Yes. I just want to say thank you for this report. I just wanted to ask, first and foremost, have we done any of the community meetings fully in Spanish or Combi at all? To this point, it's only been through translation, which we do provide at our major events in both Spanish and Kimye. But we are in the planning process right now to do a Spanish only event. And I know we've been in touch with several groups, including some groups in the first District, who are willing to help us with that. Great. I think of a lot of the women in the Spanish speaking community that whose children are suffering with asthma. We have some of the worst asthma rates in the district near the port. And so I want to make sure that they are that they have their concerns addressed in this clean air action plan, as well as our Cambodian community members who have also expressed interest in this very much. Thank you. And what I would say is I would like to also see, you know, when it comes back, you know, definitely more specificity on the type of and, you know, maybe it doesn't come up necessarily because some community members see it in such a high level. But there are other cleaner action plans that I've seen in other areas that specify the type of pollutants and what it could do in specific neighborhoods. And just to get people educated on and I know it's not always exciting to see those things, but it' s important for people to understand, you know, what is in our backyard and what is maybe affecting our communities or are affecting our communities. Another thing is, you know, I think as we've talked about open data as well and having two innovation centers that will be coming to downtown, perhaps there's some synergy with creating sort of like, you know, L.A. has the L.A. clean tech incubator. It's a think tank of sorts with the private sector and the public sector. And they come together and really think tank on whether it's air quality or it's, you know, sea level rise, what have you. And they they actually through that, those partnerships are able to work with entrepreneurs that want to find solutions for those and or work with academic institutions to find solutions for some of these these issues. So just a thought there and thank you very much. I look forward to seeing this evolve and adding my input as on behalf of the First District. Thank you, Councilwoman Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So one of these slides show that significant contributor were mobile mobile sources of mobile sources of pollution, you know, automobiles, diesel trucks and and things like that. And so, you know, it appears to me that we should, you know, as we move forward, we yeah. That's the one 54%, right. Is mobile sources. And so that just tells me that we should, you know, certainly accelerate our efforts to make sure that we're, you know, expanding transit outside of that just one mile, the last mile, but into the last two miles, for example, in North Long Beach, where I showed the map of the urban heat island stuff happening. That area is outside of most of the last mile implementations because it's two miles away from the connection, the two to the blue line in Compton or down at the Wardlow station about three miles. And so we need to really think about as we design, you know, I know what a lot of times the best practices get handed down or last mile, but we need to make sure that they make sense for Long Beach. You should be last to mile. And I hope that, you know, once this is adopted, maybe I'll frame this as a question. When this is adopted, is this going to ensure that, you know, policies and programs that come out of that, that are coming from staff are already like the lens on climate. Our climate adaptation plan will already be reflected there. Is that the way this would be used? So Councilmember Richardson, this document would be a binding document. So any action that required a finding with their general plan, so that's planning items, but that's also the copy that comes to you annually as part of the budget would need to be consistent with this. So it is intended to translate to better informed and decision making processes, and it is designed to make sure that our investments, especially our capital investments, are reflective of accomplishing the goals in this plan. Sure. Okay. And so maybe we think about, you know, when thi s gets adopted, how we can, you know, formalize it by having, you know, maybe some sort of a climate action statement on agenda items that are related to this, because there's things separate from the air process, the environmental process. There are investments that we make into infrastructure and other things that are public that we would like to know. Does this you know, this is this in a, you know, a red zone? Is it does it help to, you know. Does it contribute to our our adaptation plan or is this a bad investment or it doesn't acknowledge the climbing habitation? That's something maybe we could think about. Is that something that's considered like. Yeah. So we can certainly we can certainly work on refining. When you receive council letters, there is a sustainability section, but it's pretty streamlined today and we can look at making that a more formalized process that reflects back to this plan. I think that makes sense. And additionally, a lot of times when we go after so I serve on the Mobile Source Reduction Committee Board which administers millions of dollars to local governments, transportation authorities to reduce mobile sources of pollution. And, you know, we've we funded different grants and the city of Long Beach have gone to, you know, charging stations and and things like that. But I think we should think about maybe coming up with something, something custom, that meet some of our needs that we haven't gotten to yet. Like maybe, you know, I don't know, bike share or some of these things. We, we, we work together to customize this proposal and make it because we're, we're creating the three year plan for the MSR, see, right now. And so now would be the time to figure out what we can do within the next three years to fund. And there's, you know, millions of dollars on hand. So I just want to, you know, no response is needed, but I just want to raise that up. Another thing that's interesting is that, you know, when we look at the extreme heat map and you see that the central and west and north Long Beach areas, you know, are dramatically impacted. And then you flip to the sea level rise the sea level rise map. You see that the beach communities are or dramatically impacted. It impacted particularly the peninsula. There's not very many issues that we would see that north west and east Long Beach have in common. And so I think in this case is it's a rare opportunity for us to really just think big about an implementation that's good for East Long Beach will be something that's good for West Side or for North Long Beach. And so I know there's there, you know, I mean, to be honest, there's always sensitivity when you talk about sea level rise and climate change. And and I think it's good that you acknowledge the fact is that, you know, that much property is susceptible to sea level rise or that much investment. So we should think about how we can sort of lead with the implementation that impacts everyone and makes the most differen ce for everyone because this is, I think, an opportunity to make sure that, you know, the city's unified in terms of its voice on climate change. And so that's something I'll be looking forward to as a move forward, like maybe not having a lot of times there's there's multiple messages in different areas. And I think we should look at what's the common message that unifies everybody behind this this issue, because it's not real for a lot of people, but it will have real impacts. And we put up a slide of 2100. But I think if we put up the slide of, you know, 2050, which is, you know, 30 years away, I think, you know, frankly, we might get a bigger impact, a bigger reaction from people if we saw that. So those are some of my my my initial thoughts on this. I think it's a it's incredibly important. I thank you for the for the study session, I think is needed. I know we have a lot of work to get to tonight, but I think we need we need we certainly need to pay more attention to this . Thank you. Thank you. I just want to add, I think it's important to acknowledge that it's been this council and just in the last few years that the city has been talking about climate change. And I think it's important to recognize that. And and it's important to know that the city believes and understand that climate change is real. It's happening. It's a scientific fact. Sea level rise will impact the city, but also know that it's not just about sea level rise. The biggest impact that we will face as a city, it directly will impact us. As a report had noted earlier, around heat and around temperature and issues around sea level, sea level rise are critical, but we cannot lose sight on what will be what we will face immediately over the next couple of decades. And that is that we will have parts of our city, particularly in many low income communities, that will be greatly affected by rising temperature. And we will have seniors and in particular affected by not having enough access to cooling centers and places to actually eat, to stay cool in these heat and in these in this in this increase heat. And so I want to thank the staff for working on this. I do want to thank the the impetus for where we got here today with this cap plan, really started with an initial report that we asked the Aquarium of the Pacific to undergo. And I think in the first year that I was mayor and its council formed, we went out, asked the aquarium to do an initial report on climate change. They came back a year later with a study that involved a bunch of really great scientists from across the country. That morphed into our signing the Mayors Climate Compact, committing to some targets. And then most importantly, the staff have been working now for a couple of years on this climate action plan very hard. And I want to recognize our sustainability team. They are small but mighty. They do a great job. I want to thank our Sustainability Commission, who also does a great job of uplifting issues an d and policies. And I want to more broadly just speak to why where the city has made some incredible progress. The port, as we're aware, has what I think is probably the most aggressive climate action plan of any port in the United States. And that's something that we continue to push through the port, the airport, things to Councilwoman Mango and and partnering with me and others has embarked on a similar climate action plan that is specific to our airport. And then when you look at the expanded park space, our issues of of park equity, that is also been something that's been that has been pushed by this council. In addition to that, I want to note that some of the smaller initiatives of of the body, whether they've been ensuring that we have a strong, active , multimodal transportation program around bike share, around transit and councilwoman, we do have electric busses. As you know, we've rolled out numerous electric busses on Long Beach Transit. We're actually one of the first cities to have electric busses in the nation. And we're our goal is to convert every single bus to electric here in Long Beach. And we're going to be one of the first cities to do so, whether it's been the conversion of all of our LED lights, all of our old I'm sorry, energy inefficient lights to led, which we were one of the first cities again to convert the entire city to residential and now going to commercial led. And of course the work that's happening around water quality restoration of both the lagoon wetlands and the expansion of park space I think has been significant. That's not to say that we are doing everything right or that we're doing enough to stop climate change. And there's still a lot of work for us to do, as we're all aware around issues, around fossil fuel consumption, around issues about mobility and the seven, ten and around air quality. And so these are things that we know are next for us to deal with and that we have to address. They are real and they affect us every single day. But I just do want to commend this this body for the work that's happened, but the work that's ahead, because we have a lot more work to do as it relates to climate change in the years ahead. And so, again, thanks to the staff and I want to open this up for public comment. My very good. You a firm believer. A firm believer in climate change. Those who don't believe it. Will be out the door quicker than those that saddle up to those that engender the epidemics of corruption. One of the things we should make clear, though, particularly around the waterside area, that our shoreline area is what the rules are relative to city employees not fishing off the company pier. No matter where that pier may be, there are some that fail to understand. The downside of doing that. Thank you. Thank you, Nick Speaker, please. Hi. My name is Julie Jean from the third district. And. I want to thank you very much for including climate change is a very important feature of the change in Long Beach. I wanted to suggest that. But first, let me introduce myself also as a part of a group called No Kill Long Beach. And here's the sign in a sign says Adoptions Fosters Behavior, Rehab Volunteers Rescues TNR, which is trap and release. Low cost spay neuter. Pet retention. Community outreach and proactive redemption. That's part of the program. The reason why I brought that up is because the animals at the shelter or the pound on spring are really experiencing severe problems from the climate change as well. It's very hot out and last summer it was scorching. These animals sit there in that shelter without. They do have shade, but I mean, they're sweltering. And also, it's been very cold this winter has been the coldest that I ever remember. And those animals don't have any warmth, any place where they can find refuge from the cold. So I wanted to bring that up and hoping that in your future consideration of climate change, that you'll give the animals a break in terms of their overheating and being cold. Also, I wanted to suggest that you put out water fountains. At key intersections where people walk in the city. They don't just walk downtown, they walk all over the place. They don't walk just in Belmont Shore. They're there in every neighborhood. So I think it would really be nice if they could get some water respite. You were talking about adding access to more city water. I think when I was a little girl, there were water fountains everywhere. Now there are no water fountains. If there are, I don't know where they are. So I think that might be a nice addition. Thank you guys so much. Next week, complete. Hello. City Council members, Mr. Mayor. We are from the social work and community outreach, organizing, development of future mental health professionals at Long Beach Poly High School. In addition to all our work and other projects right now, we are working on a project of the utmost importance, which is climate disruption. You spend your days fixing problems, developing budgets and trying to make things better for Long Beach. However, now, none of that will matter soon when climate disruption displaces tens of thousands of people from this city and others. We are at a critical point in this process, so changes and decisions need to be made. While eliminating fossil fuels and turning to renewable energy is the most important change needed, we have found through research that reducing meat consumption is an easy and extremely effective way to slow down climate disruption. Here are the facts. Scientists found that we need to reduce our meat consumption by 90% to slow down climate disruption. Americans are 5% of the world's population, yet we consume 25% of the Earth's resources. It takes 800 gallons of water to make one quarter pound hamburger, and 70 to 83% of all agricultural land is used for meat consumption. We cut down 65 trees a minute to create more of this meat consumption related farmland. The average person in America is over.

£220 of meat in 2018. This is both physically unhealthy and environmentally. Studies in America and the Netherlands showed that 88 to 94% of people don't understand the connection between meat consumption and climate disruption. And 80% of our students didn't know these facts. There are 1 billion humans that are starving and un nourished and 2 billion overweight humans. Another valuable outcome of meat consumption reduction is to help create farmland that directly feeds these people. This food crisis is real. Real leadership does not require a title or an office. Leadership is willingness to show courage when others are in fear or despair. Leadership is the extreme example of doing what's right, even when it's uncomfortable. Leadership is risking ridicule from others, even though it will make a huge difference in other's lives now and down the road. We are proposing that this city be a leader and become a meat consumption. Meat consumption reduction. To slow down climate disruption city create a campaign to reduce meat consumption by each citizen. Encourage restaurants to increase their non-meat offerings. Have contests for businesses that encourage employees to reduce meat consumption. And also please accelerate the Flood Control Synergy project as it is very important to climate disruption. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. And hold on once again, is everyone in line is going to speak on this item. I'm going to close the speakers list. Everyone's in line. They're going to close the speakers list. Okay. Unless and I know we have a very long agenda tonight, unless there's any objection after the gentleman with the hat, we're going to go down to 2 minutes for speaker. Okay. Next speaker. Elegans. All that is on file. Um, I really appreciated a lot of the comments made by some of the council members. Um, I, I wanted to say that this will require a great deal of divestment on behalf of this city. As everyone knows, Long Beach's greatly invested in fossil fuels. Our city was founded on fossil fuels. We have a city that is actually a tax haven for the wealthy called Signal Hill in the middle of our city. All of these are sucking the resources from beneath. The planet at the expense of our future. At the expense of our water, at the expense of our air. It causes asthma. It causes heart disease. It causes cancer. People die. Babies are born at low birth rates. And this is the reality already. Now the sea level is rising. Mother Earth is about to do her due vengeance for all the hell that we. Have inflicted upon people, upon communities, for the wealth of our nation and of what we call the developed nation at the expense of indigenous lands and all of the earth. So now that we are at this planetary crisis, the globe is requiring a great cooperation. And in this great cooperation, we as a humanity must come together with an incredible amount of courage and speak out against the fossil fuels, the richest industry in the history of mone y, and tell them that enough is enough that we will no longer drill for oil, no longer drill for gas under our city. And I'm asking the members of this city council, do you have that courage for future generations? Do you understand that everything that we love is at stake? And I know that many of you. So-Called Democrats tend to say that you believe in this type of stuff. You like our speeches, you show up at our marches. You like you like what we're about. But when it comes to you taking the money from these industries, you don't have the courage to say no. You don't have the courage to say enough is enough. When it comes to the. Issues of this so-called action plan, are you calling for. 100% renewable energy like the science is calling for, or are you willing to work with some of your donors and find out what works for them? Because that's what's at stake. We're talking about asthma, we're talking about air. We're talking about everything that we love. We're talking about every precious child that you have ever met. What kind of future are you going to leave behind for them? I want to talk about some of the water that we're selling from the recycled water managed by the water department to the oil and gas industry. I believe that that needs to end. If we're going to talk about adapting our climate. Taking climate change seriously, we have to stop drilling. We should. At least stop selling. Them to water. I believe that we committed a great atrocity to the original people of this land, a people who believed in saving resources for the next seven generations. We are now taking the fossil fuel wastewater because there's a waste that comes from the drilling. Now all the good stuff is gone. They use fracking and acid dying to get that last bit from underneath the earth and it produces a. Waste and we're pumping that into aquifers. Here in California. I bet none of you are receiving any reports about that. That needs to be included into this report. You need to understand what is at stake. Thank you, Mr. Gonzales. And the Speaker, please come forward. Good morning, Mayor Garcia, City Council Member City Staff. My name is Alice Stevens, I I'm a resident of District four and a registered nurse who works with children in the public school system. I'm also a mother of two middle schoolers of my own. Happy birthday, Sophie. Who are very concerned about the climate and their future. So I helped to start a group called Long Beach 350, where a climate justice group that formed in 2015, right around the time, as Ms. been there, said that Mayor Garcia signed on to the Compact of Mayors. Now the Global Covenant of Mayors to commit our city to significantly reduce our carbon footprint. It was also the time when the Paris Climate Summit was happening and in which world leaders and later a network of our nation's mayors. Thank you, Mr. Garcia. Dr. Garcia. It agreed to work to limit our global temperature rise to 1.5 degrees Celsius. To put that in perspective, ri ght now we are at a rise of point nine degrees. And I can say from based on our past recent summers, that's incredibly hot. Especially if you don't have a. So the our name the 350 and Long Beach 350 is comes from the parts per million of CO2 emissions in the atmosphere that scientists consider a safe level and comfortable climate in which to live. We're now hovering about 410 parts per million, and if we don't act now on climate change, it's going to climb much, much higher. My kids don't want that and I'm sure none of yours do either. So I'm here to thank the city for committing us to undertake a climate action plan and having this presentation today. This is a crucial step for the city to protect our climate and also to make good on the commitment Dr. Garcia has made three years ago. Several of our Long Beach, 350 members have been attending the community workshops and open houses held by the city. And we've read the documents that are on the cap website. We appreciate having an open and collaborate collaborative process in developing the plan, not just with invested businesses, but with people invested that live here in the community. Some of these members are here today to speak on the recommendations we have come up with to ensure the city has a plan that is ambitious, effective and built on the firm foundation of social justice principles. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Council members and staff. My name is Erin Peterson. I'm a resident of the third council district and a member of Long Beach 350. I'm also a business major at Cal State Fullerton. It's important to me, as well as all of Long Beach 350, that the CAP include the goal of reaching net zero greenhouse gas emissions. A goal of reducing emissions by 60 to 80% would be laudable, but it would not be enough to correct the disastrous course we are now on. Many harmful and catastrophic impacts are already occurring, such as increasing frequency of tornadoes, storms and flooding. We must curb carbon completely. But committing to zero carbon is only half the goal. We must also make sure to achieve it as soon as possible and no later than 2045. We recommend this target year based on our reading of the warming of 1.5 degrees Celsius report developed by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change for the Paris Agreement. Among the proposals presented by city staff today target option F specified net zero emissions, but not until 2050. We urge you to adopt this option, but modified to specify the year 2045. I'm especially concerned about making the cap as effective as possible because of my young age. The actions we take now will be mine and my generation's burden. And the work starts today. Setting a goal of net zero emissions by 2045 will give the city, its residents and businesses 25 years to meet the challenge. The consequences of failure will be disastrous. We cannot afford not to set ambitious goals. Thank you for your consideration. Thank you

. Excellent. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Dean Todd. I live in the seventh district. I teach at Cal State, Long Beach. I'm on the Science Advisory Committee to the CAP tonight. I don't have a blue T-shirt, but I'm with the Long Beach 350 also. We've come up with four recommendations. So the one I'm speaking on is this. The greenhouse gas inventory should include greenhouse gas emissions from the use of fossil fuels extracted within Long Beach city limits. You know, some people say that it's not our responsibility because the fuel is burned somewhere else. But for global warming, it doesn't matter where it comes from. It matters where it's burned. It can be burdened. It could be burned anywhere. We might not use it here, but it's only bought in order to be combusted. So the fossil fuels from Long Beach will add to global warming. So we need to acknowledge that reality and to include it in the greenhouse gas inventory. I think to do it is necessary, but it's also smart. Here's the necessity. We can't avoid dealing with climate change. The world is recognizing that we have to get down to zero emissions really fast. California is creating policies to do the same thing. That means to me that fossil fuels are going to be restricted in a lot of different ways and fossil fuel extraction is going to be restricted. That's going to do a lot of good things in making a transition to a different, better energy system. But it's going to be really rough in a lot of ways as well. So we need to start planning to do it. That's the smart part. Workers are going to lose jobs when it happens. It's got to be done, but people will lose their jobs. We have to make plans to help them. The city is going to lose revenues. That's going to depend on the budget with a big part of the budget from the extraction. We got a plan for that. Residents, workers and businesses will lose services or pay more taxes or both. So we have to make up we have to plan for that. So it's better to face reality and it's smarter to plan for it. So we would like to have the the fossil fuels, the emissions from the fossil fuels extracted in Long Beach included in the greenhouse gas inventory. It's our responsibility and it's the smart thing to do. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Council members and staff. My name is Lillia and I am a Long Beach resident and. Also a member of Long Beach 350 Gorg. Everyone will be harmed by climate change, but some will be harmed more than others. The city's draft plan and workshop materials show projected flood impacts. Concentrated needed near. The coast and flood channels and heat island effect concentrated in the communities on the west side of Long Beach, where there are less parks and street trees. In addition to these geographic concentration consideration, residents with lower incomes and more social market. Marginalization will surely face more. Challenges in. Adapting to climate change and coping w ith climate disasters than wealthier. Residents. The Climate Action Adaptation Plan and the resources it guides must give priority to those who need them the most. This is common sense. The first step toward doing this would be to identify the vulnerable communities of. West Long. Beach by name in plan materials. They should then follow up with prioritizing the resources. Long Beach 350 Forward recommends an equitable allocation in which the bulk of the resources and funding, such as two thirds, is distributed to the most vulnerable areas where about half of the city population lives. There are the areas of high social vulnerability in the language used in the plan. Distributing an equal share to every part of the city would not fully meet the most, would not fully meet the most acute human needs. Thank you for your consideration. Thank you very much. Next week, Ripley. Good evening, Mayor Garcia, council members and staff. My name is Patricia Chen and I'm a resident of the Fifth Council District and a member of Long Beach 350. I'm also an urban planner, so I understand that plans and their implementation can have a major impact on the public some positive, sometimes negative. The cap is no exception, and Lillia just described how climate change impacts residences differently in different areas. And the CAP adds another layer to this and has additional impacts on residents. The city must take care in developing the cap to avoid exacerbating the negative effects of climate change. Where are the weather? Excuse me? Where there are burdens to be borne by the public, such as regulations or taxes. The cap must include consideration of how the burdens are distributed between residents and take care not to place disproportionate burdens on the most vulnerable communities. Similarly, where plan implementation makes benefits available, such as discounts, incentives, job opportunities and training, the plan must be developed to ensure the benefits are not skewed toward the higher income residents that need them the least. Some examples of careful distribution of benefits would be planting more street trees in areas of high social vulnerability and developing community solar implementation programs so that residents don't need to own a home to participate in energy that is cleaner, more cost effective and reliably available over the long term. Examples of Avoiding Harm or Disproportionate Burdens. One really big one would be when putting in transportation infrastructure. Always combine it with measures to ensure affordable housing to avoid displacement and gentrification. So to summarize. Well, okay, you heard it all. Thank you very much and thank you for your consideration. Thank you. Thank you very much. Thanks, Speaker. Hi, Karen. Recite a resident of the first district. Representing the Long Beach Gray Panthers. Mayor Garcia, we want to thank you for your leadership and this initiative. You've been one of the leaders out front and council members that h ave focused on these target areas. And the staff who Allison, Christopher, Linda and Fiona, you've just been amazing to work with and working on this project. The Long Beach Gray Panthers are one of the co-sponsors of the event, along with Councilmember Urunga and Long Beach, 350, and the citizens. Climate lobby being held. On March 30th at Silverado Park. We are going to focus on solutions that people can do to prepare. One of the reasons the building I live in did so well during the power outage was because we had attended cert training. We are going to encourage more people to go through cert training and have more emphasis and emphasis on climate action changes. We know the plan is going to evolve. This first attempt, we will make some mistakes. But the more aggressive we can get on the changes to move to a zero carbon emission city and the faster we can pastor, we can do it. We can potentially lower our ASM rates. I'm sorry, I have a little announcement. Tonight and we want to continue to focus on seniors. The heat really is absolutely critical. Libraries don't stay open very late. The building I live in. Cinder block. Construction. The heat emissions continue. Long after the 9:00. Closing times. And this is a big problem for. A lot of the areas of the community. That don't have ocean breezes. If those continue in the future. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, counsel. I'm Grace Lorensen from the seventh District, and I'm also part of the citizens climate lobby. And I really appreciate everything that the city has been doing on this cap thing. And every time I go to one of the meetings, I say, And what about national legislation? You know, we've got to do something nationally. And the citizens climate lobby is very happy to let you know that there is a national legislation out now that could be promoted. And it's one that was supported by the California State Senate in in 2016. Quite a while ago I saw AJ are 43 and they said they approve a joint resolution calling on Congress to enact a carbon based taxed on fossil fuels and return the proceeds to low and middle income families. So that's something that our state, our state Senate and Assembly had approved. And the mayor has gone on record with the Council of Mayors. And I think that we need the city to at least look at the national legislation, and it's called Energy Innovation and Carbon Dividend Act. That's Energy Innovation and Carbon Dividend Act. It's H.R. 763. And it has been introduced to Congress. It's been supported by at least four religious organizations. I'm also a part of the Unitarian Church and many other organizations, so I hope you will look into it and support it. Thank you. Thank you so much. Complete. Hello, council members. My name is Elizabeth LAMB, and I wanted to open my remarks with a quote that has stuck with me. And I had to research it and remember who originally said these words. And it was our president, Barack Obama, who said, we are the first generation to feel the effect of climate change and we are the last generation who can do something about it. It is sincerely admirable and important that the city of Long Beach is working to draft a climate action and adaptation plan. Of course, the low street of the wetlands will be affected because as sea levels rise, what were once wetlands will be converted into marine environment. Yet there will be no place for the wetlands to expand because they are hemmed in with housing. And conversely, wetlands are good for mitigating mitigating the impacts of climate change because they can absorb water. I'm here because the low street is wetlands, land trust. We concur with Long Beach 350 Dawgs recommendations to you. The one I'd like to talk the most about is incorporating the goal of reaching net zero greenhouse gas emissions and the target date for that emission, we agree, should be sooner should be 2045, which aligns with the goals and the science based policies for the greenhouse gas emissions included in the Paris Agreement. I understand from talking to the 350 dawg folks that they sent a letter to the council members with these three main points of zero emissions inventory, gas producing facilities, and then also this additional focus and resources for people who are in the most vulnerable parts of Long Beach. One of the things that struck me because I've been to these hearings is the effect it will have on your vulnerable population and also future generations. Thank you for your time. Thank you, Ms.. LAMB. Next speaker, please. And there are three final speakers. Hi. My name is Kevin Yeager. I'm a resident of Council District two and a member of the Long Beach Democratic Socialists of America.

And we also support the letter of recommendations that Long Beach 350 has put forward. I just wanted to hit on a few points from there. Mainly the greenhouse gas reduction plan that staff suggest is just out of line with the current science. Unfortunately, the latest IPCC report warns unequivocally that without societal transformation and rapid implementation of ambitious greenhouse gas reduction method measures pathways to limiting warming to 1.5 degrees C and achievable. Sustainable development will be exceedingly difficult, if not possible, to achieve. So we need to decarbonize every sector of our global economy over the next 11 years, not the next 30 years that might be in line with the science five years ago, but it's not in line with the science today. So Long Beach needs an emergency plan to decarbonize our economy as fast as possible to avoid these catastrophic climate tipping points where it can trigger feedback loops that are become harder and harder to stop or impossible. So laying out multiple greenhouse gas reduction plans and then recommending anything other than the fastest action of those choices is, frankly, climate denialism lite. And then furthermore, we also need to eliminate greenhouse gas emissions at the source.

So that means we need to take into account all the fossil fuel extraction happening right here within Long Beach City limits to ignore the extraction that's happening here that goes on to be burned elsewhere. We're asking the poorest, most disadvantaged residents of south I mean, of central west and north Long Beach to take on the burden of these extreme heat days. Meanwhile, letting other corporations continue to profit off of this extraction, and that's completely unethical and just not going to meet the standards. So I'll just say that small change, big impact, that's just not true. Small and small change means extinction. We need to be clear eyed of the system change that we need to reach survival and not lie to the public about what will actually save us. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Oh. Summer Hansen from Children's Day, An Earth Day celebration, 25th anniversary. We've been we've been on this path since the very beginning, in 1995. We've always had the very same motto since 1995 till 2019. Our motto is always do something wonderful to make our world a better place. And Children's Day is a gift that keeps on giving for generations to come. You'll know what your project is. Because you'll feel it in your heart. And my. One of my very best friends. Who is? You know, in her final days said to me yesterday. Have you solved all the problems in the world yet? Well. I mean, we can all have a you know, we all have all these wonderful projects that they're talking about. I mean, and you I know you've been hearing the young people, you know, and and especially Greta. Who is being nominated to get the Nobel Peace Prize. And I bet you anything. She's going to get it. And the kids are on the. They're on the path. And Edge share a park on April 20th that's going to be us sell a. You know, for Earth Day. And then the following weekend, it's going to be, you know, the Children's Day celebration. And it's all going to be about the environment. I mean, that's going to be the main, main focus. And that's what we all need to do in every little thing that is thought of. It all adds up to. Completely turning everything around. And it's doing good. Is the best friend there is. And so. I know you all have wonderful projects. I hear about them every time I come here. And I'm so proud of all of the things that that you do. Thank you so much. Okay. Okay. Come on. Let's get with it. Let's all of us together. Thank you, Summer, for always promoting Earth Day and Children's Day. And we need those. And we definitely need those water fountains. Absolutely. Thank you so much, Summer. Our next speaker, please. Dave Shukla, resident of the third. As you all know, I've spoken here many times on this issue. The cost of inaction should definitely be calculated. The longer we take to pick an option, the longer we take to get a greenhouse gas inventory to come. The longer we wait, the more it costs. Equity is built into this in many different ways, not just through the cost of inaction, but also in what ways? Climate crisis. Can be made an opportunity and made an opportunity for jobs. Councilwoman Gonzalez, you had this great idea of replicating something like Lacey, maybe Labaki or something like that. We could be a leader in transitioning these jobs. We could be a leader in changing how we. Fill our budget. But at some point, the ability to choose for ourselves will be taken from us. The longer we wait, the more the will get boxed in not only by our own statutory commitments, but by the physics. It's just a reality. It's a reality. It's much more for my life than it is for some some people who are a bit older. But from the recognition that extreme heat will hit everyone in the city increasingly as it already has, as we've documented over the past ten years, we're going to need bigger, bolder stages of leadership. I mean, option F with a 2045 zero date would be great, 2030 would be even better. And it's it's not only possible to conceive, but it's possible to implement. The question of who pays should be linked with who'll be benefiting. I mean, ultimately, we, we supplement our and we largely have our budget come from the sales of oil. What happens when we can't do that anymore? Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you, Richard. That good? That concludes public comment. I do have some speak. I want to just make a couple of comments and then just to react to some of what was said and have a and then it comes from among us going to be some comments. So. First, I do think and I'm glad this was mentioned. I think that the 2045 date we have to hit, at a minimum go down to 2045. I think that's been an international standard that's been set. I think some agencies and some some folks are talking about, you know, going earlier than 2045. And so can I just ask staff to just react to that? Obviously with presented in front of us is a draft and we're not, you know, we're we're moving forward. But is that something that we can do? So we're taking public input and we're taking direction from this council. We could certainly have a 2045 goal in addition to the 2050 that 2050 comes out of the Air Resources Board. So part of what we're trying to do is be aspirational and lead and be a climate leader. But part of what we're trying to do is also comply with those mandates that are coming down from Sacramento. So that's where the 2050 number comes from. It's not. Now, I know it wasn't just pick that out of thin air. I get that. But I also know that the 2045 date is being really pushed by it, by a lot of folks, you know, internationally. And so I think for us to to be a climate leader, to think that 2045 date mix makes sense for for Long Beach. And so I hope that the Council would support, as we receive it, file this to encourage staff to try to hit the 2045 date as part of this. And so that's going be my first request. The second thing is I do appreciate the comments around ensuring that the resources are goin g to communities that are disadvantaged. I think that's when you look at at heat in particular and where that is going to impact the city, it is directly going to impact disadvantaged communities and disadvantaged senior populations especially. And so I think those are issues that I think we have to consider as we move forward. And then the request and this is really a broader conversation, I think that we have to we have to continue to have but the request to also look at the the emissions that are coming from locally created into the fossil fuels that were that are happening every single day in the city and the inventory around that and the greenhouse gas emissions, is that something that we're also intending at looking at? And can we look at that? So, Mr. Mayor and members of the Council, at the request of the public, that analysis is underway. We're having to work with the consultant team to write a methodology in order to do that, because the state guidance says not to do it that way. So what we will have is two separate inventories, one that meets the state standards, and one that is what the public requested, which is to look at the extraction side rather than the consumption side. And and that work will be complete this summer. That's that's great. You know, let me just say on this issue, because I think it is to me, it's it's the issue of the future when we're talking about issues around climate and climate change and climate justice is it's no secret that the history of Long Beach, it's current funding mechanisms. And the way we, quite frankly, fund many of the programs that the community enjoy has been through the production of oil. And this is not something that's new or just happened ten years ago. This has been literally how the city was founded. When you look at when you look at Signal Hill, when you look at Long Beach, when you look at the Tidelands, the port, and what's happened, not just in Long Beach, I mean, this extends out to the Los Angeles patient and the whole San Pedro Basin as well. And we, I think, have and I and I understand and I think that the the the city, not just this council, but the city has been shy in its reaction and in its approach to having a bigger conversations around oil and its impact on us, on climate and on the bottom line of the city. And that's a real conversation that that I think we need to have at a more serious and more comprehensive level. I think it's something we've discussed in the past. I know that there's some that would like to change, make changes tomorrow. And I understand that so much of the city is is connected to this funding mechanism that we have had for such for decades for since the founding of the city. And so I just think that the climate adaptation process that I've been so impressed with, I think you've done our staff and Mr. West, I think you should commend the entire sustainability team for just the process, the fact that the community's been involved. I think there i s an opening to have a positive conversation and a planning conversation around one, how we have this broader conversation around the fossil fuels that we are producing every day and to how long term we continue to operate depending on a resource that is that is one not not good for the long term life of the planet and our community, but one that that every agency from the state to the country to the city, is focused on trying to diminish its use and what that actually does to impact the parks and the firefighters and the paramedics that that we are funding with with this resource. And so I would hope that through this. Process in the years ahead that we that we do, we begin to plan and have an honest conversation about where we're going on on this issue. Even though I know it's a difficult one to have, I think it's one we have to have. And it's and it's time. And so if we can. I'd love to see that incorporated into the community dialog. And I appreciate the work that you guys are doing on that. So thank you very much. And with that, let me move to Councilwoman. So my comments will be short. I have to take a quick mommy pumping break and come back so I might not be able to vote on this item, but know that I'm with you in solidarity. I just want to tell you how impressed I am with each and every one of you and how you've interacted with our offices. I really appreciate the way that you've educated us without really chastising any of our constituents or the way that they feel. And the dialogs, both on Facebook and anywhere else have been very positive. And I really appreciate that a lot of people believe in what you're doing. I think you've organized well. I think that you brought a lot of important information to the table. And from listening to you today, I took some notes and I'd like to ask that our federal legislative agenda consider supporting some of the items that they've discussed with us tonight. And so if that could come back through our committee process, I think that that would be great. And I'd love to see some of you attend that meeting. A lot of the work actually gets done at committee. And so we appreciate you coming tonight and being very informative and especially knowing how long our agenda is for taking the 2 minutes and being precise. So appreciate that. And I want to see what you're talking about come to fruition because it's really important for our children and our children's children. And I'll be back in 15 to 20 minutes. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilmember Pearce. Yes. I want to thank everyone who came and spoke tonight, everyone that's been involved. I want to make sure that I think staff I know that it's been a big lift. And I especially just want to take a moment to thank Mayor Garcia for your leadership. When I think about eight years ago when I came to council on that side, the leadership to really tackle climate change was was not really here. And so I really want to applaud you for that. And I think that's in re sponse to community groups organizing and educating and really working not only on this issue, but on issues like community choice aggregation. And so I look forward to working with staff. And again, just want to thank you guys for the work. I know we'll get that meeting in April. Thank you. Thank you. And Councilwoman Gonzales. Yes. I'll close the loop here by saying also thank you to the organizations LP 350. I was going to say as well, your work with us so many times on community choice aggregation as well as I don't Where's Karen? There she is. And I remember downtown going dark for about a week and that was really awful for us and having these opportunities to discuss with you. And I look forward to continuing the discussions with each of you on how we can better this plan and make more detailed and more ambitious goals. I agree. I do remember back in 2014 I actually asked for a report on cap and trade dollars that may be coming back to some of our disadvantaged communities here in Long Beach. I'm wondering if we can dig that out of its grave and bring it back and see. I know that the state legislature is going back and forth on what defines a disadvantaged community, but it would be really good to get some additional information on that relative to Long Beach and how we can start planning ahead for that. So that was back in, I want to say, 2014, 2015. That's some time ago. But I would really like us to look at that and bring that back in a two from four or in an additional forum where we can discuss this with with the public. And I believe I worked with Dean on that. That was a long. Do you remember that? It's a long time ago. So we should do that. Thank you. Well, thank you very much. And again, thanks to staff. And I know if you keep thinking or sustainability team, but the planning team and the planning department I know are taking the lead on this. So I just I'm looking at the planners over here and I want to also thank our sustainability team because they're doing their work . You're all working so so thank you. With that that there's a motion to receive and file. But I want to make sure that the motion received properly includes the 2045 target and it and I'm glad that we're already working on the inventory for the city emissions as well on the on the fossil fuels. And so please cast your votes members on those on that receiving file. Motion carries. Great. Thank you, guys. And I want to thank also just, you know, 350 just for the work. You guys are amazing organizers and you're actually making a real big impact. And so I just want to let you guys know that the volunteer hours and coming to council and sending letters and meeting with members of the council and the staff, you're actually changing policy by interacting with people and and I believe working in a way that's collaborative. And so just think of just the group and you're certainly impacting the staff in the council. So I appreciate that. And let me move on to some public co mment here. Thank you, guys. So that concludes me close that hearing. And first up, I have is I'm going to have Summer and Jim who are here for the same item come up. Motion carries. Okay. Next item, please. Communication from Councilwoman Price, Councilmember Pearce, Councilmember Supernormal Councilmember, but ongoing recommendation to request the city manager to provide an update within 60 days on Laura's Law. Okay. Councilman Cooper now. Thank you. Councilman. Woman Pryce had to leave early, but she asked me to go ahead and forward this on to make the motion. And we look forward to getting our report back. Thank you. Councilman Mongo. No comment. Just supportive of moving adam ford. Councilman Richardson. Thank you. I'm I'm okay with receiving the report here, but I want to make sure that there's a lens on. There was when this law was passed, there was a lot of conversation about patients rights and a lot of the patient rights advocacy groups. ACLU opposed it, giving the debate about folks don't really they're not open to services until they're fit, until they're open to receiving them. And it's a fine line when you force services or you commit a patient. And, you know, I know just from personal experience and family members, sometimes you want to just say, I wish I could just commit this person, but, you know, for one reason or the other. But there are you know, there are rights. And so it's a it's a it's a it's an interesting balance here. But I want to I just want to make sure that that is reflected in the report, that we have a full understanding of how that's being addressed in the L.A. County pilot. So that would be my feedback here. Thank you. Accounts will appear. Yes, I signed on to this item to get the report, but I want to make it clear for the record that I'm not somebody that condones and supports criminalizing people that are struggling with mental health. And I do know that mental health, patient rights, California Mental Health Coalition, a long list of other organizations have not supported, you know, these actions. So I do want to hear the report from city staff and I want to understand other options to be able to support those in our community that are struggling with mental health and how we can incentivize them are receiving support. Thank you. Any public comment on the item saying Now please cast your votes. Because remember, price motion carries. Thank you very much. Next item is item 19. Item 19 is a report from Development Services. Recommendation to receive in FY the 2018 report on Tenant Assistance Policies. Direct City Attorney to prepare a Tenant Relocation Assistant Ordinance and Direct City Manager to take the necessary steps to implement recommendation two through five city wide. Okay. Before we start a couple of things. The first is we have a significant amount of public comment on this item that's not just here, but we have about 75 people that are outside with more people coming that all want to speak to thi s item. And so there's two things. First, like we we always do with large crowds, unless there's any objection from a councilmember. We're going to start at 90 seconds. Is there any objection? Okay, so we're down. We're going to 90 seconds for four speakers. And then the second the second thing is, this gentleman that you have right in front of you here is going to be calling speakers per line. And then after you're after you speak, certainly you're able to come back down again. We'd also ask that there's about 75 folks that want to come in. They'd love to take a seat as well. You can stay there and we'll just bring them in from the outside, or if you'd like, after you speak, you know, to head out or allow someone else to sit. We can do that as well. But the fire department will be doing the crowd control. So please just take your directions from from the gentleman. They'll be asking different rows to go, and you have to speak when you're called for your row. And we're going to go through that process per fire department, and we're going to make sure that everyone that's outside is given a chance to speak. So if you are one of the 75 folks that are outside, I know you can I think they can hear this message right now. We're playing the meeting out there, right, Mr. Modica? Yes, we'd have some technical difficulties, but it should be playing. Okay. So if you're outside, just please note that you will have an opportunity to speak. Everyone outside will have an opportunity to speak. Okay. So with that, I think we've read the item. We do have a motion. Councilwoman Gonzalez, are we going to go to public comment first? Got it. And I'm doing this. We're going to do public comment first as well. Right? First. Okay. So we're going to go and do public comment once a staff report is complete. And just please follow the fire department directions. So thank you. So thank you very much. Thank you very much, Mr. West. Actually, I'm ready. This to Tom Motorcar Assistant City

Manager. He's been doing all the heavy lifting. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Mr. West and members of the City Council. We do have a staff report we'd like to go through. This has been an issue that staff has worked on for a long time, for the past year. We'll get into the origins of it. It was we were asked by the City Council to really do a lot of research and to come up with some options for you to consider related to tenant assistance. So we do want to spend a time kind of going through some of that data that we've made available to the community and that we've really looked at over the last year. We've spent some time talking about what we currently do, what state law does, what other cities do, and then we'll get into the recommendations and we have. The way this is structured as a number of options for the city council to really be able to dove into and create a policy if if we're asked to move forward, that meets kind of your needs and the needs of the community. So first of all, I'd like to start about what tonight is and is not so tonight is not about rent control. You're not going to hear that from city staff. We are not proposing that. And we certainly we can talk about, you know, the different policies and what is and what is not. But we are not proposing rent control. Tonight is not about rent caps, so we're not proposing rent caps either. That is a form of rent control that is on the agenda. And what we're presenting tonight is not about just cause eviction. There are significant differences between just cause eviction and what the staff recommendation are. We can talk about that and answer questions as well, but we're not talking about just cause eviction. What we are talking about is tenant relocation assistance and some other policies to assist displaced individuals. So I do want to get into some of the background and why we're even here tonight. So on January 16th, 2018, the City Council directed us to conduct a significant research and come back to you. We were asked to look at policies to support tenants and seniors. We were asked to look at expanded relocation programs, homeownership opportunities. We were asked to look at all the other cities and what they do. We're asked to look at housing preservation and added resources for code enforcement and information on citywide rental rates. And then we were also asked to really meet and conduct stakeholder engagement with both the tenants and property owner groups, and then also to have a meeting of the minds where we bring them together to talk about if there's any common ground. And so in response, what we've done and we'll report to you tonight is we've compiled information on all those relevant state laws and our existing Long Beach tenant assistance programs. We went out and surveyed 115 cities. We started with the top 100 in California and then expanded that as we got some input from the community to 115, both in California and outside of California. We assembled information on senior assistance, housing preservation and local government. We did four separate stakeholder focus group meetings, and then we came back to you with the Comprehensive Report on tenant assistance. It's about 222 pages long. And given the size of it, we actually released it early as opposed to just on the eight day agenda. So that came out early so everyone could digest it. And then what we're here today to do is to give you five policy recommendations for you to consider, but with various options that you can also consider as well. So I want to talk a little bit about existing California law. So just to give us a grounding in what the law is from the state level, which really governs most of of lease relationships. And so there's two types of rental agreements. There's a lease, which is for a defined period of time, it typically is about a year. And then there's what's called a periodic agreement. And that's that month to month tenancy. There are noticing requirements and they're different dep

about unsafe or illegal living conditions. When they complain to a government agency like the city of Long Beach about those conditions. If tenants are assembling and presenting tenants rights collectively, such as through a tenants union, or if a tenant is withholding rent because it's an uninhabitable or an unsafe dwelling unit, retaliation is prevented in all four. So I'd like to get into a little bit of the data as when we went in and kind of research this to give you a sense of what's been happening in Long Beach. And so we did an initial report back in 2017 on rental rates, and then we updated these data to February one, 2019. And so the left chart that you see provides rental data on rental rates, and on the right you're seeing vacancy rates. And so the citywide mean rent in January 2019 for multifamily units of any size was 1418. That's a 2.3% increase over citywide mean rent for the first quarter and a 5.7% increase over 2017. Mean rent, which was 1341. On the right hand side, we look at the vacancy rate, and vacancy rate is pretty important to us because anything over 5% is normally considered a pretty healthy market. When you have over 5%, people have choices. They are able to look for multiple areas and find what makes the right choice for them. When you're under 5%, you have a constrained market and it becomes very difficult and often it is hard to find a place, even any place, when you're under it. And so our vacancy rate has continued to fall. You can see back to 2010, it is as is 2011 is about when it began to dip below 5%, and it's been declining ever since. Last year it was at 4.2%, and now in February, it's actually at 3.8%. It appears to be stabilizing over the last y ear. But again, it is still very constrained. So we also wanted to present you some information on multifamily building data. And so using business license data, we assembled this information on multifamily rental properties in the city. In the city of Long Beach, we define multifamily properties as four or more, so units that are four or more. That's when you need to get a business license, and that's when we also do housing inspections through a proactive program. It's also the definition that HUD uses for multifamily properties. And so there are 7644 properties in the city, and that equates to 17,017 rental units where there are four or more buildings. A total of 6236 properties contain buildings of 4 to 10. So the smaller units, if you will, from 4 to 10, which is 81% of all rental properties citywide, these properties contain 35,000 units, which is about 50% of all rental units citywide. So as you can see, there's a large percentage of units that are in that smaller 4 to 10 bucket, and then the rest of them are in the 11 and above. So we also wanted to look a little bit about what's happening with sales of our properties here in Long Beach. You know, since 2012, we've seen a pretty incredible growth in sales in Long Beach. And so what you're seeing here is a 277% increase in sales of multifamily units since 2012. The largest is by putting in what we call Class C properties. And Class C properties are those properties that are more than 20 years old and are really in need of rehabilitation and upgrades. So on the next page you see then of those buildings, what are we seeing in terms of permit activity? So what you're seeing in the blue is are apartment buildings that are asking for permits. And in the orange is what you're seeing is all of the permits we are actually issuing to them. So one one building might actually have several permits depending on the number of work that they're doing. So the trend, as you see, follows, what we're seeing with multi residential sales is that they're being sold and acquired. And at the same time, they're also being invested in, which often leads to displacement. So we have a 117% increase in rehabilitation permits since 2012. Okay. So do you want to talk a little bit about what we do in Long Beach already? Long Beach is one of the cities that actually has tenant protections already in tenant assistance in place already. And so some of the things that we already have in place are relocation assistance for displacement due to code enforcement, due to demolition , and also due to condo conversion. We have a proactive rental housing inspection program. We have tenant and landlord counseling services through the Fair Housing Foundation, and we have a local housing preference policy for new affordable housing developments. We went out and we looked at those 115 cities to see kind of where are the best practices. And what we found is 63 out of those, 115 cities have some type of level of policy that exceeds state law, while 52 of them have no policies that exceed state law. So the majority do have something could be one or could be multiple items that exceed state law. So the top two, beyond those that we really saw as kind of the top best practices are proactive unit inspection program which Long Beach house and tenant relocation 28 for proactive unit and 24 Tenant Relocation. We also compare ourselves to the top ten cities. We'd like to know what our big neighbors do. So in the top ten cities in California, we really saw that they fall into three different buckets. We see cities that don't have any relocation assistance programs beyond what the state requires. They may have other types of benefits, but they don't have relocation programs. Those are Anaheim, Bakersfield, Sacramento and San Diego. Then there's that middle bucket of cities that go beyond state law but don't have a full on expanded program. And that's Fresno and Long Beach. And then you have cities that really take it to the next level and have a larger expanded relocation requirements. And those are Los Angeles, Oakland, San Francisco and San Jose. And so at this point, I'd like to turn it to Patrick Geary, who's going to go through a little bit of our affordable housing and also what we've heard from stakeholders along the way through our public outreach process. Thank you, Tom. Good evening. Long Beach is home to about 62,000 seniors over the age of 62, and that's 13% of our population. And the city has invested significantly in senior housing over the years. There are currently 2917 affordable senior units citywide, which is about 45% of all affordable units. The city has provided about $36 million in funding for the development of 453 new affordable senior units since 2013. That's 58% of all new affordable units over that time period. And for at risk affordable units, 198 senior units have been preserved since 2007, which is 80% of all preserved units. The Housing Authority also offers a senior preference program for seniors in the Housing Choice voucher program. There are 6477 existing affordable units in the city. 2008 units 28 at risk units have been preserved since 2017. If you look at the chart on the left side of the screen, you'll notice that most of those have occurred since 2015, and about 80% are senior units. The city has also provided funding for the development of about 694 units since 2007. We have 806 units currently in production, including 410 units under construction. Since the early 2000s, the city has partnered with lenders, realtors and homebuyer training providers and has loan nearly $50 million to about 345/1 time homebuyers. The average subsidy for those units was about 145,000. But more recent transactions have required up to 350,000 per unit. The city does not currently offer any homebuyer assistance programs due to a lack of affordable housing funding. But information about homebuyer training and other resources are provided on the Development Services webpa

ge. A more detailed response to the Council request for homebuyer assistance programs will be provided to the Council in the near future. Staff engage place where consulting to help develop and implement a stakeholder engagement plan for the Tenant Assistance Project. It was determined that the best approach was to work with the existing network of well-established and engaged stakeholders representing tenants and apartment owners. This slide provides a list of the stakeholders that were included in the process. Staff held the first stakeholder meeting with tenant representatives on August 14th, 2018. A meeting with apartment owners stakeholders was held on August 29th, 2018, and meetings with both groups combined were held on September 26 and October 8th, 2018. In May of 2018, the city launched the Everyone Home Long Beach Initiative. Policy recommendations were presented to the City Council on December 11th, 2018 and include the tenant protection policies that staff is recommending tonight. A new tenant relocation a see a security deposit assistance program for displaced seniors, a set aside of housing choice, vouchers for displaced seniors, improved communication with owners of HUD assisted properties and support to increase the state's noticing requirement for a no fault termination to 90 days. I'm now going to turn it over to Island and Linda Tatum, our director of development services. Thank you, Patrick. I'll be covering for you the recommendations that came out of all of the data and all of the stakeholder input that we received throughout the process that both Tom and Patrick have just described. And I would just like to note that there are a series of a baseline performance recommendation, as well as a number of options for the city council to consider. And I would also note that in all of the data collection, while we looked at a number of other cities and a lot of other programs, I should note that the recommendations are based not on any one city or any one program, but rather it was specifically formatted to to meet the needs of the city of Long Beach, its residents. So with that, I'll go into recommendation one. Recommendation one is really the centerpiece of the work that staff did on this effort in its quest to prepare a new tenant relocation assistance ordinance. And it's really designed primarily to mitigate the impact of renter households that are involuntarily displaced. As proposed, this policy would require apartment owners to pay relocation assistance to tenants when there is a trigger under the order's provisions that I'll discuss in a little bit more detail. So I'll talk a little bit about the base relocation assistance program. And this has a number of components, but the very fundamental one is that their trigger for the relocation assistance to come into play. So recommendation number one includes those two base relocation components. And those two triggering factors are starting with a when a tenant receives a rent i ncrease of 10% or more during any 12 month period, they may choose to stay in the unit and pay the increase or vacate the unit with relocation assistance. Trigger B is when a notice to vacate is issued to a tenant that has not violated any of the provisions of state law regarding landlord tenant relations. They may be eligible for tenant relocation assistance. In a couple of those examples that are covered under state law include things like failing to pay rent, conducting illegal activities in the unit, damaging the property as an example. So that's the base relocation ordinance component. I'd like to talk a little bit more about other components of the base relocation component. And these are essentially the rules of the programs that that affect is implementation things that both the landlords have to do and things that the tenants are required to do. The first is that once the triggering mechanism has been once one of the triggers has been trigger triggered, the rent must be paid during the noticing period in order for the tenant to receive relocation benefits. The household that's being removed for violating any of the state law provisions would not be eligible for relocation assistance, and tenants that leave voluntarily do not receive benefits as well. And lastly, a tenant receiving a rent increase of 10% or more must notify the owner of their intent to either stay in the unit or to live within to leave with those benefits. And then, of course, other provisions police would still apply, such as security deposits must be returned and the landlord must give the tenant the opportunity to cure any cause for termination. Another couple of components related to kind of how this program would operate would be the enforcement provisions. Owners would be required to include information about the city's program in their lease agreement with tenants. They must also report relocation benefits to the city and also report to the city when entire building of four or more units is vacated. And this is really important because right now the city has no knowledge necessarily of any evictions or any buildings being turned over. So this this requirement would enable the city to start collecting data on exactly what's happening in the housing stock in terms of eviction evictions and rent increases. And, of course, the affordable deed restricted units would be exempt from this program. And staff, once the city council makes a determination, staff would work, of course, with our city attorney to incorporate appropriate enforcement mechanisms into the program. And these may include provisions relating to private right of action where a tenant can sue an owner for failing to comply law. Or it may also include language regarding an affirmative defense to an unlawful detainer. Again, tools that the tenant can use to acquire their relocation benefits if they're not voluntarily provided. So I'd like to go into each of the options. As I mentioned, there are three optio ns. The first of these options is option one, and this includes the two baseline components that I talked about earlier, the two triggering events and kind of the rules of the program. Option one has the broadest applicability and of course, the greatest potential level of assistance. And I'll just run through these really quickly. The very first component of option one is a relocation payment of 40 $500 per unit. And this is based upon the current city relocation requirement that's in the city's current municipal code. In addition to the 40 $500 per unit, there would be an additional $2,000 payment for seniors and disabled households and an additional $1,000 for moving expense. The second criteria applies to the property type, movie site type. It means the size of the unit in terms of the number of units on the property. So in this option, it would apply to all rental units that are two or more units, essentially duplex and above. And lastly, the household type, the benefits, what plot would apply to all households regardless of their income. So this one is not income qualified. That's option one. And it has the most broadest provisions for rental assistance. Okay. Let's go on to option two. And I would just note that option two is the recommendation is the staff recommendation. This one also, of course, includes the base components that we talked about earlier. But it also here's the three provisions here. In terms of the relocation payment, we would then refer to a a rental payments schedule, and they would pay two months rent on that rent schedule. That rent schedule is is the rent payment schedule that's used by the city's housing authority. And it's prepared and updated annually by by HUD, the federal government. The second application would be for the type of units it would apply to. We are recommending that the program apply to all properties with four or more units, and we determined that four units made sense because that's the standard by which the city requires a business license. So we have data and contract those units. It's all the it's also the HUD based rationale for what they consider to be multifamily properties or commercial properties. And lastly, that is also the standard that we use for the city's proactive rental housing enforcement improvement. And then lastly, the standard here under option two is the household type. In this case, we're recommending that the benefits only apply. Lower. Moderate. And. And a moderate. Income households. And that is up to. And including 120% of the area median income. And this was very specific. The idea would be that this qualification would include workforce housing. So again, this is the staff recommended option. Now this is just a highlight of the rental payment schedule that I referred to earlier, and this would be the basis for the payment of the relocation. Since using this chart, someone who's being displaced from a one bedroom unit in the 90802 zip code would receive two month's re nt based upon the standard rent of $1,543 or a payment of $3,086. So this this payment standard sets a maximum payment that a family can receive based upon the relocation proposal. And these standards, as I mentioned earlier, are prepared annually by. They are the fair market rents that HUD pays. Okay. Then we'll go on now to option three. And this one is probably the one that is most restrictive and would provide the least benefit and the have the least the least impact to property owners. So of course, this one also includes the base component and the triggering mechanisms. But the first recommendation here is that the payment would be 40 $500 per unit and it would apply in terms of applicability. It would apply to multifamily rental properties with ten units or more. And thirdly, the household type that it would be applicable to would be filed low income households, and that is those households earning up to 80% of the area median, the median income, and that's roughly 77,500 for a family of four. So that concludes the discussion of the various options. And I would like to quickly summarize the other components of the the program. The staff is recommending that the Council direct us to prepare and include in the ordinance. The first is we'd like to the city to create a city funded Seniors First Security Deposit Assistance Program, and this would be for displaced low income seniors. And that will be funded by even though the city would pay that that fee, it would be funded by federal home funds. Recommendation three is to set aside emergency housing choice vouchers for seniors or displace extremely low below income seniors. And that will be setting aside up to 25 vouchers. Recommendation for is to establish a communication framework with the HUD's Public Housing Office and owners of HUD funded rental buildings to discuss rehabilitation and covenant for preservation opportunities. Essentially what we're saying here is that the city would be proactive in trying to identify those units that might be losing, potentially losing their affordability, and start to work with the owners to identify potential funding so that those covenanted properties can stay in the affordable housing inventory. And finally, recommendation five is to include a recommendation in the city's state legislative agenda to support modification of the seat, noticing requirement for no fault termination of tenancy to a minimum of 90 days. Tom discussed earlier that that notification timeframe can vary depending upon the the amount of the rental increase. But we'd like to have the state consider starting at a minimum of a 90 day noticing period. So with that, I'd like to turn it back over to Tom for closing comments. Thank you very much, Linda. So we're almost done with our staff report. We have just a couple more concepts to cover. And one is we're trying to make a very complex, you know, ordinance that you would want to put out there to make it as simple and easy and transparen

t as possible. And so that was really in our mind. We heard that both from the tenants and from this and from the property owners. And so the goal really is to make the benefits very, very clear so that there's no dispute. Everyone knows whether I'm covered with benefits or not covered with benefits and that the tenant, the landlord, have that information. We would want this to be very clear in terms of standards of applicability. We would recommend putting this into a lease agreement so that there's one document that everyone knows what's expected of me as a as a renter, and also what any relocation benefits would be. We see as a city our role in providing a website that I'd very clear information. So if you didn't remember to check your lease, you would be able to get the information there. We also know we need to do some information campaign. We're talking about a lot of people who would be affected, both on the tenant side and on the property owner side. We really believe that data collection will help us gain a better understanding of the issues and we're really there. So this is not an administratively intense city program. So we're not proposing staff, we're not proposing an increase in in bodies to be able to do this or additional fees to be able to fund that, trying to keep that as simple as possible. And so for the next steps, what we've tried to do for you tonight, council, is to really provide you a lot of options on a very complex issue. We we don't believe there's any one magic solution. There's a number of ways any policy can be put together. And that's the hard challenge you're going to have tonight. But if you were to give us direction, this is really a first step. So you would be giving us direction to work with the city attorney's office to prepare an actual rental assistant ordinance and to bring it back to you to really see the rest of those details. Not everything has been fleshed out there. Still be, you know, a lot of details on implementation and rollout and all those things that we would bring that back if we were get direction to move forward. We would also be preparing an amendment to our consolidated plan, an annual action plan, to fund that security deposit assistance program for displaced seniors. And we would bring that to the Long Beach Community Investment Company and the Council for Review. We would prepare an amendment for the Housing Authority Administrative Plan to create that, set aside for housing choice vouchers for displaced extremely low seniors, and present that to the housing authority. And then we would prepare that implementation and education strategy for tenant relocation assistance. So we thank you very much for your patience for allowing us to kind of summarize all the work, very proud of the team and what they've been able to accomplish. You gave us a big task to come back with a lot of data and really try to be thoughtful about this and provide some assistance. So, you know, thank you very much

h, Ann, and thanks to the team and we are available for questions. Thank you, Mr. Modica, and thank you for those that presented the staff report. The makers of the motion were going to request that we go do it public comment first. So we're going to do a public comment. So please follow the directions of our fire marshal and 90 seconds on the clock. Thank you. Mayor Garcia. My name is Jeff Sievers, and I've lived in Long Beach since I was seven years old. I want to thank you so much for your efforts with the Century Club and raising money via the golf tournament. I guess we just hit over the million dollar mark. And because of your involvement with the Century Club, people like the Andrews and myself were benefactors of the Century Club. And if you guys don't know what a great football player Dee Andrews was, they would get to third down. He was that good. It's a pleasure to be here. I don't think I've ever spoken to the city council in all these years of being a citizen of Long Beach. This is about rental increases and relocation. As a property owner, myself and Vern School, I've owned income property in this area for approximately 50 years. We have kept our rents 15 to 20% below. And based on those stats, it's probably 25% below market and we're proud of that. We want our tenants to be happy. Now you're proposing relocation money. If we raise our rents over 10%. Now if we raise our rents to market value. Like many landlords did when they were had rent control hanging over their head. They raised their rents last year. So if we raise our rents to market value and then we're okay and 10%, we're fine. But I've got to tell you some stats. I mean. We're so sorry. The timer's out. 90 seconds. Okay. Where were you? Where were the people when we had 18 or 20% vacancy? Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. I have a question for you. Why is it that you guys want to provide a tour? If you. Would you mind just speaking to him? I can identify yourself. Thank you. Yes, I'm Steve. Why is it when you men and women want to provide a public service, you always want to put it on the back of the people. You know, for section eight, we put it on public funding for. For. Food assistance. We have public funding. Why don't you guys and girls decide to put public funding in place to provide tenant relocation assistance for those people who need it? That's my big question. Why is it always on the back of private citizens? I did not see that in your options, Mr. Monica. I did not see that in any of the options that Lake City money would be used to provide the benefit for public uses of tenant relocations. If it is that important that it be provided, let the public pay for it, just like they do with housing assistance and food stamps and those things. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. Stephanie Dawson Solo Democratic Socialists of America, Long Beach Branch. I live in the second District. First of all, I w ant to address the previous speaker suggestion that we use public money. That would be fantastic actually, if we assessed a parcel tax on all rental properties and the rental owners, I think that would be fantastic towards paying for rental assistance. So by all means. However, more to the point, a city is made of people, not a property. Housing is a fundamental right for people in the city. Property rights and their properties, by comparison, are imaginary. Option one is the only measure in the staff report that comes even close to checking the power and greed of the landlords in this city. The other options presented by the office, by the city manager's office are myopic, counter-productive and will not be sufficient to stem the awful consequences of our unregulated rental market, nor the apparent unceasing greed of the local landlord class. These landlords do not want a diverse Long Beach. If you follow their comments on social media, it is abundantly clear that they want to make

Long Beach great again. They do not see their tenants as people. They see them as disposable assets. Closing restaurants, families and students sleeping in cars display seniors in a grow encampments of homeless people. Homeless people are all symptoms of this creep. Do your legislative duty and tell these landlords, especially those with 7.4 area codes, that their greed will no longer dictate housing policy in the city. And then instead, you will make it clear tonight that you recognize the rights of the residents to live in safe, had homes throughout this community. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. Good evening, everyone. My name is Darlene. I'm here on behalf of SPC Thrive and the best are at Central Long Beach Leadership Team. So thank you very much for listening to public comment and great thanks to De Andrews for supporting Bestor at Central Long Beach by having staff present at our partnership meetings. So actually a lot of our participants at our meetings are your constituents and they are deeply affected by displacement. Our home visitation program has expressed the trauma and pain. Families and children ages 0 to 5 go through when being displaced. That is why I'm here right now to ask Diane Andrews and the rest of City Council to vote for Option one, which provides more protection for families, seniors and people with disabilities who might need extra assistance. Every person in Long Beach deserves to live in a safe home in stable neighborhood. And relocation assistance is is one simple solution to the existing housing crisis. So I ask Long Beach to continue to explore the root cause, which is displacement due to the lack of just cause eviction and rent stabilization. Thank you. Thank you very much. Speaker, please. Hello, I'm Myron Wolin. I'm president of the Long Beach Gray Panthers. The Gray Panthers, one of the organizations that were part of the process to come up with these recommendations. I want to commend the city council for taking o n this issue and thinking about it and talking about what can happen for tenants. We're fighting for. The soul of our city. The displacement that goes on is awful. What I'm seeing among my members, among the seniors within the Gray Panthers and with seniors and out. In the community, is that they are having. Tremendous rent increases, forcing them to leave. We've got to do something. If you think about a sustainable city, a city that's that will have a history of people that stay around and not being forced to leave. You would consider option one, which we think is the best option for this relocation system. We ask you two to consider this, to think about it, and to and to pass something that will. Provide. Some assistance for tenants. We don't think tenants should have to leave because of high rents. We'd like something better than that. But we'll take this. We'll have this as some way of sustaining our city and keeping down the relocations that go on. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker. My children and I have nowhere else to go tonight. Can you help me? Hi. My name is Paula. These are the exact words I hear on a daily basis, working at a nonprofit organization that sets homeless families to locate housing here in the city of Long Beach. I do believe that the city needs to come up with a better strategy in alleviating the true systemic problem that leads to homelessness, which is gentrification. Gentrification can be defined when the city displaces members of the community upon the completion of new projects due to high increased rents from investors leading to lower economic status members displaced in their very own city. Ultimately, is it is a reason why relocation assistance would be needed in the first place. When a single mother of two children can no longer afford rent due to unexpected rent increases and have to live in a vehicle because there is no more shelter space available when a senior citizen has to vacate a unit he spent years living in because the building has been sold and many more similar cases have to follow in their footsteps. Something has to be done in the meantime until such a strategy exists that can resolve the true issues of homelessness, which in my opinion, would be developing more income, mixed income units, developments into the city . Relocation assistance is necessary once again, as someone who is on the frontlines working with the homeless population and see only a glimpse of their struggles. I would hope that you take my words into consideration. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Robert Fox, executive director of the Council of Neighborhood Organizations. We took a unanimous vote against this proposal because some of the elements of it bother the neighborhoods. We don't mind. Failure to pay rent violated terms of lease or rental agreement. Materially damage the property. The rest of them. We can't do. Most of you are so young, you don't remember what 1991,

92 were here in this city. It was terrible. Our neighborhoods were horrible. I found it. Alameda Speech Neighborhood Association. And the way we cleaned it up was we had to get rid of the gang members. We had the Longo's, the Crips, the Bloods. It was horrible here. We had gay bashing all out on the street. So what we did is we went to landlords and asked them to evict that drug dealer. We had tenants testify in court because we needed a preponderance of the evidence. Well, guess what? We won. But I forgot. It took 3 to 4 weeks to do the lockout. These people were beaten within an inch of their lives, so no moral landlord will ever ask a tenant to testify in court. This leaves us nowhere to save our tenants. We have an obligation to keep the place safe. If you remove a 30 day and 60 day notice for us, we have no way of propelling bad tenants and safeguarding our neighborhoods. Unfortunately, the neighborhoods will descend and disintegrate. Please take this into consideration. Thank you, Mr. Fox. Next speaker, please. The address is on file. I want to thank the city staff for a comprehensive and complex report to reflect the realities that we all are dealing with at this moment. I want to just go ahead and state that the recommendations support at least nine of the 17 goals for the United Nations Sustainable Development World that we all should be looking forward to, which is one of no poverty. Goal two of zero Hunger. Goal three of good health and well-being for quality education. As children are also displaced. In the process. Decent work and economic growth reduce inequalities, sustainable cities and communities, life on land, peace, justice and strong institutions which require good governance. I also think all groups for their civic engagement and look forward to all of the comments to point towards where our support is. Option one would be where I would put my support as a caregiver and someone who, while living on ocean, have spoken more to seniors being displaced over the past four years. I would like not to see people who are steadily keeping up with their health be displaced to a market that does not support Social Security incomes. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name's Nick Lopez. Mr. Lopez, you talking to the mic? I'm sorry. I just. Thank you. My name's. Nick Lopez. I've been here since the late nineties. I bought buildings that most people wouldn't buy. Most of you wouldn't. Wouldn't have gone into these neighborhoods because of the conditions in the neighborhoods. I have buildings with bullet holes in them, and I evicted lots and lots of people, some for cars, some just because it was my word against theirs. That's all we had. Your staff. They said that where they're proposing was not rent control. It is start to finish. Now, I want you to think about how many incentives he spoke of for landlords to buy buildings in this city. If you do institute that, there are none. All the incentives are for us to lea ve. And if you pass this, I will be one of the people that leave. I like what I do. I've enjoyed my time. Here, you pass this. I'm out of here. I can't believe you're reaching into my well of hard work over the last 20 years to try to cover a problem. If you want to fix the problem, pull out your paycheck and spend it. Not mine, not my children. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and council members. My name is Mary Sun Huston. I live in the First District and I am here before you to urge you to to pass the rent the tenant relocation ordinance. It is very important to be able to pass that ordinance, especially with the with the key proposed provision of adding an additional $2,000 for people with disabilities. It is really, really hard to find an accessible and affordable unit to rent here in Long Beach. I've been a renter for over 26 years and I love my city. But one of the things is that I want me to be able to continue living in the city. And I also want to share with you the struggle that I had. I lived ten years in a unit that was an accessible for me just because I could not find an affordable and accessible place for me to live. Ten years it took me. I saved up and now I moved out from that unit. And I live in a very accessible place which is tripled the rent that I used to pay. Not everyone can do that. So I urge you to please pass this ordinance. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Diaz. Next speaker, please. Hello. Hello, honorable mayor. Council members and citizens of Long Beach. My name is Matt Vigo and I have lived in the fourth district for nearly 12 years now. I'm in support of the Tenant Relocation Assistance Ordinance, option number one. Initially, moving to Long Beach is an able bodied individual, and now as a person in a wheelchair, I know the challenges and difficulties of finding affordable and accessible housing in this city. Not only is it difficult finding accessible housing, whether it be finding a home without stairs or wide enough doorways, but also finding a home that is affordable within these parameters is a struggle, especially for those on fixed income, such as Social Security and disability. Being able to. Continuously reside in their residence. Can be a near impossibility as rent increases exceed the increases in their benefits. Luckily, I've been blessed with a great education at CSU. I'll be gainfully employed, have a landlord. That has kept the increases reasonable. And that I can afford these increases in rent. However, there are many individuals that are not this blessed. There are numerous residents, such as older adults and persons with disabilities, that are in danger of getting pushed out of this city and the need for financial assistance with finding new places to live. And that is why I support this ordinance that you counsel for your time. Thank you very much, sir. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name's Johanna. Cunningham, CEO for the National Short Term Rental. Here

's a definition I found that speaks to private property rights. A private property system gives individuals the exclusive right to use their resources as they see fit. When I first heard about the relocation proposal, my first thought was, Here we go again. While I can empathize with renters in the context that moving is hard, that burden should not be placed on the owner's back. To supplement that move. Your report. Cites that over. 78% of the rental stock are in small and mid-sized buildings. Those owners. When they purchased the units, were and still are relying on that income to supplement their own security, health care and retirement. With the average rent for a one bedroom of just over 1400 dollars and a beach community, tacking on another fee is just not the answer. You're hurting the very demographic that you're including in this ordinance, the senior community who have long supported Long Beach. I have spoken to many of them. And they feel betrayed and scared of what's going to come next. Why do you think short term rentals are becoming so important? Owners are still trying to find ways to keep rents low for their tenants, supplement their income and survive. So please stop creating barriers and start creating bridges. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Councilmembers and Mayor Garcia. My name is Evan Remodeler. I work for Equity Residential, a nationwide apartment owner and operator who owns a few hundred units here in Long Beach. Although Equity Residential supports the city's endeavor to alleviate pressures created by the regional housing shortage, we must take more time before advancing policies that will be counterproductive. The scope of this proposed ordinance is too broad and needs to be more focused on the identified issue. Therefore, we are opposed to this ordinance and request a decision be delayed until a more focused solution can be analyzed. We appreciate your time this evening. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Council. My name is Cameron Tamimi. I am a property owner on my own in your district, Mr. Andrews, as well as yours, Ms.. Gonzales. I also represent another 50 owners in all of your districts. And they are all good owners. If you look around actually what I think all of the owners are being here, these are all good owners. And what these people have is hearts. And that's what you're realizing here, is that owners have hearts. And most these people are like the first gentleman that came up. They do not raise their rents very much. They take care of their tenants and they care for them very much. And they actually feel it when they come to them and say, I can't afford a $50 increase. I bet you most of the people in this room don't even give increases higher than $50. I know because I've analyzed most of their properties. This is what these owners do. They do not try to raise rents. And here's what happens. As soon as you guys start to put these are rent contro

believe that this unfortunately will hurt more than help. I think we don't need this kind of policy. I think we need housing. But but this kind of. Her on the on the owners with just a few units, I think is going to hurt more than they help. So I, I don't think this is a good at least for the people like, like me, that it's only there are paycheck to paycheck and we try our best for our tenants. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker piece. Hello. My name is John Kendrick. I'm the outreach coordinator for the Long Beach Gray Panthers and a member of Libra. I've been twice homeless because I reported my landlords in the past and they even faked their their paperwork and forced my name on things to have me legally evicted. So all landlords are not good and I even have the papers to back that up. If anybody wants to see that today. Still, I kept that. No, I belong to the baby boomers. We're the fastest growing population of seniors this country has seen. Most of us are on a fixed income. That doesn't go up Hollywood at all. And we now between that well, they decide between can we eat, can we pay our medicine and high costs? And more and more of us are now becoming the new homeless population on a street which most of us of the most legal drug users, because we all have some kind of disabilities or medical conditions. Now you try being homeless on the streets and take 15, 20 medications. We owe you. We are your fathers. Your grandparents and your uncles where your vets. We're the students that today is now home as of yesterday. I'd like to ask the City Council to look at its mission statement and live up to it. Thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker, please. Hi. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and city council members. My name is Judith Elizabeth and I am a registered voter and reside in District eight. I'm here along with my husband, who will speak after mean of Tali representing small minority property owners. We genuinely get tremendous satisfaction in providing affordable housing to renters who consist of low income families. And also, we participate in the Section eight program as long as well as the Homeless Incentive Program. So if any people out here are saying I'm homeless, there is the homeless incentive program. I highly recommend that you call them or see how you can get assistance from them. I'm also here today to please ask you to not restrict our ability to run our business. These programs, which in my opinion are also called or should be called tenant welfare, are, are and you guys are planning on voting for will greatly affect our business and the ability for us to continue to provide low income housing to our renters. Now, let's keep in mind that if we recall, the renters and people voted and rejected rent control. Right. We did. We did this last year. We voted against it. Right. So why are you bringing this up? So please vote no on rent control. Thank you. It is great. Mayor councilmembers. My name is Naftali. Thank you for your time. I you know, I've I've been on both sides. I'm actually I still have an apartment, even though I'm an owner. I live with my tenants. I grew up in the and Strawberry Fields are here in California and this is my preteens. And my goal was to save enough money to one day want to invest. I was able to do that. And so now I'm able to provide affordable housing. Like like my wife Judy said, we work mainly with low income housing, with a lot of people in the public health week. Some of the team members that we're here, we work with them. And. We provide affordable housing. I view in some of your presentation that I think there's some maybe some things need to be discussed regarding the graphs. We discussed that the availability is low, but yet you guys are doing a awesome job bringing in new business and bringing in new people to Long Beach, but not factoring that into some of your presentation comments. Also. Also with some of the PMA senators talking about about using the HUD or Section eight PIMA centers as what the incentive should be. A lot of times HUD Section eight don't pay that central for a one bedroom voucher. That's the maximum is that's not what they pay. So if that's the case, then they should pay those those amounts standard without negotiating or reducing some of the elements. My tenants have been with me on average ten years. I work with them. You know, we do it on increases. I work with them. I've even not without a heart trouble, wait for the rent. But with these policies in place, I won't be able to afford the ability to provide that. That catch my heart. And I need to one as a business. Thank you. Listenership. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next week for please. City Council. My name is Chuck Blau. On February 7th, I had the honor of hearing. Dr. Garcia get up in front of 8090 rulers and saying that the city is doing so much better. And God bless you. You are. I mean, from crime to the schools to right across the board, you laid out a plan of wonderful things. And he also said rent controls, not an answer. And I'm going to tell you, this has all the earmarks and the slippery slope of of rent control. The owners of these properties recognize who their customers are. These customers were also had no problem seeing red decreases when our vacancy rate was high. Now this is called what market share does. When the market is right. So, you know, what you could do is you could really screw things up and make people want to not live here, have vacancies go down and the rents would go down. You know, what do you want to do? We are looking for a great city. And I'm going to tell you right now, this is rent control. In 1990, I would not walk into some of the neighborhoods that are here. The city is cleaned up. People want to move into this area. And I've got clients who buy into this neighborhood not to raise the rent. They find dilapidated homes and properties and they make them better. With that, rent does go up. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name's. My name's Fred Sanchez. I live in the second district. Um, I actually live with a lot of my tenants. We have a shared, uh, community, and everything works out really well. I actually lived in Long Beach back in the day. I actually returned a few years ago. I told a bunch of friends, family, how great Long Beach is. I said, It's awesome. We got to come here. We we moved here, pulled together. A bunch of investors. Said, let's clean up this, this area. And what we did was we actually fixed it up literally was fixing up properties, bleeding as I'm. Taking nails out of the sides of properties, just. Doing all sorts of stuff. Um. You know, I'm basically a housing provider and I do this to improve the community. I consider myself a small business. And this sort of study, this rent control study that they're bringing to us, it's not it's not a solution. It's a Band-Aid fix, and we all know it. And so they're coming after guys who work really hard and love the community and want the best for the community and completely involved with the community here. But this is not the solution. This is just a Band-Aid. And we're heading towards a recession here. I mean, we've had ten years of prosperity in oh eight when they showed the study, it started in 2009. There's been huge, yeah, 20% increase in rent. But in 2009, that was the low that was the rental low in a market cycle. Obvious. So there was huge increases in rents from that point, but we had decreases in. Thank you very much, sir. Compared to 2005. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. I'm Brian Matheson addressed on file, a long term resident of Long Beach. We've had a problem with of mass evictions when entire buildings are vacated by new owners to rehabilitate the property. A report by counsel for a study was initiated. And it was a smart move, but we did not get a study or an analysis. What we got was data, lots of data and everyone's wish. Lists with. A couple of misleading graphs, which I provided for you. The only selection criteria was incredibly simplistic. Look at the top 100 cities in California in terms of population and see what they are doing. This is an inept criteria. Why not study cities from all over the country for their approach to success? Why are you looking for answers from loser cities. That have failed. To provide enough housing and have had to implement rent controls? And another report did not mention rent controls, but they used all the rent controls cities and their policies in the reports for the graphs and their presentation up here that I just saw. They said it wasn't just because eviction or rent control was false. It is next. The purpose of a graph is to make sense out of data so friends and issues could be easily recognized. If you look at the graphs on relocation in just cause, you will see fake numbers and see the chart has been truncated to allow the small numbers seem bigger in relation to the total. I believe this to be deceptive. Finally, most importantly, I find it highly offensive. The report would propose recommendations where there is no analysis. Of the data. Stanford University came out with a San Francisco study last year in Los Angeles, keeps losing apartment owners because owners are going out of business. These are a couple of huge missing issues in this report. Thank you, sir. Thank you. Good evening, Mayor. Council members. My name is Mike Murchison. I'm here on behalf of quite a few rental property owners, property managers and realtors. I want to ask them to stand up, please. Mayor and council. I want to point something out. I know that you know quite a few of these people, but what you may not know is they're the ones that hire your local contractors, your plumbers, your electricians. They're the ones that are providing employment. They're increasing the sales tax base in our community. That cannot be ignored. We need to protect these owners. We need to protect these property managers. These are not the syndicat ors that came in in 2017. And I don't hold anything against a syndicators. They were investing in old housing stock in districts one, two and six. They were converting old housing stock to rental units that were upgraded. It was not a citywide problem. It was in districts one, two and six. The rest, the districts didn't have the issue. So now we're talking about solving an issue that was in three districts and doing it in all nine. I would encourage you to give a balanced approach tonight when you're thinking about this. I would encourage you to remember that the press telegram two weeks ago on its front page said, and I quote, 28% rent growth in the last ten years, 28% in ten years, 2.8 compared to Los Angeles with rent control, 34%. What does that tell you? We do not want to become L.A. or San Francisco. We want to become Long Beach because we're long term investors in our community. Stay with us tonight. Go with option three if you have to go with one. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Honorable Dr. Robert Garcia and Counsel, thank you so much for listening to us. I am a small property owner of Four Plex. My parents worked the fields. They were in the WPA. They taught me to get an education and to work hard. And I have done that and I'm able to purchase a four plex. I had an incident in which I had a problem tenant. I worked the legal system to get him out of the complex or I would lose the other tenants. I'm not a greedy landlord. My rents are where they should be. I just ask. It cost me over three months rent attorney's fees, close to $15,000 to have this tenant move. I can't see relocation fees. To me, that's the beginning of rent control. I work hard and I respect each and every one and I sympathize with those who are having problems with housing. But please. There are many of us like myself that work hard and try the best thing we can do. I really thank you so much for listening to us and I'm sure it's not an easy solution, but I thank you so much. Thank you, sir. Let me just 1/2. Excuse me. I just want to make sure the fire marshal. I know we've got about 75 people outside still. I just want to make sure that we're are we are we cycling them in or are you going to are we going to go through these and then we're going to bring people in? Okay. Excellent. Thank you very much. Please. Thank you. Thank you for having me tonight. And thank you for taking your time out. I know it must be a strain on you to listen to all of us. I had a speech. I'm not going to do it. I'm just going to tell you about me. I grew up in Long Beach on the West Side. It wasn't easy, but I enjoyed it. And then when I became about 18 years old, I became an onsite property manager. My first task was to clean up the application of a homeless person in the laundry room. The next thing that I had to do, I'm the first responder. Everybody calls me when there's problems. The next thing I did was I lived on site and we had a gentleman take a rifle out and shoot up t he apartment complex . So that was not fun. The other things that I do is I'm the first call. So if somebody is worried about their neighbor, they call me first and they ask me to check on them. And yes, I have had to call the police to handle the task of handling calling the coroners in the month of December this year. I had two different fires. One was ten. It caused it took two and a half months to get them back in. And the other one, the tenant, was amazing. So what I'm trying to say is, please do not penalize us. We work hard, and I love my job. Thank you. Thank you so much. Speaker. Good evening, Honorable Mayor Dr. Garcia and members of the City Council. My name is Silvana Arriola. I'm a resident here in Long Beach, a property manager. Property owner. I also a member of SPO Small Property Owners Alliance. I think we all pretty much believe in our group that the rent regulations are akin to rent control. Regulations have unwanted consequences and they can be verified with the cities that have rent regulation. They reduce the supply of naturally affordable housing, cause higher rents and decrease the quality of housing. Good government policies can help create affordable rent units. We need and we want fair solutions that work in the long term for tenants and for property providers. Solutions with weighty laws may appear to address the problem, but they frequently are short sighted and fail in time. Equitable policies require better understanding and study by the community. We need solutions which address systemic growth and and create a healthy housing environment, which is also sensitive to our city's unique needs. We want solutions which are not punitive but fair and effective for all parties, tenants and property providers alike. Policies should foster thank you cooperation and make you miss, not hostility. And I see that this is happening all too often. I ask you to vote for a modified form of the third position. Thank you. Good evening. My name is Rich Rat Kellis. In its own proposed guidelines. During the research groups, city staff advised participants to consider the unintended consequences of their recommendations. The staff's recommendation number two to you does not do this. There must be parameters around the length of tenancy before a tenant can qualify for relocation assistance. Otherwise, people can just game the system, move in, become a terror to their neighbors, and a tremendous headache to the landlord, basically inviting a no cause eviction and a payout. This unintended consequence negatively impacts the staff's recommendations for relocation benefits. As well as their definitions for no cause evictions. This unintended consequence can be easily remedied with more discussion among the stakeholders. The staff report is big, although it's not thorough as it relates to the negative consequences of these recommendations on landlords. The devil is always in the details and in this case, the details. The staff recommendations were only released to us one week ago. One week is not enough time to review these and provide quality input. Thank you. Good evening, Vice Mayor Andrews. Mayor Garcia and members of the City Council. My name is Elaine Hutchison and my address is on file. I'm here tonight on behalf of Small Property Owners Alliance and the Apartment Association of California's Southern Cities. Thank you for this opportunity to comment. As you know, at the time the city council requests this study, large investors came. To Long Beach and displaced tenants in larger buildings. It was not the small owners, the long term owners who are committed to this city and have invested in this community for many years and who also care for their residents. We ask that your decision not penalize these owners. We remind that. It is us, the small. Owners, who carry the burden of the vast majority of affordable housing in Long Beach also, and that rental. Costs in Long Beach are the lowest of all the beach cities up and down the coast. We thank Mayor Garcia for his. Hard work to make Long Beach so desirable. But we ask that your honorable council will not bring hardships to those who did not cause the problem. The small. Property owner. Thank you. Honorable Vice Mayor and council people, thank you for the opportunity to talk to you today. And my name is David Clement. I have lived here almost 20 years. I have invested in real estate here and lived in each of my units and fixed up each of my units. And I've only had to evict or ask people to leave three times. My rents are low. I've got a lot of sweat equity invested here in Long Beach, and to me this is another tax and I really don't appreciate this form of it seems like rent control to me. So I'd like to ask you to please consider not passing this ordinance. Please stay out of my business. Thank you. Yes. My name is Christopher. I'm loving how seniors are being given consideration. I really like that. I'm also a veteran. I'm also disabled. So I'm very appreciative of that. But also but I know we're not going to touch on the subject of just cause evictions, because what I'm fearful of and I'm not talking about these good people here. But what about those people who are going to try to just evict people by misuse of just cause? Are you going to scrutinize that? Why not put this on a limit of how many units before you can ask these hardworking people to pay perhaps $7,000? Why not have it? Commercial property only? I think there's a balance between the two. That's right. Thank you. Honorable City Council Mayor. My name is Dave Burris. With regards to the relocation costs, to quote Adolf Hitler in his book, Mein Kampf, National Socialism and Marxism is one in the same thing. End quote. To pursue such an agenda as this, which interrupts a free market, is to do exactly the same thing which Adolf Hitler did prior to World War Two. This is nothing more than communism and Nazi control. Incognito. To interfere with the free market is the beginning of National Socialism, a.k.a. Nazi ism, where the government dictates all. What I'm saying is people who are willing to pay for rent determine the free market. It is not the other way around. The big lie, which is said often that. Landlords price people in the community with high rents that is so far from the truth and false. The free market is simply. Is willing to pay in exchange for services. If the price is too high, they walk away. There has to be an equal medium to which a tenant wishes to pay. This determines the free market. Example I'm renting a unit for 2000. I get no phone calls, so I lower to where somebody agrees for that price. That's the free market. Stop interfering with the free market and please leave it alone. Thank you. Hi. My name is Rob. I've lived in Long Beach for several years. I grew up in, I believe it was the eighth district. My dad went to Polly. My grandpa went to Jordan. I've been in the real estate business a long time and I owned several rental properties in several districts. From what I found in my experience is it's good. Business to be fair to your tenants. And we don't need the extra regulations and oversights from people who have never been a landlord and just don't understand what it's like to provide housing. But I really sympathize with the people who spoke earlier in the wheelchair who couldn't find a place to live and. I have a situation where I currently live in a building that I would love to rent it out to a homeless person, a veteran, or someone in a wheelchair. There's a there's no steps. There's an elevator, you know, all these things. And I'm going to be moving out of the city for about a year. And I would love to rent this unit to one of these people and make it easier. But due to these kind of regulations that you guys are proposing, I can't do that. And so I will be taking that particular property out of the rental housing stock. And I'm not going to rent it. I'm going to sell it. And these people will have a harder time finding somewhere to live. Okay. Thank you. Good evening. My name is and I can say. I am a tenant. I'm a renter and. I'm a taxpayer surprise. And I'm also a laborer. You know, I understand the conversations about sweat equity, but collecting a check in the mail from places that you haven't gone to in years doesn't make you a laborer or a hard worker. It's makes you someone that collects money, much like the IRS or, you know, anyone, anyone else that you know sits. Anyways, I didn't ever really expect that. I'll be hearing quotes from mine company at a city council meeting, especially incorrect quotes. You know, the Nazi Party was a big advocates of social welfare and state public housing and state ownership of public housing. You should probably do some more reading. But that being said, I think city staff for the recommendations that they've given tonight, I think option one is the the best for what is available here. I think option one is the best recommenda tion. That would be the one that I would like to be see come into existence. Me personally, I live under a mom and pop property owner and I have a great situation with him. But perhaps Kenny is not a small business. Berkshire Hathaway is not a small business. It's really weird to hear corporations using small business owners and mom and pop providers as masquerading as them when they are corporations with thousands of units that they own. Thank you. Good evening. Mayor Garcia and our honorable council members. My name is Kevin Shinn. I am District seven resident. And I also happened to have the good fortune to be a landlord, albeit in a different municipality, in the jurisdiction where we. Are, where my wife and I are. Landlords. We needed to obtain a business license and certify that we meet basic standards of habitability. So the requirements that are already in place here in Long Beach and in California are significantly lower than they are in many other places. Around around the country. Some of the rules that have been proposed, the four plex rule and seems completely arbitrary. Why not base. That on something like the number of units owned? Because you can have multiple for plex's, so why not base it on a requirement that actually makes sense. Also, the 10% increase is too high. The Consumer Price Index in February of 2019 went up 2.5%. Real wage growth from February 2018 through February of 2019 was only 2.2%. 10% is only going to significantly increase and widen the gap between the cost of housing and what people can actually afford. Our residents are being pushed out. Families are leaving because they can no longer afford rising rents, and yet we do nothing to help them. So let's take action to help our most vulnerable residents. And my last my parting thought for you is landlords need not. We are all. To be a landlord is a privilege and a responsibility. We landlords cannot forget that we have a responsibility to our tenants to keep people in their homes. Thank you, Mr. Shin. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Alex. I'm an attorney with the Legal Aid Foundation here in Long Beach. And I have done housing both here in L.A. and Compton and Inglewood. I just wanted to quickly touch upon some technical issues in the ordinance. I just wanted to make sure that the Council is aware that regarding component one A, it should read one or more notices totaling 10%. That way we can cover some loopholes that we should revise component one be to make sure that it aligns with state law. That regarding component two, we want to make sure that it includes a private right of action and an affirmative defense to an eviction. If not, this or this ordinance has no teeth and there's no way to enforce it, especially if the city is not going to put its own enforcement behind it. We need to give tenants the ability to fight for these rights. I also want to say that there should be a timeline for relocation that should be specified in the ordinance.

And lastly, I want to talk about the tenants that I see on a daily basis here in Long Beach, our offices on Sixth and Pacific. They all are not only low income, but they find two, three groups that they're either elderly. There are families with kids, are there disabled. And I see them every day come in and say, I get a 30 I have a 30 day notice or a 60 day notice. I don't understand why I have to leave when I did absolutely nothing wrong. Most, if not all, are facing a landlord on the other side that is small. And so I just want to make sure that option one not only is a clear the easiest way, but that it's necessary. Thank you, sir. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. My name is Christine Pettit. I'm a sixth District resident executive director. Of Long Beach Forward and a member of Everyone Home, Long Beach. Long Beach Forward is proud to stand alongside renters and their allies in calling on you to pass a strong tenant relocation assistance policy to help prevent more people and families from falling into homelessness. We are grateful for the hard work of city staff in putting. These recommendations before. You. They are the result of extensive stakeholder engagement and rigorous research. We are happy to see options presented by staff that would make significant. Progress toward keeping people in their homes. Additionally, I submitted a letter on behalf of myself and 13 other everyone Home Task Force Members on a tight turnaround that emphasized the following regarding component one, we strongly support both triggers for. Relocation assistance and specifically the trigger of a 10% total rent increase in any 12 month period. A 10% rent increase over the course of a year is unaffordable to most folks, actually, especially the populations we work with under a applicability requirement. Options Option one is the best choice for preventing homelessness. Option one's relocation assistance amounts are closer than any other option to making a family whole. When considering the enormous financial burden caused by moving, it is also the most straightforward, understandable and easiest to monitor and. Enforce the option because it applies most broadly. Option one provides the largest safeguard against residents falling into homelessness for our community. As time. Is of the essence, we urge you to pass a strong. Policy tonight. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Thank you, Mayor Garcia. City Council. I'm Luther Richert, chief services officer for Mental Health America. I just want to say Long Beach is a great place to live and work. We enjoy an incredible quality of life here. One of the biggest threats to our quality of life here is homelessness. And the harsh reality is that many people who. Lose their apartment, there's a. Straight line to the streets. I feel blessed to be in a city where we have a mayor and a city council that take homelessness seriously and are investing in affordable housing and investing in policies that will not let it reduce the quality of life here. This is part of those efforts. This is homeless prevention, and it's also a very affordable and efficient form of homeless prevention. And I also think it's a win win for many landlords. It is called tenant relocation assistance. So it helps landlords not be back in a corner when they're. Dealing with a good person. And they want a good outcome for them. So I thank you for this opportunity. I thank you for this win win policy and strongly support it. Thank you. Next week. Courtesy of architect. I have been involved as an architect in affordable housing for over 35 years, both as well as a renter, as a small landlord and as an advocate for tenant rights. I am hearing some sort of disturbing things. I'm not here to represent one side or the other, but I have a question for you. Depending on how the council votes, the result may affect more of the mom and pop landlords. The end result of which is that these landlords may be obligated to sell. To whom? To the developers who can afford to tear down their small buildings and build really large buildings with luxury apartments that that are costing now in excess of 20 $500 for a small studio or a single. So many of these big landlords are coming from from out of town. Like somebody said from the 714 area code. So the real problem is that that I see is that there's a deficit of 20 to 28000 affordable housing units in Long Beach as identified by staff. And at the rate that affordable housing is getting built, it's going to take about 150 years. So that is where the real problem is. It's not tenant relocation. It's not it's not doing any of these other things. Let's build affordable housing at the rate at which it's required so that we can meet. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, councilman and staff. My name is Peter Madsen, nearly a lifelong resident of the third district, an organizer with Long Beach residents empowered representing some of the folks who had to leave early because some of these meetings can be a bit inaccessible for seniors, people who work, people have families. So I'm speaking on their behalf tonight. I want to thank everyone for all the hard work that went into the report and to all the community meetings and in support of Option one tonight. For a few reasons, the flat fee is the most equitable way to provide assistance to displaced tenants. It's broad and simple applicability compared to the other options reduces the burden of monitoring and enforcement on the city staff and does the most to actually achieve what renter protection policy should do. Prevent homelessness by keeping people in their homes and preserving the communities that make up our beloved, diverse city. I appreciate the attention paid to seniors and disabled folks. I'd like to see the extra recommendations be expanded while still protecting the set aside for the seniors. And I'm encouraged by the recommendation to es tablish more communication with HUD. But I would. I'm looking forward to future conversations where we can, as a city, offer more protections to them to prevent any oversights and for cases where they might otherwise qualify for relocation assistance as residents of HUD buildings. And I also want to note that this isn't to the good landlords taking care of good tenants. I urge you to really read the policy and and see that there's still the protections in there for you, too. To do that well. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, mayor and council members. My name is Ailsa Chang, seventh district resident and also a landlord in another city with much. Stronger tenant protections than than Long Beach. And I'm. Here to say, as a landlord, the. Sky hasn't fallen. I'm doing just fine. But this isn't about me. This is about our thousands of neighbors. The majority of our city's residents who are at risk of falling into homelessness tonight is about taking. Action to keep people in homes. And off the streets. I'm here tonight representing Long Beach Forward, which has been working alongside Long Beach residents. Empowered housing, Long Beach, the Legal Aid Foundation and many others to strongly support this tenant relocation assistance policy. A huge thank you. To the city staff and to the mayor and council for your leadership in bringing this policy forward. First off, Long Beach Forward emphatically supports. The staff recommended trigger of a. 10% total rent increase. 10% is more than reasonable given that no other regular cost cost of living, property taxes, insurance, cost of construction comes even close to 10%. Annual growth. In terms of equity applicability, we strongly support option one as. The cleanest, simplest, fairest. Option. And Option two. However, we do have. Serious concerns about two months rent simply does not cover. The huge financial. Burden of moving. Secondly, paying. Relocation by zip code would create an unfair advantage. To those who. Live in higher priced neighborhoods of. The city. Third option two excludes duplex and triplex buildings, which. Does nothing to support. Truly small mom and pop landlords who. Own only one, two or three units, no matter the size and shape. Thank you very much. Thank you, counsel. And please pass ordinance to prevent homeless. Thank you very. Much. Next speaker, please. My name is Mia and I have lived in Long Beach for 18 years. Last year, me and my mom started renting an apartment here in Long Beach. We have been in there for one year, one year and I haven't seen that. I have seen the rent go up three times, three times in one year, hired in 10% US tenants. We are the true hard workers and we are the people who are living here in Long Beach. I support Option one and want to thank. All of the staff on your hard work. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Malika. I'm currently ex-Soviet student and I appreciate you all considering such a complex, complex and serious issue both here in Long Beach and throughout our country. I would like to acknowledge something from my own studies and what I've heard from the room today. I would like to acknowledge that the inclusion of elderly, family and disability disabled people is vital to the discussion that also valued community members and deserve their voices heard. I would like to add a little bit of perspective from one student who has been a renter, as I cannot speak for all. According to the report issued by CSU, officials believe that nearly 11% of students of the 23 campus systems are either homeless or have experienced some form of homelessness during their college career. As many feel strongly about this issue today, I would like to acknowledge that we consider that some people are talking about losing property, while others are talking about losing livelihood and ultimately autonomy as the majority of the citizens who live in the city. Conclusively, I support option one. Thank you so much. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Mr. Mayor and members of the City Council. Thank you so much for allowing me to speak this evening. My name is Matt Beatty. I'm a life long member of the Long Beach community and I'm active in my community. I'm a provider of real estate services here in Long Beach, and the energy and growth that we've experienced in the last five years is palpable. We are on the brink of something truly remarkable. There are hundreds of millions of dollars of investment money that are flowing into our city as we speak. Not all major developments, but duplexes and triplexes as well. As you said, most of these buildings are being turned over their Class C properties. They have deferred maintenance, poor living conditions and as a result are a blemish on our. Own, our city. These investors are coming into our city in droves right now, increasing tax revenue through reassessment and beautifying our neighborhoods through renovation. If we pass these ordinances that discourage this investment, those investors are going elsewhere and they're leaving with their investment dollars. This means instead of our investors beautifying our classy properties in desperate neighborhoods, those properties will continue to slump. The blemishes will remain in our city, will miss this incredible wave of growth that will forever improve our city and our lives. Let's incentivize growth and not discourage it. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. 1/2, Mr.. Mr.. Wright. I know I want to make sure I know. The farmer also is trying to get folks in that are outs that are currently outside. If you've already spoken and you can help kind of fill in on this side. So I know that he's trying to put in folks in the first few rows. If you've already if you've already had a chance to speak and you're in one of the first few rows on this side, if you can just fill in the rest of of the auditorium on this side, that would be

folks in this that haven't had a chance to speak yet. If you check, if you already spoke on this side, we do have some seniors and. Seat. And so if you can help fill in that, if you're on the front section and you've already had a chance to speak. Let's let some of these folks come in and have a chance to sit down. Please continue. My name is Juan Elvira. I've been a provider of housing since 1997, mainly Class C properties. So again, good evening, dear neighbors and Council members. Before we contemplate any such ideas, a tenant relocation fee list, first look at the reality. Local small property owners do not haphazardly evict tenants. Most small property owners, however, are hard working family owned businesses that rely on the income of rental properties to provide the tenants housing, as well as to sustain their livelihood and provide jobs. Many of these small property owners did not wake up one morning with units. They had to work hard for them. They had to work diligently and save money for years. So just like I did. So rather than picking on the low lying Fruit Council members focus on the big picture. Focus on the housing shortage from a holistic perspective rather than a myopic view. Again, what you are proposing and other such failed attempts go to the heart of the small business owner. What you are doing is marginalizing them and opening up a door for wider for a greater Wal-Mart discussion of the real estate market. What we what that will eventually be owned by less and less by small business people and more and more by large developers and national corporations covering up a failure on the city's part to actively address the issue of housing. Yet a housing shortage goes to the real intent of the current. Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you. Thanks, speaker, please. Hi. My name is Kevin Yeager, CD2 and a member of the Democratic Socialists of America. I just want to turn this whole conversation back to housing stability and the societal cost of these rampant evictions we're seeing. It's across the city. We're seeing destabilized neighborhoods, entire gender, generations of people being displaced. And one of the tenant is evicted with no no support structure behind them. They have the chance of moving directly into homelessness, which everyone here is on the same page, that homelessness is an issue in this city. So what's happening is these corporate landlords are evicting tenants and placing that cost of the eviction in terms of public safety cost or just the cost of caring for these people onto the public. And we've heard from a lot of, you know, mom and pop landlords who say they are not evicting their tenants haphazardly or don't raise the rents over 10% so they wouldn't be affected by this policy. So I don't understand why t hey are trying to keep us. You know, they're even complaining about the private equity landlords who are sweeping in and buying up all this property. Well, this policy is designed to hold those corporate landlords accountable. Some of those corporate landlords might have, you know, a portfolio of duplexes. So we definitely don't want to leave all that. That's arbitrary for Plex rule. Lastly, I would just say that this the city staff has wrote a 260 page policy. These conversations have been going on for years. There's been ample stakeholder input on both sides and the city council needs to take action today. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Tamara, district two and I support option one. Thanks. Great. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello. Hello. My name is Adrian Reyes and I am not a resident of Long Beach, but I come from the 714 area code, so I would just like to say hello to all my neighbors here, all the landlords from the 714. I thought this was a Long Beach City Council meeting, not an Orange County City Council meeting. And I keep on hearing that there are a whole bunch of struggling landlords, but these are my neighbors and the lowest homes, they're all homeowners, the lowest. What the average homes are going for in this area are 700,000. So these struggling small time landowners are living in homes ranging anywhere from 700000 to 1.2 million. So all I want to say is that the people that are in this room right now are not representative of the people in Long Beach. There's this room. This room is heavily. No, actually, no, guys. Hey, actually, you'll be asked to leave if we do that. Everyone has a right to say their time, and you get it. You get a few more seconds for making an announcement. So please, everyone, give them another respect. Thank you. Thank you, Mr.. Um. So all I say is that the people in this room are not representative of the Long Beach. And I urge that if more people from outside can come in, or if they have a time to come in, you would see that the real workers, the real laborers, the people that put the sweat, sweat and all their work into the city of Long Beach are outside. And it's mostly the black and brown community out there. So I hope they can come in later to speak. So all I support is option one, please. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi, my name is Jacqueline Case. I am. I used to be a renter. I'm a homeowner now with my wife. I also was a renter and did have landlords that weren't always necessarily positive. So I will commend you as far as some of them didn't come in, check up on our home that

mment about my company and my broker and the people I work for really do care about the community. We are all about education and about working in our community. But I also want to make a comment too that we do have 50 we have more renters in our community. So, I mean, as a realtor, I have to know all these things. And so this is not a fun this is hard for both worlds. And so as a realtor, I want to support, you know, some of my landlords that are mom and pops or not even mom and pops. But they do have for, you know, for units and that this may affect them. I also want to support some of my family members that are homeless and they will not even take any help from me. And I'm a realtor, you know, I work with there's so I sit on both sides and it's really difficult. And so to find a medium is going to be hard. But I appreciate everybody coming to the table and and doing their due diligence. And I think we still have more to do. You very much next speaker, please. My name is Bill Laurel. I talk shows. I'll try not to waste a lot of time praising you guys like your first speaker, Mr. Stephen did. Anyway, I've been building here. I did my first project, 1959. I've been developing here on and off ever since. And I'm still a developer. And I want to remind you guys that when we as developers buy this property. A rent increase. We have all improved our property and made. It not a place to live. And all these people that have got up and told us sad stories. Jeff, I sympathize with them, but I want you to keep in mind that it is people like me that come out and buy these buildings and remodel them and everything is what makes this thing keep going is not there. And anyway, rent control, you say it's not rent control. It needn't about rent control, but it is all tied together. Rent control does not work in any city words. What? I hope you don't try to put this do. Thank you. Thank you, Nick Speaker. No. Good evening, Honorable Mayor and Council. My name is Diana Wences and I'm a. Beach residents and powered a housing. Justice organization in the city as a formerly displaced tenant and an organizer who works directly with senior living. In affordable seniors, living in affordable housing. I want to encourage you to adopt the strongest version of the Tenant Relocation Assistance Ordinance, which is option one. I want to thank the city staff for the hard work they have put into coming up with these options. And I would like to ask that you vote on the option with the broadest protections. One that is simple to implement and prioritizes the most vulnerable in our community. You know, having to move out is a difficult process. And we see tenants go through this every day. This ordinance could alleviate a major burden for tenants. And in my case, we lost a lot of essentials from our home because we couldn't afford to relocate those items. And lever we have been able to support is in a variety of ways. And a lot of those times you have also been supportive of tha t when buildings have been bought out. Unfortunately, many other tenants have to engage, engage in their fights alone. And this ordinance provides a real opportunity to keep families, seniors and disabled tenants in homes, calm homelessness and activate real solutions. Lastly, I just want to remind everybody that the options on the table are in regards to tenant relocation assistance, though you might hear that very money is confused with rent control. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Honorable Mayor and Council. My name is Manuel Martinez and I am a resident and renter. In District two. I'm here in support of a realistic relocation assistance program that is fair to all the renters in Long Beach. As a human resource professional, I believe this relocation assistance program is very similar to the benefits to help those who have recently lost jobs. These benefits are there in assistance to help people remain somewhat financially stable during this unexpected transition. A relocation a relocation assistance program would be helpful in a similar way. As renters, we are at a disadvantage in our communities. As you can see tonight, landlords can charge whatever amount they want because they know someone will be desperate enough to pay it. Many of us have lived here for many years and have established community ties and we want to stay here in Long Beach. I love Long Beach. I love my community. I don't want members of my community, especially those who are living paycheck to paycheck or on a fixed income, to run the risk of becoming homeless because they don't have enough money to pay for their first month last month rent, security, deposit and other fees associated. With having to. Relocate. For these reasons, please choose option one of the staff report because it's the most fair to all the renters in Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Gretchen Swanson District. I know a couple of things. One is I live in a neighborhood rose park that's 80% redder. So when all this turmoil has gone on, those are my neighbors that are being moved out for all of this, these new properties, a new property owners coming in. But what my expertise is in my doctoral work is in frailty, resettlement and keeping the frail elder in the in their home, in the community. I've spent a lot of years in that. I spend time every day here in the city of Long Beach, stabilizing the frail elderly in their homes. One thing that is true is that the frail don't relocate well. They don't relocate at all. So when you think about this and there's a lot of landlord versus tenant issues here outside of my scope. My scope is understanding what it will take to stabilize a frail, elderly person in their home. They cannot move. So I'm for option one because of its inclusivity. But I ask you to look towards in your thinking the calls for service from our paramedics, because they are helping those older adults who are no t stable in their homes. I'd ask you to look at discharge planners. There's no place for people to move when they've been admitted because their health status is unstable, because their housing is unstable, there's no place for them to be discharged to various places in nursing homes. So please. Thank you for that. Thank you. Thank. Good evening. My name is Holly Stewart. I live in a Walker's building over here a couple of blocks. And so, therefore, I'm a loft owner and an investor in this city. And I'm going to try and make this fairly quick. I supported option one because just like the last speaker, it provides a way for many people with disabilities and other problems, as well as low income renters to stay in a place. And I think we have a responsibility, I mean, all of you and all of us, to realize that we're our children's future. And when we see families put out because of rent increases and things like that, then we see children whose best future begins to drop down, especially when there's more and more rental evictions and things like that that happen because people can't afford it. You are working to do something here, a place for children to grow up with stability and education, with stability, with families and free excuse me, friends and the other children to live with so that we can have a society where we develop better all the time. And landlords can help do this. Tennis can help do this. You can help do this. But it means making that commitment to the idea that, yes, we want a stable and perhaps growing, but also a stable city where people can go on with their life without worrying every month about getting put out. Being in the Walker building and I see old people being evicted almost every month, not from our building, but from near the closed west side. I see women with children there not knowing where they're going to go. These are important issues. Go for option number one and let's build a better society. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and city council. That's a hard one to follow. You have a very difficult decision to make tonight. I'm Ray Gavel from the eighth district. You know, I moved here in 1967 and my rent was $85 a month. And I moved up every month or every year when I could move into something that that was a maybe a nicer place to live that I could afford to live in. So I think that's something that we keep forgetting to think about in this process. We are becoming gentrified. That's not necessarily a good thing. But for instance, D in your district, you are doing some amazing building that is serving seniors and disabled. And I really respect you for that. But you also have a very large portion of your district that probably have terrible landlords. You know, there's a lot of crime. There's a lot of poverty down there. And those people need your help. I think that having a greater program that addresses those landlords or those property owners that are not maintaining their build ings, that are not keeping them safe for people, should be addressed. And Lina, I think you probably face you're probably second in the district, in the city through for your district, realizing the same issues for people that live in poverty. My concern is for seniors and people that are disabled. And I see that one of these things, one of the things that could happen here is if you pass this, is that people may just decide not to rent to those two populations. Thank you very much. We don't want that to happen. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Mayor, city council members. A pig wearing lipstick is still a pig and this is still run control. You know, I had something that I wanted to I wrote out before I came here, but listening to the three plans up there, there are unintended consequences. There's actions I'm going to take that I wouldn't normally take. Now, I've been a landlord for over 33 years here in Long Beach. I have a duplex in Belmont Heights, each one bedroom, and I'm charging 1100 dollars a month, also providing them laundry service. They launched free and in a garage. With that 1100 dollars, I need to raise their rent. Their rent? I think the average here is something. Like. 1543. I need to raise their rent. What I've learned tonight is.

Brandt over 9%. So I can game the system. These are the unintended consequences on all three of those options you've been taken. Do not. Do not rent to seniors. God bless them. But I don't want to I just don't want to do that as a landlord. If it's going to hurt me or my children, I will not work with tenants who are late with rent. Right now. I've got someone whose rent but late with rent, but I'm not going to work with them anymore. I'm going to evict them. I will not rent to anyone whose FICO score is below 700. Thank you very much, sir. Next, before I got more. Thank you. Next speaker, please, guys. Let's make sure everyone let's just let everyone speak. Thank you. Boy. Hot topic. Linda Sopo. Fifth district. My address is on file, boys. Try and say what you want to say in 90 seconds is tough. But I. Think one of the things that's so difficult about all this is that we're all. Human beings in this room. And there's an emotional component on all sides. For those that are being evicted and that. Have had people come in and buy your. Buildings up and are, you know, raising rents to a point. That you can't afford it. My heart bleeds because. I. Can't afford to take care of you or help you in that way. But for those of us that are home, that are property owners. I don't know anybody here. Someone talked about all the hard work and hard swear. I'm sorry. I may not have to physically go out and labor, but I have in my lifetime had to do that. And I worked really hard to get to a point where I didn't have to do that. And I worked really hard. My husband and I sacrificed a lot to be able to own a rental property. Okay. And what I want to say to all those people out there that are property owners, that are landlords. How many of you have a really great positive cash flow on a property that you bought. Within the last ten years? Okay. How many of you have a positive cash flow. And you've owned it 25 years. Okay. So how are you going to be able to afford to evict somebody if they play the game and they game this thing and you got to pay them a ton of money to move out or if you want to go in and do some renovation. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. My name is Nadir Tushnet. I live in the third district and I'm glad that this is on the table. I want to make a couple of comments that seniors, of which I am. One, and the disabled are protected class under. Housing regulations for the U.S. so you can't refuse to rent to us. The other point I want to make. Is that relocation assistance is particularly important for two groups of people, seniors and people with young children. Both groups, if they are displaced, have long term effects on schooling. This is all from research. I'll send it to you if you want it on their on their school achievement. And for seniors. On their longevity, actually. Moving kills seniors. They that breaks their ties with the community. So relocation assistance is important. And the last thing to emphasize is not that number, which seems very abstract. It is first. Last and security deposit. That's a lot of money for. Somebody living on Social Security. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hi. My name is Zoe Nicholson. I live in Rose Park. I'm a renter. My self-appointed task is always to ask where the women. I want you to know that I have sat here all these hours and how this is the first person to say. The word woman out loud. It's not in a chart. Wasn't in the data. Today is April 2nd. April 2nd is known as Equal Pay Day. It took till April 2nd for a white woman to earn what a white man earned in 2018. It took her three more months. For a black woman. It took 20. Months. For a Latina. It took 21 months to make what a white man made in 2018. So when you're looking at first and last and deposit and I hear us talking about all people as if they are the same, our people are not the same. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mr. Mayor. Members of the Council Andy Cur from District eight and Measure H Oversight Board. I have been speaking to you and writing to you for quite some time about the housing crisis and the problem of homelessness. As you know, tonight, you have the opportunity to do something that will have an impact on the people house today who will not have a home tomorrow without your support of a strong policy protecting renters in our community. That's an awesome responsibility and really excited about the opportunity tonight. I have spoke to you and written to you about housing supply and affordable housing development. We need those solutions, but they will not materialize anytime soon for young families, for people who are chronically ill and dis abled and folks just trying to get by today. I have been blessed to be a homeowner almost 23 years. If I were a young man paying rent and trying to support a family today, there's no way. That I could afford to save a down payment. Yet alone the cost of displacement from rising rents and forced mobility placed on people today. I want Young Long Beach's to have the same opportunities I did. I strongly support Option one and the strongest protections possible for folks struggling in our community today. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Thank you, counsel. My name is Jordan Wayne. I'm a resident of the seventh District. I first want to recognize the renters who are out. Can or third job tonight in order to afford their rent here in Long Beach. I'd like to thank the council. Thank you so much for bringing this forward and I strongly encourage you to pass this at its full power. Option one. Renters have endured tough conditions like gentrification and displacement for. A long time in Long Beach, and I'm glad that we are taking a step as a city. I also want to thank Tom Modica and reiterate his point that this is not a rent control policy and has nothing to do with it whatsoever. Let's make that clear. This is an anti gouging measure. If you're like the landlords with the heart that were described earlier that you don't raise your rents more than $50. You literally won't be affected by this ordinance. This is an anti price gouging measure. We must listen to people over profit. Tenants are not the enemies as much as the horror stories of some people here tonight may want you to believe we're just trying to survive. This ordinance applies specifically to residents who are responsible renters. Each year, each of you as as residents who have come forward with extreme ends. Half of the families in our city that's over 250,000 people are cost burdened by housing. And rents have risen 28%, not 2.8% over the past eight years. A one bedroom apartment cost about 5000 dollars. I can't move out of my own house, my own family's house. Thank you once again for bringing this item forward. And I encourage you to pass this relocation assistance item and the other recommendations at their full power option one. This is the first step in creating a long beach where everyone has a roof over their head and we need more supportive housing and affordable housing as well. And we need substantial rental protections that match the leadership of other large municipalities in California. Thank you very much. Thank you. And thank you very much. And before the next speaker, again, just a reminder that we do have these speakers right in front of us. So please talk right into the mic is just enough just for us to get to get the information. So it's happened a few times tonight and we can you know, I understand everyone's passionate, but we can hear just fine. Next speaker. Please. My name is Amy York, I. But thank you. But we do need you to speak right into the spe aker. Thank you. Just right. Just. Yeah, thank. You. Did you hear? My name is Amy Burke. I live in the seventh district. I live in a rear house behind a duplex and would therefore be excluded from relocation assistance. I think the reasons for the exclusion should be reevaluated, evaluated. There are there are other cities that provide relocation to all units, regardless of size. And I believe Long Beach should do the same. I've experienced a retaliatory eviction in the past and my only recourse with small claims. Court Although the judge decided in my favor he only awarded $1,000 in moving expenses and $200 in punitive damages a fraction of what I asked for in a drop in the bucket for him. State law and small claims court is not an adequate remedy for retaliatory actions, and relocation assistance should be available again to all renters evicted for no fault and could also act as a deterrent to evicting tenants without cause and without protections. I fear asserting a legal right or complained because I risk another retaliatory eviction or major rent increase and I can't afford it, basically. So I just have to. It. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Honorable Mayor Garcia and members of the City Council. My name is Sully Zoro and I'm a sixth district resident and I'm a renter. And I want to thank the staff on their hard work at Development Services for this awesome report. And I also want to thank our Fire Marshal John here for keeping us in order and making sure we all get to speak. And so I really think that this tenant relocation assistance ordinance is a good start to prevent people from becoming homeless. Cambodian community leaders, including myself, co-chairs of the Cambodia Equity for Cambodians and other leaders, encourage you to pass a strong tenant relocation policy. Cambodians make up a large percentage of Long Beach renters population, according to a report by the Cambodian Advocacy Collaborative. Three quarters of the Cambodian community are renters, a rate 15% higher than the average in Long Beach. I urge you to please support component one, option one and other recommendation to make this the strongest policy possible to protecting not only just renters, but we're also consumers. If you're a good landlord, I want to thank you. Thank you for being a good landlord. But I really want to encourage you. I know you're busy, but please make sure you read the ordinance and see that it's protecting vulnerable renters and that it's an anti gouging bill ordinance. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Um, Mayor Garcia and council members. Most of you have seen me in events. My name is Adele, a single mother. I'm with Lina before in district one for seven years I got an I'm not is like 60 days notice the move with no costs and I'm a model tenant where I live and I had a hard time looking for a place. Three days before my voucher for Section eight expires. I found a place where I'll ask, they're not a d istrict. I'm with him right now and it's a good, good area. And I love going to the events, especially at Michelle Obama Library. And I beg of you to have the Tenant Relocation Assistance Ordinance because I have to rent a U-Haul. I exhaust all my funds through credit checks for me and my son, which cost me a lot of money for looking for a place for three months. And I'm a single mom, I'm disabled and it's really hard with no relocation assistance. So I beg of you to pass it, please. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. Council honorable mayor. My name is Tanya Cardoza. I'm an attorney. I'm a landlord. Tenant attorney in the city. I have a small law firm across the street. I represent several landlords in this room, as well as throughout the city and throughout Southern California. I am an expert in rent control. My clients are in the business of housing people. Not in the business of evicting people. When they come to me. It is a last resort. What the proposal is today. Is rent control. It is also for forcing just cause evictions. This is absolutely. Requiring just cause evictions and potentially contradicting the Costa Rican State Act. Which limits rent control and just cause. Evictions to any properties built before 1995. I would urge the Council to reconsider including that in the proposal. Furthermore. It is rent control. When you put penalties on a rent cap, when you put a rent cap and then insist that there be some kind of a penalty to insist on on. Specific just cause evictions. You are. Forcing a landlord to engage in needless litigation costs. Where you are forcing somebody to give. A three day notice. For. I saw dog fighting. Or all sorts of illegal activity versus giving. Somebody 30 or 60 days notice. That is 10 to 20 times the amount of. Notice they need is impossible. It is difficult. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Josh Butler. I could director of housing on Beach. While I was sitting here, I looked at Costar and you can see apartment buildings for sale that are all in excess of $2 million sales. So we were talking about $7,000 per unit. It's a very nominal cost that gets built into the sale. They all know that. They won't tell you. They all know that. I want to thank Mr. Mayor, the members of the City Council and staff for their hard work on this issue, especially our efforts to pull together those of us that have been on different sides of this issue. We learned that landlords and realtors will not even support the most modest of proposals. They will not help to find solutions. And in fact, they will not recognize that we are in a housing catastrophe. Why would they? They've been profiting mightily during this time period that those of us who have been renting have been suffering. But the residents in our neighborhoods have paid the price. Our communities deserve stability. I encourage you to vote and support all of component one. People with disabilities need additional assistance and protections. I do believe renters should have more than seven days to decide whether or not they want to exercise the right to stay or go. If the landlords that are wearing stickers say that, say responsible housing providers, I find that ironic when we started this campaign several years ago. We started out for responsible renters ordinance. Well, this is one thing we agree on. If you pay your rent on time, you follow the rules of the lease. You should not lose your home. And if you do, you should get a real relocation assistance so that we, the taxpayers, don't have to pay for all the homeless services out there. For the beach cleanups, thank you to police officers for all the things that keep. Thank you. Thank you very much, Mr. Brown. Nice. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, councilmembers. My name is Fred Sutton. I'm here on behalf of the California Apartment Association. We represent housing providers here in the city, and I'm also a resident. Thank you to the city staff for a very thoughtful report. And Mr. Geary, for all those workshops, we greatly appreciate you and your team. Um, the subjects are incredibly complex, but there's still a fundamental misunderstanding of how rental operations work. The 10% other cities have instituted higher caps prior to bringing them down. Los Angeles. Beverly Hills. They all had higher capital. One point they no longer at 10% or 7% where they were. Under the scenario rent or owner, maybe a below market not raise rent for five years. Gave a 10% increase, and now they're penalized for not giving rents. The city is encouraging people to give small rent increases, not 9%, but two 3%. Why would we encourage housing to become more expensive that will hurt our communities. The city should more narrowly focus relocation toward the issue of rehabilitation. Josh just brought up properties being sold. This is where the issue is that this has been trying to address some buyers of property, fix it up. This should be more narrow and tailored to those issues. Part B rental property owners are not in the eviction business. Termination controls will handcuff rental property owners. Responsible housing providers should not choose between costly litigation or paying off somebody that is a nuisance. I think there are ways forward on this. It should be narrowed to where the issue is and not take all these responsible housing providers into it. Thank you. Thank you. Time. Good evening. My name is Ernie Vila. I am a property owner since 1970 and the first district. Like this says I'm a responsible housing provider. I've been doing it for a long time. Have I always increased the rents? No, because I didn't know. Well, because I didn't have a lot of value back then. But things have changed. When I look at the price of rent now, I see that I'm 25, 30% below market. But is that going to mean I'm going to raise the rent, maybe 50 bucks? I'm I'm very, very sensitive to the needs of my tenants. Actually, no

t. They're mine. They're my neighbors. I have an invested interest in my neighbors, and that includes those who live down the street. Whenever they come to me in regards to a purchase of a building that they live in, I. I sympathize with them, but I can't really say too much aside from maybe helping them understand what is going on and maybe what they can do this this penalty of over 4500. I. I cannot afford that. It's not something that I got into the business of doing. Got in the business of housing. Reasonable, decent tenants. Thank you, sir. Hi. My name is Akilah Pruitt. I'm a young woman who has worked very hard for the two properties that I have. The tenants in my duplex only pay 1575 with no written crease for a three bedroom house with front and back yard. No tenants have. My tenants have been there for 13 years. But with this relocation plan that you're proposing, it makes me feel pressure to convert my properties to a sober living home or other business. I would very much appreciate you letting me be the great landlord that I am without getting involved in my personal business. I would love to buy a Long Beach again, but with this. But this ordinance is unacceptable. I also feel like the rent, the the cost to relocate is ridiculous. I make no profit on my properties, but I love my. Tenants and paying 40 $500 plus $1,000 is just unacceptable. Thank you. Thank you. Ian Patton, Honorable Mayor and Council. I wanted to tell you a little story. My grandparents immigrated to this country in 1949. They were refugees from World War Two. My grandmother was a Holocaust survivor, and both their families were wiped out in the Holocaust. They came to this country with nothing. And my grandfather worked as a house painter. And he went from being a tenant to owning the small six unit building that he lived in. And he worked his hands to the bone. He worked every day for the remainder of his life on that building. In fact, my last memory in 1989, before he died, was him with labored breath working on a unit in our building. I don't think my grandfather was a villain. I think he was a hero. I think he was a housing provider. And and if you and if you deem it necessary to provide social insurance for tenants, that's fine. The burden should not be placed on the backs of the people who stepped forward to provide housing. If you. If you want to implement this policy, do it in an honest way. Social insurance should be paid for by the government. You should have to pay for it. Period. Thank you. Thank you. Good evening. My name is Phil Jones. And I am here on behalf of the Pacific Quest Association of Realtors. I am the chair of the Government Affairs Committee. And I bring that up because in that role, I've had the opportunity to meet each of you, interview each of you when you were looking for our support. You completed a questionnaire in which each and every one of you said you opposed rent control. And my apologies to Mr. Modica, but this is the camel's n ose under the tent. This is the first step to rent control. Part of our part of our discussions during your interview was to inform some of you of the elements of rent control and how unsuccessful it's been. You're hard pressed. To find an economist. On either side of the aisle today that would tell you that these these elements work. They do not work. One of the things that Mr. Modak is report the staff's report left out. They brought up the fact that San Francisco, Los Angeles, Santa monica had the strictest rent control laws. What they didn't say is each one of those communities has seen a diminishment in the number of rental units available. We all appreciate that. This is a statewide crisis, by the way. We're having an affordability crisis not only at the tenant level, but at the homebuyer level. We're not building enough supply. Supply is the answer. None of these restrictions on property owners. Thank you, sir. Hi. My name is Phil Hawkins. I'm the CEO of the Pacific West Association of Realtors. And kind of to piggyback on what Phil Jones was talking about, I enjoyed the beginning of the presentation tonight, seeing the numbers on the on the low vacancy rate that we have in Long Beach. And the problem is supply. We should be talking we should have all these people here talking about supply and how we can get more supply. I would love to have this turnout on both sides on how we can get more supply. That's the answer. Doing what we're doing tonight is not the answer I. When looking at the three different proposals, I don't like any of them. I think we can come up with something better. I think we should spend more time to come up with something better. I think if we all sit down, we could figure this out. We have a House and committee here in Long Beach. Let's send it to that and let's see what we can do to get something better. I would encourage you not to move forward with any of the recommendations. And let's figure this out. Thank you. Thank you, sir. Good evening. My name is Henry Broome. I'm a property owner here in Long Beach. Thank you very much for your time. And I believe that this issue really comes down to being able. To maintain good properties. As a landlord, I've had tenants that have thrown fecal matter to other tenants, have physically assaulted. Other tenants, threatened other tenants with physical violence. Have brought in gang members unauthorized into units. All of those situations we would not the. Only way we. Were able to get rid of those tents. Was by giving them. Notices without cause. If we had to pay them to get to move, there's a good chance they never would have been able to get them to move, to be able to afford to do that. We would not be able to afford the $47,000 fee that we would have had to have made, or if we had to evict them with cause, all the other tenants would have been put in harm's way because then we would have to notify of who the other tenants were. They're reporting this issue as we need to d o that. So I really hope that the Council votes no on this as this is just another form of just cause eviction that will ultimately result in buildings getting worse. And as a result, neighborhoods are getting worse. Thank you. Bless be counsel for I have sinned. I have a 714 number. And you guys really ought to be going after the nine for nine numbers. Those are the guys with the money, let me tell you. And my house is worth about 700 grand. But there's a little concept I'd like to introduce to them called a mortgage. And I have a little concept for these guys. I want to know the studies. Have you done any studies on what it takes to run a building? You know, what a roof cost, you know, a plumbing cost, you know, an electrical cost. You know what I mean? It's on and on. Utilities. What are the utilities doing? You guys ought to know that, right? I mean, for sure. Okay. So the unintended consequences and I was born here. I've been here 60 years, okay? I wouldn't work in 60 to 100 hours a week since I was about 18 years old. So I empathize with your three jobs, but I don't feel sorry for you, man. You got to work, okay? That's how it works. Okay. We've kept rents low in our buildings. We've kept rents very low. We had a single family that we were renting for 1200 a month. When the rent is 2000, a 10% rent increase on 1200 a month is $120. It would take me years to get there. Okay. Unintended consequences is I'm going to have to go back and raise all my rents because they're all low and I don't the gun when I go to sell the property. Thank you, sir. My name is Blanche Harris. I'm a 69 year old senior. And I'm in the sixth District, but I consider myself as well in the seventh. How closely they are related. And how will they work together. So I have adapted and kind of pull from that. Seven districts will. I'm hearing all of the comments about the landlords. The owners. Their empathy, the passion and all of that that they have. But I want to read this to you as of last night. In a has association meeting that I have been attending for several years concerning this topic, and I haven't yet seen this over to my councilman because I don't know how to be computer savvy yet on scanning and all that. But I want to read this. Isabelle. I'm just getting in for my monthly Rigley Association meeting. Being a member of the association, I've never been so disrespected, devalued and humiliated as a citizen and member in the years of attending those meetings. I ask this question to stated that I'm in favor of affordable housing and to explain the definition and a difference. Remember, I'm coming from Ocean Boulevard. I had to read it real quickly. Low income is subsidized housing. I didn't know what that meant. So I can understand and follow the presentation a little bit closely is like I set off a bomb in the midst of it exploded with three prominent and one new member which came against me. It was very humiliating. Thank you very much. So I want to thank the cit y staff, Lina, Janine Pearce. And City. Council. City Council. City staff for pushing bad policies related to rent control and being dishonest with false statistics that are actually harmful to the community. We have success. You have successfully pushed out many mom and pop landlords, many who include minority owners. I am a Hispanic owner and I rent to many low income minorities. Your policies are dishonest and are unjust to the community. I encourage each one of you City Council and staff to give up your pension, part of your pension, to to pay for relocation fees. My name is Marlene Alvarado. I'm a horn over here in Long Beach, but I also own a condo and I am a responsible rent homeowner property owner. First of all, always people who are complaining, who own homes that oh, how much it costs and everything these tenants do. You know what? If you're I know I own a condo and I rent it, I get a depreciation allowance every single time I fix that place up. I get also tax rebates on that. So you're screaming about. Fixing up the

houses. I have had a property for for ten attorneys for ten years. I have not raised their property once. They love me and I, they will never they will not ever leave my property because I pay. I take care of them so well. So why do you care about it's going to cost more money. All this amount. Keep your tenants. Treat them well. They won't leave another thing. Every time we write rent here we get. There are 500 students in Long Beach City and libraries schools that are homeless. Every time you raise rent. You create more homelessness. You need to find a recommendation to it to pay for these these dislocations of people. Because, Tommy, I live in the Willmar District. We've got homeless people who have who are living on the streets. And I have an attorney who has five four people living in an A property because they only can afford. As one room. To pay rent between four people. Excuse me. I think we really need that. And these other people are greedy and what they should be raising is wages. Right. Thank you. Wages. Thank you very much, Mayor and council people. My name is Susan Doan and I'm a 78 year old senior and I've worked my buns off all these years to have what I have. I came here in 64 and started buying real estate with everything that I had. I've had three jobs. I'm a single mom, single grandmother, and I've worked so hard to have what I have. And it seems to me that raising or putting out another fee for us owners who who do spend a lot of money on utilities, on roofing, on everything to keep our properties nice, is just another gouge to us owners. And I urge you to not pass any of this or. To reconsider another. Fee to us. We don't deserve to be punished for supporting the city and the people who want to build and live here. Thank you. Thank you. All right. Okay. Excuse me for you. Start talking. I think everyone is inside the building that's going to speak. You know what? If not, I'm going to close out the spe aking. So. But everybody else in the building that wants to be quiet. So, Mr. Vice Mayor, we believe we have still about 20 people or so outside, but we believe everyone who wants to speak has been inside and they're sitting and they'll be called out by the fire marshals. Thank you. Inside. Okay, go. Excuse me. Hi. My name is Blanca Flores. I live in the ninth district where I live in a complex for 20 years plus was recently sold. And I've been affected not only myself, but my mom. My parents lived there in a unit. My sister lived in a unit. It's a 16 unit complex where we all have been affected with a 60 day notice termination letter. Right now we have till May 19 to just move out. I have no place to go. I have two kids and I'm not the only person in there that has kids. We have 19 kids in that unit. Boy, right now we're really, really concerned where we going to do with our kids? Not only like where we're going to place them. We have no earn money right now. You need like over $4,000 to move to a place. You need deposit, you need rent, first month payments. Some are complex. They ask you for two months rent beforehand. So right now we're really in a situation that we have no idea what to do. This will really you guys really have to consider, you know, our hardworking people. I'm a really hardworking I have never been late in the rent. I have always paid on time. But right now it's a concerning that what am I do with my kids? I'm have to remove them and let them miss a school for a whole month only because I have nowhere else to put them. It's just something that's really concerning in this. If you guys pass past this law, it would really help all of us, not only me, but the people that are coming behind me as well. Thank you. Thank you. Hey. My name's Jen. I'm from a student since you will be a resident of District four. First of all, I want to say that this isn't a rent control policy. So this is a policy for tenant relocation assistance. That being said, someone earlier called this policy tenant welfare. You know, if this was actual tenant welfare, then the city would be paying for it. But it's not. Right. So moving on, if homeowners are complaining, at least the homeowners that have the capital to own more. Than one property are complaining that this baseline solution, quote unquote baseline solution, because it really is minimal, is hurtful to those owners just getting by. Then why don't I see you're fighting in the city for more public housing? Why don't I see all fighting from for rent control shit that will actually help your tenants, you know, instead of instead of letting the city just build more gentrifying sky rises, more expensive condos, etc. like this really is just minimal protections for people who are just trying to get by. I'm here. Talking for people who. Who need baseline solutions like this. We're literally asking for the minimum. I'm looking at the generational wealth that I see and the spirit and the racial disparity less ening between the people who have property and the people who do not. Because, listen here. I don't own property, y'all. In the sixties, we're paying rent for, what, 68 bucks like. Damn, I wish I had that kind of shit right now, so. But that's why I'm here asking for fucking tenant relocation assistance. Y'all need to pass this pass. Pass the ordinance and option number one. Thank you. Thank you very much. Speaker, please hands up to the. Next speaker place. When I mentioned

when I'm president, you'll be walking. In a room which is a member of the ICA Interfaith Community, Django Dresselhaus In response to your travel hummus, Ibrahim was the Leah Leah chick at chicken. Let me put it on, Mayor Lin. I represent an Austrian company that is partner. E protagonist Ross, Rachel's protagonist Ross family ask almost entirely within the order's EBV Enders, but on Maestro Seahorse Crisis, he put forward a point and option or not sexy. Thank you. And we'll do that, guys, please. We're going to do the translation. Good evening. My name is. Konya. I live in District 13. I'm a member of Ikwo Interfaith Community. And I have three children. My husband and I. Work and we live paycheck to paycheck. I ask. Mayor Garcia and. Lina to please represent us, represent our rights for our families so that we can have the benefits of a secure living in. Please support component one. Option one. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Oh, no, not just me. No, but as my Peter is, they have all the component they wanna know it's let me petition for the gig as Familias Trabajadores to be viviendo accessible as important as any color you get. And also we are going to meet on the back in the renter. You get. 1/2 somebody. Templeton's in one of our guys. I just want to make sure that there's no talking. Please, in the audience. If you have to speak, please just go outside. I want to make sure everyone that speaks to us gets a chance to speak. So we're hearing a lot of conversations and not able to hear the speaker. So please continue before what. Is a mute as Amelia is getting, as well as and thus in ordinary Lugares group, Amelia's is the only really spoke more common mother Amelia getting on in Quinta E It was B And think is my whore. Then they don't have to index and accessible. Get familiar to me like I communicate this. Good evening. My name is Maria Dolores. Annette Peter. I live in District one and I am in favor of option one. And what we would like is for you to represent our needs as working families. As working families have done nothing for our families and to have secure living. And we ask you to support us in that. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. But that's not just I mean, a lot of people in D.C. don't know because see. The microphone crashes. Oh. You know, Barbarella. Sorry. But then in Central District owner. So. Bingo. Sorry, I forgot the component. No, no, no. Vivian, the mayor of Abkhazia, then I. Gonzalez okay, let's consider

r personas because almost Deborah Corso is an assistant and it is a local paradox. But I support this role. Look at that, Moses Aluminum. So as I think we're going to see, because Kareem also now, you know, a lot of soap opera sequels. Good evening. My name is Roberto Adela. I live in District one and I'm in favor of component number one. And I'm asking for you to help us out because we don't earn too much money, and it's very difficult for us. Thank you. Which is? Yes. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and council people. Thank you for your time. My name is Malina BALDONADO. I am a resident in District three. And when I moved here to Long Beach, I was a renter. I'll give you a background so you understand where I'm coming from. And when I met my boyfriend, we had a plan. We wanted to purchase a home together. And so stepping away from renting, we moved into literally a garage and a family member's home so we can save and we live below our means. And we were able to buy a condo here in Long Beach. And for five long years we saved and saved and live below our means. And we were able to sell that property and purchase a rental property where we own and rent other units. And so this ordinance would not only affect us, but the people that I serve every single day as a realtor here in this city. And no one's really talked much about this point, but it costs a lot of money when a tenant moves out, whether on their own volition or not. And so as a property owner, to fill that vacancy is already a huge monetary loss to us, and to impose an additional penalty is what it is. On top of that, I would personally suffer, my family would personally suffer and my clients that I serve every single day in this city. I had a client recently sell property. It would have cost them 40 $500 to make that move. And so that would perpetuate this shortage of housing supply that we have. Thank you next week or please. Wayne Zimmerman. I reside in District three, but I grew up in District one. I apologize if I tonight was the first night I've heard of the proposed ordinance, and I'm not real literate on all of the details of it. I did see the presentation as I understand and correct me if I'm wrong, that single residents would be excluded. Okay. So this wouldn't apply to me, this ordinance. But I do feel that I need to say a couple of things. I started planning for my retirement in my twenties. Okay, I'm retired. This my plan involved my rental property here in Long Beach. And I've had my renter my I have two renters in District one. One has been there 22 years. The other 15 years they've stayed there because I've kept my rent low. Okay. And they have saved a huge amount of money over the years. So to reward me by allowing them to save a huge amount of money, by adding a penalty of having to pay

ou very much. Your next speaker, please. Hello. Good evening. My name is A.J. I'm the resident. Of the sixth District. I'm here in support of option one, the relocation assistance. And I'm here representing my family, my friends, my. Neighbors who cannot be here today. Many families are living paycheck to paycheck. My father is 68 years old. And if he works 80 days to 100. Hours a week still, and if rent skyrockets, he will be homeless. And let's think about. The elderly when we're making a. Decision. Let's think about low income families and. Think about others who cannot afford to move out. I support I urge you to support option one. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please, guys. I don't know if someone was hissing or what that was, but please, let's just let everyone have a chance to speak respectfully. Thank you. Hi. My name is Bianca Perez. I am a recent property owner in District two. I became a property owner in 2017 and I grew up in the east side of Long Beach, which is not easy, but I made a decision I'm going to become a property owner. I one of my tenants is Section eight tenant. I have not raised anybody's rent. I'm not making any money off of my property. If you add this burden on me, I'm going to have to sell a place or file bankruptcy. I cannot afford to pay my tenants $4,000 to move out. I worked two jobs to save to buy my property, and I really think that this is what other people should do. You want something? You need to work hard for it because everybody likes something for free and nobody helped me when I was renting. Nobody helped me when I was renting. I did it myself. I worked two jobs and now I'm a property owner. So work hard and you'll be able to reap what you work for. That's. Thank you very much. Next picture, please. Hi. My name is Ivan. I am a resident of District One. First of all, I'll start off by saying I support option one. I say that because I come from a my mother is a single mother and she rents and she's low income. And I have many neighbors who are in the similar situation as she is and when. The properties are raising their prices by raising the rents. These families have very little to no recourse in terms of having money to be able to move out and move into a different property in a timely manner without having to go through homelessness, which is the worst which worst case scenario would be going through that. But also, it's more about having people living dignified lives, you know, I mean, as as many people have said before me. These small these small land landlords don't. This doesn't really apply to them. This is more so the larger landlord, large companies. And so, I mean, 10% a 10% raise doesn't happen very often. But given that it's been occurring a lot lately, it is something that the council ought to be considering and to send it off again. I am in support. Of option one. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Pat Kennedy. I'm a resident of the fifth District. I work with the Greater

Long Beach Interfaith Community Organization. Complements in terms of looking at a good tool here. I think what we all want is stable neighborhoods. I think we want sustainable neighborhoods. I think this is a tool that we could use to help get there. I support option one and I hope we make the step forward. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hello. My name is Cynthia macias and I live in the great district number two and I am a tenant. I also work for housing on which I am the new president of the board. And I just want to say I have this week alone, I am dealing with three buildings on Alamitos 909 14 904. That is over 40 families that are all getting displaced. Or while I'm hearing all these landlords say I'm a good landlord, I don't kick nobody out. So who's kicking out 60 tenants? Nobody. The Holy Spirit like you don't work that way. So, you know, and I also heard a comment talking about, well, the pig in lipstick is still a pig. Right. Okay. Well, there's also Spanish thing. My grandma used to tell me that topical commercial, Alaska commercial, La La Plata, he who kills the cow is as guilty as who drags the cow out. So thank you for coming up with this. I appreciate it. Thank your time. And I hope you guys do pass it. I support one. And just remember, if you guys don't, all those families that are getting displaced are on your conscience. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. When that's not. Yes. You may remember Trollope made the Bible akinwale zombies. Well, let me tell. You everything about SARS on notice as a little scandal at Los Apartamento you got on the analogy, Carmela drawing this up on their own accord. Comportamento Gigante I mean, Pietro Bahar labor or be unable to chop out Alberta. Good evening. Good evening. My name is Bartolo Pineda and I live in 900 Alamitos where we are being evicted. They came out like a thief in the night to put a notice and they told my. Daughter, Turn in your key or we will remove the locks. May I get aimless cannot support you. Condemnation of communal vandalism over. Your Thanksgiving, the annual review and why this is for. We would. Like you to help us. With money so we can. Move. I lived there for 20 years. Otherwise, how are you going to move? Please. Criminals capturing our children are poor for our. And we would like you to support option one, please. Families and families cannot see us. We are several families. Thank you. Hi. Good evening. My name is Karen and I'm a homeowner and I'm a landlord and I don't support. The rent control that you're talking about tonight. But I did I did want to say one thing. The homelessness in Long Beach absolutely is disgusting. Me There are three. Buildings in this area you guys should partnership with. There's one in Downey, there's one in Norwalk, there's one in Whittier. The grass is 25 feet tall. You guys talk about homelessness all the time. Why cannot we do something about these buildings? Fix them up, do something. It is a disaster. What's happening? And I can't believe that none of you guys can figure this out. It just absolutely amazes me. So I don't want to talk about the rent control, but I do want to get that on the record. It just drives me absolutely insane seeing this going on in our city anywhere. Do something about these buildings, get them figured out, do something, but get these homeless people. Off the streets. It's just awful. That's all I have to make. Speaker, please. Hi, my name is Atlee. I want to let you know I do. Support option one and would tell you why. We have careers that we choose. It's a choice that you make. And if you're going to be a renter. You go to that property and you do you pay them? I think we should have the memory of rent. To be honest with you, rent so sky high. It's not even funny. I understand what they come from, but is a choice in career that they choose to. Be a renter. D instead, it's a choice they made to become a property owner or a property manager. But understandable. We all got to live in the same, either in the same state or they devastate. But we all got to live equally. And we talk about the homeless. There's not enough homeless places at all. The shelters are poor, no matter if you go to L.A., Long Beach, whatever other city, Carson, there's really no shelters. All we asked them for is this a comedy so we can live equally and enough so we can live comfortably. That's all we ask for. Let them get what they need to get support, though control. But at the end of the day, we should have no pill, that they should have no penalty for ignorant people. That's all I'm saying. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. My name is Derek. I'm a public servant and also a property owner, most renter as well. I work pretty hard to be able to afford to buy the properties that I bought and I own two small properties and also rent myself. So I'm on both sides of the coin. Understand where people are coming from. But being from the landlord side, I do understand that when you purchase a property, you know, if I purchase a duplex at $550,000, it costs a certain amount to pay the mortgage, to pay the, you know, all the utilities, to fix it up and all that kind of stuff in it. For me to rent it out for a less than what it cost to, you know, to to pay for all those fees, it just doesn't make any sense. So that's just going to drive people who do want to help out and provide good housing. It's going to drive them away. So that's my take on it. You know, I know a lot of people aren't going to agree with me, but at the same time, like, you know, most of the people that are here, I think everyone here agrees that we want everyone to have a good, affordable place to live. And the on the other side of the coin, the people who are owning want to provide that. And I think this is just a step in the wrong direction. So thank you very much. Thank you. And Speaker, please. Hello. My name is Avandia, Ileana Lopez Carrillo. I live in the wo nderful district to most member of Democratic Socialists of America, Long Beach. I'm broad support of the first option. I want to provide protections for people that live in their homes and that don't have the power or the say to decide where their next place of living is going to be. Now, I understand people in the audience here have been in pursuit of the American dream, trying to make their money, trying to make their place in the world. But unfortunately, if you bought your property here maybe in the last four or five years, you know, it's not my place to say you made a terrible investment, but it is my place to say that I don't want people's lives to suffer because of it. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Nathan Carbajal, First District. I was raised here in Long Beach. I came in third grade, used to be from Wilmington. But at the age of 19, I had to run away from home. And I got an apartment in the second district. But then I lost that apartment and then had to go to the where I am now in the first district. But when losing that apartment, having something like option one would have helped me a lot. Now I have to rely on my friends for housing or food again, groceries for this time period. And having money that could use to find a house or find a apartment during that time would have really helped me. Furthermore, a lot of these landlords are saying that they see their tenants as friends and they talk to them. But I've been in my new

apartment for six months now and then I see my landlord. All they are to me is a parasite. I go, I have two jobs. All I do still my labor and still my wages. And I pay like what, 1000? Yeah, 1200 for this. Really? About a part of me. I got three roommates. I got one cat in there and she bites me up and shit at my you know, this really helped me a lot option would help me a lot as a young person, as a Latino person, as a first generation person in this country having the option one would have really helped me and provided me a safety net that I was able to get through my through my parents. We have our kids. They are the future. So let's help them also not to become. Sorry to have a house, to have a roof over their head and to be able to go through their life without having to wonder if they're going to be like the homeless we see in the street. Listen, they'll have more than that. We have enough of them less liberal, hardworking families and support. Option one. Thank you. Thank you very much. And before 1/2, I think we have four speakers in line left. And I think that I want to make sure the fire marshal. Are we all are we done? We got everybody. Okay. Just one to make sure that we have everyone that that was here to speak. Okay. So you have the person at the end who hasn't spoke yet, right? No, she hasn't spoken. Okay. So I just want to make sure and then the I've we have five speakers in line and they're going to close the speakers list. Speakers list is closed. Go ahead. Hello, honorable mayor and council members. My name is still releasing on and

I'm a resident of the ninth District and grew up in Long Beach. I graduated from Jordan High and was awarded the Gates Millennium Scholarship. I am a public health scholar and practitioner that graduated with my Master's in Epidemiology and Biostatistics from Johns Hopkins University with a certificate in health disparities and health inequalities. I'm here, and I'm here in support of Option one. My training at Hopkins has taught me displacement is a factor that adversely affects health outcomes of individuals and communities. My mentor is currently studying childhood evictions and its impact on childhood development. This is why housing is critical to the safety and health of our communities. As a Cambodian American and child of Cambodian refugee survivors, displacement and investment and resettlement is something we're very familiar with and it is part of our diaspora. Cambodian folks in Long Beach are primarily renters and we have replanted our seeds and community here. If there is a case where we are pulled away from our homes because of rising rents, I ask that we minimize the harms and trauma by by. But that comes with moving. Relocation assistance would do that. And this is why I'm in support of option one. I'd rather have us not leave, but we do. Having no financial support is an injustice. Cambodian families resonate with having to leave and repent. Aristides with no money before most of our families had to come with no money in our pockets. Please do not subject to commune. Please did not suggest us or our communities to relocation without support. We are watching today and we will remember your actions today. So thank you. Thank you for your report and urge to support. Thank you very much. My next speaker, please. Okay. Next. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Yes. Hello. Good evening. My name is Tara Lems. I live in Long Beach for more than 20 years. I. In District number six, please. Mr. Andrew. Andrew I help us because most of the family in labor paid rent. I am a single mum and I need to do more than to work for support my rent. And I am here too. Because I am. Most of the family is affecting how? Affecting me and my family. Please support option one. Thank you. Thank you. Next week for please. Good evening. My name is Mark Pineda. I am a 17 year old and although I'm not a property owner, I do work with properties. I work for legal and some properties. And I do get to see a lot of the money and I can agree with them. Most of these property owners is that a lot of these people are not trying to be greedy and trying to make them make a huge amount of money off of these people. They do genuinely love these people. But I also like to thank you guys for allowing us to be able to speak and to hear the voice of the people. I know that's one of the most important principles of America, right? It's really part of the moral makeup and the fiber that is America. I really do. Thank you for that. I'd also like to piggyback off of that and just sa y that last year we did vote against rent control. And I know that this isn't named rent control. It's called tenant relocation or tenant tenant collections or excuse me. But it's really just. Another step towards rent control. If you can imagine stepping. On an escalator. And you take that first step, it's going to carry you up. And so up and forward, this is just kicking the can down the road. This isn't really helping tenants. This isn't going to help anybody. It's really going to make it worse. I'd also like Mr. Phil Jones. He spoke earlier and he spoke on the law of supply and demand. If you want to fix something, I would ask you to consider about checking on supply, maybe proposing something that would help with the supply, not helping with the tenant relocation. This is not the answer. I would ask that you would reconsider on your thoughts. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please, Mr. Chair. And then our final speaker. Oh, yes. Good evening, counsel. Mayor, my name is Johnny Weir. I'm with better housing for Long Beach and will thank everyone for coming out every property and to give yourselves a hand. You're not supposed to boo. The mayor is supposed to shut you up when you say that. Listen, I want to say you. Don't have to. We got to. Oh. That's actually. You're not supposed to interrupt me because I'm supposed to. It's my time. Thanks. Could you stop the clock? Okay. Thank you. So, Brenda Lopez, stop the lie. The lie is. Are you turning my mike down? The lie is this is going to help these people that you're having speak. We know that these programs are going to push them out of their homes and you guys all know that as well. And I think it's kind of stop the lie. The lie is that rent control works. Tell me a city it's worked in. Lina, has it ever worked in a city? I don't think so. San Francisco has the highest rent. Santa monica, highest in the nation. People, wake up. Why are you supporting programs that are going to take you out of your homes? It's really true. Google highest rate in the nation. Tell me what comes up. Rent controlled cities. So as you are supporting this program, you're pushing these people out of Long Beach. And 73% of the city staff doesn't live in Long Beach. So they're not going to be impacted by this. But here the property owners are going to be in Long Beach and they're going to be here and they're going to have a hard time keeping their business around. They're going to sell. And you should find out how many people are selling and leaving now. It's so not good for the community. So as you guys move to your political careers, we're going to be living with the message you're going to be your vote on tonight. So thank you so much. Good night. Thank you. Thank you. Okay. Hold on a second. I hold on 1/2. To the ladies that are on the back. We we close the speaker. We close the speakers list. Are they just supporting. Okay, they're not speaking. Okay. This is our last speaker. Okay. Thank you. Okay. This is our p lay. Everyone, please. Thank you. This is our last speaker. Good evening, council members. Mayor, my name is Maria Lopez. And in a time when everyone's living in fear, I say I'm undocumented. Unafraid, unapologetic. I am a proud one day Elina resident since the age of three. And I am also the director of Community Organizing for Housing in Long Beach. I have been doing this work for over three years as of this month, and this is the first time in those years that you all take up a discussion on a law that will positively, I guarantee you positively will impact the people that I work with. I commend you for that yellow. Yet I want to encourage you all to continue pushing tonight and to pass option one as it protects most tenants. As a leader, I am tired of having no solutions, resources or better words to tell tenants other than we must. We must prepare for court on top of already being impacted by what is the worst housing catastrophe that Long Beach has ever faced. So what I hear is that it's not time. Let's recap. We said we wanted Rip. They said it's not time. So you all gave us Rip. We said, okay, we'll call code enforcement. They said, Don't open the door. We said, we're being evicted. They said, Well, if you can't afford to live in Long Beach, leave. We said the rent is too damn high. They called us criminals and said We need to build more. We said we look. We need relocation assistance. Thank you. They said it's not time. We need to build more. Thank you very much. I just want to close off by. Look at these faces. This is 994 Alamos Avenue. This is my mama space. My sister space, my face. Time for change. The time for change is always now. Okay. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. Okay. Just so you make sure if the fire marshal can just come head down here, just check in. And I think we have we've gone through the speakers list, so we're all done with speaking is now closed. So let me go out and close the speakers list. Thank you. And I'm also going to ask before we begin, counsel is going to begin, obviously, their series of questions and deliberations. This is a important topic. Obviously, everyone has a variety of opinions on the topic. I also ask that we be respectful to the council members as they answer questions, as they deliberate, as they're able to inquire, because this is a very complex process and it's important to everybody on this dais that they're able to get it right and that they're able to ask their questions. So I just ask please that also we respect the council's ability to ask questions and get to what will be eventually some type of vote tonight. And so that is my ask of everyone that's here. So thank you for that. With that, we begin with Councilwoman Gonzales. Yes. This has been a very long night for all of us, but I definitely want to thank everybody who is here today. This has been a very long road and I just appreciate your patience and I just ask for additional respect, not for here, for me perso nally or any of us on the dais, but for each other, because this is a very divisive issue that it looks like to be. But I just hope that we can come together with some sort of compromise and collaboration, because we all have the best interests in our in our city. And for me particularly, this has been a very tough it for me as a city council member in a downtown that has expanded and grown and has really displaced so many of my residents, so many of my residents, it makes me not sleep at night. I will tell you that it's very difficult. So I'm going to start with a few questions and then a few comments, and then I'm going to go into my motion to start off. I. First want to ask our city staff just some clarifying questions here. So I've heard a lot of discussion about raising rents. Can can in this ordinance, can landlords raise rents as much as they want? Yes. So one of the things we started off by saying is that this is not rent control. One of the things that rent control does is sets a cap on rents and says exchange not, you know, in a single year go above a certain amount. In the proposal in front of you. There is a trigger for relocation assistance, but there can be increases. And if somebody has a rent increase of, let's say 10% or 12%, they have a choice to make. They can stay in their unit and they do not receive relocation benefits or they can say, I can't afford that and I need to leave. And then relocation benefits with. I just want to make sure because there are a lot of landlords that said that they were keeping their rents very low. And if that's the case, then guess what? This ordinance doesn't apply to you. I'm glad I'm glad you're keeping them low. This does not apply to you whatsoever. The second question that wasn't really touched on a lot, but I just want to make sure we address this as a city. As a city is the covenants for current low income housing. Specifically, I have residents like in Plymouth West and in some of our seniors and people with disabilities. Some of those buildings that currently have covenants that may expire soon. Have we ever in our most recent history or experience here as a city, have we ever had any covenants for low income housing expire on us? And if they were about to, what did we do to remedy the situation, to extend keeping those covenants? Councilwoman Gonzales, as you saw in our presentation, we've helped to preserve over 2000 units since 2007, with the majority occurring since 2015. In the 20 years that I have been with the city and in the Housing Bureau, I'm not aware of any restricted properties that are converted that have converted to market rate. I will mention that there is a state. The state requires that when covenants are getting ready to expire and that includes covenants on the property and also tenant assistance contracts with HUD that tenants are notified. And I think that the fact that tenants get notified because the state requires that is scary to tenants and I un derstand why that would be. And that's the purpose for recommendation number four is we want to help. We want to work with those property owners, with HUD and hopefully be able to get the tenants a little bit more comfortable with what's actually happening at those properties. Okay. Thank you very much. It makes, I think myself as a councilmember that has a lot of these covenants. It makes me feel comfortable in expressing that, of course, to the residents that are currently under these covenants and hoping that they can continue renting at those at those low rates. So thank you for that clarification. And I just want to first say thank you to our city staff. They put in a lot of work and time and energy. And I know this couldn't come soon enough for a lot of our residents and tenants, but I just want to thank you each as well as to all of the advocates, both on the housing tenant side as well as the landlords for engaging in these multiple discussions and just connecting with our council offices. I know I met with basically everyone to ensure that we got this right. So again, just to be clear, the city council has never engaged in a rent control or just cause policy. We've never engaged in that. And that's even despite the multiple resident and economic pressures and rightfully so by our residents, we've never engaged in those discussions or policies. We've actually engaged in land use discussions that held the line for neighborhood character when we wanted to, and we should have created a little bit more affordable housing. We've also been chastised as a council in some regards for garnering funds for an annual homeless shelter, and even with all of that, to ensure that we had roofs over people's heads to ensure that we were pushing when it came to affordable housing. People in our districts even now, and specifically in my district, where 80% of our renters are being displaced now, there now. And what I ask oftentimes is when is enough enough? When do we have to turn the curve and say, you know, while this some have called this tenant welfare, some have called this, you know, Nazi control, which is really sort of out of line and inappropriate. I would call this relief and improvement of quality of life. And with roughly 60% of our residents renting their homes, Long Beach has almost double the amount of renters compared to the nationwide average. And like I mentioned, the first District has 80% renters. This has been an issue personally, professionally for me that I wanted to make sure we're getting right, not just to offer protections as the true spirit of the item. When we first brought this forward in January 2018, but also, as people mentioned here, to create housing stability. It's really unfortunate when we have people consistently being constantly being displaced at a very rapid rate with absolutely no relief, and especially people with seniors, people with disabilities and very low income individuals. So what I'll just say here, and I know that there's been a lot of misinformation about what this policy actually says and what it includes. But I just ask my council colleagues to be very open minded. We have a lot of work to do. I'm going to start with emotion that I know that will engage additional discussion and I hope will add additional thoughts about what we can add and create. But I think that the time is now to do something. We cannot sit here and do nothing as a council because we have to ensure that we are doing right by the residents that work so very hard to make sure that they are taking care of their families. So I will start with our motion here. The motion we have in it's a bit of a hybrid. I move that first and foremost. We adopt staff recommendations specifically to include the following, which will apply to all units in multifamily rental properties with four or more units instead of the proposed table in attachment D, the relocation will be two months rent on the housing authorities. Average fair market rent table. Which currently are for a studio $2,706. One Bedroom $3,235. A two bedroom $4,185 a three bedroom or more $4,500. I also want to include an additional $2,000 benefit for people with disabilities and seniors. From option one. These relocation benefits will be paid to any resident, regardless of income. So I would like to start there. As I mentioned, I think this is a very reasonable approach. A lot of people might not think so, but it's absolutely reasonable to be providing relocation assistance and then provide a little bit more for people that may have disabilities or seniors that are even great, that are impacted even to a greater magnitude. With that, did I just say thank you to everybody? And I look forward to additional conversations. And again, I just ask that my council colleagues keep their lines of communication open and that we get to a good point for all of our residents. Thank you, Councilwoman. So that is a in a motion. And so there's a second on the motion. Vice Mayor Andrews. Thank you. Thank you, Mayor. You know, I think tonight's discussion has really been long overdue. You know, I am a renter and my management company is overall an easy company to work with. But not everyone has the same experience when dealing with management and companies or landlords. This is just one example of many, but I've had residents just across the street from me when a man has gone up for $400 and that she lives on SSI and care for a mother who is on a ventilator. Those are the kinds of people that when we first started these conversations, we wanted to have protection for us. She did. I want to make it very clear that tonight this council is going to make some decisions. Not everyone is going to be okay with. But we all have the different constituents to represent and defend. And I represent one of the most dense districts and one of the districts that has been heavy, burdened with 30 days or 60 days rent increase, sometimes vacation notice with an exp lanation, is this not fair? Or to people who have been loyal and committed caring for properties they are interested to pay more to mine for it is call for some compassion. I do believe property owners purchase property and want to keep good tenants in place. And sometimes despite these efforts, there are scenes they are seen as slumlords. But I do know many good owners have had given people opportunities to lease even when their circumstances are less ideal. Tonight, we need to pass a policy that applies to renters who need it, who need it, while being considered rated of landlords that are not what some call investors of property. My office have seen tenants in everything from four plex, ten unit complex and single family home faces with some sort of rent increase or notice to vacate. This is a problem that we need to be addressing across the board with a clear room. We need to come up with some number that is fair and substantial. As for those monetary assistance, because we want people in Long Beach to stay in Long Beach, I want to be respectful. I want to be respectful to the private contracting this because it is the American dream to own a piece of the land that has been right to use. Best way ordained. But I do know that sometimes we must do things tonight that some limitations need to be said place. I want to thank everyone for coming out here tonight and being patient to listen to all of us. It's going to take a long time. Thank you guys very much. Thank you, Vice Mayor Andrews. There's a there's a motion in a second, which is the motion as described by Councilwoman Gonzalez, Councilmember Pearce. Thank you. Thank you, everyone that has been engaged on this issue. And first of all, I want to thank the makers of the original motion. Councilwoman. Yeah, I'm getting that somewhere. Someone's mic is on and we're getting some sort of feedback. I'm not sure if it's staff maybe. Or I've had a few people mention it already. So just. Just a quick note, so. Okay. Thank you. Okay. Very good. I'm going to restart. Thank you. Okay. So I would like to thank the. Very good. Yeah. Okay. The makers of the original motion that recognize that in our city, we've had a lot of great development, a lot of growth. My district alone, I think we've had 13 projects approved in the last three years. But with that comes needing to make sure that we're protecting our residents and the people that really make our city thrive. It's the diversity. It's the sweat equity. It's your contributions, your creativity that makes the Long Beach a place that people want to come. And Long Beach will not be Long Beach if we cannot keep and maintain our residents and our city. So I'm really happy that we're having this conversation. And I definitely, you know, as somebody that was in the community in the middle of the downtown plan, this has been the issue for me that has kept me up at night as well. I think Leana and I have both kind of shared that gut wrenching feeling about want

your nest egg. Right. And that you're worried that that's going to be impacted. For other people, it's the fact that they don't have a nest egg, that they're working two and three jobs and their kids are trying to go to school and trying to have services and trying to make sure they have a clean, safe place to do their homework, which we know is a determining factor in how they succeed and if they are able to go on and have a nest egg. So we are doing the right thing tonight by making a decision and moving forward with this. I have to hope that we all get there. I want to address the question around having a business and really the idea that I respect and am thankful for those that owned businesses in my district. I've tried to be a very big supporter of small businesses and recognizing for small owners there might be some impacts that they might have. And so I wanted to ask staff question around. I know that the staff recommendations that are here say the based on four units, which is based on the business licenses. Is there something keeping the city from being able to say if you're a small business owner and you own, say, five units in L.A. County, that you would be exempt from relocation or have a reduced fee? So if you're not in Long Beach, if you have a building somewhere else, is that what the question is? Well, I think the reason I asked L.A. County is because I believe that there is a way to track with L.A. County taxes lesson to be able to see how many properties you own. Whereas in Long Beach, I don't know that we have that mechanism in place. So part of the reason that we had recommended four more is because that's when a business license is triggered. We have pretty good data and we have contact with those property owners on a yearly basis as we issue their their business license. They're also on our Web schedule. So we know who they are. We have staff going out to their buildings. We the council can certainly pick and extend this to down to duplexes, as we mentioned, or any other any other measurement. It does become much more of a challenge for us to identify who they are and and be able to establish connection with them so it can be done. We are recommending four more because that's something that we already have a known universe of the of the businesses. Okay. I'd like to you know, I look forward to hearing from my colleagues on their thoughts on that. But I really I want us to be able to pass something that protects renters and protects small property owners. That's really thoughtful. So I look forward to hearing some of the comments on that. In relation to the recommendation to the scene, your first security deposit. Can you walk through for me a little bit more about home funds and why this is for seniors and maybe not for extreme low, extremely low income tenants as well? Councilwoman We currently fund a similar program with home funds that is administered by the Health Department, and it's for homeless households. And because of the Council's request, in the original request back in January 2018, with a focus on seniors, we thought that that was a way to help seniors. But there's not any reason why we couldn't help other households as well. But we do have limited funding. So recognizing that we have limited funding, I'm not sure if this is the right time tonight, but down the road I'd be interested to hear what the if the pot of money would be large enough for us to offer it to extremely low tenants, knowing that we are trying to do our best to protect from people becoming homeless and that that's the biggest vulnerable population. So Councilmember, I would add that we are constantly looking for dollars, especially at the state level, and we've had some success in the past of getting those dollars for prevention. And so if we were to get additional state dollars, we could look at that as well for prevention activities to keep people in their homes. I believe there's something in Measure H, so I've talked to Kelly, call it be a little bit. So whatever we can do to make sure that we are identifying that, I appreciate staff's work there. So two other two other things I want to bring up before I move on. It was brought up the idea of homeownership and this forward mobility. And I noticed and appreciate it in the staff report, the comments around homeownership, I will say that how many renters in the room know that you can have your credit score reflect your on time payments, rental payments? Exactly. So I found this out because I moved last year. And I will tell you, as a lifelong renter, it cost me 70 $500 to move, and that literally was 70 $500 to have them hold the place for me for the day. If you can bring me 70 $500 in the hour, I'll hold it for you. And I got that because he asked me where I worked and I said I worked for the city. My credit score was not great and I had to talk myse

If in for a good 3 hours to be able to get a great apartment in a great neighborhood. And I know that I had that privilege and that that's not there for everybody. But credit scores are one of the things that keeps renters renters. So one of the things that he does for me now is he reports my on time payments to the credit agency and within three months, my credit score went up 40 points. Within six months, it went up 62 points. So this is something that I know some landlords do that is a great help for their tenants. And if we're having the conversation, I would like I've had conversations with many of the landlords to incentivize them or just require them to inform tenants of their rights, to have their credit score, you know, to have this reported to their credit score, should they want that? Staff with me. Yeah. Okay. I can repeat it. Yes, please. I would love it if we could incentivize landlords or require landlords to inform their tenants. Of the ability to report their credit, their rental payment to the credit agency as a means for upward mobility. And also inform tenants of the option of renters insurance. Not required, but the option again gives some cover and releases the tension between landlords and tenants because now you have a third party that's responsible for some of those. Those are low, simple things that I think landlords and tenants have been that I've met with. And believe me, I've met with a lot. But the biggest issue for me, outside of making sure that we have a balanced approach, is really making sure that our seniors and those that are disabled are not that are not left out. I want to make sure that we provide additional support. And so I would like to make a substitute motion which builds on the original motion. While it's critical to provide additional assistance to our disabled and senior residents, I worry that putting this additional relocation cost on landlords could create a disincentive to renting to these vulnerable populations. Therefore, I make a substitute motion that $2,000 of relocation benefit for seniors and disabled residents be paid from a city fund to be established using state, county and other funding sources. I've had a talk with the mayor of how to talk with staff. I think we believe that a second round of cheap funds from the state is likely to be coming in for this purpose. And this is something that would incentivize or take away a disincentive for seniors, but allow us to continue to protect them. My grandmother raised me and when she had to move in her seventies, it changed her life and she ended up having a stroke shortly after. And all of us really believe that it was that move to a completely different community that was done in a very quick fashion. And so as much support as we can give our seniors and disabled. I'd like to see that, too. Thank you. And Councilmember, if I can ask a quick clarifying question. You had mentioned you wanted to do some outreach for informing tenants about re ntal credits. Is that and the insurance option, is that part of the motion as well? I was going to ask. Yes, that's a part of the motion, yeah. Okay. Make that a part of that. And just we wouldn't be prepared tonight to really talk about a city fund. So we would bring that back along with, you know, any staffing needed or any opportunities. That's what we're understanding, is you're giving us direction to look at that fund and come back with the ordinance. Yes, sir. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. So so it's okay. Just to be clear, we have a substitute motion which which is Mostar, which is all of the main motion made, but also includes changing the nature of the the fund for for seniors and for people with disabilities so that that is administered in part by the city, as I heard it from Councilmember Pierce. And that's that's the substitute motion that's on the floor. Councilman Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and thank staff for that presentation. I know that this is a big issue. You've done a lot of work to bring us to this point. And I just want to acknowledge my staff member, Alana, who I've probably been inspired to hear about this and want to remark on this, remark on that all night. So she's like, help me tweet my comments and print them and bring them back to me all night. So I think you can relax. It's my time, Alina. So sorry about that. So over the end, I want to thank the residents and all the stakeholders who come down to speak. I understand how important this issue is, and that's why I think it's okay. I think we should take our time tonight and just listen to each other and ultimately come to an agreement, because I think it's important that we do pass a policy. And and over the past, you know, year two years, we've heard these gut wrenching stories in local press or these scenarios where people come down to city council and say, my entire building has been displaced and and due to commercial rehabilitation or whatever the reason was. And they tell us their stories of how they have had a difficult time finding a new place or they didn't have a lot of time to prepare for this. And so I think it's important that we do have this conversation, acknowledge all of those hours and hours of testimony, all those lives that each one of those little three minute or tonight 90 seconds segments represent or so I acknowledge that. So it's important that we actually have that. You know, I grew up in a working family. We were not rich. We did move around a lot. My family didn't always have stable housing, and I don't talk about it very often. But, you know, I attended attended 13 public schools across five different states. And it was for different reasons. But I know what it's like. I understand what it's like to seek and yearn for this concept of stability. I understand that. I know what that's like very, very deeply. I also understand that the desire to set roots, to own a home, and to ultimately invest in the community, and to live tha t dream of buying property and pursuing that, I know what that's like. I'm living it. When I began the process of laying roots as an adult, I considered Long Beach for two reasons one. Well, it was affordable and to. I really appreciate it. I liked the quality of the neighborhoods there. I felt like I felt I fit into the Long Beach community. Those were the two main reasons. Affordability and the fact that I fit in with that community. So when I was 23, I got a one bedroom apartment on Banner Drive in Bixby. No, that a one year lease. I went through that process. I sold it was like 900 bucks. I had no extra hundred bucks for the garage and I loved my little place. And I got to tell you, at some point I wanted to become a homeowner. And, you know, I got married and, you know, I bought a home and, you know, all those things. And then a couple of years ago, my wife and I made the decision to transition into becoming into renting out our first home that we had where we had both our daughters. We brought them home from almost memorial. We made the decision to rent that place out and buy a new place for ourselves, for a larger family. And so we so I know what it's like, the rewarding nature of becoming a landlord, of providing someone a home in a place that I cared about. So I can say I grew up as a renter, but I am a landlord as well. And so I understand. I understand. And I'm considering both of those perspectives as we set policy tonight. So being housing insecure has a direct impact on families. Their ability to thrive in a community of ability as student has to perform well in school. And it is our responsibility as a government to talk about those policies. So I think that it is important that we acknowledge that we do have a duty to have this conversation. There was a lot of topics about, you know, get out of my business and this is the city's business. We have to have these conversations. I also understand. Thank you. I understand also the need this conversation of economic inclusion, the need to have upward mobility makes sense. Homeownership and real estate are still the most common pathways to building wealth in America. That is true, and we need to be aware and acknowledge the impact of this policy on mom and pop property owners who are pursuing that dream. I think that's important. And these considerations, they're core components to all the conversations we have in our city about our economic blueprint, economic inclusion, everyone home. We want to make sure that the people in our city are not just protected but included as we make decisions about the growth of our city. That's important. So we can't have this conversation in the vacuum of just tenant protections. We acknowledge that depression pressure on the housing stock is not simply a result of the natural market, but they're a result of they're also a result of decisions that we made as a city, policies we passed on the city, land use, documents like downtown plan and other things.

They have a direct impact, the decisions we make. And so it's good that we're into attracting investment, we're attracting companies, but we have to keep the people first as we make these decisions. We hear the stories about people pulling up from the bootstraps, becoming property owners, living the American dream. I get it. But we don't want to also discredit the hard work of renters. There's a long history of restrictive policies in our city that have created a permanent rental class that we should understand, and that history within our city, with our country, includes redlining that prohibited masses of people from locating to certain neighborhoods, or policies that prevent people from having that first step of buying a home. Utilizing GI Bill. Utilizing these other assets. So that is a history that we should acknowledge that there is a rental class that has been systematically kept out of the ownership process. Now Long Beach is changing. The most recent data analysis of Long Beach indicates a few things. Who are we talking about? Who is our city? So we just passed a we just commissioned a report by Policy Link, an economic equity report that gives us a profile, a snapshot of our city. It tells us that one quarter of the jobs in our city are low wage. That's 25% of the jobs in our city. They're low wage. Yet one in ten. A 10th of the rental units in our city are affordable to low wage workers. That's data. That's the most recent data we have. Only eight census tracts in the whole city has a median market rate of less than 1560 per month. Only three census tracts in the city have that. We see positive economic activity in our city, which is impacting a major sector of people that we serve, people we call constituents. But is our responsibility to be intentional about creating policy that addresses shifts to this vast population? So this is one piece that everyone home task force called out, a comprehensive plan. And we just need to understand this is one piece. There are other pieces we have to do and look forward to the inclusionary housing policy. I look forward to continuing the conversation on identifying local sources of revenue to replace the redevelopment that we use to use for production affordable housing. I look forward to those things, but as I typically say, the angels are in the details, right? So I want to jump into this current proposal. So I have a few questions for staff. So in the presentation tonight, a few things stood out to me that I want to just want to just ask a few questions about. So on page seven, Mr. Modica or Linda or whoever wants to comment on this, and page seven, there's a chart says vacancy rate by zip code, and it shows a steady sort of decline in vacancy rate. But two spikes really stand out, and those spikes are. Q one 2015 in the zip code of 90813 and Q1 of 2016 and 90802. And I know that both of these are in the area that that is focused in the downtown plan area. But is there a story behind these two

spikes? Because they really, really pronounced they happen and then they bounced right back. Is there a story behind those two spikes? Councilmember Richardson, we are back here looking at the timeline for a couple of major projects that came on board. And we think that the spike, the highest spike, we think that that was when the current came online. And as you know, the vacancy rate is determined by the number of units that are in the housing stock available available for rent, but that are currently vacant. So we think that when the current came online with those 200 plus units, that it created a spike because once they came online, they were available units, but they have not yet been leased up. And the other one we're not sure about, but we think it's a another one of the new development projects that came online and that other one was earlier than the current. But we're not absolutely sure, but we think that that's the basis for those two spikes new projects coming online when they first hit the market. They're technically available, but they haven't yet been leased up, so they would be counted as vacant units. Understood. And and I think what's interesting is a few things that I get from that is that one, both of those were post the adoption of the downtown plan. It created the meetings immediate spike of vacancy, which was actually a good thing to bring in new units. So it proves to me that we do have the ability, you know, in the policies we passed to shift these trends in our city. And so if we're intentional about, hey, we know we can create additional vacancy, we know that, then we should be smart about inclusive inclusionary housing policies and supporting affordable housing production because they have a direct impact there. And could you confirm so you said the current was one of the current or could be one of them. That was a downtown planned project that utilized incentives from downtown plan. I'm going to say yes and no because the original current project was entitled Before the Downtown Plan. Yet after the project was approved, they came back a couple of years later to re entitled the project to take some of the benefit of the downtown plan, things like the reduced parking, etc.. And the Edison was also a former redevelopment agency. And a former. So both of them were, you know, impacted by government in some way. Government played a role in both those projects. That makes sense. Okay. So another one on page eight, that's the local multifamily building data table. On that page, it looks like four units makes up. Tell me if I'm right. Tell me. It says four units makes up 37.8% of all the properties in the city. And that seems like a large number, 38%. Is that inclusive of one through four or is that just for unit buildings? That's for buildings up to four units. So that's up to four units. No, I'm sorry. Let me let me take that. It is building of at least four units for unit buildings. So this does not include single family

, duplex or tripe. That because the. Category of four units or more. Okay. If it's four units, sorry. So it's not four and above is just four. Four. Correct. Okay. So that is a map. If 37.8, if almost there are 38 or 40% of the properties in the city are one are for units. I think it's important that that be a threshold to capture as many people as possible that for unit building. But you know I you know, I know four units are popular in to mom and pop. So I do want to have a conversation about that. So another question on this on this issue, so was it that we couldn't find data on single use, duplex or triplex? Is that why it's not? Is it more difficult to get to the data we collected here? We have data on just building permits generally for we have a very good idea of the number of those units. But what we don't have is a record of whether or not those units are being rented because they don't require a business license. There's no mechanism for us to track it or be aware of those duplex or even single family rentals. Okay. So that's that's an important number. And Councilmember, we tried to give that to you on the options list. So when we looked at option one, we're estimating that it covers about 95,000 units, which would include duplex triplex in four or more in up an option two, which is four more up includes 70,000 units, 70,300. So there's probably another 20,000 units in that duplex and triplex category. Yeah. So so I knew that I was asking so you know, everybody else would know that, you know, of okay, so question is there a way, you know, and this is pertaining to the mom and pop conversation. Linda, is there a way to know if, you know, someone owns one duplex or if someone owns ten properties in a city and one happens to be a duplex? Are there mom and pop and the fact that they own one or is, you know, of one for plex are part of a larger portfolio? Is there a mechanism to even know that or understand that? I'm going to say yes with some reservations, because we characterize you as a business and requiring a business license by owning four units if you owned multiples, as long as the name of the ownership was the very same, we would be able to run a report from our database and business license and identify that you may own multiple four unit complexes, but if you may be in partnership or a limited liability or an LLC or some other entity, there would be ways for you to own the building that we wouldn't necessarily be able to track it back to you as an individual because of the various ways in which you can own a property, the various names under which you can own it. So that would be challenging and difficult to ascertain very definitively that one person or one entity owned multiple four unit buildings. And no, that's common sometimes. You know, people put, you know, Barclay Street LLC or this LLC or that LLC for tax reasons or whatever it is, be difficult to track. We'd have some understanding, but the verification would need to be

, you know, some other process that makes sense. That's correct. And that was, frankly, a part of the rationale for sticking with the data that we can easily track. Okay. So since 37.8% of the properties are for Plex, I think it makes sense that for Plex is the sort of lowest. For Plex is an up are the lowest for this policy. Whatever policy moves forward tonight, I think it makes sense. I also think we need to think about some way to, you know, provide a waiver or a modification or something to someone who owns a single a single four plex building, for example, if maybe you live on site, if your primary residence, then that is you are a mom and pop. It makes sense to me, you know. So another question. So on page 22, you have 10% as your trigger. How did you arrive at 10% as your trigger? What did that number come from? I think we just looked at a rate at which the the increase would be very impactful, particularly for the average renter and the unit. And that was the basis for the 10%, essentially. Okay. All right. And then a few more questions on how this will work. And these are real narratives that have come up, and I want to talk them through. So if you have a fixed short term lease, mutually agreed upon by both parties to rent your place for six months, let's say that the person is in town for a construction project for six months and they move their family to town and they negotiate a lease for six months to come in, bring their family live here for six months, and they want to go home afterward, mutually agreed upon by two parties in that at the end of that lease, would that trigger relocation? Under the proposal. Not in and of itself unless unless one of the triggering events that we talked about earlier, one there, they voluntarily choose to leave. On their own without any notice from the landlord that they must leave. So if you have a six month lease and you've agreed, that is six months. A six month period. And at the end of that six months, you want your unit back. That triggered relocation if they change their mind. I think that would depend upon the terms of the lease. But if they have a six month lease and they're leaving at the end of that six month lease, I'm not there's not a triggering mechanism. There's not a rent increase to trigger it, nor is it a notice to vacate based upon one of the the factors that are identified in state law. This would be just a voluntary. Fixed term lease. It doesn't trigger a relocation, is what you're saying. The fixed term lease supersedes relocation. No, I'm not saying that. I'm saying that the triggering mechanism you're saying that they are leaving after six months and they had a six month lease, is that correct? Let's say it's one year. If they have a one year lease and they're leaving at the end of six months, they they would have broken their. Legal they're leaving at the end. Let's say the term is a year. Right. In that scenario. Okay. I see. Agreed that this is a one year term. That is a f ixed lease of your agreement. What happens at the end? Does it trigger you want your unit back? Does it trigger relocation? I'm sorry. I thought you said it would trigger if you asked them to leave before they were ready to leave. If they were voluntarily leaving, they would not be subject to that. It's only if you ask them to leave at the end of that six month period. So would you need to ask if you have a fixed term? This is why I need to drill down on this. If it is a fixed term lease, six months, nine months, a year at the end of that lease, do you need to submit notice to that person to leave? And does that trigger relocation? I need to understand that. A fixed term lease. That is not one of the provisions we've included here. Just leaving it the termination of a lease that you and the the landlord have a mutual agreement about the time of the lease. That would not be a triggering mechanism. So there's no guarantee that if you've stayed there for a full year because the standard lease in the city is one year. At the end of that one year. If you want your property back and your landlord, you do not have to pay relocation because you have a fixed term lease. Is that what you're telling me under this policy? That is correct. That would not be a triggering mechanism if you were voluntarily leaving at the end of your lease. So getting into specifics can be a little bit difficult, but ideally the way this would work is you would have a one year lease and at the end of that it normally converts to a month to month tenancy. So then you just keep going. And so in that case, that person would have to pay relocation benefits if they were told by their landlord, you are no longer, you know, I need to rent to somebody else. So under that, that would as long as it didn't meet one of the criteria in state law, then relocation benefits would go into effect. So the six month is a little bit different because yes, I think that's where we got thrown off is six months. I mean, you could potentially write a lease that says this is only for six months. It will not go beyond six months. You know, we both agree on leaving after six months. That would be in a different category. But again, as you often say, the angels in the details would have to write those things into the ordinance. That's why I'm asking this question, because we need to be crystal clear on that. If someone writes a fixed term lease of six months or year. And they want their unit back. Do you agree to that period of time, for whatever reason, you said, Hey, I have a vacancy for a fixed period of time. I'm not interested. I like you, but I'm not that into you. I don't want a long term relationship. Whatever. Right. I need my place back in a year. Right. Mom's moving in. Whatever. I need my place back in a year. Do you have. Does it. This is a real question we need to understand, because this could be 4000, 5000 that we need to clear. Clearly understand that if you just want your unit back, you have a fixed term lease and you want it back at the end. Do you have to pay relocation? Under under this. Scenario, our intent in that specific scenario is you would not if both parties agreed in writing upfront, this is for six months. This is only for six months. Most people don't do that. They get into a lease for a year or whatever it is. Let's say it's. One. Then the expectation is it goes to a month to month tenancy and then yes, relocation would be required. So if it kicks into month to month relocation or if it kicks into another lease beyond that year. The idea here is that you would be vested in to those those benefits of relocation. Correct. Okay. I'm going to make sure that that's called out very clearly so we understand that point. Okay. Another one. Let's say you have an instance where you have this this kind of falls in line. There was the instance of student housing. If you have a model every fall, you open up your applications. You accept a renter for one year. They come in in the fall, they leave in the summer. And it's a one year fixed rate. We understand from this conversation that one year at the end of that year, you start your process all all over again if that's your model and you rent it one year at a time. That under, you know, under as long as it's written in your lease and you're fine, that would not trigger relocation for every college student every year. We could certainly read that and. Yes. Okay. All right. I'll be clear on you. Just things we need to be clear on. Okay. I think. Okay. All right. So I think it makes sense that we apply these benefits broadly. I think we need provisions to be sensitive to small mom and pops. I think we need to make sure that we codify what we just discussed right now, that, you know, up to, you know, that you have that vesting period, you know, up to the year. And if that if at the end of that, you convert in two months, month or another, another lease, right? You are vested into these benefits. But if you're in a short term agreement six months up to a year, and that's your business model, you should, you know, asking someone to factor in 5000 relocation is tricky. So. So I think we need to be very clear on that. So I think so. In summary, you know, I think this is in general, it's a tricky conversation. It is a conversation on values. You know, we look back on our history. We you know, you might say it's crazy to think we had to debate at one point where the children have to work in a factory. The children can work in a factory. It might have seemed like a crazy discussion, but that was a discussion at some point. The concept of Social Security was a radical idea. Right in the front seat of a bus was a matter of debate. And I think when we look back, when our grandchildren look back on the discussions that we have today, one of the issues will be, you know, you're telling me that somebody can take away you can live in a place and with very little notice you can be displaced and the

that is actively pursuing development and major organizations locate in our city and we're doing that, I think we need to be a city that is open to ensuring that, you know, we have strong tenant protections. So I'm going to make a motion. I want to say to my colleagues right now that I am open to friendly amendments. I you know, if something can't get in tonight, I think we need to get the policy done tonight. But if there are things that can't be worked in, you know, either we'll send it to Housing Neighborhoods Committee or we try to work it in tonight. But I want people to understand, I'm going to build on what I've heard from Molina, Councilwoman Gonzalez and Councilwoman Pearce, and we're going to we're going to kind of try to land this plane. So I want to offer a substitute substitute motion. It builds on the relocation assistance proposed in the substitute motion. However, my substitute substitute proposes changes to the trigger language language in component one. Specifically, I want to propose that a new section be added that relocation is paid to any resident who receives a notice to vacate. Because property owners rehabilitate rehabilitating the apartment unit. So in every case, every single case of rehabilitation, displacement, it is paid. That is in addition to the 10% and the other trigger. So there are three triggers. Next, I want to propose a new section C that provides relocation assistance to tenants in good standing who received a notice to vacate a tenant in good standing is one who has lived in their unit for more than a year, who has not done the items one through nine is listed. So that establishes that it protects those short term situations. This is the one year vesting period. My my motion also includes the final two provisions. So this is the small mom and pop provision. So one. You know, waivers to the requirement to pay a little bit ray relocation benefits for owners who can provide who can prove that they own a single four unit building and the unit is vacated for an immediate family member or owner lives in the same property as a tenant. So if you live there, if this is your main residence and you live on that site. You are exempted from this policy. You are mom and pop or two. This is your only building. You got one of them and you need your unit back. Because Grandma's moving in or kids coming home from college. Your mom and pop. We're going to exempt you from that. So everybody in one unit, two, unit three unit, those are exempted and four units are included with the exception of these these two very narrow examples, the mom and pop provisions. Number two, that this entire renter relocation assistance policy. Well well, I think we'll stop at one. I'm open to other things. And I know there's some other other things that are here. So. So the draft proposal pros language to make it clear. Component one is trigger for relocation assistance. Relocation assistance triggered upon A, B or C. Right. Right. Now, just as Andy's going to say A, B or C, trigger one notice of rent, increase the 10% or more in any 12 month period. B Notice the vacate is issued because the property owners rehabbing the apartment building. So just make it very clear if it is a rehab and you were kicking people out, that triggers that. If you receive that notice to vacate, that is a trigger. And three, the notice to vacate is issued to a tenant in good standing. Good standing are the nine pieces that are referenced in addition to they've lived in their unit for one for for more than one year. So that those are triggers A, B and C, and that is my substitute substitute motion. Okay. That's the there's a substitute substitute on the on the floor. There's still a lot of speakers that are going to speak. I want to make some comments as well. And then we're going to go back to make sure we're very clear on what the sub sub is before we take the vote. Councilmember Austin. Thank you. And I don't have several pages of notes to talk from today. I want to thank my colleagues and I want to thank all of the speakers who came out and spoke here today. There's a lot of good content, a lot of great information and and passion on on all sides of this issue. This is not going to be an easy issue for this council to to dissect and to move forward on. But I think it's important for us to do something and walk away with some sort of policy this evening that that that provides some sort of relief for for tenants, but also fairness for for some of our many of our property owners as well. I've heard loud and clear, I don't think there is a an area that that everybody's going to walk away from here satisfied and happy with this evening. But but I think I know from from this council members perspective and hearing from other colleagues, we're going to do our best to to find and landed at a place that that makes sense for for Long Beach this evening. You know, I think there's a lot of good data that has also been shared here. The staff report was very thorough and I think it was excellent for for the most part there. I think they they came back with what we asked them to do. They gave us the information we asked for. And me, myself, I've combed through the report at least two or three times, and I've met with me. And I can't even count how many meetings I've had with individuals and organizations represented on all sides of this issue. It has been and a very, very, very impactful conversation, to

as long as I'm in public office. I think it's important for us to do that here in the city and to focus on that. But we also need to to put our focus on creating good jobs in the city, because that is the the mark of what really will be affordable housing if people people have good jobs and can can afford the housing stock that we have. And an understanding that that the decision we make here today is and can may impact our housing market here in the city. I want to be very careful that we we we make the right decision here. I think I can support the substitute substitute motion. I think it moves us in the right direction. I think it could have been a friendly be quite, quite honest with you. It seems like it it's kind of built on built up on the original motion. And I'm sure those amendments would have been accepted as friendlies. But I think there's certainly has been a lot of thought into all of their motions. And I appreciate Councilmember Richardson for for bringing that forward. There was a question a little earlier that that I did make a note of, and I wanted to just check with the city of. Tony, regarding the question about the cost of Hockey's act and does or is what being what is being proposed, does it, does it comply with the Cost Hawkins Act? My tentative opinion is that yes, it does. I'm not a rent control expert. So this is, you know, somewhat new to me as it is a lot of people in the room and behind the dais. But the way I read Costa Hawkins and based on my limited familiarity with similar provisions statewide in other municipalities. What you're proposing to do tonight, if well, if quite frankly, if any of the motions are adopted, those, in my opinion, would comply with Costa Hawkins. But that is certainly something I'll be willing to look into further before we bring back an ordinance. Okay. And just just getting to get it, I want to get a sense of what that timeline would look like. Obviously. Thank you for looking into that and definitely appreciate that. But how long do you do you foresee this this policy possibly coming back if this council takes action this evening? I'm not certain at this point I'll be drafting the ordinance from from scratch. That's not entirely true, because plenty of other municipalities have tested ordinances that I can draw from. I'd have to huddle with city management to to see what they think is a reasonable return. I'm standing by to do it as quickly as possible, if that's what you're interested in. Okay. Well, I'll say this, that I've only been on the council for almost seven years and I've seen it seems like our housing market go 180 degrees during this period of time. And so, that said, any policy that we. Put in place today, I think should should have to go under review. Right. I don't know if it's two years, but three years, I think it would be very important for for us to come back and and kind of look at where we are with our market and with our policies, including this one after a certain p eriod of time. Councilmember Richardson, since you have the sub said, would you be amenable to that? Sure. Walk me through it one more time. Provision. Well, I'd like to just just at least have an opportunity to for the council to to come back maybe after 24 months, if something is implemented, if this policy is accepted this evening after implementation, 24 months to to review and reconsider or. Reauthorize. Reauthorize. So are you open to making it 36 months so I can accept it now? Sure I can do three, six months. Okay. I think 36 months is three years. That gives us some good opportunity to evaluate data in value. So I just want to make clear that so what you're talking about is a sense of impact. So without further assuming because because I think everyone understands we're not adopting any policies. The city is not adopting a policy formally tonight. You're directing me to bring back an ordinance which would adopt that policy. That ordinance. Then, if this is accepted by Councilman Richardson as a friendly amendment, the ordinance would state that it is of no further force in effect, three years after it is adopted, unless the city council takes at that time or prior to then takes some other further action. I understand that correctly. Yes. Okay. So I would accept that with a provision that it is brought forward to council for reauthorization, that it is just simply disappears or sunset that is brought forward in three years for reauthorization. I think the argument that he makes that markets change and we need to you know, we need to take a look at it. I think that's smart. That was consistent with, you know, other things I've done like the play and other. So I'm okay with accepting that as a friendly. Got it. And just so I'm clear, too, I think Rich asked the question normally in some of these, you've asked us to come back and revisit within data. We're reading this as it actually would go out of effect in three years, but we needed. That. Back to you at the same time with data for you to make a positive decision to continue it or to let it lapse. Correct. Okay. Thank you. And I would just add that the market, you know, where we should have a full understanding of what the where the market is, perhaps we we meet our arena numbers and our housing goals and all of a sudden we have a surplus of properties in the city in three years. I mean, I know that's ambitious, but hey, we we're we're an ambitious city. We're working hard. Q Thank you, Councilman. Let me keep going down. I still have a long speaker's list. Oh, I'm sorry about that. I'm sorry about that, Councilman. I'm not done yet. No, no. Page two notes. Well. Trust me, you get all the time you want because I think it once. But I just again, I want to just also say that to the many property owners who came here and spoke, I saw I saw a lot of diversity. And I understand, you know, I was I was contacted by folks I used to work with at Boeing. Right. People who had their their career s cut short. And, you know, during the course of their their their time working in the aerospace industry, they were able to acquire a property or two in the city. And many of those individuals today are supplementing their retirements or using their rental properties to supplement their retirements. And so I do understand that the mom and pop concept here that that that small property owners are not necessarily the fat cats that are driving this. There was also a local multifamily, the slide number ten staff that I thought was pretty compelling regarding the increase in rehabilitation in multifamily rental housing. I appreciate Councilmember Richardson adding that as a trigger, because it shows to me that it seems to me that that many of the issues that we're talking about in terms of displacement and drastic rent increases were consistent with with rehabilitation and new purchases of properties in certain zip codes. And so with that said, I'm not I'm not necessarily stuck on a on a four on the four plex number because I'm not sure that those those those properties are the ones that are that are the ones that are that are problem properties for us. I'm going to be just straightforward. I mean that. And for this, if there's anything lacking in the staff report, it would be the data showing that where where the where the impact has been for displacement and rising rents, what type of units? Is there any way for us to look at that or start to look at that, or have you considered that? And that's a good question, sir. There's a reason that it's lacking in that we don't have the data. So part of what we're asking to do in this audience, if you were to move forward, is to require that we start getting that data, because right now we know who, you know, which properties are being turned over, we know which ones are being invested in. We don't have any way besides anecdotal data to know whether there's been displacement, and we've certainly heard stories about it. We've seen it in the papers. So what you're adopting in the ordinance and what we're recommending, if it would come back, is that we would get regular reports from people who were from the property owners who were paying that tenant relocation. So we can start seeing where is it happening, who's getting it, what are the amounts, those types of things. So we would have that data for you at the end of that three year period for you to really look at that. Okay. I'm going to we're going to yield to my colleagues for now. If I have any more comments, I will give later. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman. Councilwoman Price, thank you. And I appreciate all the comments tonight. I appreciate everyone who came out and talked and those who requested a meeting with me. Thank you for the mutual respect in allowing us to have that dialog. That means a lot to me. I do believe that this is an inclusive process and respect the efforts to outreach, even when people don't think they'll agree 100% of the t ime. I will say to so from a council office, we received 155 emails on this item. All of them were to vote no on the item. I did hear from some residents tonight who wanted us to vote yes on the item, but that's part of the background information. In terms of what Council District three residents have shared, a lot of the residents who were here tonight are property owners and they live in my district and a lot of the tenants do as well. I think for me and I know the the landlords and the property owners are probably not going to like hearing this, and that's okay. And as you can hear council colleagues talking, I'm sure you can appreciate that a cap on rent increases is something that is probably going to be supported by this council in one form or another. And I think it should be. The problem that I have, however. What that looks like. Exactly. I want to hear from my colleagues tonight. But the problem that I have that to me is really a nonstarter in the discussion is the trigger that I think. I don't know. I'm a lawyer. Maybe I'm analyzing it different than staff when they keep saying it's not just cause of action. But I really don't understand the trigger that allows for relocation when there's a no notice to vacate. For a resident who hasn't a tenant who hasn't violated these nine enumerated offenses, how is that not just cause eviction? So just because the eviction, as we understand it in the cities that have adopted it, essentially do not provide the option for you to ask somebody to leave unless they meet one of those nine triggers. Where this option is different is you as a property owner would retain the ability to ask somebody to leave. You can bring in whoever you want as a tenant, but if you do not, if you reach one of the triggers in the ordinance, you then would be required to pay relocation benefits. So for that, there is a distinction there where just causes never allow somebody to be removed in unless you hit the nine criteria. Okay. So we're basically saying they're exactly the same thing, except in one scenario, you can't do it in another scenario. If you do the exact same thing that's prohibited under just cause eviction, you have to pay somewhere around $4,000. That's the difference that we're saying. That there would be relocation benefits. Yes. Okay. So we're saying you can absolutely do it. It's just going to cost you $4,000. Or whatever up to fourth of. Whatever those that amount is that the council decides. Yes. Okay. So I think that's it's disingenuous to say honestly that that's not just cause eviction. I mean, I'd rather we come out and say we have a just cause eviction model, that if someone is going to get asked to leave with 30 to 60 days notice, they're going to have to pay upwards of $4,000. The problem that I have with that and I shared this with the tenants rights organizations and you guys know that I'm always going to be honest with you, is that if you look at these nine principal or the nine enumerated off enses here. Several of them require cooperation, evidence and corroboration by actual tenants. So if you're a landowner and you're trying to create a living space that's peaceful, a living space that's respectful of everyone. And I shared with the tenants rights organization that that I have a friend who lives in a building, and every day his neighbor says to him , Go back to your country and says that to his children, too. So that individual, the landlord, should be able to get rid of if they want to. With 30 to 60 days notice. And what this does is it enumerates certain offenses that if the landlord wanted to tell that person, you're not fitting with the culture that we're trying to create in this environment. We want you to leave. We're going to give you 60 days notice. We want you to leave. They have to now pay them. They have to pay someone who's a jerk to leave their property. And in order to prove that and and in order to prove that the person is a jerk, they're going to need tenant cooperation for interfered with other tenants to assaulted or stalked other tenants. Three Use the premises for unlawful purpose, for engaging in unlawful use or dealing of illegal drugs. Eight Use the. Property for animal fighting. The fact that we've taken things that are not even related to issues that we have in Long Beach and just put them in. How often have we had a situation where a tenant has been evicted because of animal fighting? I mean, like, how often does that actually happen? But we've included in here because I understand it's in the state ordinance or a law engaged in unlawful conduct involving weapons or ammunition. All of those items, four through nine require tenant cooperation in order to corroborate whatever it is that the tenant is using or the landlord is using for the basis of creating a living space that's peaceful for everyone. So I have a problem with that. I'm wondering these what are the what's the standard of proof for these nine enumerated offenses? Is it probable cause? Is it preponderance? What is it? And who's the arbitrator? Well, it's unclear because it depends on who the arbiter is. And my understanding is, is that the city from my from what I can remember of the of the presentation, the city is not interested in being the arbiter. So that means one way or another. Determining whether or not someone was exempt or otherwise entitled or on the other hand, entitled to tenant. Relocation assistance would probably fall to a judge in either a civil court of action or an unlawful detainer court. If somebody were told they needed they were given, you know, the eviction notice or that you need to leave now notice and there was a dispute over whether or not that tenant was entitled to tenant relocation. The tenant might simply refuse to leave until they were paid tenant relocation, in which case I suppose the landlord would have to begin an unlawful detainer action. The unlawful detainer judge. I'm not an expert in that area. The law either could determine as part of what he or she determines whether, you know, an eviction should go through, whether tenant relocation is payable or not in the event that the tenant simply leaves without being paid, but claims that they ought to be paid, the tenant could bring a civil action against that landlord after they had already left. And then certainly the judge then would have to decide. Okay, so is it up to the city? Could the city establish a burden of proof as part of our ordinance? I'm not sure I'd have to look into that. Yes. You know, on things that are strictly a municipal concern, we could do that. But I'm not sure that state law wouldn't wouldn't trump that and say no in the you know, the civil code, there already is a burden of proof which applies. And we can't change that. I don't have an answer for you right now. Okay. That would be I mean, I want to talk to Councilman Richardson, who has the sub sub and Councilwoman Mango and see what your thoughts are on that. Because if it's possible, since we're drafting these nine enumerated provisions anyway, what I would be more comfortable with is if item four reads, by the way, the language is different than the state ordinance of our nine enumerated offenses. Is it staff's goal that they mimic the state regulations? Because if they do, this language is different. Just like to clarify that the intent, even though it's paraphrased in the PowerPoint presentation. The intent here is that these nine items are specifically intended to capture state law. So we weren't trying to do something different from what state law currently requires. And do we believe that animal fighting is an issue that's in Long Beach, or did we just include it. To your earlier point about. We don't. When's the last time we evicted someone for that? That's a part of the issue that we're dealing with here. We don't necessarily know the purposes or kind of the cause of some of the evictions, but generally it's not been a problem in the city in terms of code enforcement or animal control, and that's just based on my recollection. We could certainly find out. But it is in state law written out that. No, it is. And I imagine I haven't looked at when it was passed by the legislature, but I imagine it was in response to some specific things that were happening at the time that garnered legislative attention. That's our understanding as well. So what I would like to propose. Is just sorry, I just want to make sure that please, everyone's deliberating, so please not have those comments. Thank you. So what I would like to propose to Councilman Richardson and Councilwoman Mango in terms of a friendly is if there's any way that we can incorporate into these nine. Like for example item number four interfered with other tenants. I would like it to say interfered with other tenants use and enjoyment of the property as determined by the landlord or some language like that. I'm open to it, but what I don't want to do is h ave once a tenant has to go and testify against another tenant. Anonymity is completely blown and although there may not be legal retaliation against them, if for whatever reason the individual decides to stay or moves a few blocks away, this is a person that's in their world. Their kids may be going to the same school. They may be neighbors with one another. It's just a very difficult position to put people in. And what they're going to say is, you know what, I don't want to lose this apartment. Forget it. Forget I said anything and I want to be able to protect people. I'll give you another example of someone who I know has a next door neighbor. It's a building, a lot of units in there, but they have a next door neighbor who works evening hours and she makes a lot of noise. It's not enough that it would rise to a disturbing the peace or violate our noise ordinance. But it's enough that her children cannot sleep in the apartment next door. They share a common wall with the person who's using the studio next door to do their work late at night. And the kids the two kids go to law, they sleep in the apartment. And she had reached out to me a long time ago and said, our landlord won't get rid of this person because they're afraid they're going to get sued. And so I just what I don't want to do is take away property owners rights to be able to decide who they want to partner with in. Terms of a long term. Partnership. And so that's that's an issue for me. And so, Councilman Richardson, do you have any thoughts on that? Yeah. I do have thoughts on that. So so in terms of the the nine being different, then the spirit was state law, but they lifted out certain things and made it not consistent with state law. I personally think it's a slippery slope. If they're state law, we can simply lift and make those criteria what state law is. I think that makes sense. So Ms.. Tatum was the intention to go with state law? That was exactly the intention. And we just the wording here is slightly different. Again, we were just trying to paraphrase it for purposes of making it more simplified. But yes, it was state law. I think if it's state law. Ms.. Tatum Would it be simple to just refer to the specific language in state law as the policy? Yes, we could certainly do that. And again, I think the idea in spelling them out here was to be clear that everyone understood kind of the nature of the types of things that were currently covered in state. Well, we can. Do that maybe in another way. Yes. Additional documents explain to me. Well, either I get to. Yes, either additional documents or you added it in good standing. That was an additional thing that. Yeah, yeah, I'm talking about the nine not good state. So in the nine, I think that should be consistent with state law. So there's no slippery slope there so that I will accept that. To keep. The name. No, we're going to put it into. We're going to put it into state law. Consistent with state law. That is whatever state

. She made a change from state law to highlight certain pieces. I think we should just be very clear with what state law is. There was no slippery slope. We're not getting into that. I think Councilman Richardson is accepting the clarification of Linda Tatum. That's what I'm not your friend. My friend. Well, you're. Friendly. Was to go with state law, correct? No, no, no, no. In addition to your friend, you should be clear on that. Be clear what it was. My, my my clarification was whether it is state law. That wasn't my friendly. My clarification was, is this modeled after state law? Because I have a concern with some of the elements in the state law as a. As. Requiring the tenant to provide whatever the state law would be preponderance of the evidence. So. So that's my issue. So I would like to add in their discretion for the landowner to be able to create the living spaces that they believe are healthy for all of their tenants. Okay. And so what I'm saying is you're, you're friendly. I'd like to divide because I want to talk about it. Shepard So if you're comfortable with doing the state law piece, I think there's a way to talk about the other. Oh, you're comfortable with that? I want to accept that now. Now I'm going to divide that and handle the other part. The additions, you're saying to add language that that essentially gives. You know, that flexibility to the landlord. So my thoughts on that are like a big part of the tenant protections is ensuring that a benefit is provided that adds a little level of security. If you are if you have some right to that property, you're invested in that property if. By adding the vesting period. And this conversation has come over the last few weeks. By having a vesting period of one year, you're essentially saying you still have that, Mr. Landlord? You still have that full right. But if you are. Continuing with this. You know, if you are continuing with this tenant, it's sort of unfair. After they vested a certain period of time to be able to circumvent the process or that benefit. So it says you are guaranteed a benefit once you vested in that property. And so you've got you know, you have time. Like, you know, I had a very candid conversation with a landlord last week, and they raised this issue that a part, a big part of being a landlord is curating your tenants, curating that experience. I understand that as a landlord, I get it. You want to get a person. I understand that. How long does it even take you to know whether, you know, whether this is a terrible person or whether all of everybody else's in the building is going to submit a notice? How long does it even take to know? You know, immediately? Oh, you know, within three months. Well. Let me just I mean, time out. Time out here, guys, please. Let's let the council deliberate as a deliberation. So my point is, there needs to be a limit on that power. That power you are a right is a right. At what point? The question for me is, at what point does

that right. Come in. So I understand you want to preserve the ability, someone's ability to curate their property. This is a question of simply, you know, simply does this benefit of relocation apply to you? Yes or no? And by adding a provision, it becomes a giant loophole where it's not a clear yes or no. So by saying, you know, you have that full power as it is today up until a certain point. But at some point, if someone's there, if they have when your lease and you walked away from it, I understand. But on that next day when you triggered a, you know, month to month or you renew their lease, that is a commitment to that family that they can start thinking long term there. That's that's the idea behind vesting. So I understand where you're going. I just wanted to write that from the state law. So, so so that's that. And then and then secondly, the other part of it is if there are, you know, state law does say if they have broken a rule or there's a you know, and I know, you know, if they've broken a rule, if you know, these are the rules you break in order to evict someone or you can go through your eviction, you can fix you know, you don't need just cause to go through the traditional eviction process. You can go through the process as outlined by state law. That is not changed. This is simply relocation. You can still evict someone. You can still have your three day notice. You can still go through your traditional eviction process. All this is is relocation. So not that you can't curate, but the relocation will just go in effect within a year. So that's the point. I would say that I think some of the need to for the ability for the landlord to exercise that right, it's already captured in the current motion. Okay. So so just for clarification, and I wasn't asking for friendly for the state law, I was just confirming that that's what they meant. So I appreciate you saying you accepted that part of my friendly but what I'm hearing is my friend and I and the city attorney's later my friendly was to modify some of those words if it wasn't state law, but if it's state law, obviously we can't change it. But here's the thing. I think the problem that I have with this discussion and I've shared it with the tenant advocacy folks, there is an assumption that people who own property have $4,000 or so to give for relocation. That is not true. That assumption is not fair. It's not fair. So if you and I, it may be true for some. It may be true for some, but it's not true for everyone. Okay. There is assumptions that are made all the time. Sometimes when I'm at the status, people say, Oh, you're from the third district. How would you know? I worked two jobs and my husband works two jobs so that we can pay our mortgage. And if one of us lost our job, we wouldn't be able to pay our mortgage. So please don't make assumptions about people on the other side. The problem I have here is, look, I'm saying I think it is unfair for rents to be increased abo ve 10%. I absolutely do. I agree with you with that. I know the property owners probably don't agree with me on that. And I'm saying that I agree with that. And I and I told the tenant relocation folks, I've told them very honestly about this. The problem that I have, which is a nonstarter for me, which is why, you know, you can give the conclusion of tonight whatever fancy, you know, title you want to give it and say, you know, so-and-so doesn't support tenants, but I'm telling you, the 10% cap I'm okay with I could live with the thing that I have a problem and I think it's fair. The thing I have a problem with is this deterrent for landlords to be able to create living spaces that work for them and their tenants. And when you own a property, when you own a property, you want to talk about losing sleep. You lose sleep. If you're a ten, if you're a landlord and you've got tenants in there who don't want to go home, they don't feel safe and you're going to tell them you don't feel safe. Great. You need to go to court and outline for the court everything you're jerk neighbor is saying to you that's racist, sexist, whatever the case may be that you. And your children have to be exposed to every day. Because if I want to get rid of that person and create a safer environment for you, I have to come up with $4,000. That's not fair. And property ownership should not be curtailed. And we should not be in a position where we are limiting the rights of property owners to create the living spaces that they have earned the right to create. So I have a problem with that. So my my friendly, just to be clear and Councilman Richardson's friendly said a tenant in good standing who determines the term good standing? Who determines that the landlord. Because if that's the case, then I would say a tenant in good standing as determined by the landlord. It's two provisions. It's a tenant in good standing is one whose number one lived in their unit more than a year. And to a person who has not triggered any of these nine who are listed and I'm okay with going with state law. So it's consistent, you know, so that state law provision, that's what good standing is, what it's about. It's not you don't have free range beyond that that you don't have free range beyond that year to just deem someone out, you know, you're not in good standing. I can skirt the law that we all worked hard to do. You can't do that. You can do that within a year, which is. Fair. But beyond that, then you're essentially opening a giant loophole that is difficult to defend. Okay, I understand what you're trying to say. So good standing is determined by who then. The two. Criteria. You've been there for 12 months, so you're vested in that property. If a short term or if you didn't make your lease or the end of the lease, you have the right to say you were not a good fit. We're not renewing your lease or going a month to month. But if if you are there. Beyond that period, there is an acknowledgment t hat they have been in good standing. Mm hmm. Mm hmm. You don't automatically, at the end of that lease, you get hit with relocation. You have a right to create your space. The question is the limits of that curation. The limits that create curation shouldn't be forever. Mm hmm. Right. It should be. It should be something reasonable to a family, like. Like living someplace at a year. You're still getting to know the neighborhood, your kids, your own, their first year school. Maybe you're getting to know the neighborhood, but at some point, you need that assurance that you can invest it, get your kid in the school and start investing in the neighborhood and so on. So it's a guarantee to those residents that at least if we displace you, you can still displace someone. At least we're going to help you out. There's a policy in place to help you out. That's it. May we not. Circumvent? Can we ask a quick question just for the vesting to make sure we understand? So under the substitute substitute motion, you would have a yearlong tenancy, a year long lease, and at the end of that lease, then the property owner would be able to say, you know, I'm giving you your 30 day notice because that would be state law, because you've lived there less than a year and we're not renewing and relocation benefits would not apply. Is that correct? Yes. So that one year for the one. Year, they would need to actually give that notice before the lease ended. Correct. So when they when the year when it was coming out, they would have made a determination that you were not a fit for the building and I'm just not going to extend your lease. But if it moves to a month to month tenancy, then you have accepted that person. They're there for longer of the year than relocation benefits would have. They they're entitled. They're vested in those benefits. So a landlord can still curate someone who's not a good fit. You still have that ability. There's just a limit on that. Some would say a year's too long, but a year is the average is the average lease in a city. I think that is a fair standard. So you have one year without any relocation benefits to be able to make that determination. And then after that, you could still ask the person to leave, but then relocation. But actually the provision. So the one place where relocation would happen is be what we said is if notice to vacate is issued, if it's a 60 unit building, everybody's, you know, if you're being relocated for rehab, somebody who's been there five years, you've been there two months. It's indiscriminate. In that case, it's a rehab you factor into your performance. And that's a different one I'm just talking about is you are not you don't have a reason. You're not is not one of these nine reasons you didn't raise them more than 10%. You were just exercising your right to say, I don't want to renew this initial fixed term, whatever a year. I don't want to move for beyond that year. You still have that power as a landlord. Un derstood. So, Councilman, I just had one clarification on that in terms of that that 12 month period you talked about that 12 month period being a time period where they weren't subject to it. And yet you said that the rehabilitation could occur at any time. Is that the exception? Is 12 months the only exception? That is a that. Is across the board. So three months you can say I'm rehabbing the building. If it's a rehab, if someone's buying the whole building or whatever. In that case, it's unfair. If the whole if the whole building or 50% of whatever it is, you know, displaced, why would we say someone? I mean, they didn't get a chance to even figure out their own initial first year lease. But that's not the only exception that the other exception would be a 10% increase in a year period. Those two those do the rent. So those are other triggers. So with respect to the trigger, we're talking about triggers. See, trigger C is what I'm talking about is that you need you're vested in a year, right. Trigger a is simple. It's rent it's 10% trigger to rehab. That's trigger to each of these triggers are standalone. You don't need two triggers. You just need the trigger one in order the trigger reload. So if a landlord just to be clear on the narrative, if a landlord offers someone a one year lease, if the landlord displaces them within that first year because they're rehabbing the property it triggers reload. If the landlord raises the rent more than 10% within that first year, it triggers reload. Otherwise, there's no scenario where reload is triggered within that first year. If you're not a good fit, you can still go through all the processes you already have 60 day notice all of that . But beyond that year is when that third trigger kicks in. Beyond the year, whether it's a lease or month to month. Just beyond that one year is when that third trigger kicks in. Yes. So what I'd like to do is, is offer a friendly that we bifurcate and remove that trigger for now the just cause trigger. Okay. I can't accept that. Okay. Okay. So we'd still have. I'm happy to refer it to housing neighborhoods the vetted a bit more. Sure, but I'm happy to do that if that moves this for tonight. But but we need to keep it included in this motion. Okay. But I would like the rent cap, the increase. What I'm saying is I want to keep the motion that hear your issue of evaluating that. There are additional questions there. That issue of evaluating that can go to housing neighborhoods. But what I'm talking about A, B and C, the integrity of this. I want to I want to keep that here tonight. Okay. So what would we send it to housing and neighborhoods for then if we referred. To additional discussion? I mean, any ordinance can be changed. Any point if you want to further evaluate, it's a new thing. And I'm not I mean, cutting it. I understand painting a difficult issue. Let's just let's just. No, I support is not punting. I support. It. I think that issue you put on the table, the j ustification for taking it off the table is what I think should be very obvious. Okay, well well, I have a problem with that. And I want to continue hearing from my colleagues. But I think, you know, at the end of the day, I think homeowners should have the property owners should have the ability and the flexibility to be able to give people sufficient notice to move without a relocation. So the other thing that I wanted to talk about is the number of units that would trigger relocation, because I do want to address the mom and pop. I know you said four and under. I would like to increase that to seven, the number of units being seven as triggering this. Would you be open to that friendly? So. So if. So what I'm looking at is the table on page eight. And I'm just calculating here, 37.8% of the units are for units building. So that's almost 40%. The population five units include 7.7. So that jumps up to what does that 44, 45%, then another 9.9, that's 55%. And then and then 4.8, you know, so that's 60. So that would exclude 60% of the housing in the city. I can't support that. The other friendly that I would like to make is on how the relocation is calculated. Yeah. And by the way, I don't know that I've interpreted the numbers exactly as you have, but I don't want to get into a table interpretation with. Disagreement with you. I read the numbers differently, but. But that's fine. I understand that.

Well. We can ask for clarity from staff. I'm looking at the table. So there are two columns there. I think you're there's a case where you both write. One is properties versus unit. So if you look at the number of properties, that was the calculation that Rex was making. I think you're looking at the number of total units. Yes. So we're. Both right. It's still a lot both. Right. Right. But I think if we're trying to address. The you know, what the column on the right side actually added up cumulatively units and properties, the columns of the right. So seven will be 60% of the units in the city would be excluded, which meant 30% of the properties. If you look at seven. The other way, 6% of the properties and 30% of the units. Would no would be excluded, not included. Excluded. That number goes up. I'm not reading it the same way as you, but I don't want to have a debate about that. I'm not reading the numbers the same as you. Okay. Simple question. The last column here says units in the property size and below that says and below. Meaning everything under that unit amount is excluded from the policy. Is that correct? Hold on. Let me just get clarity. Yes, that's correct. Okay. So this column, this number where where's the seven units is 30.8%. Does that mean 30.8% of the units in the city would be excluded from the policy under the proposal. Of all old buildings with four units or more. It's a yes or no answer. 30.8. All this is the number cumulative of everything. Seven units and below about that. Yes. Okay. I understand. And then the next number next next to it is 60.3, which is the properties this size and below the percentage of properties in the city below. So that's below. So if we were to say if you were saying seven was the beginning of the of the. Mm hmm. Then you would go up a level and we'll say 55.4% of the properties will be excluded. And 27% of the of the units of that site would be excluded. I think that's that probably excludes a greater number than I'm comfortable with so that I can't accept that. Okay. I understand that. But I just want to make sure that our intent for this item is about housing capacity, which means the number of units and the people living in those units would be the intent. Why we're here tonight, right? The not the number of properties, but the number of units. Isn't that why we're here? To talk about housing availability. The unit? No, we're talking about relocation assistance in the case of rents increasing, in the case of displacement due to rehabilitation. And thirdly, someone's rights to the property beyond a year. Those are the three triggers. For people living in the units. Yes. Those people in those units would be excluded from those rights. Okay. So and that's in addition that that would be just so we know, that's in addition to single family duplex and tri place, we're not reflected here. So this is not including that we've already exempted all the mom and pops. Right. As defined as three and below as well as four units. If you live on a site or feature, only one, which it's hard to quantify what that number is, but that waiver is there. So there's also this 30% of the exclusion is probably on top of I mean, I don't know what the housing stock of one, two and three units, but I imagine it's probably 30%. So this will exclude likely 60% of the units in the city. Hmm. Okay, well, that's not exactly what this chart says, but it doesn't matter. We don't have to. We can agree to disagree on that. But can I ask city staff what is the relevance legally of ownership of five units or more in terms of property versus investment, personal property versus investment? Because there is a legal significance to that. So I don't know about the legal significance, but what we've found in our research is when you're lending and when you're actually buying a home or buying one of these properties, there's a distinction between four units and below. It tends to be more of a private homeowner loan and and six or a mortgage or five or more goes into the commercial lending. So there's different interest rates, there's different proforma, there's different types of of standards that you would that you would apply to a bank to purchase those. So the five or more is the triggering. Correct? So HUD still considers a multifamily to be four or more, as does the city's local ordinance for commercial land lending. It's five or more. That gets you into a different category of lending. Okay. All right. Well, like I said, I would vote immediately tonight for the rental cap incre ase. But I cannot support the what I what I believe to be just cause eviction at this time. So unless unless we're able to buy for Kate, then we're going to find ourselves in the position again where as a council, we could take very strong action, probably unanimous action, to move the needle on an item that's very important to the city. And we can bifurcated and we can continue to study the other aspects of it and maybe have a meeting of the minds on that. But absent trying to work to reach common ground for me, I cannot compromise my own beliefs for the purpose of reaching a common goal. That's just sausage making that I'm not comfortable with. So thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Councilmember Gringa. And after that, hello. Good morning. I stated before I began, I want to continue to thank the people in the audience. You're still here. It's been a long discussion.

Long night. We're still. Negotiating here again, to a certain extent, what's going on with this issue. Beryl, Kiran, agreed that those days because those in the southern market gathered in the spring. Yes. Historic is in them. I'm with the PC but these criteria Larry e la plastic exulting in the irritates me of the PC bit of almost as required or allocation. We are going to allow the propose not always on the side of releases but aluminum as well as to their real goal. I would almost certainly die L.A. Basically what I said is I'm thinking of those people who came here with Spanish speakers and saying, Thank you for being here, and that not everybody's going to be happy with what we come out with today. But I'm hoping that we're going to come up with something that's going to be acceptable to everybody. But based on a currency we just had right now, we know that there's not going to be a whole lot of I mean, there's still some issues that we need to work out. My issue that I have here is that this whole policy deals with people. We're talking about tenants, we're talking about owners. We're talking about what's going to make this policy acceptable to everybody. And we're not quite there yet, but I think that we're heading in the right direction in terms of trying to address all of the concerns of everybody involved. And it's very complex and it's very difficult. My my issue is that, you know, I don't want to tonight if we don't agree with something tonight that we're going to throw out the baby with the bathwater, because there are so many important points in this in this audience building that we're doing, which we have to do it. Ordinance building right here is, you know, when we look at the set of sites that that we that are being recommended, we haven't discussed that much. But the set of site that we're going to have for display, seniors, I think we need to keep that there. We need to find those those moneys so that we could make sure that this place, seniors or displaced people with disabilities, are taken care of. And we need to make sure that because we know that the reason

we're here is because there have been some bad players out there. I mean, if not for the bad players, we would not be having this discussion tonight because we would have already taken care of this long ago. So this is an effort by tenant rights, individuals, apartment owners and the council to come to a meaningful place so that we can make sure that all our residents have a place to stay and and or if they are being displaced or dislocated to another location, that they are being done respectfully and done with, at least with the assistance that they deserve, because they're no fault of their own, maybe. Or even if there is a fault of their own, they're they're being moved because they need to look like I'm in favor of the motion that's on the floor right now. I think that we're looking at the fact that the the nine triggers that we're looking at are state law or federal law. That's what it is, what it is, and that's what we have to live with. Now, there are some main minutia issues that we could deal with to adjust those triggers. Then I'm all for it as well. But I think right now, for purposes of moving this forward and moving it along, I think that the motion on the floor is acceptable to me and I'm going to go and support it. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Councilmember. Super now. Thank you. I have kind of a general question for staff and that is a lot of the speakers tonight. And thank you all for showing up tonight and speaking out. Talk about this term unintended consequences. And I don't know if staff has addressed that, but I'll ask them right now. I realize that speculative when you're putting this program together, but can you kind of explain how you looked at those factors and what you did in the report to compensate or address the what a lot of folks talked about is inherent issues that might lead to unintended consequences. Well, that's a pretty broad question, sir. But to do our best to sum up, we did look a lot at unintended consequences. We realize there is no perfect policy that you can't plan for everything. But part of our thought approach was, you know, as we showed those data showing that there was investment in buildings and that there's turnover and rehabilitation, that's a good thing, actually. You know, it does relate to some displacement. So we need to make sure we're taking care of displacement. But we want to encourage investment in buildings. We want to encourage that people are rehabilitating. So we wanted to create a policy that was not rent control, that allowed people to raise rents if they needed to, to make up that financial investment that they're putting into the building. So that would be one. You know, we also wanted to look at how in our recommendations how many people would be either included or excluded, and how do we make this easy and especially for tenants. So they're going to have to look in their lease and say, do I qualify or do I not qualify? So we looked at as unintended consequences of we could try to hone it and make it very specific. But then how does a tenant know what they're entitled to? We also looked at some of the seniors and, you know, it'd be nice to give

extra benefits to seniors, but maybe there's some downside where somebody might make an action and not consistent with federal law, but they might make that action anyway. So we did our best to look at all of those, but know that there's no perfect solution to any of those issues. We can just try to put sensible solutions forward. Okay. Thank you. I realize that was broad, but that that concept is very broad. And that is, I believe well, it would be my greatest fear. And I assume the fear of my colleagues is that we don't want to set something in motion that backfires, that because I think we're all on the same page in terms of protections and whatnot, I think we just disagree maybe on how we get there are, as I said, the unintended consequences of a policy set forth sometime after 11 p.m., after a long debate. And and I think just just the polarization here says to me that maybe this wasn't ready for prime time, that it needed more vetting at at the committee level. So. The other question I have and and as long as Tom Modica is answering, I'll address this directly to you again. I think, you know, I'm all about efficiency and streamlining. And I really do appreciate the fact that the four unit threshold was four, that it fits into the existing parameters of the way we do business. But I think what it did not address is this investment piece that at five units you're in a different category. And if we set forth a policy that discourages the small investor, the mom and pop, and I just think of that as that four plex as an entry level investment. Do you see a way around that? Or maybe that is like a friendly amendment that I should should suggest that we go to five units or above? Yeah, I again, I think it's up to the Council to determine the level at which it applies again for would be would be pretty easy because it lines up with prep and you know Councilmember Price mentioned seven you know in the report we mentioned ten five would be another number as well. It's just how many people do you want it to apply to and what are those tradeoffs? I guess that's my point, is that it might be the most efficient at this snapshot of today. What we don't know, what we're not gaining by not encouraging that level of investor. As I said, it's it's very complex, probably more than what this report wanted to include or had the capacity included 220 pages. I guess a lot was in there, but maybe not everything. Okay, a different topic on the vesting piece, just as it's been a long time since I've been a renter. But I remember relationships going bad after after a year, after two years, when someone gets a brand new car and parks it in in the parking lot and they get dawdling, suddenly there's a fight among the folks in one building. So I think I'm not sure what other municipalities do. I think San Diego's two years. So that's something that I would want to take a look at, too. So if that could be a friendly also, I think that's it. I think that's all I have for now. Thank you. So can I just clarify? There's two requests and you're friendly to Councilmember Richardson. It's to increase. I'm sorry. Applied to tenant relocation to five units or more instead of four units or more. And also to make the was intended in good standing would then be two years instead of one year. Correct. So okay, so let's handle the two years instead of one year because the other one I want to I want to I want to talk about the other one, the four versus five years. But a two years puts one year. That one I feel a bit more uncomfortable with. But. But I feel like we need some time to think about that. Here's why. A one year lease is almost the standard instrument when renting, and that's a decision point. It's an already established decision point. Two year lease or a two year period is not an already established decision point in your chain. You're adding a big change the system. I think I'm uncomfortable with that. Like a one year. Okay. I'll give you I'll give an example. I'll give an example. I want to share this example tonight, but I think it's relevant. When I got my first apartment in Barnard Circle in Bixby. No. I had rented from some mom and pops. And, you know, me and some roommates had some places, some houses in Los Angeles, you know, in college and stuff. But when I got my first place on my own, I went to a property management company and, you know, and they said, hey, you never ran it before. You kind of a risk. We're taking a risk on you, but you have a good job. Your credit's okay. You know what? We're going to take a risk on you apply. You know, you apply for this one. This one. Okay, I got that one. And when I went in that you got it, I felt great. I got it. I went in, upturn in my deposit. And, you know, that person looked at me and said, We're taking a risk on you. Somebody owns this building, we're managing that for you. So make sure you're paying your rent on time. Make sure you're being neighborly, make sure you're not having crazy parties. They coached me to how to be a good tenant in that, and I was held to that. And I knew that there was a decision point on whether I was a good fit in that first year and I extended it. I understood that because they did not have to extend, at least to me. I understood that. I think that is a that is a conversation that happens every day is that decision point. I think if we get into one year to year, 18 months, all that it requires a bit more thought because you're changing an already established system. So Councilman Super and I would say that is something that I'm

. That would be something I would say if you want to add the motion in that part to committee, I think that makes sense. So so that would unfortunately, that would be a no or send it to committee on that particular piece at this point. Happy to continue discussing at some other point. But tonight, I think it's fair given this is a big policy and we're trying to land this plane and get it, get a productive conversation going one decision point in the city and then so on the other piece. It was the was year of the peace. It was a. Five. Four, four versus five units. You know, I want to hear from one of my colleagues, and I don't want to make that decision alone. So I want to hear from other colleagues if that's something that they want to do. I think the staff made a strong point for. We spent some time thinking about the mom and pop stuff. But if that brings more council members on board. Well, actually, no, no. You know, I think about it is that let me be clear, it's 37% of these properties and 16% just for you. And it's not for and below is just for unit buildings. That's correct. The four unit buildings are 11,552 units total. 11,000 units would be the exception to the exemption. And and if I can add, as we understand the substitute substitute motion, the original motion from staff was include everything from four units and above. The substitute substitute motion creates an exemption for a property where it's your first building and your only building. So that would likely still allow somebody to get that commercial loan and get that loan. It's not a commercial loan because they would not be affected by relocation. They couldn't do that for their second building. That is for. Their own property. Very good point. Very good point. Completely lost in all of this. If you are a monitor in terms of this is your first building, if you're going for FHA, you actually have to live on that site for FHA. So those are the first time homeowners this qualifies for units and under you're already exempted from this. So what? So I would ask, was that quite the intent of that question? Was it to protect mom and pops? Well, yeah, it is to protect the small investor, but all the other things that kick in like GI Bill loans and whatnot. And if so, we want to I don't want to create a disincentive for folks maybe buying another four plex. So that's all I'm doing. Okay. So let me just ask quickly to staff. Staff, is there a disincentive to the VA process? Is there a disincentive if there is relocation, a local policy on relocation? Two of the loan. I don't know if we know the answer to that question. We don't we haven't research that to that. Councilman super. Now, this decision, because it's 11,000 units, it needs a little bit more discussion. I want to hear from staff what the specific impact is on from the standpoint of VA loans and all those special loans. Right now, FHA would be exempt because your first time that's your first time home homeowner. If you're is you

r primary residence, it's exempt. It already exempted or if is your only property. So if you are that investor who is getting into it, it is already exempt it with the current motion in front of us. So most of the scenarios you have are exempt in the very narrow area. You're talking about the VA loan. We want to find out a bit more from staff. So I don't think that we should include it tonight. I think we should ask that question. A partner with you on that. We should figure that out. I don't know that we should exclude 11,000 additional units based on a very narrow question. That's probably 100 of those or 200 of those. There may be a way to exempt that scenario. Okay. So. You know. Because if we figure it out, let me just ask that. Is there a way to craft something that says if you are a violent villain, you know, if you're a villain? And is there a way to craft that? You know, I. Think this would be some would have to come back to you. Okay. Audience returns for us to really specifically look at the VA loan as we understand the substitute substitute. Most of those properties if if you're an entry level and you haven't gotten into the four unit complex before, you would be exempted because you you wouldn't have to pay the tenant relocation. You would fit one of the exemptions. So we we can certainly look at that if that was a. Form that I don't think is really my point. My point is, is is that looking at raw numbers here on a chart or we want to fit into our current inspection program, I think that's overly simplistic and it doesn't look at the overall investment picture. And I just I'm trying to say that if we have small investors who can invest in four plex, I think that's a good thing and I wouldn't want to take away the incentive for that. So that's my. Point. I understand. I understand. So so has that been added to the friendly for us to research the VA loan and and the effect that I would. I would accept that friendly to research that if we find a soft landing I'm happy to include it. Okay. Okay, Councilmember. Next up is Councilman Mongo. So let me help with that. My husband's a veteran, and sometimes when he he owned his first home, he actually didn't even use the VA loan because a little worse deal for him. I'm not joking. It actually cost him more to have used the VA loan. His second home, he did use the VA loan and it cost him $8,000 in closing costs because the VA loan wasn't set up properly. And so the VA loan thing isn't always the best marketer to support what Councilmember Supernova said. 58,765 units would be covered, and I think that's something to still celebrate. If we went with the five unit, it would take out the complexities of if you live there, if you don't live there. I think what we're trying to do is just create a clean, easy policy and the five unit is just a cleaner, easier than trying to game the system and a landlord moving on site and all these other things. But so I hope you'll reconsider the five unit. Let me go back to where I wanted to start. I want to start by thanking everyone for being here and thanking the staff. The staff have really, really taken a lot of questions, at least for me, over the last six months. I've had meeting after meeting after meeting because understanding the details, especially before the report came out, was very challenging and what the possibilities were, because I was trying to do my research in advance, because doing research in ten days is very difficult. So I really appreciate all the help that they gave. I really appreciate all of my colleagues who've either come to my house because I have a newborn at home. I want to talk about the item or met with me with me and my newborn to I'm really go into the details and I can see that that's coming out, especially in my talks with Councilmember Richardson. A couple of things that I think are important. We want to talk about tenants having the security of knowing where they're going to live. And so what I would ask is kind of a hybrid between San Diego and Redwood, where if at the end of that first year, you as a landlord offer them a lease again that that vesting period would extend. And the reason I ask that is because situations change all the time. Boyfriends and girlfriends get in fights. An ex-wife, a current wife or a current husband becomes an ex-wife or an ex-husband that causes problems at the property consistently. And these situations cause havoc to the lives of the people that are living there. And they're not always the fault of the tenant and they're not always the fault of the other people in the building. And I know 12 months sounds like a good amount of time, but it really isn't. And so if you're offering them a second 12 month lease, which is what Redwood does, Redwood says, okay, you're in a 12 month lease. If you want them to leave, you can have that option or you can offer them another 12 month lease to make your vesting period 24 months. So then you give that tenant security of not being on a month to month because that security is really what they're asking for. There are multiple buildings in the city that have been vacated with no complaints from the tenants. But in those circumstances the landlords gave six months notice. If you're giving tenants six months notice about either a rent increase or a vacate, they have time to plan. They're not legally required to give that vacate notice, but they're doing it because they love their tenants and they know their kids coming home from college and needs a place to live, or they know that they want to rehab the unit in a in six months and they're saving the money to do that, or they're changing out some major component of the building that would be difficult to do with tenants living there. There's been so many of these buildings that talks about Class C are the ones that are turning over. A lot of those are currently receiving notice. There are many of them currently in the sixth District that have receive d notice from USAA that they're no longer going to insure them because of the knob and tube electrical. So you have all these landlords who are on the hook for 14 to $24000 of electrical rewiring for these buildings, or they can't get insurance to protect the tenants. And that's a tough place to be in because now on top of that, you're going to have to give tenant reload to those individuals. And so I think that that's a tricky place to be because some of these individuals may have been in the apartment for three years already, but this policy is going into place today, and USAA and these other insurance companies are only just doing that now. And because of the age of the housing stock in Long Beach, we're kind of in this tough position where we don't want to leave those tenants in a position where they're in these buildings that are now considered to be a fire hazard. But the landlords may not have saved the money. And so I'm going to give an example. There was an article on the press telegram a few months ago, and the individual who owned that building many, many years ago is actually someone my family knew. I didn't realize it was him, but he passed away and when he passed away his wife inherited the property and it was multiple units. And the tenants would call and say. So and so. I just want you to know the ceiling fan is out, and we need it repaired. And she'd never gotten into the landlord game. She inherited these properties, and she would say, How much does the ceiling fan cost? I can get one at Lowe's for $75. And how much does the cost to have an electrician install it? $75. Great. Just take 150 off your rent next month and please take care of it for me. Well, that went on for five or six years. And recently she sold the building. And when she sold the building, the new landlord. Came upon thousands and thousands of dollars of rehab, not rehab that would prevent the loan, but rehab that made it. Quality of life issues, terrible showerheads and toilets that were very old and antiquated, that didn't flush well. And you couldn't flush disposable napkins and other things. And so this landlord just wanted to recoup their cost. So you take the mortgage, plus the new baseline insurance, which is significantly higher on the new landlord because they weren't because of the property transfer, the Prop 13 starts new. And then on top of that, they had $40,000 in rehab that they amortized into a five year plan to recoup that cost, knowing that in five years, they're still going to need another roof and all these other things. And all they did was set the rents below market. To cover those costs, and it was a significant rent increase to the tenants. And so the challenge there became. That. Now, this landlord who's just a dentist in our community, just a regular guy trying to create. Some security for his own retirement because he doesn't have a retirement. He's an independent business owner. Now he looks like this horrible, bad person when in a ctuality, he was just trying to make a small investment. And he purchased a property from someone who had not maintained it. And so in those cases, we're really looking to turn over that housing stock and give people a break. And so I would I would talk about a couple of things. To be in good standing. I like it to include that you pay rent on time every month. If you don't pay rent on time every month, that you would not be in good standing. Because just because a tenant doesn't pay on time every month doesn't mean that landlords don't give them an exception. What does that a friendly. Yes. Time out. Now, come on, guys. Hey. So I'm going to kick that. That part. I want to hear from the city attorney there. So I'm from Linn County. I'm sorry. Linda, let me just late. Linda, please. Okay. So when you said that the you know, all those criteria on state law, that was state law. That's nine causes from. Correct? That's correct. Okay. In that state law, I believe. So failure to pay rent is a part is one of those. Is that correct? That's correct. So this is already reflected. So what would be the difference between what's there and what you're proposing? So let's say I have a tenant who is on a one year lease and they fail to pay rent in the six month. Period over. In the sixth month. So say again. I have a I have a property where I have a tenant and in the sixth month they don't pay rent on time. That's okay. So rents do. Comes and goes. Call the tenant. Hey, I didn't receive rent today and they say I'm good for the money. Can you give me seven days? Now, as the landlord, you want to give them a break? You have to give them. But then you're on the hook for below. If they. So you're saying. Six months in that scenario, you don't have to pay below. You? You would not because. I'm not admitting the tenant. I'm not evicting the tenant. I'm going to give them a break. No, what I'm telling you is already under that 12 month vesting established. You don't have to have the good standing. You don't have the content. You don't have to continue your lease with that person. I know, but I want to continue the lease because I want to give the tenant a break. I want to give you a tenant the opportunity. I want. To want them to get the rights of relocation. Subtlety. They have a lease for 12 months. Yes. In the sixth month, they don't pay rent on time. They're going to be a week or two weeks late or they're going to pay me in payments over the month to get back because they lost their job or whatever. So now I'm being a heartfelt landlord to give them that break. My options right now are evict them and they get no tenant relief and I put them out on the street. We don't want landlords to do that. We want the landlords to give them a break. And then at the end of the 12 months, be able to say. I don't owe you, Rilo. Ah. I want to give you another leaf or I want to give you a chance. But if you choose not to take another leaf, I have the ability to get rid of you witho ut reloading. So you're leveraging that tenet. No, I'm giving them a break instead of evicting them. Okay. So in that scenario, in that scenario, if it is already captured within those things in state law, your ability to to move forward and let that person go without reloading, that that ability, those nine things does not have it's not it's not subject to I mean, that those nine is captured within the nine reasons that does that is not captured within 12 months. You have that forever. Those nine reasons, if you what you're saying is they're not in good standing because they were late on their rent. Four. Months ago. They were late on their rent. So do I owe reload now? So the whole point of this was that we're not actually doing enforcement internally. Right? So if you were going to claim that you need to be able to defend that in case you were taking the court because you have private action in the retainer piece, that's a question of the landlord. So I think the land they have that will that will take that will happen in civil court. That will not happen here at council. I understand that. Yes, that's that's the point. I don't think that the more we deviate from state law on that, the more we insert ourselves into that civil process. No. Okay. So you're from the city. Let's hear from. Let me try it again. Because I may have made a mistake. Let me just ask a very simple yes. Or they breached the lease or they breached the nine things are there. But but they remedied they remedied it. And in state law, there's a lot of preclusion. You want to hold them accountable to that? No, I'm not trying to. Hold accountable here. Well, yeah, I want to start again on their 12 month vesting. So, I don't know, 12 months. That's what I would offer. How how how would that be? I want to ask this, Miss Tatum or Rich, how would that be handled? And that's a very technical you know, I think it's. I think it's a really good question. It's a great. Question. And I'm not sure how it would be handled. That's why we're conferring over here. You know, these nine these nine items from the civil code, correct me if I'm wrong, I think are intended to to establish why landlords can evict the tenant. We're not really talking about that. We're talking about payment of tenant reload. Yes, ma'am. There's also a provision in option two, I think, which says that landlords need to give tenants the ability to cure any of these nine violations in order to be entitled to tenant relief. Mm hmm. I don't. I don't exactly know how that square. So. So that would lead me to believe. Well, you have to give them the opportunity to cure a failure to pay rent. Presumably, they already would have otherwise. They likely would have been evicted and they would have been late on some earlier month. They've since brought rent back up to two hole, made the landlord whole and I would say that doesn't apply however. However, that doesn't really square with the other two through nine. If someone has comm itted violence or assault and are convicted of the same and they're no longer doing it, I don't know that that really cures the fact that they committed violence or. Committed a crime six months ago. That's right. They got convicted of it six months later. It's still legitimate. I would say that it would be a legitimate to to deny that person reload whenever if they were convicted of a crime while they were living at at your in your unit. Right. So so I it's actually a really good question, Councilwoman. I don't want to get people out on the street. And this is this would cause that I'm trying to prevent unintended consequences. Adding additional language won't make it. I don't think adding additional language at this stage helps clarify that. What I do want to understand is what is the implication for the civil process between a landlord and tenant if it's clearly already defined that if you failed to pay rent and you breached your contract? I want to know. I want to understand. I want to fully understand what that means. I don't think changing the specifics of these nine circumstances is necessarily fatal because, like I say, the nine circumstances under the civil code or eviction and we're not talking about eviction here, we thought that it made good sense to just follow those nine items out of the civil code. But Councilmember Mungo raises a point where maybe it would. Add more detail. So here's the detail I'd like to add to my friendly. I'd like number one to state failed to pay rent timely within the prior 12 months that's it that gives landlords the ability to keep the tenant and give them another chance. If they break rent within the past 12 months. Yep. So, okay, let's talk about this. So if you break rent within 12 months of that incident, that specific incident, you already have your 12 year vesting. Let's say you break rent and your 12 month vesting. You're vested. You break your rent in that situation. Someone could evict you. Someone could. They could displace you at that, but they could give you a 60 day notice already. Yeah. This says you can get your status back. Mm hmm. After. After you've been in good standing for 12 months. Mm hmm. That makes sense to me. Awesome. Thank you. That makes sense to me. That's accepted. Wonderful. Next. Right now, tell me what the income qualification is to get re low. No, I'm not sure that I. Hang on. Let me hold on. I want to get from staff that they're okay before I say so. I'm okay. I think that's a good question. I'm not sure I'm aware that you two are agreeing with one another, but. You were up in the. Light. When my understanding of Councilwoman Mongo if a tenant fails to pay rent, is issued a three day notice to pay or quit. And then they do pay. But they were late and they pay the late fee. But now they're in good standing. I think what you're saying is they can still be denied reload in the next 12 months because they did fail to pay rent at some point. You're stating it as the glass half empty. I think Rex and I are stating it as the glass. Ceiling as you stated, which is I accept until I get. Which is if they within the next 12 months maintain timely rent, they would then return. It resets after. Their reload. Well, I guess the next question is the next question at the way it is today. But

Rich the way it is today. What what's in front of us? The steps up. If someone breaks their rent breaks, you know, they're they don't pay rent. And you don't choose to issue a three day pay or quit. They just you just have it documented today and you want to relocate that person six months from now, three months from now, and evoke that as the as the reason. Is there a sunset on that existing? Is there a sunset or is there some statute of limitations or some period of time a landlord has in order to trigger that under what what we have proposed? That is unclear. I mean. It would have to get sorted out in the in the ordinance. It would have to get sorted out in the ordinance or in the in the court. That's right. Okay. So here's what I want to do. I would like to give directions to staff that put some very clear definition or come back. Come back, because this has to come back. Researched this piece in addition to I heard a few other things that came up that we weren't ready to put in, but we might want to research it. This may need to come back along with the piece that Daryl, that Councilman Super and I was talking about with the lending stuff. We want those to come, but we want to get some clarity before we stick this in. I think it's a fair question, but let's get give them some time to research that piece and let's set it up to a way when it comes back to council, because it's going to you know, you guys are in draft, it's up it comes back to council that we can very easily say, okay, put this and take that out. You understand? Yep. So we'll come back with some research on that and then we will. We need to put something in the ordinance for you to consider on first reading. So we'll give you the what we've come up with. We'll put it in the ordinance and then you can tell us if we got. It or not. And we want to get I think the idea here is you want clear rules of the road for both sides. Yeah. Yeah. And to the extent that significant changes are made after the first reading, I think everyone understands we'll have to do another first reading. That's just the process. And this is to realign your status for only the item that has to do with pain. The healing process. Is it for all of the items in in your notice to vacate or just for paying it? I think what what she's saying is under that scenario, are we telling landlords, if you break one of these, you have to kick this person out and they're saying, we don't want to have to kick this person out. We want to keep this person. And under that scenario, do they still have full rights and privileges? I want to understand, do they have full rights and privileges? You know, if that's the case, the

y have it. How long is that last? Can someone invoke evoke this a year later? And the really, you know, if, you know, kicking them out for a different reason, how long is that? Like we need to understand that and do some research. That would be more than just rent. It would be any of these items. And what I'd like to do also, I know this is part of a back and forth between Councilman Mongo and Councilman Richardson. Councilman Mongo has the floor. So I just so I know that you guys have both been okay with each other clarifying things, so that's fine. But, Councilman, I know we can we can cue back up, but I want to make sure that we have your motion locked in. You okay? You clearly accepted to look at some of our research that comes on Mango's. Asking us to do that will come back at the same time or before the first reading obviously is coming forward. But I want to I have people that have queued up again. I still want to speak and and go from there, so. Okay, great. No, no, that's fine. So what is the current income qualifier for tenant relief? In your sub some. In I picked up the same foundation that was established in the in the main motion and the sub and that motion did not have an income qualification. It simply said, no, it did not. So she so she did not say, I want category A or category B. She said, these are the components that I would like and income was not a factor in that. So that is not a part of this motion. So. I have a challenge giving. Reload to people who make $180,000 a year. Let's say I have a problem. That's not the intent of why we're here. The reason we're here is because landlords were coming in, vacating entire buildings. And kicking people out. And those individuals were unable to find alternatives because they were low income individuals who needed help. So I'd like to ask that we look at either 60% of am I or the same standard that the housing authority uses, which is that more than 40% of their income is spent on rent. So I'm not supportive of that in principle. And here's why. Simply simply, if we get to if relocations would be a very simple trigger and it's the same justification that Councilwoman Pierce said when she said, I don't want people factor in whether you're single or disabled because they get additional pay that that would make us more susceptible to discrimination. All this would do was, you know, if your eligibility criteria as a renter, it was two times the rent. Right. And that is really I'm going to make it three times the rent or I'm going to make four times that completely understand. So that that part that part is I don't support that part. So there's currently a nonprofit organization called Brilliant Corners that works with our housing authority and Brilliant Corners. Did I say the right one? Yes. Okay. Brilliant corners. And what they do is they execute our funds to make sure that when you have a person who's homeless, they work with the landlord to hold the unit open and supplement that income

e. I would love to find a way to see if they would be a good agency to potentially disperse the senior additional 2000 and the disabled additional 2000. But then I'd also like to say that if you don't income qualify for the reload, that the reload goes to that agency instead. So that that would fund the future reloads that we need or add ons for seniors and disabled. Because what I worry about is we're creating this need with as seniors and disabled. That is coming from a fund that's currently helping our homeless. And I don't want to take any funding away from the homeless. I'd actually like to add into it. I know that a lot of people here were supportive of a fund and without creating a new tax. This would be a way where you wouldn't create a second class citizen out of a low income runner, and it would go to an agency that's already got experience providing these types of funding gaps. And then it also ensures that people who make gobs of money aren't necessarily going to get another $4,000, which is a lot of money for individuals. Who may not need it. Okay. So that would be putting it to a fund for the individuals who really do need it. Okay. So one of the principles that was put forward in the presentation tonight was the direction here was not to create an apparatus that has you hire additional staff or whatever. This would not be. The new contract. If you're you're proposing pay the reload to a different agency. That already exists and already does, that. There would have to be some kind of additional fee for that. So you're saying add a fee on top of reload on the property owners to manage that? No. So how would it be managed? How would they pay their how would they get paid to do it? They would take a percentage out of that fund. So let's say you have a ten unit building of the ten unit building, five of them are low income, five of them are non low income. Let's say that everybody rents for market rent of 1000 a month. That would mean $2,000 would go to these five tenants and this $10,000 would go to the fund. A percentage would be taken off the top for admin. The rest would be there for seniors and disabled. No. I'm comfortable with the proposal to have a separate fund for seniors and disabled that we're going to go and identify funding sources because the benefit to that is the property owners are going to have to pay at this point. Like what? Like they don't have to pay for that additional bonus. We're going to go find state, county, local dollars for that fund. It will be completely independent, but that service will be offered to them unless we can figure out a same model for this for low income individuals. I think that I'm not supportive of that at this time. So you are supportive of individuals who currently make over $100,000 a year getting below. So that's a political question. It's just one to go there. So you want to go there? If someone gets is relocate relocated because of some condition. If you're making $100,000 and let

's say you have a family of four or let's say that, you know, whatever, $100,000 for a family of four. If you're living condition changes, are you entitled to a benefit? The answer is yes. You're you're in your position is changed and it isn't to your fault. So you're a single person living in Beaumont? Sure. The answer is if it's political, if it's making cover to vote. A certain way, it's not making whatever I really believe. Very reasonable and fair. And the questions you're asking tonight. The questions you're asking tonight are there. I think we're going down a different rabbit hole. I don't want to go that direction. I'm just trying to say that if there's money that's going to be given, I would hope that we would put it in a fund to protect those that are the most vulnerable and not be paying it out to individuals who aren't an example of that. It doesn't need an example. Okay. So just just go down my list of quick. So you're currently at four units, but we're exploring a five units as an option, which would still protect 58,000 residential or residential units in the city. And then number two was. I was hoping to increase the vesting period. I think San Diego has a three year vesting period and two year period. And so I would like to consider a two year vesting period. I have that conversation with Councilman Silver now. We landed on something on that. No, you just rejected the friendly, right? No, I asked them to take a little. We already have, like, a decision point. Okay. In order to go further, let's do some research. Okay. That's good. And then we're going to do the research on the rolling 12 months if they don't pay rent so that you don't have to evict people immediately. Staff will clarify that the rules of the road are. Clear, and. Then there would be no income qualifier at this time for Reno. No, it's a bigger conversation we have to figure out. Okay. One last thing. Potentially. I think that there are individuals who would. Prefer. Security of time over money. And I think that's why in the case of the many units that were vacated in the third district, we didn't receive a lot of complaints. They received six months notice. So I'd be interested in finding a way where if you gave the six months notice of a rental increase or the six months notice of declining tenancy, if that could replace three low. So we actually posed this quite I think that the response from staff was that that requires state legislation in order to have something in lieu of reload. So council I mean, excuse me, Councilwoman. Ms.. Tatum, would you would you elaborate on that part about the state legislation? That is one of the things that is one of the recommendations that we include in the city's legislative agenda to support a a a minimum 90 day notice period for evictions. Right now, the eviction, the period of your notice is based upon the amount of the rental increase, if that's the trigger. So we'd like to see that that time frame be 90 days minimum. And

I'm not asking for that. I actually am not asking for what we're going to do at the state level. I'm saying as a differentiator at the local level, we are creating a policy that is not a state policy related to relocation. And so. As a tenant. I would have rather known six months in advance that I needed to find a new place because with six months notice, I can do better research on opportunities. I can wait for a better unit. I can find other things. So I was just saying I'm not and I'm not asking for there to be an increase in the the noticing. What I'm stating is if the landlord would prefer to get give six months notice of a rental increase in excess of 10%, or if the landlord would prefer to notify their tenant. With six months notice that they would not be renewing the lease. That that could be in lieu of rilo. Which is not required under state law. Yeah, I don't know if that's legal. It's completely legal. I want to hear from a city attorney. It's a discretion. Yeah, that's right. So it would be a way to get out of relocation. You could opt out of relocation effectively by giving six months notice. Absolutely. And I think that might work. But it's something that I can't give you a firm answer on. But you can bring. It back in when we come back with all these options. Well. I would I would love research. So so we explored this conversation of if you had more notice, could it be in lieu of reload another process and we got back was that is an attempt to go outside of state law. And so we need well, that's why I want to hear I want this to be vetted out by the attorneys before we add this in. Right now, we have I think we're at a good foundation and we have some great questions that were raised tonight. And this needs to be looped into that set of questions because it's conflicting. As soon as that was left and some people start nodding their heads and say, this is it's a conflict state law. People in the audience I don't I don't I don't know. We need to let the attorneys have some time to vet that. So. Our city attorney just commented that it is possible. But what I'm open to. It might be possible. Okay. I'm sorry. I don't want to be pinned down. Rex may well be right. That step. Well, I'm sure he's right. That staff told him that such a buyout, so to speak, would violate state law. And that may be correct. It's a pretty specific question that I think I can get an answer to. I just don't have it right now. And it's a form for that can come back. Great. And if at this point it's not clear whether that's. Illegal, but if it is not illegal, is that something you'd be willing to include? I think I'm willing to have the conversation if that if that is something that's that legal. I think the premise of what you're saying, six months notice that I need my place back is a lot of time. I get the sentiment there. There's this the angel. The angel is in the details. So we need to find out first if that's legal. And you said that was your last. That wa s my last one. Okay. So for clarification, we need we need to know when we're writing this ordinance, do we research that and put it in if it's possible or if we just do two from four? It leaves a lot of ambiguity. So what what do you want us to do? I want you to write the motion that's on in front of us. I have not added that to the motion. That's what we needed to know. Thank you. Right. Okay. So. A couple of things. I wanted to be supportive tonight, and I've put a lot of things out there that could help get us there. I, too, like my colleagues, have stated that we wanted to find a solution. I don't think we've landed a nice plane yet, but I know there's still people queued up, so it's all possible. Okay. Well, thank you very much. I know we do have people that have queued up to speak for a second time, and there'll be others, I'm sure, and that's okay. But I want to make sure I'm able to make some comments before we go through a second round. So I want to just begin. I've had a chance to meet and talk to a lot of folks, both on the tenants side as well as the property owners side, from the associations to individual property owners, many of whom I've known for as long as I've run to my first apartment coming out of Cal State, Long Beach . And so I know this is a difficult issue. It's also a very important one. And it's also one that I think takes a lot of deliberation, which I think you're seeing tonight. And I think that is that is a good thing. I have also been pretty open and supportive that I believe that Long Beach should and needs to pass a tenant relocation ordinance. And I want to explain why. And I also want to clarify some things about why I think this is important. First, I think when you think about where Long Beach is at today, the Long Beach economy, by any measure, most would say is doing well. Whether you're looking at port growth, which is the highest it's been in the history of the city, whether you're looking at the unemployment rate, which is the lowest we've had on record in the history of the city of Long Beach. We are looking at the increase of those at the lowest wage and the minimum wage that's that's being increased. Those measures are signs of a robust economy. The same time you have things like overall crime being at some of the lowest levels in its history. You have more businesses that are being created and built, and you certainly have a significant amount of both public and private investment that's moving into the city. So those things are happening. Those things have happened because of a lot of hard work, of a lot of people, including our our working class folks in the city of Long Beach. And it's thanks to a lot of folks that are here tonight that have also invested in properties and that have taken care of their units. And I've heard from a lot of people that rent to low income folks or techs or take Section eight. And we thank you for for doing that. And we thank everyone for being a part of that proce ss. While all these great things are happening. Our success is a shared success. And I have the good fortune. I'm the first person of my family to have bought a home. My whole family we've rented my entire life. We've lived in affordable housing. I grew up poor. I had a chance to buy a home and not because I was able to just do it on my own, because I had the good fortune of getting some good advice and the support of of my family. But as a as a property owner, I know that the value of my property is not just about the increase that I've seen my property go through as the city has. Improved in some ways, maybe changed in some ways, but I know that the increase in my property value is also been shared. It's because maybe the streets in the neighborhood are better because trees were planted, because it's safer. And so I'm a big believer that the the the growth and the investments that we have and we all benefit from the shared responsibility that society puts in for all of us being taxpaying citizens. So we're all responsible for each other's success. And when our properties do well in a neighborhood, it's because the city which all taxpayers put in are all working together to make investments across the city. And so I think that there's there's both shared prosperity and shared responsibility when it comes to these issues. I also think that we're all very aware that homelessness is real. It's the single biggest crisis right now in the state of California and the city of Long Beach. And the housing affordability crisis is also real. And there's a lot of ways of trying to solve this issue, many of which, by the way, the city of Long Beach has gotten wrong. There's no question that when you look at our the way we have tried to build affordable housing, there's no question that we could have done better and we should have done better. We also know that I believe that we have been and tried our best over the last few years to try to remedy some of these issues. And I want to start with the Everyone home lobby report. Within that report, I want to congratulate the members of the Council for taking up this issue of housing affordability and the issues of homelessness. We are finally building breaking ground and developing affordable homes for seniors, veterans, working families and low income folks across the city. We are finally building a city municipal shelter that will be open to everybody that's going to be in North Long Beach. You've seen, for example, Councilman Austin be incredibly supportive and and stand up in a difficult situation to put a winter shelter temporarily in a neighborhood that many who were opposed and now are supportive of that work. You've seen Councilmember Supernanny and others and those of us work to ensure that when community hospital opens, it's able to include some of the recuperative care and detox support that should be included to support the mentally, the mentally ill. And you have seen a focus on mental health care as well. If you continue to go through that report, there is a key provision in everyone at home, Long Beach and everyone online, which was chaired by the president of Cal State Long Beach. Included in that task force was the superintendent of school district, the president of Long Beach City College, business leaders and nonprofits and experts in the field. We are meeting all of our targets within that everyone home Lambert report and are working towards towards those goals. One of the goals in everyone on Long Beach is also very clear and it's recommendation three and it says to support and implement tenant assistance policies as developing in coordination with community and landlords. And these includes and includes a little variety of bullet points, most of which have been included in the staff recommendation. And it includes just this bullet point which we're talking about tonight, which is a tenant relocation assistance policy that provides relocation assistance to households impacted by rising rents and displacement. And so I point that out because I just want to remind us that what we're discussing tonight is not was not developed in a vacuum. It was all it was developed through action of the council, but also why it was debated and discussed in a incredibly large task force made up of leaders from across the city of both the private and public sector. And so for me, when I have and this happened as early as today, but when I had the president of Cal State, Long Beach and the president of Long Beach City College being very clear about the thousands of homeless students that we have at our university and at our college and the housing security that they face. It goes beyond just students that are that might be low income. There are we have thousands and thousands of students that can literally not even afford to live in the city of Long Beach. And they believe that this that this crisis has that this issue has reached a crisis level on both campuses. And I agree with them. And I support them. And I thank them for reaching out both, I think, in a letter and as well in conversations that I have had with with those with members of that task force on this issue for them and other task force members. Tenant relocation policy not only is important, but they actually support the staff recommendation as presented. So I just want to make also that clear. And I and I do support that as well. Let me also say some things that I think are are really are important. I know that we have a motion is being built in progress. So we have the main motion as presented by Council Councilwoman Gonzales and Vice Mayor Andrews, which I support. We have a motion, in addition to that, that Councilman Jeanine Pearce made, but I believe Councilman Durango may have been the second. No, I think maybe it was. I'm not sure who was the second. But we have noted here, which I obviously support and of course, the motion that Councilman Richardson has made as a sub sub. And I will continue to support us passing a policy tonight. I also I know Councilman Austin has made a friendly to that motion and I will support the whole motion as as as presented. But I want to point out some key things. The first thing I want to say is I don't think we can ever separate that that our neighbors and especially our low income neighbors that are cooks in our kitchens and our hotel workers and our clerks are really suffering right now. And like Councilwoman Gonzales said, there is no issue that I lose more sleep over than this issue. And it is also an issue that I believe personally that as a city. And I'll take personal responsibility myself. We have one fail to lead appropriately in the past, and we have not done enough to rectify the planning mistakes that have been made, not just in our own city, but but across the state of California. And so I think mayors and and governments are trying to, as fast as possible, try to fix and address the systemic issues that are happening. A lot of folks said we should be building more housing. I agree. I have supported every single unit brought forward before this body to get built. I have supported whether it's been a market rate prop building, whether it's been an affordable unit. I support every single unit. I wish that there was as much enthusiasm to build housing. As far as there is on this policy, because almost every time that we try to propose a project to build more affordable housing, we get a lot of folks come out and oppose it. We want to build a shelter. It gets opposed. We want to build more affordable housing for low income seniors. It's too high or too dense. We want to. We want to. We want to densify our transit system and build more housing along even just a moderate amount of density across the community. And we fill the chambers again because nobody wants to build additional housing. So if if we're not going to allow the creation of more affordable housing, which which many neighborhoods don't want any, then then that leads us to try a multifaceted approach. So I would first encourage us all to continue to support building every unit of housing possible that and to continue to support smart, responsible density in the city. I also believe that we should we should redouble our efforts on building more affordable housing, which we are doing. We just broke ground on two big projects just in the last month and will continue. We have another one coming up in the next few weeks. We're going to continue to do so. And I would I would encourage us to realize that a tenant relocation policy is not the the the magic solution that's going to fix all of our issues. It is one piece of a building, more housing, tenant, relocation assistance, state support action by the governor and the legislature to begin to try to fix that. The the crisis that we have going happening across state of California right now and and in Long Beach. And I will note that because I have to say this, because I think

I've known I've known her for since I was in college. I was very moved by Mary's and Degas's testimony. I was moved by her op ed she wrote in the Long Beach Post. I've known her for 25 years since we were both students at Cal State Long Beach. And I also know that she has spent her entire life being housing insecure. And I know that for me, there's a lot of great stuff in in this motion tonight. But there there is nothing that brings me more happiness than the additional support for people with disabilities and for seniors. And I know and I want to be very clear, I know that that part of the sub sub is for it to be a city created fund which which, which I'm which I'm fine with. And I support that. But I also want to be clear, you know, Councilman, and to the makers of the motion, that that is also I think not in no way should that be. If we can't put the funds together, we're not doing it. And I just want to make sure that as part of that substitute motion, Councilmember Richardson. I just want to make sure that it's part of your motion, which I think is correct, that we are being very clear that we are we are doing that fund and we will be providing additional support. And that's I know that's going to come clear and I just wanna make sure that's not if we can't, if we can find the funding. I know we're establishing that. We're going to get those additional $2,000 are I think are incredibly important and so. And so for me, I know we're all talking about I think we all have our shared values and we all believe in doing and doing the right thing. And we're all listening to our constituents. But I think that supporting in this case, those additional dollars for people in wheelchairs that are disabled and that are seniors is the right thing to do. And so I'm going to support I know there still might be some tweaks here, but I am going to support and I do support the motion that's on the floor. And I hope that this can move us forward and we can begin to get back to work on building more housing for everybody. So thank you. Councilmember Pearce. Thank you. I want to say how much I appreciate your leadership tonight. Mayor, as we talked about, it's been a long time that we've been talking about this. And so it's great to be at a place where we can kind of redirect. I just have a couple of clarifying things. I'm not going to, you know, go deep on anything. But I wanted to make sure with the city attorney that when we say 10% over 12 months, that that could be two increases of 5% in 12 months. Yeah, that that's the way I interpret it. Okay. And when staff gave the report and we talked about affirmative defense, it said that it could possibly be included in there. I think that that's something that's really critical. So I. I intend to include that based on the staff's recommendation and your motion. Great. Thank you. And then. So I have a question about the the. The reauthorization. I would. I want to make sure that we're clear that it doesn't. Suns et without council action. So so we understand that that it would sunset on a date certain but that staff would bring an item to you before that date so that you could make a positive decision well in advance before it would sunset. I'm extremely uncomfortable with that, and I didn't really hear about it till it was on the dias floor. So I, I would hate to be in a situation where it would sunset, something would happen where, oh, gosh, we don't have, you know, enough council members to actually hear the item and then, you know, it sunsets and then we like protection. And then there's a flood of something that happens in between. So I just I would I wouldn't want to have a date certain. I would want to say that we have it beforehand and then evaluate it. I'm afraid that if we interpret it your way, Councilmember Pearce, that's really not. I'm not sure. I mean, it goes to what Councilmember Austin intended and what Councilmember Richardson accepted. But I heard sunset. A sunset means it terminates on a date. Certain. I heard the. Council. Could we. Could I ask the maker of the motion to just clarify? I said reauthorization. I want to be clear. I guess if you wanted to to, you know, kind of split hairs, it it would could mean a sunset. But my intent was that it would come back to the council after three years and the council would have the opportunity to then reauthorize or modify or based on the data provided by staff. So that means if for whatever reason it did not come back before council, then the the ordinance would remain in effect. No. I think I like to have the the council have an opportunity to to make well. I think staff is going to undertake staff will undertake the obligation to bring something before you. But three years from now, if for whatever reason that doesn't happen, that won't be written into the ordinance. It's just direction that you're given to staff. If that doesn't happen, then the ordinance is going to continue. And I also want to be clear. This this I want to give staff the opportunity to to to write an ordinance. And I know that we'll be having another another very long conversation when it comes back. And we can have that opportunity to tweak the things that we're uncomfortable with at that point as well. Thank you. So that sorry we need I just one more clarification. We normally we have two ways to do it. One, which is what we normally do, which is it remains in effect. But we'll come back to you in three years with data and then you make any decision you want to or it or it sunsets. And we would come back to you for you to make a decision on whether to continue it. So which one? Well, I don't want to leave it open ended for for staff to put it in a black hole either. I want to make sure that it comes back to the council after three years in the council has some sort of motivation to to to actually take. I said that

t miss any deadlines. We will be back to you with data with time before its onset. Could we ask, is six months too much time? I a problem in Vegas. Let me jump in here. You jump in because I'm controlling the motion. So it sounds like Councilman Austin wants the opportunity to reauthorize. He never used the word sunset. Yeah, I used the word sunset. That's why I wanted to clarify. And what you're saying is, if for whatever happens, for whatever reason, staff doesn't bring it, whatever. It doesn't get in front of council, not enough council members here. Here. You know how the game goes. People don't automatically lose their benefits because we didn't get to it. Whoever the council makes up. Is there a way that we can say, you know, that a condition of, you know, nothing changes until that happens that we have to meet? Is there a way to make that happen? Because I think that's consistent with the language of both the council members. That's both their intent that we get a chance to review. It, you know. An ordinance. In my experience and never direct city staff to do a certain thing, I mean, in ordinances of general applicability. So we will direct city staff that prior to any and I don't want to use the word sunset like the staff will have to. We will get a chance to review this and reauthorize this before anybody loses their benefits. That's what we want to do. So if you can't write in the ordinance, put it as direction from this council to to staff. So the ordinance remains in effect. But we will come back. And you are directing us to come back in three years? I think I think. I think what's being said is that there's going to be a reauthorization vote that we'll be taking at the council in three years. But then for the information, of course, what this council will get before that, and that if for some you know, if there's some unforeseen issue that the council can't meet or count or staff is can't get the information, I think what the members are saying is that no one should lose your benefit in those in those situations. Okay. So reviewed after three years, no impact to anyone's benefits and it stays on the books until you make a decision to take it off. All right. So understood. There's Councilman Austin who has the floor actually now. But anything else? Yes. Well, I do appreciate that. And and I'll just say that this has been a much smoother discussion than I expected. It's after midnight, so we're into tomorrow. I will say that there are elements of this this policy that that I feel like most most of us on the council have have compromised on. And again, I don't think this conversation is over with. It was my intent and expectation when we brought this this item forward that we would be prioritizing and protecting our most vulnerable in our city. Speaker after speaker after speaker. Example after example were those who were were being displaced and losing their housing, who were senior citizens, who were low income. And I certainly have a

have a heart for those who are who are who are disabled. And so I would and Councilmember Mungo brought up a few excellent points. You know, I think we all have been renters at one point. I had a had a decent job. And, you know, I was able to afford, you know, decent places to live. I don't know that that as a as a young person with with a great job, you know, making six figures that I would necessarily need and a relocation benefit. Right. And so I think we need to think more about that, talk more about that, research that a little bit more and understand what our true intent was as a council. I feel more comfortable having income qualifiers and looking at, again, protecting those who who need to who need it most in our city, those who are most vulnerable. Also, there are no less than a couple dozen pieces of legislation right now currently going through the legislature in Sacramento that could impact some of the conversation that we've had tonight, some of the ordinance that we're looking at and moving forward. And so I would ask the city staff, obviously pay close attention to that, to to the bills that are there. And, you know, there are there are bills that could render some of what we're talking about move, you know, should they pass similarly to the minimum wage legislation that was passed a few years ago? And so I would just cautious on that. And then I want to thank Councilmember Pearce for bringing forth, I think, a very creative idea on the heap funds the use of that. I support that 100%. I think it's fair to the property owners and it and it shows a shared burden with the city so that, hey, listen , if we're going to protect those who are less vulnerable or most vulnerable, meaning senior citizens, those who are disabled, we are we're willing to step up and use those funds. And I know that's also work that will continue in Sacramento, because you were recently, Mr. Mayor, up in Sacramento looking to extend the extra half billion dollars for for for homeless prevention as well. So. So I'm happy with moving forward. I'm not 100% comfortable with everything. And again, I don't have to be. I think I think the intent here tonight is to move move a policy. I hope we can we can do that. But again, the details are going to be worked out over the next course of the next several weeks and months as a staff presents an ordinance. And then on the Housing and Neighborhoods Committee, I certainly hope that we can continue this conversation with some of the detail issues that have come up here to this evening to get a little deeper into. So with that. Thank you. And as we go to the vote, I'm just going to do one clarification point the staff has asked, and that is just to be clear, the what the ordinance when the ordinance comes back, the audience is coming back as written per the subsub. The other information that has been asked is essentially coming back as information to from four that should come prior to or at latest. You know, the meeting when this comes back and and obviously housing neighborhoods could could certainly discuss some of these other issues in between. But at the end of the day, the what's being asked to come back in the actual ordinance is the sub sub as made by Councilmember Richardson. And we'd like to ask Mr. Mayor if there are things that we find that make the subsub work issues that are raised by the council that make the ordinance work. We'd like to add those in as well. Great. I think we got a motion on the floor. Members, please, please go out and cast your votes. Well, the motion I think we've restated the motion. I mean, Councilmember, I think we have your we have your motion. I think it's clear. I think we've got it. All right. We have the tapes as well. So please go ahead and cast your vote. Motion carries six three. Okay. Thank you very much. And we still have some more some more meeting. And so what we're going to do is we have public comment as well. So for general public comment, and we have one item we're going to take up. So let me first ask if I can get a motion to move all items 17 through item 24 minus item 23 to the next meeting. I've checked in with staff and they believe it's an easy move. Can I get a motion in a second on that? Any any public comment on that move? Seeing nonmembers, please go and cast votes on moving those items. We? Motion carries. I'm going to move to item 14 with the clock. Please read the item. COOPER It is a Super Nine that you're. Item 14 communications from Council membership and a recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund in the Parks Recreation Submarine Department in the amount of $4,490 offset by the for Council District one time district priority funds to support the installations of adaptive swings at Stone Champion Park. 25 a conference item. We do need a report on that. Okay. Would you put. Cast your vote. Okay, we got enough. Has been for Richardson, it's good motion carries. Next week. My team with the club, please. Regarding. Thank you. Now we'll move up to item 15 with the clerk. Please read the item. Item 15 is a report from financial management. Recommendation to receive and file a presentation providing an update on the status of Long Beach Coast City Way. Could I please get a thank you? That's very councilmembers. So thank you for giving us this opportunity tonight. I'm here tonight to give us a brief report, along with some of the department heads on perhaps the largest technological effort the city has done in its history. We're talking about a ERP or an enterprise planning resource enterprise resource planning system. So these are done by all big cities and all big corporations throughout America and throughout planet Earth. So again, this is something we've been doing for about the past three years, and we're very close to turning it on. For as long as I've been here. We've used the same financial h.r. And payroll systems. In fact. In the 1990s we installed 1970s technology. An d it's a good thing that they made things the last back then because we've been pushing the limits of how long these systems can hold in place. Under City Council's direction, we've been implementing a new ERP system under the project name Long Beach Coast Finance Director John GROSS, Human Resource Director Alex Vasquez and Technology and Innovation Director Lia Erickson are supporting this project as sponsors. And they're here tonight with several members of the broader project team to share details about the exciting milestone for the project as we're getting ready to turn it on. Dozens of staff have been diverted from their normal operations. It's been important that we do this because we want the system to utilize institutional knowledge about our operations and because when the vendor and consultants leave, we want our own staff to fully understand and know how the system operates, how it's been built and all that. Citywide operations have had to be responsive and nimble, managing the heavy workloads. As a result, we're operating a little slower than usual because of this program. It's much harder for staff to take on special projects as we were having to pitch in to carry the burden for everyone. There is continued work to be completed for our payroll and budget phases, as well as ongoing maintenance and upgrades as the system continues to evolve and will not be stagnant like the old systems. So I want to personally thank everyone in the audience. This is a small portion of everybody that's been involved in the system who's directly working on the project, and all those who are back in the home departments picking up the load, working for long hours and helping the city move forward. With that, I want to turn it over to our leader, John Groce, to lead us through this presentation. John. Thank you. Well, tomorrow we go live. I mean, that's really the most important thing we can probably say today. We go live with the soft launch of phase one of this project that Pat's talk to you about. We're implementing a major new financial and payroll system. This first phase is financial. It is a major step in having Long Beach at the forefront of modern technology and to support our constant effort that Pat talked about it becoming more efficient and more productive all the time. The huge accomplishment that we're talking about is the result of a project and a project team working on LBE coast. It is a top city council priority and it started in 2014 when you funded the project. Of course, be cost stands for something. It stands for Long Beach, City Operations and Strategic Technologies, a very obvious name, all because project purpose is the implementation of Tyler Technologies, Munis Integrated ERP system, and ERP stands for Enterprise Resource Planning. And it really means any integrated system that manages a large, complex government administrative operation. And that's what this system does. We have in the audience, as Pat said, just a few of the people working on the project. And like me, they're wearing the colors of the project and you'll see our lanyards. And if you guys can all stand who are in the project standing for a little bit, we. These these are just some of the people on the project team. They include members of the steering committee. And there's a list here. This is just the committees and the leadership committee, the coordination committee, the focus group members, department liaisons, administrative operating officers, financial service officers, the super users training coordinators, the module team and the module team leaders. The technology and innovative staff that support the operation. And last and not least, Tyler Technologies personnel who have worked with us throughout the entire time. So it's you'll hear tonight about some of their amazing, amazing work. We have put over 140000 hours into this project, and we're just at phase one of three phases, 140000 hours. We cannot thank these dedicated people enough for their work and blood, sweat and tears in their brainpower in configuring the systems, testing, training, putting in hardware and keeping it operating and solving the many issues that come up on a daily basis. So thank you. And you can up thank you very much. And I'm going to turn this over for a few remarks from Leah Erickson, our Director of Technology and Innovation. Thank you, John. So, L.B. Coast is the largest technology project the city's ever undertaken, and it is a multigenerational generational leap forward in modernizing our business processes. As I mentioned. We were using 1970s mainframe. Technology and we implemented it in the nineties and it included things like blue screens, a use of function, keys to navigate and paper timesheets. So now we're going to a modern system that will be efficient and meet our needs into the future. The All Because Project addresses the. Fact that our current systems are so old they're not even being. Supported by our the software vendor. And these old non supported systems place the city at risk of inability to meet basic administrative needs and. Even at risk of. A system failure. So the new Munis ERP system is modern, and because it's modern, it requires modern technology systems and networks, which. Thanks to the critical technology, needs. Funding provided by City Council. The Technology and Innovation Department has been and is in the process of implementing this system, also gives us modern productivity AIDS, such as the ability to use handhelds, tablets. Barcodes and scanners. Lastly, the system. Will continually be updated by Tyler and our team and upgraded to allow us to continuously move forward and. Make sure that we're never in the position again of. Using decades old ERP technology. I'd now like to turn the podium over to Alex Vasquez, our human resources director. Thank you. Leah. We're pretty excited. This new. ERP system is. Going to affect all 23. City departments, including Harbor, Water and el ected offices. Most of the administrative functions in the city are going to be impacted on the financial side. There will be a new purchasing system. A new system for paying bills, a new accounting system, and a new budget system and an inventory system as well. And these are just some examples. On the. Other side, the system will. Allow us to maintain employee information. There will be an employee self-service function that allows employees to access information. About. Their payroll and other information. And there will be a position control. System as well for payroll. The new. System will include a timekeeping and payroll processing system. That will help us update and function more. Efficiently if more efficiently. Our 6000 employees will use the new system for timekeeping and payroll purposes, and we estimate that over a thousand employees will use this system on a daily basis. To do their work. On a day to day basis. I want to. Acknowledge some of the members of the h.r. Payroll phase two team that weren't able to be here today. They're actually at a training conference that's being conducted by our ia europe vendor Tyler Technologies. They would be here tonight, but as I indicated, they're at the conference. So as a substitute we included a picture of them and they're here. With us, of course, in. Spirit. Yeah. So I'd like I'd like to turn it over back over to John. We thought. Thank you, Alex. We thought it would be useful to just kind of briefly describe the four stages that this project team has been going through. And we'll go through startup design, implementation and operations. That startup stage for B coast included 12000 hours to develop 3800 specifications, prepare an RFP research vendors and then select a vendor just to get a vendor on board. Once that happened, we moved into the design stage was a major effort for Phase one financials, the chart of accounts, which is the single most important part of any financial ERP system to develop. That chart of accounts took four months to develop. We are currently in the design stage for phase two h.r. Payroll. That's another big deal that is going on. And we're moving into the implementation stage for phase one, which is because we're going live the operations stage, which I don't want to underestimate will begin soon after go live . That's when we start to normalize things. We have to go through a stabilization period. We'll have some bumps along the way and staff will get more comfortable with the new system. But we want to move into operations as soon as possible and build this into our normal functions without having to use a project. I've introduced to the project team and the many people who directly support the project. This project has taken key people from operations and Pat has talked about that mostly on a full time basis and sometimes at this point for two years or more. Other staff who are not working on the project have had to fill in and they've had to assume more resp onsibilities and more workload. There are 56 people on the project team. 35 of them are regular city employees. We have 46 liaisons in the various departments, 115 super users who are going to help train everybody else, 23 training coordinators. And there are also, as I said, many staff filling in as backfilling. I hope and trust that the many people working on the project are finding it rewarding and rewarding experience. They certainly are gaining a unique experience. It's once in a lifetime and at the same time they are helping to design and implement a complex and sophisticated system that will keep the city moving forward for the next 20 to 30 years. They're getting that opportunity. They also get the opportunity, which they can't possibly miss, of having more frustrations than they would ever want to think about there there in any major ERP system. And there's a lot of stress. So even though it is a valuable and rewarding experience, most including me, never want to go through this again. But I'd like to introduce now Elizabeth Haynes, who is the Financial Systems Project Lead, who will discuss the many subsystems associated with the project and then introduce you to a few people who have worked on the project. Thank you, John. Hello. I'm Elizabeth Haines, and I'm the bureau manager for the Financial Controls Bureau in Financial Management. And I'm assigned full time as the Phase one financials. Lead on this project. And while John may not want to do this again, this is my second time around as I served on the team that implemented our current financial system in the late nineties. So it's especially exciting to witness the launch of this modern, fully integrated Tyler Munis system. The Tyler Munis ERP system has many subsystems and functions. Many of the 27 subsystems and functions shown on this slide require implementation stages similar to what John has described. Designing and implementing each of these 27 subsystems and functions is a substantial effort. I'm going to invite some members of the project team to speak about their experience on the project. Now the first speaker is Glenda packing, and Glenda is an example of the type of dedication that our team members have. She was working until 2 a.m. this morning, resolving an implementation issue that was potentially impacting our move to go live. Glenda will briefly talk about the chart of accounts and the general ledger module. Glenda. Thank you at least a bit. Hello. I'm Glenda. Packing in. I'm the accounting officer of the comptroller's office of this man, Financial Management. And I'm assigned full time as a general ledger module lead for the project. I turn up accounts, provide a basic structure for the way the financial data is. Enter into an accounting system without an excellent chart of account, no financial management system will work well or efficiently. The new munis system required an account number that is 40 digits long and has a structure completely different from that of the Old City's legacy system. It takes. Months to create the new. Structure to meet the complex city's needs. But after we created the charge of account, we had to crosswalk or translate the old account structure to the new structure. In numbers. We crosswalk 475,743 accounts element combination into 105,147 for child accounts. That was a lot of work and it took us a long time. Now I would like to invite Ireland Crabtree to discuss the project and watch Wachtel. Thank you, Glenda. Hello. My name's Arlen Crabtree. I'm the grants and projects officer in the Budget Office of Financial Management, and I've been assigned full time as the module lead for the Project and Grants module. The Tyler Munis ERP system has a project ledger, which is a separate accounting structure from the Munis general ledger that Glenda just told us about. The Project Ledger is often described as the single biggest change from our current financial system. There was no project, ledger and our old accounting system as such. The Project Ledger is an entirely new concept for Long Beach and offers the city many new management and control opportunities for both projects and grants. Determining the best approach for the use of the project letter was a huge undertaking. Many of the accounting structures and processes used had to be designed from scratch. This was a major challenge and it took many staff hours to design and test the concepts involved. The city has over 2000 active projects and 400 active grants. The conversion of the city's existing projects and grants was a tremendous effort for the team and our departments. During the course of the conversion, we created over 11,000 project expense accounts to track expense activity and 3600 project funding source accounts to identify offsetting funding sources for project expenses. Long Beach, it's worth noting, is the largest grant conversion that Tyler Technologies has ever done. I would like to now invite Jennifer to request. To speak about budgeting. Thank you, Arlen. Good evening. I am Jennifer Rodriguez and I am a. Budget analyst in the Budget Office of Financial Management, and I am assigned full time as the module. Lead for Phase one. Budgeting. Even though the implementation of the new budget. System. Is in a future phase three, I and the budget team have been heavily involved in both Phase one and Phase two, because the. Budget module uses elements from both of these phases. Because it uses. Information from both phase one and. Phase two. We are having to. Develop a complex conversion process that converts not only old data to the new system, but also maintains both legacy and new accounting structures to ensure systems are fully functional. Until phase three, there are over 100,000 lines of budget balances that had to be converted, utilizing the accounts that Glenda mentioned, as well as over 2400 projects and grants that Arlan referenced. This is just an example of an intense prefatory work needed for the budget p rocess, phase three. And that phase has not even started yet. Now, I would like to invite Dana Anderson to. Speak about phase. Two, the human resources payroll portion of the all cost. Project. Thank you, John. I am John Anderson, the labor relations manager in the Department of Human Resources, and I am here to represent the team working on phase two, who's at the tyler technologies conference? The h.r. Payroll team have made it a priority to develop stakeholder and working groups to support system design. One of the team's key efforts have been met with staff from various city departments to vet requirements and establish components that can be universally applied while also fitting into the unique needs of each department. An example of one of the many items that the team is considering with the operating departments is finding ways to provide online services for employees when much of the city's workforce does not have access to a work computer. The h.r. Payroll face to face two team is confident that when h.r. Payroll goes live, there will be an increased functionality and enhanced features for all employees. Now I would like to invite Tera van Andel to speak about the critical function of change management for the Libby Coast project. Thank you, Dana. I am Terry. Van Andel and I am the Business Process Improvement Officer and the Financial Controls Bureau of Financial Management. And I am assigned full time as the change management lead for lbe coast staff readiness as one of the most critical elements for the success of any ERP project. In addition to readiness, that gives our employees both the technical ability and functional skills to operate the system, we also work hard to provide psychological readiness to my change management team and change management terms. People need to move through five stages to be psychologically ready for a major implementation. Awareness, desire, knowledge, ability and reinforcement. Our team is focused on moving people through these stages of accepting change. Some of the ways we've done that include developing and preparing a network of individuals throughout the city to serve as conduits between the project, team and department. We also are facilitating events and conversations for people to learn about the project, including town halls, departmental meetings and system demos. And we also are creating and implementing many communication vehicles such as newsletters, paste up fliers and a robust intranet page. We feel very good about what we've been able to accomplish in a high intensity environment with constrained resources. Now, I would like to turn it over to Desiree Gutierrez to talk about the massive training effort with the financial space. Thank you, Terry. Hello, I'm Desiree Gutierrez and the communications officer supporting OLB Coast. I'm here tonight to share details with you on financials training. Training includes developing operational procedures, developing related training materials, and then presenting these materials. This has been a huge commitment of time for the training team and all involved. Just for phase one, we have ten separate booklets that have been developed. These are just two of them. In addition, we have other materials that address critical tasks that aren't covered in these books. The team is training over 1000 people for phase one. So far we've had 207 sessions for our ten core training classes. Most attendees take more than one class, and our total attendance count to date exceeds 3000. Training ranges from 90 minutes to 4 hours. Our results have been excellent with good comments. Some of those comments are here on the slide with our payroll. The Phase two change management team and training teams will be addressing the needs of all 6000 employees for both time entry and employee self-service. This will be a major task. I'd like to turn the podium back to John to speak about some of the challenges of implementation and operation and wrap us up. Thank you, Desiree, and thank you to everyone who's spoken. The chart on the screen that you're seeing gives an example of typical ERP productivity over time, and we expect that productivity for each phase of the LBE Coast project, a huge system such as we're implementing, will typically have issues at implementation and you'll see productivity go down for a while and that's shown on the chart. We will work at that in advance of Go Live and we've done that to minimize them, but we will have them some data conversion at go live may not go right. We have to fix it. We had a lot of that just before today and that's why we had people here at 2 a.m. in the morning. Their fixed hardware cannot be fully optimized until after we go live. We will have issues with hardware. We may have occasional slow systems. We may even have a crash. But most importantly, even with training, people are not familiar with the new complex system as they are with the old one. And there will be a learning period and an optimization period. Productivity will climb and after a time it will be higher than before and then continue to move higher as we will have continuous system upgrades and we intend to have a continuous improvement approach to find out how to better use the system as time goes on. We chose an ERP system and an implementation approach that kept both implementation and operating costs at the low end for a city of our size and complexity that was part of the 12000 hours and the time it took to select a vendor. We purposely looked for low implementation costs and low operating costs. We are getting great value for our investment, but we are getting the ability to be technologically and operationally excellent at the same time. Tyler Munis is a living system. It has regular updates and upgrades and we are designing a support structure to provide for ongoing improvements in operations, reporting and productivity. The operating costs for the Tyler Munis Munis system will be higher than the old legacy system. This is because the old system was a dead system with no vendor support and no build, no ability to make improvements. So there wasn't there weren't a whole lot of costs associated with it. Initial ongoing costs for the ERP system will be included in the proposed NY 20 budget. This will include support upgrades, testing, ongoing training and maintenance and full phasing of costs will be in FY 21. Because of the complexity of our city and our financial nature of payroll processes, it is possible we may need to supplement our initial LBE cost implementation funding, but we are working to minimize that cost if it does happen. I'll be Khost entitled Muna. CERP are a huge step forward. The city is putting in place state of the art technology and probably more importantly, a framework for continuous improvement, as I said earlier, for the next 20 to 30 years. We have avoided the potential for the old legacy system. Fail for failing. Getting there is the result of an extraordinary Ivy coast project team. The project will take us through three separate go live stages, each one of which will have some expected bumpiness along the way. All normal for any large ERP project. We're going live now with phase one, soft opening tomorrow for opening on April 15th. Phase two is well underway. Phase three will start soon. We anticipate everything being done with implementation and stabilization by the end of FY 20. That is September 30th of 20. When the LBE Coast implementation project comes to an end. Ongoing improvements and updates will not end. They will continue. That's one of the differences and one of the reasons we're putting in a live system as opposed to a dead system. As I conclude, I want to say that it's been my pleasure to serve as an L.B. Coast Project sponsor. Leah Alex and I are extremely proud of the tremendous effort and dedication that the team behind you and those who couldn't be here and departmental staff have put into implementing this first phase. Much more work needs to be done as we have two more phases to implement and have to stabilize the first phase. We will work to move the people in phase one back to their normal jobs as quickly and as much as possible. The project team is up to the task of getting Phase one operating and phase two in Phase three. We're very proud of the work the team has done and they will do great in the future and we cannot say enough about the team and the efforts. None of this would have happened without the mayor and city council support and the city manager's support for our efforts. And we all thank you very much for that support. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you very much. Fantastic job, Councilman Rich. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Just a just a few thoughts. Thank you all for your clear hard work on this very complicated matter. You know, I was looking, you know, at some of the faces in the audience. And it has to be the same face that my mom gives me when I try to explain to her Game o f Thrones. You know, it's not for everybody. You know, I mean, I will do my best to try to summarize. This is a big deal. We're recognizing a small army that has has worked to make our system more productive and more stable, you know, less risk of a system failure. So I get that. You know, one thing, you know, so I recognize all of you coming down and speaking to us and having to explain this to us because you've probably sat through council meetings and where you really didn't, you know, weren't too excited about the things we were saying. So I get it. Budget time, stuff like that. You know, one thing that that stood out, you know, somebody said it was 140000 hours. Yep. Is that 140,000? Wow, that's impressive. These guys getting overtime? Yeah. He's turning red, but wears a the red. So, you know, when you start giving out dinner vouchers or happy hour or whatever, you don't recognize those people. Just let me know so I can show up as well. But thanks a lot to everyone. Incredibly good job. Looking forward to future faces. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. So this is my bag. I've experienced the Game of Thrones. That is system upgrade twice now. I was with L.A. County in 2005 when we converted over, and I was also with the assessor's office in 2014 when we started going from greenscreen over. And I cannot tell you how proud I am for each and every one of you and the number of committee meetings a person has to go to, to go to through a process like this, the amount of collaboration, the number of ideas that come up last minute when you're on the brink of implementing or deciding on something that we figure out, something we hadn't thought of, and that you take the time to rework it because it's so important. I've been one of the people who have put in multiple requests to put Mr. GROSS for reports out of the business licensing system or reports for item control or the reports for no matter what it is . And the the system limitations have been all too frustrating. And I can only imagine how frustrating they've been for all of you working here in the city and now to have a hand in being able to make that change and to have to have the steadfast process of knowing every little intricate detail of the city, how much you've possibly learned about different departments and reports and needs, and now what stronger group of individuals you are knowing these systems so well. So my first request of all of you is please don't retire. Because one of the things that does happen after a big project like this is so many have been holding on to get it to completion that I just beg of you to consider staying. If you were thinking about retiring in the next 12 months, consider staying for another 3 to 5 years because it is a big deal. And I have watched this process multiple times. So thank you. Thank you. Thank you. In one of the systems we just converted, we actually still had microfiche. I don't know how many of you are alive long enough to know what m icrofiche is, but we still have four microfiche machines if we need them here at in Long Beach, we can give them to you from L.A. County. We just finally got rid of those and it's not over. So I know 140000 hours, Councilmember Richardson sounds like a lot, but the next steps are going to be the ones that count. Those 2 a.m. nights are now going to be the ones that are going to be coming up more often because as you start turning off, these systems are moving over. That's when you have to get this last batch of stuff in before this turns off and this turns over. And so much of that work is yet to come. So I want to appreciate you for all of that in advance. And then just a little story. I was standing in line at the grocery store last week and there was a person with a name tag just like this that all of you were wearing. And she's here today and she didn't know I was a council member. I had my mom outfit on a.k.a no makeup, yoga pants and baby food in the cart. And we started talking and she said, You work for the city of long beach. And I asked what she did. She said she worked for h.r. And then we started talking about the system and the system upgrades and i talked to her about how excited i am for her and all those different things and the passion in her voice. And at the end she goes, And why do you care so much? And I said, Oh, well, I work for the city of Long Beach too. And we shared a couple quick moments. But the passion and love that each of you have for this system, may it stay with you, but that you don't stay too committed to the modules or implementations you made because they will continue to change. And that is something that's good and you should be proud of because you are the shoulders of which the changes next next to derive from and that they stand on top of. So thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Yes, Councilwoman Price. Well, I just want to say thank you to all of you, too. I know this is a big endeavor and that you've all worked really hard on this. And I want to say that I would like a lanyard as well. So if that's possible, I'd like to put my request in. But and I recognize some of you from John Gross's ties, how many of you guys are on his signature ties that he gets? But it's really amazing to see so many different departments and employees come together for a common cause. And I just wanted to recognize that and thank you for your efforts. Thank you, Councilman. I, too, want to thank you guys for being here and staying late with as the council. It's not too late. This is an early night. We're not it's not even 7:00 yet. But I really want to thank you guys for all the efforts. I've been a part of one process like this, not this intense and this large. And I understand how challenging, how rewarding and how proud you will be at the end. So I applaud you for that. Obviously, H.R. is one of the things that's a top priority to me. So I know it's great to see that we have a new process in place for H.R.. I had a q uestion because it's one thing I keep meaning to bring up in our briefings, but I'm just going to bring it up now on billing utility billings. Does that touch on this? Totally separate system. It is a totally separate system. Okay. Well, I'm publicly going to put in my request I have some landlords that own multiple properties and say they pay their electricity bill or their gas and water bill at all those properties. One bill, all the properties instead of like ten bills. We can talk later. Okay. We'll look into it. I'm like one bill. I really appreciate your guys efforts on this. Congratulations. Thank you, Councilman. Awesome. Thank you. And obviously, I want to echo and say thank you much appreciation salute John Leha and the entire team who have been involved in this behemoth project management effort. This is a significant investment, I believe. You know, when this first came to the council back in 2014, you know, the price tag was somewhere around $30 million. And, you know, I almost fell out of my seat when I heard that price tag. But obviously, it's an investment in organizational, operational, operational efficiencies, coordination, better coordination between departments and the teamwork. And a spirit that has gone into this is absolutely phenomenal. Again, when I appreciate that, I'm not sure if I heard, but is there an estimated completion date on this project? We expect this project and the systems to be fully stabilized by the end of next year, September 30th, 20 end of the fiscal year. Thank you, Mr. GROSS. And in the word efficiencies and we talk about the improved operations and upgraded technologies, have we been able to quantify what that will save us annually when we actually implement this this new system? No, it's it's and it's it's a typical problem with all ERP systems are almost all of them. It's it's very difficult to quantify. There are efficiencies and savings, so we probably won't see them at the beginning because of the productivity curve. A lot of that savings and productivity will get used in terms of people will want better data and more reports and other things will be done. So it will it will be very difficult to quantify. Thank you very much. Salute. Thank you, Mr. Gonzalez. Yes. As a tech employee, this makes me very excited. And I know as a city employee makes me even more excited. So congratulations to every single one of you. I think John GROSS is buying everyone dinner tonight, which is great for all of you being here and staying late. But thanks again for your work. I know that this is going to be long lasting for many of us here in the city, and we just thank you for that. A couple of questions that maybe I missed or weren't mentioned or included, but the phase two specific, the specifically number nine employee reimbursements. Are we looking at is that just on this site or are we looking maybe at an application opportunity down the road? The and as described on the slide you saw the employee reimb bursement is a improvement to our current processing where if an employee is on a training trip or receives reimbursement, we now we will do it through payroll in the new system as opposed through a voucher. It's a much better way to do right. But can they access it through an app? You're working on the whole app thing, and that is I don't think that the phase two team has had a chance to look at it, but that's one of the reasons we went to a new system is to have mobile applications potentially available. And this wouldn't require this platform wouldn't require an employee to be on the city server, only you can access it remotely as well. That's what we're working for. Okay. Just making the security issues that we're working on. Great. Yes, that's a big one. Okay. Well, thank you so much. Thanks for all of your work again. And I'm very excited to get this go and will see implementation very soon. Thank you. And to Lia and Alex and everyone. Thank you, Elizabeth. Thank you. Thank you. Yes, councilman. Phase one. Live tomorrow. What happened to will move to city hall in June. That's probably another nightmare, right? Well, we'll keep. City Hall move and those issues out of this. But in talking about the ERP system, the team spent a tremendous amount of time working on how are we going to deal with the move? And Leah and her group have done a super job. And in and of itself, we are prepared for the move to the new city hall from an ERP system viewpoint. And in fact, the old computer is being physically moved as a safety thing to the new, new, new city hall and will be sitting on the floor until we can formally turn it off at the end of phase two. So a lot of planning has gone into that and has made actually the whole project more complex. But Leah and her group and the technology group have addressed that issue. Okay. So in a nutshell, you're going to be keeping the old system on standby should something not transfer or. We don't believe phase one. That system doesn't take new entries. We're in a dead period. So we go live with the new system tomorrow. The old system is used just to pull off data. However, the old system will be used until we go live with phase two for payroll. So it is alive and operating, and that's why we need to move it to the city hall. Get my paycheck next week. I don't care. Thank you. We'll try to make that even if you're the only one. Well, the. First personal check for young girls. Yeah. Thank you. First of all, I'd just like to say what you guys are doing is really fantastic. The only thing I heard about the young lady who stayed at 2:00, I really thought we had a tough job, but damn. Anybody stay here at 2:00 in the morning? This system better work. Say, because I know it's working. Because every time I get my check is fluctuating, so much of it is always coming out in the black. And I love that. So you guys, what have you doing? Keep doing it. And again, thank you guys so much. Is there any more public comment? You guys

. Great job. Thank you very much. Yes. We take a vote? Yes. Can we please have a vote? All right. Councilmember Mongo. Motion carries. Thank you. We let them live before we started. Public comment. She. Okay. Well, thank you very much. That concludes that item. And we will move on to the next item. Let me get back to we're actually going to take the fireworks item first. Next, please. Communication from Council. Councilwoman Price Recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund in the City Manager Department by 2500, offset by the third Council District one time district priority funds to provide funds to CSB for producing an animated fireworks public service announcement. Thank you. I mean, turn this over to Councilman Price. Thank you. So this item came about as a result of a third district fireworks advisory group that we put together. These residents worked diligently over the course of several months to evaluate best practices in regards to illegal fireworks in other cities and to implement some best practices and some proposals that could be implemented in the city of Long Beach. We have taken their recommendations and little by little brought items to council to try to implement several of the recommendations that this committee made. And last year, we produced a video that was a PSA regarding fireworks in response to how they impact pets. So for our No Kill Folks was an awesome video. This year we wanted to partner with Cal State, Long Beach, and I want to thank resident Ken Weiss, who's here for really heading up that effort and connecting us with Cal State, Long Beach and their film department to create an educational PSA that will be able to use to help educate and address illegal fireworks here in the city of Long Beach. At the elementary school level. So tonight, I haven't even seen the video yet, but tonight we're going to preview the video and we're going to have an opportunity to hopefully share it with our fire department so that when they do their outreach with elementary school kids, they can show this video. So I'm going to invite our the committee chairperson, Ken Weiss, and Soy Yan Kim from Cal State Long Beach to speak briefly on this topic. So I don't know if I pronounce the name correctly, but if you are here, please come on up and can. Of course, come on up. Good evening, Mr. Mayor, and city council members. It's been a long time, but it's been a long. Journey for us over the last two and. A half years, putting this whole thing together. And it's it's really been an amazing journey for all of us on the committee. And we have several people from the committee here tonight that I just want to point out. Eric Whitney, if you will stand or raise your hand. So everybody sees you and Jeff Dawson and several of our committee members were supposed to be here, but they had other commitments and I couldn't make it. I would like to. First of all, uh, after it's been a. Year since we were here and at your

. Council chambers and presented a, uh, a report on the findings of our committee and recommendations. Shortly thereafter, we started talking to Cal State Long Beach about producing a, a video that could, as the councilwoman described, could go to the children. Because you can cite. 40 year old guys all day. Long for shooting off fireworks. What we really need to do is change the culture. And only way to do that is to reach out to the kids. Tonight we have. First of all, I'd like to thank all of the Cal State Long Beach students. They're here tonight, the designers of the videos, and there's three of them. You're only gonna see one of them tonight. I want to speed this up a little bit, because I know you have a lot of things to do, but I to ask and to come down over and behind this and sign you and Tonya really kind of. Oversaw the whole production of the videos and it was pretty amazing to see it from start to finish if you haven't seen how a cartoon is made. It's a pretty mind blowing experience. It really, truly is. A lot of moving parts that you would never even think about. And Tonya kept the whole thing together for us. And what you can see is an amazing video and an is was the Tuesday head of the group student group who produced the video you're going to see. And I just have to say, they did a great job. And I'm going to turn it over to Sonia. And she can turn over to Anne and. I hope you enjoy it. And the other thing is that you should know that that while the cartoons are being produced, the fireworks committee went out and worked in creating a distribution partnership between the committee and the community. And we have tonight 75 organizations within Long Beach who are now distributing the cartoons. They were rolled out last night and they are out in the community. And the 75 organizations, some of them small, some of them big, and some of them are education based, some are recreation, some are animal based. Some are businesses that all stepped up and said they would put the cartoons out in in the community on our websites and in Instagrams on Facebook. And so the reach of this thing is going to be huge. I don't think it's a first time. It's just going to be it's going to blow everybody's mind, I think. So with that, I'll have them come down and show you the video. Hello. I wasn't planning to be here because this is the moment that all my student need to get the spotlight. So I just wanted to share how amazing experience been as a teacher. Usually I have something to teach in this class. I don't. I hope that nobody thinks I'm a lady teacher. But my job was really in the cheerleader in a silly uniform. And you kind of let them do what they believe in the most and really kind of make their artistic vision come alive. And then we create just beautiful pieces. Individual students literally volunteer over 1000 hours this semester. And this is one example that we always share. Hopefully you get the chance to kind of get to see it all. I'm going to actually take this a stage to the Anna student. Hi. I'd just like to say thank you so much for this wonderful opportunity that we've been able to do. We've had so much fun and it's been such an exciting and wonderful experience. I just want to take the time right now to thank all the people who have been working with us on this wonderful opportunity. I'd like to first thank the city of Long Beach, Third District Fireworks Advisory Committee. They were the people that really started and developed this concept. They've been going on it for like two years now, and they were the people that reached out to CSU, Long Beach, the School of Art, for this collaboration, of course, under the guidance of Councilwoman Susie Price. So thank you so much for that. We'd also like to thank the Long Beach Animal Care Services without their support and allowing us to go to the shelter and actually research, we would not be anywhere where we are today. Also, CSU, Long Beach in general and the College of the Art Faculty and Staff, the departments we had many of them working with us, not just animation, but also illustration, graphic design, film, music and theater. So there's a lot of people collaborating together and. Working together to create these films. Also, just I'd like to thank my fellow students for coming out here today and also for working so hard on this throughout the all the late nights. It's been so wonderful and thank you. And that's like. So hopefully we can start the film again. I spoke to your family. I don't like this kind of things. I've always wondered what it would be like to touch the ground. So one day I. And I know. We're not in control. But ask people. Started my shoes and sold Tarzan down into the ground, into things that live there to this day. But I think the very best view in SoCal. So this is just one of the three examples that we have considering when it comes to firework safety and also animal safety. So we hope that you guys really enjoyed that and we're really, really excited to begin to see these, you know, spread out throughout the city. That's awesome. Thank you. I'd love to get the other two as well so that we could play them at future council meetings leading up to 4th of July. Be fun to play one when we can, maybe at new business or something, but we have certificates for all the students, so if you guys wouldn't mind coming down, perhaps I can ask my council colleagues and our mayor, who's a Long Beach State alum, to come up for a photo with you guys. We'd love to document you being here. And thank you for your work. Oh, let me get through the rest of the agenda items. Let me have you guys come down just 1/2. I do have a couple of speakers, so no problem. The second of the motion council member, Austin. Yeah. Well, I just want to congratulate the students and Councilmember Price. Thank her for bringing this forward. It's an innovative approach to dealing with our fireworks challenge year after year. We know that enforcement is not going to necessarily solve our issues. And so I think this is a creative approach, particularly to reach our young people. And I'm happy to support. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Just wanted to say thank you to Susie and thank you to these students. You know, I think that it was a really creative video. I'd love to see the others. I think that's what we have to do. We have to think about an all hands on deck approach. Everyone has something to offer to contribute to the message. The more we can keep it consistent, whatever the fire safety message is, the better. But I got to tell you, you know, I was impressed by this. Thank you. Congratulations. I look forward to sharing this video. Thank you, Councilmember Pierce. This was awesome. I loved it. I love seeing creative videos that reach all audiences. I mean, in the second district, we have a lot of young folks and every 4th of July, we've got street parties where we can never quite get to everybody. And I know we've kind of racked our brain on how do we really reduce some of those instances. And so I absolutely love this every time I think this is the second or third time your committee has come to council, right? This is the third. The third time I every time I really appreciate the fact that you guys have pulled yourself together and in a different way. And you don't need a lot of resources and a lot of time, but you're doing the great work. And so I'm really thankful for you guys and awesome to all the students that did this work. Vice Mayor Andrew. Says, thank you very much. And I also want to, you know, echo to that because the faculty, of course, the graduates also am I you know, Suzy never mentions that, but it's okay, you know, because the fact that you, you know, when we talk about, you know, go beat, that's all the way around. Look at the animation that you guys are doing. You can just ride along with the volleyball team and you guys don't give yourself good or you're the greatest ever happen. Thank I want to thank everyone of you guys for showing us this. And I want to see the next two also. Thank you again. Thank you, Councilmember Supernanny. I'd like to thank the committee for being here again. And on a kind of quirky note, next week we have my item coming to council that is streamlining council meetings. And you don't know this, but you are part of my inspiration. I think your first appearance here, you didn't get on the on the podium till after midnight. And I was so impressed that a group of volunteers wait that long. I thought, boy, we need to treat the public a little nicer. So thank you for that. Thank you, Councilman Richardson. Just one more thing. The video reminded me of something that just came to me. You know, the scene when Mowgli in The Jungle Book gets the fire and accidentally sets the jungle on fire? Was that the inspiration for this? It seemed like, okay, maybe some copyright issues we got going on. Okay. Just checkin g counts in re ranga. Thank you, Mary. And I want to thank the students out there. You're doing some great work. Anything that will teach our young people to teach their parents about fireworks is good with me because I think that's the message you get to the kids, you get to the parents, and we control fireworks in the city. Allow me to thank you for what you do. Thank you. And I'll just also add first, Councilman Price, I think this is a great project to fund and support and lead on. Congrats to the committee and most importantly to the students. That was really good and just really proud of December Council. At one point, students collaborate on this type of work with great faculty and great imagination. So congratulations. Is there is there any additional public comment on this before I close the item out? Oh, actually, sir, you already spoke, so I have to. Unless. Come on. Coming forward really briefly. It has to be somebody new. I have. I have one more comment that I wanted to make, and that is that the principal elementary school is taking the videos and it's showing them to students and we are having discussions with him. He is going to go to the school district and get them put into all the across the whole system. Thank you so much. That's how excited he is about it. So I just wanted to add that one little thank you so much. And then our last two speakers and we'll go ahead and go to a vote and take the picture. Just on fireworks, I've been noticing there's some other cities that hold silent fireworks. It really helps the animal shelters in their city on 4th of July, on New Year's Eve, not to be packed next day because the animals are so scared. Just an idea. You can still see all the beautiful colors, but you don't have the the noise. Thank you. Next speaker, please. That's a good point about fireworks that don't have any noise because I have two dogs and they're just terrified. But I also wanted to ask you, Mayor, if you're going to be installing the media wall on city hall so the fireworks can be seen on their. You might recall a few weeks ago that I asked you if you planned on buying $1,000,000 flat screen TV. You said no. That's right. Then I heard about a $4.3 million program that's being put together, including $1,000,000 media wall. I called it a TV, a flat screen TV at the time. Media wall, flat screen. We have to it has to be to this topic, please. Okay. Well, I'm just saying, I found out that a media wall is in the plan to be put in city hall. And if that's the case of very disappointed with that extremely inaccurate information you gave me three weeks ago. I just wanted to bring that up. Thank you. I'll be bringing it up again. Thank you so much. Thank you for that. That concludes this. We are now going to go ahead and go to our vote to please we can go and do vote. Motion carries. Excellent. Thank you. Here, take a picture, guys. So come on. Come on down and let's go and do our photo. So, you know, I bought a new bike last.

I haven't really written about. I give you all the certificate, I'll just. Just take random ones, and then you guys can swap graduation. I. You're welcome. You have a lot to do with it. Congratulations. Thank you. Congratulations. Thank. I want to go back to the story. Yeah, yeah. We're going to go back to square slash logistics. I got here because you had fun doing it. Yes. Goldman is your teacher. It is. A lot of work, but what you. Saw was one of our other. Teams. Okay, great. I think. Are we going back here? Yeah, I'm going to get. Around moving back and. We're all moving back. Back? Where's our committee? Okay. Here. All right. Guys. Ready? One, two, three. Never go. All right. Thank you. Thanks. Oh, really? Yeah. I have. Yeah. Yeah. I think we can reorganize to some solution. Okay. Okay. Thank you. All right. No. I'm like, Yeah, yeah, yeah. When you get up, you know, you come here, you know. Okay. Thank you. If I can have just everyone kind of exit quietly as we continue the meeting, we would appreciate that. But thank you for then. The last item that was asked to be moved up was item 34. Thank you very much. Now we're going over to item number, hearing at a number to. Communication from City Attorney. Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the hearing and declare an ordinance relating to the temporary limitation on the issuance of building permits, conditional use permit or other entitlements for new drive thru lanes through the city red for the first time, and later to the next regular meeting of the City Council for final reading, declaring the urgency thereof and declaring this ordinance shall take effect immediately. There's a motion and a second public comment on the hearing. This item requires two votes, one on the urgency. Thank you. Sorry about that. Any public comment? Please come forward. Anybody else? Okay. Public comment is closed. Thank you for making the right choice in history. City Council. Kit. Thank you. We'll take the first vote. Please cast your vote. Motion carries. Thank you. And we'll take the second vote. Motion carries. Motion carries. Thank you. And 30. Communication from Councilwoman Gonzales recommendation to increase appropriations in the general fund group and the Economic Development Department by 25,000 to support the creation of a community vision for business corridor improvements that revitalize and activate historic Pine Avenue and the North Pine Neighborhood. There's a motion and a second. Is there any public comment on this item? Please come forward. Hello. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and City Council. My name is Romy Garcia. I'm owner and chef of Romeo Chocolates, located on North Pine, right where this corridor is slated for this recommendation. Just want to briefly state my support for this recommendation along with other small business owners in that corridor as well too. It's exciting to see the activation of these storefronts and that there's actually a sense of destination happening on that block. Historic Pine Avenue is a really important corridor here in downtown Long Beach, and it's an opportunity for our residents and business owners to come together in this visioning process, to make it a continued intergenerational space that's safe, that's walkable, and gives an opportunity for people in Long Beach and our tourists to live, shop and dine. Thank you so much for your support. Thank you very much. See no other public comment on this item. Please go ahead and cast your vote. Motion carries nothing. Thank you. I have signed up for public comment. I have folks that are wanting to talk about Councilwoman Gonzalez, and so I'm going to hold that until after the presentation piece, which will happen as soon as she arrives from the graduation. From I keep going through the agenda and going through some of these other items that that have. There are no requests for. And so let me do all those first and we'll do all the other ones. After the other council members arrive. We have one one big item before us. So you can come back if you'd like for for that item. And with that, let me turn this over now back to the regular agenda. And we're going to begin with item 25. Now we have and staff has a presentation on that. Item 25 is communications from City Manager recommend a recommendation to receive and file presentations on the potential extensions of the existing measure transactions and use tax citywide. Thank you. We're going to go ahead and start with the presentation. So Mr. West and Mr. Motor. Mr. Mayor, council members, this presentation is going to be given by the Assistant City Manager, Tom Modica. Tom. Thank you, Mr. West. So, Mary Council, we have a fairly lengthy presentation we'd like to walk you through to talk about something pretty critical that staff is recommending that you consider tonight, and that is the extension of Measure A, we'd like to kind of go through what measure has been used for, talk about some of the challenges that we foresee over the next 30 years that we really believe Measure should be a part of and kind of walk you through kind of our recommendation to you. And so on the screen, we'll get started. There we go. So just to remember, what is Measure A and how it came to be. July seven, 2016, we brought a measure to the voters to basically do a 1% sales tax for ten years, dropping down to half a percent after after six years. And Long Beach voters approved that by 60% of the voters it needed, 50 plus one to pass. It was a ten year sales tax that the council said by resolution was going to be for public safety and for infrastructure. As I mentioned, it was one 8% for six years, then declined half a percent for four years and expired in 2027. As part of that measure, we established a five member citizen's advisory committee to really review the use of the funds by the city. They meet about 3 to 4 times a year. They take action to determine is the spending that the city's doin g consistent with the resolution and the promise made by this Council of Voters. And they've approved that every single year. The number that it is generating is about $60 million a year at 1% and then about 31 million a year when it hits half a percent. And so we'll talk a little bit about. The new challenges that we're facing related to community health services tonight. We still have infrastructure challenges. Measure A has been a huge success and we'll talk about some of those successes. But we really do have long term funding solutions that we need to identify over the next 30 years for our infrastructure. We've also dedicated about half of the tax towards funding operations, and 2027 really isn't that far away where we have to make some decisions about whether those positions are at risk for elimination or whether they're going to continue. And Missouri really has been an enormous success. We've added public safety officers. We've maintained public safety personnel that otherwise would have been reduced. And we funded an unprecedented investment in our city's infrastructure. So let's take a look at some of the projects and services funded by measuring. One thing we did is we enhanced our public safety. We added 41 new public safety positions. We did Paramedic Rescue 12 and Fire Station eight restored to service. We used to have four police divisions and in the recession, we went down to three. And with Missouri, we're able to bring that back to four police divisions with the addition of South Patrol. And that's now at the same operational level as the other patrol divisions. We now have dedicated staff at our police academy, which allows us to to hire additional police officers. And we are supporting fire departments, heart team and our quality of life units. Those are two key units from the public safety side that are out in the field dealing with homelessness every single day. Important as well is that we've maintained 108 public safety positions. These are positions that otherwise would have been reduced and not available had we not had Measure eight to to help protect them. We've provided additional police and fire academies and we've renovated. We're planning for the future renovation of their training facilities. We've also been able to invest in new technology for public safety, including operational radios and body worn cameras. Looking at some of the infrastructure. And we'll dove a little deeper here in a second. But it's been about $88 million so far from FOIA 17 to FOIA 19 in measuring funds. And that is the largest investment we've seen in a long time. We've done $42 million. The vast majority has gone into streets and sidewalks and alleys. About $27 million into our parks and recreation facilities, about $15 million into our other public facilities and $3.5 million in stormwater projects. You'll all recognize this map. When we went out to voters, we showed them a map and said, these are all the projects that are going to get d

one. They're based on need. They're pushed throughout the entire city. And we have kept true to that promise. So these dollars, these projects are all getting done with the current measure that the voters had voted on. And we're getting nothing but accolades for the projects that are happening out in the community. So let's look a couple of those in detail. We have one of the first projects we did with Measure eight in the first year is we identified every street that could have a protectant sealant put on it to help with the preventative maintenance. Maintenance. We call that slurry seal. And we slurry sealed every eligible street in the city. 232 lane miles. We identified the worst of the worst alleys. Those are the alleys that were dirt. And those will all be paved with measure. We've done three miles so far. We had a new park space, brand new park space in the red car greenbelt. And as the vice mayor mentioned earlier today, we broke ground on Houghton Park Community Center, and that's under construction. We built five of the best playgrounds that we have in the entire city with major signature playgrounds that are really, truly amazing. And we have another four in the works. We repaired a number of roofs. And, you know, you know, those aren't always the most exciting things, but those are things we have not been able to fund just with basic dollars until there's a crisis in emergency. So we're able to proactively replace roofs, which saves the community a lot of money and lots of service. We've improved stormwater protection, we've done park improvements. We've also funded 102 lane miles of complete street projects, which include everything from curbs to ramps and sidewalks. We've repaired and upgraded 30 public facilities and we've done parking lot improvements and all of these projects are all on the web. We have an interactive GIS map where you can click on, see the project and see the status and how much money it was funded for. So I'd like to talk a little bit about our funding needs and what our challenges are coming up in front of us. And they really fall into three categories. Excuse me. The first is community health. So we do have some new challenges in community health. First and foremost, it's community hospital. So Community Hospital stopped accepting basic life support patients in spring 2018. That was completely unexpected and closed completely in July 3rd, 2018. That happened after Missouri was adopted. That was something that was presented to us in 2017 and happened shortly thereafter. 27,200 emergency service visits occurred at Community Hospital in 2016 and since its closure. Ambulance transport times have increased by 10%, which is a significant number. The City Council has been very familiar and involved in creating a strategy and a solution to reopen community hospital. We've identified a great private partner who is interested in that, and under the proposed deal that we're in, that we're working on finalizing our cost share would be about $25 million over the next 15 years. It's a city facility. We need to put our share into the seismic improvements while the private operator shares in those improvements and also puts in the money for the operating. So this council has made the initial decision to move forward with that, which we fully support, but it came without any revenue. So we do not have a solution on how to pay for that $25 million. And without additional solutions, we're likely facing other service reductions to make that a priority. The next category is infrastructure. When we came out with Measure eight, we estimated a backlog of about $2.3 billion. That really was an estimate at the time. We know that number is going to change as we both improve and also get additional data through our studies. And measure has been a huge help. It invested immediately $88 million over the last three years. But that is a small number. When you're looking at funding infrastructure, you're looking at funding it over the long haul. So what we've done with some of the infrastructure money is we created four plans really to assess and prioritize our investment. So this council has real data to understand what the need is and how we can best prioritize. We funded a pavement management plan which showed that we have about $510 million in street needs. We funded the city's first alley assessment plan and found out that it's about 98 million. There are sidewalk management plan has been completed with 631 million. And we're underway with a facilities investment plan. We have 200 facilities. We've done 17 so far, and that need is about 38 million. So if you extrapolate in rough numbers, it could exceed 500 million. And we'll know in the next two or three years as we finish that plan what that actual number is. And so what's important here is the sooner you can invest in your infrastructure, the cheaper it's going to be. If you wait until it's completely dilapidated, the cost just as much more is much higher. The third major area is public safety, where public safety remains our top priority. 70% of the dollars the council allocates goes to public safety and personnel costs. Really? We do public safety with people, with police officers, with firefighters. And those personnel costs grow every single year regardless of salary increases. The cost of having a force from all it takes to have a police force and a fire force grows every year. And so measure has been enormously helpful with both adding and enhancing, but also maintaining what we have and keeping those officers on the force. And so to date, right now, when you add the additions, plus all the officers we've been able to keep, officers and firefighters, it's 150 positions are funded by Measure A. So I want to talk a little bit about the public support for this. Just one thing we hear a lot is that Long Beach is the highest city with the highest sales tax. You'll hear that from time to time. It's not the case.

I wanted to show you this data here. While we were in earlier, adopter, since we went, 16 additional cities in our area in California have increased or proposed to increase their local sales tax. There's one city, Santa Fe Springs, that got special legislation to be at 10.5. And you can see the list of all the cities at 10.25 and the cities right behind us at ten. Mr. MODICA Just to clarify that, but that list is not a that list is of the cities that are kind of in this in Southern California. This is primarily Southern California. There may be one or two in Northern California. As a rule, we looked most of the cities with this sales tax tend to be in Southern California rather than northern California. Thank you. So before bring in the staff recommendation to you, we wanted to go out and do some polling to understand kind of how people perceive measure and also was there a public support to extend it. This is something a lot of cities do. There's a firm called FEM three, which are the premier firm out there that does this type of work. They've done 135 other California cities, and they also have done have done work for the county of Los Angeles and the Long Beach Unified School District. So we interviewed in April 600 Long Beach voters. We did interviews in English and Spanish. So I want to walk through some of the summary of what they found. One of the key questions you ask is, do you think that there's need for additional funding in Long Beach for quality services? And that number in Long Beach is very high. It's 70% to show that there is a great need or some need. And so that's a very strong number. We asked what the top three areas were for a measure of priorities. The top one was fixing potholes and repairing streets at 83%. The next was retaining all the new additions that we've been able to put in at 78% for public safety and revitalizing neighborhood parks at 76% and maintaining officers and others are right behind that. And when you do polling, you tend to ask the same question three times so that you can get an accurate gauge of of a number of different factors. So you asked the first time, just without a lot of information, here's what measure is would you support extending it? And in Long Beach, that number was 68%, which is an incredibly high number. When you talk to talk to the experts that do this. You then provide some messages about, you know, what is long? What is this measure? What could it be used for? You provide some of the positive messages to see what that does to the number. And in Long Beach, it went up to 74%. And then you provide some of the other arguments that you'll hear from an opposition campaign just to understand what that would do. And that actually brought it down only to 71%. So actually higher than where you were on the initial vote. So those are incredibly strong numbers. You don't often see that, you know, from what we understand in in many cities. So do you want to talk a little bit about why we would n eed this money and what our current financial situation is as well? So over the years and the last probably seven or eight years, there's been three major events that have helped us from a financial perspective. And the first one is the termination of redevelopment agencies. So while we lost a lot on the redevelopment side, that was a big significant improvement in the general fund side of our ledger. We also got a lot of cost savings from pension reform alone, which was one of the first cities to do pension reform. And what that did is had all of our city employees paying a much higher percentage into the pension system than they were before, and that's ongoing every single year. And the third was money for measures to both enhance services and maintain services. So when you add up those three, you actually end up with $55 million in support from those three major actions and $30 million a year from in infrastructure and one time uses. So without that, we would have been looking at some pretty drastic reductions. However, all three of those are fully allocated and they're all used to support current operations. But our cost, just like every other city in a high cost state, continued to rise. So looking at our what are the projections look like? I do want to say that, you know, the further out you get, the harder it is to project. So these numbers can and will change. That's why they're also expressed in a in a potential range based on a number of assumptions. But when you see the budget in about a month, you're going to see a very good budget, the FY 20 budget. It's essentially balanced, not a lot of service enhancements, as we had mentioned over the years. But it's going to be a good, strong budget in Fy21 there are some challenges in FY22 and then measure would be an option for the council to look at and make some decisions in about $15 million in FY 23. And then not sure on this chart is right now in 27, you wouldn't have any more measure of money under the staff's proposal. You would with voters approve. You would have an additional $60 million that we aren't currently receiving. So there's some complexity about the ballot measure, and I want to walk through that a little bit. So state law currently puts a cap on sales tax at 10.25 for all state and local taxes, including city and county tax. And so any extension of Missouri really needs to take that cap into account. And so we recommend that you do that in concert with some of the other tax measures that are out there, which includes Measure H, which is the homelessness tax that the county has put on, which also has a sunset provision. So we're recommending you keep basically the rate at where it is today, 1%. From a practical standpoint, the voters would not see any difference. It would be 1%, but it would go for until 2023 at 1%, then drop down 2.75% for a measure rather than go back up to 1% at 2027. And I'll show you that graphically in a second. There is some importance as to the staff

's recommendation on the timing of the ballot measure and why we're recommending that you put this on the March 2020 ballot rather than November. And, you know, the typical state law shows that you should be asked that you put these in front of voters when you have your your general election, which for us would be November 2020. But there's a provision for doing that earlier. And so one is we are hearing that there are some other entities that are interested in taxing and doing sales tax. First and foremost would be assumed. And there's a potential for L.A. County as well. And we're all competing for that same amount. So if they get to the ballot first and voters approve that, the tax that the voters would pay would be the same amount but actually wouldn't stay local. It would go to a different entity. So we really think that you should consider putting this on March 2020 and, you know, that amount would still be 10.25%, but it would just go to a different entity rather than Long Beach. So this is how it's represented graphically. This is what this staff would recommend is once you get to F 22, that's what Measure eight currently authorized, you can see it's 10.25%. We would go down 2.75% and the county would take that extra point 25. Again, from from a consumer perspective, they would continue to pay what they're paying today. 10.25 that that's what they're paying now. And then we would go about four years, five years on the calendar year rather than fiscal year. And then it goes back up to 1% in FY 28 and beyond. So in order to put it on the March 2020 ballot, you do have to do what's called a fiscal emergency declaration that's required under the state constitution, Prop 218. And so, you know, we would recommend that you do that for the reasons that we mentioned in the report community, hospital infrastructure and public safety. So in summary, we really believe Measure would be a major positive fiscal impact to the city. It would be $15 million a year that you'd be able as a council to make some financial decisions with after FY22. Then after that, there would be $45 million a year available in 2027, which we aren't currently programed for and would put us in a much stronger fiscal position. And so next steps, if you would like to move forward with this, you would direct the city attorney tonight to prepare an ordinance. There'd be a second chance to consider this. And essentially we would come back to you in July with that ordinance and the resolution declaring an emergency, and then it would really be up to the voters. So it's important that, you know, you don't make that decision. Staff don't make that decision. It's really up to the voters whether or not to extend a measure. And so our recommendation is in front of you. And with that, thank you for your time and we are available to answer questions. Thank you, Mr. Modica. And we're going to have if anyone's here for public comment, now's the time. Please come forward. And then after that, we will go to I'll make some comments and go to the council. Please come forward. I'm going to close the speakers list. So if you're not in line because this will be closed. So I have four speakers and after that the speakers list will be closed. Please come forward. All four speakers. Gwen Stefani, Orson Welles second district with regards to measure a as of crime rate is falling citywide it seems that seems to say that fewer armed police officers would be necessary. So an adjustment composed with that would probably would be a good idea. However, additional funds for the fire department are necessary as they are the primary response of agency for both the increasing homeless epidemic and general paramedic emergencies. Additionally, locally funded social and health workers would also be a nice addition to all necessary funds. Other than that should be going towards a critical reopening of the mental health floor community hospital. The loss of this has been a huge problem for the for the city and with regards to the projects that have originally that have already been funded. I think Public Works really deserves a heavy hand from the city. It's been a very, you know, overall easy transition. The disruptions to public service to the public, especially in the second District, have been minimal. The recent contract, you know, some supposed controversy over the road dying and on the Broadway has been overblown. As somebody who lives in the second District and is a father of a cyclist who's starting out in the second district, the measure funding has created a protected bike lane, which has frankly slowed down traffic and created a safer neighborhood. More additions like this in terms of making a pedestrian and cycling friendly city would be extremely welcome with an additional $50 million. Thank you for your time. Thank you. And our next speaker, please. Mayor and city council members. My name is Paul Mize. I'm a board member of the Long Beach Firefighters Local 372. Rex Pritchard apologizes for not being here tonight. However, he's out of town with his family. Long Beach firefighters fully supports and asks you to vote yes on this agenda item. We need to extend measure to maintain vital public safety services, improve emergency response times, and continue our investments in infrastructure. Extending Measure A will maintain our current tax rate to ensure Long Beach maintains the 150 public safety officers personnel funded by measure pay and including 37 new public safety workers, police officers, firefighters and paramedics hired since measure has been approved. Long Beach will be able to make safety repairs required to reopen Long Beach Community Hospital. Community hospital is a vital part of the 911 system. And reopening this hospital will be a tremendous positive impact. And save lives. If we don't act now to make Measure eight permanent, we will lose our ability to invest directly in Long Beach. Instead, we will pay the same tax rate we are pa ying now. However, the money will go to other agencies and not Long Beach. Extending measure ensures that we will continue to invest in our community. Missouri has been a huge success and has made improvements in every single council district while I'm standing here supporting me, making Missouri become permanent. As a member of the Local 372 Board of Directors, I'm also standing here as a resident of Long Beach asking you to support the agenda items. I lived in Long Beach for 18 years and I've seen on a daily basis, you know, while I'm driving around in my personal car, responding to emergency calls and the fire engine. That measure. Investing in our communities has been very noticeable. We need to continue invest in ourselves in years to come. Please vote yes. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hello, counsel. I'm Joel Weinstein. I wish Measure A could do the job, but it inherently cannot. Even management admits that with measures in place now, the city is getting ever further behind on infrastructure. It's no surprise, given a consistent commitment to Oscar Wilde's style of budgeting. Give me the luxuries of life. The necessities will take care of themselves. You know. Most of you politicians in your top management unabashedly and relentlessly work to exploit our ignorance and naive trust to get us to pay ever more in extra taxes like Measure A and M for the very same services that elsewhere require no new taxes, do not have the benefit of oil revenues, title and revenues, enterprise revenues. In each case, the pitch is that the new revenues will be dedicated carefully and exclusively to the services. A true but deceptive claim because revenues from the new tax can be legally dedicated. But council can divert and in case after case has diverted to other purposes the funds from the old sources that used to go to the services. Measure H in 2007 was going to give us a better fire. Protection. Result, you actually reduced engines and fire stations. Houses have almost burned down because there were not. And they remain. Absent. Engines and stations. And then there's those 200 police officers. Yeah, yeah. 200 less police mean a less safe. Long Beach was the. What was the pitch? And apparently that's what you want because you have not budgeted for anything like 200 new and worse to promote these little tax bites, these little more details. City Hall, you and your management have engaged in deceitful and arguably illegal pseudo rationales and campaign practices, including pretending that this building is about to fall down from seismic problems. And yet you made here you have put no employees out of here for three years and more. You send out costly and supposedly useful information fliers to some rather than all duly registered voters. You omitted from mailers and online information readily provided instructions on how to conveniently access the actual legal text. And you totally misrepresented in promoting Measure B-BBEE. You tot ally concealed that there would be a repeal of existing term limit provisions in the charter. So what? The needed new step is not a new tax, but a new council professionally as a decision analyst and math and stat analyst. My recommendation is, and as a citizen, I demand that all of you resign. We need a new council. Thank you very much. And our last speaker, please. Good evening, counsel Jim Foster, president of the Long Beach Police Officers Association. Honestly, it would take me the rest of the night to try to explain all of the good things that came out of Measure eight for our city. I'll try to limit that just to some of the really specific ones. Clearly, the maintaining and addition of staff as presented by Mr. Modica has been unbelievably helpful for us to be able to accomplish our mission. Some of the very specific things in here in this measure allowed us to get a full time training staff at the academy. And when you look at the attrition rate that we have had over the last several years, we're on the verge of, I think somewhere in the area of 15 to 20% of our officers have now been trained by the staff. That measure allowed to be there full time. In addition to that, we have a training facility at the academy that is falling apart. It is 20 years we've been in some temporary trailers. And I guess in the terms of life, everything is potentially temporary. But these trailers are falling apart. They're getting dangerous. And we've been good partners for many years with the citizens of working with what we had. But we're to a point now where we know we're going to have significant attrition over the next few years. We can become a regional training facility, and we have to do this on behalf of the safety of our of our team members that go through there and really for the benefit of the city to allow us to continue to retain and attract new candidates to be in our police department. In addition, one of the things that the taxpayers aren't always aware of is even after this measure was initially passed by such a large margin, the state, the federal government come down with new mandates that require the police department to get on board with new events like our radio system is no longer supported. We needed new radios. We couldn't function as a police department without them. That came from Measure eight body cameras, which is something that voters want and demand. This is a function that we need to provide. Coming from Missouri, I can go on and on, but I want to add one more part about the importance of community hospital . That hospital for decades has served not only my family but the residents of this city. It's where we kept our sexual assault response team, where we did some of our higher level things with the community. The most sensitive things were there. It's where we treat a lot of our prisoners that are in custody coming from nearly half of the city. And clearly the mental health facility there is of immeasurable help to the publ ic safety mission that not only firehouse, but we have also the taxpayers are getting their money's worth out of measure eight and then some. And so I would encourage all of you, as you look at the long laundry list of things that have done, the mission is not yet accomplished. This money is going to good use. And all of us on the police front, we urge your support in this measure. Thank you. Thanks so much. That concludes public comment. Let me make some I'm going to make some comment and then we'll go to the council for comments as well. So I just want to I just want to just first of all, just take a quick step back and kind of walk through kind of what got us here and then make some general comments as well. And I think, staff, you've done a great a great presentation and a very thorough job. I know that the finance team and a lot of your team was in front of us together. And I just want to thank you for for doing that. And so I just a few things have happened. I think there's there's two things that have kind of happened around the same time. The first is one that the council's already been discussing, and that's been the issue around community hospital. And I want to just point out that I think the council certainly had asked staff maybe a few months ago to look at solutions and how we would permanently fund community hospital. I know that that began some initial work from at the staff level. And part of that is in front of us today. And I think it's important to note that this measure extension is well, that is a piece of it. There's certainly a much broader focus, which is really about infrastructure and public safety. And that's kind of what I'm going to focus most of my comments on. But I do want to thank you. I know that when we asked you to bring back some information on community hospital about about a long term source, this was obviously a response to that. And the other probably more a larger piece of this has been, I think, what most of us have been reading sometimes on the front page of the Press Telegram and in other publications about other agencies, HMD being the largest of which have been discussing bringing forward an additional measure in front of voters, which would keep our tax rate the same, but certainly divert resources that are currently going in a major way into other agencies, which would be a loss for our community. I think that's for many folks. The bigger issue for for me, it's it's simple. And I think I strongly believe that we should extend measure aid to maintain our vital public safety services, our emergency response times, and to continue investments in infrastructure. I want to start by saying that we have through the current through the current measure that was voted on, we have maintained about 150 public safety personnel. That is actually pretty significant. This has been through our everything from restoring a paramedic units, as you heard, to our our engine bill. Onshore to the police work that'

s happening across the city as well. But the larger investment and the one that I think people have felt most immediately has been around infrastructure, the fact that we have already spent and fix $88 million worth of infrastructure is enormous. And we are this really is an era that we will look back on and be able to remember as a time when we really fixed our city when it came to infrastructure that is significant and it's something that I'm really proud of. I want to thank our public works team who have really had to re, you know, re-energize and rethink of the way they approach streets because there is now so much more work for them to do and be on our streets. It's been programed within our parks. When you look at our park playgrounds, when you look at it, fixing up many of our restrooms or our roofs or our libraries, there have been significant investment. And so we have made these investments to our parks, athletic fields, playgrounds, and they have really been really great to see. And I want to thank the voters and community for supporting that. I also want to just just make a note when when we went out in 2016, we were talking about a $2.3 billion backlog of infrastructure. And that was, of course, an estimate. And the fact that we have brought that and continue to move that number down with the investment, I think is significant. And we should really this new this new extension could allow us not just to put together a five year plan, which we currently have in front of us, but a plan that could really last ten, 20 , 30 years and it could really rebuild our community. Let me I will also note that the part that staff mentioned, which I think is really critical, is this idea of what other taxing agencies are doing. When Long Beach first chose to vote to move its tax structure to 10.25. We were actually an early adopter. There were a few cities that had done that. Now there are many cities that have done that. And today I can tell you that we will not be the only city doing this in 2020. In fact, there are cities up and down the state of California that for the very reason that I that we're discussing tonight are actually choosing to go up to fill their cap because they are aware that the economy, the county of Los Angeles and others, and then they I think they do great work. But everyone is looking at doing additional measures in the November ballot, and particularly a vacuum in pretty public about theirs. And so now the Long Beach voters will not be paying any more tax if measure is extended. But if these other measures pass, they will still be paying the same tax, but the money will be going to other agencies versus fixing our streets and roads and supporting our paramedic units and public safety. And so I think those are some critical questions. I think it's it's obviously important to note that over 60%, about 60% of the voters approved measure the first time that that was a huge, resounding show of support. I think I am proud that t his council has done a fantastic job of ensuring that what we told the voters the money would be spent on is where the money was spent. And to me, making a promise about where those dollars would be spent and then fulfilling those is really important. And it's about that is it to me about also about public trust. The money has been spent on fire, police service and infrastructure. And that's where we where we put it. What we're asking, I think staff recommendation is also to include the community hospital piece, which is something I strongly support as part of what we're doing moving forward. And so I know I've said already I fully support this and I want to thank our Art, the city team for their work on being able to to get these projects done. And so with that, let me turn this over to the council and begin with Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I think that was articulated very well. I want to thank staff for these 31 pages of this staff report. I love the way that it was organized in the fact that we looked at our history, we looked at the landscape around us, and we really drilled down on this this methodology of the tax. I think that makes sense. You know, Mr. Mayor mentioned the rate in which measure was adopted the first time at 60%. But I think I want to just lift up the opinion survey. I'm grateful that was published, showing that even after positive and negative arguments, the support for this extension was over 70% of of the sample of voters in the survey survey. And I think that was that's a very compelling point. So thank you for including that in this presentation. Broadly looking back on Measure eight the first time around, you know, the reality is our infrastructure was in a very different place in Long Beach. And I and I remember, you know, making the case for the Highland Park Community Center. You know, I personally took a number of council members there so they can see that the issue is not it's not fake. It's real. You know, the roof was collapsed and I grabbed, you know, Harry Salts gave her from the Gazette and brought him there and grabbed a piece of the wall and showed it how that how it crumbled in our hands. And and that's been the reality for many of our facilities. And the truth is, it's been an unfair it's been really unfair to have to make choices between rusted playgrounds and roofs that are collapsing. And that's been the reality for a long time. And since we've adopted Measure A, I think that that proposition has changed for for our citizens. They can finally, finally see a community center, which was a project that was simply too big because of our revenue constraints, to see that it's under construction and see that this community center will open this year really is a testament to the faith of the voters placed in Measure A the first time. So I'm a big fan there. I think secondly. You know, it's been it was seven years that we went without rescue 12. It was seven years. And those and what th at meant for us in North Long Beach was that we dealt with 3 minutes, slower response time than everywhere else in the city because of that paramedic rescue. And it wasn't every six months or year we were back at council, you know, pleading to the public in Cleveland, the council that this was a real situation here. And we learned firsthand that as it relates to first responders and public safety, it's really a sum of all of its parts. And so the addition of of engine eight and the restoration of Rescue 12 brought our response times down by three entire minutes in North Long Beach. And that is the same concern I have about about community hospital. If we don't come together and make, you know, and band together and make sure that we keep our safety net in place is going to impact all of us across the whole city. So I strongly support taking this action, if not simply to make sure that we maintain the the commitment we've made to our public about public safety and our emergency response. I want to lift up page 27 where it talks about and I know this has been underscored, but, you know, this is this has come to me I know some of the press has been has it had an opportunity to really kind of flesh out this case? But I think this is a really smart case that I want to lift up once again. I think the fact that the city is looking to do this in March and to March of 2020 and and fully optimize that cap means again that whether we do this or not, the effective tax rate and please confirm this for me once again. Mr. MODICA The effective tax rate to citizens won't still, you know, won't drop below below 10.25% if these other measures go go through. So they're still going to pay the same tax rate. Is that right, Mr. Modica? So if under our proposal, if we basically extended everyone, it would continue at 10.25%. We wouldn't receive the full 1%. County would get point to 5%. We would get 2.75%. If that. Or is there a different question? Yeah, in. Answer. If we didn't move forward in the assumed measure and these others move forward, there is a reality that the 10.25 effective tax rate would still remain for our taxpayers, but we wouldn't capture that additional money. I see. So let's let's say the council does not put this in front of voters, then there would be about 0.75% still available and that would be available for AQ, M, D or county or somebody else to pay. Then you would have voters paying the 10.5% and that would not go to Long Beach. You'd go to a different agency. And for that reason, I think it's also smart to say we should give the voters an opportunity to vote and say, Do I want that effective additional point, 75% of my taxes to go to a different agency? Or do we want to keep it local where we know our city council members and we know our mayor and we know you know, we know we use our parks and our streets and we know what streets need to be fixed. And I think that is a vote that needs to go in front of the residents. So that said, thank you.

Thank you for putting together such a well thought out presentation. And and this earns my support tonight. Thank you, Councilmember Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes, thank you, Mayor. I also think that you really articulated exactly what we should be doing, and I support this extension on average for March 2020. You know, Measure eight has provided the city the ability to do a lot of good things in Long Beach, everything from roads, sidewalks and more public safety to repair our library and playgrounds. In my district, it has funded improve libraries, new playgrounds, MLK, Veteran's Park, as well as new improvements at Market MacArthur Park. And I don't know how many miles of street is paved in my district, but it seems like every week a new street repaired or repaved. We need to continue our efforts on public safety, continue to repair road sidewalks and alleys, and for the reopening of the hospital. I believe that we've given the choice to our residents. They will support our efforts to make Long Beach a much safer place for us to live. And thank you very much, Mayor. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Councilwoman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and thank you to staff far too, Mr. Modica, for the presentation. I agree that we have had a lot of really great restorations as a result of measure moneys and for me the most important thing is going to be to make sure that we continue to maintain the resources that we have. Of course, it would be great to add to them as well. I think we absolutely need more police officers, more fire resources, as one of the speakers mentioned, more technology to ensure that we are operating both our police and fire department with the most up to date and comprehensive community policing, community firefighting, all the different technologies and practices that have been developed to build transparency, bring about efficiency, and result in a more streamlined public safety team for the city. So I absolutely think we need more. I will tell you, in my district, as hesitant as folks are to celebrate new taxes, one thing that I think every resident in my district would agree on is that we need more public safety resources. That is a huge, huge priority in my district, has continued to be the number one priority for our district. And with the increase of homeless populations, our police and fire department are being tasked to handle issues that frankly are not their issues to handle, but they are viewed as the source and the solution for a lot of the problems that residents are seeing. And so they are being asked to do more with very limited resources. So I do think that that maintaining those resources at a minimum is what our goal needs to be. And we've done very, very steady and consistent restorations in the time that I have been on council, and I want to ensure that that work is not reversed and undone and that we continue to maintain those assets for the city at the current levels, if not add to them. I will say one argument that I think speaks to me and it didn't I didn't really appreciate it or understand it as much as I do now after watching the presentation, because I think it really hit home for me is the fact that there is a statewide sales tax cap. And that and I said this the last time we were having the discussions about measure to begin with, a lot of people said we're going to be the highest tax city in the area. And I said to people, you're talking about a point in time, which is now if you look at 3 to 5 years down the road, you will find that many cities are going to be struggling with how to deal with some of the challenges that we're all facing, whether as a result of pension costs or whether as a result of dealing with homelessness. And my predictions were absolutely true. Day after day, we read articles about cities grappling with how they're going to pay for some of these challenges that they're facing. And tax increases, sales tax increases have been proposed and will continue to be proposed over the next 3 to 5 years. So I don't think having a conversation about what's going to happen, you know, where we're going to be in ten years and speculating that we're going to be as high as well. Actually, we're very much in line with a lot of cities around us. But but assuming that we're going to be higher than the cities around us in the length of time that we're looking at for this sales tax increase, is is really an irresponsible speculation to make, because it is not the trend that we are seeing in nearby cities as as many cities and counties are grappling with how to deal with this issue. I've been very, very concerned and very proud of this board. And, of course, our advisory committee. Bless you. That views the expenditures for Measure A to ensure that the commitment that we made to the residents on what we would spend Measure A for is limited to those areas. I've been very concerned about that. And I, I will you know, I'll be the first to say it. I was not completely confident that there wouldn't be an attempt to spend money beyond those areas that we had committed to as a council. But thus far, we've been very measured and very much in line with the intent of this body when that tax measure was passed, I hope that that will continue. And when we're talking about community health, there is nothing more pressing in terms of. Community health, at least to the east side of Long Beach right now than the reopening of community hospital. So that is a major priority for for me and I know many of my colleagues in ensuring that we have the funding in place to make sure that the community hospital opening is facilitated with the city's assistance is very important to me and some of my colleagues. So bless you. Bless you. So I look forward to continuing to have these discussions. Obviously, the details of the action that we take, how we word the resolution and what the legislative intent of this body is when we move forward with the next steps of this process will be very critical to me in terms of how I vote. But for now, spending money on our police, our fire, our infrastructure and community hospital are all priorities that I believe are. Definitely priorities that are citywide, priorities that we need to make sure that we fund not just today but for many, many years, decades to come. So thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilman Austin. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So I'll just try to be brief and say that I think this is. I think Steph's presentation was excellent. I think it's certainly worth moving forward with and exploring, extending, I believe Measure A puts our city in a position to control our destiny infrastructure, public safety, public health, our priorities of this city. Because the residents have communicated to us as a body city council year after year. I've been on the council for seven years. Those have been priority issues and I think Measure A addresses all of them. Homelessness, as we know, is an ongoing challenge for us. So we'll need to continue to plan for on how to address that issue with resources and from a public safety standpoint. Today, we have funded a hard team with fire fighters who are full time engaging homeless. Citizens, also quality of life officers. So I think but externally measure a man hands our ability to engage this very serious issue of facing us all. From a Resident standpoint, I've seen so much improvement in my community as a result of measuring the parks works, but the infrastructure, the street repairs. But I know that the need is still, still pretty vast throughout our city. I get communicated with regularly from residents who are asking for their streets to be fixed, and I know that that's a priority. It's one of my priorities. And so I want to make sure that we have the resources to continue to be able to do that and to deliver, not just today, but also in the years to come. Speaking to one of the residents who came before us. I think the way Missouri was also laid out there was and has been some public confidence because people have seen the results of Missouri. But also, there has been civilian oversight over the process in terms of how the expenditures and who's in are being spent. So it's not just the city council. Obviously, we're watching it. Our Budget Oversight Committee is on on it. But we have a civilian oversight commission that that is very engaged in in the day to day details of how Missouri is being expanded. And so I think that that I know that will be in place moving forward, I'm certain. And then I think this afternoon I wouldn't. I think infrastructure is important, but new infrastructure is also important. And the values of the city is also can be can be moved through this this extension. And I would just say we can can also improve our economic development. It all works together. We have improved economic development through the use of infrastructure funds. And so I'm interested in seeing how we can do that to improve the vitality ty and continue the renaissance, particularly in the north part of our city, but citywide as well. So I'll be voting in support of this moving forward. I'm looking forward to having some engaging conversations with our residents over the course of the next few weeks and months ahead. Thanks. I think it comes from Boston Councilman Pierce. Yes. Thank you. Thank you. Tom Modica and the team for the great presentation. I think it's really helpful to have a full picture of how our constituents are feeling and not maybe just listening to The View. And so you really answered a lot of questions that I had. I, I was not here when Measure was passed the first time, but it has been great to serve. While we have measuring not only Broadway or alleyways or street repairs as we bring forward I know Public Works is getting ready to bring forward our Vision Zero plan, which is really committed to by 2026 having zero traffic fatalities in the city of Long Beach. And we can't do that if we don't have infrastructure repairs on our main streets, whether it's Seventh Street, whether it's Broadway. And so I'm thinking of Measure eight, not only as an infrastructure plan, not only as a public safety with adding police officers and fire, but really as a life saving measure that we really need to have for our city to make sure that we're thriving. So I'm not going to take up a lot of time, but I think for me in the second district, what's important is we have conversations around adding police officers on bikes. To me, that means not just giving bikes to police officers that we already have, but making sure that we're increasing our officers so that we can have those bikes in those key areas where cars can't get to making sure that we're thinking about fire in our downtown. We've increased density as a result of the downtown plan, and we do not yet have a plan to increase our fire safety in our downtown and then considering our Vision zero and how we are making sure that our streets are safe. So I wholeheartedly support this. I will look forward to supporting this and having a thoughtful conversations with our constituents as we move forward. So thank you for bringing it forward. Thank you. Councilmember Ringa. Thank you. I agree with all the comments that have come forward from my council colleagues. I remember back in the fall, ten, 15 years ago when the city was in a in a tremendously difficult situation. We were trying to make our budget balanced. We're trying to maintain services. And we had a difficult time about it when major aid was proposed and passed by the citizens in the electorate. It was a game changer for the city of Long Beach. Now we were able to replenish our public safety personnel to return some services that we had lost or that over the course of the budget cuts over the years. And to go back into that era where we were having to struggle to balance our budget is unacceptable. And I think that it would be a tragedy for us not to continue to to h ave imagery as part of our built in infrastructure. We've I constantly get bombarded in my office with requests for trimming trees, which fixes sidewalks for restoring services. And I could say that thanks to Marjorie, we have been able to do that and will continue to do that into the future. So I'm fully supportive of this item here and I would be voting for it. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Supernanny. Thank you. I'm in full support here. I don't want to be repetitive. All the. Critical points have been made. I've been a long time supporter of community hospital, but I think both the Police Officers Association and the Firefighters Association articulated just what this hospital means to the public safety network. And that's really what this measure supports, in my view, is that as a system of public safety, that the hospital is just a critical component, too. So thank you. And I stand in support. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilwoman Mongo. Yes. I want to echo the comments of many of my colleagues related to that of public safety and community hospital. They are both critical to the successes that we've been able to see in our city. If you don't feel safe, there's nothing more important. And you cannot live and thrive in a community where you don't feel safe. And so those restorations were necessary. And I'm very thankful for the great work that our public safety teams are doing. I think it's also good that we spend a little bit of time on the infrastructure side. Over the last three years. District five residents have endured the dust of construction, and they've done that because of Measure A, we've paved and slurry to over a hundred streets and repaired many of our critical facilities, including something I consistently hear from residents to be of the utmost importance. Park Bathrooms. This council made the fiscally prudent decision to repair what we could and to fix our street. Yes, many of them need it. I hear colleagues mentioning park bathrooms on both sides. But those streets and those park bathrooms are daily needs of our community. You have to drive on those streets to get to and from your home into your workplace. And when you're in the park, you need the facilities to be able to take your kids and or yourself to the restroom. Today, District five has more than $31 million of very poor streets, and that's after we've paved in slurry to 100 of those streets. We made some fiscally prudent decisions to not let streets fall into disrepair, but to be able to dig out of $31 million in very poor streets. It takes something longer than a five year plan or a ten year plan. We really need to be able to to plan out longer. So we've also done work to dozens of our bathrooms, but the list is ever longer and there are too many bathrooms that are just unacceptable. And so I think it's important for residents to have the opportunity to decide if Measure A has demonstrated the return on investment that they had hoped for, and if they trust t his council and the Citizen Oversight Committee to maintain a focus on the priorities that they set out. I hope that the discussion around what we will spend that money on will remain focused on the much needed repair of our very poor streets and our worst park bathrooms. The city of Long Beach still has over $200 million of streets that are in very poor condition. 200 million. And repair that along with our our worst park bathrooms. I think we need to come up with a plan that every year we pave a certain number of our worst streets and we repair or completely refurbish our worst park bathrooms. Residents deserve a plan that says your street will be repaired in and then I should be able to tell them the year that their street is planned for repair. The idea that some day will come is just not enough. So as a taxpayer, I want to see my taxes spent in this community. And so for that reason, I'm supporting giving the residents the choice to maintain the tax at this level and keep it local, instead of maintain the tax at this level and see it go off to another agency or for the state. So for that, I'm supporting this item tonight. Thank you very much, Councilwoman. And let me just also just say the last thing I think. I'm not sure we made clear in the presentation. I want to be clear because it's been asked. This council has approved about 140, $150 million infrastructure plan as part of the measure, a, the Missouri ballot measure that passed in 2016. Everything that has been proposed by this council under the first plan is all being funded under the Measure eight plan. So anything beyond that, it's extended, of course, will be new projects and new streets and new investment. So I think want to make that clear as well. I think we've been asked that a few times, but I want to thank everyone for their thoughtful comments and and certainly for giving the voters an opportunity to consider extending something that's really transforming our community every single day. And so with that, members, please cast your votes. Motion carries. Great. Thank you very much. We'll be moving on to the rest of the agenda. Next is the consent actually of hearing number one. And so I'll make note of when she when she joins us. And also, we're going to we have three hearings which were going to begin with a meeting with like we like we normally do. And I'll begin with hearing item number one, Madam Clerk. Report from Development Services recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the public hearing and deny an appeal. Protests by Lennar Multifamily communities on the imposition of a park and recreation facility fee for the Ocean Aire project at 150 West Ocean Boulevard, District two. Thank you, Mr. Parkin. Thank you. Mayor, just on a housekeeping matter for the teleconference for the city council district three, that all the votes this evening must roll call vote. Yep. And also that that location is open, even though the councilmember may be joining us later if the public is participating from that location. I don't know why they would be doing that at this time of night in Greece, but if they are, it is open and it will be open through the entire part of the meeting. So just for the record, we're saying that. And then one last item. In the closed session this evening, the council, by a vote of 5 to 0, authorized the city attorney to file an amicus brief with the United States Supreme Court in the matter of the Department of Homeland Security versus the Regents of University of California, dealing with the DOCA issue. Thank you. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce. Yes. I'd like to make a motion to postpone this item until August 13th. So there's a motion in a second to postpone this item, the hearing hearing on about 1 to 1. So to continue the item until August 13th is for public comment on the continuation motion. Seeing none members, please go and cast your votes. Councilwoman Pierce. Yep. By roll call. Yes. I'm Councilwoman Price. Councilmember Supernova. Yes. Councilwoman Mongo. Yes. Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes. Councilmember Younger Councilman Austin. Councilmember Richardson. Great motion case. Moving on to hearing item number two. Report from Development Services recommendation received supporting documentation under the record. Conclude the public hearing and adopt a negative declaration. 03-19 Declare Ordinance Amending Title 21 of the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to the drive thru facilities. Read for the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading and adopt a resolution directing the Director of Development Services to submit the ordinance amendments to the California Coastal Commission citywide. Thank you. We turn this over to staff for the full report. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. First, if we can get the clicker for the slides to be able to advance the presentation from the clerk or from the tie in the back. And the staff report will be given by Linda Tatum, director of development services, as well as Christopher Coons, our planning bureau manager. I'd like to turn this presentation over to our planning manager, Christopher Koontz, and the planning team that also includes our advanced planning officer, Patricia Defender for. Good afternoon, Mr. Mayor, and members of the Council. We are back with the proposed permanent regulations for how the city will regulate drive thru facilities. As a reminder, this effort began in July of 2018 and that it went through the typical planning process. It did have a non typical step. We were in front of you in April of this year for a moratorium request. You asked us to work expeditiously and we are here two months ahead of schedule. Back to present our final regulations to you this evening. Existing regulations in terms of drive thru facilities in the city are uneven. Restaurants in commercial zones are subject to a copy process, whereas banks and other facilities are subject to AUP pr ocess in certain industrial areas. Drive thru facilities are able to go in as a matter of right, but in other locations, not if they're within 300 feet of residential district. The action in front of you tonight cleans up that inconsistency and provides what we feel are contemporary and appropriate regulations for all such facilities throughout all of the city. The map on the left gives you an idea of under the status quo regulations where drive thru facilities are allowed in both red and gray and on the right gives you an idea of where our existing drive thru facilities are. On the right is important because when we talk about new regulations, those are going to apply largely to new facilities. So those in excess of 100 existing facilities will be able to continue to operate in their current locations. As I mentioned, there are 116 and fast food drive thru facilities throughout the city. They're in every district and every part of the city. This effort was initiated due to an increase in the number of applications for additional new drive thru facilities. While such facilities provide convenience to the consumer. They also have impacts in terms of pedestrian safety, traffic and queuing night, the noise and pollution. And with our mobility element as well as our most recent land use element, there's a concern that this style of development is inconsistent with our goals and policies for the city. So diving into that a little bit further, our current regulations do not. They're over 20 years old. They do not align with the best practices in the city's policy documents in terms of addressing quality of life, sustainability and design drive through as they go in and pedestrian oriented areas or mixed use areas. It cannot only create hazards and collisions between pedestrians and motorists, but may also inhibit the city's housing and economic goals over time. The land use element and urban design element encourages mixed use corridors to accommodate housing and mixed use rather than single use drive thru facilities. This slide just gives you an overview of there are positive impacts associated with these facilities, including convenience and speed, as well as while we do not is not within our regulations. Many of these provide lower cost, affordable options to consumers. There are also the negative impacts that we've talked about in terms of air quality, safety, noise and opportunity cost for what could have otherwise gone in on that site. So what do we do through the process over the last year? We've come up with proposed regulations that better define all drive thru facilities and require a conditional use permit in all locations throughout the city. The process by which planning staff and the Planning Commission make a decision on any given application is through what are called findings. This action will change the findings required to approve a drive thru facility and those findings will better address negative impacts and reference the design o f the facility today under the status quo. Our findings only regulate the length of the queue for the cars and the location and orientation of the menu board. So these are the proposed findings in front of you without reading through all of them. I just want to be clear that there is a focus on design. So even in those locations where a drive thru facility might be appropriate, such as adjacent to the freeway or on a site that can't support another use, this will allow us to achieve a higher level of design and safety for the public, including the patrons of these facilities. These new findings will require consideration of tradeoffs and will allow staff and the Planning Commission ultimately to provide a more nuanced side by side analysis and allow these facilities where they're appropriate and guide them to locations such as shopping centers and freeway adjacent sites. One of the findings that is part of this regulation is a departure from how we typically regulate land use because it will look at what we call opportunity cost. So this just shows you on a site that is 30,000 square feet, you might get on the upper end, a 4000 square foot drive through a facility with about 25 parking stalls. That's a floor area ratio of 0.13 or sort of a low usage of the land. And we would compare that not to the land being vacant, but to what else could be placed on that site. So in this case, a three storey townhome project would yield about 30 housing units with some ground floor retail. So in that case, the findings would suggest that is not an appropriate location for the drive thru facility. This map on the left shows again, we saw this earlier. All of the locations in gray and red where drive thru facilities are permitted today, applicants will be allowed to apply in all of those locations going forward. But when we look at the findings on the right, it just gives you a preview of those locations that staff thinks are most likely to support additional drive thru facilities. And those are those locations where it's a more automobile oriented location or other uses are not permitted or it's in a shopping center or a freeway adjacent. So with that, we've worked expeditiously, but really tried to take into account the impact that this counsel provided a couple months back. We've brought two regulations that do not prohibit drive thru facilities but provide a much more effective and focused permitting process to get the design of those facilities and location of them correct. We would ask you to adopt the ordinance that has been prepared by the city attorney and to forward this item to the California Coastal Commission for their certification within the coastal zone. If this code amendment is adopted tonight and then goes on to second reading, it would end the existing moratorium, most likely 30 days after the second reading. And for those applications that were already in process, which were attached to the minute order when you did the moratorium. Those wou ld be processed under the old rules because those were the rules that existed on the day that they filed their application. So with that, we would be glad to take any questions that you may have. Thank you. There's emotion and a second concern for Pierce. I want to say how much I appreciate you guys doing a quick turnaround on this. I know that it's been in the works for a long time. I fully support I'm going to vote yes tonight. I look forward to hearing if community has any comments and look forward to hearing my my colleague's comments. I did have a question sort of related to this. If we're denying projects because there's a higher and better use, which I support, and how long like, say, that property stays vacant for three years, that we don't have a developer that comes on that. Is there a time limit that we're assessing for that? I just know we have a lot of vacant spots in my district. So thank you for the question. Council Member So there is not a time limit baked into the ordinance, but staff through practice would look at in an economic cycle. So in a five year period and when we talk about opportunity cost, it's not just could something else theoretically go there. It's when you look at market conditions, when you look at the physicality of the site and what is there a viable alternative use, not just is there, you know, sort of someone has an idea. So we would put all of that into the soup and take a look. And I think, you know, we're looking at the narrow issue of the drive through facilities this evening, but there's a number of issues with the vacant lots in your district, and we'd be glad to have a separate conversation. About and I know I believe Councilmember Austin had done an item around vacant lot, so I look forward to getting that item back because it's definitely an issue that we want to talk about. I think this is great. You know, I'm a single mom and so drive thrus are something that unfortunately I use from time to time. But knowing the health impacts, not only of the space that they use, the environmental damage that's done, but also often the food is a challenge. One other question. When we talked last time, we also talked about bikes and pedestrian access to two drive thrus. And I know you referenced where that where they're located throughout the city, but is there any other design implementation around bike accessibility or pedestrian windows? Good afternoon. Councilmember is Patricia Defender for yes. The design guidelines which will be coming to you at a later time, they'll be going to the Planning Commission and we can give you a presentation on those. Those will require a number of different site planning measures and the contemplation of walkup windows and other outdoor dining and facilities that would serve pedestrians are part of the design, would be part of the design guidelines, and we'll be looking for those things in future developments. Thank you, guys. Job well done. I look forward to the vote. Thank y ou, Councilmember Councilman Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I, I you know, I got to tell you, this was a really quick turnaround, and it seems like you've done what the council had asked you to do. There's one area on page nine that I'd like just a little bit more clarity on. I know one of the significant issues was that some of these uses are over concentrated in certain areas, in certain communities within Long Beach. I see bullet number seven says that that will now be a factor, you know, a finding as we consider drive thru. So how is that actually going to happen? I see it as it's not located in an area of existing overconcentration and not located within a 500 foot radius of the school or park. And I know as relates to liquor stores and things like that, typically if there's, you know, there's a guideline that says that there are more than this many licenses, then it's subject to be protested. How would this process work for drive thrus or would it be similar? Thank you for the question, Councilman Richardson. So it would be similar, but it would be a departure. One of the issues we have in the alcohol regulation as we look at the census track, so that presents problems because you may have a liquor store across the street that's in a different census track, but it's not captured. So what would we what we would be doing is asking the applicant on any one of these applications to show on a radius map how many existing drive thru facilities are within 500 feet and 1000 feet of the facility. And looking at that close proximity and it will require some nuance because those facilities that are, for example, within a shopping center or a place like the town center in Councilmember Mungo's district, you know, don't contribute to overconcentration in the same way that freestanding facilities that break up the rhythm of the street do. So all of that will have to be analyzed. They'll be guidance provided in the application forms from that department, but that doesn't go into the text of the ordinance. Thank you. And I'd like to just follow that. I think you're right. It's treated differently in certain certain communities because they're designed differently. And, you know, you know, a drive thru in a large town center is not going to have the same impact as a drive thru, you know, on a main and main corridor, let's say, in North Long Beach. So I'd like to follow that. And the last thing I'll say is that I think this is certainly a step in the right direction. We know that there's certainly a need for other business types, grocery stores, neighborhood serving markets, pharmacies and in typically in banks. And the the drive thru has been a tool for us to be able to get a bank, our first bank in our district. We needed to put the drive through ATM in order to get the bank. But there's no need really for drive thru restaurants. There's plenty of drive thru restaurants. So as long as we maintain that flexibility to say as an economic development tool t o bring a pharmacy to your community, yes, your pharmacy can have a drive thru or as an economic development tool to bring a bank into your community. Your bank can have a drive thru ATM, but it would be treated differently with a drive thru restaurant. And as I understand it, you know, what we're doing here doesn't stop us from continuing to sort of differentiate between the two. Correct? That's correct. It's that's exactly what's in front of you. Great. Then I support this. Thank you. Thank you. Let me go to a public comment and we'll go back to the council. Is your public comment on this item? Okay. I'm going to close the speakers list. I've got two items, two members for public comment and I'm close to two speakers. So I have four and that's it. I'm closing the speakers. Please come forward. Okay. All right. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the city council. It's a pleasure to be here this evening. My name is Steve Gerhart and the executive director of Walk Long Beach. We, too, would like to thank staff for the expeditious effort to bring this item forward and generally were very pleased with what has been put into the regulations. As was stated in the staff report, we're focusing on design. One very important piece that's missing is the design guidelines. So one of our requests would be that the moratorium be in place until the design guidelines are available. We would want to lift up this comment that you had, Councilmember Pearce, about keeping the businesses open for walkers and pedestrians and people that just live nearby and don't need to drive. Finding number six, serving locals who choose to walk and bikes. We do have one small fix to the finding, a number eight. It currently states the general plan or economic blueprint. We think that should probably be an and or it could be in either of those two documents. We look forward to the implementation of this ordinance. And again, we think that the design guidelines, the devil's are in the details, and that's really what staff is going to be using to make sure that the walkup windows, their access from the street is there and that really this item is not fully cooked until those are available. So with that, thank you very much and we are very much in support of this item. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. My name is Hilda Guyton. I live in the ninth district. I would like to thank the city staff for the great work they did in the short period of time about the drive thru regulations. The drive thru report being presented to the City Council today has brought out information. I was not aware of a new racism concern. The regulations are good, but the amount of drive thrus in the 9805 area is almost double in comparison of the other zip codes in the city having equal regulation a modest amount about around the city in a scenario with big disparities, making it inequitable and discriminatory toward the 90 year area. It is important for the city to implement stronger regulation, to close the gap in the disparities and prevent nyayo free from increasing the amount of drive thrus over the past year. I and the Latino members, along with other Long Beach community members, has been working with the city through the U. I plan a plan I never thought how would you pronounce it? Through the plan to change this zoning for the Atlantic and Artesia corridors. Even though the draft documents call for a long drive through zoning along the corridors, they are many more corridors and areas where these developments can pop up and continue affecting the environment and the public health of Long Beach residents. My group and I are looking forward to keep working with the city and our plan on changing the zoning for the 98 of my area. But in the meantime, I sincerely request the Council to extend the drive thru moratorium for the 95 zip code and to new regulation that addresses the inequalities in the amount of drive thru between the 98 of Frye and the rest of the city. And the new plan recommendations are in place. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker. Good afternoon, Mayor. City Council. My name is Kirk Davis. I archaic as I know they spelled it wrong last time. I live in the ninth district and I've been on top of this issue pretty much from the beginning. I'm very thankful for city staff, for the work they've done in a short period of time, and it's nice that they were able to show the inequity between the 905 area code and the other 12 area zip codes in in Long Beach, showing that we have 26 drive thrus, over 115 that were listed in the report. I was hoping that the moratorium would stay on the drive thru until the general plan comes into effect and until the YOU plan recommendations come into effect, because that's going to really affect how the things come up. It also brought up in the report how there was an increase in the amount of drive thrus applied for. And I think that it is in direct relation to the fact that there's going to be a new general plan. So if the moratorium can be extended for the whole city, I would please ask that the moratorium can be extended to the April five area code until the general plan is passed and until all the up plan recommendations are put into force. Thank you. Thank you. And our last speaker. Good evening, Mayor and city council. My name is Ailsa Chang with Long Beach Forward. We'd like to thank the mayor, the council and especially the staff for bringing these regulations forward so quickly. Long Beach Forward was a part of the Advocate Coalition to request a moratorium on the drive thrus. And again, thank you all so much for acting on that moratorium so quickly. Our primary goal for this item and for the city as a whole is healthy, equitable land use. To this end, and as my colleagues Hilda and Kirk just mentioned, page two of the staff report is telling, the highest concentration of drive thrus is in the 90805 zip code in. North Long Beach. That's 22% of all drive th

rus in the city. This is just one of many, many examples of disproportionately unhealthy and incompatible land uses in low income communities of color. So with that, we look forward to working closely with the mayor, the council and the city staff to. Strengthen the planning policies and processes, including through the land use element. And community driven zoning code updates. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment on this hearing. Let me turn this back to the council and Councilwoman Mongo. So I really want to thank the development staff. I think you've done excellent work. I was I was in alignment with Councilmember Super and I in that there already is a process. And so I was not sure that we really needed the moratorium, but I'm glad that it came back so quickly. I think that the work you did is great. I think there's a couple of things that I see coming into the city and quite frankly, retail as a whole that need to be considered. More and more, the drive thrus are being faced with the inability to serve customers fast enough, and they're doing parking spots and drive up delivery. And I think we really need to talk about that. I can give you a couple of examples of locations where the drive up spot is actually not very conducive to the pedestrian walkways. It also means that once they pull into the mobile ordering parking spot, they then can't get out because the drive thru backs up past them and now they can't get in or out of these spots. And so I don't know what kind of process we could have to help them identify when they're taking a parking spot out of parking. What does that mean? Because when they were approved, they had a certain number of parking seats that was spaces that were required. And now they're taking four or five, sometimes even six parking spots. I'd also like to say that not all drive thrus are created equal. You take the town center, the number of seconds it takes, or the Chick fil A to serve a customer is almost a third of what it takes in an out to serve a customer. So now you have a concentration of drive thrus that are actually blocking each other because one business is far superior in its turn times . And so I don't know what kind of incentive programs we can have for getting cars through the line quicker so that we have less idling vehicles and less impact on the community because those are a major impacts. We also have major retailers that have no current drive thru component doing drive up and I think that we might need to look at some signage about turning off your engine. So Target, Wal-Mart, Vons, Ralphs, they're all doing drive up and pick up your groceries. All of those are coming into play in my district. We're getting the Wal-Mart drive up later this year. People often sit there idling their vehicles, and if we could come up with some universal signage that could be required as a part of the drive thru slash drive up regulation might be helpful if we see another phase of this come forward.

I appreciate that. When this came for the first time, I wasn't as prepared for knowing and understanding the need. I appreciate the education, both from the city staff and from the community. I think that in talking with our businesses and our drive thru owners, that's given me the time to learn a little bit about the push through times and things like that. And so I would encourage you guys, if you're interested in meeting with some of those store managers and owners of franchises, that could be helpful as well. But I think that the starting point here is fantastic. I'm comfortable adopting this tonight. And then would it be possible to make it a friendly to come back with some of those drive up things, Councilwoman Pearce. It would just be at the direction of council that that would come back maybe even through a two from four if you thought another zoning change was necessary. City Council Member Thank you so much for the question. If it's acceptable to the Council as part of this action, there are design guidelines that will come back to the Planning Commission, and we really rely on the Planning Commission to make those fine level details. And the issue that you discussed is an ongoing issue all over the city, even for places that have nothing to do with drive thru and that they are blocking off their parking for their sort of mobile order pick up. And it's. So that is an issue that that the department is trying to address. And we will be presenting those solutions to the Planning Commission. And I think our preference would be to provide you that information in a TFF rather than making a change, because these issues change over time. So it may be best not to memorialize it in that code, but rather in our operating regulations. I think that's fantastic. I think there's just one last thing, which is as the costs of owning and operating a business are changing and growing, one of the things that has recently been brought to my attention is that a restaurant will sublet itself out on non-peak hours or actually have a second like online only secret restaurant operating out of the same location. And so sometimes a business that has no mobile component of it may actually have one. And I don't know how through business licensing we can address that. But just something to bring on your radar. Yeah, we can talk with business license about that. Thank you. Great work. Thank you, Councilwoman Councilmember Supernova. Thank you. I'd also like to start by commending staff for a great work, great report, working expeditiously. I think the original proposal was for a one year moratorium and that was cut in half to six months and then you've cut it in half again. So great job on that. I do have only one question for staff involving the report. And to answer you can be, I don't know, or zero or a whole number. How many drive thru mortuaries are there in Long Beach? Drive through mortuaries. What we do not have any here in the city of Long Beach, there is one in a neighboring community that we're aware of. Okay. So how many in the state of California? You know, I don't know. I said that was one option for an answer. So thank you. But we have we did a field trip to visit the drive through moratorium in a neighboring city. So we know it exists. Okay. But it is it will be at this passes tonight that will be part of our municipal code drive thru. Mortuaries are mentioned in this item. Yes. Okay. So I don't want to be too repetitive and what I said at the first meeting, but I stand on everything I said that night in April and that is I represent the fourth Council District. I realize the fourth Council District is very unique. We've had tremendous success under the current rules. We've had drive thrus and the right places. And I think Steve Gerhart would agree with me that the traffic circle is not pedestrian friendly. And so that's where they went. We had a record number of them. And you talk about vacant lots and abandoned buildings. We had three abandoned buildings there. I see our former East division commander there. And that was a nightmare. And one abandoned building was abandoned for ten years, a bank building right next to Smart and Final and all that has been revitalized. We have three drive thrus in that area a bank, a pharmacy and a food restaurant. So based on the fact that the oh, and we've also in the fourth District, we stopped a drive thru from going in Del Taco. So based on the tremendous success we've had under the current rolls, I'm not going to vote for the recommendation. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I wanted to just chime in, so I heard a lot about 90805. You're absolutely right. There's some characteristics about 90805 that that really stand out. And so one that we should know is that it's the largest zip code in our city by a lot. So number one, if you think about our population per the last census and I only five is 93,000. Was it 93,524 people? That's a fifth of the city's population is generally a fifth of the city. Whereas if you think 90802 is 39,903 is 32,009 over the fourth 40,000. We're double the size of all zip codes and 905. A lot of people don't know that there are there's a need for a deep, deep look at 90805 in terms of planning and land use. And that's why over the last 3 to 4 years, we've really been focused on identifying the funding to create a plan, the uptown planning, land use and neighborhood strategy. So we've we've received funding both from Caltrans and from SCAD, and we're in the middle of the second phase of that project now. And that program essentially takes a deep dove planning lanes along North Long Beach that has never taken place before. Look at everything from liquor stores to drive thrus and all of these things. So now is the time for all that to happen. So I wanted to just acknowledge, you know, when we say it's a big number, we know that what are we doing about it? A plan is how w e sort of figure out our rules of the road moving forward. And also we have to start treating 925 kind of like a town. It's a fifth of city's population the size of every city, if not larger than every surrounding city that we have. Right. The size of Compton, Carson, larger than, you know, Paramount, Bellflower, Lakewood. And it's one zip code within our city. And so we have to put more attention on these issues in our community. So I wanted to just lift that up because I saw it came up a few times in public comment. Yes. The drive thrus and liquor stores and all these other other things are a problem, but also the lack of the things that we have, which is why we need to address it from a planning level standpoint. Thanks a lot. Thank you so much. And Councilman Pearce. Yes. I just wanted I maybe I didn't write it down, but the timeline for planning and next steps, I want to make sure we know what that is and that we're trying to move quickly on that. And yeah. So Patricia defender for the the ordinance would be adopted if if it's approved today it would be adopted it would be effective about 31 days after the action of the council. The design guidelines will follow very shortly on the heels of this. And as I mentioned, I think I misspoke a little bit, but it will be going to planning commission because their guidelines are not code. So we could find a way to update the council when that is released. But I would just wonder, do you guys have a date for that? Yeah, I think in the next couple of months we will I mean, have that done and to the planning commission. Okay. So this is my my urging us to get that done sooner rather than later. Yeah. I mean we have drafts now that are in review. It could be sooner than that. But just two months possibly just doesn't anyone do this. Okay. Okay. Thank you. But it's good to know that this would go into effect 21 days after after the vote today, 31 days. 31 days. Thank you. Appreciate. After the second reading. Yes, it had to be at once. A second reading is over. Okay. There's a motion and a second roll call vote. Uh, District two. Three. District four. NE. District five. District six. Yes. Seven by eight and nine motion carries. Moving on to hearing at number three, Madam Clerk. We are. That concludes public comment. We know we have someone here that has to do has to head out. So we're going to move on and do item 29. Vice Mayor Andrews, this is the ring partnership. Yes. Item 29 is a communication from Vice Mayor Andrews Councilwoman Price Councilmember, a recommendation to direct city manager to explore expanding its partnership with RING to increase the number of security devices in the city. Vice managers. Thank you very much. I just want to bring this to everyone's attention because, in fact, I think it's very important that all our community, you know, be aware or abreast of what we're trying to do here. So I would like first to think, councilman. Councilwoman Price and Councilwoman, your anger for co signing on this item with me. I also want to thank Karen Edwards and the Wrigley neighborhood for inspiring this item and working with my office to see it comes to fruition. The intent of this item is to increase the number of ring devices in the city across all the neighborhoods. Because of the more eyes we have in our community, the more crime we can deter and prevent. I really want us to focus on bringing these doorbells to neighborhoods who may not have the financial means to acquire them. And I'm looking forward to incorporate aspects of our digital inclusion works. So I'm hoping we we soon can see more online neighborhood patrols and that we see a reduction of crime like mail theft by vandalism and garage break ins. Thank you very much. And there's any questions. I do have someone here would be able to answer. Go ahead. Excuse me. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Councilmember Arango, the second. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you for bringing this forward. And, of course, the young lady brought it forward with a bright idea. I think this is a wonderful way to help our public public safety personnel with fighting crime. This was especially came to the focus right around the holidays when a lot of people would leave their packages around and the porches. And there were a lot of opportunities for, well, crime to opportunity, where you have people walk up into porches and you steal those items. I think that with this program, we would see a great reduction in that in that type of theft. And I'm really pleased to have this kind of like public and private partnership with Ring to provide this kind of public safety enhancement. And I want to thank you, Dot Vice Mayor Andrews, for bringing this forward. Thank you. Thank you. Vice mayor, country councilwoman Price. Hello. Thank you. I wanted to also thank Vice Mayor Andrews for bringing this forward. I also want to note that I believe it was two meetings ago that we approved the merger between our police department and ring. So that data that is provided data can be provided by ring to the police department, which I think is a really great development. I think, you know, as we're developing new ways of confronting crime, technology will allow us to expand our reach in terms of the ability to solve crimes and identify perpetrators. I'm happy to sign on to this item and I look forward to further benefit from the trends that we're seeing today in terms of residents using video doorbell technology to identify perpetrators. I'm excited to see that the use of this can be expanded and further encourage residents throughout the city to use this technology. And I also want to note that in the third district ring technology and the video footage from the ring devices has been a topic that has been discussed at many community meetings with our police commander. And we do know that they have been helpful in identifying perpetrators of the theft that occur on porches. Package theft, two things of that nature. So I am very i n support, very much in support of this item. And I thank the vice mayor for bringing it forward. Thank you, Councilwoman. Council member Peirce. I want to thank you guys too for bringing this forward. I had several conversations literally the day before I saw this agenda with our constituents about how we can reduce some of the costs. So I definitely support this item. I'd love to see if there's opportunities. I know that now that our police department can work with Ring, maybe there's some opportunities for grants or funding that might come from our police department or through our police department for a program like this. So thanks, guys. Thank you. Councilmember Austin. Yes. I want to thank Council Member Andrews for bringing this forward. I think this is a very innovative way to keep our neighborhood safe and promote safety and throughout our communities here, throughout the city, particularly in some of those areas that are economically disadvantaged. I was curious to see if I did have a question for your staff regarding the scope of this. Is this just for a relationship or M.O. you with Ring? Because I know there are other providers out there that provide these same types of services. So, Councilmember, we understand the request to be one specifically to ring. We if you'd like us to look at some others we can or if anyone is interested in this, we understand that we have a little bit of a different relationship with Ring than we do with anyone else because of that M.O., you and they actually are the only one that we're aware of that has partnered with cities so far. So if someone has someone else that we could be talking to, well, we're going to be doing a review of this and bringing you back to from for about how you could do that partnership. Great. Thank you very much. I'll be supporting in any way, though. Thank you. Listen, I just want to also add, I think vice mayor and council members and everyone that's been involved, this is a great technology and opportunity for us. I think this is a really exciting way to also link up community safety and ensuring that people are a part of the the whole safety team. I think the great opportunities between the police department and these partnerships with the neighborhoods and obviously with this great new network. And so I'm excited to support this. I think it's a great idea as well. So thank you, Vice Mayor, again for another good item tonight and for the councilmembers that were involved in this as well. And so as your public comment on this item, please come forward. Good evening, Mr. Mayor, and members of the City Council. My name is Kathleen O'Daniel. I'm in the seventh District. I got an email from my councilman to come, and here I am. What I have might be a little tangential, but I'm here because of my experiences going door to door to get out the vote for working in campaigns of politicians and also doing voter registration and the fact that so many people don't have working doorbells.

So there's a lack of communication in those households to people in their own community. And some people don't want it. They tell me if you're not from Publisher's Clearing House, get off my porch. You know, so I'm not always welcome. But I think having a working doorbell that has these other security advantages is fantastic. And I think it will also help in our efforts to increase the vote, which we know is very critical. So thank you for your consideration. Then we will go ahead and cast your votes for the Oracle district to. District three. Eye for eye. Five, six, seven, eight, nine. And motion carries. Thank you. I if I can get the consent calendar, please. And we're going to all of them. But item 12, if I can get a motion in a second for all but item 12. Thank you very much. Congratulations. We have and again, because we had the budget hearing, everything is just taking longer than it normally would. We have one more hearing tonight and that's hearing for or the third hearing on the agenda, and then we'll go into the regular agenda. So this is hearing item number four, which is an early vacancy. So, madam, please read the item. Report from Public Works recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the public hearing. Find that the area to be vacated is not needed for present or prospective public use and adopt resolution ordering the vacation of the north south alley west of Long Beach Boulevard between East Waldo Road and 35th Street, and a portion of sidewalk right of way along Locust Avenue, District seven. Thank you, Mr. Modica. That report would be given by Craig Beck, our public works director. It's members of the council. I think we did a really good job of describing what we're proposing in the recommended action. The staff have been working closely with laser fish to help them expand their footprint here in the city. They're looking to add more office space for their operations. They own two parcels where an alley cuts those parcels. And we're looking to vacate that alley to allow for the development. To move forward. That concludes my report and I'm available for questions. Thank you. I appreciate that. Let me since we're this is a hearing, let me go ahead and just continue. I want let me go out and do public comment first for the hearing. So for the Ali vacation. Carelessly, Robert Fox, Mr. Avaya and Jeff Miller, please come forward now. Mr. Miller. No. Okay. So concludes public comment. Let me go ahead and go back to Councilman Ringo. Thank you. I think this is a great project. It's opportunity for Lady Fish to complete its its expansion that it's doing to maintain their business leader fish. It's a great corporate partner here for Long Beach, and this is a great project that will help them expand. And I would appreciate the support of my colleagues. Thank you, Councilmember Austin. I'm just going to I want to just add that this is a fantastic project. This Ali vacation will allow us to expand and s upport the incredible work of Lazar Fish, which is an early tech company within the city of Long Beach that took a chance on Long Beach. And I always want to recognize that they went in, took a chance. Now they are growing by hundreds and hundreds of jobs on their campus and creating a model facility in Bixby Knolls as a gateway. They're clearing oil fields are replacing fences, they're doing landscaping, they're fixing alleys. And they're the exact example of the type of corporate partner you would want in your community. And so I want to thank Mr. Wacker and his entire team. They're really doing a great job and thank the councilmember for his incredible support. And this project would not be where it's at if it wasn't for his support as well. And with that, there's in motion any second. So let me please ask you to cast their votes. Councilmember Richardson. That's why Richardson motion carries. Thank you. We're moving on now to public comment and consent. I made you consent calendar first. Can I get a motion any second on the consent calendar, please? I have carelessly Robert fox carlos over here on the consent calendar. So I brought that comment forward. But that's related to some of our closed session discussion. Now we're going to hearing item number three. Second. It's the second hearing, but it's titled the hearing out of number three. Report from Development Services recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the public hearing and adopt a mitigated negative declaration. Approve a general plan amendment and adopt a resolution amending the Land Use District Map relating to the property at 1500 East Anaheim Street. Approve a zone change and declare ordinance amending page ten of the Zoning Use District Map. Read the first time in late over in the next regular meeting of the City Council for final reading and approve site plan, review and vesting tentative tract map for a five story 198,259 square foot mixed use building at 1500 East Anaheim Street 1209. Walnut Avenue, District six. Thank you very much. I'm going to turn this over to staff for the presentation. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. We will have a staff report from Christopher Coons, our planning beer manager. Good evening, Mayor, and members. Of the city council. The item before you tonight is the land use. Related approvals for this particular. Affordable housing development at Anaheim and Walnut. Before I dove into those details that are in front of you. Did just want to remind you about the city's. Role in. This project. We're not just the regulator, but in this case, this was city property. Bridge development was selected as the best possible developer for this particular site. And through LP, CIC, the. Long Beach Community Investment. Corp. were also an investor in this. Project, providing a $4 million loan. To this project so that we can provide adequate housing for low income persons, those at risk of homelessness, and those with special needs. So as I mentioned, the property is at Walnut and Anaheim. It's roughly catty corner. Across the street. From the library. There. The existing zoning is a mix of community commercial and two family residential with a similar mix and the general plan designation. Under the future or. General plan, the land is all meant. The entire site is. Designated. For mixed use housing. This shows you the existing conditions. Out there on the site. So it's a vacant site. There's no demolition involved. In this project. And you see. The. White fence around the site. The project proposal includes 88 affordable apartment units. Of those 88 units, 67 are for families, 20 are for individuals with special needs. And there's one on site manager unit. There's 32 one bedrooms, 31 two bedrooms and 25 three bedrooms. Those three bedroom units being. Particularly critical to meet the shortage of large. Family units in our city. The affordability on the project is. 40 extremely low units, 13 very low units. 34. Low income units, and the one manager unit in addition to the housing. We're very excited that this project includes just under 24,000 square feet of ground floor medical space. There will be a children's clinic in the ground floor of this. Building in addition. To some. Residential amenity. Space and the parking garage. There's a. Subdivision action as part of the entitlements. To merge the various parcels into one unified development. So as I mentioned at the ground floor, you have the children's clinic as well as parking. You proceed up various floors to provide the residential units. And then there is outdoor terrace area atop the parking garage to provide additional recreational opportunities for the residents of the building. This just shows you how that outdoor terrace area will look. I want to compliment Bridge. We went through a very long entitlement process on this project, but that was necessary to get that design right. And one of the issues we were working on was how we can provide these needed units but provide a high level quality of life for those future residents, including recreational opportunities, because we weren't able to do that on the ground floor. We did this redesign, which allows this outdoor terrace area to provide that amenity space. This just shows you. And rendering what that. Amenity space terrace will look like. This shows you the renderings. Of the building. Most critically. Anaheim has a major corridor with substantial buildings, but as you back off of that corridor, you have smaller structures and this. Building will back down. In compliment to those lower, strong structures in the neighborhoods, to the rear. And you have the parking area. Providing that. Reduced. Height and some buffering

between the. Residential uses, fronting Anaheim and the smaller apartment structures to the South. This just shows you a map of the general plan amendment that's in front of you. The only reason this is in front of you is because on the date that the applicant filed, the general plan amendment was necessary. Once the land use element becomes effective, this would not be necessary. But trying to move forward with this project at this time. This is the corresponding zone change. It allows for the unified development across all the parcels, creating a single zone to allow the more unified development. There is a density bonus associated with this project. This allows of relief as a matter of right on issues related to setbacks as well as loading space requirements. And while the project does meet open space requirements, there is a slight modification to exactly how that open space is provided. There was a secret document, initial study and mitigated negative declaration prepared for the project. All of. Those mitigation measures have been incorporated. In front of you and there is a safety improvement project. Underway and the planning stage along Anaheim and this. Developer will be contributing in lieu to that effort that will be later installed by public works. So in front of you is to adopt the. Environmental. Document, adopt the resolution relating to the General Plan Amendment adopted by. Ordinance, the change to zoning and. Approve the associated site. Plan, review and vesting tract. Map for this five storey mixed use building with 88 affordable apartment units. So that's my very brief presentation in the spirit of brief. Meetings, and I'm glad to answer. Any questions that Council may have. Thank you. Since this is a hearing, we will first go to public comment. Mr. Vice Mayor, I know there's a motion and a second we're going to public comment and then I will go from there. I'm going to call the first ten, speak the first few speakers. James Sasso city of San Marino con carelessly. Robert Fox those please. 5/1 speakers can please come forward in that order. James Soso Cynthia San Marino, Con Corliss, Lee and Robert Fox. Good evening, Mayor and city council members. My name is James Suozzi and I'm speaking as the associate director of Long Beach Forward tonight in support of this really awesome Anaheim and Walnut project. So our collective vision is a long beach where race and income don't determine one's future, but rather that we're a community where everyone is safe, connected and healthy. And currently, when it comes to living a healthy life and predicting how long someone will live, our zip code is more important than our genetic code. And Long Beach, seven years can be shaved off your life if you live in neighborhoods with less access to resources in places like Cambodia Town here in Long Beach, because where we live is more about than just our address. It's about our opportunities and access to safe housing, healthy food options, and comprehensive health care. And in areas like Cambodia Town, where this project is situated, life expectancy is lower than in other parts of the city. And as in the case with other cities across California and the country, the root cause is racial and economic discrimination. That has happened over generations. So what that looks like today is the high number of residents living in poverty, in rent burdened and severe health problems. And this is why exactly why the Anaheim and Walnut Project is so critical to improving the health of the Cambodian home community and overall in Long Beach. This project as a well is important because it will bring comprehensive health and wellness services and affordable housing, much needed affordable housing to our community. The project is really a step in the right direction to reverse these historic inequities. And I applaud you all for considering this and working with staff, and we're excited to work together to make this happen. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor. Vice Mayor to City Council on behalf of Cambodia town ing. I'm here tonight to support the Anaheim St and Walnut Project. We are very familiar with the project. We support the project because it will bring the benefits to the Cambodia town neighborhood. The Anaheim Walnut Project will bring comprehensive health and wellness services to our community, as well as affordable housing in our community. Seven out of ten residents living within one mile radius of the new center are low income. Three in five residents have a high rent burden, spending more than 30% of their income on housing. Only one in five of our area's low income residents use or have access to a community health center. Cambodia town ing is looking forward to working with taxi and bridge housing to bring this project to fruition. Last but not least, we would like to thank Mayor, Vice Mayor, the City Council and staff for moving forward on Anaheim and Walnut Project. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next speaker, please. Good evening. My name is Marty Kochen. I am the executive director of Pacific Asian Counseling Services. We provide many needed mental health services for the severely mentally ill. And we have been working with the children's clinic for many years, providing integrated care, both behavioral and medical. We look forward to this project because it will bring to the community a much needed coalition where we can provide both medical and behavioral health services in one area, in one building. That's very important. We have a fantastic mental health program for Cambodians, which the children's clinic has been part of. The other thing is I want to commend Dr. Elisa Nicholas for her vision, because in this center, we are going to have many services, such as a community kitchen, which will provide another set of services for the community that are not now available. So I hope that all of you will support this and bring this to fruition as soon as possible. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next, Speaker Lee. Next up is call asleep. I'm afraid callers didn't want to speak. Okay, I'm taking off. Mr. Fox, thank you. I appreciate that, Robert. Actually, I'm here to speak on the streamlining of city council.

The reason I came tonight. And I applaud the idea of making this. Mr. Fox, you have to speak on the hearing. You have to. Yeah. You have to speak on this. On 1500. Yes. Okay. Then I don't have anything to say about it because actually it's okay. Thank you. Thank you. Next five speakers in this order are Roth from Rocio Torres, Mary Simmons and Jeff Williams. Who I co-wrote Hanging Out The Philosophy of World War II. Get Me My Beat, Lay Low. And I haven't got a. And that flow on my mind will not only lead to more than sums up on my 1990 album. Sometimes, like they control the Rome plan, they lowered the hymen. While not the negativity online that put young men way to my bottom scarred up my arms up from late and I'm hardly how they got line meaning act of no pipe real multi-pronged on and not a pulling pants no one else's I wouldn't think Paul Young the army I'm in a more tight how it'll come when a lot of times they're not yet they're young. Young at the time. Rock group man one thing gonna young men to me had but to me some look you're like Rome won't cast your hand And Coulson cut them off midnight mama carrying our candy man some so on. Thank you. Hello, Mr. May. Robert Garcia and all the. City council members. My name is. Herbert from a residence in the district. And I have live about less than a mile from the lot. 1500 and a half and Walnut Alley in Long Beach for 38 years. Today, I would like to say that. I am happy to support the. Plan on the lot of Anaheim and Walnut. This is the place that all of us who have been. Elders and senior citizens, we have known this place for 48 years already. This is a place that will. Provide. Us interest to the Cambodia town and to the neighborhood in. The. AOC southern area. Also. We all have very low income and we need a place for our health that will be close to where we live, that we could be within walking distance to look for. Doctors whenever we have illness. Therefore, Mr. Mayor Garcia and. All the city. Council members please approve this and how best. To. Get this project. Going. Thank you so much. Thank you so much. Thank you. Thank you so much. And yes, thank you. Our next speaker is Miss Marcio Torres. Then Miss Mary Simmons and Jeff Williams. Good evening to city council and our honorable mayor. My name's Rocio Torres and I'm in favor of the Anaheim Walnut Project. I'm a board member of AOC seven and AOC seven is our neighborhood boundaries, which is Anaheim, Orange and Cherry and Seventh Street. We adopted Alamitos, and we support the Anaheim Walnut Project. This project would be a benefit to all our community by providing early interventions by the children's clinic to our students and families, early interventions in both physical and mental health, which would benefit all of our city. As a school counselor, I see the extreme need to help our students be happy, healthy, productive members of society in our city. The housing component of this project will provide housing in our communi ty to create a stable learning environment for our children. We look forward to working with TCC and Bridging House Housing to bring this this project forward. Thank you to the City Council and staff for moving forward in that housing project. Thank you. You so much like speaker, please. Good evening, Mayor Garcia City Council. My name is Mary Simmons. I'm speaking on behalf of my neighborhood group, AOC seven, Anaheim, Orange, Cherry and Seventh. And I fully support this project coming forth. I'm super excited about it. I've literally lived like a few feet away, less than a block. So I'm excited. Like the community benefits that this will bring for for our neighborhood. It'll make it. This is like the missing link that will make our community healthy. So thank you very much. We appreciate your support. Thank you. Thank you so much, Ms.. Simmons. Our next group of speakers is Jeff Williams here. Then Ramon, I think I think he left. Maybe I don't see him. Mr. Ovia, Dr. Nicholas and Jenny. Greg, would you guys please come forward? Thank you. In that order, Mr. Williams, Mr. Ovadia and Dr. Nicholas and Jenny. Greg. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Vice Mayor Andrews, I am Jeff Williams. We're actually the applicant. And sir, I'm going to I'm actually to give you, if you'd like, you're going to get a chance at the end of the comments. Yes. Okay. To make I'll keep it very brief. Okay. Guidance. My. I support the project, just like I support the development of all affordable housing in Long Beach, which we sorely lack. And this this comment is not not actually about this specific project itself, although it has some some items that I think are really important. One is retail is failing in California, in Long Beach and everywhere else with the advent of Internet sales. So the use of what would otherwise be a retail space for a clinic is is something that I commend. I wanted to talk a little bit about parking in this project than in all other projects. See if if. The City Council. If the planning department, then if developers would consider this proposal, I think it would it would be an improvement to our parking condition. We you know, we we all know that that we live in in parking impacted areas. Households now have used to have one car and two cars at the most. Now, many households have. Four or five cars and up and in in the creation of parking spaces. I've seen a lot of parking structures built in the city of Long Beach with less than adequate parking. Thank you, Mr. Evi. Next up is is Jenny Craig, after Jenny Craig, Jeff Miller, Sri Sri Roth, Iowa and Cynthia. And tonight, coffee. Oh. Hi. Thank you. Sorry, I forgot my paper. I apologize. Looking at my phone. I took a couple of notes. I went to the planning commission meeting and I addressed a couple of concerns. One is that the entity that's going to be running the clinic is called the Children's Clinic, but it actually hasn't been widely stated that this is going to be adult behavioral services primar ily. So I think there's some confusion about what the project actually is. So I feel like the public outreach is maybe a little bit not as transparent as it could be. The variance on the planning code is not actually approved even today as we're talking about approving the project and it wasn't approved at the Planning Commission. So if that does significantly change, does that make this project no longer valid and it needs to go back through the Planning Commission project process because that's a question right now. The other thing is that the notice in the outreach, you heard from some self-appointed neighborhood association representatives who do strategically skip certain blocks in certain areas, and that has been addressed with development services. So there was no notice. The outreach to the community, there may have been two meetings, but they were held for room spaces that hold less than 40 people. And this is in an area where we've decided in the planning commission there are about 100,000 people within the three nearest council districts, but 1100 that should be impacted by the 350 square feet. So thank you, ma'am. Thank you. Mr.. Is Mr. Jeff Miller here? No, I. Sri Roth lower. Please come forward. Evening, Mr. Mayor and vice mayor and all the council members. My name is Robert Law and a resident of District nine. I'm here to voice my support for the project for this project, because this project will help to increase the access of affordable housing and health services to help children and elderly. So seven years ago, I was an immigrant child who just arrived in the United States and I had many health issue. If it wasn't because of the children clinics that help me to overcome my sickness, I wouldn't be able to walk to achieve my bachelor's degree and become the first generation graduated college student and be able to serve the community. I hope that this general plan amendment be approved in order to expand the services to help more children from diverse in next group so they can stay healthy and achieve their dreams. Thank you. Thank you so much. And, Mr. Sun, can we. You said it right the first time, Mayor? Yes. And I can't say 56th District resident. I got it right next to you. It's okay. I'm coming in here to support this project. I think it would be a great addition to the to the neighborhood. It's a it used to be the little Mexican carnival that they would have sporadically coming into the area. So the fact that now would be a opportunity to house people and be supportive, I always see the I look come my lady over there on the bus where I see you and the 45 very often across the street . That being said, and appreciative of the chosen clinic and uh, uh, the bridge housing, uh, take an opportunity to invest in this community. Affordable housing units to this size are very much needed in the area. That being said, I'm just curious to see that scene that the city is investing $4 million into this project I'm seeing. I'm curious t o see if there's any kind of mandate in regards to who gets to live in the project, because the last time a similar project like this was built on Atlantic and Willow, you know, it was filled up completely by County of Los Angeles, people who are on the housing roll for them. So just curious to see how it's filled. You know, if it's going to be a boon for the people in the neighborhood. It would be great if people in the neighborhood could actually live in the building. So outside of that, I'm supportive of it and I hope to see this proceed further. Thank you. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment. I do have to invite Mr. Williams to come forward. We're going to put 5 minutes on the clock and Mr. Williams is the applicant representing the applicant. And please, I know you have some extended comments and so you're welcome to do so. I'm not sure if Dr. Nicholas is part of his presentation, but you're both welcome to please. Yes, Dr. Nicholas is. And I'll start start over again. Good evening, Mayor Garcia, Vice Mayor Andrews and the rest of the city council. I know the hours late. And so we will I think we're going to change plans a little bit. I think I'll skip most of my presentation in the interest of time. I think really my goal here is just to say that we're excited as bridge housing to be here. This is our first project in Long Beach. We've looked forward to this for some time. We've been working at this, as Christopher has indicated for a while on the design. We look forward to working with the city on this and on future opportunities. I am joined tonight by Dr. Lisa Nicholas, the CEO for the Children's Clinic, and I think she does want to say a few words. So I will try to be even briefer and also as well as Ernie Vasquez, the CEO of SBA Architects, our architect. I will give you just a brief history of bridge housing. We've been in existence about 35 years. Extensive experience. Our mission is building low income housing for families and seniors and special needs populations. This is right within our mission, and we're especially excited here at the synergy of working with the Children's Clinic to provide both housing and health care in the same location and really to improve people's lives and impact the local community. We're certainly available to answer any questions about the design. I think Christopher gave you the brief overview. I just wanted to reiterate that Bridges, Bridge Housing is committed to building this project, to completing all the many steps it takes through financing and so forth. We expect to have approximately 220 residents at this facility when it's complete, including 190 low, very low and extremely low income family residents, as well as 25 people who are formerly homeless. We expect to generate about 120, 250 construction jobs and 45 to 50 full time jobs. The majority of those, of course, will be at the children's clinic. And then we will have a handful of staff on property in terms of maintenance and management. We do have many steps to come, but this is a very important step. I'm excited to be here and would appreciate your support in it available to answer any questions. We will work through all those steps in concert with TCC in the city and we're just excited to be in front of you. I'd like to introduce Dr. Lisa Nicholas of TCC, if I can bring her as part of the applicant application. Sure. To speak about TCC itself and their plans for the project. Do you want the slides? Okay. Can we put the presentation? Is it possible to give a presentation back up? Why don't you. Go ahead and begin? Yeah. Well. Well, I'm thrilled to be here. It's such an honor and very excited for this project to finally be coming to fruition. I want to thank all of you for all of your support and your staff. Sure. And I want to thank all the people that commented and support. And I truly love working in this community. And we are very committed to all all of our work. So we were founded 80 years ago. It's our going to be our 80th anniversary. So hopefully I'll be back for another little show here. We now have 13 clinics that are not mobile and one mobile clinic that serves the homeless. We serve 40,000 patients every year through 130,000 visits of all ages. And we have 400 employees at this current time, 333 full time equivalents. So and of many other opportunities coming. In the near future. So this health and wellness. Center, I think, you know, most of this we really want to improve the services of the community, create employment opportunities. We hire from the community and we serve this community and really want to decrease social isolation, build community. And have a facility that is open to the community, not just for health care services, but wellness. This is our bottom floor. The clinic is on one side and then. The wellness center is on the side, on either side. Of that patio area where we hope to have some activities there. We will be offering full scope, pediatrics, full scope, adult care, full scope women's health care, including prenatal family planning, integrated behavioral health, a pharmacy, acupuncture. We're hoping dentistry walk in immunizations and health. Enrollment programs in the wellness center. And this is really working with the community. We will try to provide the services that they want us to provide. But this is just some of our things that we have heard from the community that we will be doing. We will have a teaching kitchen, we will have a food pantry there. We will have enrollment into multiple programs and wellness. Services. Both intergenerational a lot with our 0 to 5 population. Arts and crafts that are reflective of the community that we serve and our partners as of now, our Pacific Asian Counseling Services Camera girls in action. But our space will be open to those programs within the community to work with us. And that's it. Thank you so much. Thank you. Thank you so much. That concludes the presentation and comments for the hearing. I'm going to go ahead and close as we go back to deliberations from the council. So let me start with Vice Mayor Andrus. Thank you, Mayor. First of all, I want to thank everyone who's participating in this project. I don't think anyone who's been here since I have would know the impact of that corner right there on Walnut and Anaheim. I mean, it's been such a blight area for such a long time. And finally, finally, we have someone who's willing to come on and take this enormous, you know, situation here. So I think what we're doing. To me, I think since if you look around the city and you see the homeless situation, at least we're just at least wood just tapping into it. We're not going to be able to act eliminated, but at least what's happening to the homeless situation. You talk about the clinic. We're talking about everything that should be done here in the city of Long Beach, especially when you talk about the individuals who live here can at least be a part of it. They can live in these this complex that we're going to build here. And also not only anyone, but work in it also and the individuals who need that help. Dr. Nichols, I just want to tell you and your staff. I can't really even start to tell you how much we appreciate this, because that has been a dream. And one of my legacies, I think, well, anything to know that we have a place now for our young kids to go, older individuals, our seniors, a place to live. And we know the income situation in my area is very, very low. So now we're going to build something where you will feel very proud of what they're putting in there, because, I mean, I never thought that this project at one time would ever come to fruition. But, I mean, there was a time when I really thought that this issue would be a, you know, such a monumental a task. But we're all here and we're almost at the finish line, you guys. So don't give up on this. Now, we're almost at the finish line. And I know one doctor came up here and gave a speech and that the housing the bridge housing and Nino and Mr. me that I want to just tell you how much I appreciate you and your staff and what you guys are planning on doing there. You know, in putting this together, the project will be a transforming the corner and that entire neighborhood. And when it's built, it will bring 88 new residents. And I think they went over everything now with you. But it also will bring homes to new medical clinics in and with Dr. Nichols and the children's clinic. And I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this project, because it will be a. What about housing and for central Long Beach? And you like we said, even if you don't live in the sixth District, you can still be a part of this project, remember? We want Long Beach to be a part, you know, to live in it. We want Long Beach to work in it. But more than anything, we want to finish the project. That's the main thing. So thank you guys so much for being here. Yes. Thank you, Council

Iman Austin. Thanks. I'm proud to second this this motion, this this project is inspiring and well needed. And, you know, it just goes to show that, you know, when there's a vision and and political will and things can get done. I'm mom. I'm for the public here. I don't I don't think people understand, you know, the how tough it is to get a housing project actually completed or get it even to this step, the the entitlement process, the planning process, all that goes into it. So I want to salute Councilmember Andrews. I want to salute the staff that worked on this. Obviously, the developers and the community groups that that that have come out and spoken in support. This is another feather in your cap, Councilmember. And I would just say congratulations and getting another one across the finish line. This is a touchdown. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Councilman Richardson. I want to echo those. Congratulations. This is a great project. I like everything about it. You know, I'm taking a look at this terrace. I would love to have this terrace in North Long Beach somewhere. I see the children's clinic and Dr. Nicholas, who we've had a relationship for many, many years because she has facilities in Hamilton Middle School and, you know, to see those wellness services that are being presented. I think that's certainly a feather in the cap. Vice Mayor Andrews is a great, great project. This is what the region needs to see, that we can develop quality, affordable housing that looks great and helps improve and stabilize and bring up a neighborhood. And it's amazing. And I would also just add, Mr. Koontz, I got to tell you, what you touch comes out great. So I see what you're doing. I see the work you're doing across the city. And we're really grateful to have you and your expertise in this fight for affordable housing. Thanks a lot. Thank you, Councilmember Supernova. Thank you very much. I'd also like to congratulate Vice Mayor Andrews, and I'd say this is more than a touchdown. This is like your reverse kickoff return during the 1960 junior Rose Bowl. But also, congratulations to the community and special congratulations to Dr. Nicholas. We've had a few conversations about this, and I think the public doesn't know the challenges that were in front of you. So congratulations are definitely in order. Thank you. Thank you. And Councilman Pierce. I just want to echo the same thing. It's great to to see a project like this get completed and get to this point with the council. I know that it takes a lot of funding, a lot of finance, a lot of pieces just to be able to dream up a project like this. But then to take the children's clinic, which has deep roots in Long Beach and the community, and put that into that building. I think it's historic for the city to see that we've made a lot of these investments and approved a lot of these projects over the last several years. And I hope that this is another model that possibly one day we could find something li ke this in the second. But just really congratulations, everybody. I know this was took a lot of hard work to get here and I know there's hard work ahead, but we're in this with you guys. So thank you. And Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes, I'd just like to know, Doctor. Mr. Midnight, how far are we away from getting ground control shovels into the ground? Does anyone know? Yeah. And I think I think our staff are probably the good answer. From our perspective, we're about a year away, sir. So we expect to break. Ground during the tail end of 2020. All right. Okay. Thank you. My my comments just are just one is I want to thank the entire team on this project. I have been we've been pretty involved in monitoring this project and the progress and some of the challenges and setbacks that we've had, particularly on funding challenges that we had in the past. But the entire time you guys stuck through it and are really delivering a quality project, I think the children's clinic partnership is fantastic. I think that the community support, as you can see, is critical and you're doing exactly what we need. This community does need housing that is affordable and accessible, particularly to people that are vulnerable and that are struggling across our city. And so I just commend the entire team for for stepping up. I want to personally thank Mr. Medak, who's in the audience for working with with my team, and just keeping us in the loop about what's been going on with the project. And I also want to thank our staff for all their hard work as well. And so with that members, please go and cast your votes. Councilmember Richardson. Can. Motion carries. Thank you very much. Congratulations. We have and again, because we had the budget hearing, everything is just taking longer than it normally would. We have one more hearing tonight and that's hearing for or the third hearing on the agenda, and then we'll go into the regular agenda. Thank you. We're going to do item 30. And because we're nearing 730, I'm going to push back hearing one because we do have a post 730 time certain. So I will be hearing that right after this item and then we'll go into the budget hearing. So item 30. Item 30 Report from Economic Development. Recommendation to execute a seventh Amendment to Management Agreement with SMG for a one year extension. Entering into a labor peace agreement with Unite Here Local 11 for operations in the Long Beach Convention and Entertainment Center, District two. Thank you. With that, let me turn this over first and get a staff report. Yes. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of the city council. So this is something we're excited about. For the last several years, the city council has talked about kind of the future of the convention center as their contract comes up in 2022. That was an action back in 2013 about adding some labor peace agreements to our agreement. This was always going to be something that is goes into effect after 2022. Given the you know, that we're clo se to the end of the contract, that we also have seen significant interest from major conferences who are interested in coming to the city, but have questions about kind of the the unionization of certain operations and to protect the city's interests from any type of work stoppage, that type of thing. We have approached and talked to SMG and they have put forward the agreement that you have in front of you today. SMG has been a wonderful partner. They have a number of different facilities throughout the city of Long Beach that operate under different models I'm sorry, throughout the nation that operate under a number of models. And so what this agreement is in front of you is essentially a one year contract extension. And in exchange, there will be a a card check agreement that we would be executed and that would be executed prior to November 2019. And with that, we are available to answer questions. And SMG also has representatives here if you are interested. Thank you very much. I'm going to make a few comments and then turn this over to Councilman Pearce. I want to just just begin back in in 2013 when I was not been elected mayor but was on the city council. We had an extensive discussion about labor peace and about the convention center, SMG, and how well our center runs. I mean, the truth is that we have a model convention center across the country. Folks know that we operate a stellar operation with stellar employees. And I think if you talk to conventioners, they will share with you what a great operation that we have. And I'm at the time we had discuss putting together a strong labor peace agreement at the end of the contract. I think that that in these discussions, I want to commend city staff, I want to thank SMG

because it would not be possible without an incredible step forward by SMG as well as our labor partners to come together and really move the labor peace portion of this. Forward while at the same time as kind of reassuring our our strengthening relationship with SMG and allow that contract extension. So I think this is a a win win for everyone. And I really want to thank staff. You know, it's truly challenged all of you to work on this. In the last few months, you guys may have made incredible progress very quickly and it would not be possible without all of your hard work. And I want to thank Mr. Kaiser, you and your team specially. I want to thank you also. Mr. Murdoch, I know you've been very involved and I know that SMG and the CVB are here and I just want to thank them for their incredible work as well. So thank you, Councilmember Pierce. Thank you. I want to definitely thanked the staff and think the Mayor SMG greatly for your work on this. Ten years ago our city was very different. You know, the conversation around labor negotiations and economic sustainability were very different conversations. In 2013, I was on the other side of this dais advocating and saying that we could have a strong, thriving downtown with a th living hotel and hospitality industry, alongside workers receiving a voice at the table, alongside workers sitting across the bargaining table to decide what was best, and that that was balance and how we have a city that really does work for everybody. And so in 2013, we advocated we had the council pass that. And to have this come up two years earlier than expected really speaks volumes, I think, of the leadership at our convention center, the leadership with SMG and the leadership on this council and with city staff. This is a is a day in history that we should be proud of. And we've often talked about what conventions we can get in the city of Long Beach. And so many have been left off of the table because we didn't have enough hotel rooms, because we didn't have a good protection at our convention center. And what's most important about this is that this is the city really also saying we have to protect our proprietary interests. The same conversation we have at the port, which is how do we have a city owned facility and how can we make sure that there's not going to be a labor stoppage, a strike or something like that that could keep money from coming into our city. And so this is absolutely the right track. I'm very proud of everyone doing this work, and so I really want to applaud the council in 2013. But the leadership that's at our convention center now, I know it wasn't an easy road to get here, and I know that our convention center is going to be better off today for it. I also know that there are other people that have asked to have a voice with SMG, and I want to thank you guys for already setting up those meetings to make sure that we will not have a labor stoppage at our convention center at any given time. And so, again, this is a historic day that a lot of people have worked hard on. So I'm very proud. Thank you. Councilwoman Councilmember Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I want to take a moment and congratulate and thank all the parties for agreeing to this. There's a lot of ways that these things get in front of our city council. This is probably the best way I have to say, you know, we're a city that's doing amazing things, big things. And, you know, when these conventions and conferences come to the city, I think the way that we deal with our workgroups and the commitments we make to quality jobs, I think it makes a lot of sense for Long Beach to be a town where it's convention center and convention center vendors are union. I think that's I think that's okay for us to say that and to make that commitment. So congratulations to all those involved. I think this is this makes sense for Long Beach. And again, this is probably the best way that this there was no drama. Folks are here. There's no big, you know, crowd of folks. There's no high stakes politics. Folks have just they have an agreement and it reflects Long Beach's values. So congratulations to all of you and happy to support this. Thank you. And Vice Mayor Andrews. Y es. And also, you know, in 2013, I did vote for this process and I'm glad to see it's moving forward. And I'm just glad to see that the whole organization, everyone is, you know, really getting behind something that we really need here in this city. And I want to really thank the CV CBD Group. It's just people and individuals who are really standing behind these things also. So congratulations to everyone. Thank you. Thank you. And Councilman Austin. Thank you. This is this is a great day for for Long Beach on many levels. I was happy to be sitting out in the audience ten years ago when this issue came up the first time. It was a very different conversation. It was a very contentious meeting, and it didn't work out very well. But I do I will like to echo the comments that it is great to have the the entities in Long Beach reflect the city's values and we should not be shamed to ever stand up for union job. The good jobs and the people that work and serve this city, that make this city look good, that put on conventions, should really benefit in the economic prosperity of our city.

And I can tell you that our convention and visitors bureau, our convention industry has really helped define this city and will continue to do that. And I know this decision today will be one of economic interest for the city in a positive way. So I'm happy to support. Thank you, Councilman. And just to conclude, I just want to add, because I think, Councilman, you recenter this where it needs to be. And I want to just not just congratulate all the parties, but I do want to congratulate the workers. And as we close to the workers at the convention center that are there working very hard. We have the best team at that convention center of hard working folks, many of them from Long Beach back putting their money back into our local economy and knowing that that in the future, their jobs will be strengthened, represented and have new tools for them to advocate on their behalf and of their members behalf, I think is really special. And I couldn't think SMG and our partners at the CVB for this work. And so congratulations to them and their amazing work as well. And so with that members, please cast your votes. Motion carries. Great. Thank you very much, everybody. With that, we're going to move on to our time certain. And that is for me. Give me 1/2 is. Item number 17, please send Kirk. We're going to do a photo. Thank you. Now I'm going to go ahead and have the clerk read the charter commission appointments. Item 29 is a communication from Vice Mayor Andrews, Chair of the Personnel and Civil Service Committee. Recommendation to receive Charter Commission appointments approved by the Personnel and Civil Service Committee. All right. Thank you. And the following individuals were approved by their personnel and civil service committees for appointment to new ethnic commission and are now recommended to the full city council for approval. A

And I would like to have read the names off of those, please. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. I'm going to go ahead. And as we know, the voters of Long Beach passed measure in the last election, and as part of that, they created a new ethics commission. And I want to thank all the work that's gone into the development of this commission. I also want to thank Councilman Al Austin, who had put this issue forward in front of the City Council for support of the city council. And he's been very involved as well in the process. And of course, the council for supporting this moving forward. I want to note that this is the first commission in the city that has appointments that are not just done directly by the mayor, but two are done by the mayor. Two are done by the city auditor. And then those commissioners will select the next set of commissioners to that body as laid out directly in the charter. I also want to introduce those commissioners and just as a reminder to all the charter also lays out the types of the types of members that the commission is looking for. And so in the appointments that the auditor makes, the charter lays out that those appointments should be experts in the field, should be folks with policy experience within the scope of the commission. And then the appointments that the Mayor makes are appointments that are community service and community driven appointments. And so those are the appointments that are as follows. And so I want to bring those up. And as soon as I read those names, I'm going to ask the city auditor who is going to make a few words. The first appointee is Susan Wise, who is an appointee that we all in the city know as a well-known attorney in the city of Long Beach has been a resident here since 1974. She served as a port of Long Beach Harbor commissioner and as a governing board member of the Alameda Quarter Transportation Authority. Ms. Weiss has been awarded this Rothmans Miss International of Long Beach Award Women of Distinction, the Long Beach Bar Association Lawyer of the Year Award and has worked with Legal Aid Foundation as a board member. She received her J.D. from the University of Chicago. And also we congratulate Ms. Wise on being the first ever commission appointment to our ethics commission. Congratulations to her. We also have as another appointee, Mr. James Shotwell. And these two appointments are in the policy. The two policy appointments. Mr. Shotwell has been a resident of Long Beach for 13 years. He is a director of Corporate Compliance and information governance at Southern California Edison. In his job, he is responsible for the promotion of an ethical culture and the development, implementation and oversight of company wide programs for compliance, management, management, affiliate compliance, privacy compliance, information, governance and Policy Management. James received his J.D. from the University of Arizona College of Law and is a part of the ethics and the Eth ics and Compliance Initiative as well. So let's give Mr. Shotwell a round of applause as well. Congratulations to James. Our next appointee in the in the in the in the community appoint a section of the charter is Kimi Maddox. Kimi is the recent recent former executive director of CCJ, which is the California Conference for Equality and Justice. This is an organization based in Long Beach that works to transform individuals and communities, heal conflicts and build unity. We all are aware of the many programs that CCJ is involved with, both at the school district, at our university and throughout the city. Kimi has over a decade of service to CCJ, having led not just the organization but its flagship youth programs, including the Building, Bridges, Camp and other programs throughout Southern California. Throughout Southern California. She also currently serves on the Human Relations Commission. And we all know Kimi as someone that is working across the community with CCJ and has been for many years. So let's give Kimi a round of applause. Congratulations to her. And our final appointment is Laura son. Laura was ten years old when she when she came to Long Beach from a refugee camp in Cambodia. She, like many Cambodians, suffered incredible trauma and saw genocide happen across their country. She founded the Mae Center here in Long Beach, which promotes healing and through old time techniques of meditation, gardening and education. She's also the co-chair of the Equity for Cambodians to End Gerrymandering program. And Laura has a biochemistry degree from the University of Redlands. And Laura also was came with a strong recommendation from Common Cause, which, of course, is a leading statewide organization on on who leads the creation of ethics programs and ethics commissions across the state and the country. And so I want to thank these four commissioners. I think that they have a enormous job ahead of them, the biggest of which is actually being the founding members of a commission that is going to grow and develop with their leadership and their diverse experience. So one, with that, we do have a motion and a second. I don't have any public comment for for this item. And I want to ask the four of them to come up once we take the take this vote. Our vice mayor, Andrew, said, Councilman Ringo, you have anything else to add? You said all mayor. Thank you. Right. Well, let's go ahead and cast this vote. And I'm going to ask the committee, the new commissioners, to come forward. Motion carries. Thank you. If I can have our city auditor, I think she is here. Let me have her say a few words as we have our commissioners come up and she can just stand next to our auditor. That would be great. Thank you. Mayor. I just want to say how pleased. I am to support. These. Four. Commissioners that are as our first. Four commissioners for the Ethics Commission. Thank you. To our Councilmember Austin for his support for the Ethics Commission and for. The. Co mmittee. For submitting it to the council tonight and for the council's support. Thank you very. Much. The Ethics Commission will play a very significant. Role here in Long Beach, as seen in the Los Angeles Times recently with. The serious ethical violations that took place in the city of Los Angeles. The Ethics. Commission did and. Did do an independent investigation. Report and. And penalties for those who have violated the laws. So this is a significant commission that will help. Identify areas for improvement in our city. And as a city major, I look forward to working with. Them and promoting ethical behavior. For our city. And to prevent. Detect fraud behavior. As well, so that we're operating with the highest level standards. Here in Long Beach. So thank you all very. Much for your support. Thank you. Out, Councilman Richardson. Thank you. Just want to chime in and just say congratulations to the four commissioners. I think it's important with every new commission, particularly, especially this commission, to have community credibility. And what I see here with these four appointments is that we're certainly heading in the right direction. The four of you, some of you I know, some of you have heard of, but you all have great reputations. And I know you'll do great in this new capacity. Congratulations and look forward to all the work you'll do. Thank you. And Council member Austin. Great. This is a great day for our city. And I want to just take this opportunity to, first of all, congratulate and thank Mayor Garcia and Auditor Dowd for their excellent choices of individuals who I am very confident will serve proudly, responsibly and diligently in their role as the first appointed as the first ever Ethics Commission for our city. Just a bit of history. This is a really a long time coming. There was an ethics task force put together. I'm going to say maybe 15 years ago. And from that task force, this was a recommendation. Then council member Barney Lowenthal asked for that task force to be put together and asked for study. And there was a lot of due diligence put him to place to to look into ethics and establishing guidelines. I think one of the recommendations was to establish an ethics commission. It was this city council. It was the voters of the city that that made that happen. And so I just want to, again, take this opportunity to congratulate you, and you have my full confidence and support in your work moving forward. Congratulations. Thank you. Thank you very much. And with that, if I can just please ask the council to join us as we take a photo. So let's give them all a round of applause again. Well, thank you. We are moving on to our next item that's going to be item 16, which is an item by Councilwoman Price. Motion carries. Thank you. Next item is 18, please. 18 is communications from City Attorney Recommendation to Adobe resolution expressing intent to prioritize spending of t u t revenue for specific purposes relating to the

ballot measure placed on the March 30, 2020 ballot city. Great. Thank you. This you know, I'll just I'll just add before the city attorney weighs in this is the resolution that follows Missouri that's essentially very similar resolution to the one that we did the last time, except we added community hospital. And so it meets the commitments that we have laid out to the community. And you have it in front of you. There's one member of the public signed up to speak, and that is Christine Pettit. My name is Christine Pettit. I'm the executive director for Long Beach Forward. And I sent you all a letter on behalf of the budget advocacy work group today, just really articulating that we'd like to see commitments to prevention equity included in this resolution. I also thought it was important to speak because as the support organization for Building Healthy Communities Long Beach, we pulled together community partners who are working on youth development and violence prevention. In 2016, when the mayor was talking to community members about Measure eight at the time, and in that meeting, our partners really emphasized the importance of an emphasis on equitable infrastructure and also a broad definition of public safety that focuses on prevention and is much more comprehensive than is outlined in the current resolution. It's really important that we recognize how land use, including infrastructure investments, are linked to the safety of a community and that we continue to invest in infrastructure. The historic disinvestment in central, west and north Long Beach, as well as other discriminatory policies have created areas of concentrated disadvantage. Sorry, I'm tired. Where residents have not benefited from the same public or private investments, infrastructure, maintenance and other quality of life improvements as people living in other parts of the city. These are the same neighborhoods where people experience fewer opportunities. Have your police seen a lower life expectancy overall? So we encourage you to add language into the resolution that prioritizes and includes a commitment to equitable infrastructure investments, as well as a definition of public safety that emphasizes prevention strategies connected to youth development and other community and public health interventions. Right now, the resolution very narrowly defines what public safety is, and we think it's really important that it is broader. I know that this is a non-binding resolution, and we know that, but it's an important statement of priorities for a forever tax. So let's make our intentions for a healthy, safe and equitable community clear tonight. Thank you. Thank you. That you remember the public purse. Marie Andrews, any comments? No, Councilman. Also, any comments? Councilman Pearce. Yes, I know it's late. I just. This item is important, and I couldn't have said it better. I think our community member, Christine Perrett, hit it on the head. And I think really as we have these conversations, as we spend our measuring resources for an a forever tax, that we're consistently coming back to the conversation around how we prioritize based on needs first and really making sure that when we talk about public health that it's broad and when we talk about public safety, that it's also broad. And so I, I know that this is a conversation that we can continue to come back to. I look forward to hearing what my other council colleagues have to say on the issue. I know that my my district supports this item, and I know that they also support prioritizing on needs first. So thank you. Thank you, Governor Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor, and thank you, Ms.. Pettifor, for raising these issues. And so here's what I would say. Last time we passed a resolution, we came back with a plan, and the resolution was the what are we investing in? And the plan was the how. And I would say the issues raised are appropriate. I think I hope that we can address it when we get to what the plan from Israel is. I think it's valid to say the nature of it is different this time. You know, we were talking a finite period of ten years. What can we really realistically accomplish within that period of time? I think now that we're continuing it, I think we can sort of think about things like, you know, how often does the non-binding resolution get updates every five years as parties to allow us to update and think about that? And and we can we can have that conversation. Also, you know, I think it's not a zero sum game and it's okay to talk about what the needs are. And they might be different in different areas of town, but I think they're all valid. So to be able to say, I think council is doing a good job in these last couple of weeks, talking about this conversation about the streets, the worst streets and, you know, prioritizing them. I think it's done a good job. And I think, you know, we've done a good job in a lot of ways, as many council members have done a good job talking about closing the open space space gap or the playground gap. And so when we get to that, how we implement this, I think I think we're going to have to have like a full conversation on what are four or five like performance metrics as we move forward that we know that we're going to be closing. Right as we what's our plan? Are we going to say over the next five years or the next ten years, we're going to try to close the gap in open space in our city. Are we going to try to address some of the worst streets in our city? Are we going to. So sort of what's our plan, our approach? And I think I think it is appropriate for the plan. So so my direction, you know, my my staff, I think we should when we get to the plans, we go out and talk about if that's a part of this. I think we should be intentional and be okay with saying yes. The needs are different areas of town, other areas of town. It's okay to say we can address both or all three or all four because we can think a little bit long, more long term with this measure. And so I think that's okay. I'm going to support the resolution that's in front of us tonight. And my hope is that we can talk about what prevention means and what what these different topics are as we get to the plan. Thanks a lot. Thank you. And there's a motion in second to approve the resolution. Please cast your votes. Wishing. Karis. Thank you. And Devin. It looks like he's not here. We will move on to the next item on the agenda. Item 26. Item 26 is a communication from Councilwoman Price, Councilmember Peers, Council member, soup owner and vice mayor. Andrew's recommendation to require city manager to work with staff to conduct a curb evaluation in parking impacted neighborhoods. Councilwoman Price. So this is an item that is at this point narrowly tailored to impact neighborhoods that are parking impacted. And what we want to do is just take a look at our read curves. We're not looking to shorten red curbs or cause any traffic safety hazards as a result of shortening red curbs. But we do have some red curbs that really could be evaluated in terms of whether we still need them there, whether they need to be as long as they are. And we think that we can recoup some additional parking spaces if we have the opportunity to conduct a red curb audit in parking impacted neighborhoods. I know that where we have a parking impacted neighborhood, being able to get an additional spot or two on a street makes a huge difference for the business corridors and for the multifamily residences that are usually located in those parking area parking impacted areas. We also want to look proactively at how we can try to find efficiencies with our current parking configurations in parking impacted neighborhoods. So having our team out there looking at the red curves, evaluating where we can make some changes will hopefully lead to additional recommendations that we can implement in the future. I urge my colleagues to support this item that is very much in demand in parking impacted neighborhoods. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce. Yes, I want to say I support this in concept. I know whenever I first got into office, my staff person, Melton was in the field every single day, auditing every single block we possibly could. I think out of the entire second district, what we were able to get were seven parking spots by shortening curbs, at least out of the most parking impacted area. So I support this in theory. I look forward to hearing from staff on cost and recognizing that it's a big undertaking but vitiate any effort to add more parking where it's safe. Thank you. Thank you, Coulson, for super now. Thank you again. Vice Mayor Andrews apologizes for not being here tonight, but he asked me to read this statement. I would like to thank Councilwoman Price for bringing this item forward because I too have concerns for my residents as it relates to red curbs. It seems like recently we're making these curbs longer in places wh ere we are heavily impacted and the impacted areas on our map also seems to be outdated in district six. Anything west of Long Beach Boulevard is congested. Where I live, we miss the impacted zone by just a few blocks, but we too are struggling to find parking . It amazes me that the permit parking districts that are already established are not even in the impacted areas. My neighborhoods like Wrigley Historic District have both literally and figuratively been driving in circles to find parking. I look forward to I look forward for a path in the right direction. Councilman Austin. Thank you. And I want to thank Councilmember Pryce and the rest of the council members for bringing this forward. This is obviously a challenge for our entire city, and I wish I could have signed on as well, because we do have some park in impacted areas as well. I'm sure that city staff will be be cautious and do their due diligence as they're doing this study. There's also a concern that recently came up from from some of my constituents and neighbors regarding the visibility at the intersections as it relates to red curbs. And so I would please take that into consideration as you were moving forward with your study, but I'm happy to support this item. Thank you is core. Leslie, please come forward for public comment. Okay. With respect to the read curves, parking is definitely an issue in many parts of Long Beach. I spent almost half an hour trying to find a parking place down on Broadway a couple of Saturdays ago. My good luck. We'll get you a parking place in some of those areas. I am concerned, however, about losing line of sight at corners if red curbs are removed. The real solutions we should be looking at is that is to focus on getting builders to install adequate parking. It is the height of foolishness to do road diets and eliminate parking requirements when the population is multiplying and we are putting up higher density residential and business structures. Please do not relax. Parking requirements. If we do that, we are only benefiting developers, not the community. We failed to construct a useful public transportation system in L.A. County, Orange County and Long Beach in the 1960s, when it should have been done. We won't be able to cut back on cars, so we need parking. But the real answer is not red curbs. It's making sure that we require it in our zoning. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment that I signed up. I know you. You didn't know you had to sign up currently, so please speak. Thank you. I agree with everything that Carlos just said. I am concerned about. The elimination of view viewing at an intersection by eliminating the red curbs. What was the purpose of painting the curb red of an intersection if it wasn't so that people could see what was coming? I also agree with her on. The. Issue of demanding that builders developers put in more parking in their. Developments. I talked to a contractor and he said, we put in what the city r equires. If they required more, we would put in more. Just last week, I was at a planning commission meeting where they're building an eight storey and a 23 storey building on third and Pacific. Maybe it was 21 storeys. I know it's big. There is only going to be one. Parking place for each unit. This is ridiculous. Everybody has two cars now and some have very many more than that if they have teenagers. This is replacing a city parking lot. And there's no parking on the streets. So that's what you should be looking at to find more parking. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. You and I just want to clarify a few points because I'm not sure if everybody was reading the same item. We're not looking to remove any red curbs, and we are not looking to jeopardize the public safety by creating traffic hazards. This item is directing our traffic engineers to take a look and conduct an audit. And for those who have complained about different things that traffic engineers have done to slow traffic and comment, I think we can all agree that safety is at the forefront of their minds. So I look forward to hearing back from them on what the results of their audit shows and again, jeopardizing public safety and traffic safety is not at all any part of this item. And should that be a reality, we certainly won't make any changes. Thank you. Thank you. There's a motion in a second. Please cast your votes. Ocean carries. Motion carries. Thank you. And we'll be moving on now to hearing item number two. Here's an item to report from economic development. Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and Adobe resolution continuing the East Anaheim Street Parking and Business Improvement Area Assessment Levy for the period of October 1st, 2019 through September 30, 2020, and authorize City Manager to extend the agreement with the SCAFARIA Business Association for one year term District three and four. Thank you. If I can, please have our acting city manager, Mr. Modica. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. That presentation will be given by our economic development staff, Eric Romero. Is there an oath for this one? No. No oath. Honorable Mayor and members of the City Council. The East Anaheim Street Parking and Business Improvement Area, also known as a bid business improvement district, was established by the City Council in 2010, allowing for the levy of an annual business license assessment to be paid by businesses located in the bid. City Contractors Aphria Business Association to manage the bid and the Zafira Business Association. Board of Directors. Serve as the advisory body to the City Council on matters related to the bid. State law requires an annual report be submitted to the City Council by the Advisory Board for the bid. The annual report describes the boundaries, proposed activities and budgetary information, as well as the method and basis for continued continuation of the assessment. The 2019 2020 Annual Report p roposes no change to the boundaries or the method of leaving the assessment. The proposed activities will focus on marketing and promoting the district and its businesses. Special events, litter abatement and beautification and Business Outreach. State law requires that a public hearing be held on the proposed program and assessment. At its September ten, 2019 meeting, the City Council approved a resolution granting approval. The annual report declaring the intention of the City Council to levy the assessments and set today as the date of public hearing. City Council shall hear and consider all protest against the assessment program and boundaries as proposed in the annual report. This concludes my staff report and I'm happy to answer any questions. Thank you. Thank you. There's no public comment on this item. There's a motion and a second councilmember. Super now. I think you asked for my colleagues support. I just had one question on the name. Originally, he sent a high street. They call it East Asia. That is absolutely not used anymore. Does that have to still be in this document for legal purposes? So the name of the Business Improvement District is still officially the East Anaheim Street Parking and Business Improvement Area. That name can be changed. And we'd be happy to connect with you offline to talk. To that process. I believe the association would want that. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Price. Agreed. And I support everything that Zakaria does. And I think staff for the support that they give. And I think calcium is super not for taking the lead on being the liaison for the city with that organization things. Thank you. And with that, there is a motion and a second. So please go out and cast your vote on the second hearing. On to Mamasapano. Ocean cares. Great. Thank you very much. Thank you, Mr. Logan. And to everyone that that attended. Next up is item 27, which is the MWI lease. Report from economic development. Recommendation to execute a lease agreement with MWI and Community Hospital for the operation and potential development of city owned property. Amend the grant deed restriction and reimburse tenant up to 1 million per year for the first five years and up to 2 million per year for years. Six through 15 of the lease to assist with seismic retrofit construction costs of the hospital facility. District four. Thank you, Mr. Walker. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of the city council. So we do have a presentation for you tonight. We're excited to be here tonight to present this to the council. This is a very complex land transaction that we're doing here and a lease agreement. So we do want to spend some time to walk through what we're doing here. The direction the council gave us and the challenge that was presented and the creative solution that has allowed us to get to this point. And so I do want to give us the history of community hospital. It's been an asset that has been in Long Beach for over 90 years, opening back i n 1924. It is actually a designated historical landmark and that happened in 1980. And the hospital went through a significant growth period during the 1960s, the 1980s, from a very small facility into what it was until it closed. And that was 158 licensed acute care beds, including 28 what we call acute care psych beds or behavioral health, which were very critical to the community. And it had been acquired along the way by a number of different entities, but it was an under lease in operation by Memorial Care in 2011. And then we had the seismic issues that came up, and there was an identified active seismic fault line under a portion of the acute care facility that was identified in 2017, and it ultimately was closed in 2018. And so there have been impacts. Community hospital is a critical asset here in Long Beach that the council really charged for for us to find a way to get it back open again. I do want to underscore kind of, you know, what it had done when it was open. There were 27,000 emergency visits in 2016 that accounted for about 10% of all the visitor visits for the area. We transported there about 5000 times from our fire department in 2017. And it was what we call the most accessible receiving area or a catchment area for stations for eight, 14, 17 and 18, which essentially covers most of the east side parts south of of near the beach and in downtown. But it really is a community asset that affects everybody, because if that asset is gone, that means all the other hospitals that serve all the other areas are receiving more patients. And as predicted, we did see an increase in hospital and transport times when it closed in 2018. And rescue transport times, the time it takes to get to a hospital has been up and that's over 10% and in some cases up to 20%. And so this council gave us a challenge knowing that, a the hospital group was basically turning it back over to the city. We had some decisions to make and the council really set out some priorities, saying that the utmost priority is to really provide that lifesaving emergency medical services and acute care hospital that we wanted to minimize our transport time through advanced life, life support to the fire department that we needed to really be creative and look at creative partnerships to meet all the state regulation and minimize our costs, and that we should utilize the value of the property to help contribute, constrain the financial risk and liability. So in essence, the Council was asking us to be creative and recognizing that achieving all of this required really a different approach than a traditional real estate transaction, and that we would be willing to accept some additional risk and some additional creativity in how we would put this together in order to deliver the potential for a hospital. There are still a number of things that are unknown, and

. There is still further geotechnical studies to do. We still have information to gather on, on detailed construction planning and total construction cost and whether or not a hospital there is financially viable for a smaller, acute care hospital. That said, we do believe that what we are presenting to you today is the best deal to open up a hospital that meets all those critical public safety needs. And it has been a good partnership with our team at NWN and we'll talk about that a little bit at the very end. So with that, I'd like to turn it over to John Keiser to walk us through, you know, kind of what's happened over the last year and a half and also to get into the deal terms before we get to the financials. Thank you, honorable mayor and members of the city council. Just a quick recap on the last two years. We came to you back in November of 2017, and that was when we first received news from Memorial Care about their their needs to move on and ultimately began our process. You originally directed the city manager to do a targeted recruitment, looking at operators and developers who would have the financial and operational capability to actually address a project like this. We did due diligence on five of those operators that had presented letters of interest and ultimately landed on one fantastic team that that had the ability, the experience to execute such a complex project. In March of this year, we came back with a scope that both parties had agreed to for an interim agreement that allowed for NWN to enter the facility and begin not only doing some additional due diligence, but preparing the facility, submitting an application for a hospital licensing, and then preparing the facility for the complex permitting process. But over the past few months, we were also able to clear a number of major hurdles relative to the permitting and licensing deadlines that are imposed by the state. So where we are now is really we've made a progress in in coming to terms on the long term agreement. And I'm going to actually read into the record a few of those terms so that we can make sure that the public understands what this lease and cost sharing agreement entails. And ultimately, talk a little bit about some of the impacts fiscally and some of the challenges that remain. As we know, this is to be used. The property is about 8.7 acres, but the property will include an acute care hospital. That is something that you guys had set forth and ultimately include the medical office building. Other health and wellness related uses in emergency care has to be provided at the site at a minimum. Also, the operator has agreed that they will sublease a portion of the facility to our SART team, which is a critical component of our police department and other public safety services. Essentially effective October 15th today for up to 45 years. Under the initial term of the lease, there will be two tenure extensions that are optional, but that would be a total p otential term of 65 years. We this will be at a dollar a year. So there will not be a lease rate because the tenant is going to be taking on significant seismic compliance. And we'll talk about that in just a moment. But the tenant has offered and we've agreed to as additional rent, some what we call profit sharing or if there are net profits in the first five years, 20% of that will be shared with the city. The city will not have any responsibility for for maintenance. We've learned over the last few months, as an example, that we spend almost $200,000 a month to maintain a facility like this when it's not operating. This is a large campus that it requires a lot of security, a lot of systems that need to be maintained, utilities and other things. They will have 100% responsibility for the entire. Campus, all buildings and grounds. The tenant will be solely responsible for seismic construction working with the state of California, as well as maintaining all of those permits over the term of the lease for the next 45 years. They will also they've agreed to split the costs of that seismic retrofit. So typically a landlord would have responsibility for major capital improvements and then provide the facility to the tenant. In this case, they're taking on those actual the work of the seismic construction and sharing the cost. 5050 The city has agreed up to a 50%, up to the $50 million estimates that are architects and consultants estimate it will require to complete the work. And we will pay our share of the seismic costs over a 15 year period on any external funding that we're able to generate. We will contribute. That could be a grant from Homeland Security or a hazard mitigation grant. Something that could offset the costs would be credited against the city's annual seismic payments after the initial 5 million of external funding secured. So that was another term that the tenant agreed to. Now, in terms of a default, so what remedies might we have as the city? Of course, because we've committed up to $25 million, we may withhold it any time for until the default is cured, a portion of those seismic payments. So that provides us with some security and hopes help to cure any defaults. But we have to remember that unless there's a if there is a fundamental default in that environment, we would still have to offset the costs of the initial capital that the tenant is going to be using to get their hospital started in operating any net losses that they incur other than bankruptcy. We'd be responsible for reimbursing them. And I'll get some more details on that in just a moment. Now this agreement does allow for voluntary termination. So, you know, this was an issue where if it becomes financially infeasible, if there's some sort of other outside incident that occurs, that would force them to terminate. They can do that, but they also could be entitled to recovery of their costs. And then the hospital capital costs, which they may be entitled to be reimbursed by the city, could include all the seismic work, maintenance, restoration costs, debt service for the construction and any net operating losses. But it would only be costs associated with the acute care or hospital portions of the facility. And that clock would start ticking on the effective date, which is October 15th. Now, in terms of the the hospital costs that the city could claim, you know, if there were profits generated by the facility, by the operator, that would offset their their claims for reimbursement, any profit share that they paid to the city and any city lease admin costs of $250,000 a year that we might incur for oversight and management of the of the lease. We would get credit for those things and then the payment. This is an important term that we've been discussing for some time now that that was needed to offset the risk that this operator is taking on to to for such a complex project. But the city would ultimately have some responsibility to either reimburse the tenant for their net losses or net hospital costs. We could sell the property on the open market and then use proceeds from that sale to to pay those costs. Or we could sell the property directly to the tenant. An important term of this payment clause is that under no circumstance will the city owe the tenant more than the open market value of the property. So in that way, as the city manager mentioned, we are containing the ultimate or total liability with regard to reimbursement to the open market value of the property. And that was a really important condition of the city council back in March when we we entered the first letter of intent. Now, one other condition that we negotiated is that neither party can claim as part of their costs for reimbursement or credit anything before October 15th. So that's that's something that is important to the deal as well as the tenant has agreed. And this was a major council priority that they will make a good faith effort to rehire current or former community hospital Long Beach staff that were impacted by the original closure. So with that, some of the potential outcomes that we summarize in both the council letter, the staff report, if anybody wants more detail about the more technical terms that I just described, you can go to the staff report and get that additional information. But here's a just an overview of potential outcomes that may have a fiscal impact for council consideration. So of course, the big one is the seismic payment under outcome number one, we approve the lease the hospital operates, it's successful. That is our ideal situation. We would have up to $25 million over a 15 year period. Of course, after that 15 year period, we're not obligated to contribute more to the project. So it's really $25 million over the 45 year term of the lease and those administrative costs that we've identified for oversight. That could also include very specific types of expertise relative to health care accounting t

that all up, that's $25 million over 15 years. Right now, staff is recommending that general fund budget reductions would pay for that $1 million a year cost in in these years, these first years or another solution would have to be identified. It has been suggested, and we put this in the staff report as well, that previous actions taken by the council to consider including this as a public safety infrastructure asset of the city, that it may be eligible for Measure A if that are valid or if that measure is extended. So that would be an example of an alternative funding solution that's not available to us now, but could be available to us in the future. The other liabilities, of course, are the ongoing operating costs that we have for administering these complex leases. I mentioned before it could be anything from very specific types of accounting expertize. It could also be management consulting in health care administration to help make sure that we're able to assist with the seismic compliance or other business operations associated with the lease. And there could be a lease termination payment now. This is an estimate estimate of 91 million based on the city's own third party appraised value of the property as if the seismic retrofit was completed. So our appraiser took a look at the property and they calculated the value of seismic retrofit that would need to occur. And if that retrofit was completed and the state was to license it as an acute care property, the estimate is that it could be worth as much as 91 million. That is the total potential exposure in the event that the net hospital losses, if the operator were to default, we would we we could be exposed up to the amount of the value of the property. So that is, again, an appraised value. If default were to occur, we would have to go to an open market sale and the market at that time would dictate what the true value is. So economic benefits. One other section, of course, property tax revenue, jobs and sales tax. These. Once a property is transferred from public to private, use those those numbers change. So we don't have assessed values for either property or sales tax, but we do see at least 250 jobs associated with the acute care facility. So timing considerations. There is a statement of urgency included in the staff report because we have deadlines with California Department of Public Health. And so we are recommending that that council takes action tonight and that will allow for approximately 2 to 3 weeks that when our operator has indicated they need to staff up and stage equipment in preparation for state inspections, which they have established with California Department of Public Health and and the operator has indicated that they need some certainty. They need to know that the council agrees to this long term agreement and cost sharing agreement before they make the massive capital investment of staffing up and preparing for state inspection. So in terms of addressing council, city council priorities, staff recommendation is ultimately that after those two years of extensive collaboration, of testing the market, of due diligence and working with various potential operators, we believe that this is. This proposed lease is the best opportunity to achieve the city council direction to reopen an acute care facility at a community hospital. And so we are recommending this proposed agreement tonight. And ultimately, in terms of next steps, what that might look like for the community is that if the agreement is executed, approved and executed by both parties, the effective date would be October 15th. Today, the hiring process would resume. State inspections would would take place either end of October, early November. And then, of course, once that hospital license is approved, it would be up to the operator to to open the doors. But that could be projected as early as they receive their their hospital license, with construction plans due to the state of California, what's called the Office of Statewide Hospital Planning and Development in June of 2020. So there would only be about 8 to 9 months for the city and NWN to work together and submit those detailed construction plans to suspend to continue seismic compliance work and continue operating the hospital. The good news is, is that our speed has given us an extension to operate until January one of 2025 because they designated our construction plans as a rebuild. And so we would be able to operate or NWN would be able to operate as they go through the seismic construction to comply with state regulations through 2025. So with that, I'm going to end the staff report and answer be happy to answer any questions that you might have about the lease. And so Mayor and City Council, that is our staff report. I do want to say it took a tremendous amount of time and effort to get here and we, you know, definitely didn't do it alone. So I want to really think the mayor and the city council for giving us this direction and giving us a challenge to really do something out of the box to get to this point. I want to thank Councilmember Supernova, who has been this is at the top of his list every single week with us and has been really focusing on this. In addition to councilmembers Price and Mongo, who the three of them together have really formed kind of the core team. Of course, our partners from NWN, you know, this is going to be run by a private entity who needed to step up and take a lot of risk on their own to do this and especially and particularly John Molina without which would not happen. We want to thank the foundation for all of their support. The California Nurses Association. And then finally, just the everyone behind me, but also in the in the audience who you don't always see for city staff, particularly John Keisler. As you can see, this is incredibly complex and the work it takes for him to really understand this and negotiate it. Rich Anthony, Oscar Orsi, Diana Tang, John GROSS and many, many, many, many others. And with that, the mayor and council, I know that was a lot, but we wanted to make sure you had an understanding of really the deal in front of you. And we are available to answer your questions. Thank you, Councilmember Supernova. Thank you and thank you. Acting city manager Tom Modica for all those. Thank. And that's where I was going to start. First to Mayor Garcia and my council colleagues for all your support and especially for the act last March of unanimously approving the interim lease agreement and the city team that Tom mentioned. Those are six key people who did all the heavy lifting on this, and four of them are right over there. But I'll mention all six in alphabetical, alphabetical order. Deputy City Attorney Rich Anthony, Director of Financial Management. John GROSS, Director of Economic Development. John Keiser Acting City Manager. Tom Modica, Deputy Director of Development Services Oscar Orsi. And also the Manager of Government Affairs who's now known as the Chief of Staff to Mayor Garcia. And that's Diana Tang. I'd also like to thank everyone for being here tonight. The stakeholders, of course, all of you. John Molina, thank you for being here tonight. I see Virgin Arbutus, the new CEO of the hospital. Thank you for for being here. And I also want to mention the CMA, the California Nurses Association. I just looked up today when our first meeting was and it was November 8th, 2017. So that's before the item came to council. And we really appreciate all their efforts and have one of their original badges here with me tonight. I think you were these for the Belmont Shore Christmas parade in 2017. So thanks for being there for the long haul. I think I'll wait for my council colleagues in the public to speak. But I just wanted to say one thing about the concept of risk. That's been talked about, and John Keiser mentioned it in his report. I don't know of any real estate transaction that occurs without an element of risk. What I will say about the risk in this deal is that whatever it ends up being, it pales in comparison to the risk our residents are at for not having it here. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilman Price. Thank you. Councilman. Super now. Very well. Very well stated. I do. And I want to thank the council team, the city team and my council colleagues who have really provided a lot of patience as we go through this issue. This really is a city wide issue. It's a city wide asset. And although it affects the east side, primarily looking at the service area, it really extends pretty far throughout the city in terms of the patients that the hospital has serviced in the past. But I did have a couple of questions that I just wanted to get clarity on. And forgive me, Mr. Chrysler, you may have already touched upon these issues, but I just wanted to call out a few things specifically, because I know these are the follow up questions that will get at community meetings and such. So just a few, few clarifying questions I have. So on page six, you talk about the external funding. Can you share a little bit more about the grants that could be secured by the city and how that relates to what our seismic payment obligations would be? Absolutely, Councilmember. So we have a first hour seismic cap or seismic responsibility is $25 million. If we're able to secure an outside grant and we've been we've been very active in developing what's called a benefit and cost analysis of how a hospital fits into hazard mitigation or disaster management planning so that we can go after federal grants, for instance, FEMA or the Department of Homeland Security. Those grants can be substantial. And if we're able to secure, say, a five or $10 million grant to help reopen and then seismically retrofit this asset. So it's available in a disaster. If we were to receive $5 million, that would just go to the project. That would go to essentially reducing the overall cost of the retrofit to both parties. If we were to get more than that after that first 5 million of external funding, maybe it's multiple grants, maybe it has to do with fundraising that's involved a capital campaign, for instance. Once we get past that first 5 million, then we would start to see our seismic cap reduced as the city. So as an example, if we were to receive two grants of $15 milli on, our seismic cap would be reduced from 25 to $15 million. And that would save us as a city from using either the general fund or some other funding source. So the first 5 million goes to the project, and if there are cost overages, it could it could be the case that the $50 million estimate for seismic retrofit that that that our consultants established, it could increase and it could be more. So that's why the first 5 million in external funding will just carry or cover the cost of the project overall. Anything after that would reduce our cap. Okay. So if we were to get a $15 million grant, it would in essence reduce our payments. 10 million? That's correct. Okay. And are there grants out there that are that substantial? Yes, we've actually seen as advertised. And periodically when there's unfortunately a disaster somewhere in the country, there will be a notification from the federal government about a certain amount of funding that Congress will appropriate for hazard to address the existing disaster. But then I believe it's 25% of those those grants have to go to mitigation of future emergencies. That's where we have worked with the California Office of Emergency Services at the state level to identify some of these grants. We've actually just finally completed a pretty complex benefit and cost analysis so that we would be ready to apply in the event that the next round of funding comes from Congress. So yeah, it is substantial and hospitals are really, really important assets for disaster response. So this kind of project addressing seismic issues is really looked at favorably. Okay, so I know my time is running out a little bit, so I just want to skip to a couple other questions I have and then maybe I'll circle back. You talk on page 11 about sales tax and use of the property for alternative medical. What is the alternative medical that we're envisioning that would produce sales tax revenue? What does that qualify as alternative medical? Yeah. So ultimately, that's going to be decision for the operator to decide what kinds of medical services would be eligible and practical for the site. But if there are any medical services that would also require the sale of of. You know, goods or equipment or other things. They could have a sales tax associated with them, not the services, but the complementary equipment and other sales. I see. And then lease termination payment estimated up to $91 million. Will they still cover the seismic retrofit or no? I mean, if they if they did if they terminate the lease before the retrofit is done, what happens? Yeah. So. So ultimately, if if the lease, the seismic retrofit would have to be completed over the next few years. In fact, pad the state would require the operator meet certain deadlines, which begin with June of 2020. So if they were to terminate over the next couple of years, it would be before, you know, the seismic deadline on the city would only be maybe a couple of years into the payments, a co uple of million dollars. So, number one, our liability would be capped by how far along in the project that they get. Number two would be it depends on how much they've invested at that time. So had they started the construction or had they realized within just a matter of months that the cost for construction may exceed their keep their capacity? So it will completely depend upon where they are in the process. You know, the way we've structured it is that there's disincentives to stretch it out and there's disincentives to to walk away. But hopefully, both parties also have incentives to stay in the deal because of the potential benefits that completing the project entail. I think let me and let me go ahead and maybe go back around and if we pick you up a thousand repairs. Thank you. I also wanted to recognize I'm not going to list everybody but everyone that's been listed and everyone that's been a part of this. Congratulations for getting us here. I know it. We have the the big R word risk, but I think it is a risk that is worth taking whenever we put our constituents and the health care needs of our community first. I had two points. So when I'm looking at option one and option three, essentially what you're saying is it's the same cost if it was for that period of time. But we're investing in a hospital versus just sitting on property. I know it's a silly question, but I just want to hear it said one more time. Yeah. Correct. Correct. In the cost of of a property that's not activated is a liability because it's not generating revenue and it's not generating public benefit. All right. Thank you for that. I wanted to ask what the hiring process would start soon. What does that process look like? Yeah, well, fortunately, we have a Pacific Gateway already working on this and we have a representative that this is underway. So we have been over the past few months collecting names of interested potential staff for the site. And if you would like, we do have more detail about what's what's happening now and to to ramp up for the inspection. Just briefly. Yeah. Okay. I'd like to introduce Lucius martin, who is our business outreach manager for Pacific Gateway. Yes. We've been onsite involved with Community Hospital as the Workforce Development Agency for the City Pacific Gateway since May of 2018. We provided 11 rapid response sessions during that time to the existing memorial care employees. Since that time, we've provided a survey to all of those that were interested in coming back to Community Hospital under the new operator, which over 250 respondents completed the survey of the 250 respondents, I would say. Half of those are Long Beach residents. Many of those folks had to temporarily move on.

. One last question. I know the governor signed several bills that were very exciting recently, but I understand he did not sign the one that would extend it to 90 days before somebody could close a hospital. Is that correct? That's what that's what we understand is that he declined to sign the bill sponsored by Assembly member O'Donnell. Heartbreaking. I just wanted to publicly say that that is heartbreaking. And so in this one where it could be terminated. What's the length of time that that you guys have agreed to? Yeah. So in this case, this is this this contract. I'm not going to say supersedes it. But but the agreement between us is 180 days. So in the agreement, if there's the notice of termination, it's far longer than the state regulation. And so we can always be more strict than than the state in that case. That's wonderful. I want to thank the parties involved in making sure that we obviously this has taken us two years to get here. But having 180 days is much better for our community, not only the workers, but the residents that live there. So congratulations on this. I'm very excited to vote yes tonight. Thank you. Thank you. And council woman mango. Thank you. A lot of great work has been done. I just wanted to once again thank the community. For two years there have nearly always been someone who supports community hospital at dozens and dozens of community events and functions. We go to a month and I know that there's a group of fifth District residents, two or three in particular, that make a habit of attending all the meetings, looking to the audience. But the light's not great, so I don't see them right now. But to be there and to be able to answer questions from your your peer community members is just so powerful. So the work that you've done has just been really, really impactful. And we thank you because I can answer those same questions at community forums over and over and over again. But to hear it from their own neighbors and while I am a neighbor, they really love the passion and commitment from each other. So thank you for that and for your continued crusaders. Thank you. We have some public comments. Let me ask Larry Goodhew, Brandi Welch, Ellen Lockridge, Jackie McCann carelessly. Please come forward if I can have everyone line up, please. On the at the podium, we have Brandi Welch and Ellen Makris, please, and Jackie McKay and carelessly in that order, Mr. Goodhue. Come on, Larry. Good you address on file. I thoroughly support this. Always have. I think it's an outstanding project and I'm wondering whether or not we could get additional funding, additional federal funding. To have an expert. In psychiatry. Start looking into the conduct and the behavior. And the criminal conduct of our mayor and the councilperson from the second district. And they're in get some federal studies. To help this city and other cities identify those. Problematic people. That has cost this city so much money. In actual dollars as f ar as a reputation. I think it's well worth. Examining that possibility we have without question. No question. Within three years, both of those individuals are going to be behind bars. The feds are already working on that. But we should not have had to wait that long for that. And unfortunately, unfortunately, my sense is the. Our city prosecutor is not the most aggressive person in the world. So the fact is, well, there are always going to be bad guys. We need some professionals to be able to identify those. And I think that this is a great place to start. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Good. Next step is Brandy. Brandy. Thank you so much for allowing me to address the council this evening. My name is Brandy Balch. I'm a registered nurse at Long. Beach Memorial, and I'm a member of the Board of Directors. For California Nurses. Association. Tonight's vote is so important and we know it's been a long time coming. First, I want to thank all of the nurses, the community. Members, the elected officials, the Hospital Foundation and others who helped get us to this. Point. It took a great deal of hard work and commitment on everyone's part. I remember when I first learned in October of 2017 that memorial. Care was refusing. To do the. Necessary seismic retrofit work at the. Hospital to keep it open. The nurses knew immediately that the closure would cause. The unnecessary suffering and anguish to their patients and this community. Without the hospital, the east. Side of Long. Beach would be left without much needed emergency medical care and mental health services. But the community refused to let it happen. The nurses and the community organized. To fight against the closure. And that's because the community fought back. That memorial care transferred the license. Meaning now. That the hospital is poised to reopen. And Molina. Grew network are on the verge of taking over the hospital. It is important to note that our fight. Over. Community opened the eyes of elected officials to the need of more legislation to ensure other California communities. Facing a hospital closure would have. Time to mobilize. Our campaign here in Long Beach prompted important legislation. AB 1014. That would require hospitals and health care facilities to provide 180 day notice to the public before downgrading its services and or closing a facility. Well, California lawmakers. Took notice and they. Overwhelmingly approved the measure. However, I am sad to report. That Governor Newsom. Vetoes the measure this past weekend to this much important legislation. But now I. Turn to the council members. And say, we are counting on you to do the right thing. Tonight and approve this lease so we can see the doors of Community Hospital of Long Beach Open once again. Thank you. Thank you so much. Alan McCUTCHEON. Hi. My name is Ellen Markowitz. I have a couple of things to say. First, Mr. Mayor, thank you so much for keeping this going because I know we would both rather be watching the d ebates right now. To all of you, this has been a lot of. Hard work and I am so forever grateful. I am a former employee of Community Hospital of Long Beach. I started working there in 1983. Lucius I would like to be a. Current employee of Long Beach Community Hospital, so just make sure I'm on your list somewhere. Okay. I really am so excited that the possibility exists for our little hospital to open up again because East Long Beach needs an emergency room. They need an. Emergency room and so does the rest of Long Beach, because so many emergency. Rooms are impacted. By all of these people that are. Now going over there and. The waits. At our two. Big hospitals. Wow. Bring a bring a bag lunch. When you when you go there, because it. Is a long wait. I just. Want to say thank you again for all the hard. Work. And I am anxious to start working again at my. Home away from home. Thank you. Thank you so much next week to please. Thank you. Good evening, Jackie McKay. And I just wanted to thank you for all the hard work you've already done. And I know it's a big ask financially to keep asking you to do this. I know it doesn't displace the human cost you about. Last April, my mother called and she wasn't feeling well. So ordinarily I would just drive her over to community because we live about a mile away. Unfortunately, she's a Kaiser patient. So I drove. Her to Kaiser Downey and she died in the parking lot. And she would have died either way, you know, not for nothing. She was older, but is a human cost is so much bigger than this financial thing. And I'm so grateful you guys are taking that all into consideration. So I must just please put me on the list. Thank you. Closely. Okay. Carelessly. Here. I agree that we need an acute care hospital, and I understand that everyone is emotionally attached to that location. But this business deal, it doesn't get you what you're looking for. I mean, I want to thank staff for being so candid. It's in your paperwork. If you look at this, it talks about the risks and what it's going to cost us. And if you look at outcome number two on that chart, that should be enough to stop everyone in their tracks. I mean, what that says is that at any time Mr. Molina can back out of this deal and that we owe him. We need to reimburse him for all of his investment, which is potentially tens of millions of dollars, and that the reimbursement amount is limited to and likely offset by the sale of the property. So what you get is probably just that you're going to lose this property eventually. And it even says on this number two, for several reasons this is a likely outcome. So that's from your charts. It's hard for me to understand that we would want to pursue this. To protect his investment, Mr. Molina wants an escape clause where he can walk away from it for any reason, and the city has to reimburse him. He can be purchased the property and repurpose it at any time, and we give him his investment back. So if he sees a better de al, whether this is a viable hospital or not, he can shut it down. That that's not a good deal. How does that get Long Beach, an acute care hospital. The the risk all seems to be on the city side. Why don't we build one somewhere else? Why don't we go find someone who knows how to build these at states? And here he doesn't make any claims to be able to run a hospital or to even know how to do this seismic retrofit. So why choose a location that is fraught with risk? The overall terms of the lease make it financially beneficial for the tenant to terminate the lease at some point, regardless of whether or not the hospital is viable. That should be enough to stop you in your tracks. We're going to eventually lose this property. That is the outcome of this deal. Thank you. Vice Premier Andrews. Thank you. Thank you, Mayor. First of all, I thank my colleague, Mr. Superdog, because the fact that we know in the east and the east side of Long Beach, we need an emergency hospital. I think if you can just take a look at it and see about the homeless crisis and the mental illness that we have, you know, the closure of the community hospital. It's led to overcrowding at the emergency rooms in St Mary's and the mama hospital. This is something that's almost a necessity that all of us should take time to look at. It shouldn't be about money. It's about human lives. And this is why I think that, you know, team has expertise and dedication to make this project work. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. Q I'm going to get I cued up again because I spent my first 5 minutes asking questions and I didn't get to talk really about how I feel about this project. So I felt the need to queue up again. You know, I think here here's how it plays out practically for a resident in and on the east side and why this is so important for us. And I have multiple personal stories, but about three weeks ago, my mother had to call 911 and our amazing fire department went and got her and helped her. And they had to transport her to Los Alamitos Hospital because that was the closest hospital. And it was it's about six a little more than six miles away from her home, whereas community hospital would have been at least half that distance. And to me, which I just shared a few minutes ago, I've got a mother who's battling breast cancer, metastasized breast cancer, and is on multiple medications and minutes matter. And so for me, not having an acute care facility, that's just my personal story. But I'm sure there's hundreds, if not thousands of stories just like that where the option is not there for East Side residents, and that's a problem. Personally, I'm grateful that we have a partner, at least one of the partners, and all of them are wonderful. But at least one of the partners has a heart for the community such that they're willing to invest in making this 90 year. Offering for the city of Long Beach continue to exist and to ensure that the historical designation of the site as a landmark in our city continues to exist and serve the purpose for which it is known. I think it's it's really every time we want to build a new facility or we want to reinvest in a facility, some of the comments that we hear is build it somewhere else. Why don't you start from scratch and build it somewhere else? Well, I think. That's a very shortsighted argument. I say that with respect because you have to have the appropriate site and location, the financials have to work out and they have to be the location has to be in a place where it services the population that it's intended to serve. So that would mean we would need to find another site, a site of this size that's able to facilitate this type of service or offering. And that's something that we can talk all day long about, about how plentiful those opportunities are. But in reality, they are not. If such opportunities were even available, which they are not, they would be very costly for the city and for our partners to get to a position that we need them to be. I'm not saying that there's not risk involved with this deal. There absolutely is. And I'm also not saying that I'm not concerned about that risk. I absolutely am. But what I am saying is, given the import of this facility to the east side of Long Beach and to the to the city in general, it's a risk that's worth taking. And I very strongly support this item tonight. And I thank staff for educating us and taking us through the process. And on behalf I mean, I look out in the audience right now, and I have at least five of my own residents that I see sitting in the audience, several of whom live like two blocks away from me. And I see them as I walk my dog. Any one of us would be in a position where we would need emergency services. And right now our best option would be Los Alamitos Hospital, which simply does not have the capacity to take Long Beach as an additional resident or additional customer base, patient base. So thank you very much for your work, Mr. Heisler, and your team and of course, our city manager. Acting city manager for the great work that you've done. We appreciate it. Thank you. Councilman Austin. Thank you. I'll just do what I can to add to that. I want to just, again, thank our staff for the great work and the very candid staff report. I mean, we have basically all the information we need to to make a make an informed decision this evening. One also recognize and compliment my council colleagues led by Councilmember Supernova, who has been on this issue from day one. And I'm certainly here to support his efforts and the community's efforts here this evening. A lot has been said about risk here this evening. We heard that word over and over again. And it appears to me that when I weigh the risk, there are risk with any of the three options before us this evening. The staff is laid out. We went we entered into this down this road with a goal in mind to restore an acute care hospital, to meet the needs, the hea lth care needs of the residents in East Long Beach. And provide relief for overall emergency care system in our city. A community hospital has certainly met those needs. It is situated geographically in a place that that meets the needs. And it has done so for many years. And so it's clearly an asset for our city. And for that, I'm just going to be very short and sweet. I'm willing to take the risk to save lives, to provide critical care emergency services, and restore up to 250 health care jobs in our city. I don't believe we can afford not to take this risk. And for that, I'll be supporting this item this evening. Thank you. And before we go to the vote, I just want to say a couple a couple words. The first thing I'll say is I want to just think the incredible work that's gone into getting us to this point, not just from the staff we've done, I think, a real phenomenal job under difficult circumstances. I want to thank the this council and the body for continuing to be supportive of the reopening of community, especially, of course, Councilmember Supernova. But the entire the entire council has been has been involved and active on this issue, particularly those on the east side. I want to thank the community, the foundation, the multiple members of the community that have reached out and sat down with me to kind of talk over overall about the impacts of the hospital and its closure on the city. And I certainly want to thank the medical staff, the team, the nurses. You've been phenomenal and great partners and probably our strongest advocate, certainly in the capital in Sacramento. And we're just we're proud to stand with you in this struggle. But we know that there is going to be a good outcome on the other end of it. So I want to thank you for that. And of course, I have to thank when I meet Mr. Molina, you and your partners. The truth is that we went through a process and we went through a competitive process to get us here. This was not a decision that was made lightly. It was a decision that was made through looking and putting out interest and getting getting back interest from from from different folks and seeing what was actually viable and, and who could actually put this project and this deal together. And where we ended was and this this partnership with me, when that staff has been so supportive in promoting and ensuring that it get across the finish line. So I really am grateful to Mr. Molina and the team for their commitment to not just reestablishing an important part of our community, but really a community has been a legacy and a important part of our city's history. And so I just want to thank you for also preserving that and understanding the value of not just the emergency services, but of the history and the jobs and the connection that this site has to to our city. I also want to note that there has been a lot of work that's happened behind the scenes in Sacramento to get us here. I think, obviously, we've been engaged on t he day to day conversations, but I can't express enough how how appreciative we are to the different agency staff that have worked hard, in particular Assemblymember O'Donnell and his team, who have been very instrumental. And I also want to thank Diana Tang for her active work in this whole process as well. And so thank you all. And of course, I am supportive and I agree there absolutely is risk. The greater risk is to leave your hospital closed. And so with that, members, please go ahead and cast her. Mr. Molina, did you I feel like you almost jumped out of your chair. Did you want to say something? Please. I'm John Molina. I am representing M.W. and I think this hospital is very aptly named. It is the community. I want to thank the nursing staff, the physicians, the medical staff, all of the other employees maybe who aren't caregivers, but support the caregivers. Everyone who came to the numerous community meetings that were held to give their input the success of this hospital, and I have no doubt it will be successful, is going to be due to that commitment of everyone in the community to band together, to revitalize an asset that is here for everyone's benefit. We didn't get into this. To make a lot of money. We didn't get into this to make it a land transaction. It was a very difficult negotiation, but it was one that John Keisler and Rich Anthony and the teams that you've all mentioned came in with their eyes open and with a goal of making things work. The thing that strikes me in hearing folks talk, both sides talk about the critics and those that are supportive. What you are doing tonight is entrusting us. To manage a city asset. And I take that trust very, very seriously, as seriously as you folks. And it is a big obligation on our part. And we will not let you down. Thank you. Thank you so much, Mr. Molina. And with that members, please go ahead and cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you very much. Can I get. Thank you. Thank you all. Can I get a motion in a second for the consent calendar, please? She continued, You have anything for consent? Okay. Please cast your votes. Councilman Andrews. Motion carries. Item 2626. Please. Communication from Councilwoman Price, Councilwoman Manga Weiss, Mayor Andrews Councilman Austin Recommendation to adopt a resolution in support of Los Angeles County's amicus brief urging the U.S. Supreme Court to take up a challenge to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision in Martin versus City of Boise. I know this has been heard before. Let me go to public comment, Councilman Price, unless you first. You want to speak first? No, I'm good. Okay. Let me go to public comment. Is Jordan wine here? Please come forward. Stephan Burstyn. Swallow. And then is Dirk. Where? Here. Thank you, counsel. My name is Jordan Wynn. I am the lead organizer for the Everyone in Los Angeles campaign. I'm also a sitting member of the S.O.S. Board of Long Beach. I'm here today to urge you to oppose this resolution. Actually

, the decision that was reached by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals on this case, Martin versus City of Boise, was in the favor of residents who are experiencing homelessness within our cities. Lawmakers made some great strides this past year in helping aid our residents who are experiencing homelessness, most notably with the Everyone Home Task Force that assembled and gave a report in December of 2018. And there are some really great solutions that are in the works right now around housing service providing and really innovating and moving our approaches into the 21st century to request an appeal on this case and move this to try and overturn the decision that was made is frankly an affront, I think, to many of our homeless residents within the city. We are looking for the best and most innovative tools and to appeal this case and to having a decision that would be in the reverse of what the Court of Appeals decided on would make it much more difficult for us to find and help and assist residents who are experiencing homelessness. For those who don't know, this is essentially debating whether or not we can ban or cite people for sleeping on our streets. And this is kind of a conversation that comes toward civil rights as to who has access to our civil our public properties and more. So it also has to do with the way in which we're administrating services. If we're trying to create a path out of homelessness and fill the gaps and actually create a comprehensive way where we can take care of people, if we're going to start citing people for sleeping on our streets, that's just going to stand on our way. It's going to push the populations of people that we need to serve and have an obligation to serve further to the fringes. As I'm sure you are probably aware, it takes up to 17 times for our city to engage with people who are experiencing chronic homelessness before they accept services. And that number is just going to increase. If we make it harder for people to appear on our streets and receive those services and look for those services. So I urge you to oppose this resolution. The city of Los Angeles. I know this was a controversial decision that the Board of Supervisors had, and us up in L.A. have been talking about it a lot. So I really hope that Long Beach makes the better decision and better judgment and continues their steps forward to help aid our homeless residents. Thanks so much. Thank you, Stefan. Stephanie. Well, there you go. Stefan Watson, Social Democratic Socialists of America, Long Beach chapter in November of last year at a Beer of Politics event and in response to an attempted anti-Islamist pogrom in the third district, Councilwoman Pryce spoke some hard truths to our residents concerning the effect of their rhetoric and behavior towards the homeless. I'm paraphrasing here, but she made a clear and unambiguous distinction between someone who is engaged in inherently criminal activity and someone who is sleeping rough. This was an incredibly brave stance for any politician to take against loud calls by wealthy homeowners to, among other things, lock them up with both the cold logic and sound reason of a seasoned attorney. Councilmember Price explained that our Constitution guarantees due process and equal protection under the law for everyone. She told them to their faces that the LGBT lacks the legal ability to detain a person on the street unless sufficient, probable cause or reasonable suspicion exists to do so. However, it seems today that the Council is being asked to blur that distinction and to instead declare our collective support for an amicus brief that explicitly rejects the same league. This exact same legal and moral argument. In Councilman Price's memo requesting this resolution, she uses the ambiguous term regulate regarding public camping. In practical terms, this means using the police to issue citations for infractions and misdemeanors against people sleeping in public. They mean stop and frisk and warrant checks against the homeless. And if you believe anonymous officials in the Trump administration, it could even mean concentration camps. And I'm not being hyperbolic here. On September 10th of this year in The Washington Post, an article was published entitled Trump Pushing for a Major Crackdown on Homeless Camps in California, with aides discussing moving residents to government backed facilities. Specifically from that article, top officials representing the White House and Department of Housing and Urban Development arrive in California this week for a round of meetings. The president is directly involved with the initiative, officials said, and has asked for updates. Officials representing the Justice Department were also there on the tour, according to two government officials who spoke on the condition of anonymity to share details they were not authorized to discuss. Among the ideas under consideration are raising existing tent camps for the homeless, creating new temporary facilities and refurbishing existing government facilities. Two other government officials said. The officials again spoke on the condition of anonymity because the planning hasn't been publicly revealed. The changes would attempt to give the federal government a larger role in supervising the housing and health care for residents. Given the cruel and unusual. Treatment that this administration has exhibited against immigrant families while utilizing remarkably similar terminology. It is worth taking the news of this latest sadistic policy very seriously. Martin versus Boise recognized that Anti-Camping laws that kick the homeless out represent an unconstitutional, unconstitutional form of cruel and unusual punishment by. Denying individuals. The right to sleep, by having the city of Long Beach officially endorse this effort to get a reactionary. Right wing Supreme Court to overturn this landmark. Decision. Instead, please affirm the legal status and human dignity of a ll of our residents by passing a local homeless Bill of Rights following an example set by the states of Rhode Island, Illinois, Connecticut and Colorado. Thank you. Thank you very much. Is Derek where the police? Derek, come forward. Is Katie Jay here? Katie. Gerry, please come forward. Katie. My name's Derek, where I am born and raised right here in Long Beach. My father served in the United States Navy for 25 years and served states for 20 years. I have a degree in sociology and I'm currently homeless. I'm the founder and CEO of Homeless of Possessed Land Homeless Solutions, in which we try to put homeless people to work for free of charge to any business or landlord who is willing to go into the fight of affordable housing and solve this homeless issue. For the city to adopt a resolution in support of the Martin versus Boise will be damaging to the city's reputation of being a leader in the homeless fight. I say that because as a resident of the city and in being homeless in this city, I know firsthand that. There is a criminal element that is put on homeless people because they're sleeping in public. If we, the courts say that homeless people or people sleep is a natural phenomenon. If we fall asleep in public, then we're all guilty of and we all need to be cited and go to jail, just like they do right here in Long Beach. They've been doing this for years, and a lot of homeless. People don't. Trust. Any offer of help from the city of Long Beach because they believe that if they go into the multi-service center, they're going to be cited in arrested for being homeless. That is counterproductive to what you're trying to establish as a city. So for YouTube to support that. That resolution will be counterproductive to what you're doing. Very counterproductive. You got people out here just working day in and day out, trying to do something to help alleviate this problem. And the problem is, is that not all homeless people have mental health issues. Not all of them is lazy and not all of them is uneducated. Many of those educated, many of them work for free. On a daily basis just to. Change the hearts and. Minds of people in this city. Because I know firsthand that a lot of gang leaders in this city didn't get this message, would they, getting from city hall exterminate the homeless? It's an American right to be protected, but for our possessions and be protected by the government in which we're under. And only place that we can find is protection that is on public land, because will we sleep in public and private land? The gang members are going to find this and they're going to do exactly what they've been doing, stabbing us and shooting us. While we're sleep. Thank you very much, sir. Thank you very much, sir. Next speaker, please. Good evening. First, I would like to begin by sharing an excerpt from an article entitled Formerly Homeless MSW Alumna Giving Back to Ella's Homeless Katie J. MSW Class of 2016 experienced homelessness as a child. Sh e now helps the homeless find permanent housing and access to mental health services. A Bay Area native. Katie did not have a traditional journey to the U.S.. Suzanne to work pick school of social work at the her parents divorce. Katie lived with her mother at the age of ten. They were evicted from their home, forcing Katie to sleep on couches and bounced between several homeless shelters. Finally, at 16, she was taken in by an aunt in Oakland. Despite attending 32 different schools, Katie received her high school diploma in 2003. Thanks to help from the East Bay College Fund. She went on to college and eventually pursued her master of social work. Katie spoke with us about her experience as a homeless youth and survivor of domestic violence, how she came to USC and her current work as a downtown Los Angeles emergency shelter. I say that because as an advocate and as a social worker practitioner, I stand before you in support of the entire homeless population community. The majority of the clients who sleep on the street are my current and former homeless clients. Shortly after this article was published in December 2017, I myself was forced into homelessness for doing what I was trying to do as a social worker practitioner. My daughter and I lost my residence of seven years where I relocated to Los Angeles from the Bay Area. During this time of homelessness, I myself had to sleep on the street as well as in my vehicle. I stand before you in support of my colleagues to oppose this ban? The homeless clients that we serve. They need the support of the county and the state to help them move forward, to become successful, to become a success story like myself. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment. We're going to go ahead and go to a vote. And let's just count on one place to do everything else you comments. First of all, I want to thank everyone who came out tonight and taking time out of your schedule to be here. Just a few things here. Public camping is illegal in the city of Long Beach. If we want to change the law and we want to have a discussion about whether it should be illegal or not, that's a conversation that we should have. And I encourage my colleagues who are opposed to this item to bring such a discussion forward. I don't believe that my personally I don't believe that people should be able to sleep in public places when those spaces are closed. The reason for that is because residents also want to use the parks and or the beaches, and we don't have the resources to clean up these public spaces from encampments and do a sweep for public health impacts or threats every morning before kids and parents go to the park or to the beach. The police should be able to enforce the laws as they exist. If we don't agree with the laws, then we as a city council have the power to change those laws. But unfortunately, in the five years that I've been here, I've heard a lot of support for our police officers not enforcing the law. But no t once have I heard a council colleague bring an item to say this particular conduct shouldn't be illegal at all. Right now it is illegal and our police officers are not able to enforce the laws that exist on our books today. They are in a difficult spot. When we have it is not illegal to be homeless. Absolutely not. And the city should do everything in its power to help support our homeless community. We should offer services. We should offer housing. We should offer as our quality of life division does in the East Division. They bring people to the courthouse that I supervise. And Mr. Stephan knows this. I don't know where he went. I actually walk those individuals into court and I have the judge recall their warrants so that the quality of life officers can drive them to a facility so they can start rehab. I've done that probably about ten or 15 times so far, and that's something that gives people an opportunity to move forward. But it's because of their warrants that they can't get in the system. They're not being arrested on those warrants by our quality of life officers. They're having those warrants recalled. If you don't leave or accept services and it's illegal to be in a particular place, you should be cited and you should be given the opportunity to accept the services that the city provides. Living in a public space is illegal because the very things associated with living can cause unintended dangers. When bathrooms are closed, the only place where human feces can go is on the public space. When we don't have access to areas where people can. Relieve themselves. It impacts neighborhoods unintentionally, but it does impact neighborhoods. If people are using drugs. Not that all homeless individuals do, but if people are using drugs, there is always a risk of needles being left behind or drug residue being left behind. We recently had an incident where pets were being rushed to the emergency room because they had consumed methamphetamine that had been left behind in an area where there was a homeless encampment. So there are a lot of public health dangers and risks associated with camping and public property. The city does not have the resources to clean those areas as efficiently as I wish we could. I think some of the controversy that has been stirred up as a result of this discussion and certainly was the subject of the L.A. County discussions, is exactly the reason why we need the Supreme Court to clarify this issue. Every city is dealing with this issue, which is why multiple cities and multiple jurisdictions have signed on to file the amicus. We are not joining in the amicus. We're just passing a resolution to support our colleagues in L.A. County who have weighed in on this issue because of the impacts that they've seen throughout the county. So I ask my colleagues to support this item, and again, I urge my colleagues who are opposed to this item. If you don't think that camping in public parks when those parks are closed should be illegal. Please, let's have that discussion. But that's not what tonight's item is about. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes. You know, I listen to my counsel wrestling with this item and it kind of gets me very close because the fact that, you know, we talk about public parks and things of that type, this is where most of my homeless people in my district, that's where they camp out. I know we don't have enough room to incarcerate these individuals because the fact that they're homeless. We know that we're in a crisis. But this crisis has to be where we have to take responsibility ourselves to help these individuals. And as much as I respect my colleagues with this, we have to find a way we know we in a crisis also. But to say to incarcerate someone because of a situation of being homeless, I can't go along with that. I know we are that. We are what we call we are the keepers of our city. We have to sit up and make decisions. And our decisions, I don't think, has to be in for any form of incarceration, because that's not what brought them to become homeless. Homeless came about not because of them, you know, wanting to be homeless because of the fact that other issues came about to make them homeless. So now we're going to have to come with a situation where we can help these individuals. And I know what those individual could be as individuals, you start losing a few paychecks and see what happened. So I'm just I just can't really go along with this as much as I you know, I respect my colleague and I hope we can come up with something even better. Thank you very much, Councilman. Councilman Austin. Thank you very much. I want to, first of all, thank those who came out and commended every one of your your words were very heartfelt and taken seriously by this council member. So I want to just just say, Derrick, I've got your outreach on Messenger a couple of weeks ago. I look forward to following up on the conversation with you and certainly empathize and and feel that the stories. I think there's a lot of hypotheticals being thrown out here. And this is a resolution about an amicus brief on the Supreme Court that may go to the Supreme Court or may not be heard by the Supreme Court . I've heard hypotheticals about people being incarcerated for being homeless. I don't think we've. Oh. Gotten there yet? I would have. And I did hear that, you know, Long Beach is making great strides. I know we're going to continue to make great strides. I mean, there's nothing. Oh. In what's being proposed tonight that says that we're going to turn the course in terms of our, ah, our approach to homelessness. I think we are looking at a multi-pronged approach. I think we need to, to, ah, to be very, very assertive in terms of solving this, this crisis. I think Long Beach is also going to be very continue to be very compassionate when it comes to dealing with our population experiencing homelessness. I know our law enforcement officers are doing that. The city council has put forth resources to try to put public safety. Officers and firefighters. Through our hard team and quality of life officers who are doing outreach on a daily basis and complimenting our health department outreach workers. I think it was noted. And I'm sorry I forget your name, but it was noted that it takes up to 17 contacts to bring somebody into services. Right. And the way I look at this is that we should be using tools to you to bring that number down. Right. 17 contacts is too many times. But if somebody experiencing homelessness knows that, hey, you know what? There is a carrot and a stick. You know, I might do better going into talking to somebody or going into a shelter and getting help. That is where we should be really working to motivate individuals to go toward. And so I don't see the harm here in supporting this amicus brief. Our county supervisor, Janice Hahn, is somebody who is extremely compassionate, somebody who's worked very diligently on this issue throughout her district. Mark Ridley-Thomas is somebody who I have a great deal of respect for. These individuals voted in support, right? They led the effort and they are leading voices, not just in the county but also in the state on this issue of homelessness. And and for that, I'm going to support this. Again, I think we need to have the tools. I think we need to have a multi-pronged approach. I don't support incarcerating anybody for being homeless. That's not what this proposes to do. I don't see that as going in that direction, and I don't think this council would support that type of activity or that type of action. We're saying that we need to have more tools. We need to have a little bit more enforcement and and motivation for for individuals to get off the street and get into services. And that's one way that we're going to help solve this issue of homelessness. Thank you, Councilmember Turanga. Thank you, Mary. You know, we had a discussion last week and we talked about the tools. We have the tools. And this what this abacus does basically is puts us on the level of trying to criminalize homelessness. I totally oppose that. I would be. I will be opposing this resolution when I drive around the city, when I drive to L.A. or when I drive to Santa Ana. I see the big problems there. We don't have that here in Long Beach is one of those things where, like, if it ain't broke, don't fix it. What we're trying to do here is trying to work with homeless people. I agree with Councilmember Austin. We have to have a multi-pronged approach. This approach right here is not part of that solution. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. And then we'll go to the vote. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Okay. So a couple of questions. Here are a couple of comments here. And I agree with Councilman Austin. I mean, the goal isn't to incarcerate anybody. For those of us who work in the criminal justice system, I cannot begin to tell you how many collaborative programs are availa ble collaborative court programs, rehabilitation programs, mental health diversion programs. I, I have never seen somebody incarcerated and in my experience for like a trespass on a public property, the prosecution's office, I know there's a lot of misconceptions about what prosecutors do, but we work hand in hand with the public defenders on people that have homelessness issues to try to work with them on that. The point of this is that we shouldn't. If people are sleeping in public spaces, we should have tools as a city to be able to enforce our laws. Now. Most of the time that enforcement means a citation and an admonishment to the person that it's a public park and they can't be there if the individual happens to have warrants. There is a possibility that they would get arrested, but that's up to the discretion of the officer. And in that case, they would be taken to the Long Beach jail, where they would have the opportunity to interface with our jailhouse clinician and further get advice and guidance on options for rehabilitation and services. And that's all before any cases even presented to the district attorney's office for review. But I'm hearing from my colleagues and I understand where we're at as a council, I respect the fact that we may not all see this issue from the same perspective. That's one of the things I love about our city. It's very diverse and we have different perspectives. What I'd like to do is instead of a resolution, the motion that I'd like to make is just to write a support letter as opposed to a resolution, because I think a support letter supporting L.A. County's vote is. L.A. County's actions perhaps sits better with some council colleagues, and maybe not. Maybe that difference doesn't matter to them. But I would like to request that this item be a support letter as opposed to a resolution. Okay. Members, Castro voted to change this from a resolution to a support letter of the L.A. County action. Please cast your votes. But we are close to 630 as possible. So let's will begin and go through the rest of the agenda as we move forward. So we're going to hear item 20. Third 23, please first. Item 23 A Communication from Mayor Garcia. Recommendation to approve the expenditure of 15,000 and the General Fund group as a reward for information to solve the murders of Maurice Poe, Junior, Melvin Williams, the Second and Ricardo Torres on October 29, 2019. Thank you. We are at the last council meeting. I know we had a strong moment of silence and remembrance for these individuals who lost their lives on October the 29th. We've, of course, know that the Long Beach Police Department is working incredibly hard with all of our resources into ensuring that we that we solve and bring justice to the families and to all those involved. On the horrific tragedy and shooting that occurred on October the 29th. I'm asking the council to to match and working with the county board of Supervisors the $15,000 that they are putting i n to that, we have a total of $30,000 that that is set aside into a fund to reward anyone with information to solve the murders of Marist Poll Melvin Williams and Ricardo Torres. The Board of Supervisors is also taking action or just took action today. And so that will that fund will be, of course, as worked an administrator through our Long Beach Police Department. And this was also at their request. And so they have been working with the board and with our office to get this in front of all of you. And so with that, there's a motion and a second if you're going to do a public comment on this. Councilmember Pierce. Councilwoman Price members, please cast your votes. Okay. CHEERING, Please. We're going to do a hearing here in ten. Or from public works recommendation or supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and adopt a resolution ordering the vacation of the portion of Maple Way between Long Beach Boulevard and Alamo Court District to. Mr. Walker. Craig back and Josh, Joshua Heckman will be presenting. Thank you, Mayor, and members of city council. We're here this evening to talk about a vacation of Right of Way in support of a development project. And I would like project manager Joshua Hickman to go through some of the details. Joshua. Hey. Good evening. My name is Joshua Heckman and the Public Works Department. And here to give you a real brief overview of why we're here tonight, the project is vacating an alley as the staff report notes. And the alley is to or the vacation is to accommodate a development project in the area. The project has been through the Planning Commission where a general plan conformity finding was approved and the item was heard on October 1st. The the alley was intention to vacate was approved back on October 1st. And we are now here to move forward with the vacation. There's a motion, and a second is Mr. Goodhew. Control. Okay. See no other. I don't believe any other folks are applicants for speaking on this item. Is that right, Mr. Monica? Ready to go. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. A hearing. Item eight is a longer hearing. So we're going to move on to the next item on the agenda. It's not 630 yet, which will be general public comment. And so I want to go ahead and call it the first few speakers. Ocean carries item. 15. A report from Economic. Development, Health and Human Services. Recommendation to adopt a resolution declaring a shelter crisis and authorize the operation of one winter seltzer for the period of December 1st through March 31st, 2021. Thank you. There's a motion to second. Is there any public comment on this item? Mr. Goodhew. Gary

shelter as well. Mr. MODICA Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Absolutely. This is one of the more important things that we do every winter. So with that, Sergio Ramirez, our deputy director of economic development, will give the report. Thank you, Tom. Mr. Mayor and council members. I'll try to be as brief as possible. We've identified a location for this year's 2019 winter shelter at 1718. Through 1722 Hays Avenue in Council District one. The property was actually purchased earlier this year using homeless emergency aid program funding. The premises of the property or the premises is approximately 54,000 I'm sorry, 5400 square feet. This year, the terms of the lease will be between December 1st, 2019, to March 31st, 2020, in order to. Open at the Homeless shelter. By our target date, the site requires the adoption of a resolution declaring a shelter crisis, allowing provisions of local law to be suspended so that the shelter can open in a timely manner. Staff recommends adoption of the resolution declaring a shelter crisis spending apple-google provisions of local law. Authorizing the operation of a winter shelter program for a period of December 1st, 2019, through March 31st, 2020. And authorize the city manager designee to execute the lease agreement, including all necessary documents. Amendments with United States Veterans Initiative for the property at 1718 three 1722 Hayes Avenue as a winter shelter. That concludes our report. Be happy to answer any questions. Jordan, please go ahead. Jordan wins second district president. I'm glad that you guys are opening up the winter shelter once again. Glad that this could come together. I do want you to take a quick look at what the property looks like and think about also the meaning of what a shelter crisis is, the fact that we have so many people that are living on our streets right now that need immediate housing assistance that we need to open this up. I hope and pray for David one day when Long Beach will no longer need the winter shelter. In order to do that, we are going to need steady and sufficient resources to help our homeless population in Long Beach. This includes investment into long term, supportive and affordable and bridge housing programs, along with jobs, training programs and other important, consistent services that our city needs to fund. We have our own continuum of care, and I happen to sit on the board of that continuum of care for Long Beach. This means that we administrate our own homeless services division, and it means that we receive our own separate federal funding for this. Federal funding is very inflexible. It goes towards very few resources, as I'm sure most of you know. And so I just want to once again voice my support, of course, for this winter ordinance and winter shelter. But I also want to stress the importance of creating supportive, affordable and bridge housing and having a consistent source of funding locally so that we can create these things and once and for all, end homelessness in Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you. There's a motion in a second. Unless you have any comments concerned. Nope. Please cast your votes. Bush and Kerry. Thank you. We have three hearings today, so we're going to go and begin our hearings. Our first hearing is hearing item number 11. Item 11 is a report from Economic Development recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Concluded the public hearing and Adobe a resolution containing the Fourth Street Parking and Business Improvement Area Assessment Levy for the period of October 1st, 2019 through September 30th, 2020, and authorizes city manager to extend the agreement for a one year term district to. And there's a motion in a second on the hearing. Let's begin with the staff report. We have Eric Romero from Economic Development doing a brief report. Good evening, mayor and members of the city council. The fourth Street Parking and Business Improvement Area, also known as a business improvement district, was established by the City Council in 2007, allowing for the level of an annual assessment to be paid by businesses located in the district. The city contracts with the Fourth Street Business Improvement Association to manage the Business Improvement District and the Fourth Street Business Improvement Association's Board of Directors serves as an advisory board to the City Council on matters related to the district state law governing this district requires that an annual report be approved by the City Council. The annual report describes boundaries, proposed activities and budgetary information, as well as a method and basis for the continuation of the assessment. The annual report proposes no change to the district boundaries or method of living the assessment. The proposed activities will focus on marketing, special events and maintenance and beautification to continue the Levys assessments. State law requires that a public hearing be held on the proposed program and assessment. And it's October 22nd, 2019 meeting. The City Council approved a resolution granting approval of the annual report, declaring the intention of the City Council to levy the assessment and set today as the date of public hearing. City Council shall here and consider all protests from area businesses against the assessment program and boundaries of the area as proposed in the annual report. This concludes my staff report. I am happy to answer any questions. Thank you. Thinking, I. Let's see. On this item I have Mr. Goodhue, Ms.. Control. Ms.. Christiansen. I don't see here consumer appears. I'm sorry, Ringo. Okay. Members, just go ahead and cast your vote. Bush and Kerry during 12. Item 12 Report from Economic Development Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record, conclude the public hearing and adopt a resolution containing the Bigsby Nos parking and Business Improvement Area Assessment Levy for the period of Tober first 2019 through Septe mber 30, 2020, and authorize the city manager to execute the agreement for one year term District seven and nine. It's remarkable. Eric Romero from. Economic Development something the staff report. The big, you know, marketing and business improvement area, also known as the Business Improvement District, was established by the City Council in 1989, allowing for the levy of an annual business license assessment to be paid by businesses located in the district. The city contracts with the Bixby North Business Improvement Association to manage the district and the Bixby North Business Improvement Association's Board of Directors serves as the advisory board for the City Council on matters related to the District. State law governing this district requires an annual report be approved by the City Council, and your report describes boundaries, propose activities and budgetary information as well as the method and basis for the continuation of the assessment. The annual report proposes no changes to the district boundaries or the method of leaving the assessment. The proposed activities will focus on events, member outreach, business retention and recruitment and marketing and branding to continue the levy. The assessment state law requires that a public hearing be held on the proposed program and assessment at its October 15, 2019 meeting. The City Council approved a resolution granting approval of the annual report, declaring the intention of the City Council to levy the assessment and set today as the date of public hearing. City Council shall here and consider all protests from area businesses against the assessment program and boundaries of the area as proposed in the new report. This concludes my staff report. I am happy to answer any questions. I don't think this Christiansen or Ms.. Control or Mr. Goodhew no comment on this. So we're going to go ahead and. Councilman. Officer, any comments? No. Councilman Hearing any comments, please cast your votes. Bush and Kerry. By the way, for the record, it's district eight. And that may. Action hearing, which is hearing next 21, I. Believe. Report from fire recommendation received supporting documentation under the record, conclude the public hearing and adopt a resolution amending the master fee and charges schedule for standby fire safety officer fees related to special events and filming citywide you. It's going to give you a public comment on this. Mr. Monica Short staff report. Yes, short staff report by Deputy Fire Chief Matt Grandison. Honorable Mayor and council members. Thank you for the opportunity to speak with you tonight. On September 3rd, 2019. Council approved the master fee schedule. Included in the fee schedule were two fees for the fire safety officer. These two fees originally incorporated a full staff recovery costs, consumables and equipment maintenance. Today's hearing is to amend those two fees. The revised fee will provide full cost recovery for staffing costs. Only the cost asso ciated with consumables and equipment maintenance are to be removed and will be included in the citywide. Fee schedule being conducted by financial management. This concludes the presentation. I'm available for questions if you have any. Thank you to Councilman Price. Anything. Thank you. I support this item and I would encourage us to look at maybe lowering the permit fees for the Belmont Shore Christmas parade. If it's not too late. I'm not sure which fees were calculated into their permits, but maybe there's some opportunity for negotiation on that. From Ringo. Okay. There's a motion and a second. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Thank you. We're now going to public comment, so I'm going to call the first five speakers, Larry Goodhew, Alex Armstrong. Joanne Quast than Helena Miller Smith and Karin and Joan, if they can, please come forward in that order. So we're still a ways away from that. Okay. So we are going back and now we're going to hearing item number 20. And if I can ask people to exit quietly, just out of respect to the rest of the meeting, please exit quietly. Report from and services recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing. Adopt resolution certifying the revised program Environmental Impact Report. Adopt a resolution adopting the updated plan. Use elements of the Long Beach General Plan. Adopt resolution. Adopting the new urban design elements, the Long Beach General Plan and adopt resolution to submit amendments to the California Coastal Commission for approval citywide. Q Thank you. There is a. Can I get a second on this motion? Mr. Modica. I need everyone to please quiet as they exit. And if we can just exit and close the doors on our way out, that would help us facilitate the meeting. Thank you. I'm sorry. Linda Tatum, director of development services, will be doing the staff report. Yes, Mayor, I'd like to introduce the project team. We make sure that we close those doors on our way out, please. Just so that we can. Q. We'll just give. We will. That's a good suggestion. Just give it a quick minute. Please exit if you can expeditiously. And we will continue the meeting. Okay. I just need everyone to if we can please keep those doors closed and we need to continue the meeting. Aron members of the Council, I'd like to introduce the project team who have been working diligently on this project for the more than the previous five years. That is planning manager Christopher Koontz and the lead staff planner. Allison. Spindler. Ruiz and Ms.. Spindler. Ruiz will be making the staff presentation for this item. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the Council. I'm here to present staff recommendation on the land use element and urban design element of the City of Long Beach General Plan. To provide a bit of context. The Council recall that the city of Long Beach is general plan as a policy document required by state law, which establishes the goals and policies that will guide future growth and development in the city through the year 2040. The general plan land use element for short has not been updated since 1989. The scenic route element is an optional element that was originally adopted in 1975 and has not been updated since that time. The urban design element, or UDC for short, is a new optional element introduced as a companion element to the L'ue. While the L'ue, it deals with the use of land. Urban design element deals with the stuff and between the public realm and is intended to replace the scenic routes element with more contemporary urban design principles that will enhance quality of life in the city and the esthetics of its neighborhoods. Our general plan Land Use Element Update began in 2004 and the Council will recall that on March six, 2018, the City Council voted a public hearing to approve the final general plan land use element, place type and height maps and directed staff to update the program air, which is what brings us back here this evening. Significant changes were made to the place type and height maps, culminating in the approval by council in March 2018. Those changes included reductions in place type intensity and or maximum height allowance compared to previous versions of the maps. These reductions took place at various locations throughout the city, particularly in East Long Beach, near the traffic circle, middle shore, Wrigley and North Long Beach. On the east side, a majority of place type changes went to more community commercial, which are commercial only, and move away from the mixed use place types in the plan. So the revised programing and updated plan text before you reflect those final maps you approved last year. And the plan text had to be updated in order to show the changes that were made to the maps, as well as issues raised in the environmental review process. What's before you also reflects the Planning Commission's recommendation in October for the project before you today? A reminder that the EU in the EU plan goals, which are listed here on the side, generally aim for Long Beach to have a more sustainable future, to improve mobility choices, expand transit access, improve air quality, reduce greenhouse gas emissions, and accommodate growth projections in accordance with state law. The proposed L'union Udeh accommodates the city's population and employment projections through the horizon the year 2040, while also advancing general plan goals for open space, active living, improved urban design, sustainability and overall quality of life. The plan includes supportive policies and implement ACT implementation actions to meet those goals as well as monitoring and report back requirements built into the plan. The proposed Alawi introduces the concept of place types to replace our current approach of segregating property within the city through traditional land use designations and zoning classifications. Place types divide the city into distinct neighborhoods, allowing fo r greater flexibility and mix of compatible land uses within these areas to create more complete neighborhoods and sustainable development patterns. The urban design element helps ensure that the physical aspects again have more appropriate scale and massing that improve urban fabric and public places. The map change was approved by council last year. We're considered significant new information under the California Environmental Quality Act or sequel. As a result, we were required to recirculate the air, which was done this past year, and as part of the process, staff had to make technical changes to both plan text to align and ensure consistency with the MAP changes and the revised environmental analysis. Those changes are all detailed in the attachment j of your packet. Similar to the 2016 air, the revised E.R. analysis found that all impacts can be reduced to a less than significant level, with adherence to standard conditions and prescribed mitigation measures, with the exception of impacts in four areas air quality, global climate change, noise and transportation. Though map intensities were reduced, environmental impacts remained similar. The only new impact found to be significant and unavoidable relates to noise. The 2016 air did not find noise impacts to be significant, but given the timing and extent of future construction, related noise is unknown. The revised air finds us to be significant and unavoidable. But this is simply a more conservative analysis. Pursuant to secure all required environmental impacts have been considered and mitigation measures have been incorporated to reduce or minimize potential environmental effects to the maximum extent feasible. There are various requirements related to general plan consistency. This plan is designed to work for the two elements to work together and upon adoption will be consistent not only with each other, but all other elements of the general plan and with all required state regulations as shown on the slide. A much more detailed consistency analysis is provided in attachment eight of each of your packet. The recirculated draft air was circulated for public review for an extended period of 60 days between June and August 2019, including not only all legally required notification, but significant additional notification to all previous interested parties on this project. We received 17 comments on the air during the comment period. No significant changes nor new information was required in response to those comments that would have required recirculation. Leading up to the meeting tonight, we received two additional comments from the public, which were included with the city clerk and as well as a handful of inquiries and questions for clarification. Adoption of value in the EU sets a broad policy framework, but much needs to be done to implement this plan. Value contains 110 city wide implementation measures and various neighborhood strategies. The another 27 implementation strategy. I s updates to the zoning code will be a primary means of implementation, including development of new zones to implement the place types. This will be phased in geographically with deep and various types of community engagement, as we have been doing with the plan process in North Palm Beach as well as the cap. In addition to developing new zones, other updates to development standards and procedures will be made to the code. And the cap is actually a mitigation measure of the QE as well. And it will help us with many of the sustainability related policies and implementation actions included in the Louis the Council recall. We're pretty far along on the cap in drafting our framework of how to create a more sustainable and resilient city. Given that 95% of our emissions come from transportation and building sectors and Long Beach land use regulations are critical to our ability to achieve our city's climate goals, such as through creation of complete communities, to allow people to drive less, create more efficient housing and buildings, and preserve open space. But that here again is the recommendation to. Certify the revised program. Iir adapt the updated land use element to the general plan replacing the 1989 land use element. Adopt the new urban design element, repealing the scenic roots element and adopt a resolution for us to submit amendments to the general plan to the California Coastal Commission. With that. I thank you. And staff stands ready to answer any questions. Thank you. I'm going to public comment for the making of the motion. So we have Mr. Goodhue and control carelessly. Janet And whether there's ten speakers. Larry Goodhue and Control cordless lead, Janet West and Lynnette Firenze. Sorry about that. They'll pick these line up at the podium in that order. Mr. Goodhue, your first. You're not speaking. Okay, so Ms.. Cantrell was first. Nope. Mostly. What? Go ahead, Mr. Europe. Okay. Well, first, I want to acknowledge the moment, because this is a huge body of work. And thousands of hours of staff time and public time were involved in that. And here we are at the point of adopting it. I will say that in terms of what was learned in this, what did we learn? We learned that people care about zoning, that they want outreach, they want to be included, and that they care about the major life investment, which is their home and their neighborhood. A lot of the work that went on was focusing on the police type maps. Not everyone was satisfied with the maps as they were approved. I know District two and District six still had issues with them, but the negotiations did occur and the product is better because of it. Personally, I learned some new vocabulary. I found out in this that I am a NIMBY and a NIMBY is not in my backyard. But in fact, I was just trying to protect the students at Milliken from increased density. The things that remain, that are still a problem. Program ideas. Negative declarations. Substituting for real year. Where we

identify the potential consequences and have solutions. Things that matter. The traffic and the parking. The hazmat. Thank you. State intervention is still a problem. Thank you very much. The problem and the mobility element was control. Good evening. I have some questions about this. As I understand it, the transportation. Element of this is to build along transit lines both present and future. And I'm concerned that any place you put a bus line will allow you to build 5 to 10 story buildings. I feel this destroys the neighborhood. I still remember the cracker boxes, and I think this. Relates to what we did back in the nineties with. Over building and density and crime. I also am not sure I thought that Cecil. Area was exempt from this, but I was told today that it's been included again. Could somebody on staff. Answer the question as to whether c support is included in this I eui. Thank you. And it was, please come forward. First, it's unconscionable that you're giving us 90 seconds to speak on a plan that's going to change this city forever. The transit oriented development says that it is for metro line stations, as well as existing and future bus shuttle and other mass transit routes and stations. That is not reflected on the map. According to state law, the maps and the text have to be consistent. So you're this plan. This whole plan is not following state law. And those of you who vote for it are going to be violating state law. People still talk about the cracker box fiasco. This will be ten times worse. But people don't know who the council members were who voted for it. I'm proposing a wall of shame for everybody who votes for it. Thank you. Thank you. Next up, Lynnette frenzy. And if we can, please have Lee Lee for coffee. Neil Rotunda man Eichner. Coleen MacDonald, please all line up in that order, please. Good evening. I have four changes that I hope you approve in Council District six. One is change the height from 3 to 2 stories at the northwest and northeast corners of spring and Pacific Avenue in the CC place type. This request does not need a place to change, only a height map change from 3 to 2 stories. This will allow the CC zone and Wrigley to be treated the same as other zones throughout the city, especially in Council District four and five. Number two, change the height on the east side of Pacific Avenue from 28th to Spring Street from 5 to 3 stories. This request is also not need a place to change, only a change of the height map from 5 to 3 stories. This change will be consistent with the Midtown specific plan that you approved in 2016 that allows three stories in 36 feet in the corridor district. Number three, change a height from 10 to 5 stories on the north side of PCH between Lucas and Pacific Avenue. In the toddler place type, this change will also allow consistency with a midtown specific plan. This area was two stories in 2007. Five in 2015. Not ten was proposed. Please maintain the five story height in this two block area and not allow an eight story increase in ten years. In last change, the height from 7 to 5 stories on both sides of Pacific Avenue from PCH to 19th. And change the place type on the east side of Cedar AV from PCH to 19th, from top to end. That's it. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Good evening, mayor, vice mayor and council. I'm here to support Lynette Frances. Her proposal to reduce the heights in some areas of Wrigley. This is a compromise that still allows growth. She wants what we all want that future growth. Be responsible. Thank you. Vice Mayor Andrews and your staff are listening to our concerns. On a separate note, I'm hoping that you all, as council members, when you discuss this behind the rail, that there be some way to safeguard and assess new developments. That the progress we make can be evaluated in any problems be addressed so that we are maintaining the quality of life for our residents. I believe it was Councilwoman Pryce that brought it up at the last meeting, and I hope you all as a body can discuss this further. How to address problems quicker than what happened in the past, particularly in regards to was mentioned before Cracker Box Apartments. From what. I've read in the past news articles. It took that city council way too long to stop those badly planned developments from continuing. I'm hoping that this council finds a way to address these kinds of unforeseen problems. Thank you all for your time and consideration and thank you. No good time to. Yes. My name is Neil Tag. I'm a retired law professor and I'm here in support of the Wigley group that has been working very, very diligently, patiently and persistently with the city about detailed changes in the Wrigley area. I'm also channeling Linette Ferrante. She didn't get to finish number four, so I'm going to read that. Number four, change the height from 7 to 5 stories on both sides, the Pacific Avenue from

PCH to 19th Street, and change the place type on the east side of Cedar Avenue from PCH, 19th Street, from transit oriented development to in founding and contemporary neighborhoods, except the first four lots north of PCH that shall remain within toddler with a 2 to 5 story limit on those matters. Now, these have been submitted in writing. They are for specific, very modest suggestions. And again, as a result. Of. A significant. Participation effort over years, I think I actually came here and gave a comment two years, two or three years ago, and I don't recognize half the members of the city council. But my point is, this is a long, concerted effort, an effort by members of the Wrigley neighborhood to improve the quality of life. Working very patiently and diligently with the city. I would encourage you to consider this to take into account that persistence in your consider in your detailed considerations. Thank you. Thank you very much. I don't. Good evening. Honorable mayor. Vice Mayor, council members. I'm gonna ignore. I'm a six th district resident as Neal was saying is one that was seeing as we were saying, we've been doing this for a long time. We've been very, very diligent through these years. And I've learned a lot. And I've got a lot of I've spent a lot of time with the vice mayor and staff. I've talked to you guys a lot, and thank you all for all the help in answering all my questions. I understand that Playscape changes require new art. New e r e i ars. We are asking for a one place per type change and that's the reduction on Cedar Avenue from which was once the founding and contemporary neighborhood, the very first air that was done. And then it was changed to the seven story. And we'd like to put back because it is a single family neighborhood put back to founding and contemporary neighborhoods. And we've always been told through all the years that you can lower heights and it's a lessening of impact. So therefore it does not require a new air. And plus, we had already done an air of that the first round of the year. So please hear us as one last time and consider our requests. It's our last stand. Thank you. Thank you. I'm calling McDonald. Thank you. Garcia Good evening. Council Members Well, I would just be regurgitating what Lee, Leonard, Mona and Neil have just said. We're asking for three height, three changes on the height map. Very small areas of Wrigley. And then the one place type change to recognize the actual nature of Cedar Avenue. So those are I'm not going to read what I brought. I just hope that that it can be achieved tonight. So thank you very much. And. Good evening. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment. I had. I said, you can't. I want to thank men. I want to thank staff for the great report and all of the hard work. This has been a laborious process, but also one that was mentioned here by in public comment, one that is also, I think shall be the passion from for many of our residents throughout the city who were involved in this process. I think there was a lot of compromise. This isn't a perfect document. I don't think the land use element before in 1980 was was perfect. I'd be interested to know what percentage. Or how much was actually realized in that land use element today from staff. Do you have any idea in terms of the planning that was was laid out in the element and how much of that was actually realized or done? So, Councilmember, I can't give you a number. I can tell you there's concepts on that plan, including the rebuilding and renaissance in downtown, that the crafters of that 1989 plan got spot on and completely came true. There's other items in that plan talking about growth in other parts of the city, sort of outside of downtown, that they completely missed the mark because they felt that there would be growth in housing and goods and services, but that that would be in these one and two story buildings that the world evolved and that didn't come to be. So it's a plan that both was very successful and what i t had to say about downtown and also really missed the mark on the rest of our city. And while downtown is very important, it's 2% of a very large, diverse city with a lot of important neighborhoods and shopping districts. So we think that this this plan is more comprehensive and will achieve our goals throughout the whole city. But I think the more important difference is in this council's action last year you had specific direction. So this plan will be monitored yearly by the Planning Commission and we'll be coming back every other year to provide updates to this Council. So it will be a living document. And as we need to make adjustments, we'll make adjustments so that every community achieves their goals. Thank you. And what I think I heard is that this is an imperfect science. There's a lot of guesswork here and there are a lot of variables that that need to fall in place for for this to actually come to fruition. I'm hopeful, because I know we need to build more housing. We need to be smarter with how we we build our housing. Transit corridors are very, very important. And if we don't get it done in our general plan, Sacramento may get it done for us. And so I'd like to have as much local control as possible, and I encourage my colleagues to support this document tonight. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes, ma'am. Thank you. I would like to thank the staff who work with me and my constituents here in the sixth District. You know, the land use element. You know, I know that we are not necessarily making drastic changes to the map tonight, but I want to share my comments and provide instructions to the staff about how they implement the plans and the zoning in the sixth District. Based on my review and all of the information and the valuable feedback from a residents like Annette Manley and Mrs. Colleen. I have comments on four areas, but I do not want to submit this and I do want to submit this into record. When the development of oppose this is number one when a development is proposed is considered when northeast, the northwest northeast corner of Spring and Pacific Avenue. I would like the staff to apply a zoning height of two stories instead of three. This height would be approximately next to nearby residents and two stores is typical the retail commercial use number two. Similarly, when a development proposal is considered along Pacific Avenue from 28th Street to Pine Street, apply the three storey height of the five story. This stretch is adjacent to the veterans park and this approach is consistent with how small lodged and treated in the Midtown Special Plan. Number three, also along PCH, from Locust Avenue to Pacific Avenue. Let's keep a five story. Let's keep it five story height established in the mid-term special plan. Rather than the ten story, you know, content that this is provided in an important high transmission to the nearby residents, including a single family housing. And number four, lastly, when the devel
