opment proposal is considered for the area north, the Pacific Coast Highway, that does not include properties with frontage on PCH on east sides of Cedar Avenue and both sides of Pacific Avenue and south of 19th Street. Apply a five story approach instead of the seven story to reflect recent community discussion and a better consistency with the surrounding Midtown Special Midtown Special Plan on Cedar. I'd rather I really want to use to be cautious and to preserve the single family type look that exists. These approaches to implement the plan will provide important esthetic benefits from the community but but will not change the map on his environmental analysis application that these comments will still bring housing we need but will do so with a good design. Staff can follow up tonight the actions and letters to my office. I will share with the community and the document of this approach. And thank you very much. It comes from Virunga. Thank you, Mayor. Just one question that you had on Slide 11. Bullet three, you have steps in project implementation. You have a phased update to the zoning code as the primary means for implementation. There were many there were some questions asked during the QE process about equestrian zones. In terms of leaseholder zones, how is that going to be is going to be addressed here or how is that going to be incorporated into this plan? Circle Council Member Thank you for the question. And we do have some equestrian property in the city and they've been involved in this process. So in the general plan, which is general in nature, because there's a citywide plan, we have this category, founding and contemporary neighborhood that has our single family areas, our duplex areas, our lowest density housing, and it provides some citywide discussion and framework and standards for those. But then in any given neighborhood, you have very specific issues or challenges or opportunities. And equestrian is one of those. And those are those issues are addressed in the more detailed zoning code. So there's existing rules for equestrian lots that exist today. And we'd be glad to work with your constituent on mapping those and making those those clearer. And then if at some point the city council, as a as the Hall of the body, wanted to revisit those or make adjustments to those, we could go through a process to do that. But that's all going to be in that implementation stage and not in this larger. Citywide document that we're talking about tonight. Thank you for the clarification, RuPaul. Thank you. And just as a clarification from staff, so Vice Chair Andrews is our staff direction, but it does not actually change the maps within the QE, to be clear. Mr. MODICA. That's correct. So the maps would stay the way they are. We fully understand kind of the content and the intent and we worked with the council members on this, on this and met with the community. So we understand the goal. Thank you. Councilor Pearce. Thank you. I wa nted to take a moment just to think. Staff I know that this has been many, many years of work. I know that we've had many community meetings with 300 plus people. And I think it's a sign of what great work we've done. Of the turnout tonight. And I respect everybody's opinion. Obviously, in the second district, we tried to increase density where we could. I know that our skog numbers are kind of terrifying sometimes to think about. And so seeing us increase density wherever we can, I think is really important. And just want to appreciate your guys efforts. So thank you. Thank you. And Councilwoman Mungo. I want to echo those same comments. The three of you at the back table took a beating. There was a lot of misinformation out in the community, and you calmly and professionally worked hand in hand with the communities. A lot of them just getting to know you for the first time. And I think that we've come a long way as a city, and I think that that process has opened the eyes of city staff on how we can be more transparent and the better ways to hand-hold the community through a process to make sure that they're involved every step of the way. So thank you for working with us as councilmembers and being a part of that. And you guys did excellent work. I cannot tell you how impressed I was at multiple meetings when your stuff came out. Linda Multiple meetings, just so professional and so knowledgeable. So thank you. Thank you. There's a motion and a second. Please cast your votes. Last. Council members. Motion carries. Action hearing, which is hearing next 21, I. Thank you. And now we're going to go back to item four, which is pulled from consent. I can read that item, please. Report from Economic Development Recommendation to authorize City Manager to execute all documents necessary for a lease with Platinum Capital Inc for office space at 500 West Willow Street, District seven. Thank you. We can, Mr. Councilman, regular. Do you need a report or anything on this or. Yes, I'd like to. Bring up Mr. Nick Schultz from the Pacific Gateway. Programs so he can give us a little bit of an update as to what this project is all about. That's in the Senate district. And I think it would be very. Beneficial to get more information as to what is coming to the seven. Council member. Yeah, good evening. This is really an exciting project for us in. Economic development and a wonderful economic development resource for our youth. I actually have Nick Schulz, our deputy director and executive director of Pacific Gateway, to talk a little bit about the services and resources that will be available. Thank you, John. Honorable Mayor, members of council. What we're looking at with this item is a satellite center to our workplace at 4811 Airport Boulevard. It's about a 7900 square foot facility on the on the block of Willow between Daisy and Magnolia. It would actually be the furthest west workforce services have ever been located in the city. It also places us in close proximity to our youth Starbucks store at Willow in Long Beach, as well as Silverado Park and Cabrillo High School, where we have some workforce programing continually going specifically to the Teen Logistics Academy with the Port of Long Beach at Cabrillo Cabrillo High School. It's along a major corridor and near the metro will stop and service by bus lines one or 2104 and 181 along Magnolia. It currently provides a a much needed space for our youth program services given the. Rejoining of our city staff at 4811 Airport Plaza by the Employment State Employment Development Department. Everything that we're doing at the site is funded through federal and special grants. No city funding is dedicated to this space so far. You'll be seeing a new future. L.B. Brand. That will. Co-design the space around specific input and a human centered design process with city use city youth. 4700 square feet of the 79 is dedicated to the youth center. It includes spaces for mental health training, afterschool homework, mentoring, meeting areas and conference room for other academic projects. Will House projects in this site, delivered in conjunction with the Health Department for Precariously House Youth, and it will serve as a portal to training and services citywide, not just those federally funded programs. We may include other partners like Job Corps in the center. Six staff will be dedicated there, teaching and leading our programs, and it will have both day and evening hours. Also, what we're excited about is we're going to dedicate 3200 the remaining 3200 square feet as a full satellite extension of the work place and on spring for staff to provide a whole host of adult career advisement. And we're also negotiating with other partners to provide adult services in that space. Normal work hours and some evening activity well will transpire for our adult clients. A little bit about the design. The rear entrance from the parking lot will be for adult services under the workplace banner and the front willow street entrance will be the future will be youth service entrance. It's a flexible modern design. New staff. New storefront windows will allow you to see right into the lobby area. It's a bright and inviting space. Classrooms will have walls, glass to see deep into the building and watch programs as they happen. So youth who wonder and can actually see what's going on. A pause there and I'll take any questions that the council might have. A very extensive description of the facility there. I could see that you're going to be providing services for both youth and adults, as well as adults experiencing other kinds of challenges. As you mentioned, there are some behavioral health and some perhaps some housing as well. You also, during our discussion earlier yesterday mentioned that there were some other facilities that are there. So what's what makes this facility unique in than other facilities that you might know exist for this type of services? Sure. And I th ink that ties directly to the point about homeless the homeless or transitional youth that we talked about many times. We experience the fact that that youth or even other customers don't want to enter into the facility because they're they're bringing possessions, their belongings with them. They don't have any place to store them. There is dedicated storage at this facility for youth and adults to store belongings as they as they seek to access services. There's also a very extensive remodel to that, to the restroom facilities that allow for our participants to take some time, get themselves cleaned up in a way that in other facilities we don't have the opportunity to offer them. And that sounds great. Now, the the funding is current is currently targeted towards federal funding or state funding or a combination of the two. Right now, the facility would be supported by our federal formula funds and a series of competitive grants that we have for youth. And with the upgrades and the remodel that you have to do with the what do we anticipate in terms of opening, getting this ribbon cutting? I'm certainly looking forward to that. Second quarter of 2020. We hope to be in there by April, May at the latest. Yeah. So given that this is a new facility, that going to be sure we've seen. A lot of. Youth and adults in the seventh District, especially when you're looking at the West Long Beach area where a lot of services are most desperately needed. I would. Hope that I could get the support of my my council colleagues to. Move this forward. Thank you very much. Thank you. There's a motion and a second count, Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I wanted to chime in and just say, first of all, congratulations. This is this is a big deal. We've been talking for over a year about decentralizing work force, particularly for youth who have, you know, transportation, transit issues. And so you've you know, we've talked about this. The Local Workforce Workforce Development Coalition has talked about it. Everyone in committee has talked about it. And here we are. You've you've identified a great space, you know, former, you know, former swap meet, right. That's been redeveloped. And, you know, it's got some great retail in the space now. And so now is going to be a hub for for jobs. I think that's great. And I want to I want to acknowledge that lift that up. Councilman Urunga, great job in landing this. And I know we have more conversations about continuing to expand into our parks and other things. So I wanted to just lift that up and say, this is great work and I wanted to recognize it. Thank you. I want to say thank you, Councilmember. We heard you. We heard the conversations and more to come in terms of expansion of services in 2020. Thank you. There's a motion in a second with no public comment, so please cast your votes. Councilwoman? Yes. Motion carries. Thank you. We are now we have two hearings which we need to do. And so we have both hearings at 715 a nd 16. They both require an oath. So I'm going to go ahead and have Vice Mayor Andrews begin the first hearing. Motion carries. Thank you. No, I'm a 19. Item 19 Communication from City Clerk. City Manager. Recommendation Receive and file a report on the status of the Independent Redistricting Commission plan. JT Nakayama is here to present on behalf of the City Clerk Department. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. We will be presenting a brief overview of the Independent Redistricting Commission plan. Here's a background of the process. The last time redistricting occurred in Long Beach was in 2011, when the city council adopted the current map after directing staff to conduct the process. The new process for redistricting changed last year when voters approved the charter amendment to create the commission. The Commission has been given the exclusive authority to redraw the boundaries and adopt the new map through an open, independent and transparent process. The first step in the process is the recruitment and selection of the commissioners. The Commission will be comprised of 13 members and two alternates who reasonably reflect the diversity of Long Beach. The commissioners, which must meet specific requirements outlined in the Charter and must not have any conflicts of interest. Application period will be open from April 1st through June 30, 2020. After the commissioners are selected, there will be approximately 20 commission meetings with at least one in East District. The final map will be adopted by September 2021, which is a deadline mandated by the charter. On this slide, there's a screenshot of the website that was launched last month. The communications plan is broken up into two phases. The first phase is the recruitment of commissioners through early outreach and education, along with motivating, activating community members to apply. The second phase will be to involve community members in the redistricting process through education and activation. Encouraging participation in meetings. The second phase will also include creating awareness of new district boundaries following the adoption of the map. If any changes are made.

The following video, the PSA announcement we created with MLB.TV that will launch next month. Attention. Long Beach residents, your city and the Independent Redistricting Commission is looking to. Appoint commissioners to redistrict our neighborhoods. The Voting Rights Act, 1965, has determined the city's boundaries for decades. But now we want to hear from you. Ooh, help redraw the lines. Applications will be accepted from April 1st, 2020 through June 30th, 2020. You must be a registered voter and live in Long Beach. For additional requirements and to apply, check out our website or visit the city clerk's office. It's your community, your voice. Now. Deputy City Manager Kevin Jackson will continue the presentation. Thank you, J.T.. Good evening, Vice Mayor and members of the city council. We just want to giv e you some share some information with you about how we're cooperating on the census so that you have an understanding of who's doing what and what the current status is and, you know, and what our funding situation is. So starting with how we're working together. The city clerk is responsible for coordination of the recruitment selection process, for the redistricting effort and overall coordination of the Commission's activities. The city attorney is going to be working on coordinating training and advisory legal support for the Commission and staff on the redistricting process and the city manager providing support for the overall effort in promoting, supporting interdepartmental engagement in the effort is going to also be coordinating an RFP process to select a consultant for redistricting advisory services. In addition, we are currently and will throughout the process be providing support for communications and public engagement. And when the Commission is operational, we will be providing operational support, meaning support for the effort as well. I just wanted to point out that the the timelines for these two concurrent efforts, the Census 2020 outreach, as well as the redistricting process, there is some overlap with these timelines. We have been carefully coordinating the Census 2020 and redistricting planning activities to ensure the success for each of the processes and to identify opportunities to combine resources where possible on the outreach activities. We have some specific outreach activities and communications activities that we will we will be doing for redistricting. But we are doing extensive public engagement on the Census 2020 process. And we realize that there will be opportunities to to leverage the engagement from the 2020 process to support outreach on the redistricting process. I want to point out just some key dates between the two efforts. So we just spent the last five months wrapping up a strategic planning process for Census 2020. Our overall planning for the Census 2020 started in 2018. So we've completed that and we're now moving into the implementation plan for Census 2020, which will begin in January and go through July. The apportionment counts after the census is done are due to the president by December 20, 31st of 2020. And the the the census data for the redistricting process has to be released by March 31st, March 31st, 2021. The redistricting process then will effectively begin, as J.T. suggested earlier on April nine, April of 2021, and wrap up in September of 2021 with a new map adopted by the Commission. We are currently working on initiating RFP process for the selection this month of selection of a redistricting consultant in January 2020. We are starting the selection process a little early in an effort to onboard the consultant early enough to start providing support for the redistricting recruitment process for commissioners. There are some core services that will be provided by the redistrictic ting consultant, including commissioner and staff training on the requirements of the redistricting process, as well as providing demographic data and analytical support and training on a mapping tool to assist the commission with map redrawing as well as assisting the public or engage in a public in the map redrawing process as part of the public engagement process. The consultant will also work with us on an ongoing basis to provide meeting and facilitation support to ensure for the efficient operation of the Commission's activities. So the proposed redistricting plan spans three fiscal years by 2021 and 22. The FY 20 adopted budget included $250,000 to initiate the proposed work plan. Currently, the city clerk in our office is working to identify the unfunded balance in FY 20, and we will be working during the successive budget processes in FY 22, 21 and 22 to identify the unfunded balance in those particular years. And that concludes our presentation on the receipt of our report for the redistricting process. Thank you. Thank you. I'm going to turn this over to councilman also in just a minute. But I want to just add and thank staffer. I just working really hard on putting together this plan. This is obviously the will of the voters who adopted Measure D and have asked us to have an Independent Citizens Redistricting Commission. And like I've said before, having lived through the last process here as a council member, I'm very grateful that we will have a commission that will be doing the process instead of us. And and so I think this is really also the the gold standard. And where redistricting is going are these commissions and it's happening across the country. And so I'm very grateful that that this is happening. I also just want to add that there I know that common cause and Lou Leggett submitted a letter of some thoughts on our process. And I think there's just some good ideas there for us to take a look at. Mr. Jackson, just want to make sure that that's something that we have we have looked at. And I also want to just just add that. I think the, the, the layout in the timeline that you've all set out, I'm including trying to be a little bit more aggressive as far as the timeliness I think is really smart. And so thank you for that. And I just think there's really good work on staff's part. Councilman Austin. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I want to thank Mr. Jackson and staff for great work on planning this, uh, this, I think, historic commission and process. As the Mayor alluded to the last time we went through the redistricting process, it was pretty, pretty eventful. And I don't want to see that revisited. And so this is why we were so so. So intent on on creating a citizens ridiculous redistricting process. I'm concerned about the budget and which you are. Maybe some shortfalls in identifying these budget budgets over the next couple of years. What do you expect and what do you think? We're going to need to implement this over the next two years? Well, the current budget estimate is $1.2 million. We over the next couple of months, will be in a position to refine that budget estimate. And and we'll be coming back with a recommended budget adjustment for 2020 to add to the funding that we currently set aside in 2020. So overall, at this point, as far as we can see, it's a $1.2 billion effort over the next three years. But certainly we're going to be looking for opportunities to, you know, to economize. Okay. In terms of opportunities to economize, are there any sort of grants, good government grants available in terms of or that you're aware of that we may be able to to identify or apply for? Uh, we are we are not aware of any grants that are available for this effort at this time. Monique, I don't know. In your office. We can take a look at that. But at this time, there are no grants that we've come across that are available for redistricting, independent redistricting commissions. But we can definitely take a look. And get back to you. Okay. That might be something that we can work on. Creating. And then secondly, the you mentioned the the delay over what the census process, what type of funds do we have for census? And will there be any sort of. Opportunity there. Well, as part of the EFF Y20 budget, the Council had approved $600,000 for census activities, 250 for the redistricting effort and 350 to support the census 2020 outreach effort. At this point, we are it's not likely that we will have any additional funding from the Census 2020 outreach outreach effort to to support redistricting. Where we might where we will be able to support the redistricting process is through the relationships that we built with the community based organizations and through our complete count committee to assist with outreach. So that will allow us to give get, you know, some economies of scale on the outreach. But in terms of dollars, we don't we don't envision any additional dollars coming from the census 2020 effort to support the redistricting effort. Well, thank you for answering those questions. You've given me a few things to think about and as well as to to work on. I know there are a number of cities throughout the state that are looking at adopting this citizen redistricting process. And perhaps there are some some opportunities for for our state to test as well, because I think this is just the way I said a good government move and one that will engage but also demystify the process of redistricting. Thank you very much for your report. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I'm so proud of our city for taking these big steps forward. I've been to some of the meetings. I think that the team is working very diligently with the community. I appreciate the work that you've done. I know that we've had several meetings about budget and other things, and I appreciate you keeping me updated and any additional budgetary related things that may come back to the Budget Oversight Committee. We will be meeting early this year, so thank you for your continued partnership on this important endeavor. Pierce. Yes. Thank you very much for these efforts. I know that you guys are working really diligently and I. Know that we have minimal. Resources. And so I hope that we can find some more and partnerships as well. I had a question on the community meetings. It looks like there's one at City Hall. And there's also one at the library. I assume that one of those is supposed. To be intended for District one and one supposed to. Be for District two. Where it would make a lot more sense, I think for my district, if we have one at City Hall, that we also have one maybe at Bixby

Park, because there's a lot of my constituents on the east side that do not make it all. The way over here if we have. Community meetings. So I would just ask that we explore options to make sure that it's spread out evenly. Thank you. You bet. Senator Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Having participated in the last process, I'm looking forward to, you know, the citizens independent process, you know, in, you know, when the state went to an independent process. You know, there's a little bit of apprehension about, you know, protecting your communities and things like that. And so I just had a quick question. I see on page two, it talks about the process of recruitment and selection, and the Ethics Commission randomly selects the first nine commissioners. In the first nine commissioners select the remaining four members and two alternates. So in that process, I'm, you know, you know, I support randomizing it, keeping it fair. But how do you maintain some geographic representation if you don't get, say, a lot of applications in certain areas? How do you do that? I'm going to ask the city clerk to Monique, if you want to help respond to this question. So through the application selection process will be reaching out to different CBOs throughout the community, to outreach and to disseminate information, to recruit commissioners, and then will also be doing demographic information and gathering that through the supplemental questionnaire that's not included in the initial application. So we can provide statistics and we'll provide that in the update that the one month update planned during the application period. So you're going to conduct outreach through community organizations to get the word out for applications. Is there any KREJCI screened for criteria before the entire list is submitted to the Commission for random appointment? Yes. So the Ethics Commission will create a sample of 20 to 30 applicants from the total of all the applications. And that will include, I believe it's two or three applicants from each district. And then the chair will randomly select the first nine commissioners from that 20 to 30 applicants. And that one will just be like probably my district and it's one per district. And then after that, those first nine will select the remaining four members and the two alternates from the remaining of the sample. Okay, understood. So it'll be within the district. There's a random selection. Yes, that makes sense. And then in terms of sort of, you know, representation. So, you know, racial diversity, you know, ethnic diversity, LGBTQ representation, all those things. How do we make is the process already prepared to make sure that those groups are represented? Yes. So we're going to be reaching out to different organizations and through ethnic media and through the different CBOs that we've connected through, like the Long Beach Complete Count Committee and through Common Cause. And then it's also in the charter like diversity includes is but not but is not limited to racial, ethnic, gender and sexual orientation diversity. Right. So we'll be looking into trying to outreach to each of these different communities to. Get a equitable applicant pool. Okay, great. Well, good luck. You definitely are going to have a lot of eyes on you, but I'm supportive of this process and let me know how I can be helpful. Thank you. Mr. King, you do you have any comment on this? Okay. There is a motion in a second to receive and file the report. Please cast your votes. Councilwoman. Motion carries. Thank you. We are now we have two hearings which we need to do. And so we have both hearings at 715 and 16. They both require an oath. So I'm going to go ahead and have Vice Mayor Andrews begin the first hearing. May the witnesses please stand. You see the UN each of you solemnly state that your that the testimony you may give in the course now pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you. God. Linda Tatum, director of development services, will be providing the report. Thank you. Good evening. Council, we're pleased to present this is the first community garden permit since the Council adopted that new legislation about a year ago. And I would like to introduce Nick Voss, a taste of what the project planner to make tonight's presentation on this item. Thank you, Linda. Good evening, Mayor Council. The project site is located on the east side of Redondo Avenue, between 10th Street to the north and eighth street to the south. The property is located in the neighborhood of commercial and residential zoning district. The project site currently consists of a 6250 square foot vacant lot. Redondo Avenue Street consists of a mix office and residential corridor, and the subject is generally surrounded by dense multi-family residences. Vacant lots have the potential to attract nuisance activities such as illegal dumping, lack of maintenance, visual blight and create criminal activity disrupted neighborhoods. In addition, vacant lots may negatively affect the value of adjacent properties. In 2017. And in recognition of these problems, the City Council amended the Long Beach Municipal Code to discourage vacant lots through a vacant light registry requirement to facilitate positive uses such as these urban uses. The proposed community garden will establish use beneficial to both the individual gardeners and people living and working nearby by improving a blighted, vacant lot with the term temporary argues. The improvements will consist of 2210 by ten rentable plots, two five by 15 raised rentable plots intended for the elderly. One prefab tool shed approximately four by four by six feet high, one arbor, eight by 16 by eight. Eight spigots and water hoses. And one compost and one mulch area. The applicant. Long Beach Organics Inc is a local nonprofit organization founded in 1994 and is seeking to operate its eighth location here in the city. Here's a photo of the various sites scattered throughout the city, and they include the Pacific in six Mary Molina, seventh and Chestnut Zafira Aria Junction or Zomba Park and South 40. Some of the community benefits that come with establishing a community garden on a vacant lot include one reducing vegetable blight and protecting property values. Two, promoting safety and reducing nuisance activities such as overgrown weeds, illegal dumping. Squatting and loitering. Three provides a local and organic food source that eliminates smells of food travels from production to consumption. And four provides more walkable, bicycle accessible destination with non-motorized vehicles and would be consistent with the city's sustainability goals. The general plan land use element and the draft climate action adaptation plan. In review of the required findings needed to be made in the formative staff, has found the project to be compatible for the neighborhood in compliance with all the applicable development standards, allowable hours of operation parking and refuge provisions as provided in your packets. Additionally, the proposed community garden has been conditioned to ensure that the property will continue to be operated in a neat, quiet and orderly manner. So the use will not be detrimental to the adjacent properties and occupants in the area. Its preference and conditional approval number 18. Also conditional approval. Ten and 12 require signage to be posted on the site displaying the operating protocols along with the contact information of the community garden manager. So any problem or question arise. The project's environmental review is classified as a class for mine alterations of land and is categorically exempt from any additional environmental analysis. The project here is also being reviewed in tandem with the city's urban ag program and is part of. A future request. Public notices of her received application was sent to the Wiltshire neighborhood and Greenbelt Heights neighborhood associations on October 31st, followed by additional public hearing notices distributed November 21st in preparation of staff's report. No formal comments were received, however, leading to. The tonight's hearing. Staff did receive three letters of support and one letter of contention, accompanied by the p etition of 93 signatures in opposition to the project, which is also included in your council packet. In summary of those concerns, they were centered around the topic of additional parking impacts, a place to attract homeless and transients leading to criminal activity in a place that attracts vermin. Staff's response to the comments acknowledges these concerns as existing conditions prevalent in the neighborhood and is in the opinion that activating this lot will ultimately be a step in the right direction and ideally, hopefully reduce those comments or concerns. With that staff is recommending approval of the interim use permit IPU 1901 and C 19 239. This concludes staff's presentation. The applicant. Is also here in the audience today. Who may want to expand. It's nice presentation. Thank you. Mm hmm. Yes. Would the applicant like to speak on this? Thank you. I'm Valerie Condon. I am currently the president of Long Beach Organic, a nonprofit. We currently have seven community gardens. We're really pleased to be here at this point. We've been working for more than eight, nine months to get this garden approved and off the ground. It's been a lengthy journey from a done identifying location, negotiating with the landowner and actually signing the land lease with him in early summer. In August, we had a fundraiser specifically for the purpose of funding the construction of this garden. We had. $5,000 in net profit from that fundraiser in September. We were fortunate enough to be part of Long Beach gifts and we were able to raise another $6,000 for the purpose of constructing this garden. The cost of developing a garden of this size is approximately $17,000. That includes permits. Lumber, irrigation, fencing, signage. The bulk of our financial support comes not from our active gardeners. We have 170 different. Families units who garden in our existing gardens. The bulk of our support comes from the larger community. Over the years, we've received the matching grants from Southern California Edison and the Boeing Corporation from Wells Fargo and from the Floor Corporation. Home Depot and Lowe's have provided financial as well as in-kind donations. Long Beach Organic has been the recipient of several neighborhood improvement grants, and we have received the support of the City of Long Beach, entrusting us with four garden sites we currently manage on City Park Land. The local community, these organizations and these companies believe in our mission and see us as good stewards of the land. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Honorable Mayor and council members. My name is Joe Corso. I have been garden director of Long Beach Organic for ten years now, but the organization has been around for 25 years with the simple mission of turning empty lots into organic gardens. We currently operate seven gardens in the city, providing 170 household space to grow food for their tables and to experience the joy and health benefits of gardening. In addition, we host two groups for the disabled and the children's nonprofit Adventures Two Dreams, Enrichment and an internship and volunteer program with CSU RB. We're a destination for the annual Make a Difference Day and Leadership Long Beach's Martin Luther King Day of Service. Our education program offers gardening and cooking classes to the broader community, and we recently began a kid's garden program, which will be expanding in 2020. Our gardens, they become focal points in their neighborhoods. Members get to meet each other sometimes for the first time, and an interest in gardening cuts across barriers and cuts across age, gender and ethnic lines. The proposed garden on Redondo would provide this opportunity for 20 more 24 more households on what is now a blighted mine. The demand is very high in this area, as our nearby garden, Safra Junction, has a year long waiting list, and we do plan to prioritize those who live closest, encouraging gardeners to walk or bike to the garden so we don't aggravate the parking situation. So I ask for a yes vote on this recommendation. Thank you. Thank you. Thanks. Good evening. My name is Oscar night. I live here in Long Beach. I do belong to. The Long Beach Organics. As a little girl, I was raised with my grandma and she taught me how to farm. She had a half acre. So by the time I was like seven or eight years old, I didn't even know what a kangaroo creeping was. So I share my garden with my children and also with the kids that I teach a cooking class at Saint Cyprian. It means a lot to me. I share with my neighbors who are vegetarians and vegans. They really like it. I also cook for them. So it really. Means a lot. To me and I really would like to see this go. Forward. And more land for gardeners because I do live in an apartment, so there's not a lot of area for me to do the gardening that I would like to. So being a member of Long Beach Organic, it gives me that privilege to do so and. To expand my. Gardening like. I would like to do so. So thank you for your time. Thank you. Next Speaker. Good evening, Honorable Vice Mayor and council members. My name is Tony D'Amico. I'm the vice president of Long Beach Organic District three, resident and co-director of Long Beach Fresh Local Food Policy Council. I wanted to take this opportunity to just give a little context for community gardening and urban agriculture. Sort of a quick debrief of where the city has gone in the past several years. We've seen a lot of growth in the past ten years or so thanks to leadership on this council and community efforts. There are currently 15 community gardens citywide, serving about 700 households and donating about £75,000 of produce annually. Seven of these are managed by Long Beach Organic. These figures have doubled since 2009. Around that time, the city established their first community garden policy, where community gardens were classified as open space, aiming to get gardens and large parks throughout the city. And this is wher e the requirement for the Interim Park permit was begun. This is proving to be a bit of a challenge because it's a quite an expensive, tenuous and confusing process to establish a community garden in Long Beach. You can't really see all the pipeline in one place for if you're trying to do an urban farm or community garden to understand how that might dictate your choices. And I think there's a lot of room for improvement. With Long Beach Organic, we've been shepherded through this process by development services staff, so we're grateful for that. But I don't know that like a starting group or a start up would really have the same privilege. And I would hope they would continue to work to streamline the process to make it more efficient and less affordable or more affordable for everyone to be able to thank you and thank you. Yes. Next speaker. Good evening, everyone. My name is Joanne Bentley. I live at the Cooper Arms at Linden and Ocean. It is a high rise condo complex and at the beginning of the year, one of my neighbors asked if I would like to partner with her in a community organic garden. And having spent 12 years in Las Vegas before moving out here in January, I thought, Yeah, I can grow anything there. So we have been stumbling over ourselves, growing artichokes and tomatoes and bell peppers and all kinds of peppers. And then we got another neighbor, Joe Dorn, who joined us, and he can do the hard stuff between the three of us. We're learning. And the cats have tricked us. They killed our artichokes. They thought they were

Airbnbs. So we're learning as we go day by day. And our goal, my goal. I think we can do it. There is apparently a food bank somewhere in Long Beach. People have been talking about and my ears went, okay, we can do a ten by ten. My tenant goes to the food bank. I don't know where it is, but we can grow enough food. And I drove past 914 Redondo yesterday. That place has some healthy, tall, green weeds. A lot better than we're doing over on 20th and Santa Fe. And as far as. Parking, the parking on Redondo is. Better. And we're only there for an hour because there's no bathroom. Thank you very much. Yes. Good evening. I am Misty. I live in First District support Long Beach Organic and ask the council to vote yes to permit the new garden proposed for ninth in Redondo and greeted my sixth street sixth grade schoolmate one day. He answered Diane a little bit every day. This made me mad. I knew it was true, but we were kids. And that's not what you say when a friend asks how you're doing this year, that friend and others asked me how I'm doing. More than ever I have answered Not great. And hanging in there. My reality mirrors my friends words decades ago laid off from work. Five Rent increases on a fixed income escalating violence at the neglect of the building. I have called home accidental deaths of a 14 year old nephew and within weeks an uncle on Easter Sunday, disability caused by stage four cancer. Months of debilitatin g treatment and side effects. Mental distress from all of the above unknowns within my body, mind, space and reality have become kryptonite that poisons my Virgo superpower daily. Through this Long Beach, Organic is helping me coping healing in many ways. My neighbors fellow seventh and chestnut gardeners rallying help maintain my plants, share their veggies and make me smile when I barely have the will to do so. I eat broccoli organically grown from seeds I learned I can buy with the monthly $15 I get on an event card, I retreat to the garden safe green space as violence and property destruction threaten me. Despite calls to authorities. When I joined Long Beach Organic, I was working healthy, safe and thank you and I thank you. Thank you so much. Next. Good evening. My name's Margo McCall, and I'm a Long Beach organic gardener in the area garden. And I've also been a neighbor of the Zachariah Garden for ten years. And when I was looking to buy property in Long Beach, I looked for a property close to an organic garden. And, you know, in all the years that I've lived near the garden, you know, I've never seen, you know, an increase in, you know, homeless people or, you know, vermin. So I think those fears are, you know, maybe not founded. And in regards to the parking, the gardeners, they'll show up. You know, many of them live in the neighborhood. So we'll just walk down to water our garden and that takes like ten or 15 minutes. And those that drive, they'll drive, they'll park and just stay a few minutes and then leave. So I'm not sure that, you know, it would add to the parking, but to me, the benefits are, you know, immense in regards to everyone's already mentioned, you know, building community, cutting across divides. There's also support for the pollinators, you know, bees and, you know, green space. And it's also adding to Long Beach's reputation as like a livable, progressive city. So I hope you support the additional garden because there is a waiting list. Thank you. Thank you. Next week place. Hi. My name is Patricia Davenport. I'm a 20 year Long Beach resident, and I live adjacent on the map that you just put up there on the board to the property over at 915 Newport. Hi, Suzy, good to see you again. My concern and I'm here to speak against your approval for this garden on behalf of myself and 97 other people in the immediate area who signed and submitted a petition to stop this garden. None of us has objections to community gardens in general and their ability to add to the community. We just don't feel that this is an appropriate site. This is a standard residential lot. It is not like this. Alfred Theresa Gardens, which are on a community, are community gardens on a real easement, much larger and safe interior, while it is a wonderful community garden, has not been without its issues. And I'm not talking about vermin, I'm talking about break ins and theft and vandalism. My concern on this area is it's a very small lot. And as your r epresentative pointed out, it's only 6200 square feet. And if you set out plots that are ten by ten, that's roughly the size of a white canopy. Not a lot of space to grow things in. The parking in the trash have already been brought up. There are only two access points the Alley and Redondo Avenue. Most of the business owners on Redondo Avenue would describe to you their difficulties in having parking for their customers. The alley has been a nightmare, I can tell you personally. Thank you. Fires that have happened in the last five years. Thank you. Hello. My name is Joseph Dorn and I also live at the Cooper Arms building on Ocean and Linden. Downtown Long Beach. I'm a recent I'm actually a California native. Can you hear me? Sorry, I'm not used to, Mike. First, I'd like to excuse my appearance. I'm a carpenter, and I came here not wanting to be late, so I'm a little bit humble in my appearance. I'm sorry. As a new resident of Long Beach, I'm very much for this program. I was raised by people. My grandfather, my maternal grandfather was part of the Bracero program back in the 1930s, a works project type program developed by the government. I've always had my hands in the dirt and but by living here the last few years, I didn't have a place to do that. And now I do. And I'm grateful for that. That life is blighted now, and I understand the concerns of the previous speaker. It's very real concern. But I don't believe this type of project brings any negatives to what is there now. And I think even in the short term, if we can consider putting this garden in there, maybe it sometime in the future reconsider it. But for now, this is a positive and I'd like to support it. Thank you for your time. Thank you very much. Thanks. Speaker Hi, my name's Lourdes Patrick Grayson, and I'm a resident of Miami for 36 years. I have a bachelor's in child development and I'm also a master gardener through UCLA Extension Program. I taught preschool at the Apogee CC for 12 years, teaching everything from reading and art to gardening. Through my years of gardening and teaching, I've learned many of the benefits of gardening in early childhood. However, tonight I'm here to talk to you a little bit more. My Personal Experience on the therapeutic benefits of gardening. My son was born on December 18, 2018. He was born with a very rare genetic brain disorder called Ponto cerebellar hypoplasia. It's a short. Unfortunately, my son passed away on November 2nd and I reached out to Long Beach Organics and I was fortunate enough that they were able to have a pop for me to that. I'm sorry. The garden's allowed me to be. Able to dig and pull weeds. And have a place to go to where I'm upset. But, you know, I have community. Gardeners and friends. And a place where I can just remember him and be happy. So please remember that gardening is not just about food and community, it's also about their peace as well. Thank you. Thank you. Thanks. Here. Hi. My name is Jacqueline Case and I am here to support when everybody is here is for Lomita Organics. And I hope too that you can actually reach out to the animal shelter as well. If if animals become an issue, that communities can work together and we can support not only the the actual Long Beach Organics, but also make sure that stray cats or any animals that can impede the the gardens that we can work in tandem together. Thank you. Next Speaker. Good evening. My name is Dee Johnson and I am a Long Beach Organic Gardener. I'm alumni also from Cal State, Long Beach and I have been in separate garden for. Over 16 or 17 years. Since its start. It has been extremely. Therapeutic. I find it to be a growth factor for learning about composting, about holistic eating. Health, good health, organics, care of bees, care of orchards, care of soil. Also, there have been quite a few children. That have been raised or have participated in the garden. Those children have been growing around us, and you can see how eager they are to come to the garden, roam the garden, learn about planting, learn about growing, seed care, etc.. So I just wanted to say tonight that I would like the Long Beach City Council to. Continue to support Long Beach Organic and. All the neighboring gardens. Thank you. Next speaker. Hi. My name is Ashley and I live on 909 Newport, which actually backs up to this vacant lot that is currently there. I think what I would just like for you to consider is we've had a lot of discussion about the community garden and obviously all the assets that it brings, and that is undisputable. But we haven't talked a lot about the location of this particular place. And I can tell you that vermin homelessness is a massive problem in that area and especially with an enclosed space. I had an enclosed I have an enclosed space with my friends and I've had people try to live there, homeless people living there, look through my fences backyard so that there's no dispute that the gardening is an absolutely great addition to our community. But I'd really, really appreciate if you could consider this location the lot on Redondo, a busy street. And again, there's a big problem with the homelessness and alley and tons of rodents. So thank you. Thank you. Next speaker. Thank you. My name is Jose Jenniskens. I am an original gardener at the Zahran Zakariya. Junction Garden Farm. Originally the Wild. Oats Gardens there on 10th. And Grand. My husband and I. Garden there since 2004. We were also both on the. Board of Long. Beach Organic for a period of. Time. My husband Spencer. Was the president for a while while we were on the board. We had the great. Fortune to usher in. The Wrigley. Garden, which was on. 20th and Pacific, I believe, which is. Similar. It was mixed use, quite a bit of commercial there. And when Long Beach Organic took that lot over, it was a mess and it. Was filled with. Weeds, it was filled with trash. And the neighborhood, I think, was at first a little bit suspicious about it, but very q uickly came to embrace the garden. It became a haven for people in the neighborhood. It became a gathering place for people in the neighborhood. It was beautiful. It provided a place, a place. For local residents to. Garden. And to meet their neighbors. And it was it was a sad day when the landowner decided that she needed to sell and we had to give that garden up. I just wanted to also point out that both the police and the fire department were appreciative of the fact that it was in use and being watched. Thank you. Thank you very much. This is the last speaker I'm looking. My name is. Not you, the young man. You're the loudspeaker. Okay. Go ahead. My name is Susan Pound. My address is 908 Redondo Avenue, which is right next to 914. And I'm against this neighborhood garden. I have lived in this neighborhood for more than 30 years. I have seen the amount of rodents and homeless people in this neighborhood and the like escalate to the point is no longer acceptable for a safe and healthy neighborhood. Transient people walk through the alley, digging through trash cans, turning the trash cans over, leaving trash over the alley, ruin subtracted it is trash. Cars are vandalized as well as garages in the alley, the commercial garden with its growing food to attract these homeless people and rodents, as well as more homeless people and rodents. And we really have here this commercial garden will create a place for these drones to come, to feed, to breed and to multiply. What is the commercial garden's plan to contain this problem? Okay. And people are saying that parking is okay in this neighborhood. I have witnessed this point now where I have to walk as many as five blocks away to park at times and whatever the weather is raining or nice, I have to walk home in the dark. And if I'm alone neighborhood so far away from my home in the dark. If I arrive after 5 p.m., there's often no parking, even five blocks away. Other streets close by, such as Newport, have the same problem. When I'm walking home from parking, I've seen people riding bicycles in the street, tossing the handles on cars, trying to break into them. Will there be more of these bicycle riders attracted to commercial garden? For whatever reasons, this neighborhood cannot support any more cars at all. Even if one person from the commercial garden has to park on Redondo Avenue, it will displace a person who lives in this neighborhood from parking their car, let alone all the vehicles who will need to park from the demolition program and construction of this pool and this garden, this commercial garden is supposed to have the effect of increasing perceptions of neighborhood safety. Thank you. Thank you very much. Can I just say something? The police have not been able to control these problems in the neighborhood. So why should a commercial garden be able to make it safer? Thanks, Mika. Hi. My name is Raj. Where actually, I mean, owning businesses over. 18 years in Long Beach in the same. Sec tor on the corner. I love the idea of the gardening. And I support all the. Nonprofit. Organizations. In Long Beach and they meet at one of my restaurants right now where we get what I. Have right now to ask is we have a lot of vandalism, no parking. And a couple of the people here who spoke for the project. Know they've been living in the neighborhood for a long time and they knew that there's. No parking lot of vandalism, homelessness, if you guys are going to take care of that situation. And I have no issues with that. So I recommend seriously think about before you guys put a. A. Garden in the location. Just take care of that first and then go from there. Thank you. Thank you. Now, I would like to go behind the glasses. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. So just a couple of questions. I want to thank everyone who came out tonight, but for our and Nick, wonderful job. Is this your first city council presentation? Well, yes. You killed it. It was awesome. Nice job. So can you tell me a little bit about the parking on Redondo itself, if you know. Is there public parking on Redondo? So on. Redondo There is public parking a limited amount. It's a free for all. And of course on the. Site there is nothing there at the moment. So people would have to park on the on street parking. Correct. And there are I notice in looking through the proposed permit that there are maintenance standards and trash standards, lots of conditions there that have to be complied with by the operator. True. That is correct. And do we retain would the city retain the right to revoke the permit if the conditions were not complied with? Councilmember Christopher comments. So yes, like any other entitlement or. Permit, we retain the ability to revoke. We would need to make a finding of fact and provide the applicant some due process. But at the end of the day we have the ability to seek them to correct. And if they don't correct to revoke the permit. Okay, great. Well, this this property has been vacant for many years. I want to say at least four years that I'm aware of. We've received complaints, a lot of complaints regarding the maintenance or lack thereof of the property as it currently stands. And so for years, we've tried to work through code enforcement, I know, to try to address some of the concerns, I'm sure, of those who live adjacent to the property. And, you know, while I understand the concerns of those who live around this proposed site and some of the fears that you have about maintenance and access. I'm supportive of this permit and I'm going to be supporting it tonight. And

parking, security risks or maintenance. I think this is a really great opportunity for us to be able to take this vacant, blighted property and turn it into something positive. I also know that I'm happy to hear that you had a robust fundraising effort. The third council district is also going to give you guys 20 $500 towards your efforts. So we want to support you. And we also want to be able to have our interns involved in sustainability projects. So my office I'm going to ask you guys to send me an email tomorrow, if you wouldn't mind, so that I can be in personal contact with you. We can talk about how that relationship might work, because I think it's a great opportunity for our students at Cal State Long Beach to get to see how sustainability works and this whole concept of the community coming together. So, you know, a couple of times a year we can bring them there, maybe even have a third district plot where we can grow, grow some things and share with the community. But we would love to be engaged on that level. When I was a student at Cal State Long Beach, we did have a community garden right there at Bellflower where now sits vacant area. And really I couldn't agree more with everyone here in regards to the benefits of a community garden and I support it. I will say that as a council member, it's very difficult to have a community garden built in your district because of all the reasons and concerns that some of the residents raised. Sometimes community gardens are not maintained as well as the ones that Long Beach Organics is maintaining. And for me, that was a pivotal decision making point in terms of who's going to be involved in helping maintain this community garden. Because sometimes when those conditions are not followed, then it looks even more blighted than it did when it was a vacant lot. So I know that we have good partners, and because you operate them throughout the city and the city has chosen you as a partner on other occasions. And so I'm grateful for this opportunity. I do ask the residents who live near there to please keep me in the loop. We want to make sure this is not a detrimental impact on you. And a lot of that is speculation, right? So that's one of the things where we implement something. We need to watch it and monitor it. And I ask everyone to partner with us on doing so. Yes, Mrs. Spears. Okay. All right. Okay. Ms.. Longo. Thank you. I want to tell everyone how proud I am of you for taking this big step. I am not a green thumb person. Inside my house is all silk plants. However, when I became a councilperson, I had always admired the community garden in my neighborhood, and I was strongly encouraged by my neighbors to take a chance and try. There was a comment made that a ten by ten plot doesn't produce very much. Once you have a ten by ten plot, you will feed your entire block spinach, tomatoes, squash the size of cantaloupes if you'd like, or watermelons if you get out of control. The comm unity garden that I belong to donates £50,000 of vegetables to the homeless community and to the soup kitchens. And I think that talking through and I don't know a lot about this particular community garden, but I'm just going to say a couple of things. The entire city has vermin issues. Not nearly what some of the bigger cities in L.A. County have. But within the garden, when you have an active group of people, they watch for and support and trap and help control the garden as long as it's within state guidelines. And so, again, working with animal control is key. Parking during the year will probably not be a problem. But for your leadership of this garden to talk about your planting deadlines for spring and winter, that's what a majority of the cars arrive to do. Their planting maintenance throughout is going to be very, very light. And the turnover of cars and walking of people to and from the community garden reduces the number of people experiencing homelessness in the area and the mischief that goes on. Because when you have someone who goes into a facility for, let's say, a dental appointment, people know that those cars are left unattended for a longer period of time. A community garden has no designation. Any criminal who's watching can't tell if you're going for 10 minutes to water or an hour and a half to tend to your garden. And so it actually has a turnover and a security that at least in our community garden area, we have almost no homeless issue. The areas around us that are not as widely monitored do. But they don't have the same opportunities. I want to comment and support the comments related to therapy. We have a lot of individuals in our garden who use gardening for therapy. We also have a lot of elderly individuals who it keeps them active and coming out. And so this is more than just vegetables. It's a bigger opportunity. And so for many of those reasons, I'm very, very supportive. You talk about trying to get rid of crime or trying to get rid of elements that you're not familiar with. There is nothing that works better than activation. You could never hire enough police officers to compensate for activation unless you had 24 hour police coverage standing on site. And still, sometimes that would be less productive than activation. And so I'm here to support. We've had a lot of lessons learned in our 65 years as a community garden. I don't know all those lessons, but there are people that are willing to help out. There are also many successful gardens under Long Beach organic, and I hope that one day, while there have been occasions over the last three years where many of the gardeners from multiple gardens have gotten together. I hope that we grow that and flourish it even more as more gardens come up. So thank you for working so hard on this, Councilwoman. It is very difficult to activate a space like this and it takes a considerable amount of work. And Suzy and her staff deserve a big vote of gratitude. Thank you

u. Yes, thank you very much. And with that, please cast your vote. Motion carries. We go back to item seven. Item seven is on the consent calendar. Would you like item? Item 17, please. Actually we're going to do item 31, I'm sorry, 31/1. Item 31 is communication from Vice Mayor Andrews, Chair of the Personnel and Civil Service Committee. Recommendation to receive Charter Commission appointments approved by the Personnel and Civil Service Committee. I thank you. I'd like to turn it over to the mayor. Thank you. We have two appointments today for our charter commission appointments. And I want to thank both of them for serving being appointed tonight to the Planning Commission. Is it Dr. Johnnie Ricks O.D.? Dr. Johnnie Ricks, O.D. is a resident of District nine and is at the University of California. Irvine, is a director of Statistical Consulting, where she sees overall oversees general operations and strategic planning for the center and for UCI. She is currently serving as Vice President for the DeForest Park Neighborhood Association, the Long Beach Area Sierra Club, and is currently on the PCC as one of our commissioners. So let's give Dr. Rex O'Day a round of applause and thank her. And our second appointment commission appointment tonight to the Parks and Recreation Commission is to Holanda Chico Her Linda Chico Irlanda Chico currently serves as the field deputy for supervisor Janice Hahn, where she serves the cities of Avalon, Catalina Signal Hill and of course, Long Beach. She has 20 years of legislative and public affairs experience and is a District four resident and is an active member of many boards and organizations in the city. So we can give both of these women a big round of applause. There are charter commission appointments which. So there's no public comment on this. And so with that, I'm going to have us take a vote on the charter commission items first. Councilmember Richardson. Watching. Carrie. Thank you very much. And thank you for coming out, everyone, and congratulations to every one of you. Now we're going to move on to our first hearing. Could you please? Item 21. I'm 21 report from Financial Management Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and grant an entertainment permit with conditions on the application of Queen Mary at 1126 Queen's Highway for Entertainment with dancing for on ship events only District two. This does require an oath. Yes. Yes. I'm recusing myself for doing business with Dan Zadrozny. Thank you. Thank you. Those who wish to give testimony, please stand and raise your right hand. You in each of you do solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the court now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God. Presenting this staff report is Bret Jacobs, Business Services Officer. Good evening, honorable mayor and members of the city council. Tonight you have before you an applic ation for entertainment with dancing for e t q MLB LLC Doing Business as Queen Mary. Located at 1126 Queens Highway. Operating as a hotel in Council District two. This application before you tonight is for on ship entertainment only and does not include entertainment in the publicly owned events park, which requires a special event permit from the Office of Special Events and filming. The Queen Mary is owned by the city of Long Beach and is currently leased to Urban Commons. Queensway LLC. Urban Commons. The entertainment permit previously held by urban comments was withdrawn and a new permit application was submitted in May of 2018 under the related entity. T Q MLB LLC as a new limited liability company composed of the same members as urban Commons. All of the necessary departments have reviewed the application and have provided their recommended conditions as contained in the hearing packet, as well as the police department stand ready to answer any questions Council may have. And that concludes staff's report. So if it's okay. So I have a couple questions on this. Do we know why the name change and how this came to be? I am not aware of the reasoning behind the name change. I just am aware that we received new applications and a request to withdraw the previous permit and apply it under the new ownership that is related to Urban Commons LLC. To Councilmember, I'll take a shot at it. I believe this is part of the restructuring of urban commons. The properties of the Queen Mary was joined with a whole bunch of other properties throughout the the world actually into what's called a real estate investment trust. And that is that legal entity is called Eagle Hospitality. And so they will now have the entertainment permit. And do we know when the effective date of the name change was in terms of when the documents were legally filed to change the name? Hmm. That was a couple of months ago, I believe. Thank you. This is Sun-Times. Know. You're okay with that? All right. Okay. Any public comment on this item? So, you know. There's no public comments on this item. Fine. Okay, fine. Please cast your vote in. Bush and Kerry's. And we will move to our second unit. Vice mayor. The second hearing can't be started until after 630. So we can go to the first item on the regular agenda. When you do public comment. You could do public comment at this time. Now we're going to move to item 23. Item 23 is a report from Development Services recommendation to declare ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to short term rentals. Read the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading and adopt a resolution to submit the ordinance amendments to the California Coastal Commission citywide. Why could we? Are we ready? Okay, fine. Kind of spend quiet to please. Yes. Thank you. I would. So I'm the crazy lady that brought forward this item several years back. And the intense with bringing this item forward at that time was really to make sure that the city was being proactive and thoughtful about how short term rentals operated in our city. We know that we do have a housing crisis. We know that we are also a city, that tourism is growing. And we find ourselves really trying to make sure that we create a policy that is thoughtful and mindful of both of these. Tonight, I know that there's going to be a lot of discussion behind the dias. I would like to hear from staff a clear report. I'd like to hear from community members. And I've got several motions that we'll be talking about back here. Some of the key items for me are making sure that we find the right number, making sure that we have enforcement that has teeth. Making sure that we have requirements on the platforms and that there's a process in place. So with that, I'd like to hear from staff and yes, thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Yes, we do have a fairly detailed staff report. As you have laid out. This has been a long process with a lot of community outreach and we had very well-attended community meetings with many engaged people on both sides of the issue. We have also we were at the council in 2019 and and really walk through a lot of the details that were coming out of that community process and got direction from council to basically come back with the ordinance and do all the environmental work. So we brought that back to you in December, at which point the council asked us to do take a little bit more time, and that's why we're here tonight. And so with this, I will turn over the presentation to our Development Services Department. The presentation will be led by Charles Staver from Development Services. All right. Good evening, members of council. This brief presentation is to highlight some of the key elements of the draft ordinance. Since our last discussion. Or some background. In 2017, the City Council requested a review of STR regulations and other municipalities and staff provided initial feedback and recommended hiring a consultant to do more thorough study. In 2017, we held several community outreach events and conducted an online survey. Did some case study research and presented our findings and recommendations for an ordinance which would allow for limited staffers in Long Beach. Following that discussion in 2019. Staff provided additional research on several topics at the request of council, developed a phased implementation plan, executed a voluntary tax collection agreement with Airbnb, prepared and circulated the secret documentation, met with host platforms and housing advocates, and ultimately drafted an ordinance regulating short term rentals for your consideration tonight. So here is a high level look at some of the key elements of the ordinance. It establishes a revocable city registration process, protects the housing stock by limiting the number of staffers citywide to 1% of housing stock promotes partnerships between the city and hosting platforms, improves safe ty, fosters good neighbor environments, and a registered store operator is allowed up to two non primary residence staffers with no limit on Unhosted stays and is also allowed up to 90 days. Unhosted stays in a primary residence. So a primary residence STR is defined as the unit where the host resides at least 275 nights per year. And during that time any guest stays are considered hosted and there is no limit on hosted stays that would only leave 90 days per year in which that unit would be unhosted. Now, since permanent Long Beach residency is not required to operate an STR, an operator is not required to host in their primary residence and may choose to operate only a non primary residence. STR It's important to note that this slide represents the maximum number of stars allowed per operator, but the majority of STR operators in Long Beach actually only operate one unit. So just as an example, if I live in Long Beach for six months of the year and wanted to rent that unit the remaining six months as a short term rental unhosted that would be allowed as a non primary residence STR. Now this slide show is what we had intended to accomplish with the ordinance by allowing stores and accessory dwelling units, which was in line with the majority of community feedback. But before we get too attached. Effective January 1st, 2020. New State Law Assembly bills 68 and 81 prohibit short term rentals and accessory dwelling units. So this is new information to us. This is our new reality. This law does not affect duplexes. So in this slide, as an example, if the operator resides in either one of the duplex units, which would be the bottom right, they would still be able to operate the other unit as an STR. So for multifamily developments, the number of units that can be operated as a non primary residence star has been limited to avoid situations like ghost hotels, where entire apartment buildings essentially become de facto hotels. So for example, in a multi-family dwelling unit with 2 to 10 units, the city would allow up to one non primary residence STR or 11 to 50 units. We would allow up to 10% or 51 to 100 units. We would allow up to 12%. And for 101 or more units, the city would allow up to 15% of the units to be operated as a non primary STR. And also an apartment owner or homeowners association can notify the city that stars are not allowed in their buildings. And in that situation, the city would not approve any SDR registrations in that development. So this screen is just a visual representation of the previous slide. The darker blue units would be representing the non primary units that we would allow as short term rentals. Petition to prohibit Unhosted staffers throughout the community outreach process. There was a push for including some sort of neighborhood based opt out process to prohibit Unhosted staffers in certain neighborhoods. Although this is not a common provision in other cities, some Long Beach residents presented compelling argumen ts for including this option. The way it would work is at least two thirds of the property owners must sign a petition to prohibit Unhosted stays. If approved, the city would provide notice of a restriction to all residential property owners in the affected census tract, and the restriction would remain, in effect uncontested for the first three years, at which point the restriction could be lifted by a similar two thirds petition process. City registration and annual fee will be required. A city issued registration number valid for one year would be renewed on an annual basis. The city registration number must be included in all advertisements and listings, and a citywide registration cap of 1% of the city's housing stock would be allowed as non primary residence staffers. The size of the city's housing stock is based on demographic reports posted on the California Department of Finance website and updated annually. As of January 2019. The housing stock of Long Beach was 177,378 housing units. So the city would only issue STR registrations for up to 773 units. In September of 2019, the registration fee was set at $250 per registration per year for the current fiscal year. Here are a list of some basic regulations, such as the transient occupancy tax applies. Occupancy will be limited to two guests per bedroom, plus two with a maximum of ten staffers will be prohibited and restricted affordable housing units , dormitories and 80 youths. A landlord consent form required if unit is subject to a rental agreement. SDR limited event permit. This would be a new permit for the city. It would allow hosts to accommodate guests in excess of the ten person maximum for up to 624 hour periods per year. Most would be required to notify all neighbors ten days in advance of the events and outdoor quiet hours from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. would still apply. Lessons learned from other cities and municipalities that have established STR regulations is that in order for the program to be successful, you really do need the cooperation of the hosting platforms , particularly for removing listings that have not registered or have had their registrations revoked. So the hosting platform responsibilities include hosting platforms cannot complete any booking transactions for an STR if notified by the city that a valid ACR registration number has not been issued to the operator. Platforms shall remove any listings upon notification from the city and the requirement to provide some pretty basic information on their bookings reported on a monthly basis. In addition to working with the hosting platforms, enforcement of the regulations is key to a successful program. Violations will be subject to a $1,000 fine per day, except a 30 day warning period would be provided for advertising a store without a valid registration upon issuance of three fines, the ACR registration may be revoked. Violations include, but are not limited to failure of the local contact to take action to a complain t within one hour. Completing a booking transaction without a valid, valid city issued registration number. Violations of STR maximum occupancy conduct or activity that constitute a public nuisance. And the ordinance also establishes a mechanism to revoke registrations of individual bad actors. These are some common themes we've been hearing lately. The residents continue to voice concerns over party houses, and the way this ordinance addresses that is establishing the maximum occupancy restriction and the creation of the new STR limited event permit, property owner and consent and liability. The verification of property owner consent would be dealt with in an administrative process. Part of the implementation program and some hosting platforms have expressed resistance to data sharing language in the ordinance, and we believe that the language is consistent with the recent court rulings and stand by it. And some requested language changes to strengthen platform accountability. Kind of the opposite of the previous one. And thus we believe that the existing language is legally robust and they recommend leaving it. To operate within the adopted fiscal year, 20 budget staff was tasked with developing a delayed or phased implementation plan. That plan looks like this. The ordinance takes effect 181 days after adoption, and the initial registration period begins then during the 181 day program. Program materials will be developed and enforcement begins 180 days after the initial registration period and one year after enforcement begins. Staff will report back to council with data on program operations, and at that time we can make changes as needed. So next steps pending council decision tonight would be to adopt an ordinance amending Title 21 of the Limited Municipal Code segment, the local Coastal Program Amendments to California Coastal Commission for approval. Develop implementation guidelines with input from stakeholders. This concludes our presentation. We are happy to answer questions. Fine. Mrs. Janine. Yes. I've already said what I want to say before public comment, but I think I'm somewhat surprised that you want to. Make any comments. Sure, I'm anxious to hear from the public tonight as well. I represent, obviously part of the city that is a very popular area for home sharing platforms and home sharing opportunities. And so I know I have a lot of residents here tonight. You don't all have to speak. I want you. You're welcome to. But can I? Can the third district residents stand up so we can get a sense of who's here from the third district? Okay. So let me just tell you that in the six years I've been on council, I've never had this many residents be interested in coming to a council meeting. So thank you for being here. You may be seated, but I do want to share that as a result of the input you all have provided me on all aspects of this issue, I have some concerns regarding scars. I raised those initially, and I'm grateful that staff was able to incorporate some of the amendments that I proposed originally when this came forth. And I expect that in collaboration with my colleague, Council Member Pearce will be able to hopefully get to a place where quality of life impacts housing stock and the ability to home share are all viewed in the totality and we come to a resolution that will hopefully meet our goals and needs with all of those categories. So when I remove the sign, we have over 80 speakers. So we're going to kind of cut this down to one minute if it's okay with my colleagues. One minute, please. You know my colleagues. 30 seconds. Could we do that? Can we do 90 for the first ten? Just a minute is hard. Let's just very technically ask. Let's vote on it. You guys want to do a minute? I would. Please raise your hand. I do want to do a minute. Okay. Yeah. One, two, three, four. But I. Minute or three. It was proposing 90 seconds for the first ten and a minute after that. I asked one how many would like to do? One minute, please raise your hand. One, two, three, four, five. Okay, we have a majority vote. So now would you please call the names? We have the first five line up at the podium. When coming up to the podium, please state your name for the record. Jeremy Arnold Tung. Q. Jeremy and as Jim Samuel and Victor Sanchez. Jeremy Arnell. Thank you, Jerry. And as Jim Samuel and Victor Sanchez. Thank you. Jeremy Arnold, Unitarian Universalist Church member and resident of District one. There are many problems with the ordinance as proposed as it's as I see it, and it's sort of hard to know where to begin. But I'm here to express a deep commitment to a 500 unit cap is incredibly important if we're going to protect our affordable housing stock here in Long Beach. And with 30 seconds left, I'd just like to offer, you know, the example of New Orleans, where I lived before I moved here to Long Beach rules that they went into effect on December 1st, limited short term rentals in residential areas to owner occupied properties only in place, caps on rentals in commercial and mixed use buildings and a ban them outright in most of the French Quarter in the entire Garden District. So Long Beach and we should be leading on responsible tourism. It should be leading on housing. And really, cities like New Orleans are looking in the rearview mirror. Thank you. In the dust. And if you find yourself by yourself, I want you have say I said one minute, you have 54 seconds. You can leave that other to someone else, except you can yell or swim in 3 seconds to someone else. Right. Hello. My name is Janice and I've been a resident of Long Beach in the third district for over 30 years. And I support the short term rentals and the vacation rentals in this whole process that we've taken to get to this point. And I've read the proposed ordinance in detail, and I would like to make one point that I'm strongly against the opt out ban through census tract petition process. I think it's a very challenging to enforce and it pits neighbors against each other. And then I would submit, where do you stop that? Other ordinances could then say, I don't like this, let's do this. And then you've got the community itself ruling instead of the council in the mayor. And so with that, thank you. 15. It's too late. Go ahead. Hi there. My name is Jim Samuel and from District three and I've grown up in Long Beach and I'm enables island resident in currently renovating my duplex home. It's been it's going to be my retirement home that I wish to share with my family friends along with visitors who would love to see Belmont Shore and the whole Long Beach entire area agreed that the short term rental industry should be regulated but with limits. Although I would be a. Host owner, I oppose the opt out provision as it pits. Neighbors against neighbors. People living in. A particular sense of track should not have the ability to regulate other homeowners. Sharing my property as a short term rental will bring more tax dollars to the city. This is with the transit resident occupancy tax people spending money in local restaurants. Businesses and entertainment venues such as the Queen Mary Cream of the Pacific. Just to name a few. Please vote no on the opt out portion. Thank you very much. Next year. Thank you. Victor Sanchez of the Long Beach Coalition for Good Jobs in a Healthy Community. This item, if it's voted the way that it is, it would put financial interests of short term rentals over that of long term tenants. And we urge you not to do that. I want to focus on three things. One, the total units a host should be able to put on to the short term rental side should be no more than two one primary, one non primary. It's hard to believe that someone who owns three properties will still need to make additional income on the side to make ends meet, especially when they can have long term tenants in those units and still make a fair return. Two We need to have a hard cap of 500 for non primary units. Non primary units are what impact the housing market. Most in percentage is dangerous because it legislates an annual increase. If we assume that the city of Long Beach will build more housing, which it must. And three we want a reasonable and accessible opt out mechanism for neighborhoods. 50% plus one to property owners in a given census tract is reasonable when you take into consideration the thousands of property owners that exist in one census tract. And if a community wants to change that in 2 to 3 years, they should be able to because there should also be a 180 day rolling petitioning period. Please do not vote to cannibalize existing housing stock, especially after we voted down a bond that would have built more affordable housing here in the city of one. Thank you. Is tongue qi here. So the next five, please line up. John Choi. Q Jamari is Susan Morales, Ofelia Gonzalez and Myron Wolin. John Choi. Q Jamari hey, Susan Morales, Ofelia Gonzalez and Myron Wolin. Great. J ohn Choi, policy manager for Airbnb. Thank you so much for the opportunity to move forward with regulations. Airbnb is excited to partner with the City of Long Beach on reasonable regulations. Just a couple of notes for me. In April of last year, we entered into a tax collection agreement, and in the short eight months since that agreement took effect, we have remitted to nearly $2 million in new taxes. Excuse me. I'm sorry to interrupt you. Is it possible, Mr. Vice Mayor, that we can ask the audience to be respectful of all speakers? I don't appreciate the hissing. Everyone deserves a right to speak here. Thank you. Could you guys please follow those lines of what is, of course, out of total respect? Please, you guys. We asked you back. Thank you. Go ahead. So you have another minute. Okay. Thank you. Thank you, counsel. So, as of April 2019, we have remitted in the eight months since through November of last year, we have remitted nearly $2 million in new taxes to the city of Long Beach, which can be used for incredibly important public services. Our model is also something that empowers local Long Beach residents. Hosts keep 97% of the proceeds and the 93% of our hosts direct guests that visit Long Beach to local small businesses helping to grow that tax base as well. I wanted to state on the record that Airbnb is committed to supporting the city's enforcement scheme. We've been working closely with the staff. It has been a very productive conversation to take the lessons that we've learned from what has worked in other cities and what has not worked in other cities, and bring that to ensure high levels of compliance here in Long Beach and wanted to urge this Council to support the staff recommendation. We feel that it is a reasonable balance between protecting housing, ensuring quality of life and supporting economic growth in the tourism economy here in Long Beach. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next we go. Good evening, counsel. My name is Pastor Q. I live here in Long Beach, past the D church when I was in Skid Row. And I've seen. People fluctuate from Long Beach to Skid Row. I've seen some of. My folks in Skid Row here in Long Beach. We know that we haven't had a housing crisis. We know that speculators drive up cost. Is this this city? Many of our people, especially people of color. As it relates to the numbers, you look at the national numbers, 40% of the folks who are homeless in the nation, black in the state black. I mean, we say in L.A. that how homelessness is a racial justice issue. So when we look at what's happening here is that we have already displaced people out of this city. We're not talking about protecting housing. They're already gone. People are already gone. Thank you. Thanks, Miguel. Hi. My name is. Susan Morales and I'm here on behalf of United Here Local 11. I have held my job as a banquet captain for the Long Beach Convention Center for the last 17 years. I plan on doing so for many years to come. It is your respo nsibility to protect our housing and the thousands of workers that are serving this city by adopting an ordinance that has strong enforcement and overseeing and protecting our housing. In your excitement to encourage our new tourism, please do not forget about the workers that have made the Long Beach special. Thank you, guys. Thank you. Next week. I'll be providing translation. Yes. Oh, let me know. Yeah. So you, me and brother unite a local basilica service. Servicio Elementals. Hello. My name's. Ofelia Gonzalez. I'm a member of Unite Here Local 11. The union represents. Hotel workers and food service workers. In my hotel durante dos Santos the long way. And I worked at the Hotel Maya for two years and I lived in Long Beach for 19 years. So the California thing in the event that my colleagues. Southern California is in metal in the middle of a horrible housing crisis. Musical legacy. Your animals. They need a piano. In concert with us. But can't they see as. Long as more efficient? My coworkers and I have had to move aside in finding vacant and accessible and affordable housing in Long Beach is very difficult. Let us have an alternate you, Ms.. Massey. Short term rentals have not made this easier. Last year, though, I kept ribbon la police and my solider. Possibly. We pride. Ourselves. In peace. I urge you to pass the strongest possible policy today to save our future generations. Thank you. And Speaker Excuse me, sir. Before you get started, can we call the next rabbi, please? We have Tom Todd Thurman and Evans Goldstein, Karen Resi and Nadia Tushnet. You please come up in line and line up at the podium, please. What's. Sir? Hello, I'm Myron. Woman I'm president of Long Beach. Great grandmothers, and I'm speaking here as a member of Clue Clergy in Lady United for Economic Justice. Basically, short term rentals eat up housing stock at the expense of long term tenants. We are in a housing crunch and we need all the units we can get to keep our housing prices down. We cannot allow short term rentals to grow at the expense of long term tenants. Especially we were in the middle of a housing affordability crisis. You all said you were in favor of affordable housing, short term rentals, remove housing for transients, not Long Beach residents. We should worry about housing needs of Long Beach residents. Long Beach is behind on our affordable housing goals. We need to be building more housing, not allowing our housing stock to disappear, to be used for short term rentals. Short term rentals can incentivize homeowners. Thank you, sir. One. Yes. Good evening. My name is Anna Evans Goldstein and I'm a researcher with Unite Here Local 11. I'm encouraging you to pass a stronger short term rental ordinance than is currently proposed by staff. Long Beach is behind on its housing goals. The most recent report Long Beach submitted to the state was behind by almost 5500 units just in the permitting process, let alone being built. This is even before the new aren a goals. We can't afford to. Be scaling up, taking units off the market as they're. Being built. Long Beach was ranked third worst in the nation when it comes to rental affordability. We must address the conversion of vital housing units into de facto hotels by creating a strong short term rental policy. Today, our region is at a crucial turning point that will either see the increasing numbers of residents priced out of their apartments, unable to stay in the communities that they have lived for years. Or cities will take a stand in comprehensively regulating a market that was originally intended to be a home sharing industry. In that spirit, please be intentional today about your decision and do not take a light touch with this. Thank you. Karen Reside, resident of the First District in a proud Long Beach Gray Panther. One Airbnb site has over 1500. Units registered for. Rent. I mean, we don't even have an ordinance yet. If you figure there's to be at least two people, that's 3000 people are not housed and we don't even have an ordinance yet. We need to have really strong protections if we are going to do. This and really limit the the units that are able to do this. I mean, when I was growing up. Students from Cal State Long Beach used to rent houses down in Belmont Shore, and they would have six students in a house. That option is not available to our students anymore. The majority of this Airbnb. Is managed by corporate interests, 80% not. Local residents. So who do we want telling us how our city should be? Out of the area. Corporations like the Blackstone in the Phenix. Thank you. Much. You push 1/2, call the other. You can go ten now. Just call 1/2 this week. Todd Irvin. Doug Domingo for US Day. Anna Christianson, Pete Marsh, Sydney Clancy and Max Norris. Doug Domingo and I Christenson, Pete Marsh, Cindy Kennedy and Max Norris. Winslow. Okay. My name is Nader Tushnet, and I've been living in the third district for 30 years. This month, it's 30 years. It's the longest I've lived anywhere in my life. I want to speak about two things. One is the quality of life in neighborhoods. Many residents in and around Long Beach never signed up to live near a de facto hotel. And two, a phase. We all talk about parking all the time, the parking pressures and the added noise pollution. I live in a townhouse and if when there is a party going on anywhere on my block, I know it forever. And these short term rentals that become party houses must make people crazy. And I also want to point out many of those are, in fact, the corporate. Owned partner. Rental units. They are not owner occupied or anything like that. And I'm done. Thank you. Okay. I'm Doug Domingo for a stay and I am past president of the CFA. Thank you. City Council Mr. Andrews has left. First of all, compliments to the city development staff for the excellent report. We all know the problems of stars throughout Southern California. Even in non-prime neighborhoods like Long Beach, we've seen t he deterioration of neighborhoods, the increase in rents and loss of housing stock. Three things I'll point out. One. 1700 units is way too much. That's going to impact the entire city. Second of all, neighborhoods should be allowed to opt out at a 50 plus one amount. And third. This is not about sharing primary residences. This is about corporations who are buying up Long Beach housing and hurting our housing stock. Thank you very much. Or. I don't know. And of course, Hanson. Yeah. Anna Christensen, resident of the third District, are in discussing this proposition this week. I have a friend whose sister was evicted from her apartment house. It was entirely converted to short term rentals. And I have a tenant. Her friend was evicted. I think that. Short term rentals can operate in a city, but we have to preserve available housing in livable neighborhoods. We have to support the right of homeowners to make a reasonable profit from their owner occupied properties, but prevent large scale conversion of commercial rental properties to residential units. Protect our neighborhoods from becoming destinations for tourists who have no investment in our community culture. And I would like to say that. Remember how much you hesitated to even consider. A bond to provide affordable housing. Two weeks ago. Thank you so much. Don't be afraid to hesitate. Tonight, please. We have Pete Marsh and Cindy can for you and then Max Norris, please. Good evening, council staff, citizens. Pete Marsh I'm moving to Long Beach from Redding right now and bringing my small business here. We're in escrow for a house in second district with a duplex. It was kind of a surprise. Not exactly, not what we were looking for, but we would like to have the flexibility to do either long term or short term rentals. I hear the good arguments about housing stock. You have a reasonable protection in the bill that I heard that I heard earlier against the corporate mass ownership. I think that's good. I and essentially, I think a reasonable STR ordinance that allows a peer to peer economy, such as we see in cars and in the gig economy and jobs, is important. Thank you. I'm doing. Can I get those 30 seconds on? My name is that. I came from a sixth district resident. I grew up in 90806 zip code where the average income is $20,000. The needs of my community are much different than 90803, where the average income is over $120,000. You know, living in an area where 80% of people are renters, it's going to impact this. It's things like this impact that's way more than, you know, other parts of the city. So other parts of the city have different needs. I think for areas such as mine, there should be some kind of means cap, there should be some kind of median income cap so that if the area is has a certain lower income, then there should be a shorter amount of rentals available for for starters, an issue that I have is that I think that maybe there's I'm okay with people renting out the duplex of th their home, their primary home. But I think it's a bit excessive to have so many extra properties to be doing the short term rentals. So I hope this is made stronger. Thank you. 1/2, please. You. Would you like to call the rest of the next five? Elsa tongue. Manuela martinez. Catherine Lavoisier. Jean Young and Maria de Soto. Okay. Thank you. You may proceed, sir. Thank you, counsel. My name is Max Norris, resident of District One. I'm here today to speak to the housing crisis. And this bill, this ordinance, rather, should have an opt out at 50 plus 1% and cap it at the very most 500 units. We heard the speaker tonight talking about over 1500 units taken off the market by Airbnb right now. This is unacceptable. And people are sleeping on the streets right outside of this building in our parks, around the community. I understand that people have investments tied up in this, but honestly, I don't care. And I don't think that the majority of the city cares. And I think if this council doesn't move to stop this, that people will start moving to council people. I see my time. Thank you. I would like those 15 seconds of possible. In my 15 seconds. Go right ahead. Okay. Good evening, Honorable City Council members. My name is Ailsa Chang, research and policy analyst with Long Beach Forward. I don't know how many times I've said it or how many times it has to be said, but I will say it again. Long Beach is in a housing and homelessness crisis. Two weeks ago, this council failed to act to end homelessness with homes through a local affordable housing funding measure. Tonight, Council once again has the opportunity to act to alleviate the housing crisis and prevent the loss of long term housing units. Don't waste this opportunity to do the right thing. Specifically, we're asking for three things. First, two total units, one primary, one non primary. Don't put profit over people, especially when corporate property owners are buying properties for the sole purpose of placing them on short term rental sites. Second, a hard cap of five 500 non primary units city wide. Any more than that short term units will any more short term units than that will diminish our housing stock every single year and push vulnerable families out of their homes and onto the streets. Thank you. Members, again, we are in a housing crisis. Let's act like it. Do the right thing. Hi, my name is Jean Young and I've lived in District eight for 26 years. I'm on the leadership team of the Long Beach Hosting Club. We meet monthly to share ideas and best practices and hosting. I'd like to have all the hosts who are here tonight stand. Okay. So we've had three years of public meetings and workshops and what have we found out that people overwhelmingly are supportive of long term residents gaining a little extra income by hosting guests as long as there are rules and the host is responsible. So no optional ban on Unhosted staffers through the petition process. 99.9 99% of hosts are responsible ci tizens. They care about their properties, hosting help seniors pay property taxes to stay in the neighborhoods they love. And it helps millennials get their foot in the door to afford their first property. So noise and nuisance complaints. When. Fewer than 1% of all complaints are optional, ban on unhosted stars is not needed. Thank you. Good evening. My name is Manolo Martinez. I'm with Leave Room and I am a long term renter in District two. Short term rentals take away available available rental units from the already depleted affordable. Housing market stock. Long Beach is behind on our affordable housing goals. We need to focus on creating more affordable housing instead of allowing our housing. Stock to disappear to short term rentals. Most short term rentals in Long Beach are unhosted or entire homes. This is not home sharing. This depletes our housing stock and puts pressure on tenants already. Vulnerable to a tough rental market. The ordinance, as drafted, allows for one host to have up to. Three properties on the short term rental market. It's absurd to believe that a person. Who owns three properties is in dire need of the rental income to make. Ends meet. Amending this ordinance from 3 to. 2 total units. Is a fair compromise. Community members should also have an option to determine whether or not they want a short term rental in their neighborhood. Many of us signed a lease or bought property to live in a home with other members of our community, not to live next to a near legal de facto hotel and facing additional hardships with parking and noise pollution. Thank you. Next we hear. Good evening. My name is narrator and I have worked at the Hyatt Regency in Long Beach for the last six years. And I've lived in Long Beach my whole life. As someone who works and lives in Long Beach, I have seen the effects of short term rentals have on Long Beach, and I've seen so many of my coworkers. Be displaced in the same city. That they work in. The time is now for Long Beach to adopt an ordinance that is a true reflection of what the residents and workers of Long Beach want for this city. Other cities, such as Santa monica, consider the grave impacts of short term rentals have on their housing, stock and hotel industries and made a good ordinance the city council, housing stock and hotel industries have sorry the City Council of Long Beach has a responsibility to do the same. Do not allow more of the non primary. Residents to be added. To short term rental market and to be taken away from families like mine that struggle. To find. Housing in Long Beach. Thank you. Next, you please read the next slide, please. I'll say Soto or Leslie. And can you please line up when she's calling your name? Just line up. And chosen Marine Po Jose Soto or Leslie and Cantrell. Ken Charlson and Marine Paul. Right. Good evening, Vice Mayor Andrews and Council members. My name is Catherine Levasseur. I'm a resident of Huntington Beach and a founding member of

Huntington Beach. Short Term Rental Alliance. Tonight, I speak on behalf of our members to say that we stand in support of short term rental stakeholders in Long Beach. We know from our experiences that short term rentals provide tourism revenue deep, deeper into our local neighborhoods. Every neighborhood should be allowed the opportunity to have short term rentals in their neighborhood. I personally have offered short term rental stays in Huntington Beach since 2015. Many of these stays were from relatives of my neighbors. It seems that grandparents want to stay within walking distance of their children and grandchildren. Every neighborhood in Long Beach should have the opportunity to have short term rentals in their neighborhood. Thank you for your consideration. Thank you. Thank you. Hello. My name is Josie. So I am here on behalf of Unite Here Local 11. The incorporation of certain short term rentals ordinance for our city must be done with intention, caution and scrutiny. Government policies around short term rentals should not take. Sorry, I should not make it easy for people from outside our community to come to Long Beach, take affordable housing away from the workers in Long Beach and rent it to tourists just passing through. We are limiting the amount of houses people have, leaving many people homeless. I urge Council to consider the well-documented impacts of short term rentals have on workers in our city and adopt an ordinance that softens the impact of short term rentals than it has on our families and our cities and our workers. I carelessly here. I want to speak in terms of if you do pass this tonight, I would like to see very active code enforcement and a kind of a three strikes law. If an Airbnb has a location that violates the ordinance three times, they should lose their license. Secondly, if when I've looked at the pros and cons on this, it does bring business into the city and offers homeowners and property owners additional funds. It brings them there to tax. But on the negative side, removing housing from the rental market frightens me. With the state legislation that's coming forward and demanding additional housing out of us. So I'm more on the pros and cons side than the pro side. Thank you. Good evening. And Cantrell. I remember when this was Granny. Flats and this sounded reasonable. Put a little house on your property and let Granny live there. And then it became an Airbnb. Rent it out so you can get a little extra money. But the original law that you passed said the owner had to live on the property. Now you're allowing an owner of three properties and he only has to be on one of them, not a 90 days of the year. As I understand it, he doesn't even have to be there at all. The purpose of having someone on the property is to be able to make sure the noise element is followed because these will become party houses. And if all the people in Thank you District three want this, let them have it. I'm not five and I don

't want it. Good evening, counsel. I'm Kent Rossen, past president of the Homeowner's Naples Improvement Association. And I'm here representing Naples, not. Know them personally. But anyway, we have a certain quality of. Life in Naples. That is something that we regard. As is a high priority. We don't need. Short term rentals. And we've had now. Neighbor against neighbor. Which that what it creates, it creates things. So, I mean, if the rest of. The city wants. This, then bye bye, give it to them. But we don't. Want her to. Naples we took. A thousand representatives and we had. A thousand signatures stating that we do not want short term rentals in Naples and there's only 1200 homes. So you see the impact of that. You know, we. Have a special community that we like and we would like to leave it that way. I've had firsthand experiences. Thank you. You call it the next group of individuals. Pedro DeLeon. E.B. White. Laura Van Doren. Alan Crawford. And Johanna Cunningham. I'm Maureen Poe, and I've spoken to the council before on many issues. And and you've always opened your arms to us to help us carve out the things that we feel we need. And one of the things that seems to be appearing is that the short term rental is continually causing problems between people. I know we had a short term rental across from us for a year and there were parties all the time. We didn't know who was there and and who belong there. Even in being able to talk to the host long distance and say your tenants are acting up, did nothing, and we presently have a short term rental behind us and we never know who's going to be in the neighborhood or the community. But it seems like we could have the thing go through with some carving out of areas where people actually have signed petitions and don't want to have the short term rentals. Thank you so much. Thank you. Laura Lincoln. The proposed ordinance as drafted is a lose lose proposition for the residents of Long Beach, causing neighborhood degradation and is acknowledged in the staff report severe adverse consequences and the availability of affordable housing. One of the most troubling items is the proposal to allow investors to buy multiple properties to operate as short term rentals 365 days a year in effect, and operating unregulated hotels anywhere in our city. The problems are compounded by the unprecedented and frankly, stunning provision that would allow large scale parties and events at these homes and residential neighborhoods. No other town in California does such. Even more troubling is that every one of the investor owned short term rental properties would otherwise be available as long term rentals to local residents. This Council should also be aware that the proposed ordinance is in sharp contrast to the rules adopted in most other California cities, which prohibit or restrict non owner occupied short term rentals. I urge the Council to have the opportunity to review those rules as well as the impact on housing.

sing before making ruling here. Good evening. Council Members. Ellen Crawford. I support Sharon housing the housing hosted chair, but strongly oppose the ordinance as written. With this ordinance we are flying in the face of what our neighboring communities are doing. In contrast to what the woman up here is saying, stars are banned in Huntington Beach and stars are banned in SEAL Beach. Stars are severely limited in Santa Monica and stars are banned in Manhattan Beach. I have an example from Laguna Beach on. Just read you really quickly. This is what Laguna Beach said three months ago. Visitors who can escalate the demand for city services create adverse impacts in residential areas. Estuaries can be associated with that depletion of cities, limited supply of multiple family residential units, incidents involving excessive noise, disorderly conduct, vandalism, overcrowding, traffic congestion can be associated with SDR units require response from city services, police and fire. I don't think we've taken those things into account in this ordinance. Thank you. Before the speaker. City clerk, can you read the next five? Is Pedro DeLeon here? E.B. White, Johanna Cunningham, Adrian Medrano, Viana Noble, Kathleen Brady, Heather Rosman and Samantha Martinez. Thank you. You may proceed. Thank you. Good evening, city council members. My name is Johanna Cunningham and I'm the CEO for the National Short Term Rental. I am here to speak against the opt out provision. I do believe that it does pit neighbor against neighbor. We already have that coming forward. I am a little confused, though. I do have to say that I don't see short term rentals being the word short term, taking off housing for long term residents. Many of the owners that I know are providing short term. So it is a short term proposition for them. I have owners that I know that are using these short term rentals to improve the other properties. If they have a multi-unit building to be able to repair and protect these know these tenants as well as not to raise their rents. So I just don't see the confusion that that surprises me. We do bring tourist income and dollars into the city, and I hope that the city council will continue to address this and see. Adriano Medrano, District two resident Airbnb has allowed my wife to stay home with her newborn. The little extra income has allowed my wife to raise our baby full time. I'd like to add that short term rentals are owned and managed by the people. Contrary to what you're hearing about corporate interests, we are not multibillion dollar corporations. Platforms allow individuals like me to run a small business similar to like Uber and Lyft. According to Lodging magazine, the hotel industry had record profits of $80 billion in 2018, but yet opposed measure that VW which local 11 really proposed. And just to add to that, you know with that kind of money and other backing anti short term regulation. So the proposed regulation addresses the concerns of those who worry about party houses and or corporate greed. Thank you. Thank you. Next. I'm Kathleen Brady. I'd like to advocate that the. Non primary unhosted. Stickers be limited to. One property. Not to. Long Beach is one of the most interesting coastal cities in California. We have a great diversity of people. And of income providing to. Large. An amount of our limited housing for tourism will cost just. As a community and as a cohesive city. Thank you. Good evening, councilmembers. My name is Heather Rosman with the Long Beach Hospitality Alliance representing area hotels. We are here today to ask you to enact sensible and reasonable regulation on the short term rental market in Long Beach. We agree with our employees and team members that the short term rental industry must be regulated in order to preserve housing stock in the city.

While Long Beach leaders strive to enact solutions to end the homeless crisis. We also urge you to limit the short term renting on one's primary residence and limit the number of non primary. Residences to. 500 units only, and cap the number of short term rental nights to 90 days per year. This ensures existing housing stock will be maintained for Long Beach families and not converted into de facto hotels. Which are not held the strict standards and laws of. Hotel operators. With the upcoming Olympics and other large scale sporting events and conferences. We must be cautious when deciding how many homes one can put out on the short term market. We must not enact policies which incentivize people to buy up housing stock and hold it for short term rentals. Thank you. Long term residents. My name is Lana Noble. I'm here tonight as a resident of downtown and also as an a member and a loft owner in in District one in downtown. I'm hearing an amazing different alliance of interests here, and I sure hope the council is hearing it is. The resident from Naples said in downtown we've done a survey of our folks who are 80% renters and for different reasons. We have a different ambiance and we don't want non hosted short term rentals. We already are priced out of the rentals and those of us that own and have lots, we are governed by what are called C, C and R's in our multi-unit buildings and some of us have been lucky in that we have got rules that say you ain't going to rent for less than 30 days, but you're going to have an impact on. Thank you very. Much. Of people. And this is a neighborhood issue. A community issue. Assuming she. Does not. Think. You have private property. You. Do you in a coma? People ask you, we call the next five. Can I have Diane Sandstrom, Myra Garcia, Cortez, Tamara Romeo, April Rivas and Dana Bill. Hi. My name is Samantha martinez. I represent. The American Hotel and Lodging Association. And I really appreciate the opportunity to speak with you. American Hotel Lodging Association is extremely proud to be. Part of this diverse coalition. Of labor, community organizations and housing organizati ons. And we all applaud your efforts to regulate short term rentals. We know Long Beach is a very special and a very desirable place for visitors and tourists to come and enjoy. But Long Beach is also home to, I believe, about a half a million people who value their communities, our quality of life, housing affordability and availability. That's why we feel the Council must pass these short term rental regulations to protect the quality of life, housing and communities, as well as good paying hospitality jobs. We support limiting short term rental to one's primary residents, and we believe that people should be able to do this in their own home and make revenue. We are concerned about allowing this in non primary residents. If you do allow them non. Primary residents, we urge. Thank you very much. Only one and capped at 500. Thank you. Good evening. My name is. Maya Ocasio-Cortez and I am with District two. And the Coalition for Good Jobs. Short term. Rentals can incentivize homeowners to convert residential units. Into ad hoc hotels. This especially impacts vulnerable populations like seniors and students. As myself, most staffers in Long Beach, our entire homes are unhosted units rather than home sharing owner occupied residences. This depletes our housing stock and puts pressure on our tenants already vulnerable to a tough rental market. Ms.. Pearce, you started this. Agenda saying that tourism in Long Beach is rising, but how can we. Focus on tourism if we can't accommodate our own people? I was recently affected by an eviction order and I was close to losing my home. I do not want other people to go through what I went through. I have a disabled brother and I speak for a handicapped seniors and all students that cannot thank you. Hi. My name is April Reavis, and I'm sorry that so many of you are opposed to Airbnb. It has been a dream come true for me. It's allowed me to purchase a home and supplement making the mortgage payment by having guests. My experience has only been positive, and I think my neighbors would also say that I've worked hard to improve my property. I'm a good neighbor and I'm. Proud of the city I live in. I want to share it with guests. And I'm not a big corporation. I'm arranging flowers and fruit bowls and writing nice notes and my. House is not a party house. I think I've improved the neighborhood. My guests are often my neighbors whose grandmother wants to come visit, who needs an extra bedroom. I laughingly call my Airbnb the extra bedroom for all of Long Beach. Thank you very much. Yeah. Good evening. My name is Tamara Romero, District ten, resident At a time when our city faces historic crises around homelessness, gentrification and displacement, destroying housing, stock and displacing tenants is akin to pouring gasoline on a raging fire. I'm here today to talk to you about short term rentals. Short term rentals, eat up housing stock at the expense of long term tenants like myself. Nobody would be able to pay more than two properties and the short term rental market. There has to be a hard cap along with a way for neighborhoods to opt out. No more than 500 non primary units should be allowed to make sure we don't further put pressure on vulnerable families. This is also about the quality of life in our neighborhoods. Many residents in and around Long Beach never signed up to face additional parking pressures or additional noise pollution or fires, which is something another resident of our city experienced at one of these short term rentals. Thank you, my friend. Thank you. Good evening. My name is Diane Sundstrom. I live in Belmont Heights and 60 seconds is pretty short. So hopefully you've read the statement that I submitted, but I'm strongly opposed to the short term rental ordinance. As written, I support short term rentals in owner occupied or hosted stays. However, allowing up to three short term units is excessive by any measure, and this ordinance is being considered at a time when the mayor says we need 8000 new housing units. Christine Pettit was quoted in the grunion as saying the city is in a severe housing and homelessness crisis. Rent has written to risen 28% in the last decade. The rental vacancy rate has gone from 5.2 to 3.8% in the last decade. And our homeless population is about 19%. So it seems to me that the last thing Long Beach needs is to lose housing. But that's what this ordinance will do. Development Services estimates, we estimate we could lose like 1900 units. So I think this ordinance, it's not good governance. Thank you very. Much. And that the requirement for Long Beach residents should be reinstated. Good evening, councilmembers. My name is Dana Bell. I'm a 47 year resident of Naples. I think there is a an enormous difference between hosted short term and unhosted short term. And I'd like to say that I don't believe that unhosted short term rentals belong in any neighborhood. They destroy the cohesiveness. They are hurting the rental affordable rentals in Long Beach, in our neighborhood, on our block, the 5700 block of Camp Walk. In the last year and a half, we have lost two single family homes and they are now both party houses. So I hope that you understand this difference and there is a great deal more thought put to unhosted short term rentals and the damage it does to the communities and the damage it does to our city. Thank you. Thank you. Tom Cruise called the Nets and Anderson. Braden Phillips, Gerard Anderson, Dave Have and Hank Snapper Anderson. Braden Phillips. Gerald Anderson. Dave Have. And Hank Snapper. And Anderson. One minute. We have lived next door to a short term rental in Naples for several years, renting illegally. And I can tell you it's a nightmare from hell. When aged ten, strangers arrive every few days and a business is created three feet away from you next door. All kinds of things happen. Partiers drinking, drugging, strangers wandering around day and night. You just can't imagine who in the hous e next door to you. Instead of becoming a family, house becomes a business. Please don't allow those. I know in many surrounding cities have now totally banned unhosted rentals. Now Unhosted are really terrible. In this case, people go across town and rent an expensive apartment there by taking a unit off the market. It's just a terrible situation to have in family type neighborhoods. Really? I can't urge you enough not to do it. Thank you. Thank you. Good evening. Members of council. My name is Braden Phillips. I may addresses on file. I am currently serving as the President of the Peninsula Neighborhood Association Board of Directors. Our neighborhood, like many others, rarely achieves unanimous consensus on any issue. That's also the case in short term rentals. Last year, we surveyed our residents and asked whether they favored short term rentals on the peninsula. Nearly two thirds opposed the regions. They opposed as the we are a densely packed community with as little as six feet between houses. We leave our windows open and noise from rooftop decks carries and creates an adverse quality of life. We are also a parking impacted neighborhood and when SDR renters come in and bring two or three cars with them, it simply exacerbates a problem that we live with every day. It's doubled in the summer. I think allowing the neighborhood to exercise the opt out provision and restrict operations to those that are hosted is very important. Hosts are generally thank you, sir. They're familiar with the neighborhood norms and they've got skin in the game. There's a vested interest for hosts to maintain quality of life. Thank. My name is Gerald Anderson. I just want to thank the city and the council and and Councilwoman Price in particular, for making sure this petition provision got into this. This ordinance, contrary to what other people have said, the petition is not going to be splitting the neighborhood. It's the unhosted stars that really, really cause the tension between neighbors. And and we've had plenty of experience with that in in Naples. So again, I just want to thank the council for having this this petition provision in here and urge you to keep it there. Okay. Thank you. Thank you. My name's Dave Hough. I'm a resident of the third District, and I came here to support the opt out petition part of this. Yes. TR After listening to a lot of people, at a bare minimum, it should stay how it is. I agree with several people that it should be a 50 plus one. As far as the petition goes. And what I would really like to see and it would address the whole issue of corporations is not allowing on hosted stars in the city of Long Beach. Thank you. 1/2 before you start. Claire, can you hold up the next five? Giovanni Barron. Jordan Wynn. Fred Sutton. Michael O'Toole. Alex Contreras. Giovanni Barron, Jordan Wynn, Fred Sutton, Michael O'Toole, Alex Contreras, thank you. You may proceed, sir. My name is Hanks Nipper. I'm a longtime member of home owner Sp inner. And in the 25 years that I've been there, we've always, from the very beginning, have had a rule to prohibit short term rentals. And if you know the community at all, you'll know that our homes in many cases are three, four or five feet apart , number one. Many of our homes are on our own, right on the verge of boat docks, which are our favorite party places for younger people. And there have been a number of nights that we were up until one, 2:00 in the morning because of all the noise up there. It's of great concern to us. Property values is really the main reason for having a homeowners association. And we ask that whatever you do, please give homeowner's association your authority to prohibit short term rentals. Thank you. Honorable counsel. My name is Fred Sutton. I'm here on behalf of the California Apartment Association. Housing providers face a variety of issues as it relates to illegal subletting, and we have serious concerns as it relates to the preventative measures in the ordinance, specifically the prohibition list and the consent form. Los Angeles just started enforcing their ordinance late last year, which have those same provisions. But we're finding owners that have put their properties on the prohibition list or are being cited by the city for a possible fine. We're also finding that the consent form is not being collected by the city and reviewed to determine whether someone is actually getting consent. So in both of those cases, you have housing providers saying cigars are not allowed here on this property and not giving consent. The enforcement mechanism here is operators and property owners shall be held jointly accountable. Housing providers should not be held accountable for illegal activity. They're trying to prevent in the in the building, the platform or the host should be held accountable and the consent form should be changed over to expressed consent. Thank you. Hello. My name is Giovanni Perrone. Thank you for your time. I am a host on Airbnb. I am a homeowner in Long Beach. I've lived here nine years and I'm very grateful to having the opportunity to host my home. And obviously it has actually taken the place of my job. About five years ago I lost my job, so I now use this as my main source of income. So I do appreciate everything that I've gained from it. I definitely have hosted people. At my house where. There are families that come in. I've hosted local residents at my house where they have property emergencies at their house. I have so many different experiences with that that I can go on and on. But I obviously support the ordinance as it stands and I do appreciate your time and possibly I like that 1% that you guys have in there. Maybe flip that around if you really need housing, maybe you ask the hotels for 1% of their rooms for people that need. Hello. My name is Michael O'Toole, the third district. I'm actually the president of the homeowner's association in Naples, Ireland. And one thing that I've seen today mostly is we're all saying the same thing. Nobody is complaining about a hosted home. Everybody's complaining about a non hosted home. The opt out is really designed for a community, for a very tight knit community. That might be very unique, too. Can you address the council, sir? I'm sorry to have the opinion of their neighborhood. They know it best. Nobody knows it better. A lot of these signs that I see that say opt out. They don't know our neighborhood. They don't live in that neighborhood. We know it. We love it. We can protect it. We're not kicking out or saying no non hosted. But the hosted is the problem. And so if we can just keep the neighborhoods with a choice, I think the neighborhoods will be happy and I think the whole entire city will be happy . Thank you very much. When I call the next guy. Can I have Jordan Wynn, Myra J. Garcia, Leah Hogan, Jeff Hoffman and Olga Allred? Good evening and thank you so much for taking the time. My name is Alex Contreras. I'm original organizing director with California MI. And while that normally means we're advocating for all kinds of things in our backyards, I'm here representing the Long Beach MI team who are very concerned that with the limited housing stock available, this current ordinance , as is, will further drive up the rate, will further restrict the amount of rentals for long term tenants. As everyone here, I believe, can acknowledge, we are in a housing crisis and what we need is more housing now, not more short term rentals. So our recommendations are to two total units, one primary and one non primary. A total cap on all last year until Long Beach. Build enough homes to house everyone who lives here and wants to live here. And like the city of L.A., adhere to a 120 day annual renter cap. If it's supposed to be a short term rental, then it should be a short term rental. Thank you. Thank you. Next. Good evening. My name's Leah Horgan. I'm a resident of District two, and I want to echo other advocates of stronger regulation tonight and. Really highlight that this. Is a struggle between. People who sort of want the most. Freedom to make the most money, the easiest way on multiple properties. That's what this regulation addresses. It's not about single home sharing. I think that's sort of a misleading turn. This is a struggle between profit maximization and those of us who are looking to keep rooves overheads month to month and ensure that there's. Housing for residents who keep the. City running. There are many, many ways to make profit from property safe. For instance, by renting long term and study after study demonstrates that short term rentals cost. Cities. As taxes and regulations are evaded and burdens renters and low income folks as housing costs or in a way that really only benefits statistically white well off property owners. I study this. I'm a PhD student and I have seen the effects globally, so I really want to urge you to consider acting on behalf of renters ton ight. Thank you. One of them lie to me number that made other people. Then listen to those. Good evening. My name is my I and I live in District two on the rebels. I'm here from. Coalition for good. Good jobs, liberty and liberty. If the people cannot affect the mutual in early to the good thing only the short term rent. I am here because I have in short term rentals is affecting us greatly. They concluded that the animals will not receive 3%. There is the regulation. If you think that were having a crisis right now, wait till you pass this regulation. When I think that a 12% of discapacidad is living a normal internally minimum, this is going to affect all people. With disabilities who. Aren't able to make more than minimum wage. I lost personal majority of elderly people. Yet the person is relatively monolithic and the rest of the people who cannot live on minimum wage but apparently be prepared to see more homeless people on the streets. Emanuel was homeless and more six or more break ins in the city. You'll see in contrast to the proposition I am against this proposition or effect on mi familia because it affects my family in the in my unethical these capacity elderly people and people with disabilities. Thank you. National convention. Good evening, Mr. Vice Mayor. Members of the council. I'm Jeff Hoffman, lifelong resident of Long Beach. First of all, Councilwoman Pierce, I don't think you were crazy to bring this up three years ago. In fact, I think getting in front of it was smart is giving the city an opportunity to spend quality time looking at the issues , having the group meetings, which we now see a very quality proposal in front of you. But we also talk about Long Beach being a collection of unique neighborhoods. And the different neighborhoods have their own special qualities. And some neighborhoods lend themselves more to having the short term rentals versus others. So I am in favor of the opt out. I think that way individual communities within our city can decide if they want to have the short term rental. Thank you very much. We have Brad Michaels, Sam Gribble and Shawn Black. Boy, please. Okay. My name is Olga Al Arad. I had a big speech, but I'm just going to make it really quick. I'm highly against the opt out. I think it pits neighbors against neighbors. And if we are going to implement a two strikes, you're out. Why would we need the opt out? Long Beach has collected $2 million from. We're not big businesses. We're just people trying to pay our mortgages, you know, trying to make ends meet. And so this, in essence, we've been paying the treaties. Why don't we use the treaties that Long Beach has already collected from us? Small little business people? We're not even business people. We're just homeowners. And why don't you guys build housing? You guys are collected already over $2 million since April from us. Little people that own our little homes use that money and also get it from the hotels to to build housing. Don't tak e it from us. We're just trying to make ends meet. Thank you. I yield my time. Oh, okay. Okay. Why don't you use the world? Good evening. Council Members Brad Michaels, Suzy Price, District three. Thank you very much. You all are very intelligent people. I'm a business owner, so I'm going to boil it down to reality check. Okay. A lot of unions here, a lot of people have a lot of different priorities. I'm a small person, okay. I'm trying to get a retirement, have a house here in Belmont Shores. My dream to move here mid-year, five years. We turned a drug house into a house that now people come from all over the world saying. Oh, it's a beautiful house. For 3 minutes from the beach. We poured over $200,000 to repair our house. So, I mean. We improve the neighborhood. I am against opt out. I don't want one or two people having a voice or I don't want the little group of Naples

having a voice of all over it. Long Beach dictating their views over what we can do with our own property. I do believe in the in the Constitution that we have freedoms. To do with our property as we will in the housing crisis. No such thing. I can swing a dead cat and hit six units that are for rent right now within my within my block where I live. Thank you. No minor town, but thank you very much. You. Could you please cause any more? Sam Gribble. Sean Pollock is the last speaker. Thank you, ladies and gentlemen, for having us here today. Thank you for the studies you've done, which has proven that stars is a great thing for the community. I am against the opt out. For some reasons I feel like if SDR is going to have an opt out, the art also long term rentals should have the same provision because I have a party house. Ten doors down. Our neighborhood cannot deal with them because we have no rights. So when you talk about party house, is the long term is it the long term rentals or is it the short term rentals? Because most of the people that come, we have several Airbnbs in our. Area, their family. Nice, nice with their kids, everything. Very, very few party houses are based on SDR because there is no proof the city can prove it. But we can show proof that the long term rentals have a lot of party houses going on with the police reports. So it'd be nice to compare apples to apples. Thank you. Thank you. Now I'm going to turn it back to the maker, Mr. Spears. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I want to thank everybody that showed up tonight and spoke. I want to thank everybody that has been participating in this process over the last several years. We know that we embarked on this to try to create a Long Beach model. And so I want to be honest and transparent with everyone. We've had lots of conversations, both with community members, with housing advocates, with Unite here, with Airbnb, with neighbors, and really trying to figure out how do we have that balance between protecting our housing, ensuring that we've got people that live in the city that can really use their home for short term rentals so that they can make additional income and also benefit off of the shared economy. I have a couple of questions that I'm going to ask staff, and then I've got some motions to make so that we can have a conversation behind the dais, again, reminding everyone in the room that the goal is really to protect housing but have a Long Beach model. And so one thing I do want to remind folks is a lot of the people that spoke tonight talked about what it meant for them to have their own unit. The Long Beach ordinance, as written right now, allows for unlimited nights for a primary resident. And that's something that a lot of cities don't have. And so I want to applaud the council for really seeing that that hosts that live in our communities are our neighbors. And we've got to know a lot of them. A lot of them are seniors or people that are maybe taking care of somebody in their home and that the city has done something that other cities haven't done. And so I wanted to keep that in the back of everyone's mind. Staff I'm going to ask some questions, if you could try to answer them kind of quickly just because it takes up my time too. Why were business licenses removed from the requirement? Killing me. This license removed from the requirement because of the small number of units that we are going to allow SDR operators to operate. Currently, people that do rentals, it starts at four units, so it would have to go back to the voters. Okay. Thank you. That. And there was a residency requirement for additional units and that has been removed as well. Can you explain that? And I'll take that one. The reason we removed that is we didn't feel it would could withstand a legal challenge because they are property owners, whether they live in the city or not, so that they pay taxes like the property owners that do live in the city. So we felt that would be not fair. Okay. And the reason I ask that question, because when we had this item in front of us last time, we had said that we wanted you to be a property owner in the city of Long Beach to be able to have an additional unit that wasn't your primary. Now that that's not true, I think that that has an effect on where we end up as a council with the number of non primary. I don't know what that number is yet. But I just wanted to point that out for the council that that at least was where I was at last time. There seems to be some misunderstanding on requirement of what? Is it a requirement that everybody pay to yacht to the city or only those that are entered into an agreement with the city? Everybody is required to pay if the ordinance passes. Okay, great. And for those people that might not put their short term rental on a platform like Airbnb or Expedia, how do we expect that we'll collect that Totti? Well, typically through an enforcement process, it's generally fairly easy to find out who is renting properties on a short term basis. And when we found that out, if it wasn't on a platform, we'd tra ck that down, go after the person to collect it. It'd be an enforcement process. Could the city, you know, if we can turn to an agreement with with platforms, could the city, say, encourage everybody that doesn't start in the city to listen on a certified platform? We'd have to do a little bit more research on that and see what other cities are doing. I think we probably could do something like that. Seems like it's for the platforms that are working with us and providing us with Totti and as was mentioned, one point something million already this year seems like it would save staff time. A lot of process. If we require those stars to be on any platform. I don't care which platform but one that we know we're collecting Totti from. So I look forward to maybe hearing some more about that down the road. Getting to the issue of, let's see, of the number in the caps. So one thing that I think was also missed from the last time when we had this discussion was my intention with making sure that we weren't putting additional short term rental units on the market. If our housing stock was not healthy. And what's known as a healthy housing stock is that we've got about 8% housing vacancy. Two years ago, I think the vacancy was a much lower number. The staff have an idea of what our housing vacancy number is now. It's roughly six and a half percent, 6.7%. 7%. And the reason why that that's important is because we know when the housing market gets crunched that rents can go up. And we have what happened in 2017, which was a big turnover. Excuse me, that. Yes, you can cue back up if you like to. Look at 17 seconds. Where. Now the second year of the motion. Can I yield 2 minutes, please? Well, I'm just looking at those two rows. I see. So the screen up there and the screen over here is different. So this one still says, I've got 30 seconds. Okay, you got 30 seconds, got 30 seconds. 2 minutes and 30 seconds. You don't have to use the whole 2 minutes. I can use that, but. Oh, my gosh. That's why. Okay. So I wanted to have a little bit of that context. I will have some other things to mention. I'm not sure if I can read all my changes and in 2 minutes all my motions, but I will begin. Was I done? I'm like, I guess the one other part I wanted to mention was not only our housing vacancy, but the where our hotels are at. And so I appreciate that the hotels who love me so much are here advocating for something tonight. But from my conversations with the CVB, this morning is on any weekend that we have something big like the Grand Prix, we're at 100% capacity. And so I wanted to ask if down the road not tonight, but if down the road there could be some conversations around increasing whatever number we come up with tonight for a very, very, very special event so that we're not losing out on top, but an opportunity that might arise. And I don't know what that is yet, but I, I wanted to ask Steph if that was an option for you to explore. Down the road. We can certainly investigate that. Thank you. Okay. I have 2 minutes. With all of that said, very quickly. I have some extra minutes. Okay, I'll stop them. I'm going to let Suzy talk, and we'll go from there. I'm going to keep it simple because I know everyone on the council probably wants to add something to this. First of all, thanks for everyone. Thanks to everyone who came out. It is indeed a very unique collaboration effort, and I'm pleased to see it because we honestly don't see that enough. The biggest concern for me is that short term rentals have been the Wild West in the city for a long time, and they're illegal and it's impossible to enforce them because the residents have to be the the evidence gatherers that's putting neighbors against each other. Right. They're out there taking photos of violations and things and it's very difficult to enforce it. So for me, whatever provisions we come up with tonight and I'm going to queue up again. We need to have a strong enforcement mechanism because if we don't have a strong enforcement mechanism, it doesn't matter what rules we come up with here. We can come up with rules all day long, but if we're not enforcing them, then, then that's a problem. The number one concern that I've heard from my residents is your vacation rental unhosted non primary residence that's being rented out all year long and there's no vested interest by the property owner to care for the use and enjoyment of the property of their neighbors. And so to me, that's what we want to limit, and that's where the opt out for me makes sense. What I'd like to do is right now the proposed opt out in the provision is two. Thirds. Of voters in the census tract. I'd like to reduce that to 50% plus one. However, however, I would like to ensure. That the people who are. Circulating the petitions are property owners. Because what I don't want is petition gatherers to be paid to infiltrate neighborhoods, to get them to get the number of signatures they need for the petitions, because I don't think that's going to help your use and enjoyment of your neighborhood either. So if it's and I want the city clerk to be involved in determining who the signature gatherers are, who's petitioning to ensure that their property owners in that census tract. So that's very, very important to me. That's that's my number one concern in regards to what my residents have reached out to me. I'm in favor right now as the ordinance is currently written. It allows for somewhere around 1700 of these vacation rentals in the city of Long Beach. I think that number is absurd. I'd like to limit that number. I want to hear from my colleagues on what they think that number should be. But I think 1700 at this time is absurd. So I'd like to hear from my colleagues on what they think about that. The other thing that I want to talk about is on the prohibition option. So multifamily units, buildings where the property owner gets on the prohibition list, they don't want their t

tenants to sublet and serve as a short term rental, while the property owner should not be fined if the platform is posting that location as an as a site to be rented when they're on the city's prohibition list. So I really want to work on what we can do about that if the property owner is doing everything they can. Thank you. Thank you. You can queue up again. So Mango. Thank you. I want to appreciate everyone who came down tonight. I know not all of you have come to a city council meeting before, so you should know that we've imposed rules upon ourselves to limit ourselves to 5 minutes and then recue for the same reason that we want to hear all of you, which is why we reduced down to one minute so everyone could stay in here, everyone's opinions and the final vote. I think it is absolutely absurd to use a census track as the determining factor. I spoke against this at the last meeting. Some census tracts have a couple hundred people in it. Other census tracts have 3800 homes. And it would be absolutely impossible for a community that is made up of I'm sorry, a census tract that is made up of multiple neighborhoods that have completely different vibes and feels to be the determinant of your ability to have a piece of housing which is across a major street away. I mean, literally, some of these housing tracts go across Studebaker. It's ridiculous. So I pulled an example. My neighbor who lives on Val Verde just moved to Naples. And so I pulled up an example. So Naples is housing track 5775.01. It is consistent of 1788 homes in that housing track. Of that 1788 homes, the voter district that overlays which remember there can be 1 to 3 voters in a household. Makes up two housing tracts. I'm sorry, two census tracts. And there are only 1200 registered voters. I mean, so your barrier to actually banning a as a bad landlord is very difficult. So I would like to have a discussion around is it the 300 homes closest to the short term rental or something like that? We kind of talked about it at the last meeting. I drew pictures for development services about my opinion and why, and I asked questions in advance to get this housing census tract. But I don't know that anyone here would think it's reasonable to gather signatures from. 1000. It's almost 2000 households to ban a house. And on top of that, I don't know about you, but when I was running for office, there may be two yard signs, two people running for mayor in the same household. And if you only get one vote per household and your vote is split, how does that even work? I just don't think the process is well thought out. And so for that reason, I'm I petition slide eight. Also, we've requested numerous times that all the slides are numbered so people can follow along and, and follow up. So if we could just make sure that that happens. So slide eight. I just I can't agree to census tracts. It seems unreasonable. And Cantrell, you said give it to the third district. Don't give it to me. Your census tra ct has 864 homes in it. There's no way, you know, half of those people or that they would know if your neighbor was a bad landlord. I have concerns about tenants forging paperwork to use their rental property as an Airbnb. So if I'm a landlord and I have a tenant and that tenant wants to use it as an Airbnb, I would love to have some kind of mechanism where a landlord can just mail in somewhere and say, I don't want any of my units ever to be available as an Airbnb so that if their tenant wants to violate the rules, there's some kind of barrier to forging documentation and so on, because that has happened extensively from what I hear. I love the idea of a incentive for weekends that are Grand Prix or certain conferences that sell out the whole city. Heck, my husband and I might leave and go stay in Carson for a week when the Olympics is here and rent out our house for some exorbitant amount of money and pay our mortgage for a couple of weeks so that our kid can be in swim lessons or whatever she wants to be. And so something like that I think is amazing idea. The last thing I want to say is we talk about limiting the number to 1700. Without a legitimate process in place. There are 1300 in the city. So if we wanted to limit the number by housing track, I could see something like that where you're not overpopulated in any particular community, but I would prefer it be my neighborhood and not my housing track because I don't believe people across the major street have the same feel and lifestyle as others. Thank you. And I yield my 47 seconds. Thank you, Mrs. Index. Thank you, colleagues. This is a very, very important subject. And yes, thank. You to everyone who. Has come out here in support. And and, you know, just being here makes a big difference. It's a very difficult decision for us upon the dias to make a decision this big just by ourselves. So please know that your participation tonight and reaching out to all of our offices is very important because we really want to do you justice. With that being said, I, I just feel that, you know, the 1% is outrageous. It's too way too much. To. Enforce something like this. I think that, you know, being from a district where affordable housing is. Impacted in a big way, I think that, you. Know, one thing that I would like to do is actually make an amendment to the motion. I want to make sure that that we don't overdo it and be and that. Sorry about that. And I want to make my amendment so that we. I'm going to say this slowly so that the total number of non primary residence for short term rentals. Ah that our issued ah, 500 or less. I'm sorry. 500 at a camp. An hour issued by the city. Yeah. That was a. Woman. Okay, fine. Mm. But as of this point, I think Councilman Councilwoman Pierce indicated she was going to make a motion when she queues up again. So as of right now, unless somebody has adopted the motion, the recommended action, we really don't have a motion on the floor to amend. So. It could be a friendly amendment to somebody else's motion. Or if you wanted to make a standalone motion, that would be perfectly fine too. But as of now, we don't really have a motion. I'll make it friendly so that we can discuss that. Okay. Is that it, Mrs. Devine? You know my time. I see. Ranga. Oh, that's. It gives me. It gives me 7 minutes. Seven. I'm all kidding. I'm not going to take that long, actually, because I see that the cast members, Pearson Price, have recused. And I know they have a lot of things to say or continue to say. I want to go ahead and keep it short. The only the only thing with me about about this whole issue is the fact that, you know, we are a coastal city and we have a lot of Airbnb housing that takes place along the coast. And one of the issues that I see up and down when I as a member of the Coastal Commission, is this battle going on with the cities that the want to have Airbnb or want to get their total tragic occupancy tax. And I don't want to use a short term whether or not you understand what I mean. But the thing is, is that. It's all about access and access to the beach. And our access to the beach here is it's an area in district three, district two. And maybe a sliver of this one. So those are those are the ones that I'm concerned about in terms of what ever plan we come up with that that we keep in mind that there are going to be people who want access to those homes because they've never seen the beach before or they want to experience Long Beach. So my question in this sense is, is there or has there been a study or maybe it's coming where we know what those rates are? Is it a bifurcated rate where we have one in four coastal zones and one's more inland outside of the coastal zone in Long Beach? Do you answer that? I'm not sure what you're referring to when you're referring to a rate. You mean a rental rate. Retail rate, like how much Airbnb homes go for or a. A rental along the coast is old versus both versus inland. I don't think we have data on the actual rental costs that are bifurcated by the coastal as opposed to the location. We do have some data. But not broken out in that manner. My concern would be that making sure that. If we are going to have a plan here in terms of how many we're going to have, whether it's a thousand or 500 or 1% or have a percentage point, I want to make sure that whatever we come up with that. At least half of that or a good number of that. That along the coast, along the coastal zone excuse me, along the coastal zone are affordable. Because that's one of the major reasons why cities up and down the coast are are struggling with this because there's there's that there are there are neighborhoods or areas. For example, the Del Mar. Del Mar is a very expensive place to be. And there's nothing there. They would be affordable alone. They are more. Yet you can come to Long Beach. I have an experience and it would be a lot more if not experience have an opportunity to. Yeah. That's

against allowing them in the coastal zone. And the Coastal Commission, as you pointed out, in wants to encourage that kind of use. But what the Coastal Commission has been approving are restrictions that restrict it to hosted only and it seems like the Coastal Commission has been okay with that. But I haven't seen an affordability component in the ordinances. That's correct. In terms of hosted. But in there that element of affordability as well. That's one, right? Yes. Thank you. Thank you for answering my my questions earlier. And thank you to the conversation so far. And I would like to make a motion now and hear from my colleagues on where they're at with it. There are some. Quick little things and then I'm going to actually read the ordinances as we went over earlier today. Mr. Mayes. I want to make sure that it's clear that the total is a requirement and not an option. I'd like to create a certification for platforms that pay TOT and work with the city on enforcement. So that we can list that and have host work with those platforms. I would like staff, whatever number we come up with today. And those in the audience know that these last four days have been probably the hardest four days of my term on council. It's been very tough. I would like us to get to a place where we have a cap today. And that. In in light of how this item came forward, that staff monitor the housing vacancy rate and when the housing vacancy rate reaches 9%, that staff agenda is an item in front of this council to discuss if we make a change to the cap. This way. The item that's been in front of us for the last two years where we've been talking about a percent, can come back for a full discussion. But for me, wh en the 1% came up, I didn't register that 1% with 1700 units. And that's something that I cannot in any way as a housing advocate support. And so I'm trying to find us a place where we can get a cap today. 500 is on the floor right now. See where we get. But that staff be the one to actually agenda, is it not a two from four. And that if that were to be supported by this council, that it'd be the same time every year that we revisit that housing vacancy. If it's every January or every march, that there's a process in place to have that discussion. Now I'm going to get into the more specifics here. On Section 5.77, it should read. The SDR operator shall not operate more than one primary residence ACR in more than one non primary residence stars in the city. Section 577030 before. This is the total number of primary residents. Hold on to yes, this is the total number of non primary residents. I'd still like to hear from my colleagues on where they're comfortable. Item or. It's 577050. Unhosted stays in a str shall be limited to 90 days per year. All stays in a non primary residence shall be presumed to be unhosted. I know we've had lots of debate over definitions, and I wanted to make that clear. This is a significant change that I want to hear from my colleagues as well. Hosting platforms. This is 5770708. Hosting platforms shall not process or complete any booking transactions for stars unless the ACR has a valid current ACR registration number issued by the city to the operator. We would also like to list the date that that permit is valid on the host platform. I'd like to. I think that these things are the following that I'm going to talk about are are assumed in the ordinance but not teased out. Hosting platform shall not process or complete any booking transactions that would exceed the number of days in section 577050. We talked about that today. I am comfortable with Councilmember Price's comments around allowing the clerk and the process of 50% plus one support that. I'm not sure if we don't have a census track how we are able to get there. I think based on all my conversations with city staff, it has to be a census track. And honestly, like if you get four neighbors at 4000 homes, they can they can figure out a way to get it if it's something that is is a priority for them. So I support your comments on that one. Enforcement. So we know that in a lot of cities we have a discussion about we finally have regulated, but enforcement is lacking and we're really struggling. So I want to make sure that there's no gray area here. Yes, you'll have to queue up again. Okay. I'm sure my council colleagues would like me to continue and I can stop talking for the rest of the time. I think you have to queue up again. All right. Councilman Price. So I wanted to clarify one thing about the opt out provision, and that is the opt out provision should only apply to non primary unhosted. So the vacation rentals. So if there are residents who are home sharing, if it's your primary residence, the opt out is not to pet you against your next door neighbor. The opt out is to prevent location rentals coming to the neighborhood. If the neighborhood wants to petition for that. The opt out provision is supposed to be the intent behind it is to allow neighborhoods and neighbors to have a voice in this process. And so reducing the threshold of how many signatures they need to get makes it a meaningful voice because the two thirds number in a census track is nearly impossible to achieve, whereas the 50 plus one is a much more realistic number. And if we have safeguards in place to ensure that it's property owners, it's those who have property values at stake and long term vested interests in the property. That will be the ones that will be able to circulate petitions and get those signatures. So I think that. That addresses that. Excuse me, Susie, can I stop for just 1/2? Can I address the vice mayor? Vice Mayor, I know we have the time limits in place and we have them in place for a good reason. But I don't think we ever contemplated that we would stop someone from Make in the middle of a motion. And the reason I say that it's going to be impossible for the city clerk to follow it. I'm having a hard time following it. So I feel like we should let the maker of the motion finish her motion, even if it goes over the time limit. And then we can impose the time limit on further discussion so that we have one cohesive motion that people can understand. You're the city attorney, so I think that's a good idea. Thank you. Okay, good. Appreciate that. So, Mr. Mays, should I yield my time to Councilmember Pearce? Yeah. I don't know if it's so much yielding time. I think we should just let Councilwoman Pierce finish your motion without regard to time constraint within reason, and then just impose it as we go through the discussion. Did you make a note of my comments, though? I yeah, I think so. Okay. Listen, part of the motion. Plus you have 2 minutes and 46 seconds left. Well, I have until I finished my motion. And Mrs. Price. Okay. I was talking about enforcement. 577090. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, in chapter 1.3 to the fines shall be 1000 for each violation. Each separate day in which a violation exists shall be considered a separate violation. Section 577.090. If three fines have been issued against a host, so I'd like to remove the word STR and replace it with a host within a 12 month period. Blah, blah, blah. The rest of that piece. 577090 should read any person. Or host. Hosting platform or SDR operator convicted of violating any provision of that of the. The city may issue and serve administrative subpoenas again to any person, any host hosting platform or SFR operator as necessary to obtain a specific information. The same thing for section 577090j. Any person, any host hosting platform or ACR operator. I know this is assumed, but I want to make sure it's clear. It's unlawful to be a host unless the responsibilities of 577.070 are not fully complied with. I know it's implied, but want to make sure it's clear noncompliance with any stated responsibility under section 577.07 will result in a violation fee of $1,000 per day. Per violation. Ladies and gentlemen, that is my motion. I do support the low. The lower number. I look forward to hearing from my council colleagues again, reminding us that we have unlimited amounts on hosted stays. But understanding, you know, this has been a long conversation. So I'll come back up in a little bit. And who else do we need a second of that? I'm seconded. Okay, fine. This is Bryce. Yeah. I did it. Okay, so in addition to the opt out lowering the threshold that I already articulated, I'm hoping my colleague is amenable to that change. I would also like to request that under section 5.77.070 hosting platform responsibilities. I believe that it should be a. Responsibility of the platform to remove any multifamily property owners who have requested to be on the prohibition list. And I believe if the property owner has exercised due diligence to place themselves on that list, they should not be fined and the platform should get a warning that it is not in compliance with the city's regulations. So I'd like to add that as a friendly as well. In addition, in terms of the number right now, the ordinance as proposed allows for 1700, roughly 1700 non primary short term rentals. And I know Councilwoman Zendejas suggested that maybe that limit be 500 as opposed to the percentage that's proposed. I take to heart the comments by Councilmember Ranga because I do represent the coast and I know how important it is to have access to the coast and how important that is for the Coastal Commission. In fact, every project in my district we talk about access to the coast and allowing for access to the coast. So my to be meaningfully compliant with that, my recommendation would be that we, we, we kind of find a happy medium and allow for a thousand, no more than a thousand as opposed to the 1700 or so that would currently be allowed no more than a thousand non primary stars. So that we're meeting in the middle in terms of Coastal Commission's interests and access, because this is going to have to be a process that we're going to have to be compliant on many levels with in terms of access to the coast. So but I'd love to hear from my colleagues on that. Before we go any further, I want to. You did not make a substitute motion. You were making, I think, a friendly amendment to Councilwoman Pearson's motion in Councilwoman. Councilwoman Pierce, do you accept those three changes as a friendly amendment? I accept them. I'd like to hear from my colleagues on the number, though. So I'm not accepting a thousand yet. Okay. So I'm price. Is that it? That's it for me. Thank you. I'm going to an. Thank you. First, I want to acknowledge our staff and everybody that has been involved in getting us to this point over the last few years. I

It's been a long, painstaking policymaking process, which I think we should respect when we are making policy. We should take our time and get it right. So I want to, you know, shout out to the stakeholders who everybody who was involved in this, the hotels, the unions, the host. And we heard from community tonight. There's very few nights that we actually hear from all of the stakeholders in a process. I'm seeking to get to a balanced and thoughtful policy. And as we get there, I mean, I think I can support much of what has been proposed. But I am really interested before we start talking about the number and putting caps on a number. I want to hear from staff in terms of what it's going to cost to administer the program, because I don't want to be upside down there either. Yes. So those are really good questions. I would like to throw out some data to help the council kind of with this this hard policy decision of whether it's 500 or 1000 or somewhere in between. We looked at data from 2010 and 2015 about how many units have just been historically used for seasonal and recreational use, where people are leaving them vacant because they're snowbirds or they're traveling or others. That number has been consistently about 1000, so that is what is currently not being really put on the housing stock. It's been about a thousand. We also heard through for hundreds of people throughout this process who owned cars who have come to our community meeting. So I'm going to guess that number is probably been in the 3 to 4 to almost 500 of actual people who have engaged in this process. And the enforcement is a tough one because right now I think Councilmember Price mentioned it is illegal and we have hundreds and hundreds of these. So we know we have around 800 to 900 on hosted. And the point of the ordinance is to try to get a regulatory system that the city can actually enforce. So the lower that number gets, the harder it is for us to enforce because there's going to be more in the black market. So a number like 500 is going to be harder for us to get compliance if there's already eight or 900 that are out there. So I can I'll have Linda talk about the enforcement that we have, but I did want to throw that out. That number is probably, in staff's opinion, somewhere in between the 508,000 and in there getting closer to what we have so that we can have meaningful enforcement. So I heard in public. Oh, was there. No. Go ahead. Please. In terms of enforcement, I think that in the initial proposal for this ordinance and in the last budget, the city council did approve two budgeted positions specifically for enforcement. So we would have staff on board to essentially enforce. Design and enforce the ordinance, as we've. Discussed it tonight. So if we were to to cap and it sounds like it sounds like we're going to be okay but if we would have put a cap that would miss price or councilmember prices her friendly amendment and a thousand would that get us. Will w e be able to to administer this program with the resources that that it would generate? Yes. And I presume you're speaking from a cost perspective, because the registration fees essentially are what we use to fund those staff positions. And we would enforce the 500 or 1000. I think the amount of compliance that you would get would be higher than at the higher number. So with a for the same amount of staff, we would have to go to more houses and do more compliance. If the number was lower to 500, the higher up that number goes, we would have more compliance or you would add more staff, which, you know, right now we're not budgeted for. So that I'm clear tonight, our action tonight does regulate stars no matter what direction we take. And if we weren't to take an action tonight, we would just have this ongoing proliferation of seizures in our city with unregulated and unaccountable. Right. Got it. So. That's it. I'm I'm in support of what's on the floor. I think a thousand is a reasonable number because I think we need to enforce and account for what is already there. Right. And there was a number that was also thrown out in quotes, I mean, from public comment that I want to just follow up on in terms of what is actually generated in stories for the city of Long Beach or what has been, because I'm understanding that there's already been some revenue generated. Yes. So there's been approximately since we started collecting it in past in April, approximately 1.8, $4 million in total generated. That's being split 50% between the general fund and between the SRP. S&P; and why the S&P;? Did I say that wrong? So the way. The Todd ordinance works at the voters it or that is on the books is that half of our total goes into special advertising and promotions, half goes into the general fund. So that's not something we can change in this ordinance. So in light of and I am sensitive to the to the comments about taking away existing housing and and obviously our need to build more housing. Is there any flexibility in the TLT to be able to set aside or dedicate moneys toward housing or affordable housing? So that's a policy choice of the council. There is some ability to do that, I would believe, as the revenue source grows. We would encourage you to look at that along with all of your other needs. If you remember about two years ago when we were facing some service cuts, the council wanted us to look at revenue . And so we put I'm going to estimate the number. I think it was about 750,000 in the general fund as our estimate, and we're right on that number, are actually a little bit higher as more dollars come in. You know, that really should be something. You look at the budget, should it go to housing, should it go to preserve services? You should go for enhanced services. But that would be a policy decision. Well, we're making policy tonight, so I'm okay with making a decision in that regard. I am concerned also just questioning. So since April, we've collecte d $1.8 million. Right. And that's less than a year. On how many hosts or stars were were. Actually contributing. So right now the top collection is limited to those hosted through Airbnb. We have a voluntary collection agreement with them. I don't have an exact number on the number of hosts that are paying the total. I'd have to work with business license staff to try and get that number, and we'd possibly have to go to Airbnb as well. So that's just Airbnb. There are other platforms that are still operating in the city that. Yes, we are actually in the process of working with HomeAway to enter into a voluntary collection agreement as well. They're the they're the two biggest right now in the city. Okay. Well, I'm going to again, I think 1000 is a is a reasonable number. But I'd also like to hear from my colleagues as well in terms of how, you know, you'd like to proceed with with the TLT, if that's I don't know that it should be dedicated just as happy. And I think in light of what we've heard, there's a lot of sensitivities around housing stock, our ability to to generate an income to to to develop more affordable housing. I think this is a source that we need to look at as a as an option as well. Excuse me. Excuse me, Councilman Austin, I just want to clarify one thing Tom said. The way we read the current tax structure is the only money that would be in play for dedicating to a housing purpose would be the 6% that's not dedicated in the ordinance to the SRP. If we took money that's already dedicated tax that was passed before Prop 218 and tried to re reconvert that to a different area, we have a problem. I'd like to make a friendly amendment to use that 6%. Yeah. Remember we can use it. Always use that we already have the ability to do anything with as far as a general fund expense. And just add on to that. One of the reasons we do encourage you strongly to look at that as part of the budget discussion is that's currently supporting general fund services, the money that we have. So we wouldn't want to create a whole tonight. If you could give us a direction tonight or put it somewhere, we would need to come back then with reductions somewhere else in the budget. So we expect this funding source to grow over time, especially as we bring on HomeAway and other platforms. And so that that be we strongly encourage you to look at that as part of the budget. Looking at my budget oversight committee chair, she's mouthing all kinds of things to me right now. But I do recall that the SAP fund has a very significant reserve and it's a healthy fund. I think we could it would be the moral thing to do for the council to look at appropriating more money for housing. So I'm. Absolutely. Huh? Huh? Did you know? Fine. Thank you, Councilman Ellison. You know, I think listen to all these. I want to thank everyone for coming out tonight, because this is the kind of conversation we should have all over the city, because the fact that the crisis that we're in an d the city we were talking about, you know, I don't think anyone should be denied when especially when your homeowners tell you how you should or should not, when you're asked what you should do with it or being able to rent it out, you know, form it out, that's your house. But as far as homeless and the housing that we have, you are sitting watching that we in any extra money that we get. I'm just hoping all of you feel the same way that all of us feel is that we must put it back into that situation. So while I know that most of these short term rentals are in other districts, as a district with high, I am a district with high rental population and I'm a firm believer that we need to find a balance that allows the market to compete. But also, I did not want to displace our residents. You know, in my district we are building housing at a rapid rate. And I want to ensure that this city is also increasing the housing stock, not just even in and out to open up for the market too much. So we also need to preserve the character of our neighborhood. We need an oversight to ensure that we're not allowing party houses to become a nuisance. But lastly, I also need to ensure that our hospitality industry is not diminishing with these short term rentals. What I'm hearing tonight, everyone is for what you should be for, because the fact that you are homeowners, you work your life out to get what you are today. And for our individuals for affordable housing, we're going to have to look at that and we look at it very hard and we know we have a problem and we're going to have to be able to work with that problem to make sure that we in the city of Long Beach are not one of those who said we forgot about affordable housing because we are very, very serious about that. And you home and I want to thank every and every one of you who are very considerate and compassion. But we're trying to do for the city of Long Beach. So beautiful city. I love it most of my life. Probably all my life. But what I've seen, I love it and I hope we continue to do the right thing by residents, especially by affordable housing. And thank you guys very much. I'm going to give this to Mrs. Mongo and that feeling any time. Because that. Yield your time to her. Councilman. Councilwoman in Diaz. Amelia, my time to you. Thank you. I don't need too much time. I just have a couple questions. Thank you, Councilmember Austin, for that recommendation of maybe having that 6% go to affordable housing. As a affordable housing advocate, I think that would be great. I wanted to know, is that something that realistically can be implemented? And then just procedurally that issue we can't decide tonight hasn't been agenda ized at all. That is usually something you would typically do as part of the budget process. It could be expedited. It could go to the Budget Oversight Committee for a recommendation. And I maybe didn't make myself clear before, but what I was trying to say is there's a total basically of 12%. Six of it currently must go to the special advertising and promotion fund. So the only other revenue is the other 6% that is currently earmarked for anything that the council wants to put it to towards the general fund. So it's that 6% we're talking about, we need to agenda. Is that for another evening for discussion of how that goes. But that money could. Or a percentage of that 6% certainly could go into some form of affordable housing if the council wanted to make that policy decision. And what I'd suggest as staff is what you're asking us to come back with some information. I'd like to come back with you about what's already in the budget, what is the projection, how much is going into general fund versus SRP? And then that will help you and look at our budget context that will help you make some decisions when we get to that point for budgeting. Thank you. And I would like to I am very interested to see on how that would look. So if you guys can please do that, that would be great. Another question and just procedurally. If you could make that as a friendly that, I'll make sure that it gets into the motion. Yes, I would like to make that as a friendly. Thank you. And also, you know, with considering that, I still think that something. Is. Way too much. Obviously, I would prefer because being an affordable housing advocate and in the first district again where we have a big like it's been said over and over again in the in the first district especially, we have a big affordable crisis, affordable housing crisis. So I would I don't support the 1000. I think that, you know, I could I could see why maybe 500 would be too too much of a drastic move for us right now, even though that's where I want it. But I don't know that I can have the support for that. So I moved that. At least we do. Maybe now let's not do any more than seven 750. As a family. Mm hmm. Hmm. Okay, before we go any further, Councilwoman Pierce, are you acceptable of those two friendly amendments? One has to do with bringing back information on the budgeting process for the TOT tax. And the other is to reduce your thousand cap to a 500. A sorry to a 77. 750 would be the friendly. Okay, so that's what we're sitting at. 750. That is an admission they are. Yes. I mean. That's 750. Just to be clear, we're talking about 750 UNHOSTED unit agents. Limit the mix. Of non primary residents. Yes. Yes, procedurally, but that also had to be seconded by the second. There are the motion would. So it's you know. We're rolling with friendlies today. I know we don't always. But procedure, that's all we need. We need to know that the second of the motion is fine with it as well. Oh. I mean, if. Or from my other colleagues on that, because I think that this five minute limitation, everything is kind of piecemeal right now. So I'd love to hear from everybody before we land on a number. Okay. Sorry, Mrs. Diaz. Yes. Thank you, Councilman. Mongo. So let me help with Mr. Mays. Mr. Austin. Council man Austin and Councilwoman Zendejas item. As chair of Budget Oversight, what I'd like to see, and I think would be helpful in the discussion related to affordable housing. When Councilmember Austin talked about the ACP funds and the surplus that we have that that was a voter, it would have to go to the voters. But we just had a discussion about housing. So what I'd like to do is, as a friendly agenda is at the February 11th EOC meeting, a discussion about. Affordable housing. Receiving a percentage of the revenue from short term rentals. Would you be open to that as a friendly? And then I can make sure that report comes back that has all the details related to what the process would be, how much it would be separating it out by hotels versus if you want to do SDR only, or if you want to do the full taxation amount, what those numbers would be, we have those from a previous BOC meeting. You're talking about total funds for fairly. Affordable housing.

Housing. Yeah. I mean, I think that the I agree with staff that it needs to be done in the budget process. So I don't think it's something we can skip ahead to. I mean, especially after. Me reallocating funds last time, how upset some people were. So, I mean, I think it makes sense for that to come back through the budget process, whatever time you want to take on the B or C to explore that and go for it. Thank you. As long as. Okay. And then I think one of the challenges for us in the fifth District is we do have some amazing Airbnb landlords. We met this weekend with one of our neighborhood associations, the ranchos. They have some amazing, unique homes. But if we put the cap at 700, there are currently 1300 participants. Participating without a law. And those individuals who are not participating because they're waiting for a law won't have a chance. And so I think one of the things we might want to consider is similar to how we did spreading out dispensaries. It would be great if we could spread out the stores. So they're not all concentrated in downtown or they're not all concentrated in the shore. Ms.. Tatum. We have three enforcement areas. For development services, correct? Yes. Those generally. Correspond to. The police report. Police districts as well. Wonderful. Well, police. Previous police districts before we added South Division back. Great. So that means that there are three areas of the city. And so my proposal would be. Until housing stock reaches. Councilman Pierce, can you remind me what you wanted it to be? Each 8%. Until housing stock reaches 8%, that we limit the number of short term rentals. 2.6%. That is less than the 1%. It comes in somewhere around, I think, 950. However, you would limit the number in any district. So in any development services district to no more than. 500. So that means that. That means that in part of the second, the third, the fourth and the fifth between the four of us, the East Division, there would be no more than 500. It doesn't increase the limit o f the whole city above the 950. But it also means that. North Long Beach, who has very few, if any at all right now, would potentially be able to have someone who say runs out to a student September through June. They'd be able to do their short term rental in the summer. Right now, they would not be able to. Anyone who is not currently in the platform or aware of this discussion has no chance of participating. Well, there's currently, according to Ms.. Tatum's discussion with me earlier, 1300 people participating in the process today. And if we take it down to 750 or 1000, that means that of the people who are participating today. A third of them won't be able to participate legally. So to answer if I accept this one, is that no one's operating legally right now. And so the idea that we would grandfather in or give people that are currently acting illegally, which seems to me like was part of the conversation, I think I have struggled with this so much the last four days. I'm good with the cap. I cannot support a thousand and I'm good with coming back with the percent discussion. When our housing stock reaches 8%. I'm trying to not reward people who are currently participating. I'm trying to reward the people that are not participating. The comment that you said that there's no way that people that are currently participating. No I'm saying the people who are not participating because it's not legal. Mhm. Are not going to have a chance to participate because. Currently that's not true. Because what's going to happen is city staff could you answer the question of how we would give permits to two operators or to host. So it's going to depend on how the how we set out what that number is going to be. And I think if we're going to set a number around 500 or 750, a low limit lower than who we have currently operating in the city, we're going to probably have to end up doing it by lottery. So it ends up being fair to everybody. So is there a reason why we wouldn't do a first come, first serve? Because how are we going to know, you know, if we have already? So in terms of the 1300s that are operating about. 890 or so our non primary, the other ones are hosted. So let's say that we have this number above and everybody comes on the same day. How, how are we going to really determine which is that first one, you know, if. That's my problem. I'm not sure if we are going to have to step back and. Really look at this issue. And I was trying to get that lottery to be more neighborhood based, right? So like in the ranchos, if there was a limit that they wouldn't have more than and I didn't want to get too complicated. I don't want to say, okay, the ranchos is 1400 homes. No more than 1% of the ranchos can be used. It just got to be such a linear level. That was too complicated. So I tried to stay at the top level, which is enforcement districts. And the reason I thought enforcement districts made sense is development services is going to be doing the enforce

nt. And so if we wanted to say, well, allow a thousand units and no more than 33% in any enforcement district, that helps, too, because there are going to be districts that are never going to reach that maximum. They're are just areas that aren't as popular. So it kind of limits it in a way that also helps with housing. I was just trying to come up with a solution so that we don't have I mean, here we are again, fistfights in the lobby because there are currently almost 900 and those are the ones we know of. And then I'd like also to talk about something that I have not seen covered here. I want to know how we ban. Platforms that don't abide by the rules. If you are a platform and you don't abide by the rules, I want to ban you and give you a two year probation or whatever it is. But if we have a neighbor who has been put on notice that they cannot host and that. Platform continues to post their unit that platforms should be banned from our city. And otherwise I don't know how we continue to enforce it becomes too expensive. And if. That is your wish, that should probably be included in the. Motion. So I'd like a friendly to have the staff come back with some kind of process for ensuring that when platforms do not obey our ordinance and participate, that there is a probation and banning process. And I'm supportive of that part. I don't know how we get to the other part. I'm just throwing stuff out there. I've as I said, I've really struggled with this the last several days. And and the thing that I know that I'm comfortable with is a low number and exploring a percentage at a later date. And. You know, I've done a lot of work on this over the last almost three years and. I know that we're not going to get to a place where everybody agrees, but when we're struggling on housing, questions like the bond last week, it makes sense to me that we're protecting our housing stock. I would like to get to a lower number. So what if we propose half a percent? That would be 850. Like I hear from my. Colleagues, there's 890 in the city. That means only 40 of them would be. Theoretically not that those should get priority. I almost feel like the people who are not on a platform right now should get priority. But I don't know how to do that either. Or if you could get a letter of support from every neighbor that touches your property. So with that, we've got a couple other folks queued up. I'll do one more round of that and then see what I can accept. So I just use me. Councilwoman Pierce, before we move on to another subject, I want to. I was hoping I could get some clarity when you first mentioned the percentage of rental housing stock that you are concerned with, the number you gave us was 9%, and then that over time morphed into 8%. So I don't know if you missed. The housing the healthy housing vacancy stock from all the housing advocates. And I believe the city said it, too, is 8%. Okay. I do not want to chip in to that 8%. So maybe you can come back when t he housing market is looking at like it's 8%. I had said nine because I thought if we started exploring a percentage at nine that it would make sure we protected that 8% and didn't dip into it with stars. So that makes sense. A little bit. It makes a little bit sense, except your motion was at nine nine. And I want to make sure. Are we. I'd like to keep it at nine. Okay. Thank you. So my friendly is to be at a half a percent until housing stock reaches 9%. And then it would come back to the council agenda used by the staff to potentially go up to 1%, which means it doesn't automatically go up. I definitely want to make sure it doesn't automatically go up. I would like to ask staff I've heard four different numbers and this will help me get to a place with you. I've heard four different numbers on how many non primary units we've have. Where does that data come from? This was data that was put together by a host compliance. When we initially started this, the study. When was that? When was that? Yeah, I mean. It was March of 2018. My question is, more than that, we have a data set, and I know that there's another data set that other people have talked about. And perhaps whenever we're looking at this data, we could make sure we're comparing, you know what? Whether I don't know what the other platform is that people have used to compare data, I know that it's difficult to get. The second part is. I lost my thought. I'm really trying to to get to a place where I'm comfortable tonight. Having the percentage go up. I want to make sure that it's it's a process that this council has to go through again. The percent is still an issue, a challenge. And I'll give one more round to hear from my colleagues and then and then see where we're at. And my last question is, you made a change, I think, to limit all vacation rentals in the entire city to 90 days. So. In my neighborhood. I have a neighbor who lives here part year and they live in Utah part of the year. So they wouldn't be able to rent out their home anymore for part of the year when they're gone. And so is there any flexibility in allowing people who use it as their primary residence? So when. They. Rent it, when they're. If it's their primary residence, they get 90 days currently in the ordinance. The goal was to make sure that we're not having big companies come in. I don't know if they're if staff wants to talk about another process that might be able to help somebody that lives here half time. So the problem with that is not in your side, but the staff determined a new a new made up rule of what a primary residence is. It has no legal or taxation standing. And so they determined out of their analysis, 275 days make something a primary residence. And that's means that you go out of town for maybe the summer. But that's not the experience of people who take care of family out of state and all those. And I think it's the majority of experience. And when we start trying to govern for every half of a percent of a population, then we get in a sticky place. I would just argue and again, against development services, no disrespect, I appreciate the work that you did. In my talking with platforms, I think that the average number of people for a non primary residence and again the definition of non primary is completely it shouldn't be named that but. The number of days they extend to their property does not align with what development services staff are saying. That's all. Thank you. I am going to ensure Bruno. Thank you. I'd like to follow up on the 90 day rule. Consider for at least the east side. Think of the north neighborhood north of Cal State, Long Beach, north of Atherton, between Olivetti and Bellflower. So our stories are, I would say, primarily student housing. So classes started today at Cal State Long Beach, and they'll end on May eight. And that, I think is 108 days. So if there's nothing magical about the 90 days, you could extend it to, say, 120 days and accommodate student housing for a semester. A little different than the folks giving up their house for the summer. You could actually accommodate student housing this way. And then I just want to get in the weeds a little bit on the petition issue. As I said, we don't have a lot of good experience in the fourth year. We have a lot of experience with petitions, and it has to do with preferential parking districts. Every street that dead ends into Atherton from Palo Verde to Bellflower, is a preferential parking district street. Every one of those streets had to have a petition signed by the neighbors. And what we found through trial and error, and this was at the recommendation of public works, is do this by mail. A lot of speakers here warned about pitting neighbor against neighbor of you send neighbors out with a petition. You have two problems. You're welcoming arguments. And also you might have a sales job on behalf of the person circulating the petition. We found very few neutral petition carriers in preferential parking. So I guess maybe since we're in the mode of friendly amendments, if we're talking about petitions, I would make a friendly amendment that this be done by mail. Thank you. Fine. And are you going to. Oh. We're going to go with these emotions. We're going to wait to everyone finish The Apprentice, because we've got about nine of them. And when we go see the attorneys, we're just going to continue until we make the final motions. Right. I don't think we're there yet. I'm not sure if I understood. Counsel man super, super, nice, friendly amendment. It is to require that a petition be circulated via email right then door to door. So, Councilwoman Pierce, is that something that you can embrace? So it would require a petition to go out via mail rather than a door to door solicitation. I think I'm okay with that. Okay. You've got to think a little bit because it's the first time I've heard it. Okay. I'll. I'll speak at the very end and reconfirm. Okay. I want t o minimize. It's an interesting concept because it doesn't require the residents to circulate the petition door to door and get themselves in a confrontational situation. I like it. I'm wondering, is there a way that we can validate the signatures and, you know, make sure that the the property. Address matches up with the property owner that's on the signature and all of that. Is there some sort of verification or maybe an affirmation that can be included in the petition from the person who signs it? So typically we would probably on a going forward basis, if this were to pass as part of the implementing regulations, we would probably draft a form of a petition that would include an affirmation swearing under penalty of perjury. As I understood the main motion part of what Councilwoman Pierce wants is for the city clerk's office to take the responsibility for verifying the signatures. They're well versed in doing that. I assume they can do that in this case. Yep. Yeah. I think that actually would work out a lot better for the residents as well, because they don't have to put themselves in a situation where they're having those uncomfortable conversations. I like it to the extent that that matters. I like it. I did want to also add. Councilmember, I hate to interrupt, but we should bring back to you some of the cost of mailing as well. That currently is when we do preferential parking that's passed on to the people who are doing it. It's normally a pretty small area. If we're talking of a larger area, we should get you that information so that you have it. I think that would be important, but I would like it to be included in the ordinance. We can discuss it when we do, when it comes back to us and we have to vote on it. But I think that the neighborhood. Organizations that want to circulate the petition can bear the cost of that depending on what it is. But I think the cost of mailing is, is, is probably manageable. But I am interested in seeing that now. Right now, the ordinance as proposed says the timing of the opt out petition process is 180 days after. I don't have the language in front of me, but after the law is adopted, is that correct? Yes. But. Including Coastal Commission. It's 180 days after Coastal Commission. 180 days after coastal. Right. So laws adopted approved by coastal 180 days after. Is the statute of limitations in terms of when you can bring up circulate a petition? I think that's problematic because if you look about look at this and look at generations to come, you know, maybe the neighborhood is okay with the vacation rentals in their home today, but maybe future generations aren't. So what I would like to do is add a provision that allows for residents to file. A, quote. Request for consideration to circulate petition. After the. Timeline has expired. So if the timeline has expired, they can petition development services for a request for consideration to circulate petition. If that was permitted. The threshold would be two thirds of the. Property owners in the tract, not 50 plus one, and they would have to get signatures gathered and submitted within 60 days. So it allows for the neighborhood to continue to have an interest in circulating a petition in their neighborhood, but requires them to petition development services for the opportunity to do so. It raises the threshold. So that there are protections in there to ensure that there's enough outreach conducted on the law, since the law won't be fresh as it will be 180 days out. So as I understand, that proposal is in essence, there will there will always be an opt out provision, if you would opt out within the first 180 days with 50% plus one anytime after that, you could opt out with the census tract. Two thirds. Yes. And with a request to enter. With a request to develop an observation. I guess that was a question to me. Add the proposed ordinance and I can tell you what page it's on. It says that the 180 days are after it's approved by Coastal Commission. So right now, as the ordinance is written, you have 180 days from the date, whatever date that is, that Coastal Commission approves it. Right now, as it's written, there would be no more opportunity to petition. So ten years from now, a neighborhood couldn't petition for an opt out. This is saying that even once that statutory period has run, you can apply for consideration to circulate a petition. So just for clarification, the way it's currently written there is and correct me if I'm wrong, but there is an opt out provision after three years. So if they were off or if they were. If the. If an area had actually opted out, then three years later people would come back and it could be repealed. So the onus is on the people that want to repeal it to circulate a petition. That's for those that have already opted out. Correct. Not for a fresh opt out petition. I would like opportunities for fresh opt out petitions as homes change, generations change, characters change, etc.. Thank you. This woman appears to accept that as a friendly. I guess my one question is on the. Mike is on the two thirds versus 50%. So originally you're okay with 50%, but not for the latter period. I mean, it would make sense to make some consistency. So if you could make it 50% plus one, then I would be comfortable with it. Sure, I'm the owner and I'm open to it. The only reason I was trying to do that is to distinguish petitions filed in the initial petition hearing from those filed after the petition period. And so it's placing upon the petitioners an additional burden because they've fallen outside of the petition period. But I'm happy to. I mean, if we're going to just make a 50 plus one, then why even have a termination period? Well, I mean, I think that that was some discussion around having it always be available, but not wanting it to be all the time. You know, if it was 180 days rolling, then you would be able to maybe every 180 days have an option, I guess. I don't I d on't like the two thirds number. I feel like that is difficult. So. Okay. And so we. Can make it 50% plus one for the petition. But I think there should be a petition process because even look. I'm good with the process. Yeah. Yeah. The property owners who are choosing to rent their house out as a vacation rental and going through the city process to get licensed and following the rules, also have rights that we need to honor and respect. And they need to be able to have some sort of notice of when their restrictions on their property are going to change and their opportunities. As I've said before, this was the one area that I, I was really trying to focus on the caps and the other areas. So this is where I dug in. But it just makes sense to me if we're going have 50% that it stayed consistent, if that's where we're at. So I appreciate that. So. So now the the I guess the accepted friendly is that at any time a neighborhood could opt out at any time with 50% plus one. So whether so we would. Right now the way it's written is they would have to choose to opt out within 180 days after Coastal Commission approval. But if we remove that restriction, they would be able to opt out at any time with 50% plus one is that I just want make sure that's understand. I think that's where Councilmember Pearce is comfortable. Yes. And comfortable with the mail piece as well. Thanks. Still have to petition if it's outside of that window. Okay. So the only. Okay. So. So the only difference is, after 180 days, they would have to request permission from development services to circulate a petition. But they wouldn't have to do that in the first hundred and 80 days. Excuse me. No, we don't have. Company. I'm. I made a friendly. It was not accepted, so it was accepted in a different form. So I'm really not sure where we're at. I want the property owner to be able to have some notice that there's going to be petitions circulated about his or her property and to have some understanding of when that might come so that it's not in perpetuity. And so I, I assume that happens. Putting forth an appeal process would allow them to put forth the effort, but would have a different standard than the initial statutory period. But I'm open to hearing ideas and thoughts because maybe someone else has a better pathway for us to get there. Okay. So we're not there on that particular friendly yet. Okay. And just thanks, everybody, for going through. This process with us. Okay, fine. Councilman, your anger. Thank you, Vice Mayor. The the excuse me. If I missed part of the conversation, I had to take a bio break. Yeah, of. In regards to the discussion that we had earlier, I didn't hear any more about the number versus the percentage. And then there was a discussion again about reintroducing the percentage and forget the number. So where are we with that? Is it is it is it a number or is it a percentage? What are we looking for? I don't think that we've settled on anything. There's been a lot of discussion. We've talked about 950, seven 5500, a half a percent, a 4%. So that's still up for consideration. All right. In terms of the current discussion that we had just finished right now. Just wondering if. We're still looking at census tracts when we're looking at opting out or we're looking at there was a. We can't decide that one either. Okay. I am missing nothing. Right? I'll. I'll come back later. We got Councilwoman Cindy us. Question was answered already. Sorry. Up if I thank you. Councilman Austin. So from my observations and just to quote our city attorney, I don't think we're there yet. And. In the SEC for the sake of time. And I don't know if we're going to get there tonight either. It just sounds like there's a lot of a lot of open ended items still here. And, you know, Counsel, we can we can just queue up and keep showing up over and over again. We have to land on something. Right. And I understand, Councilmember Pearce, you are you know, you said you don't you don't feel good about certain things that have been proposed. But I'm really appealing to us all to find some compromise here. I think the original plan from staff was 1700, which was obviously not a number that that I'm hearing that there's consensus on a not another number was thrown out in a thousand because that's 1% and there's no real consensus here. I'm not hearing that. Then I heard a half a percent and still there's no consensus on that. Okay. Yeah, I think I mean, we have to land somewhere and I will. I don't want to. My district, there's not I'm not hearing a whole lot of rumblings from my constituents around this particular issue. I recognize that this is an issue that impacts our downtown and our coastal communities. And so I'm giving a lot of deference this evening to my colleagues who represent those those communities that are most impacted. But we have to get somewhere. And I guess I'm just I'm appealing to you guys to figure it out. You sit next to each other, you're talking to each other. And again, you know, our time is limited. And so I'm not going to take up my 5 minutes. I'm just going to say that that I was willing to go with 1%. I'm willing to go with 5%. I want to move this issue so that we can have some clarity for for many stakeholders that have come out here this evening to advocate for one position or another. Oh, thanks. Thank you. I know no one. I knew that like we go into tomorrow on this, but it looks like that's what we're going to do. So I'm going to take this back to. This is mango. We are going to get emotional and eventually we. I think if possible, I'm okay. Right. So to kind of wrap in Councilman Price's comments. Councilman Pearce proposed that every year this comes back to the council. And so what I would request is that 180 days resets every year at the time that it comes back to the council. So let's say and the staff will know more if we land on something. Soon. Meaning tonight? When would this come back? As an ordinance to be adopted? And when would that go into place? Well. There's a lot of changes. I know a lot of changes. I mean, we would try to get it back within a month and there's going to be a lot of drafting to to get it in order. But. So we're talking February would be a potential first reading. March would be a second reading. It would implement in June, July. Technically June or July. But honestly, this involves the coastal zone and wouldn't become effective in the coastal zone. And typically we don't like the bifurcates. So I see it a year in front of the Coastal Commission before we had a finalized ordinance and I would not be surprised if the Coastal Commission sent us back some of their own changes. Okay, so let's start with this. I propose that we target implementation of

October one. The reason this is significant is it is also the beginning of the budget year. So if we do decide to siphon off a percentage of funding in a way to something or the other, that means that every year on October one, that licensing period resets. And if we change from 1000 to 500, we'll be able to reset the budget at a coordinated time so we can change the amount we expect to receive in total. So my friendly would be that. The ordinance. Hopefully implement on October one or if any other date in future years. It come back to council by July 1st for consideration of the housing stock, for adjustments of availability that we start with. I'm just going to put it out there because it sounded like people had a kind of consensus around 1,006%. Okay. No, no. I see two no's, but I don't see any other noes besides the 2%, the two one. So if I have to. Okay, I'll make a substitute motion. My substitute motion is and I know this is hard, but I think we can get consensus here. And I'm really trying to work within the framework you started. I'm open to going down to half a percent, if that makes you feel better. Which is. 850. Don't make a substitute. Okay, so here's my. I want to land like I we got to land on something. I do have s here is my district. Not nearly as many as the two of you, but I have had very heated conversations about these. So resets every year brought back to council with the housing stock in July. That we start with point a half a percent. Half a percent is 850. Which is less than a thousand, which is way less than 1700. It's half of 1700 until the housing stock is 9%, at which time there would be a recommendation to consider increasing it. And I think that there's importance behind the housing advocates. The less units you have in the market, the less amount. If we really get to move forward with putting the money into affordable housing, the less money there is for the affordable housing side. So I think that's something to also consider, right? And then that the ballot process start with a petition that opens every year in July. And is mailed to the situs address. That's the landlord's on record address at the assessor's office of the 100 closest residences. And the reason I say this is right now we have a process in development services that both you and I have tried to work on that costs people $5,000 for a permit to get something done because they have to mail to 1000 feet of the permit. And so I am 100% supportive of the mail idea. But I also think it's really important that we not make it so expensive that neighborhoods can't afford to start the process. And so I was I'm open to the 300 closest residents. I'm open to 100 closest residents. When you call the assessor's office, you give an address, they draw a circle around it, and they send you an Excel file that has the address, the situs address of everyone that is in that GIS mapping zone, and it costs like $29. So that would solve the problem of people who don't live in your neighborhood making decisions for you. Because my census tracts are large and some of the ones in downtown are extremely large. So that would be my friendly counsel. And can I just add that it will be a lot more practical? Is the radius around the that the the area. That's what I just said. You said the 100 nearest. Did you mean a radius. Well it would be a radius, yes. But the challenge is the radius around one unit in Councilman Pearce's district is going to be way more units than in mine. Not if we're talking about you have 38. The way we do it right now, it's a radius around the property, right? It's a distance radius. Not it doesn't consider the number of units. It's however many, many units are within that radius. Right. And respectfully, the assessor's office can draw a radius and when it hits 300 units or properties, they can push pause. X. Hartline is the guy who does it. Yeah, I'm just saying because otherwise if you take one property in Councilwoman Pearce's district, she could theoretically have 3000 mailers. So if you want to ban an STR in second district in census tract and I have the exact census tract, it will cost someone thousands of dollars to do that mailing. It would just be prohibitive. And I was just trying to be respectful to people who have a bad neighbor that's a bad landlord. So or I'm also open to a substitute motion to bring this back in two weeks where staff do an idea of all the things they've heard tonight and bring it back again. But I also want to be respectful of the people who are here for the pool and all the other items tonight too. Councilman Mongo The radius mailing works very well with projects that we have coming before us because we draw the radius from the project itself. But here, I don't know where you'd start drawing the radius. In other words, would it be the person who had the idea to institute a potential ban? Would you draw the 300 the. House you'd like to ban? Well, you want to just ban a whole neighborhood without a bad landlord. Well, yeah, that's what we're that's what we've been talking about, that that whole neighborhoods, even though they may not even have a urban or a role, could. Could petition to op

t out of this entire process. So that is not what I discussed at this dais when this came last time. So just as the heads up that I made a friendly or discussed this other alternative, and I'm shocked that it didn't make it into the ordinance because when I was trying to talk with staff about how do you have. Good landlords. And then 3800 people who they don't know get to tell them they can't have it. Even though they have a point of order. It's my time. So and you're but a few minutes over. And so I waited for two months and that's. The chair's decision. That is so true. Now we're going to move on. I also have the ability to do point of order maximum. And first. I would like to call a question and see where we're at. Okay. So I am going to you know, yes, 1700 was what was on the table before. But we've had somebody here make a motion for a thousand and we've had someone make a motion for 500. So I would like to make a motion. All the things that I read earlier, the small changes, and to include a max cap at 750. With the male opt out. Census tracts. With 50% plus one. And I accept the the petitioning annually from my other two council colleagues. That seems like that's where the support is. And I want to I know that this has taken a long time, but I needed to hear from my counsel colleagues before making a final motion. So that is my motion. Can I get a second? I've already second in the motion and I'm okay. Or is this a brand new motion? I was the motion we did earlier, plus what we just talked about. Okay. So I'm the second of that motion. I accept that. I do ask staff to if you could please clarify what you believe the opt out provision means in light of the amendments, because I wanted to make sure that that was clear for our residents. I think when we envision. The opt out provision, it wasn't based around a bad actor, it was just neighborhoods. Having a sense of whether or not the. Neighborhood collectively wanted to have non hosted or non primary actors in the neighborhood. It was not at all based upon a problem property. It was just the concept. Do we want them and do we want to support them or. Do we not? And non primary ACR would be in layperson's terms, a vacation rental where the owner is not living there. It's being rented out up to 365 days a year. Okay. 19 is correct. For the non primary, nine primaries, not 90 days. I made that motion earlier. Yes. She wants to make it 90 for everyone. I tried to. I must have missed that. I thought it was vacation homes could go. I'm talking about non primary vacation rentals. Yeah. As the ordinance is written, that's how it is. I called it hosted Unhosted. That unhosted be. 90 days across the board. Oh, I can't support that. I'm sorry. I must have missed that. I can't support that. Point of order here. There's a motion that I see here that was not seconded. Does that motion die? Yeah. There's not there's not a motive. There's nothing here. Right. Right now that Councilwoman Price has made a moti

on. Councilwoman Pierce has seconded the motion. There's been a number of friends. Sorry. Councilwoman Pierce has made the motion. Councilman, Woman Price has seconded the motion. There have been a number of friendlies, some of which have been accepted, some of which have not been accepted. One of the first notes I took from Councilwoman Pierce's motion was that there would be a 90 day max across the city for Unhosted rentals. Now. The other part. Is that. She called for the question. We didn't vote out of question. She went on and made another motion. No, added to it. Look, I know I don't think she made another motion. I think she was revising her motion to reflect the comments of the other council members so that we could at least land on whatever the magic number is for. If we can. The total number of short term rentals that we would have in the city. I think the better way of putting it would have been instead of saying kind of question you say, I want to amend my motion. I wanted to amend my motion to add that. We keep. The comments. Yeah, that's fine. It's been a long discussion. We've talked about a lot of issues. I want to. I do want a vote, which is why I said call the question, because I would like to take a vote and see where we're at with 750. With the changes that I made to the 90 days and with. That being able to be petitioned annually. So the things that we talked about. So I want to be clear on the petition. So. Any time after this has been implemented, this ordinance has been implemented. Anyone within a census tract could start the process on an annual basis to opt out. So yes. Are we still having a first opt out period? In other words, are they required to opt out with? It's currently written that they are required to opt out within 180 days initially and we could keep that. And then on an annual basis, people could choose to initiate that process. Is that what you're intending? I think that that's the intent of on some price. Yes. Yes. Okay. So the initial period, they have 180 days to opt out. That would re trigger every calendar year after that. Correct. Call the question. Just have the. Vote. I. Okay. So is that okay? Can you make exceptions up to this point? I'm not sure if Councilwoman Mongo because I can't see the board if she got a second for her motion. Daryl gave her a second. So, yes, there is room for a substitute. Substitute. And Councilwoman Pryce indicated that she's going to make a substitute substitute motion. Thank you. Yet the proposed ordinance, I'm going to request that the 1%, which is roughly 1700, be amended to 1000 maximum non primary rentals and that that number can change is subject to change based on the vacancy rates of the city, which shall be reported to council on an annual basis. My motion also requests that. The opt out provision that is included in the proposed ordinance be changed to reflect a threshold of 50% plus one instead of two thirds of the property owners within the census tracts to b e petitioned by mail option. Cost of that will go to the census tract and will be reported back by council at the next meeting. My motion is that the platform. Be expected to remove the name of anyone that's on the prohibition list from their site and that they be expected to work with city staff to update that list on a regular basis as determined by development services to be. Appropriate. Let me just look at some of my other. Well, she's looking at that. I have another parliamentary question here. There are some aspects of the substitute substitute motion that I like and others that I don't. We break it up. We vote on it. Piece by piece. When we break up, for example, though, break out the 1000. More on that. Break out the. That's how we did the friendlies the other day. The. Without a doubt. About. Yeah, about 50 plus one. I like that. But you see, there's one motion there that I don't like. So if I wanted to write the baby with the bathwater, I'd rather use throughout the bathwater and keep the baby. Hmm. That's a good idea. I mean, what? I mean, that's up to you. I mean, I would work better with that if we go down a list. Yes. Yes. But I need further clarification on your motion, because I want to make sure your motion is rather compact, which I like. But are you are that's the totality of your motion, right? So there were a bunch of friendlies and things that cause that were in relationship to Councilwoman Pierce's motion. That's not part of yours. No. But I want to make sure that the opt out is specific to non primary. Properties. So Unhosted whatever we want to call it, the vacation rentals. So so your motion is in essence to adopt the staff's recommendation as reflected in the draft ordinance, except for the basically two points that you just raised. Yes. As to that. Yes. So if if so, basically, my motion has two components, the number of properties that can be available for rental as a short term rental and the opt out provision. So that's my substitute substitute. I'd like to keep it as simple as possible if if the city attorney's is amenable to it, I'd like to take those two items and take them as separate votes. You could make a motion to divide the question and also was willing to divide the question. I make a motion to divide the question. Is there a second? Okay. With that, I make a motion to reduce the staff's recommendation of 1% of housing stock, which would be roughly 1700. I'd like to reduce that number to 1000. Non primary short term rentals cap. Are we ready to vote on it? Yes, I. So is there a there's there is second to that. Okay. Mongo is second to that. So all we're voting on now is the cap. And the motion is to approve a cap with a limit of 1000. Nine primary. That's the motion. Look got. Yeah. You can discuss it. Yes, but you will get the vote. Can you discuss it now? Yes. Do we vote? You can discuss it before you vote. I'm in support of this item of seconding it. While I would prefer 0.6%, which is a thousand units, so that as we add units to the market, more becomes available. Would you be open 2.6%, which is approximately 1000? It's between 950 and 1020. I don't know the exact number. I'd like the numerical cap at 1000 to try to get. I'll still. Support it. And. Okay. Mrs. Occupy's peers actually got it. Well, I was on the speaker's list. I see that I have a real hard time with a thousand considering I just made a motion for 750. So let's, let's vote on a thousand, and we're just gonna have to go through this process, guys. Okay. The vote on whether or not to accept 1000 is the cap. Yes or no? The motion carries. Okay. I'd like to make a motion that the opt out provision that's listed in the staff's recommendation have a lowered threshold to allow for 50% plus one of the census tract of property owners, and that the property owners have the opportunity to circulate the petition on an annual basis. This cache all. Motion carries. That concludes this item, basically. And we will bring back an ordinance as soon as we can. I'm sorry. Yeah. And that included I clarified with Councilwoman Pryce that that her motion included the staff recommendation. Save for those two items that we voted on separately. So I. Okay. You got me, guys, because I thought that we had passed out being able to vote on different things and there were some administrative things that I wanted to get in. I understand the support wasn't there for the for the 90 days, but it would be a courtesy if I could read back and have voted on the other items that that are about enforcement. We've been doing this for a long time today. I would I mean, I have no objection to that. But to be. Fair. We can do that, can we? To be fair. I think there was an agreement for the 750 that you were recommending. But then we got tied up on the opt out process and it got very confusing. So the substitute substitute was an effort to try to simplify matters and narrow the issues. If council colleagues want to open that up and look at other issues, I'm happy to do so. But I think we were we had a lot of agreement until we got into some disagreement at the end and the conversation wasn't moving forward. And I would hate for one minute to throw off a lot of work that was done previously. And I was not clear that that this part was not going to be part of that vote. No, because that's not. The way this will come back for a new first reading. So there would be an opportunity if the new first reading to further tweak the ordinance from a minor. I mean, you know, you have to pass it, but you could make minor tweaks to it. Certainly if you wanted to accomplish what you're suggesting, Councilwoman Pearce, someone would have to make a motion to rescind the action we just took and opened it all back up. I just wanted to be quick, so I'm going to make a motion so I at least so we don't have to wait an order. Can we follow the speaker's list? Motion for reconsider place. Several speakers list. Can she does you have to queue for t hat or no. No, but it would have to be somebody that voted in the. I guess you did vote in the majority. Did you vote for this? Yeah. You didn't vote for the first part. So it has to be somebody that voted for it to make a motion to reconsider. Make a motion to reconsider to allow Council member Pearce to put the items that she feels are important into this record. Okay, so do we have a second for that motion? Yes. All right. So we have a second now. Let's take a vote on the motion to reconsider. Yes or no? Comes membership in our. Watching carries. I right. I was the second year of the motion where reconsidering. So now. I'd like to make a motion. I will read this as quickly as possible. Point of order. It's a substitute. Substitute, so I think it's friendly. And we could still play for Kate. That's correct. Yeah. This would be a friendly. This is mainly administrative things that that we talked about earlier. We'll leave out the 90 days. So I would like to add and I read these sections earlier, so I'll try to go fast under section 70, a hosting platforms shall not process or complete any booking transactions for any ACR unless the ACR has a valid current registration issued by the city to the operator. Hosting platforms are required to list the SDR registration number and the date that that permit does expire. Hosting platforms shall not process or complete any booking transactions that would exceed the number of days in Section five zero partitioning ten Section 90. D. If three fines have been issued against an STR. We want to replace the word STR with a host. Section 90. And Section 90 F, I and J. I'd like to replace the words any person with any person, any host platform or SDR operator in all three of those. It's unlawful to host unless the responsibilities of seven zero are not fully complied with. And those are the changes that I would like to have a vote on. But friendly. I accept them as well, but I would like to be able to speak through the speakers list. It's up to you to. Anyone copy the question? Because all for the question. It's my last comment. I just wanted to thank everyone because I know it's a frustrating process for you, but I know that even though many of us are frustrated, I think this has been one of the most rewarding policy developments that we've actually gone through. I know that it's unfortunate that it has to go through a substitute and a substitute substitute. And I don't want people to think that because they weren't the maker of the motion, that there's not a lot of recognition and support for the way that the policy was brought forward. So I just think that that's important because I know that we don't always agree, and I know that the crowd doesn't always support everyone. And I think that eventually we got to a place that was great, and I just thought that that was really important. I just want to be clear before we vote. We're not dividing the question this time. We we're clear on the question with t he friendlies that were accepted by Councilwoman Pryce. That would be my request. Yes. We are good. We can cover the vote, please. That's when the subpoena. Motion carries. Now let's deal with short term rentals. You guys are my. If you look at them. Yeah. Okay. We're going to take a three minute break and come back to Belmont Pool. I'll be here for the pool. You know. Absolutely. Councilwoman. Right. Councilwoman Sun has councilmember peers. Councilwoman Price. Council Member. Subpoena. Councilwoman. Mango. Vice Mayor Andrews. Councilmember Muranga. Councilman Austin. Councilmember Richardson. Amir Garcia. We have a quorum. All right. Is. Excuse me, is that number 22? Okay. Yes, we're going to we're going to move some call 22. It's going to take us about 5 minutes. And then we're going to go to the big oh, my pool item. Thank you, Mr. Memo. Now we're going to move on to do we have any motions on the second to approve this consent calendar? Well, okay, fine. Well, we'll move on to item number two. We're going to move two items, 1 to 2024. So we move to item 25. Craig, would you please? Regarding Item 25 Communication from Councilwoman Mango. Recommendation to increase appropriations in the Special Advertising and promotion fund group in the City Manager Department by $6,000 for their support of the annual Giving Gala 2020 event at the Long Beach Exchange. Thank you. I am so proud to support this great community borne initiative where the language exchange joins forces with 18 local educational and charitable organizations to host a main event fundraiser. This has taken place at different locations throughout the city and we are excited that it will take place at Long Beach Exchange this year if approved by the council organizations consisting of local neighborhood associations, educational foundations and booster clubs, parent teacher, student associations, youth music programs, animal welfare groups, disability and grief support services and more have all come together for one big event. Join me in supporting a good cause and enjoy food tastings of restaurants at the Long Beach Exchange. Music will be provided by ROC for Vets, an impactful organization which provides much needed music therapy to our veterans. Opening for them will be Millikan Gold Jazz Combo, a student jazz group from our very own Millikan High School. And the event is open to the public and allows for greater connectivity and support of the organizations that are most invested in our greater Long Beach community. If there's any additional questions, I am open to answering those questions. Otherwise, I urge my colleagues to support this item. Thank you, Councilwoman Price. I support this. Thank you. Hi. Let's called for the vote. No, let me come in on the second. There is no public comment on this item. I didn't. Anyone, please call for the vote. Motion carries. Thank you. And thank you all for for being out here this evening. We've had a request to move up item 23, which is, I believe, a reading of the ordinance that was adopted at the last meeting. And so we will do that. Madam Court. Item 23 is Communication from City Attorney Recommendation to declare ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to just cause for termination of tenancy and declaring the urgency thereof. Read the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading City Y. Thank you, Mr. Motorcar or Mr. Park. Any. Any reports? Yes. Time. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, very quickly for your consideration as requested last week or as directed last week. Before you is the proposed ordinance, I think exactly in accord with what you asked me to do. Just to state what might already be self-evident by the council letter. There are two ordinances attached. The first one is a clean ordinance which would be adopted if it passes tonight. The second one is a Red Lion, intended to show in easily readable contrast exactly how the ordinance that is before you tonight differs from AB 1482, otherwise known as the Tenant Protection Act. With that, I think the council letter is self-explanatory. I'm happy to answer any questions. Thank you. Mr. Monica, do you have anything else to add to that or. I think we're ready right now. Councilman. And do you mind if I go to a public comment or did you want to speak first? Okay. We have ten speakers, which will be down to 90 seconds. Let me take the first five speakers in this order. Not a Tushnet, Fred Sutton, Katie, Alma, Sandra Tommasini and Roberto Lopez. Please come forward in that order that a Tushnet, Fred Sutton, Katie Romer, Sandra Tommasini and Roberto Lopez. My name. Name's If I could talk. My name? My name's Nader Tushnet. I live in the third district. I fully support this. The hole. In the state law. Is very wide, and this closes. It. It doesn't create an extra. Burden for anybody, but it does protect tenants. Who are doing what they're supposed to do. Paying the rent. Being responsible. And it allows for rehabilitation. Major rehabilitation, but. It. Also demands that people show that they're going to do the rehabilitation. So I fully support this measure. Thank you very much, Speaker, please. Honorable City Council Mayor Fred Sutton with the California Apartment Association. Thank you council members and agents for meeting with us last week. But I do want to express our disappointment in the process. There were 72 hours before this was put on the agenda last week. There was no real input. And something like this should go to at least some sort of a stakeholder meeting because there was no data provided and there is no indication anything has been done illegally. It's unfortunate because I think we could have found a way forward and we can still find a way forward. It can take time, as was mentioned last week, for a permit to actually get processed. And now we're being told that once you get that permit, you have to you can't actually start work. You need to wait 60 days if everything goes smoothly to be able to start that work. That doesn't really seem to make sense. There could be another way forward to figure this out. A.B. 1482 has substantial legal remedies. There's noticing requirements already in there and there's mandatory relocation. Upgrading is very important for the housing stock. I urge you to have a process that is not overly cumbersome and isn't designed to halt needed work. There is a middle ground here. If we just have discussions on it,

I don't think this is something needs to be Rush. I share the same goals. We do not want anything illegal being done. We want things to be done appropriately. But this is going to cause issues when someone's ready to begin work. It makes a lot of sense sometimes for it to actually be vacant before you get that permit. We can find a way forward. Appreciate you listening. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Sutton. Next speaker, please. Keep the comma. I wanted to thank you all again for moving this forward and being able and listening at our original tenant meeting. We had someone stand up and say, What? You're going to city council? That's not going to do any good. They won't do anything. And I said, You just wait. We have our neighbors on city council who understand what we're going through. So I thank you all for for listening and taking action on this and to the point that the gentleman just made. It doesn't really make any sense to me that you want people out before you get your permits. Isn't it better to be collecting the rent that's going to pay for those permits before you apply for the permits, rather than waiting and then having to wait another 6 to 8 weeks with nobody in the apartment before you can start to do any work. If you get the permit in advance, soon as somebody is out, you can start, which seems to make a lot more sense. But I just wanted to say thank you and also bring to attention that in this ordinance there is an expiration date in 2030. And I didn't understand why that's there, what purpose that serves that we have to go through this again in ten years. So if maybe if somebody could address that. Thank you. Thank you very much. Next speaker, please. Hi, I'm Sandra Tommasini. I know all of you have heard from me, all of your offices. I want to thank you for your support last week on this. I know you've heard from me again because I also take issue with the expiration date on this. SB 1482 doesn't expire. I'm not really sure. Why this does are as much fun as this has been for all of us. Don't really want to go through it. Again ten years from now. But if it's nothing over ten years, I'll take the ten years. And yeah I agree that there with Kate that there's really not an argument for. Not having to have permits beforehand. Permits take time to get. You can be getting rental income in the meantime. And again, it's just holding landlords and owners accountable for actually having the money to do these substantial renovations for actually. Go!

ng through the process of doing this has potential motivations and is not leaving it to the tenant to, after the fact. Somehow go through the civil court system to get. A remedy if it doesn't actually happen. So I think it's fantastic. That this is going. To be voted on tonight. I hope that you're going to continue to give your support to it. And again, thank you very much for your time. Thank you. Next speaker, please, Roberto Lopez. And before Mr. Lopez goes, if I can have the next final five speakers. Those are Lopez, Jordan Wynn, Max Norris, believe it says Anki Zwirner Curtis and Mike Murchison. If those folks can please line up at the podium. Mr. LAWRENCE Hello, everybody. Councilmembers and mayor, thank you so much for your support on this. And all we're doing is just clarifying the law and addressing one of the loopholes on AP 1482. I do appreciate the bold step and helping protect the tenants in the city of Long Beach. I currently as a project. Director, Lieber have 40. Cases of folks with 60 day notices. And, you know, I'm open to working with any offices and providing some of the addresses, if that's something that folks want to look at. You know, 40 is way too many, right? And it's 40 plus like the people that live in there, the kids that I have to go through, the stress that the parents are passing on to them. And, you know, the you know, owners can actually go into the units and look at what needs to get done as long as they get proper notice. And I think they're taking this step. What we're doing is just clarifying the law. And I appreciate you for doing this. And on behalf of Ray, you know, thank you so much and have a good one. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Hello. Good afternoon, everyone. My name is Lisa Lopez and I am a Proud Dissector resident. I moved to Long Beach in August to continue my studies in CSO B and it didn't take long for me to fall in love with the city and its people. I would love to continue to live and grow in the city and would be sad and to have to move to another city due to an unjust eviction. I know there has been an ask for data and as we know, that data is not available, nor does it reflect the realities of tenants who have been evicted and are affecting. And I have been affected by existing loopholes. Today, I'm here. To thank you and ask you to continue to support and pass item number 23 of the agenda to help protect not only myself, but my neighbors as well. I was here last Tuesday and was proud to see the amount of support that this item received from you all and from community. Members that were here as well and. Those who cannot make it. Thank you for your time and I truly hope that our voices, stories and love for the city are taken into account when making your decision. Thank you very much. Next speaker Jordan Wynn. Hi there. Jordan Wynn, District two resident I stand here in support of item 23. I want to thank you all for last week. Taking

the law of the land of California and helping make sure that we clarify and keep families safe and keep families home. I want to keep this short. I really am looking forward to another unanimous passage on this, and I'm hoping that we continue to protect all of our residents across the city. Thank you so much. Thank you very much, Mr. Norris. Good afternoon, counsel. Mr. Mayor. I usually speak from a general place of ethics and morals when I come up here, but this weekend I had a very personal experience with this law that was very disturbing. I was looking for an apartment and I went to speak to an individual renting a space on 10th just near the supermarket there. Just what is that, west of Long Beach Boulevard. And there was some kids playing outside. They were a little rowdy. I had no problem with that. But he seemed to think that I did and assured me that they were being evicted and that they wouldn't be an issue once I took possession, if I were to make, you know, to be in this unit, I dug around a little bit and play devil's advocate with him. And this was how he was doing it. He didn't have permits. He was just going to paint the apartment, you know, and he was evicting a family. It looked like at least two, three very young kids, two of them running around in diapers. And he didn't seem to have any qualms with it. Now, I understand that people are buying a property and seeking an investment here, but the role of the government is to protect the people who are the weakest. And that's not being done here in Long Beach. And it may be too late, I think, but some action late is better than nothing. I would support taking the ten year cap off of it and moving forward as a small step towards bigger steps in the future. I thank you for your support on this measure. Thank you. And are the last two speakers to support. Did. Mayor Garcia. Dear Congresswoman and a councilwoman and councilman. Sorry. I just moved into that city. I've been working at UCLA and USC, and I wish I could stand here with my husband, who was a history teacher at Cal State Long Beach for 30 years. He cannot be here because he's teaching. He has class tonight. And we're very supporters of the arts in that city. But we've been kicked out of our apartment. Just last week, we carried boxes from A to B because we found a new place, which is nice, but not all of our neighbors had the same possibility. So I would also would like to come back to what was discussed beforehand, that we have to spend a lot more money for our new apartment, which we would like to spend for L.A. Opera or Long Beach Opera, Long Beach theaters and culture. But we cannot, because we have to spend it on rent. So the first thing we discuss or you discuss today goes along was what we're discussing right now. Thank you so much. Thank you so much on our last speaker. Good evening, mayor and council members. My name is Mike Murchison. I'm here on behalf of the Small Property Owners Alliance and the Apartment Ass ociation. I want to call your attention. It's under the red line that Rich Anthony called out if you have a chance to look at it. So on page six of your red line document, I'm asking for you folks to consider kind of a balanced approach here, something that is a level playing field, especially for the rental property owners who got hit with this. The thing I'm looking for is if you look at under it's page six, under two D, it talks about reasonably detailed information needs to be provided to the tenants. Who decides what's reasonably? Whose definition is it of reasonably? It goes on to say why it cannot be reasonably accomplished in a safe manner with the tenant in place. Who decides that? Is that the city of Long Beach? Is that code enforcement? Is it a civil remedy? The final one, it talks about why it requires a tenant to vacate for at least 30 days. Again, what if a tenant disagrees with what you determine is substantial renovation right now in the city of Long Beach, you get a permit it last 90 days. There is no way if you put this on the books that that permit is going to be valid. It's going to expire. Yes. Development services will tell you that you can get an extension. You can't get that extension. From what my understanding is online, you've got to come down to city hall. How many times does a rental property need to come down to City Hall? I ask you to please look at page six on that red line and ask yourself who is the final arbiter? Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman in House. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you all for coming and speaking on this item. I do have some questions that I would like clarification on. Right now, we have a moratorium on evictions covered, covering all notices since January 1st. Is that true? Councilmember. Technically, technically, that's not true. Last week you did not take an action which prohibited notices. But if this passes. But that's a technicality. If this passes tonight, then all pending notices as of tonight will be null and void retroactive to January one. Okay. Thank you for that clarification. Also, I have had a lot of residents contact my office about the notices and to vacate that they are expecting, you know, expiring very shortly within the next couple weeks and beginning of March. Before this item gets hurt the second time. So. What can be done about that. So it's kind of my second question. Is that answered by your your answer to my first question? No, I think if I understand you correctly, you mentioned a second reading of this ordinance. If the urgency component of this ordinance, which will be done via a separate vote, if that passes tonight, five votes, then there will be no second reading. It will be immediately effective as of today. Okay. Thank you. Thank you for that clarification. Thank you, customer Pearce. Thank you. Again, thank you, everybody, for coming out and speaking tonight. I have two very quick questions. One on the the comments made by Mr. Merchants and on who decides.

That's a judge that decides. Is that correct? Yeah, that's my understanding, the way that it's written. You take issue with what's reasonably. We tried to get some general language in there which provided some detail, but not too much where it would be onerous. You're right. Ultimately, it would be up to a justice of the superior court handling unlawful detainers to determine whether the notice was valid or not. Wonderful. And then can you just give us some clarity on the expiration date? Yes. Notwithstanding what the speaker said, it caused me to question myself for a second, but I just looked up the log in 1482 Section 1940 6.2 J of the Civil Code clearly states that it sunsets January one, 2030. Great. So we've taken the state. We've barely touched this, just closing that one gap. So really thank you, colleagues, for the unanimous vote last week. I hope that we can count on the same today. And thank you, everybody, for being. Engaged on this. Thank you. And Councilwoman Price. I do have a question for Miss Tatum this this period of time that the permit is good for. I know the extensions can be given, but is it possible to extend that period of time from 90 days to maybe 120 days? What would that entail? What impacts would that have if we were to modify that in terms of this discussion? Or if you're talking about a code amendment, that would be a separate amendment that would have to come back to the city council for consideration. I would just give you a little bit of background. That time period, let me just repeat reiterate last week's discussion about the process. The in reality, the practices that once a permit is issued, staff generally assumes that they have a six month time period within which to act on that permit. Technically, the code does state 90 days. However, it doesn't hit anybody's radar until six months. And at that point in time, if any applicant needs an extension staff very freely. Grants extensions. It's never been an issue with anyone requesting and receiving an extension of a building permit. And the purpose behind having that 90 days, which was changed, I'm going to say a couple of building permit cycles ago because the city felt that there was an interest in once a permit is pulled rather than having a building being in a condition of disrepair. The city council asked that that number be reduced from the previous six months in the code to 90 days in order to have a lever to try to help move projects along in term, and so that they don't sit in a state of disrepair for a lengthy period of time. And again, in practice, staff has always been extremely flexible in granting extensions on any building permit. But to answer your question briefly, it would require a change to the to the city's municipal code to extend that time from the current 90 day time period to 180 days or any other time period. Okay. So thank you for that clarification. It makes a lot of sense to me. So what I'm hearing you say is that although the code has the permit be in existence for 90 days, our custom and practice is to not initiate any enforcement action or contact until six months. But we would because the code requires 90 days. We would obviously respond to complaints if if for some reason our property there was nothing happening on a property that 90 days had expired. So we will be reactive, but we won't necessarily be proactive unless that six month period has passed. That is correct. Okay. That makes a lot of sense. And then the purpose of shortening it from six months to 90 days was it's probably a bad analogy, but just to keep a shorter leash so that we can go in and give a gentle nudge to keep things moving along. That is correct. Is there any way that we can make the extension process more user friendly? Can we make that an online application? That is something that we are currently exploring and I'm certainly willing to look into that in a little bit more detail and bring something back to the city council. Okay. So I think if it's. Would that require another reading? Mr.. Anthony. If we requested that that if I offer that as a friendly to come back to council as a TFF. Yeah, we certainly can't make any changes to 18.0 4.060 tonight. It wasn't agenda ized, but if you want to request that as a friendly or a substitute to direct to council or sorry staff to bring something back, you can write. I don't want to amend the ordinance, but I do want to request the TFF. So what would be the best way to do that without having to notice it as a separate item at a future meeting?

You can just give the direction tonight. Okay. I'd like to give that direction if unless there's any objection from my colleagues. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes, thank you. I may, first of all, like to think, Councilwoman Cynthia, to bringing this item forward, because this week I made some house calls with the Long Beach, you know, housing and and my residents, the sixth District was being displaced under this significant improvement clause. You know, I checked these permits and denim had been pulled. And you can tell that some of these places I've already was able to visit, they were already being vacated. And so with that, I just wanted to let you know that these things sometimes people think that this really is not the truth. And I have one of my residents here in the audience, because the fact that he was in one of those situations where you had the eviction notices given to you. But all I can tell you that I think that this clause, that's what we're talking about. I know it fits. And I think it's a good clause that we really need to be using. So I just want to let the housing of Long Beach. I'm just glad that they were their words when they see that these things are really going on. So I just hope that we continue to keep up the fight. Thank you very much. Thank you, Councilman. Councilman Supernormal. Thank you. I just wanted a little bit of clarification on Councilw oman Price's amendment here or motion. Would this be all encompassing as far as what comes back? The earliest meeting would be March 10th, I think is the next time we meet. But would we be able to look at everything on this, like whether or not we should change the timeframe? Are we looking at specifics on this? Well, let me just first say, my understanding of the friendly in Councilmember Price can correct me if I'm wrong was effectively the motion on the floor is to adopt staff's recommendation but to direct I'm sorry the ordinance that was brought back but to ask staff to bring back a24 from memo at some point in the near future which wouldn't really come back before the council in a meeting. It would just be a TFF a memo to the council members regarding the status of online permit extensions. Just allowing people to. Okay. So thank you for that clarification. So we're not talking about an extension of days we have here. What we have is practice, but the letter of the law is 90 days. If anyone ever wanted to enforce that, that's my understanding. That's my understanding of what's before you right now as well. And Councilmember, we can add in the two from four if it helps for clarity purposes what the process is right now that you're explaining that we give six months time to be able to before we start initiating that so that there's some written record, that that's our practice. That's exactly what I'm asking for. So thank you for that clarification. Oh, dear. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. I appreciate the clarification. I was supportive of Councilwoman Price's friendly. Thank you. There's a motion and a second. Please cast your votes. So memo appears. Bush and Kerry. We need two motions of urgency and then the substance. So. So in case it wasn't clear that motion was on the urgency of the ordinance. We have a second motion now. I just need a second on that motion. And members. Bruce Gordon Caster. Votes. Ocean case. All right. Thank you very much. Moving on to the rest of the agenda, we're going to we're going to jump to item item 16, which is a report on the African-American Cultural Center, which is is is very exciting. Meeting can proceed. Thank you. Okay. Mr. Mayor, thank you very much. We will have John Keiser and Teresa Chandler available to give a short staff report. Essentially, as we all know, during this COVID 19 crisis. One of the things we are also looking at is how we can shelter additional individuals. We are looking at social distancing our homeless individuals, too, as they come into the shelter. So this will allow us to do that. I really want to thank Duncan Bryson for the support and using the North Library and we essentially would be contracting to do beds out at the North Library and the approval of this is recommended so that we can move forward with that. So that's the short snap report. If you'd like anything further, John and Teresa can answer questions. Thank you. Before I go down the road, I know Councilman Austin i s in your district. So did you have motion? Well, first of all, I like to say a lot about my personal property to be able to accommodate the homeless population, global financial crisis or external crisis. And so I think my sense is, of course, we will hopefully with nominal support. I will just say that I certainly support the the efforts to. Expand more broadly and speak for those who are on the environment and social justice dealing with this. That will certainly help us in that regard. I know there are some differences in terms of how this has been traditionally used, and I think that will. The salt was welcome to the shelter for the past two years. No, no. We understand how the operation will work. But we will run this operation and we have experience doing so. And they have been remarkable partnering with the city for the last couple of years, particularly working out of the old library, running the shelter there, and confident in that partnership. The only difference in this is that this will, I understand, be run 24 hours. And so I'm taking the motion. But I would love for you to also talk a little bit about how these operations are going to be different and what considerations we've given to public safety as well, because the model lives in the community and the impact in a residential area as well. So again, I make the motion, I absolutely support that. I would love to have some dialog with the House and quite the commission on how operations are to operate moving forward. Can I get a second please? Councilmember Pearce. Refer to. It by the second, by councilor appears. Everyone else put their phone on mute. Mr. Modica, can you answer Councilman Alston's questions? Thank you. Yes, council on behalf. And we take that very seriously. We realize these are in neighborhoods and that they have to be very well-run and well managed, and we've had a lot of experience with that. So I'd like to turn it over to Theresa Chandler, our interim deputy city manager, to talk a little bit about those provisions. Teresa. Hi. Thank you. This is Teresa Chandler. First of all, I want to thank Councilmember Austin for your support in allowing this opportunity for the winter shelter to move or relocate to the north facility. We are working with the provider us that's and the funder Lizer to ensure that the neighborhood stays safe and our community members who are utilizing the shelter stay safe. There's 24 seven security guards who are onsite, as well as a full staff of case managers and folks who are doing triage and intake throughout the day who will be managing the site. We will also be working with our partners in the community. Are the quality of life officers in that area and all of the the other supports that we have available to ensure that everyone stays safe at that time. Also, in light of of COVID 19, just making sure that social distancing is practice. So during the day, we do encourage people to go to the multi-service center for showers and there

's, you know, space in place there as well. So not everybody will be staying at the shelter all day. They have opportunity to go to the multi-service center for showers and in case management and things of that sort. Let me let me go ahead and move down to our government option. These are questions get answered. Thank you, y'all. Appreciate it. Okay. Different one. Thank you, Mayor. I think that this is very important. Obviously, with social distancing, that's something that I was really worried about because it's even more scary to see how it could be spread through our homeless population. And like I said, that's really scary. Me son, glad to see that we're making, you know, moves and in an effort to really respect this social distancing again, which is what is needed of us right now. So I'm totally in support of both of them. Thank you. Dr. Pierce? Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I was happy to second this item. I wanted to thank North Long Beach and also the first District and the seventh District for always really being the location where we're able to find either shelters or resources places for people to keep their belongings. The multi-service center and recognize that you guys continue to have the majority of those services in your district. So I wanted to thank you guys for that. I wanted to take a moment just to ask staff in the second District and putting up close to the third. We obviously have a strong homeless population. Echo Park have been a bit challenging lately and recognizing sometimes it's difficult to get folks to move from Bixby up to North Long Beach. Can you just take a moment on this item to speak to how we are looking at new facilities or locations during this crisis? And I'm particularly asking I know Tom and I spoke this morning about this. Yes. Councilmember So we also have some resources coming in from the state. This has become a statewide priority to fund continuum of care, just like Long Beach and large cities too, with funding to be able to open up additional shelters. We are working on that right now. We hope to have another shelter open up later this week. And that's something that we've been putting a lot of priority on. And we are still looking for other opportunities as well. So we're trying to be creative and not just looking at the typical sites, but with a number of sites that are out there now that do not have the public in them. What can we be using to expand sheltering opportunities? So that is a priority for us. And as we identify sites will be, we'll be rolling those out as we can. Right. Thank you. And I just, you know, a comment to some of our small businesses that might have bigger properties. You know, I know we've got school facilities, but this is a time whenever we should be opening up as many facilities as possible. So if folks can think of locations, we should definitely be communicating that with our city staff. And I welcome whatever resources we can have in the Second District. But thank you, Co

uncilmember Austin, for partnering, obviously, with the city to make sure that we have another site provided. Thank you. Think about this for three. I do want to echo the comments of my colleagues and thank city staff for working on the winter shelter and extending the winter shelter. I will say that Councilman Austin Kaplan, Mungo and I had an opportunity, I think it was last year, to do a site visit at the winter shelter. And it was it was a really great opportunity for us to see the operation and see the work of us, that very, very impressive work that's taking place there. I also want to echo the comments of Council on that morning course. I do know that every single council member, every single one, whether they have facilities or not, is certainly open to and having communications all the time with city managers regarding how we as council members representing a specific district can be part of the solution. And so I want to thank all my colleagues for that because I know that to the extent that we're offered opportunities to be part of the solution, we're usually very amenable to doing so, at least this council. AS And one example of that is for this winter shelter. Councilwoman Pearson I actually added a pick up and drop off location for the winter shelter in Bexley Park, which borders our two districts. So I think that's been, you know, really the first time we've had a pick up drop off location for homeless in the third district. So I want to continue to look at opportunities to incorporate different types of solutions in every district so that we can work together on our common goals. And again, I want to thank Theresa Chandler and her team for getting us to this point. Thanks. Thank you. Just before. Thank you. I'd like to thank. City staff also. And a special thank you to Councilman Al Austin for stepping up once again. And I yield the floor. But I just also want to thank Alfa's work. Thank you. With respect. So thank you for stepping up to the plate. You know, the winning shot has been a success before two years. And so I'm thankful that we are joining us now and I'm excited for the energy to open on the scoreboard soon. So you guys get ready. Thank you again. Our great job. Thank you. District seven. I want to extend my appreciation to the staff working on this. I know that they're looking at other sites as well around the city so that we can ensure that those resources are vulnerable. I will try to help. Thank you very much and thank you all. Thank you. District nine. I'm sorry. District eight. Anything else out? No. Let's think of votes. Okay. And then finally, Katherine Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Sure. Thanks, Councilman Austin and Seth, one thing I want to I want to read up. So if I understand that there are some additional costs associated with the way that we do social distancing and all those things always happen into those $80 for that. Or we going back to the funder. To. Those. I've checked in with us based and othe rs about this and I know that this is a concern. Thank you. Do. Councilman. Yeah. That was a question for Sam. I know, I know. I stop answering that. That's your. Yes, Theresa. My apologies. The question is, are we looking at you directly? Accuse me utilizing other funding? Yes, we are working with the state and they have sent down the emergency funding. We received the award letter today and we're working with our internal team to figure out how to best allocate those funds. The funding is specifically for sheltering in place and isolation as needed and also looking at shelter opportunities. And so we just literally just received the funding awards and we'll be working through that this week. Thank you. And just to be clear, we could connect offline. My understanding is that there is a gap with the winter shelter, given some of the new considerations on COVID and social distancing. And I just want to make sure that those that us that and others know that we have their back that will be a backstop because they're deploying our resources right now to make sure that they just get it up and open. We want to make sure that the funding that funding is available to help close that gap so we can connect. Thank you. Okay. Yes, we are having those conversations and also with the latter, who is funding the winter shelter programing? The PUP shelters are funded differently. So we can definitely talk offline about that. Perfect. Thank you. Thank. Thank you. And we're going to take a vote. Madam Court. Roll call. Council District one. Oh. Council District two. I. Council District three. I Council District four. I. Council District five. High. Council District six. Arts Council District seven. High Council District eight. High Council District nine. All right. Motion carries. Okay. Great question, Kerry. Then moving on to 39, please. Report from economic development. Recommendation to execute all necessary documents to amend the EDA Revolving Loan Fund to create the Long Beach Emergency Microenterprise Loan Program to assist local microbusinesses impacted by COVID 19 citywide. Okay. This is a report from staff. Yes. Jon Kate Blair, director of economic development, will give the staff report. Yeah. Good evening, Mayor and members of the city council. This is a really good, positive change. In response to the current emergency, we've operated a revolving loan fund program since the Los Angeles riots of 91. We established that fund in partnership with the Economic Development Administration, a federal agency with an initial $1 million grant. Over the last 30 years, we've made $10 million worth of loans off of that initial $1 million grant for this particular emergency. We've asked the Economic Development Administration to change this program and in the terms to allow us to make a much smaller $10,000 and less loans. We've also changed some of the terms for repayment so that small businesses will have up to seven years to repay these $10,000 loans. This allows t he city council to make a lot more loans to local small businesses with five employees or less. Typically, these are the businesses that are unable to secure SBA loans. The bigger loan programs that you've been hearing about and fills an important gap for both for profit and nonprofit micro businesses in the city of Long Beach . So we're asking for your approval to modify what's called the Economic Development Administration Plan. This will occur during the period of the emergency. After this funding is loaned out, of course, we'll seek repayment. We'll provide technical assistance to the borrowers and hope that we don't experience a lot of loan losses and see the revolving loan fund be capitalized at the end of the term. So with that, I'll end my report and happy to answer any questions. Thank you, Governor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I want to start by thanking John. We have had a lot of conversation about this, but I think it's important that as we first of all, as we look at the different sectors of response and there's a lot of support, federal response for, you know, credit worthy businesses and this is already happening that these are, in fact, the things that really make a difference. This action is also in alignment with the city council economic relief package this week. One of the items that we asked to come back from the road to see just how we would quickly we understand the economic impact that that's taking place on our businesses. And I think that the way that we're approaching this as Microsoft flight mode makes a lot of sense, either by five employees or fewer. And even we think we've really been be concerned about the hard time that the folks to deal with are readily available messengers of many of our vulnerable communities, as you know, from from the beta, you know, and what we've been doing. Those are the people we need working with. And they're all having a very difficult time. By late, House staff will work to find ways to make this program more accessible, more flexible and more responsive. I like that there's no theme. I like the image, the format. I love the cap on interest rate. That's one half percent. All of these modifications make sure that we remove barriers to make sure that makes sure that this actually ends up in the hands of the businesses and not the. And I'm happy to make this motion. Thank you. Customers. And they have. Thank you. And there I would like to second this motion. I, I absolutely love the idea of converting an existing and successful program to meet the demands of this crisis that we're in right now. So I'm in full support of this program. Thank you for stopping to start placing your office, for being innovative and quick thinking and and remembering those businesses that are not contracted by our SBA loans. So thank you. And I'm happy to step into of them. Thank you. Councilman Austin. Thank you. I'm happy to support with as you know, there are many small businesses in my district and throughout the city that are really, really hurting at this point. And this type of initiatives actually brings, I think, help and hope for those businesses that are that are really taking it hard with this effort, home shutdown that we're experiencing. And so I'm happy to say that this. Thank you. And Councilmember Pearce. Theme, happy to support, happy to give props to the Economic Development Department. And John, I know that we had a good conversation about this on Friday. And I just want to highlight, you know, whenever people are applying for these grants at the state level or the federal level, it has been so frustrating for so many of our business owners. But the feedback I've gotten from the Second District businesses that have applied and been approved for grants or loans through the study is about how helpful our staff has been, how quickly they got a response. And so the more that the city is able to be nimble and provide these opportunities for our constituents, I think the better. You know, I think there's a definite role for for the federal government to play. But really in Long Beach, what I've heard is just that we are really setting the model for how to be nimble and how to make sure that we're doing things in a way that makes sense to the everyday user. And so, again, just really proud of the work that you guys are doing during this difficult time. So I'm happy to vote yes. Thank you. And that concludes public comment. I'm sorry, I can't comment on this item. So, Madam Clerk, roll call vote, please. District one. Hi. District two. I. District three. High District four. By. District five. I. District six. By District seven. So District eight. High District nine, high ocean carries. Hi. Motion carries with you now item 90. Item

19 Report from Financial Management Recommendation to receive and file the Fiscal Year 20/21 Budget Performance Report City Wide. Mr. America. Thank you very much, Mr. Mayor. We will have a report from our Director of financial management, John Growth, and our budget manager. Manager Great Noon. Essentially, we provided a document to the public and to the council about the impacts of COVID 19. And that's something that we'll go over with now with our with our finance team. Good evening. And member of the city council. This is Greece. This is the first performance report of our flight and includes an initial assessment of the COVID 19 pandemic impact on our flight to finances, as well as the potential impact on outyear budget projections. This report, as our city manager just mentioned, is based primarily on the April 13th, 2020 memo that is needed as an attachment to the performance. The COVID 19 pandemic, along with the measure and litigation, has exacerbated our projected budget situation. The Budget Office, under the direction of the city manager, will develop a plan to address the situation, which may be a multi-year plan to be implemented over several years. The size of the projected shortfalls indic ates that there will likely be significant impact assessments beginning next year and at FY21. Long Beach is not alone in this. As many cities in California and across the country are dealing with the financial crisis caused by the pandemic and having to consider similar major actions. This projection is based on assumptions and information available during the early stages of the pandemic. So it is important to note that the economic and. Can't hear anything. Hi. This is John GROSS. I can continue this. Can you hear me? Okay. Go for it. Okay. So but Grace was saying is it's important to note that the economic environment and impacts are constantly changing and we will be impacted constantly. We will. Shortfall at the end of. I think Greece is coming in and out. Let me continue. For this report. We anticipate that there are five funds that are impacted, the general fund measure a special advertising and promotion entitlement and the airport. Yes, Grace. I'm continuing because you're going in and out, so it might be easier for me to continue. So we expect about 38 to 44 million in overall revenue losses or unbudgeted expenditure increases across the fund, across all these funds for the general fund we're talking about for FY 20 potential shortfall of 14 to 22 million. If no corrective actions taken in Greece, then the manager will be taking some corrective action. This shortfall takes into account potential revenue losses and expenses related to the pandemic that are unbudgeted and not reimbursable. And it does not include any costs that may come from assistance to businesses. For Measure A based on the current projection. We're expecting a shortfall in revenues of around $7 million, but due to strong up by 19 performance, we are expecting to end on budget based on current projections for Measure eight. We just don't have extra money for special advertising and promotion fund. Were anticipating a revenue loss of about $2 million and by the end of the year the funds available may drop from 5 million to only about 900,000 at the end of the year. The budgeted expenses in FY20 are not reduced. We still do have an operating reserve of 5 million set aside for operating profit fluctuations and the future Olympics. Four Titans. There's going to be a revenue shortfall of at least $6 million, primarily in oil revenue. And future projection updates will also take into account the potential loss of ancillary revenue used to pay debt service entitlement fines, which include potentially the aquarium, the Queen Mary and Rainbow Harbor. For the airport fund. We're expecting a revenue loss of about $10 million in this year due to low passenger volume. And there is currently a very high cash stream due to both that revenue loss and the cost of capital improvement projects. And the airport staff is reviewing those actions. We've been really helped recently by $18 million from the CARES Act and that will really help the situation. Other funds are anticipated to be im pacted by the pandemic, but with a lesser overall impact. As the manager and a decrease talked about, the city manager is implementing budget actions with regard to the pandemic spending to protect the city and its services as much as we can. We will certainly spend whatever we need to spend to address the pandemic. The actions we may take and the is looking at is evaluation of one time projects for saving, reduction of non-pandemic operating expenses where feasible, and actively looking for funding and other mechanisms to offset the cost. In addition, if we need to, we may need to go look at using city's operating and emergency reserves at the end of the year. The bottom line is that the pandemic is having a significant and severe impact on our finances. We will continue to update our projections and update City Council on new development strategies and actions being taken, and that includes the staff report. And hopefully Greece is back on the line and we're available to answer questions. Yeah. Thank you, John. I am back on a daily there this time, so hopefully the connection will be better. But thank you very much. Thank you and thank you both for a great presentation. So I want to just briefly just say that I'm just so impressed with our finance team. I think we all have nothing but great things to say about this team. And you guys have been just really fantastic during this crisis. What's the most important thing in this emergency is to ensure that we are providing assistance to the public, making sure that public safety resources are out there and that we are doing everything we can with our resources to take care of the public and make sure people are safe and healthy. And you guys have all been quick to make that adapt, to make changes, and to then begin preparing for the future. I think we should all be prepared and understand that the budget this upcoming year is going to be tough, it's going to be hard, and we're going to have some tough decisions to make. And I know that the Council is committed to centering and ensuring that people remain safe and healthy as our top priorities. And it's going to require us to also reprioritize other things that may have been important in the past. And we need to know and be certain that that the future of our city has to be being prepared to take on these large health challenges to stay, keep people safe, and provide those basic services that people expect. And so I think all of that is going to be in front of us in the future, and I look forward to those discussions in the months ahead. Councilmember, your anger. Thank you, Mary. I think I totally support everything that you said. The staff has been doing an excellent job and making solvent through a move to approve the report. Thank you. Could somebody cue up a second, please? If I can get a second and a second by Councilman Richardson. But then government. Do you want to add anything? But for the most. Okay. Councilwoman, I'm going to give anything to add. I just want to thank everyone for the work. And I think it's going to be critical that the reimbursements come in. And the second tier on a multi-year approach, I think is the most. Prudent. Way to handle a lot of these big challenges. And I think that we're just going to need to be patient. With Aaron and pitch in. Because we need to come up with a way to make sure that we. Protect our. Workforce and our city services for the taxpayers. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce. I support the motion and I really want to thank the team, both the finance team and POM. I think you guys have done a great job. I'm really happy that years ago somebody decided to put together an additional fund, so I know that we'll end up relying on that. Hopefully not as much, but I think everyone's done a great job. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Pryce. No comments, Mr. Mayor. I was just a little late to the game of extending the motion. No, no problem. Catherine Ashton. They also want to just congratulate. Well thanks down for for this is very very clear look at our budget projection over the next fiscal year. I want to go to the summary of actions. It's certainly support this, but I did have some questions regarding this four points in the summary on the staff report and the three. As far as where people place a hold or counsel discretionary one time pandemic related expenditures, which I certainly support and suggest that we should avoid starting or expanding to what are discretionary and structural programs. I would absolutely support reduced budgets, structural costs, while support that improves because you see savings in that piece. I want to kind of get in on what exactly does that mean? Mr. GROSS Increase simplification. That means we're going to institute potentially hiring freezes. A couple. Remember at this time we are not implementing a hard hiring freeze, but that is definitely something. We are working with the city manager's office to evaluate and consider what we mean by increasing vacancy savings. And we are taking a much harder look and scrutinizing requests from departments to fill positions that are currently vacant right now and evaluating the filling of those vacant positions to ask whether this position can be delayed in hiring due to the redirection of staff to respond to the COVID response? Or is this something that we could put on pause longer term? And as we evaluate each case on a case by case basis, and if there are positions we delay in hiring, that will naturally create savings within the department's operating budget on a one time basis, at least for now, within FY20. So in approving this item tonight, are we giving staff the go ahead to move and take these actions? Implementing actions. Just remember we. So Councilmember this time. So we're essentially just kind of outlining what our strategy is. The council is going to be fully plugged in before we start canceling any major projects. So we're in the evaluati on phase. We're managing the budget kind of on a daily basis. So in terms of, like great said, we're going to evaluate whether we need to fill positions or not. But we if and we're looking at every single expense about whether or not we should move forward. So I am placing some holds on those so that we can generate savings. But before we completely cancel any projects that, you know, you'll get a report from us on, on what our recommendations are and be able to weigh in on those going forward. Thank you. I just need that clarification. Thank you, Councilmember. I think that concludes our coverage of the questions, councilman, often about. Okay, great. We'll do a roll call vote on the motion in a second. Madam Clerk. District one, district two. By. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six. District seven. II. District eight. Art District nine. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. Motion carries. Thank you for that. We're going to have a had a request to move item 28. So we'll go ahead and move item 28. Adam Court. Thank you. Now we'll take up. Vice Mayor Andrews will be recusing himself for the next item. And our item 18 promotion. Any second, please. A move by Councilmember Ranga to approve. Can I get a second? And then moved by Councilmember Richardson on the second. Let's do a roll call vote, please, Madam Clerk. District one. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I District five. I. District six. District seven. Hi. District eight. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you very much. That concludes the consent calendar. We do have one hearing, so I didn't 23 and so we'll go ahead and hear that item, please. I District six. I. District seven. District seven. Are. Yes. District eight. District nine. I do that. All right. Motion carries or she carries. Next step will be item 28. Right. Thank you. And now let's go ahead and do item five. So, Madam Clerk, through the roll call. Recommendation to enter into a reimbursement agreement with the Long Beach Unified School District to conduct an 11 week summer swim program. Districts three, five, six, seven and nine. This is a report from Parks, Recreation and Marine. Do we have a mover and a seconder? I have emotion. I have emotion by Councilmember Richardson and a second by

Councilmember Ranga. So let's go ahead and do a Caldwell's District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District seven. I. District eight. Hi. District nine. All right. Ocean carries. Thank you. Motion carries. Now I will be taking up item 21, which is the Harbor Commission appointments. City wide. Thank you. I have a motion. Bye bye. Richardson a second by Bazemore Andrews. Please do a roll call vote. District one. District two. I District three. I. District four. I. District five i. District six. District six. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. I. Ocean carry item 20, please. Actually. I'm sorry, I. I'm 19. Thank you. City Council. I think that's going to be a great relief for a lot of folks. Appreciate that. Let's move on to the rest of the agenda. Let's see. Next up is item 16, which is. Stars. Report from Development Services Recommendation of declare ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code related to short term rentals. Read the first time and lead up to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading and adopt a resolution to submit the ordinance amendments to the Coastal Commission citywide. Thank you. I think this is a staff report. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. We do have a report to give you kind of the history and the background of staffers and remind us of kind of where this where this sits. I will ask Linda Tatum, our director of development services, and Charles Staver from Development Services, to go through the report. An evening Mayor and City Council. We've had a team working on this. Project for the last couple of. Years, and that team includes the Our Administrative and Financial Services Bureau manager Lisa Fall and Jill Stauber, our real estate project coordinator. So Jill will give a brief overview of the proposed ordinance. All right. Good evening. In January of this year, staff presented a draft ordinance regulating short term rentals. And we are back tonight for a new first reading following that discussion. This brief presentation provides a recap of the proposed regulations and also highlights the changes requested by council in January. With the slide forward. Okay for some background in 2017. At the request of City Council staff conducted research and recommended hiring a consultant to conduct a more thorough study. Throughout 2018, we held a series of community outreach events. An online survey conducted several case studies and presented our findings and recommendations to City Council for discussion. At that time, Council instructed the city attorney to draft an ordinance in 2019

. Staff responded to additional questions, created a phased implementation plan, and executed a voluntary tax collection agreement with Airbnb, and ultimately drafted an ordinance allowing for limited staffers . Then in January of this year, the Council discussed the item and requested some changes to the ordinance. So here's a recap of some key elements of the ordinance and establishes that we vocal annual city registration and fee protects the housing stock by limiting the number of non primary residence staffers citywide to no more than 1000 units. Includes enforcement provisions and a mechanism to remove individual bad actors. Requires a limited event permit to exceed the maximum occupancy limits. And allows residential property owners to petition for a prohibition on Unhosted staffers in their neighborhood. The slide shows the maximum number of stars any one operator would be allowed to operate. As a reminder, a primary residence star is defined as the unit where the host resides at least 275 nights per year. And during that time, any guest stays are considered hosted and there's no limit on hosted stays. So that would only leave up to 90 days maximum per year in which that unit could be rented as an unhosted stay. By definition, it's also worth noting that the majority of operators in Long Beach are currently operating only one unit. Here are just some of the basic regulations, including collection of transient occupancy tax. Homeowners associations may request inclusion on a STR prohibited properties list. Occupancy is limited to two guests per legally permitted bedroom plus two with a maximum of ten guests and staffers are prohibited and deed restricted. Affordable housing units, dormitories and adus. Yeah. And the enforcement provisions of the ordinance are the key to dealing with operators that do not abide by the rules. Violations would be subject to $1,000 fine per day, except a 30 day warning period shall be provided for advertising in store without a valid registration. And of course, you only get one of those. There is a 24 seven complaint hotline with a live operator upon issuance of three fines. The STR registration may be revoked. Violations include but are not limited to failure of local contact to take action to a complaint within one hour of completing a booking transaction without a valid city issued registration number. Violations of STR. Maximum occupancy. And conduct. Or activities that constitute a public nuisance. In order for the program to be successful, we'll need the cooperation of the hosting platforms, particularly for removing listings that have not registered or have had their registrations revoked. So hosting platforms cannot complete any booking transactions for an STR. If notified by the city that a valid SDR registration number has not been issued to the operator platform, so remove any listings upon notification from the city and on a monthly basis the platform so provide to the city. The SDR registration n umber of each listing name of operator address of the SDR unit number of days each unit was booked and the total price paid for each rental. The petition to prohibit Unhosted stickers is one of the areas that the council asks us to take a closer look at in January. So there are a couple of changes the property owners can petition to prohibit unhosted stars within a census tract or block group, and I'll discuss the group in more detail in the coming slide. Is now a simple majority of the residential property owners that must sign a petition to prohibit unhosted stays. Upon request for the city to initiate a petition, signatures will be collected by the city staff via US mail. If the petition is approved, the restriction remains in effect for three years, at which point the restriction can be lifted by a similar petition process. The initial petition process is available within 180 days of the effective date, and a new 180 day petition process period shall be established annually thereafter. The boundary of the prohibition we had previously recommended using the census tract. But there is some concern that a full census tract was too large an area and also that the corresponding cost could be prohibitive. So a census tract is still an option for your consideration tonight. But what staff is now recommending is using the census block group. A census block group is a geographical unit used by the United States Census Bureau, which is between the census block and the census tract. All census tracts in Long Beach consist of between three and eight census block groups. Using block groups also increases the petitioning party's chance for a successful petition for those more localized neighborhoods that have a strong desire to opt out. To give you a visual idea of a census tract versus a census. BLOCK We're going to show you two maps of the same census tract. So this map shows one residential census tract surrounded by the black lines. And the next. And this is the same census tract showing the census block groups within that tract. So there are six block groups within that census tract, their smaller geographical drop geographically. And this is the the boundary that we are now proposing. So pending council action tonight. This would be our updated timeline for implementing the ordinance. If the reading is approved tonight, then the final reading would be June 2nd. But the ordinance would not go into effect for an additional 121 days or four months, during which time the registration process would be set up. And we would select the compliance monitoring consultant. The initial registration period would last 160 days over a six month full register, full enforcement would begin at the end of that initial registration period. And just to clarify, the initial 180 days is not the only opportunity you have to register. People will be allowed to apply for registration after the initial 180 days. The next step would be to adopt an ordinance amending Title 21 of the municipal code. That's the zoning code, submit the local Coastal Program Amendment to the California Coastal Commission for approval and develop the implementation guidelines, which would be the actual registration process. That concludes the reports. We are happy to answer questions. Thank you. Thank you very much. Let me. I have a motion and a second, Councilmember Pierce, and then a second I think is going to be by Councilman Price. But let me turn this over to Councilmember Pearce. Great. Thank you so much. I really want to say how much I appreciate staff's work on this and. Hey, Robert. Oh, man. I like when people use video. I appreciate staff's work on this. I appreciate the years that we have trying to get this right. And I think it's unfortunate that we're bringing this forward in a period of COVID, because when we brought this forward, it was a time when our economy was strong, our hospitality industry was around 78% occupancy. Our housing needed to be looked at. We saw housing prices increasing every month. And so today it is not that reality. But I want to recognize the value that short term rentals have for mom and pops that, you know, if they need the additional income that they're in their house and they're saying that we want to make sure that this is something that that can bring them that additional revenue. And so I say all of that because I think that it's important that we realize that we are not in the same era that we were when we brought this item forward originally and I moved my motion. So they are so organized and I got unorganized. Okay. So trying to find the balance in between small business owners who host their homes, the native visitors that desire alternatives to hotels, the necessity of the city to protect our neighborhoods while allowing us to in the budget needs for enforcing this ordinance. This council has worked very hard to strike that balance. And COVID 19 hit. Our hotels have been hit hard. They've stayed engaged, working with the city, working with the health department to implement training and cleaning standards within all of their hotels. Meanwhile, we have not had a substantive conversation about what the future of stars means in a COVID era. So before I make my motion, I actually have some questions for the city staff around the health orders and how short term rentals fall into to play within our health orders. Are they deemed essential? Do we have cleaning standards for them? And so staff, if you could answer some of those questions for me, that'd be great. We do have the city attorney on the line, Councilwoman Pierce, and he is prepared. To respond to that. That question regarding the city's health order. And that is city attorney and deputy city attorney Mike Mays. Thank you. Mr. Mes or Ms.. Galatia. If. They're not. Okay, Councilman Pierce, member of City Council. Can you hear me, Mike? Yeah. All right. Currently, the health order, the city's existing health order does not directly mentioned short term rentals. It is not considered to be an essential business. So therefore, under the order, if the ordinance was passed tonight, under the current order, short term rentals would still not be allowed until the order is released or amended once, but several more times, probably. So it's not directly covered. The ordinance itself, as you said, Councilman Pearce was drafted in a different era before COVID. So there are no standards written into the ordinance that pertain to cleaning and sanitizing anything of that nature. It was just assumed that the operators would come. So there isn't any guidelines in the current ordinance to address that issue. Right. Thank you for that. And I expect that as businesses are coming back on, as the phases are changing, that there will be new standards applied to each one of those at that time. I do want to offer for transparency. I want to share with everyone that I did ask if there was a way to postpone this item so that we weren't hearing it in the middle of COVID. But we do have other items that are really important, like the Mello Act and our inclusionary housing and staff has worked really hard on this, and from the presentation that they just shared, it is going to take, you know, 120 days to be able to get this program up and going. And so we know that it wouldn't be like tomorrow. We just signed this and it would go into place. So with that being said, with the consideration of our local economy. One other note before I make my motion, I'd also like to note that that I appreciate the hotels being at the table, but I also recognize that thanks to measures like Measure W hotels have cleaning standards in place, that we understand what the workload is and that there's oversight. I think we've all. I know most of us have probably stayed at an Airbnb by now or a short term rental and have great experiences. But we all have that one experience where something wasn't clean to the tee. And so I think this is a good time for us to pause on non hosted and really make sure that we have a good policy in place for the health and safety of anybody that might be staying in one. So with that, I have a motion that I'd like to make and I know that Councilmember Price has some comments to. I, I'd hope that you guys hear this motion with the full belief that that we should move forward with a program that is respectful of our tenants, of our small business owners, and of all the work that we have done through the years. So with that, my motion is to adopt the ordinance as written with the following changes only permit the operated operation of hosted expires at this time in accordance with Long Beach's COVID 19 health orders and related protocols. Request staff to work with the hosting platforms and other regulatory agencies, including the city's health department, to develop cleaning and sanitizing protocols specific to the operations of short term rentals, with an emphasis on standards for non hosted rentals. Pr

hibit the operation of non hosted staffers for a period of at least six months until and until city staff presents a report to the Council for a vote to reconsider amending the ordinance to permit non hosted stays. The report should contain the following information. Proposed cleaning and sanitizing protocols as recommended by the Health Department. Information regarding the economic impact of COVID 19 on the tourism industry in the city of Long Beach. A report on the transit occupancy tax paid to the cities by hotels and staffers during the last three years. The number of registered permitted staffers in the city since adoption of the ordinance in the city's housing rental housing vacancy at the time of the report. I've spoken with the city attorney's office and it's my understanding that these changes to the ordinance that could be made because of the motion will require that the ordinance be brought to City Council for another first reading and hopeful adoption. I. I hope that there is support for this. I feel like it's measured, it's thoughtful, considering where we're at and considering that it would that it would be only really two months of hosting while staff has the opportunity to do the work on the back end, to set up the structure, to make sure that there is enforcement and registration and all of those pieces as well. I think the work that we did the last time on the council took a lot of work. But I believe that the language that we have in place right now is the best language for our our city, based on my conversations with development services and their wish to maintain the language as we have it now. So with that, that's my motion. So I look forward to hearing your comments. Thank you. Thank you. The second is by Councilwoman Rice. Thank you. Can you hear me, Mr. Mayor? Yes. Okay, great. Thank you. And thank you to the staff for your comments on this. And thank you to Councilwoman Pierce for making the motion. I want to reiterate that I spent quite a bit of time talking with staff about the proposed ordinance and making sure that the preferred language that they have proposed is what I encourage my colleagues to adopt tonight. These are. These are novel issues to some extent for the city. And I think staff has included language in here that will allow the staff to better regulate this industry in the city as we as we welcome it as a as an operating and legitimate business in the city. So I think having staff's preferred wording in here in terms of the regulations of both the STR operator as well as the the host platform I think is very important. And so I am going to be asking my colleagues to support staff language. I do have a couple of clarification points and I think I know the answer. But just for the record. Councilmember Pearce, the unhosted stars that they would face in no earlier than six months from the adoption of the ordinance. Is that correct? Correct. So that would allow hosted to begin and get phased in, which would

d take about 120 days. And then somewhere around then is when I imagine staff will give us a report on the Unhosted regulations and the items that you thoughtfully included in the report back. And then hopefully then at that point is when we would go into the Unhosted phase, which would be about two months after the hosted is already online. I think that timeline's. Right? Yes. Okay, great. Okay. So for staff, I have I do have a question. Slide seven of your presentation, is that consistent with the language in Section 5.7, 7.50 sub a? I just want to make sure that the language on Slide seven is consistent with what's proposed in the ordinance, which is that the burden would be on the

hosting platform. My understanding is. To make sure that they include the registration numbers that. Correct. That is correct. Is the the the ordinance that's proposed includes that language. With a burden on the platform. Okay. I just want to make sure because when I looked at Slide seven and again, I'm looking at it very quickly here in the course of the the meeting and haven't had a chance to analyze it. But I just want to make sure that we're consistent. And it's my understanding that although the hosting platforms may not prefer that model, that's a model that staff believe will best allow it to enforce the order. Is that correct? That is correct. And I say that because a major component, Councilmember Pearce and I, I believe it's districts two and three that have the majority of the short term rentals that we know of right now. Is that correct? That is correct. And I know that one of the issues that we have to balance, in addition to the requests and the desires of the hosting platforms that I know have contacted, council offices is the needs and the interests and the concerns of the residents. And regulation of the stars and neighborhoods is very, very important. So I just want to make it clear, as I have from day one, that my goal would be that staff would have the tools that it needs to help easily regulate this industry so that we are mitigating neighborhood impacts such as noise and parking and public safety . So I just want to confirm I know that the. Hosting platforms, you know, maybe want prefer different language. But I did speak with staff and I know staff has a strong preference for this language. Correct. That is correct. Okay. And then I. And so I'm going to support that because I want to do whatever I can to help regulation be as easy as possible for staff. And I do know that staff is also willing to sit with with the hosting platforms after this ordinance is approved to figure out how to make that particular requirement and that language hopefully workable for all parties. Yes, we've made it very clear that we'd like to sit down with them and explore best practices as we develop the administrative procedures associated with the ordinance. Okay. And I know you will do that. But since this is perhaps not language that would have been selected init ially by the hosts and platforms, I urge you and your team to do whatever you can to try to have a meeting of the minds of how to best effectuate your intent in accordance with how they're used to running their operations. If there's an opportunity to to have a meeting of the minds, I would I would hope that that can be accomplished. And then on page 12, the language about the 180 dead. Oh, by the way, my I would like to offer a friendly to this motion that we adopt the opt out provision as to census tract blocks , not census tracts. So hopefully that's okay with you, Councilwoman Pierce? Yes, that's fine with me. Okay. Can we clarify, Councilwoman Pierce, that you meant the census block group, the the lower level. Councilwoman Pryce and Councilwoman Pierce. Yes. We want the census block groups. Okay. Thank you. So my question in regards to that is the 180 days I know I talked with you about this earlier, Ms.. Tatum, but on page 12, you know, the the language of how that 180 days would roll out. I understand the intent of it, but the language of how that would roll out and how neighborhood associations. Or block. Neighborhood track blocks would know when the 180 day period is up. I'm not sure if there's a way to fine tune that language a little bit more. Councilwoman, we we actually have proposed some language that fine tuned it and the city attorney is proposing to use that language. It does not change the intent or the substance of it in any way. The language is just rewritten to be a little bit clearer. Great. Thank you. That's. That's all I wanted to make sure. And then with that, then I have nothing further. And I just want to thank staff for their excellent work on this. Thank you, everyone. Thank you, Councilwoman. You see, I got. Next on the list is Councilwoman Mongo. Are you muted? Councilman Mongo. Okay, I'm moving on to Councilman and day house. Hello. Hello. There she is. Go ahead. Oh. Thank you. Thank you. Um, I guess I was hoping to find out the. Safer. The safety of our residents is of utmost concern to me and the safety of our residents, especially our hosts. Obviously, they can choose not to participate and not host when people come into town. But I would think that from a COVID perspective, Unhosted would be safer than the hosted. Now, I don't want to change the motion. I just think it's important. The lifeblood of a lot of these neighbors income is completely zero right now, and they are hoping that they're able to get the supplemental income or primary income in some cases back in place. And so I appreciate the balance. I also see that we've received communication, that there are already cleaning protocols that have been issued to some of the platforms limf hosts. I think this is important because right now across the region, we have first responders who are being sheltered in a lot of these platforms, vacancies during their COVID quarantine period. So they're cleaning protocols are there. I want to make sure that we keep tha t in mind and don't give a misunderstanding or misconception to the community. I actually think that measure while it did provide a limit on the number of square feet that can be cleaned by a hotel, I don't think it came with specific cleaning protocols. And if it did, I would imagine that COVID would potentially even increase those. And so I rely upon the management of those organizations to do a good job in bringing that forward in the same way that I would hope that these platforms would bring forward that work. And I say that because our staff is extremely overworked right now with COVID, it is very, very difficult for me to see additional time to be carved out for issues like this. And I appreciate Councilman Pearce's statements related to not wanting to put it on hold again. They've done so much work so far. I would just be cautious about the depth of the amount of information and what's available and the cost of that information. We often have to outsource that to vendors and consultants and that consultant. Money on those reports could be kept in-house to pay for our plumbers and our carpenters and our parks and rec staff. And so $100,000 report to me is not that high of a priority. So I guess what I would ask Councilman Pearce to do is put a financial limit on it for it to be gathered through city resources only because when we're at the chopping block where we're cutting park programs and library hours. I think we all just need to work hard on pulling data from the sources that are out there and really limiting our contractors. Is that something you'd be open to? This is Pearce. Yeah, I believe there's two things that I've asked for, and these are all things that either our health department, our economic development team or development services team could provide. I appreciate that very much. I know that the city manager had previously a previous city manager often used his management consultant fund. And I just didn't want us tapping into that under any circumstance like this. I think that that kind of consultant is really more important to be paid towards our city workers and the time that we need them. Next, I'd like to kind of just repeat something that Councilman Price said. I completely agree that the platforms are really responsible for telling us who that we if we tell them there is a violator. Miss Tatum, in our discussion the other day, if we tell them the following, 15 homes are in violation of our policy. Is it your understanding that the language in the ordinance today states that it would then be the time for the platform to remove them from the platform? That is that is correct. The ordinance has been written with a couple of purposes in mind. If we identify an unregistered ACR, we can ask them to remove it and they would be obligated to do so. However, the first premise of the ordinance is that they should not put up on the website any stars that do not have a city registration number. So we have come at it in the ordinance from both directions. And then if a person were to lie with a fake registration number or type in the registration number, that's not truthful. The platform is also providing us on a regular basis some data about who is on their platform that we can verify against our own sources to let them know that there's a piece of a host that's not appropriate. That is correct, as well as the additional resources of a consultant who specializes in data mining and having, I guess, a way to check that information. So, yes, we would have that available and the ordinance calls out for that specifically. And then if a host is potentially violating the 90 days, we would possibly get a report from neighbors. And then we would, as a city, let that platform know or let multiple platforms know because they may be only doing 90 days on one platform but say 90 days on another platform. But we would let all the platforms know and then the platforms would be required to let us know how many days that facility had been rented. That is correct, because the 90 days is a 90 day limit on the unit, not on each platform. Right. So then we as a city would have to take that data in to verify. Okay. On this platform, they did 50 days and on that platform they did 50 days. So thus they're in violation. And then we would then notify the platform that they are in violation of the city policy and they need to be taken down for the remainder of the year. Or would they lose their permit? They if they violate or exceed the 90 days and we can document that they would indeed be cited for a violation and that would count as one of the three violations that they're allowed before they would proceed to the revocation step for the as to our license. Just before we continue, I think that there's maybe a crickets or maybe someone's outside. Diane. The crickets are really loud. Oh, I'm sorry. It's okay. It's the baby's inside asleep, though. And when I talk, I'll wake her up. Well, we'll take have as the sounds of the fifth district. Thank you. I just want to make sure that that was. Maybe that was catwoman's life. Just everyone else's muted. That's what those are. That sound is. Ah, crickets. So that's fine, you know, really. Crickets. Thank you. And then just to provide some additional clarity and. When? If we pass this tonight, it will come back for second reading and then implementation will start in six months from the second reading. With. Once that implementation happens. Then the. Unhosted. Right after that it sounded like a council in Pearce added in an additional vote to the council or something, because I get some clarity on that. Yes. Councilmember Mungo. The motion that I made says that staff need to do a report with. In six months. And at that time the council would vote on what would be appropriate for non hosted stars. And the reason for that is that this entire ACR policy was crafted when we were in a very different economic situation and a very different situation with our hospitality industry. And so giving us some, some more tools in the toolbox before we decided on what that appropriate number is. So yes. Oh, you're saying? I guess my concern is if we're only allowing a thousand citywide and we're only started starting with. Posted. Theoretically, all 1000 spots could be filled by hosted. Is that correct? That is not correct. Okay. Help me. Posted is on unlimited. It said that the number that thousand was non-votes. Got it. Okay. Thank you. That helps. This motion allows for hosted to go forward now, and there's not a limit on those. And then it says, let's look at the economics and then come back and then have a discussion about what what non hosted looks like. And our housing market might be very different. We have no idea what it will look like at that time. So it makes it very difficult to bring on an entirely new, quote unquote new industry to the city in a time like what we're having right now. The question would be to Mr. Modica, we have been budgeting revenue for and hosted and hosted and we've been receiving that revenue. So what is your prediction if the motion on the floor to pass in the amount of cuts we would need to make? Due to the loss in revenue of. Potential. An Unhosted. Non allowable. Airbnb, the RBA, whatever. Yeah. So that is something we want to bring back to you at the first reading when this comes back. So there's two components of it. One is the. On General Airbnb, which they had just been it been we had done the agreement and it's gone the general trend that certainly has gone down because of COVID. So that's one impact. The second is we were planning on charging the cost of the program to the thousand units for non hosted through a registration fee as well as hosted. So with the reductions the Council is making, that's going to be a smaller amount of people who are going to be paying those registration fees. So we will come back with an estimate of how we're going to do that. It will likely be a smaller enforcement type program. So we know we may not be able to do all the enforcement that was originally envisioned until we get to a larger program and we'll report back on that when this comes back. Councilman. What was the number? I'm sorry. Just one quick thing. Mr. Modica, do we know what the number was that we were projecting in those registrations in fiscal year 20? Well, 800,000 was the TOTY, I believe, or. I'm sorry. 800 stars. You're. Yeah. Lisa forward would say that under the mike. I don't think you could hear that. As part of the Fy20 budget process, we had made a conservative estimate that there would be 800 staffers registered. That was because when we were first doing our estimates, we had assumed that. Only property. Owners in the city would be allowed. But with the change to the cap. That number then did increase. But we did not change the budget estimate with the registration being $250. The total revenue budgeted for FY 20 was $200,000. Mi lillion, 200,000 and registration fees and 800 and top of which the total is split 5050 with the city. So that would be a 100,000. No, the 800 was the number of stars generating the 200,000 and. In registration fees. The estimates for total. I'm not sure what was budgeted this year. But I. Believe that. So far this year, 1.6 million has come in for FY 20. So that would be the 800,000. That would be the 800 split into the two different funds. So 800 and general fund, 800 in SAP. So that's the numbers off the top of our head will reconfirm that when this comes back. And so, Miss Pearce, are you okay that we're going to move forward the way we are now? And would you be open to the process coming back September 1st so we could still record that 200,000 of revenue before year end on the registrations? I think that there's. There's a couple of things that maybe need clarifying. One is that we're only talking about a two month period in between when hosted would be on board and the conversation would come back around on hosting. It's a two month period. It's not a long period. The second piece is that these projections and these numbers staff is giving you are based in an economic time. When our hotels were at 80% capacity, nearly 78% capacity when the economy was strong. We have a stay at home order right now. So it doesn't matter what number we say right now. These are still not deemed to be operating nonessential businesses right now. So what I'm asking for is for us to consider the economic time that we're in right now and and be able to have that conversation in six months. So I don't think that the calculations are as big as it would be if we would have made this decision in a non-covid time, which I think is why Councilmember Price

and I are. You are here. And I think we need to just move the motion as it is. I've tried to be really thoughtful about the entire process and all SDR, so I'd like us to move forward with the motion as it is, as supported by Councilmember Price and and hear what my other colleagues have to say right now. Okay. Mango. Anything else? Well, yeah, I'd like to finish my sentence. I'm not asking for the delay. I recognize 60 days doesn't seem like a lot, but it's a difference of ending a fiscal year upside down or right side up. And I know 200,000, $250,000 doesn't seem like a lot, but $250,000 is two or three or four plumbers. And so I recognize that this is a time and again, this is I'm not talking about the million dollars that 800,000 times plus $800,000. Those are both also a big risk of loss. But again, registration fees are a person paying a fee, even though there are no reservations. And so my ask is only not to approve the unhosted today, but just that the Unhosted presentation come back September one. A couple of things. At least you'll still be on the council if it goes into November, you won't. And I thought you'd want to still be a part of this discussion. The presentation could be September 1st. Still, a deci sion doesn't necessarily need to be made that day. And again, it still could be two months later. I was just asking for the presentation to come back sooner because so many things are changing so rapidly. I appreciate that. I don't think that the presentation coming back that soon will give us a full understanding of what's happened to the tourism industry or be able to provide us with the data that that I've requested in my motion. So I. Okay, well, I'll think about it. And if I feel strongly, then maybe I'll agenda it as a separate item. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilman in Dallas. Aaron, I'll keep this really quick because I know that we have a lot on the agenda. I just wanted to say thank you to staff for all of their years of working on this. And thank you to all the council members who have brought this item to where it is today, especially council members Pierce and Price. Thank you very much. I think it's very important that we realize that there's going to be a lot of cuts that are being done and that in the next six months, maybe another, a lot of people will be using these short term rentals, the unhosted ones, because we are all you know, we all have to be very careful of traveling right now our, you know, just for safety reasons. So I just wanted to say support this item as is. And thank you very much for bringing it forward. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman de Haas, Councilwoman Press. Sorry. I do have one quick question, and that is I just was looking at the audience right now, and I cannot believe that I missed this. But in regards to the area that where we talked about the opt out. So on page 11. 5.77.080 since we're going to be adding some different language for the 180 days and since this is going to come back for a first reading anyway, I wanted to have some language in there that made it a little bit clearer of the fact that you need the majority of the property owners for the petition to prevail. And also, we had talked on January 21st about the fact that I wanted to make sure that those who were circulating the petitions were property owners, because one of the concerns that I have is we don't want people paying folks that don't have a vested interest in that neighborhood to be circulating petitions. So that was something that was that that was very clearly an intent of mine. So I'm wondering if Councilmember Pearce, if you're okay with them clarifying that intent, which was the intent from January 21st under somewhere under section 5.77.080 and making it clear how many votes are needed to prevail on this. Councilman Price, I'm sorry to interrupt you. But I'm on. Section B of that section, page 12, line three. It talks about the petition must include the signatures, printed names and addresses of a majority of the property owners of residential real property. Does that address your concern? Yes. Okay. So that's good. I see that that wording there now. Thank you. But what about the prohibition against signatur e gatherers? What? Anyway. Because this. Is being done by mail gathering. Signatures. They wouldn't people. Would be stopped in the street to get the signature. And we will be it would only be by mail. Yes. Tonight. Okay. Got it. Thank you. I appreciate that. Those are two things that I wanted clarification on. So that makes sense to me. Thank you very much. Thank you. Roll call. Vote, please, on the motion. District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. High District five. II. District six. District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine. I. Ocean carries. Thank you. All right. We have a full agenda, so I'm going to go through the next ten items we have. Should be rather quick. And then we have two items that will take a little more time because they're both a presentation. So let me go to these other items. They should go rather quickly and then we'll get to the other items. Item item 15, please. Thank you. We're down to our last two items. Let's go ahead here for item 14 next, which we'll have a short report. I know. And then we'll move on to our largest item of the night, which would be 13. So let's move on to 14. A report from city clerk and City Manager recommendation to receive and file an update on the status of the Independent Redistricting Commission applications citywide. I'm talking. Thank you, Mayor and Council. Tonight's presentation on Redistricting Commission will be given by JT Nagi, Jamar and the City Work Department. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. We will be presenting. An update on the Independent Redistricting Commission recruitment and the possible timeline changes to the process in 2021. When we last came to council on December, we presented the redistricting plan and an overview of the process. Since that presentation, we have ramped up our outreach efforts and opened the Commissioner application. On April 1st. I'm excited to announce that as of this. Morning, we have 186 applications submitted. We have far. Exceeded our expectations halfway into the application period. Heading into this, we expected around 100 to 150 total applications, which is similar to the number of other cities of our size as received during the entire application period. But we have received a great response and are now in the fortunate position where we can target certain. Demographics to create a more. Diverse pull back bookings. Since we have met the charter's applicant. Pool requirement. The application period will close. On June 30th. And won't be extended. Anyone still interested in applying can apply on our website or request a printed version of the application which is also available. In my Spanish inter-government. In the next slides. We will break down the demographic information provided by the applicants. The charter mandates that the pool of applicants. Reasonably reflect. The diversity of the city and defines diversity as including, but not limited to racial, ethnic, gender and sexual. Orientati on. We have a fairly well rounded. Group of applicants for the demographic. Categories of gender, income and age which are included in the staff report. So we will be focusing on the results by Council. District. Race and race and ethnicity and sexual orientation. The following chart reflect the data. Collected by Collected for the. Staff report as of May 8th, when we had 154 total applications. On the on this first slide, we have the breakdown. By council district. The highest. Number of applications by. District are from three and five. And we will be working to increase our numbers specifically in districts one. Seven and nine. The results also reflect one. Applicant who does not live in Long Beach. On the next. Slide, we have a breakdown of race and ethnicity. A majority of the applicants. Identify as white or Caucasian. So we will be focusing on the minority populations within the. City to create. Greater diversity in the applicant pool. On the last slide, we have the demographic breakdown. Of applicants by sexual orientation. Most of the applicants identify as heterosexual or straight. So we will be conducting additional outreach to the LGBTQ community. To achieve these results. The early outreach, education and motivational. Phases of our. Communications plan was focused on outreach events and spreading the word about new about the new commission. We began with the Budget Committee budget meetings last. August and since then have attended 36. Events, including 18 in partnership with the census team prior to the cancelation of public gatherings. The main portion of this phase began in January when we launched our Long Beach Transit bus, shelter and airport ad, along with the airing of. The TV PSA. We are now in the activation. Phase of the communications plan. During this phase, we have partnered with community groups through updates and presentations to the Long Beach Center's Complete Count Committee. Hosted a webinar, launched the social media campaign in English. Spanish into garlic, and included a flier on the city's utility bill, which has been our most. Successful outreach tool. The next part of our outreach. Phase will be focusing on the specific demographic. Groups we. Have highlighted earlier. Specifically, council districts one, seven and nine. The Asian and Pacific Islander, African-American, Hispanic and LGBTQ communities. To target these. Communities. We will continue to partner with CBOs and neighborhood groups. Utilize targeted social media ads and increase outreach and. Compassion to call it through various. Media outlets such as the TV and the My. Post. Now. Deputy City Manager Kevin Jackson will. Continue the presentation. Thank you, J.T.. Good evening, Mayor, and members of the council. As part of this update, we just wanted to acknowledge some probable changes to the Census 2020 schedule that more than likely will have. An impact on the redistricting process in some form. Or fashion. And so I just want to share a few hi

new schedule, would be extended from July 31st to October 31st, 2020, about about four months. And this would shift the apportioned the time frame that the apportionment counts are due to the president from two I'm sorry, to April 30th, 2021, instead of December 2020. As a result, the states would receive redistricting counts four months later than expected on July 31st, 2021, instead of April 1st, 2021, like we originally anticipated. So also, I want to point out that, you know, according to the city charter, the new maps must be approved by the commission at least six months before the next election in order for them to apply to that election cycle. So if the proposed modification to the census schedule is approved by Congress, which is very likely, and the 2022 primary election date of March eight is not extended, then the Commission would likely have less than a month to finalize the new maps. If they are to apply in the 2022 election cycle, it would be practically impossible for the Commission to complete the work of redrawing the maps in that timeframe. However, I want to point out. That right now there is a bill under consideration in the state legislature, SB 1970 that proposes to move the primary election date in 2022 from March to June of 2022. And if that were to occur, the Commission would have sufficient time to complete the redistricting process. However, the the the the planning time frame would be about one month less than we originally planned for. So it could have some impact on the number of meetings that we originally planned to do. But overall, the Commission if the primary changes from March to June of 2022, the Commission would have sufficient time to complete the redistricting process as proposed. So with that said, I think we'll just close out and J.T. will highlight. Some next steps in the process. Thank you. Thanks, Kevin. The next steps following the close of the application period on June 30th began with the initial review of the application to determine which applicants are eligible. After the initial review, the Ethics Commission will then create a sample of 20 to 30 applicants from the pool of eligible candidates, including at least two from each current council district. Once the sample is established by the Ethics Commission, the chair will then randomly select the first nine commissioners, one from each current council district. Those first nine redistricting commissioners will then select the remaining four members and two alternates for the remaining candidates in the sample. Once the Commission is fully established, training means will begin in December 2020 and the redistricting process will commence following the release of the cens us tract data according to the possible timelines Kevin mentioned. Thank you. And we are available to answer any questions. Thank you. Great presentation. So appreciate all of that. Let me I do have a motion to receive and file the some of your ringa in a second by Councilmember Austin. Let me turn to customary ringer first. Thank you, Barry. And it's a great presentation, but I see that the districts one, seven and nine have more work to do to get a more representative pool from the API Hispanic and African-American communities. The Asian, of course, one of the things that were questions that got asked during the presentation obviously was was the timing of the whole thing. And 2022 is a non presidential election year. So I'm hoping that the Legislature will proceed to move the election from March to June. If I recall correctly, that was already in in place, if I recall correctly, in terms of the legislature having presidential elections take place in March, in the presidential elections taking place in July. That is that correct? Or am I imagining things? So, Councilmember Your Honor, this is City Clerk Ponytail Garza. To my knowledge, that is not in place yet. Again, there is a SB 970 is addressing that, but nothing is set to change the election date in 2022. From March to June. Okay. I guess I was just ahead of myself. Then I'll be hoping they would do something like that. The numbers look good. Again, we need to increase in those underrepresented communities, including the. The. Gay community as well. So other than that, good presentation work. Good work. And let's keep it keep it going. Thank you. And then make the motion. Thank you, Councilman Austin. I think you are happy to support this and happy to hear the report from staff. I just want to commend the city clerk's office for the outreach effort. It. I think it's reasonable to think that people may not be paying attention to redistricting as much as they probably would be under normal circumstances. And so I would just. They continue the efforts. I've seen the advertisements and I think they've been very creative on social media and everywhere you look. And so hopefully we get a good candidate pool. I'm I'm encouraged by the numbers that I see so far. Obviously, I think we do need work to do. And I think council offices can can help with that. I know myself we have committed to getting that information out in our now daily newsletter constituents. And I'm very, very important to participate in this process. And let's just go back to the vision behind why we have a redistricting commission. It is to engage residents. It is to empower residents, and it's to take the politics out of redistricting. City council lives in our city. There's a great opportunity in front of our. And this is a great exercise. I hope that we get good residents to step forward and so happy to support this and I'm glad to hear the report. Thank you very much. Thank you. Councilman's in Dallas. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you very much, staff, again for this awesome report. I'm really looking forward to this process. One of the things that I saw that was not in the report was people with disabilities. I think that that's a very important voice to have in this process. So I really encourage that. You please look at applicants who do have physical limitations and that could provide a unique perspective to this process. So please keep that in mind as you go forward. And also, I'm more than happy to help out with more people from from my district as well. So thank you again. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilmember Richard. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I think I think those are sentiments, my colleagues. I think they'll be I think the representation probably would have been more robust if if we were in the middle of this pandemic. So we have to double back. I think there were a couple of missed opportunities with some of the of COVID 19 and the black community, Latino community, AAPI communities to touch on some of these topics, to make sure that folks do know that, you know, this process is going. You know, I'm also reminded of we had the census presentation a couple of weeks ago and we saw the same areas of town. We're underrepresented in the census as well. So I love this. I think this is a wake up call that we need to double back with our communities, both on census and on this redistricting commission staff. I would say if there are other things that just have slipped through the cracks during this moment, we need to flag them so the council officers can do what we need to do to help get the word out. So please send me whatever information that you have. I'm going to work, you know, work together and get the information out as best as we can. Thanks. Think you got somebody ringer to you. Yeah, well, I think they left out was precisely the point that Katherine Richardson just mentioned right now. And that's the sense is itself that we really do need also to redouble our efforts in getting people to fill out to complete the census forms. The latest report I saw that we were around 64, 65% complete. Some areas in my district are very low in terms and returning their their sense of data. And I'm sure other districts had the same issue. So we need to also ensure that we get get get out there and tell people to fill out their census forms . So that's going to make a big difference for us. As we know, we missed out an opportunity to get some federal funding because we were just short of the 500,000 population threshold. And the census makes it that much more important for us to make sure that we get as full, accountably, complete count as we can. So let's let's also redouble our efforts in getting people to complete census forms. Thank you. Thank you. And next up is Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you, Mayor. I just wanted to appreciate Mr. Jackson. I know that I've taken an interest in the census and the redistricting thing, and I appreciate that he's made the calls and we've been able to meet on their budget and their process. I've even had the great pleasure of attending a meeting. And so I thank them for what they're doing, and I'll continue to stay tuned into this process. It is the real backbone of our democracy that we have fair districts. So thank you to all who have volunteered. Please tell a friend. And Councilman Pearce. Yeah. I support all the comments, appreciate staff's presentation. I know a lot of district residents that enjoy watching or listening, and so I really want to encourage the district. I think we're behind the rest of the city in our census numbers. And so definitely want to remind everybody that we need to make sure that we we complete that. So thank you, guys. Thank you. That concludes council comment. Great report to everyone. Let's do the roll call vote. District one. District one. District two. I. District three. I district for. Hi. District five. It sounds like Darrell's got the crickets now. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. Hi. District nine. All right. Ocean cares. Okay. Thank you. We're going to our final item, which is item 13. Please read that item. Okay. Motion carries. And now we're moving on to item 26. Report from Health and Human Services recommendation to ward a contract to curative for COVID 19 testing kits and lab services for a total contract amount not to exceed 2,342,813 citywide. I'm going to mention in a second, please. Notion. Bye bye. Pure second about your ringa. Roll call vote, please. District one, high district two. I District three. I district for. I am. District five. I. District six. Hi. District seven. I. District eight. I. District nine. Our immediate. Motion carries. Motion carries. I 18, please. Report from Public Works recommendation to execute an amendment to contract with plenty area properties. Modifying the conditions of final occupancy district to. Can I get a motion in a second, please? Motion? Councilor Pearce. Can I get a second? Second recount from Sunday has. Well covered. District one i. District two i. District three. I district for. All right. District five. I. District six. District six. All right. District seven. By. District eight. I. District nine. I know. That's fine. So why don't we go ahead and move to item 28, which is the framework for reconciliation item? Communication from Councilmember Richardson. Councilmember Pearce. Vice Mayor Andrews. Councilman Austin. Recommendation to request city attorney to work with City Manager and Long Beach Office of Equity to draft a resolution that articulates the city's commitment to adopting the framework for reconciliation and Long Beach. Thank you. With that, let me turn this over to Councilmember Rex Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I wanted to start by just acknowledging this moment and the urgency of this moment. We are facing a crisis. We're facing an emergency. Over the past two weeks, aspects of structural racism have caught the attention of our entire community. It dem ands change. It demands leadership from our local community. It's a moment that we can't ignore. Much like the rest of the nation, Long Beach is facing a crisis on three sides with the COVID 19 pandemic that disproportionately impacts African-Americans and seniors economic impacts of the pandemic. That really draws into the question into question the fiscal structure and status of all local governments. And then finally, the impacts of systemic racism and the evidence of police brutality across our all across our country. Racial equity needs to be a top priority, fully embraced by the city. As we respond to this pandemic, as respond to civil unrest, the racial inequity in our health and our economy. It's a public health emergency. It's exacerbated by COVID 19 and requiring an immediate response by the highest levels of our city. Now we all witnessed the brutal killing of Mr. George Floyd by four Minneapolis police officers. And all across America, people are protesting an unjust system where evidence demonstrates demonstrates that the system is tilted against black lives, white bodies, and the opportunity for black communities to succeed. This is not political opinion. This is backed backed by science and data and our own eyes which confirm it. There is no way to deny institutional racism. We are having this discussion. Because impacted people have stood up. That's what has brought this conversation to the forefront. This incident in Minneapolis, it's eroded public trust in every institution of government in America. We've all condemned it. We've all acknowledged it. But we need to acknowledge that public trust has been eroded in our own institution and every institution in America. This moment calls the question on every American city, including Long Beach. To restore that trust. That means every city. Let's take a look under our own hood to ensure that the instruments and the laws are in place to identify and eliminate institutional racism. A complete culture change that embraces this as a professional standard, a public health emergency, and ensures that this is essential to our vision of moving forward as a city. And here in Long Beach, we need to meet this moment head on. We need to restore the public's trust, restore the confidence of our community. It means we need to review our own practices across the city. It means that we do not gloss over this moment and that we publicly acknowledge that the efforts are moving forward, are centered on the experiences of impacted black people in our community and our city cannot move forward until we examine our history with race and listen to the voices of the public. Institutions are driven by laws and systems. Those systems are laced with race, gender and the values of those who are in power, who write laws. It means that we take this time to reevaluate our own mission and our own values and our organizational philosophy, to prioritize racial and economic equity and science and data. The five most c ommon social determinants of health are economic stability, education, social and community context, health and health care and the built environment. Studies show that the environments we're born into. But where we learn where we work, where we play and where we live impacts the health and quality of life outcomes. This is very much apparent in America. It is very much apparent in Long Beach, where there is a seven year difference in life expectancy for residents living in East Long Beach neighborhoods compared to those in north west and southwest parts of our city. There is a deep segregation in divide and to narratives within our city. And life expectancy is also disparate across race and ethnic lines in our city. As black black residents are among the lowest rate at 79 years. In comparison in comparison to the citywide average of 83 years. The same socio economic factors are evident in the disproportionate impact of COVID 19 on African-American communities across our country. Cities like Chicago, Washington, DC, Madison, Los Angeles and Long Beach. They show that African-Americans overrepresented in COVID 19 infections and deaths compared to the share of the total population. Long Beach has the same overrepresentation as African-Americans here in our city make up 12% of the city's population and 22% of the city's

COVID 19 deaths. We need to commit our system to ending the narrative of the tale of two cities in this moment. We need to acknowledge our own history of racial inequity, not shy away from our history of police brutality and reform and modernize our laws, our policing practices, our policies across the city to align and restore public trust and basic standards of dignity for every resident. Now, when I say institutional racism. I believe that we are one agency. We should have one vision. This is not about calling out any individual. This is about calling out our own institution. So this race crisis that deserves as much attention and resources as the COVID 19 response, we need. We need a high level analysis and decision making. We need a clear reporting structure. We need transparency. We need accountability to the community. And we need a framework that will put the City Council in the position to take action on comprehensive reform, to ensure our own laws and our practices reflect our values of our current city, acknowledges institutional racism, acknowledges our own laws and practices that perpetuate the tale of two cities, two very different Long Beach experiences. It means that we commit publicly to our people to comprehensive reform. That means systems change, placing values of racial equity and public trust into all of our systems, including our charter, including our municipal code, including our city manager departments, including the police department, and including our city budget to make sure it aligns with the standards of the modern American city. Now, tonight, the framework presented is a four step process that require s the city to critically review departmental policies and practices, engage affected communities, and prepare an action plan that will institutionalize racial equity in language. The framework should be data driven so that we can pinpoint disparity and prepare solutions. What are we reconciled folks to say? Why do we call it reconciliation? We can call it what we want to call it, but what we are reconciling is the gap between the experiences of public people, the impacted people, our current policies, and how they stand up against national standards and best practices. We are one agency. We should have one vision to be the best city in America for everyone, not just centered on not just some. And it should be centered on the experiences of our most vulnerable in our community. So the first step outlined is to acknowledge our city. Our own history with racism and commit to a process of doing that. Furthermore, we should acknowledge our own histories of police violence, of systemic inequities, lack of investment into certain communities north central west Long Beach, and commit to reforming those things. Next. We need to listen. What that means is we need to hear the voices that have been protests in our community in a formal way and put it on the record. We need to hear from the experience of affected communities. We need to listen to the stories of impacted residents. These will be difficult stories to listen to, but it's important that our organization listens to the stories of impacted residents. We need to listen to our own employees as well, across every department, including the police department. We need to convene and follow the listening. Following the listening, we need to meet and convene with stakeholders, starting with the black community and impacted people. Our community is not monolithic. Do not cluster all the black community together, but rather give impacted families the space to engage in this process in a meaningful way. If the faith community, the space to engage this discussion in a meaningful way, give the youth an opportunity to in the space to engage in this discussion in meaningful way, need to also engage an independent third party organization to help us facilitate the process of convening, to add and ensure public trust, as well as the process of reviewing our citywide policies and presenting those recommendations. For example, today we received a letter of support from Policy Link, a National Research and Action Institute that advances racial and economic equity, offering their expertise in structuring this process. They help the city with our local My Brother's Keeper process, which resulted in a nationally standard national, nationally recognized local action plan. We have a great relationship with educational institutions. More specifically, we have a strong relationship with Cal State Dominguez Hills, the only CSU founded in direct response to civil unrest in the 1960s. It serves the populations of north and cent ral Long Beach. It's within their mission to address civil rights and racial equity. We should engage them in this process. Finally, the culmination of listening and convening will result in an action plan of immediate, short and long term recommendations for the City Council to enact, such as put us in a position to take action and in that comprehensive reform. This means systems change, placing our values and public trust into all of our systems charter, municipal code, city management departments and our city budget to ensure it aligns with the standards of a modern, equitable American city. Next, we need to recognize the urgency of the moment and take into consideration the timing of our current budget process and the timing to meet the deadline to place a measure on this November's ballot. Now. Now we're not starting from scratch. Let's just start with that. In recent years, and I've particularly paid attention to since I was elected in 2014, we know that there's been a national movement, there's since the death of the death of Trayvon Martin. There's been a national movement that has really thrust cities, including Long Beach, to really talk about racial equity and police reform. And we've taken a number of steps. The equity toolkit, a number of body cameras and other policies are safe. Long Beach Violence Prevention Plan, My Brother's Keeper, our economic inclusion plan. All of that has come from that moment. We have to acknowledge at that moment it took a tragedy of it took a tragedy of the death of Trayvon Martin and then President Obama announcing My Brother's Keeper. And also a pivotal point that we should acknowledge is that is the same moment that the Movement for Black Lives was established. And since then, every indication our city is that we're heading in the right direction. Are police statistics the things that we've doing is heading the right direction. This moment calls for us to accelerate and reform and commit to meaningful policy change, meaningful systems change consistent with this moment, consistent with our values for the future. So tonight, I'm asking my colleagues to support this framework. I'm asking them to commit to the framework, but throw into the kitchen sink the types of things you're you've heard , the types of things you want to see reviewed. We want to make sure we have high level staff ready to receive these things and make sure they're considered into this process. If you have thoughts on what needs to be reformed in our city, throw it into the kitchen sink, throw it all into this kitchen sink. And immediately following this, we want to be clear, and I encourage my colleagues to echo if echo and let the city manager know that this is a top priority for the city council and that is urgent and should be treated as an emergency. That said, those conclude my comments. I would like to hear from my colleagues on what reforms they like to see within this come out of this framework or what types of things we w ant to evaluate, what are the things that we want to commit to explore and what types of reforms that our intentions are clear at the very beginning. Thank you for your time. Thank you. Next up is council member Austin. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And first of all, I want to acknowledge Councilmember Rich and his team for putting together a very, very comprehensive item. That I think of the covers most of it. I mean, that's a very good job of doing that. And so so I salute him in his esteem for doing that. I was happy to sign on to go on sponsor of this item. Obviously also want to acknowledge my colleagues, the rest of the city staff for their acknowledgment and understanding of this very pivotal time that we are in. I want to thank you all for your collective commitment to change on Long Beach, but also being a catalyst for change for our entire country. We can show people how it's done. We are a special city. And this also I want to acknowledge those who are taking action today and have been taking action over the last ten or 12 days or so of protesting for change. Outraged by what they have seen. Today we are grieved as a nation of the horrific death of George Floyd. May he rest in peace. Today we began a difficult and we begin a difficult process of preparing for reconciliation, which will frame the pathway to justice, the systemic change. Today, Long Beach has a responsibility to George Floyd, his family, really every black person in this city in America to acknowledge that his life mattered, that all black lives matter. This tragic event has awakened the world to this country's ugly truth. Nation. With white supremacy at its foundation, a nation that is not equal to everyone. A nation with great wealth. Where oppressive black people and poor people are. Nor a nation that is and is fatally flawed. And has fatally flawed systems. Economic systems, health care systems, education systems and policing and in 2020 still do not afford liberty and justice for all. Today in our city, we have a duty to advance equity and opportunity and to create a place where every resident has opportunities and feels respected regardless of their race or socioeconomic status. As a city council, we have a duty to be smarter and more intentional with our decisions. The resource allocation. My responsibility today is to help lead this city through this moment. Then my life experiences perspective, I believe, has prepared me for very well. And I feel like our work presence on this council at this time more purposeful than ever with the work before us. And so I don't take this duty casually in any way because I recognize that this is. Arguably the most impactful work they will do. Together as elected leaders in this city. We've made progress certainly in this city. We have lot to be proud of. But in light of what we are experiencing today, it's put a light sunshine and we still have much work to do to improve conditions for a large percentage of our city. And to the communit

y. I would like to say I'm accepting this charge. I'm prepared to listen and listen more than I speak. I want to learn. I want to act accordingly. My actions on this council do advocacy with our state and federal partners officials, because that is where a lot of change will come as well. We won't be able to breathe it as a city until we deliver and deliver on the promise of liberty and justice for all. So we deliver on the promise of racial equity. And we work to truly. Change the systems that have oppressed so many for so long. And, you know, like I said, this is a a major moment in our city's history. No more wrecks you challenged us to will throw everything at the kitchen sink. And I have an item coming up which I think will be a great first step because we have a civilian oversight process. That I'm not sure that everybody is aware of. I'm not sure that everybody has full confidence in. But that is one area that I want to see us immediately tackle from an administrative standpoint. And then talk about opportunities to to change potentially change the charter in doing so. And so I'm going to reserve my comments for now because I want to hear from my colleagues as well. But I'm fully in support of this item, happy to second it and look forward to the discussion and the progress that we will make together collectively as a city, as a city team, but as a community to really address the ills of the past. Thank you. Thank you. Council Member Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. You know, if you were at the city hall today at 9 a.m.. I just want to see Tom. And they said came. It was the beginning of some transformation. Having lived through three rides in the city, the inequities have occurred across the country. I find it very hard to form words. So I'm just going to talk about the issues that bothers me and the things that I fought for in my community every day. I don't really talk on this subject that much. I believe that being on the stage is about opening the doors to the community and the respect we have, the privilege and the honor to be voted in. And I want to share the battle and the challenge. I see because this is a listening tour reunion, the stakeholders coming forward. There are things I would like to see Long Beach do better, and I am committed to doing my part to see the change. I mean, no disrespect to any of my colleagues. If some of these issues seem foreign to you, the kind of issues that affect the success and the community of color and you may have to do not have to deal with them. But I brought up. Against these issues every day. And I drive in my community and sometimes I feel I'm the only one. How is it that the minorities make up the large part? The Refugee Team. I'll get. Okay. And it is a career that gets many people with their record in the door to be part of a city team. How can we do more to bring local and diverse hiring practices for permanent positions with the benefit to the community of corporate? How is it

to eye, our hearts are way in the right place. Just do up by community and not forget where we came from. We are from three different areas, but we are brothers and it is an honor to serve with them on this diocese. And I want to thank everyone for giving me a chance to speak on this island. Thank you very much. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I wanted to make sure. Of course. I don't think it's lost on anyone. Of course that we have three three amazing council members, of course, three members from the black community that have long histories in the city and and a his tory of leadership. So I want to thank the three of you, Councilman Richardson, Vice Mayor Andrews, Councilmember Austin, for all, of course, coauthoring the item and for the leadership that you guys are all displaying in this crisis and in the past as well. I know we have everyone queued up to speak. Most folks get up to speak. And so I want to before I get to that, I'm going to make some some general comments and then I know we're going to get into more of a discussion. Just let me just begin by saying that they said also last week, I join the the peaceful protesters in expressing my grief, my outrage over the death of George Floyd. This has been a very, very difficult time for not just Long Beach, for our country and for our community. What we're seeing in America's streets is a call for action and demands for justice and racial equity. And there's no question we still have a long way to go to achieve Dr. King's dream of equality for all of racial justice for black Americans. And so it's up to us, I think, first and foremost, to acknowledge that we have a problem. And that's how you begin a fixing are the systemic issues that we have in our institutions by acknowledging that we have a problem. We know that for far too long. And then really every aspect of American life, black Americans have not experienced equal treatment. I mean, this is the case not just in government institutions, which we run, obviously the city, but it's true in our education system, too, and workforce. It's true in in the nonprofit world, black Americans have not experienced equal treatment. This is not that Long Beach is not accepted. Accepted by that. We Long Beach is no exception to that and there are no exceptions to that. We know that the peaceful demonstrations that we've seen are an important part of our local history and the civil rights movement across the country as well. And we also know what is what we're hearing out in the community. It is demands and action is being asked of us as a city. I want to commend this. This concept of a framework for the city. This framework for reconciliation. I think the most important part of this is that it's been obviously put there's a lot of thought that has gone into this framework. I know that the key piece of this, of course, is acknowledging the existence of systemic racism in this country, that we all know that to be true. And the listening piece and I think that is something that I think is really important for us. One thing that I've heard from our black friends, from black organizers and community members is before we get too far ahead of what we think should happen, it's important for us to listen to the community as to what actions need to happen. And so I respect and honor that. And we started that work. And just I just yesterday I was with a variety of young people and youth that were sharing their stories with me. And I want to thank them. And, and those young, young people from the YMCA and the youth that real ly shared their stories of growing up in Long Beach and their challenges and fears. And I want to uplift that and continue to do that. Listening. And I think what's great about the opportunity to listen is it gives then us an opportunity to really ensure that the entire city is part of that process, including our management team and our staff. And I want to thank I know, Councilman Richardson, you uplifted that and mentioned that, and I support that. In this process. And in the listening piece, of course, you listen to bring people together and then to to have action. And there needs to, of course, be assurances from the community that we are going to have an action plan out of this. And I think that's part of this process. I also want to go back to something that Councilmember Richardson was alluding to, which I think and I think he's right. I think, you know, we we we know that the Long Beach Police Department has come a long way in in reforms. You think about just the last five years there we have every officer that's trained in de-escalation. We know that mental health and racial equity are now trained within the department, and there's a lot more accountability measures in place. This council has been a leader on body worn cameras, and so has our rank and file officers who've been involved in that process. And if you look at issues just around use of force, for example, use of force incidents just last year, I believe, were the lowest they've probably been in many years, and including the use of force, which has declined, but also the officer involved shootings have dramatically declined. And so that tells me that at the rank and that there is progress. And like any organization, when you have progress, you still have more and more to do.

All of us, all our institutions have a long way to go to get better and to meet the needs of our community. I want to say that and it's important and it's important to note this as this discussion has been going on, that all aspects of American life and our institutions need to be reviewed. It's something that all of us as a city need to listen to and uplift. We know that we are committed as a community to reforms. We want to strengthen them. And I look forward to the conversations in the weeks ahead with the community, with black organizers, with students to address this crisis facing our nation. We will listen. We will dialog, and then we will act. And so I know our community and our country are counting on us. And I look forward to discussion ahead this evening. And so thank you, Councilmember Richardson, for and I'm taking a leadership role in the framework. And to the other members that have put this this agenda item together with the community. So thank you for that. And with that, I want to turn this over to the other members of the council. Next up is council. Councilwoman Pryce. Actually, I think you remember that. Senator Pearce, I know you were an agenda item this week next or did you want to wait? I'd love to be able, sir. I see you. Go ahead also. Okay. Are you sure? I don't mind. I can wait. Yeah. Let me go. I thought I was next so I would go. Go ahead, please. I'll go after you. No problem. Think about the system as that. You never know where you are in the queue. So you only lie on point like. Can I go to the bathroom? No, not yet. Okay. Thank you, guys. Really, I want to ground us in the words that were said before you and I, Mayor and I really appreciate the leadership and the big picture vision that Councilmember Richardson has put in front of us. And that really is process. And anybody that knows me, I always talk about process and how important it is to listen. And so to hear each of the areas of deep concern for our African-American council members, it's really important that we root this conversation and that. And so I want to thank you for that. Of this item. You know, I know it kind of moved fast and so many pieces of it are critical. The acknowledging, which was powerful to hear council council member, powerful to see the work that Tom Modica has done to really make sure that our city employees, possibly for the first time ever, have been told race matters, you matter. And I'm here to listen to you this morning was very powerful to see all of the words and the thoughts, to hear from our own city employees that have said, my brother was arrested. My cousin was this I experienced this oppression. And it really is when we talk about the whole city. It is systematic oppression. When we think back to how this country was started, it was formed. In a way that was built on oppression. Our railroads are built on oppression. A lot of our buildings are built with that. Our roads, our cities, the foundation of them were built on believing that somebody else was less than us. And I, when we ground ourselves in that, I think it gets really emotional because I don't think that anybody on this council or in the city government believes in that model. We all want to believe that we're not racist. We all want to believe that the system is fair because we've had the 13th Amendment, because we've gotten out of what we would call Jim Crow era. But we haven't. And the way that we know that we haven't is in our very own numbers. L.A. County alone. Councilmember Richardson spoke to COVID. So the numbers of COVID in L.A. County alone yesterday were blacks are dying 2 to 1 to whites. 2 to 1. Two to me. In our county. We know that these numbers are real. We know that black women are spending 63% of their income on rent. Can each of you out there listening think about spending 63% of your income on rent and maybe you're a single mom, maybe you have a kid, maybe you have two. What that means for us and why we've been fighting in this city for so long on some of these issues, we know that in the city of Long Beach, we have a life expectancy difference of 17 years. That's from our own city report. Councilmembers Richardson, Austin and Dee mentioned, we know we've got the tools in Long Beach to address these issues, whether it's everyone in, whether it's the Office of Equity, whether it's issues around our housing. My Brother's Keeper. My Sister's Keeper. But it's been it's helped. And I don't want to diminish the work that it's done. But until our entire city says racism exists within our bones, we will not change it. So we realized that in 2014, blacks were arrested four times more than whites. In 2015, we were the most violent. In 2016. One which had a killing rate of 10.6 persons per year. And I agree, Mayor, that this city, from the time that I got on the council to today, I feel like our numbers are probably really great. But telling my community members and my neighbors that our block or my neighbors that have had their kids go through some part of the system, hey, guess what? We're better today without any facts in front of me. It's really hard. And so as we talk about listening, it's taking those stories of our black community with us into every meeting that we take. Even if we think nothing about race in that meeting and I'll lift up health and our climate. We got a lengthy letter today that was authored by SONA. One of our environmental committee members are Sustainable Commission. And she lifts up these numbers about health, the fact that African-Americans don't have the same level of access to health care, that the number one cause of death for many of them are diseases that are caused by poor environmental quality. Like heart disease, like asthma. These are the numbers that tell our story, Long Beach. Our story is not, hey, we're doing better in this one department. Our story has to be that we're doing better for everyone because we know whenever the person that is the most oppressed in the city is doing well, that we're all doing well. We should all all of us in the city of Long Beach be thriving to make sure that the person that is the most oppressed that is on the streets of this city have every access to better health care, housing, education, because we know for them this moment is the moment that's going to matter most for them. So when we talk about what to throw in the kitchen sink? Councilmember Richardson The first thing that we have to do is we have to get data and it has to be transparent. I have said many emails to many people inside City Hall asking for numbers, and I've been told that we were going to get numbers and that we would have a report. Over the last ten years. For. I think in my heart that we have done better in Long Beach PD. But I'm a data person and I don't see those numbers. And so the first, I want to make sure that we are building transparency and trust with our police department. And that's going to take them sharing everything that they can. The numbers of use of force, the demographics of who has been involved in those, both on the officer side and on the public side. We want to know the best practices in the country. What ar e the best practices in the city that in cities that have made sure that these numbers have gone down so that our police officers can walk down the street proud? Because I'm sure right now this is probably a really tough time for all of them, but it's been a really tough time for our black community for 400 years. And so we're going to have to go through an uncomfortable process, and it has to be genuine. I want us to make sure that we're talking about, as mentioned by also by Councilmember Richardson. The four areas of our city where we can really make structural change. Our budget. There's a lot of words being thrown out there. The first thing I want to say is we need to know what's in our budget. I have personally, I don't have the details of what's in our police budget. And so I don't know what even to say about that. Right. And I know that we've got youth that we've fought to get $200,000 for youth funding for them, which we got, which was great. We've got a youth strategic plan that needs to make sure it has a race lens on it. Right. And that we're talking about how do we how do we make sure that crime doesn't happen in the first place to make an excuse to be able to have more officers than we might need? How do we make sure we're investing on the front end in our health department, in our kids and our job program, and that we're really thinking outside the box. To do that, we need data. And I've said that since I've been on this council. And so I'm very excited about this opportunity to hopefully be really transparent with our city budget. I know this budget year is tough and it's going to be fast. I'm looking forward to our charter conversations, but I understand that charter changes are going to have to wait because we don't have an election coming up that we can put charter changes on. So then I'm really going to ask staff to put everything and every thought into it. Whenever we talk about the muni code, what are we doing on the muni code that we can really make sure we have some community oversight because every city is funded by the taxpayers and the taxpayers are undocumented residents. There are people that come through our city and our tourists, their residents. And I've lived here forever and they're tenants that have lived here. And so what are we making sure that in our muni code that we are creating, if possible, a civilian oversight committee that is free from the city structure that we have. I want to see what that looks like. I want to see the best practices in the whole country for how we can make sure we do that and have real, clear transparency. Because when we have situations like today, people are speaking up that we never thought would speak up. We have commissioners and almost every single commission that the city has, it has said something about how they want the city to be moving forward and we have to listen to them. And Tom, I know that sometimes I get a little mushy with you because hiring you was a big deal to m

e. It was my what I thought was going to be the last big step that I took as a council member. And one of the biggest things that was an issue for me as a white woman was you being white and being in the city for so long. But I am so proud of the courage and the dedication that you have made to everybody in the city. And when I say that comment, I hope it doesn't trigger anybody, but it's just diversifying. Our leadership is important so that we can have black stories leading the conversation. But we also have to recognize that you are extremely skilled. You're extremely thoughtful. I think you've been great for the city, and I think you're going to be wonderful leading us through this process. So I'm so proud. So those four areas being able to look at them and really talk about them is the most important. We have transparency that we're talking about budget items that we're talking about our use, that we're making sure that our conversation goes outside the city walls and we're talking with educational institutions and business improvement districts. I know one of my birds is so excited about going through this reconciliation process with their own community members. We have to do this not just for George Floyd, but we have to do it for Tyler Woods, for Hector. Or Dante. I'm sorry for Hector. Moran for Dante. Jordan or for Ross. Moran for Noel Aguilera. For Aerial Smith, Vermonters. For Martin. Corrado for Berry. Brock for Jason. I know Gibson for Kerry. Michael found some for Louis Ramirez. For Jordan. Michael Griffin for Katherine Gomez. And for Marcella Byrd. For Frederick Tapp, who was killed by a white supremacist. We owe it to these people to make sure that we root out systematic racism and acknowledge our own racism within ourselves. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson, often, Andy, for bringing this item forward. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. I know I've got obviously everyone queued up, so when I get to those, I want to just to clarify something also, I think that I think Councilmember Pearce, you you and I both asked this question on data. And I think just so that you get one of those answers now, I think that the police department is working on. My understanding is, remember, they've done back now, I think about five years. They're trying to go back ten years. So, Mr. Modica, I think that's something from I heard earlier today that the request that's being made by the Council is coming to the council pretty soon. Is that right? Yes, Mr.. Mayor. So we see this and we we hear loud and clear that data is important. We couldn't agree more. There is a lot that we have to share, and that data does take some time to get together. We have started already. We can provide some of the use of force statistics and officer involved shooting statistics. But we do understand and you know, there are some requests from the council, but we're really going to be launching into kind of a review of the data. We're going to be asking our innovation t eam to help us with that and to actually help display it and make it understandable and transparent and have have that available for this part of the discussion. So we we are going to be making a commitment on that and and providing a lot of those data. Thank you, Mr. Modica. Thank you. And I hope that also answers whatever comes your questions. Let me go to the queue and I know some people are queue to back up, so we'll get to everybody first and then we'll go back around. Councilwoman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Can you hear me? Yes. Okay. I want to thank my colleagues who have brought this item forward, especially my African-American colleagues, because no matter how many experiences we share in common, there are many experiences that we don't share in common because of our backgrounds. They may not ever know the experience of a child who came to America during a revolution in her own country and learned to speak the language with her mother as they made their way in the new world. And I may not ever know the conversations that each of them had at their dinner table with their families and their children that I may not ever have to have with my own children. And I want to thank our city manager, because he did. Right. Send an email that was just so profound and had a few points in it that really I've thought a lot about over the last few days. And that was one of those points. I'm grateful for this opportunity to listen and to learn. And I like what Vice Mayor Andrews shared earlier in his comments, which was acknowledging that we may not always agree or see eye to eye on every issue. But I think having worked with this group of people for six years that I can say whole heartedly with every fiber in my body that every member of this council is a good person and cares about this city. Even if we don't agree on every issue. But this is an opportunity where I think we are all aligned and we all will be focused as we move forward as a city. The events we have seen locally and throughout the nation require that we be on the right side of history and take this moment seriously and focus on the important issues of justice, accountability and fairness. These are issues that should be at the heart of everything that we do. That should always be the case. And it's very tragic that it took the life of George George Floyd to remind us of that important value. We must make significant progress to ensure that our city is at the forefront of responsible and accountable policing, as well as on the focus of residents in the city of Long Beach. Every single one of them knowing that they are protected by our police and can trust in the integrity of our system. Nationally, we have seen the devastating misuse of power by a minneapolis police officer against George Floyd. The impacts of that officer's actions were, of course, devastating and unconscionable for the Floyd family. But the impact has been so much broader. And I can tell you that as a prosecutor of 20 years, that is not the type of justice I signed up for. Like most people in this country, I, too, have been able to reflect on the tragic and violent events that we have all seen, highlighting the need for more action. And as Councilman Richardson said, an opportunity to listen and meaningfully dialog. One of the things I really enjoyed from reading our city manager's email is an ask that he made of the city employees that we have honest dialog without fear of saying the wrong thing or without fear of being judged. I know that his council members. There are times when we have very passionate people inside the council chambers advocating for something that's very important to them and a simple disagreement, even though it might be stated in the most respectable way, respectful way can be misinterpreted as not caring about an issue of the fundamental heart of a discussion that we're having. And I'm hoping that this opportunity is one where we allow one another to speak our minds and be heard and ask questions without judgment. I am saddened, deeply saddened by the police officer related tragedy that resulted in George Floyd's death in Minnesota. I have also spent hours and days and years, decades working with police officers as well as victims and their families. Dedicating my entire career to seeking justice and to ensuring that families who are victims of crimes get closure that they deserve when they are the victim of a gang crime, sexual assault, or a homicide, which are my personal areas of specialty. My life is devoted to the pursuit of justice. And when we see real acts of injustice perpetrated by those meant to serve and protect, it shines a further light on the vast divides we see throughout America today. I think most Americans can understand the frustration and sense of anger felt by many protesters as they pursue this nation's goal of a more perfect union. I cannot support riots, vandalism or burglaries at any level while local small businesses are struggling during this pandemic. But I understand the deep feelings of fatigue and frustration in protesters throughout this country that have not seen the prosperity that's been promised to them in the American dream, and instead may feel a sense of an ongoing injustice. We have recently seen a significant moment in Long Beach develop into a historic movement around the nation to confront real issues and seize on opportunities to improve our existing systems. We have the opportunity to evaluate our current models and make necessary changes for our system to improve. But we have to do that as we also continue to run our city. We do want residents to feel trust and not be fearful of officers. And we cannot allow for a system that protects those, misuse their powers as defined under the laws and the protections of this nation. As the city of Long Beach depends on the trust and faith in our police officers and their commitment to working with the community every day to keep us safe. As a council member, I'm committed to help our city every day with justice as my guiding principle. As the Chair of the Public Safety Committee, I will continue to do my part to shine a light on these issues. And in addition to pushing for body worn cameras with my fellow committee members. Councilman Austin and Councilman Super Doll. And before that, Councilwoman Mango and other tools such as public outreach and education and community policing, which have been topics we have discussed. Our committee is committed to looking at best practices and helping our police department continue to adopt best practices. I will say that it's been stated a number of occasions already tonight that our police department has continued to evolve and develop best practices in the six years that I have been here. This is reflected in their current statistics, and in my personal opinion, the improvements in the statistics is a direct result of the investment that we have made in our police department. The commuting, community, policing and transparency measures that we have employed throughout our department has been significant in terms of budget impacts. But those investments have resulted. And better statistics and improvement all around. There is still a lot more to do. We are a community of many races, ethnicities, life experiences and beliefs. But from this varied spectrum, we share one community, we share one city. And people often talk about this term. A Tale of Two Cities. I'll be honest, I don't like that because I think it unnecessarily divides us. We are one city with opportunities and challenges in each area of the city. And areas that we need to help promote, build up and support so that we can continue to be better as a city together. We share a common desire to see our homes safe. Our families protected and representing the needs of everyone, regardless of what part of town they live in. Everyone should expect basic services and protections from their city. Long Beach is a strong community and the peaceful protests we have seen in every corner. Of this. City brings so many residents together to support our city, charting a course towards positive changes in the future. I believe that we are one family. Yes, all nine of us, as well as our mayor on this council. We have served together, many of us, for six years. And I believe that together we can honor the message of needed and prudent and realistic progress. We must act deliberately and with purpose, while bearing in mind that public safety and protection of every resident in this city remains a core responsibility for our city. I want to say that we are going to, as a public safety committee, start this conversation, this listening, this educating and this exploration of best practices adopted throughout this nation. On June 23rd, when we have our public safety meeting. I expect to have a number of proposals that I won't be asking the police department to evaluate and consider in terms of adopting some changes f or our own public safety teams. This item read beautifully. Councilman Richardson The item was written beautifully and I appreciated the elephant comments of many of my colleagues. As I shared with Councilwoman Richardson, I do have some questions about some of the specifics of this item. So I'll put it out there, and I'm sure somewhere it'll come back to Councilman Richardson or perhaps the city attorney to weigh in on what exactly are we voting on tonight. Because, for example, when it comes to the ballot measure, I really don't have any idea about what the ballot measure. Well, I don't even really know what the subject matter of it would be. So that was discussed and I missed it. I apologize, but I do want to have a conversation about that because I don't feel comfortable voting on something that I've never seen. And we're going to need to do public outreach and communication. And I know that it was referred to the ballot measure being maybe a placeholder so that we can bring a ballot measure in the future. But I'm not sure from talking with the city attorney whether that's possible without some substance to the item. So with that, I want to thank you, Mr. Mayor, for giving me the opportunity to talk on this topic. I look forward to hearing from my colleagues and a little bit more specificity on what exactly we're voting on tonight. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Next up is council member Ringo. Thank you, Mayor. And everyone is so eloquent tonight in their comments because it's speaking from the heart, just like I was speaking from the heart, just to put a little bit of our historical perspective on things. Of course, remember, again, Vice Mayor Rudy Andrews somewhat brought it up about being involved and having experienced other. Riots, if you want to call that disturbances that we've had in the past. We certainly had hours here in Long Beach this time around, but we also had one in back in 92 of the Rodney King situation. And then when I was a kid growing up in East Los Angeles, there were the Watts riots that that I lived through. So we've all had our experiences. But what I can say about Long Beach is that when we had our disturbances here in 92, there were some positive things that came out of the African-American, Latino, Asian communities came out and work together. We got together to say that, you know, we have issues here in Long Beach we need to work at. We need to do better. We need to improve on it. We can only do it as one community working together. Oh. As a result of that, we had a new police chief at the time, Tony Batts, and that was the beginning of community policing back in those days and that was strong. We also established back in those days of Community Advisory Committee to the Chief of Police and fire and to the city manager, where we had people from the community actually meet with police, with police chief and with the city manager to talk about issues of great concern to our communities. And each one wa s important and added to that. We're the LGBTQ Advisory Group of Seniors Group and other various stakeholders who also met with the police chief and city manager to determine what is going on and what is it that we need to change in our community to make it better? And we are at a crucial moment now in this point of our history where what's being put at the table today and what we're going to be looking at is an opportunity. And the opportunity is to once again visit a lot of the the changes that we're implementing before and see how we can make them better or improve upon them or at this time, things that we weren't able to add before because we're in a different era now. What I discovered the last couple of well, the last week or so that we've been experiencing all these these. Events is that is different. I know we're in the social media age and what's going on is that this this these protests have been much more peaceful, much more peaceful than we've had in the past. Yes. We've had our moments of of looting and rioting, that sort of. Goes with with everything else but the protests themselves. The protesters in cells were focused and they and they were they were poignant in what they were bringing about and being very attuned to what changes are out there. And we've now come to accept the fact that a lot of the biases and prejudices that we meet, that we're confronted with are systemic. They've been around for a long time and they've come to the surface. I was reminded this morning of our issue that I marched on and protested back in 1996, which was a proposition to name the anti-Affirmative Action Program. Our proposal for Proposition eight was put forward by then Governor Pete Wilson. I marched against that. I fought against it. And I wanted to get it down because I knew it was wrong. And what they tried to do was basically saying that affirmative action programs were illegal and did not serve any purpose. And getting rid of those kinds of programs would level the playing field. Well, what have we learned in the 26 years between then and now that the level of the playing field is still not level? In fact, it is even more a level now than it was even then. And there's an effort now with another bill that's being introduced in the legislature is to repeal it only because it's still on the books. And that's part of the systemic issues that we're dealing with, is that there are still items on the books that are counterproductive to where we need to be, to where we need to get. So I'm saying that in providing the historical perspective in the sense that we still have a lot of growing to do, we still have systemic bills and pieces of the legislature that are in need, dire need of change and repeal and new ones to go forward. And this is our opportunity to do such. I know Councilwoman Pryce mentioned that it was very unclear as to what specifically we might be looking at. But that's I think that's the whole point, is that we need to have that discussion. We need to look at what we're going to do in the future to make us better, to make the city a lot stronger. We need to be a strong city and I believe in this. I love this town. I'm not going anywhere. I love every aspect of my community that I've been here, been able to build lifelong friendships since I came to Long Beach as a freshman and Long Beach State and made many of them. And like I say, one of the other things that we want to look at and it wasn't institutionalized then, but perhaps this is an opportunity we can do that now, is to institutionalize these advisory committees or advisory groups that we're looking at, because they seem to come and go with whoever is on the chief's chair or whoever sits on the city manager's chair. And they ebb and flow with something that's more permanent or stable so that these discussions are ongoing from here on out, that we don't have to have these types of services and nobody has to die in order to bring this to the forefront. We say their names. And Janine, thank you for mentioning seeing all those names because they're a part of our history. And as sad as it makes me feel and at times angry, to want to go out and do something about it. But we have to do it with logic. We have to do it with data. We have to do it in a way that's such that we are going to be effective. And I have been an example of great proponent of institutionalizing our health department, for one. But we also need to look at institutionalizing these types of committees as well, these types of groups that would provide a voice and a venue for people to come forward and voice your concerns. And it has the city council or manager or the police chief move on them. So this is a beginning. I see this as a start. And it's also, at the same time, a continuation of where we've been before and what we need to get. So please look at this as a way of growing as a way of learning and as a way to also. Go again. To get to a place where we need to be. With that, I guess some. Done here. And if I had to come back and say something more might come back to me, I don't know. But at the same time let's work together. And one of the most proudest moments that I've had thus far is that we have, if not the most, one of the most diverse city councils around. Basically unique. You name it. A community and is represented in our city council. We have immigrants, sons of immigrants, daughters of immigrants, African-Americans and LGBTQ. We're all represented here. And we are we ourselves are a reflection of our community. And that's what makes us strong. And that's what's going to keep us strong as long as we keep that focus that we know we have a large community here where half a million people, you're probably grown a little bit more. And it's going to be again for the people out there who are listening. Important to fill out the census. It's going to be important for us as a city where we apply for these grants and we apply for federal funds that we need to. To move forward with. With getting the sense is that we account for our son. So with that, I'll leave it there. I'm sure there's going to be more discussion. And as we move forward with this, we decided we're going to be having a lot more a lot more discussions. And hopefully when we continue these discussions, there'll be we'll be in a better place than we were last week. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Next up is Councilman and Diaz. You. May I? Thank you very much. First and foremost, I like every American. In the past weeks, I've been absolutely devastated to see another video of an armed, unarmed black person being killed by an officer who is sworn to protect their community. This is just one of the small pieces of our country's long and violent history of systemic racism and white supremacy, a legacy that continues today to impact every aspect of our society. The revelation so many people have experienced over the past few days. I think the black community has known and organized the struggle for decades, and I think that it's important that we recognize that some of these steps are going or some of the steps were taken right now are long overdue. I'm so heartened to see the parts of the items that request concrete action in the face of racism and injustice, as we have seen in our streets and around the country. It's not only time to acknowledge the problem, but also to implement solutions. I look forward to working with my colleagues and staff to create reform in our city from the way we are governing to the way we are policing, to the way we allocate resources to our community. I am proud to stand with each of you in this first step, but I know that there are many more steps to come and eager to get started. I want to absolutely thank our my council colleagues, council members Richardson, Austin and Andrews for Vice Mayor Andrews for bringing this item forward and also for their their contribution to our city as African American from the black community. I think it's very important that we see them as role models for other generations, them that were elected into these positions and are able to make certain changes within our city. This is what we need. And I'm very proud to serve on a very diverse city council. And I, like it's been said by my colleagues before me at times that we may not see eye to eye with each other. But I do believe in from the bottom of my heart that today we stand here before you all in agreement that something needs to be done. And I'm I'm very, very proud to be on the city council. Thank you. Thank you, councilman and de haas councilmember supernova. Thank you. And I'd like to first thank those who brought this item forward. And I'd also like to thank Councilman Richardson, Councilman Austin and Vice Mayor Andrews for their eloquent and heartfelt remarks. I think the

serve as a perfect opening to this discussion. I'm like Vice Mayor Druse and Councilman, you rank. This, too, is my third episode of Civil Unrest involving Long Beach. Um, and I can say that this. The aftermath of this feels very different to me. Uh, Councilman Franco referenced social media. Perhaps that's it. But this is the first time I. See this broad. Recognition of systematic. Racism. And obviously. The killing of George Floyd has served as a catalyst to bring us to this moment. Um, I think we have, um, we should be very hopeful. And again, I don't mean to sound repetitious, but maybe it's because we've lived through it. Councilman here. You were going to mention how there were many changes made after 92. And I'll go back to 1965 and the Watts riots. And, um, in the aftermath of that civil unrest, money flowed to Los Angeles. Federal dollars flowed in Sacramento. Dollars flowed in. I'm not sure how many of those dollars made it to what. But I think we can improve upon that. Now, as Councilman Frank said, so many improvements after 92. And maybe this is it. Maybe this is the time where we see everything, the discussions happen, the plans in place. And as I referenced, we just need systems in place on an ongoing basis to make sure that the changes we enact are sustainable. I don't think it is. Just from my background, I know the coffee of the the chair of the Sustainable City Commission was mentioned. Having served on that commission for seven years and also served as chair, I think the topic that was brought up generally is environmental justice. So to concentrate just on the things that we're going to throw in the mix here. Not that that's the only thing, but I feel an obligation to bring that forward. With my background also, I currently serve on the Public Safety Committee and we will be working on that. As well as Chair Price. Mentioned on the 23rd. So those are some of the things we'll be bringing forward. For those of you who don't hear me, normally my my signature is brevity. I just didn't want anyone to think that because of my style, that reflects at all on on my position on that. I choose. This is one of the. Critical moments for our council. One of the most important things that has ever come before us, and I look forward to helping shape these changes for the future. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. I want to start by thanking both Mary Andrews, Councilman Austin and Councilman Richardson for your continued leadership in our city. I appreciate the heartfelt comments of all my colleagues. So much has already been said and I won't repeat what has been said. But I will say that over the last few weeks I continue to listen. I believe that true wisdom comes from listening and that we as a council need to continue to keep listening at the forefront of the policies that we will work towards and develop over the next several months. The only thing that I have to add is in reading the items and in list ening to what? Government agencies and community partners are doing across the country. I see some significant value in coordination and I think that institutionalizing that coordination would be imperative. We can't do it without our partners. And so if there was a way to ensure that we. As we work through this process, make presentations to our partners, the school boards, the trustees, and for them to make presentations to us on where they're headed so that we can ensure that where our agencies progress crosses, that we institutionalize the solutions across all of the groups together so that the investment goes the farthest by ensuring it. That we build on each other and their successes and the listening. So with that, I want to thank everyone for their peaceful demonstrations over the last several days. And. I think that it is poignant that our city is on the forefront of this as we have been on so many things. And it would not be possible without the community leaders that have supported this and so many other equity and equality issues. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Next up, I have I'm going to go back to I think everyone has. Has made their comments. Let me go back to Councilmember Pearce. Thanks. Mayor, I wanted to just I realize that I left out a part that I wanted to talk about as far as the city's thinking about process. And when we acknowledge structural racism, we acknowledge that so often the black community has not felt like spaces were safe for them, that they were not safe for them to speak up, that they're not safe for them to participate in. And I reflect back to the land use element and what those spaces were like and also what those spaces were like for our African-American staff. And so I am not sure that Thomas spent a lot of time thinking about what the process will look like in dealing with this this health emergency. But it is so important that black voices are heard. I would say first that if organizations, even if they seem like organizations that the city has never worked for before, like Black Lives Matter or anybody else says, Hey, City, we're ready. We're ready to talk and we want to listen that we go to them and that we make sure we engage them in a space that is safe and that they can and work in and that we do that with our youth. I appreciate that you visited our youth yesterday, but really recognizing that for so many this the city isn't the same across the whole city and that we really have to get ourselves out of our comfort zone to hear these these black voices so that we can, you know, change where where we put our priorities. And we do that with our resources. And that includes city staff time and how we function as a city. So really wanting to make sure that the black community that is diverse is the one leading on this reconciliation. Otherwise we will not have the trust of our diverse black community and all of this will be just a process. So that's my thoughts. Thanks, guys. Thank you. Councilma

n Richardson. Sorry. It's muted. Okay. So I want to take a minute and just so earlier, I needed to kind of just make sure that I presented the framework correctly. And now I want to just take this opportunity to kind of refocus on what we're trying to do here. So so one, the reason we put acknowledgment out there first is because what we do and what we say from this moment forward, we can either acknowledge or we cannot acknowledge. And we have to be a model and be an example of how we do that. So we yes, we are one city and name, but the reality is our systems perpetuate two realities and two different commitments from our city to a race. That experience is not the way to start this process. Ignoring that point means we're not grappling with real issues, which is what this moment demands and is what Long Beach is clearly demanding. We need to focus on inequities in order to bring equity. If we are truly one city and we and we do not want to be divided. Then we have to look at the disparities and data that divide us and put in strategies to close gaps and bring us closer together. So yes, we are one city, but this conversation is not about that. This conversation is about the differences so that we can truly be one city. Secondly, in terms of acknowledging history, I think it's important to acknowledge on the front end that we haven't even in the last last five years, we haven't truly acknowledged this stuff. You know, we're a city that like, it's okay to acknowledge our history and acknowledge that the KKK marched down Ocean Boulevard and Long Beach three years ago. We commissioned a report on economic equity in Long Beach. I commissioned this report. It acknowledged that history, that language was removed from the report by our city staff. That simple action in and of itself is an example of institutional racism. Therefore, it needs to be called out in that process so that in this process there is integrity. I want to say that as professionals, we should not be neutral on certain things. Embracing racial equity should be a professional standard, just like acknowledging sexual harassment is a passive professional standard. That standard has evolved over time. Acknowledging sexual harassment in the nineties 1870s looks different than it looks today with MeToo and Time's Up. This is one of those moments we need to, as professionals, acknowledge that we cannot advance in our organization. You cannot be advancing your career. We can't advance moving forward from this moment without mastering it. And mastering it takes training and acknowledgment. Acknowledge that institutional racism needs to be named and called out. This is our chance as leaders to change the direction structurally and meaningfully. Also, we should acknowledge that we have. Due to COVID 19, we haven't been able to take public comment. There are people and voices that want to be heard right now. So we are I know we are taking steps to get back open, but it is important that this lis tening process is public and on the record. It was mentioned earlier the land use element, when there were a lot of anger around the land use element, the city stepped forward. The city put up tents and listened to people and let them vent. And that process in and of itself was stand up. And that process had its own integrity. Separate from the speeches that we give as politicians. The staff owned that process and they listened and they created the work plan from that. Next, we need to clarify the integrity of this process. There are a lot of separate process taking on and off the state legislatures doing things. I know the federal government is doing things and we are going to watch and track all of those efforts. And that means sometimes our committees, state ledge, fat ledge, public safety committee, all of those have individual committee work directed by individuals, directed by committee members and elected officials. And those are important and they are relevant to the discussion. But it's important to note that the framework in this motion is directing city staff to have a process separately from all the other processes that are happening. And that process needs to maintain its integrity all the way through and be centered on input from the public listening process on the record and the convening process that is important to clarify next. I think just, you know, this is a moment where we are redefining what resiliency means is no longer just about preparing for an earthquake. When I walk through Artesia Boulevard, if I look down on Pine Avenue, I see businesses closed due to a pandemic . When I walk down pineapple today and see board businesses boarded up and murals on there, it tells me that this is is a public health issue, that public health and racial equity, if not addressed, can be as dangerous to our community as an earthquake. So this is a moment for us to redefine and be an example for our region on how to redefine resiliency and prioritize. Public health, economic inclusion and racial equity is a process that we're setting forward today. It's about translating the voices, the demands of the protests in our community into a strategy for local action. And that's why public comment on the record is important, that we capture this moment in our city's history, that we acknowledge this moment, we acknowledge our past, and we move forward together. That is incredibly important in this process. Thank you. The last thing I want to say is I want it reflected in this motion. I want it reflected in this motion that this is the city council making a statement that this is considered a public health emergency. Thank you. Thank you. I'm Tom Richardson, and thank you to the entire council for the comments. And it certainly is a public health emergency. With that, we've concluded our council comments. We have, of course, some other items that are related. And so if I can, please go ahead and get a roll call. Actually, Councilman Price. So I ju st want some clarification either from Councilman Richardson or or the city attorney in regards to the ballot measure. Are we voting? Is there anything we're doing tonight in regards to a ballot measure? I can clarify intent, if that's okay. Sure. Perfect. Okay. So, as I mentioned in my comments, all of this should be able to land in systems change. And system change to me is defined as changes to charter, changes to the municipal code, changes to city manager pilot policies as well as budget. All of those are the systems in which guide our government. And so whatever recommendations may come out of that, the instruments to train, change, those all have different requirements, for example, charter change. So we know that the PCC requires a change to the charter. If you want to eliminate it, if you want to reform it, it requires those things. And so they would have to be preparation for an election if if that is something the city council chooses to do separately. We know that there are certain things, some things that require changes to the municipal code by ballot. For example, some of our cannabis laws, you know, we don't have a reputation of having a cannabis equity law that is as progressive as it should be due to the limitations placed on us by the voters and how they did that. That is one example of something we can place on to truly ensure that of the cannabis businesses reinvesting in communities have been impacted by that industry for many, many years. Those are the types of things, types of strategies that may come out of this process, looking at reinvestment of cannabis equity and and looking at barriers in our system that stop that from happening. And so this motion says, look what the city council in a position based on whatever comes out of this process to take action, don't let the deadlines of ballot measures and all of those things. Don't let this process stop any of those opportunities for reform. And so we know we have two immediate opportunities in front of us. One is our budget. Two is the upcoming election. And we also know that some things we can just enact outright as a city council, we have the power in some ways to do that. So that's the the reason I mentioned ballot measure, because that may be a requirement in order to change some systems. Okay, I get it. That seems pretty clear to me and I thank you for clarifying that. So we're going to do this listening process. We're going to engage in meetings and we're going to talk. And if there are some best practices that we think we want to employ, then we might propose some specific ballot measure, but we don't know yet what that's going to look like. We don't know what to make of it. We don't think that's going to be of the process. True. Got it. Okay. Thanks. Councilmember Pearce. Thanks, Mayor. I wanted to just reflect, Councilmember Richardson, when you asked that your motion be clear that this is a health priority in crisis, that there's also the resolution attached. An d I'm not sure when that's going to come back, but I think that it was included in there. But more importantly, my my question is for staff, there's one piece, you know. Councilmember Supernormal mentioned it. I mentioned it. The health inequities around our environmental piece, the city has done an excellent job of preparing our plan. It has sat on a shelf now for a year. I know part of that debate because the cap basically says that in order to reach our environmental goals, we have to have a CPA in place. And so it's it's been sitting there for a little bit. When is the timeline coming back on the two from four on the CAP plan? Because it has a you know, it directly impacts our black community and communities of color. A question for Tom on the Climate Adaptation Action Plan. Yeah, looking to see if Linda Tatum, she was here just a second ago. Linda, there's a question about the cap plan and when that might be coming back. So Linda Tatum will answer that question. All right. We are preparing a24 from. That'll go out. It'll be sent up to the city manager's office. I have a draft now. We're looking to get that out either this week or next week. And in that, it will outline the the remaining schedule to complete the cap and bring it back to the city council. Great. Thanks. Didn't want to get us too far off topic, but just recognizing that we have some tools and toolbox. Thank you guys. Very excited to take this vote. Thank you. Councilmember Pearce, before we go to a vote, I know that the the city attorney, I think had a had a clarification. I think I know the answer. I know that as far as the city attorney think, you're you're you're you're wondering about the the declaration of emergency. And I understand that that's not a formal action that the council can take tonight. But I think that Councilman Richardson, correct me if I'm wrong, is talking about this in general terms, that that's what the moment that we're in. Is that correct? Councilman Richardson. Yeah. There's a few things. One, it mentions the priority and urgency of the moment. Two, we're already in a COVID 19 pandemic. We know that we're operating under a state of emergency. We have we're connecting based on data. We know it has a disproportionately disproportionate impact on from the health standpoint in African-Americans, as well as the economic fallout is disproportionately impacting African-Americans and many, many people. So there is a direct connection to the emergency we have. Those are important in local government to declare and to and to define. So that's what we're doing. So we're not saying declare a new emergency, to be clear. This is directly connected to the emergency you're in and it should be received with the same level of urgency. That is my point. Yeah, I hope that I hope that I'm interested in turning to that. Clarify it for you. I believe so. I think that the way I understand the motion is it is not an actual declaration of a health emergency. The council membe

that we were working on that was loud and clear today. We are committed. We're ready. I do want to point out that that comes with a price. When we put this ahead, we put other things behind. And so we are going to be taking that action. We will move things around. We will treat this with urgency. You're asking a lot in this motion. I think it's very good. I think it gives us some good structure. And it's an it is a very aggressive timeline. So we will be putting together structures to to treat it with the importance with which you have all spoken so eloquently tonight. And it is our job then to let you know what the other things that we will have to manage around and we will ask for the council's patients on that as we prioritize really this our COVID response and our budget, those are our three main things. And I think the point that Councilmember Richardson was making is that there are shared themes in all three of those that can be interwoven together, and we will be looking for those. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Modica. And then as we as we turn to the vote, I would also add this is something that Councilmember Richardson and I have talked about, and I and I agree, and I think we've mentioned this as well. Mr. Murdoch, I think as you begin to put together this plan, and I think you've acknowledged the importance and the urgency of the plan by the Council, we have incredible talent in this organization. We have incredible our rank and file employees in every single department in the city and managers and leaders that that love this community, that are part of this community and that and feel the same pain that we talked about tonight. We have a members in our public works crews. We have librarians. We have firefighters. We have all types of employees that really can help lead on this issue. I'm thinking about our our black or black employees or black managers that really have, I th ink, a unique perspective. So as we move forward in this process and we move forward to to really put together this framework. I'm also hopeful that we can tap into their immense talent and commitment to our city, because they're going to have a very unique perspective on the work ahead of us. And so I thank you, Mr. City Manager and the council and to Councilmember Richardson kind of for spearheading this and certainly to Vice Mayor de Andrews, to Councilmember Al Austin for your leadership and Councilmember Pierce for helping also in the coauthoring this item. We know this was a lot of work and we look forward to getting to work after that. After listening. So thank you all. And with that, we're now going to have the clerk do the roll call vote, please. District one. I district to district three. I strict for. I District. Five. I. District six. By District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine. District nine. I got some a record. This thing is muted. Sorry, I. Okay. Great. Thank you. Much information carries you counsel. We do have a couple of items are still a part of this broader discussion. And thank you all for that conversation on the on the general framework. So now we're going to take up item 26. Okay. Great. Thank you. Much information carries you counsel. We do have a couple of items are still a part of this broader discussion. And thank you all for that conversation on the on the general framework. So now we're going to take up item 26. Communication from Councilman Austin, Councilwoman Price, Vice Mayor Andrews, Councilmember Richardson recommendation to request city manager to report back within 30 days on the Citizens Police Complaint Commission. Thank you. Let me turn this over to Councilman Austin. I thank you, Mayor, and I want to thank my colleagues who signed on to this item. And before I start, I want to just preface that I got my start in public service here in the city of Long Beach with the city of Long Beach as a commissioner on a Citizen Police Complaint Commission. I was appointed in 2003 by then Mayor Beverly O'Neill. I was very deliberate about getting on that commission because at the time I was a lot younger and I saw things and many of the issues that we're talking about today were prevalent then it was and I worked on staff were state senator who. Had authored the original racial profiling bill. Driving while Black Bill. And so this was it was intentional for me to get on that commission. I worked to get on it. I talked to my city council member. I talked to the mayor. I realized that there was nobody who looked like me, who was in my demographic at that time, being of young black male. You served on that commission. And so it was it's been this is this was a hard work for me. And so just a little bit of a background. The Citizen Police Complaints Commission was established by the voters in Long Beach in 1990. It came following another high profile incident of police violence against a black man in th is case. His name was Don Jackson, and ironically, he was an off duty police officer here in Long Beach, not with a lot of his police department, but in 1989, he had been beaten and thrown through a plate glass window by one of these police officers in an incident that was captured on video. At the time, the CPC. CPC was a pioneering effort that was approved by the voters, where anybody, any person has a right to make a complaint against any employee of the London Police Department, whether it be an allegation of police misconduct with emphasis on excessive force or false arrest complaints with racial or sexual overtones. These complaints are investigated and the CPC PCC was charged to make findings resulting in the recommendations that accused personnel be disciplined, trained or exonerated. Here we are 30 years later. Time for us to look ways at the CPC can be updated and improve accountability, transparency and confidence in the relationship between the community and our police department. It is important that we have a timely conversation now on how to improve the efficacy of the PCC. I would like to thank the IPCC commissioners, many who have served the city over the last 30 years. As a former commissioner myself, I know how much work that goes into reviewing these cases, how many late nights people put into it studying these cases. And and and I will tell you, as council members, you know, their agendas oftentimes resemble ours in terms of the volume of reading that goes into these cases that come before the P.C.C. Their meeting packets are thick. And like I said, it's not thicker than many of our our council agenda packets. I've also had the opportunity to speak with several former and current commissioners over the past few days to get their feedback on this item. I'd like to thank the London Police Department also for their cooperation and collaboration. Understanding that the PCC is an independent entity in the Charter Commission and it is governed by the people. It's been mentioned earlier. If there are any changes to come to this commission, it would require well. Any any functional changes would require a vote of the people. But I believe that there are also opportunities for us to work with the city manager's office because the PCC is under the office of the City Manager. I believe there's an opportunity for us to make some administrative changes as well and make some immediate short term improvements that can improve efficacy, that improve the operations of the Commission, that could add value to all the work that they do. For example, there are staffing concerns with the independent investigators who handle case loads. I'm told that there are two part time investigators that handle case loads. I'm told that we have temporary administrative staff who will prepare the cases and deal with the database, work for that commission. The question arises, should there be more training for the commissioners? Should there be more community? E ngagement in in the Commission. When I was chair of the Commission 2004 to 2005, I instituted a community training which brought in people to the police academy, residents to the police academy, along with the commissioners, to learn more about police practices and training so that when they were reading these cases, we were reading these cases, we would have a greater understanding about what is in the mindset of an officer. Right. How are they trained? Can we make recommendations on on on on on on on on training? Obviously, as citizens, we're not police officers. We don't have the same level of training. But we should, when looking and reviewing their cases, have an understanding of their work. So I thought that that was very good. And at the time to try to foster greater community relations, I brought in the organizations that were oftentimes at odds or questions, a lot of these police tactics. And at that time, in 2005, we brought in the Fruit of Islam, the captains from the Fruit of Islam to participate in that. And there was. There was was a great understanding and relationship building during that period of time. There should also be timely reports for the City Council, including the briefing of Office of the Office of the Council of Officer Involved Shootings. And I would say at this point, moving forward, any officer involved shooting can be a source of complaint from a they go through the PCC. But I would say that every officer involved shooting should come to the council for briefings and review. We are at that time. We need greater oversight and we can do a better job as a city council. We should always we should also look at allowing video testimony from complainants and witnesses rather than just written reports. The way the Citizen's Police Complaints Commission works is that these cases are investigated. As I mentioned, there are major packets where commissioners have to go through text and review statements from complainants, witnesses. But also offer some statements are not included in that because they're not compelled to give statements, statements. That's something that we probably should be looking at as well. I have questions. How, how, what access to the P.C.C. Now have to have you feel footage from body worn cameras. While CB, S.C. has subpoena authority. I mentioned they cannot compel statements from officers. That is something we might want to consider. The state legislation. I'd like to hear from my colleagues as well. The CPC, I believe, is an important tool for accountability and transparency when it comes to our community's confidence in our police department and and it holds officers accountable. I look forward to a review of reforms that we can make, make the PCC more effective. And I'd like to just also say that, you know, I've heard from a number of commissioners. They are submitting recommendations on a format, like I said, existing in former commissioners. They are submitting recommendations for or or potentia

I reform. And this is just a start to the conversation. I want to be very clear on that. I'm laying this out there. I've asked the city manager to review this and come back in 30 days. But I'm also open to allowing this and layering this with the previous agenda item as part of the community conversation. That needs to happen as well as the city manager needs more than 30 days, or if we can make that happen with that within that 30 day window. That would be great. But I'm going to be also forwarding the city manager recommendations from other commissioners that that I have received an email and also phone calls. And again, I think we're up to about two dozen recommendations on a potential reforms to that commission and how we can improve its its work. I don't want to. Devalue the importance of that commission when, as I mentioned before, you look at the National Organization for Civilian Oversight Commissions, you know, at least when I served on the commission, it was Long Beach was was one of the model commissions. Right. Civilian oversight has changed significantly over the last 30 years. And so because of that, I think it merits a review and potential reform of our commission. So with that, I would look forward to hearing from our colleagues and hearing your comments. Again, it's not a perfect system. It's our system. It's one that we've had for 30 years. When Ferguson broke out, we were this was one of the first solutions that they pointed to us as as is a need there. And that was just a few years ago, I would say, within the last 3 to 5 years. L.A. County, just the sheriffs just were. Just became subject to civilian oversight. So it's very, very important that we have this conversation. Again, I'm happy to bring this item forward. I think it's timely and in light of everything that is going on. And I look forward to my colleague's comments. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor Andrews, you're the second. Yeah. Thank you, ma'am. First of all, I've got a lot of people going forward. You know, as we look at this commission, we really need to use our equity lens now, only reporting bad press. And we have the conversations. I'm looking on the city's website and it says that basically learning opportunity. Long Beach resident speak of equity and have served our communities. Oh, that sounds great. We need to talk about the purpose of this. This commission has the ability to determine here and obviously get trained, but dismissed. This is not a commission one can serve on an entire. You have to take someone complaints and become aware of appropriate and that occurs. And it is a serious problem that needs to consider the side of the story and try to find the best possible timeline of the event and the Act before guidance recommendations. You can not continue to be a boss which when reviewing play. I cannot be just another commission. He place somewhere on this. Yes, James. That is. We have been completely honest. I have never heard it from a single commi

better than I do. But if that's something you want to think about, but it's a great item. I wholeheartedly support it and I hope the rest of the council does as well. Thanks. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilmember Pearce. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you, Councilmember. Awesome for bringing this forward. I know you and I have talked about this commission in the past and it's unfortunate that this moment took this moment to get movement on it. But I'm glad that that you've taken the leadership to get it here. I, too, have over the years had a lot of people talk about the effectiveness or the clarity, the transparency of this committee. And I also had the great opportunity to talk to Congressman Lowenthal about this commission. And, you know, someone that brought this commission forward and him today saying that it needs a great overhaul is also a reflection of how far we've come as a state and as a city. I h ad a question for the city attorney as we talk about the last item with some of the civilian oversight process and then this commission. I have one commissioners, actually, two commissioners that have been very outspoken about feeling like if we even start on this commission, that it's going to be very difficult. And that making sure that we have a civilian oversight that's really separate of the city would be important. So my question is for the city attorney and to review this and put some changes in if we're able to do that. But what changes require the charter changes? Like what is the trigger for putting this on the ballot? And then my second question is, are there other ways to get civilian oversight quicker than, say, two years that really have teeth that are separate and independent from the city? That does not require charter? And if you could just share with the public those two things. Mayor, members of the council. I will try the basically the charter as described by Council member Austin, who did a great job describing the PCC, was established by the vote of the people in 1990 as a charter committee and so any changes to the powers and duties of that committee require a vote of the people to either repeal it or to amend it or to change it. So as we as I anticipated what this item would be, we would come back with a report that would describe the history of the PCC. And in the Charter it identifies the duties that the and the responsibilities of that commission. And then if there are proposed changes and it sounds like there are already a number of suggested modifications to that committee, those would all require a vote of the people to amend the PCC as it currently exists. If that answers your question. Then it is my first question. So my second question is how are there ways that the city can get an independent oversight police commission that is independent of the city without going to the vote of the people or without a charter change? They're there. Your. I we'd have to look at what what it is you'd want to establish. And if I understand your question correctly, an oversight body of the of the Long Beach Police Department. There could be a under the municipal code, you could establish an advisory committee to determine and to advise the city manager or the city council on proposed changes or policy decisions. That would be the council purview. The I think you do need a vote of the people to establish some sort of a charter amendment, because currently under the charter, the authority for the discipline lies with the police of the chief of police and ultimately with the city manager as your executive director of the of the city. So in order to take those. It sounds like you're suggesting that you would possibly want to remove those two and put them in place with a body. And that would require a charter amendment to to make that happen. It could be done, but it would need a charter amendment. If. If I understood your question corr

manager. I think you didn't mean to say there is no oversight or review of that. That and the CPCB makes recommendations to the city manager pursuant to their authority under the charter also. Thank you for that. And I would I would say that. As Councilmember often mentioned, we have not had a report, at least from one of the commission of reports that I had an email from in the last three years to the city council, at least not one that's been publicly discussed. And so, you know, looking at areas that we need to tighten up and make sure that we're abiding by the law that's in front of us in our own charter, and to is that we, the Council, have oversight over our city manager, but our city manager is the one that has oversight over everyone else. And I personally only meet with our commanders and I don't meet with our police chief on a regular basis. We've tried over the last four years, but I don't. And so it it makes it difficult, you know. And so these are all the issues of transparency and access that are important for this committee for us to all be thinking about. The one last part I wanted to just publicly recognize is, you know, I also led the efforts with Councilmember Austin and others around our H.R. practices. And we know that there's a lot of great changes there that need to be made. What I'm hearing from our commissioners is also that they they don't feel like and they have not been presented with at least the chair that I've talked to. Policies and procedures for them as commissioners and for understanding what the policies and procedures are for the st aff that's supposed to be working with them. And so basic things like that, I look forward to having a conversation with that. I don't think would require charter reform, but just basic, you know, keeping our house tidy. And so I hope to to hear from from staff and from city attorney on on some of those. And then my one last question. As you look to bring this back, are there ways for independent attorneys to be involved with the PCC as it exists right now? No. The under the charter, the city attorney's office is a sole and exclusive legal adviser to the city and its boards and commissions, and we advise the PCC. Okay. Those are my questions. Think again. Trying to move forward to a fuller discussion when it's brought back. Thank you. Thank you. Next up is Council Member Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I just want to acknowledge. Acknowledge this effort. Thank you. Councilman Orson, I know you spent a lot of time on the KPCC. Probably more experience with it than anyone else on the council. You know? And I want to I want to say the framework we just voted on separately, we're very clear that, you know, everything needs to be on the table. So reform to see PCC, independent oversight, all of those needs to be evaluated. I think since KPCC is there and we know its charter, I think the questions about how it works now that that's low hanging fruit, they can start now. I think everybody points points to it that it can be know look at the issues with it, but it could arrive at, you know, the charter and they need to change it or the charter may need to like eliminate it in favor of a new process or a different type of process. And so that's what these conversations are. And I want to just encourage people, not the rest of the solution, to let it play out. Let's let's bring up the issues are understanding it and be open to what whatever form this might look like and know that. Those are my comments. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilmember Ringo. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you all, councilmember, also for bringing this forward. It has been 30 years since this commission has been put in place and reviewed. Whether the things that came out of it was also that it is to be in conjunction with each other and with civil service. Most officers that are disciplined are classified employees, and there's a process. They go through civil service, through a hearing. The recommendation the PCC makes is to the city manager. In the city manager makes his decision as to where it goes from there and then it goes to Civil Service Commission if there's a disciplinary action. One of the things that came out of that, that the event that you're talking about comes from Ross in 1989 with Don Jackson was that those two officers, Ramsey and Mickey, called it the Marx Brothers. And they were Mark Ramsey and Mark. Mark Dickey. They they were disciplined. And but one of the things that really came out of it was, for me, shameful is that they were allowed to disability

, retire. They were not dismissed or terminated, which means that as a disability, retired retiree, their pension, they receive their pension and they don't get taxed on it. So basically they were. They left because they said they were stressed. They created that stress by pushing Mr. Jackson's head through that plate glass window and and in the subsequent events he took after that. So we look at it. We also have to look at a charge role and the Civil Service Department's role or commissions role in this whole process as well. So if we're going to look at the PCC and its role in reviewing of cases of abuse or misuse of honor under the color of our uniform, we also have to look at those other entities that are involved with that as well. Would that require a charter change? I don't know, but it would certainly determine how the other two commission, the whole of the department and the Civil Service Commission relates to it. So we also have to look at and take that into consideration as well. And what's the what's the end game that we want with the PCC? We want to give it more teeth. Or do you want to just change how it functions as a whole? One of the things that that was that has come over the years to me my attention anyway. Is that the CPC has no teeth. It has recommendations, but it doesn't have any authority to deal with the word officers if that in fact is what comes out of the investigation, that that lies directly with the city manager. And and and the chief of police. So we we need also need to look at the role that it plays with the other hiring authorities, h.r. And the civil service commission, which basically is a body that that deals with classified employees when there's any kind of disciplinary action. Just throwing it out there that we need to include that review as well in terms of the role that they play with the CPC and the CPC interacts with those other two entities as well. Thank you, councilmember councilmembers. And. I just want to echo the comments of my colleagues, and I think this is a really good step in the right direction. And thank you so much, council member Austin, for bringing this item forward. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman, I think that has been I think the entire council have made comments. I'm going to come to conclude and close out this this item as we move on to some other ones. Well, let me just first begin just by thanking council member Austin especially for bringing this forward. I think it does tie in with the framework that was also adopted by the City Council and and like most of the council, I've also received a lot of it, a lot of ideas, suggestions from from commissioners and from community members as well. I want to just mention a couple of things. I think the first thing that's important is I want to uplift. I know there's been a lot of conversation about the commission. The commission was, of course, created by the vote of the people, the people of Long Beach. And it's clear that, you know, decades later, it's time to revisit that commission and and revisit how it works, how it functions, how it can be more community oriented and how we can improve it. I think that's important. Any time that this that the city and the voters create something, there's always opportunities to revisit it and to make them stronger and to meet the moment that we are in. And so I support this initiative at looking at the PCC. I want to also thank those that serve. I think certainly it's easy to for us to acknowledge or for folks to criticize and maybe the commission might work or the way it's set up. The way it works is laid out in the charter. And so we certainly can change the charter or we can make changes to the way it's governed. I think that's maybe an opportunity for the city manager and the staff to see it. Are there ways to improve it that are outside of the mandated functions of the charter? But we've had a I mean, just dozens and dozens of people from all across our community who have honorably served in that commission. And I want to thank them tonight for for serving for for their commitment to to this voter approved body. I'm from that was created. But I also want to be very clear moving forward that I do believe it's time for change. And I do believe that we have an opportunity and a unique opportunity to look at really creating a model commission or system. And I think that what we've heard tonight is a variety of of different ways of doing it. I think you heard that certainly we could go to to the route of of improving it internally through through staff process. There's certainly opportunities to look at is this the right type of body that should exist in in this area should be different. And certainly the the one that I think is the most democratic, which is a change at the ballot box, which makes something very permanent, is a is a charter change or a municipal code change that would really change the way this commission functions and the way that the people on the commission interact with the body. And I will just say that I think this you know, this council has a has a record of a charter changes in charter commissions. We just went through a process last year where this city went all in on on charter change, on creating a new city ethics commission on on on redistricting, on so many issues. And so I think that if we do this and as we begin this process, I encourage us to listen. Let's go to the community. Let's hear from our staff and from our departments what works, what doesn't work. And then let's and then let's really make create something that's a model and that we can really be proud of as a city and really meet the legacy of Congressman Lowenthal, of of then Councilman Lowenthal, who began this work with with the mission of really community oriented oversight and engagement. So I think I believe that we can do that and and we'll be all in on this process and make sure that we get it just right. So, Councilman Au stin, I also trust that as as the one councilmember that has served on this commission, you're going to have valuable insight as well. So I look forward to your leadership in this process. And so with that, let's go out and take a roll call vote. Thank you. District by. District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six. All right. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. I motion carries i. I am muted the right way this time. Thank you. That that that item passes. And so we look forward to that information coming back. Let's see. Next up is. I think item 27 I believe. Thank you. Next up, we're going to do item 25, please. Communication from Councilman Austin, Councilwoman and Diaz, Councilman Soprano, Vice Mayor Andrews recommendation to require city manager to work with Long Beach Transit to schedule a study session to provide information and discuss Long Beach Transit's relationship with the city and its role with the city's public transportation system. Councilmember Austin. Thank you. I think the item is pretty self-explanatory. A lot of these transit is an important agency in our city that moves through every district. In my time on the council for the last eight years and watching the council for many more years before that, maybe 20 years, I don't recall ever seeing a report or a or any sort of connection between the city and lobby transit. I think it will be very timely because of COVID 19, but also just the changes going on in the transportation sphere that we have a study session to understand how this important transit agency is, is serving our communities, and also give the opportunity for council to give feedback to lobby transit. I would ask for your support. I'm a support on this and look forward to the city manager bringing it back soon. Thank you. That's a motion by Councilmember Austin. I have a second by councilman. The day has come from sun. Has? Yes. Thank you, Mayor. Money Transit is an amazing organization that we should all be very proud of. Have been here in the city of Long Beach. They have been absolutely wonderful. The is the many years that I've been living here in Long Beach and I've been a regular user of them. So I'm really excited to see all the innovative ideas that they have done in recent times. I'm so I'm like super excited to to hear them come before the council and share some of their goals and some of the their previous accomplishments and where they hope to go from here. I also want to give them a big shout out for quickly responding to our our need on Monday morning, when we had a wonderful, big, huge group of volunteers in the downtown area that swiftly were able to help out the businesses clean up in the downtown area. After our devastating night on Sunday night and the Long Beach Transit swiftly responded to our needs for help and provided transportation from the downtown area to North Long Beach, where there was a big was also a clean up go ing on over there. So I just wanted to say thank you and I look forward to this report and thank you so, Councilmember Austin, for bringing this forward. I think it's very important. Thank you. That's the motion. The motion? In a second. Mr. Mayor. Excuse me. I can't swim in Mongo. Did you want to add anything? Thank you. I just want to say, I've, through the years, done briefings with long term at my 100% wholeheartedly heartedly support this presentation. They're doing some amazing things in our city, and I think it's important for us to have the opportunity to engage with them and their leadership and and hear more about the great progress they've made . Thank you, Vice Mayor Andrews. Thank you, man. You know, I think after all, this is going to be a it's going to be an important as well work to bring Wisconsin together in one central location. You know, for me, it is going to be important that we discuss the quality and our partnership with the working refuge to keep the trash can that the bus can maintain and how we work to keep the area around the bus that great. You know, there are some things that we can do to improve. But I am you know, I've got to say here, this is an issue across the board and not just in this century. I'm looking forward to a study session on this. Thank you very much. Thank you, Councilman Pierce. Thank you. Sorry about that. Earlier that you're going to vote, I had two things. I want to thank the council members for bringing this forward. There one on the president's absolutely. Council member Dan Andrews. I find it very frustrating when we're trying to work with public works and our community partners that want to do beautification projects around our best stops. But then we can't because they're not the cities and what that processes is. So I'm looking forward to seeing how we can make sure that our community groups can better partner with transit in whatever form possible and then to. I'd also like to understand better the process for redirecting busses in the notification, as some of you might have heard that on Sunday when we had the protest, busses were told to be rerouted, but our senior population and some of our disabled population did not receive notification. And so they were stuck in a terrible situation and a crowd of 3000 people without knowing how to get to the next location. And so as we talk about that, and it comes to my mind about notification and I know that the city we have our alert text, but also just any way that we can alert our transit riders about any changes that might happen and the best way for them to continue on public transit that day if necessary. So looking forward to the study session. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Roll call. Vote. District one. I district to. I District three are gone. I District four. District five. I. District six. District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. We now have our last item, which is item nu mber 23. I think we got all the rest. Item 23, please. District one. District two. I District three. I district for. District five. By District six. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. I know she cares. Thank you. Item 17, please. Report from Public Works. Recommendation to award four contracts for as needed stormwater and Pump Station Related Engineering Consulting Services City wide. Can I get a motion in a second, please? I got a motion because we were going to get a second place and second by Councilwoman Price. I'll cover. District one I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six by district seven. I. District eight. District nine. Right. Prosecutors. Thank you. Now we're moving on to item 24. Be. Thank you. Let's see, try to do some of the council items first here that we had a request for. Let's go ahead and do item 15 than 18 because I think our council items. Communication from Councilman Austin, Councilwoman Price, Vice Mayor Andrews. Councilmember Richardson. Recommendation to request City Council to support Assembly Bill 1196. That's when Austin. Thank. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I'm having a little bit of technical difficulties here, but I'd like to thank my colleagues, colleagues Price Council Member Price Andrews and Council Member Richardson for signing on to this item of. In normal circumstances, an item like this would go to our state led committee. But in light of the moment that we are in, I think it's important for us to, like many other police agencies across the city, across the state, to reexamine in-country, to reexamine the use of force tactics by a police department. I'd like to thank our police chief and a lot of his power, who proactively announced last week that the police department would immediately suspend the use of the carotid artery restraint. Several other police departments throughout the state have taken similar actions recently. It's now time for language to go on record. The support of Assemblymember Mike Gibson's legislation, HB 1196 to ban the use of this tactic by police officers statewide. Karadzic. The carotid artery restraint, also known as the sleeper hold, applies pressure against the carotid artery. They have blood flow to the brain, which can render the person unconscious and can aggravate underlying health conditions that an officer may not be aware of. While the federal government is also moving forward to ban chokeholds, I have joined in Assemblymember Gibson's call for other states and Congress to move forward with California's lead on ending this tactic . And I would also just point out that an L.A. Times article review of the California Department of Justice records from 2016 to 2018 on the law enforcement throughout the state reported injuring 103 people using carotid restraints during those two years. Two, three, two people were actually killed and 91 were left unconscious. Blacks make up 23% of those injured by neck restraints, while co mprising only 6.5% of the state's population. My council colleagues, I think this is a no brainer. I ask for your unanimous support of this item, and I also would just again thank our council member, Richard Richardson, who was a chair of our state led committee, for signing on to this and allowing us to skip the state legislative process in committee. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and count on Councilman Austin. Thank you for bringing this item forward. This is absolutely lutely the right call to support this legislation, and I'm grateful to the assemblyman for bringing it forward. This is there are so many use of force options available that are less torturous, less cruel and and less harmful. And I am grateful that our police chief was proactive in making declarations regarding this type of use of force. And I'm hopeful that other police chiefs in the region and throughout the state will follow. But I think having this legislation in place is a clear signal to everyone that we're talking about a necessity of use of force . There are certain use of force practices that are more harmful and more dangerous than others and frankly, more cruel when we're talking about depriving someone of air. And we're we're talking about the area of the body that's so prone to injury. So I'm I'm very happy to sign on to this item as chair of the Public Safety Committee. I know we're going to be talking about some of our use of force options and practices and adopting new best practices as we move forward. And certainly looking at how our use of force practices impact different communities and in this case, impact black communities more than any other race. And I think it's very important to call that out. And I thank you, Councilman Austin, for bringing this forward. Thanks. Council. Woman Council member Richardson. No, I'm sorry. I'm sorry. Council members and de Vos, then councilor anger. I absolutely agree with my colleagues. This is absolutely the right decision for this. I'm also very grateful to Chief Luna for taking the proactive steps of eliminating the method, this method in Long Beach. But that's just one long overdue step. And so but it but a very welcome one. I believe we need to rethink the ways that our law enforcement officers are permitted to use force. And I look forward to working with my colleagues to reexamine the way that we conduct policing in Long Beach. Thank you. That's we, Ranga. Thank you, Mayor. And I totally agree with all the comments of the councilmembers, but in a very short way. It's time. The time has come to get rid of this. Abusive force of use of force to control and apprehend individuals. Thank you. Casa Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Just a few a few points. First, thanks to Councilman Austin for reaching out. We do have a state legislative process. We have a meeting coming up next week. There's a number of bills that will be tracking with respect to use of force reparations, the repeal o f Prop two or nine. We've invited the chair of the Black Caucus, Shirley Weber, to come and be a guest on our state legislative committee. But I think it makes sense, given that this legislation was sponsored by a local city council, our local assembly member, Mike Gibson, that represents North Palm Beach. The city takes this immediate opportunity to be on the record in support. I know that when you take a two off, off the table, broadens the conversation and sort of creates the conversation about what do you do if you don't have this tool? And that's the conversation that we need to be having here locally. I support this this activity, this action and state legislative committee will will also be taking this on. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Pierce. Thank you. Echo the comments that I appreciate you guys bringing it forward to the council quickly and making sure that we can give the support. And obviously, I think we've all had lots of conversations with the city staff, the police chief and with the public about trying to make sure that our police department is one that doesn't use excessive force. And this is obviously one of those actions. I look forward to community members. I want to just mention the framework and the process that's there and making sure that community members are engaging in the open sessions that are public now, and particularly around the public safety piece and the police section, so that we can have a full conversation about what, as Councilmember Richardson said, tools are there. What do our police officers do? What is the training? And how can we make sure that we are limiting excessive use that might do damage to our residents, whether they're they're black or not? And so I fully support this and really appreciate you guys bringing this forward and look forward to the next conversation. Thank you. Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes. First of all, I want to thank our councilman also for bringing this item forward. I think I definitely think that's the direction that we should be going into. And thank you again. Quentin is for it. Thank you. That concludes council comment. I know that the police chief wanted him some comment as well, Mr. Learner. Thank you, Mayor. Members of the City Council, thank you for recognizing the work of the men and women of the police department and the fact that we issued a special order back on the 9th of June to suspend the use of the carotid restraint. Also want you to know that our work is not going to stop there as we re-envision how it is and what it is to work with our partners in the community. I also want you to know that we issued a special order today that puts more management controls on no knock, no knock search warrants that went out today. We haven't put that out yet publicly, but it will be probably by tomorrow. We're also working on an early intervention system that helps us identify any potential problematic employees. That will be very helpful to us at all. And I just wanted to comment that when you look at a lot of of the reforms that are suggested, either at the national level, either by Congress or at the state level, and others others that are talking about it, your police department is already way ahead of the curve. And there's a whole list of things that we do specifically in the training realm that we've been doing for several years, such as number one in our use of force policy. And the overarching message is that we have an absolute reverence for human life under any circumstances. That special order went into effect as of this January, and it is consistent with what you hear over and over in the state. Things like we look at my. All of us in here really quick. Or we're talking about, one, a duty to intervene, which is talked about a lot that's already in our policy mandatory that we de-escalate whenever possible. And our officers do that over and over again, that we give verbal warnings. And even to the extent that use any use of force is proportionate to the situation that we're in and also that. When host use of force that the officers are absolutely required to provide medical aid. That's really important. The training that you hear about over and over, whether it's crisis intervention, training, training on de-escalation, training on implicit bias, procedural justice, the use of body worn cameras, those are all things your police department has been doing now for several years. And I just want to conclude by saying that what we're doing is working. Is it perfect? Well, I have a deputy chief right now assigned to review a lot of our use of force policies and everything that we do to make sure that we are meeting our community standards. And the standards are laid out across the country. And just to give you an example, in 2019, when you look at our uses of forces compared to our arrest and our total stops are our percentage was 1.67 ratio per every arrest we made. That means that our officers were doing an amazing job in very difficult circumstances, specifically when they're dealing with people in crisis, either mental illness or substance abuse, and only 1.67% of the time they use force. Maybe someday we'll get that to zero. But that's why we've got a lot of work to do. So with that, I'll conclude my comments. Thank you very much. I think you also have a controversy here and I think just keyed up also. Thank you. I want to have the chief let him have the last word. But I'll just say very briefly that from as mentioned, Mike Gibson representing Carter Long Beach to Austin, thank you for bringing this forward to our police chief. It's just very gratifying to see Vimy Ridge take the lead on this issue. Thanks. Thank you, Madam Cook, to be a public comment on this item. There is one public comment on this item. Victor Boosie, you have 3 minutes. Vegetables in line 0808. This is my zip code. It's not that the police are ineffective. Many communities, they are harmful. The history of police policing in this co untry come from slave catchers. It's more than brutality. It's more than reforms. In stark contrast, the drug war, the prison complex, all these things combined bring injustice to black people, especially here in Long Beach. You're talking about Mike Gibson. Mike Gibson was the Linwood cop. The Linwood Police Department had to be disbanded because they were so corrupt and crooked. What did Mike Gibson do in that police department? What did he do for not be a bad apple? Who did he read out? Nobody. So you're telling me a former cop from a shady. Police Department is the one who is going to give me a reform. No, I am not taking it. Reforms don't work. Video footage, whether from body cameras or other sources, wasn't enough to get justice for Philando Castile. Samuel de Bois, Walter Scott, Tamir Rice and far too many black folks are police violence. Reforms are not the problem. The police are the problem. It's time for something new. Community groups in the sixties also demanded civilian review boards better trained in community policing. What happened since the sixties? It took till 2021 to defend it. It took from 2020. But you often see that black lives are sacred. Forget that we don't want your reforms. We want to defund our DPD. That's it. Those are the demands. Understand the demands. We get to take your money. We're here to take your jobs. This is over. We demand justice for all black people in Long Beach. That will bring up all marginalized people in Long Beach. This have gone and not gone far too long. It needs to end. The people are in the streets. Listen to the people in the streets. Too much violence has been borne on decade after decade by police, and the best reforms do nothing to help us. We are still dying in the streets. Black Lives Matter. We would not be protesting for all these years. It's been going on over and over and over again. And every time there's a reform, that's it. It gets co-opted, it gets retired, it gets overturned depending on who's in office. Anything on the federal level can't state. The only thing I can think is taking money away from the police department. That is the only reform that works is to defund the police. That's it. Defund Albee P.D.. Don't give me talking about chokeholds. Are you serious? Now you're banned. Chokeholds. So before this, it was okay to choke a black man to death. Are you kidding me? Is that the reform that you have for me as a black man? To have a black man on the city council? That's all you guys got? Well, thank you. That's a conclusion of public comment for this item. Okay. Thank you. Please go ahead and call the roll call. District. One eye to eye. Three. Eye. District four. All right. District five by district six. I. District seven. I. District eight. Hi. District nine. All right. Ocean carries. 22. I'm sorry. There's one Republican. There's one public comment on this item. Dave Shukla you have your start now. Oh, I said everything I had to say previously. Black Lives Matter.

Thank you. That concludes public comment. Roll call vote, please. District one. I just like to shine. District three. IV. District four. Right. District five. I. District six. Five districts. Seven. I. District eight. District eight. District nine. My motion carries. The next item is item number 25. Or from Public Works recommendation to approve the city's Safe Streets Long Beach plan citywide. Thank you, Mr. Monica. Staff report. Yes. So we know the hour. It's a little late, but we do feel this is an important plan and that we want to try to give a brief staff report. And so I will turn it over to Diego and his team to get the report. Thank you, Mr. Modica. We're here today to give you a presentation on the Safe. Streets Long Beach program. As you recall, in 2016, the city council adopted the city's Vision Zero Initiative. And this is the plan to bring a Vision Zero to Long Beach. I'm going to turn it over to Mr. Carl Hickman, our traffic engineer, and Ms.. Rachel Junkin, our transportation planner, to provide you with the report. Thanks. Thank you, Diego, and good evening. Mr. Austin and council members. I'm sure many of you have heard of the term Vision Zero before. Over the past decade or so, it has been a term a vision, so to speak, an idea that agencies can eliminate traffic fatalities or severe injuries over the course of a certain period of time . This has been a topic of major discussion in cities throughout the United States and actually in large cities throughout the world. One thing to remember or to think about as we move through our presentation is that not only are we focusing on reducing those types of collisions that I mentioned, but we are also focused on focusing on the idea that we are trying to improve the level of safety for all users of the roadway. So as we move forward, we'll have Rachel Junkin, one of our transportation planners, start our presentation. And about midway or so, I'll jump in with the engineer speak. So thank you. All right. Thank you, Mayor. Members of the city council. So in 2016, Council adopted the city's Vision Zero policy to eliminate traffic fatalities and serious injuries within ten years. So the action plan before you tonight was developed in a very data driven approach. We analyzed collision data from 2013 through 2017 to identify which transportation road users are most vulnerable. Where our most severe crashes are happening. And what crash types or circumstances most commonly lead to a fatality or serious injury. So in addition to these findings, the plan also recommends seven Keystone actions, and Carl will outline those la ter in the presentation. And these will help us meet our goal through a combination of engineering, design solutions, safety, education, as well as traffic enforcement. And it's important to note we aren't reinventing the wheel here. There are 11 cities in California and 40 throughout the country that have adopted a similar Vision Zero plan since 2014. And we do know that the cities that have invested heavily in Vision Zero, like San Francisco in New York, have seen marked decreases in serious traffic collisions. So the Vision Zero philosophy was started in Sweden and basically reconsiders this standard assumption that all traffic fatalities are somehow inevitable and and reframes this as as these deaths being ultimately preventable. So this includes a few things refocusing engineering standards to ensure health and safety are higher priorities, then vehicle efficiency and speed, which are also very important but not nearly as important as health and safety of our residents. It also acknowledges that humans make mistakes and that we can't prevent all crashes. But the goal here really is to ensure that when a crash does happen, it doesn't result in a serious injury or death. And this effort is especially critical now, as you can see from the chart on the right road, fatalities and serious injuries are increasing each year in Long Beach. And to provide some context. In the past few years, we've seen similar numbers of homicides as we do traffic fatalities in Long Beach. Last year, we had 30 road fatalities and 34 homicides. And it's also important to note, beyond the tragedy of lives lost, there is also a significant economic cost to consider when we talk about traffic crashes. So based on calculations from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration between 2013 and 2017, traffic collisions in Long Beach cost about 1.46 billion from expenses related to medical care, emergency services, property damage and lost productivity. And so over the course of the last year and a half, staff has conducted outreach throughout the city to get feedback on the plan. We hosted pop ups throughout the city at events, and we also had a number of focus groups and community meetings with neighborhood associations. We brought a listening bench to our events. You can see that in the photo on the bottom there where folks could sit and record their stories of how they've been impacted by traffic safety. And many of those stories are quoted throughout the action plan. And again, this is a very data driven effort, but we wanted to see what safety issues people were most concerned about in the city. And you can see on the in the pie chart on the right, the top concerns were distracted, driving, speeding. And third being the need for bike infrastructure that further separates vehicles and bikes. And about half the community also wanted to see engineering solutions used to solve these problems. With the other half kind of split between wanting to see more education and enforcement. So moving on to our technical advisory committee, so we convened a task that met multiple times throughout the drafting of the Safe Streets plan and contributed their expertise. So we had staff from city departments, including Fire, Health, Police, Department Services, Economic Development and the port. We also had external agencies at the table, Long Beach Transit and Metro staff, and we also had advocacy and nonprofit groups. The Long Beach Gray Panthers were represented. They advocate for older adults, walk Long Beach, walk bike Long Beach and bikeable communities. And each partner played an important role, especially when we got down to crafting the recommendations. And many of these folks will be instrumental in seeing that these recommendations are carried out. And so what? We have a lot of work to do and we highlight some of our existing street safety projects in the plan. I also wanted to point out some of the education and encouragement programs that our partners in the Health Department continue to do each year. These include things like bike and pedestrian safety workshops, rodeos, pop up events, free giveaways, helmet giveaways, lights. They also oversee our annual walk to school week back to school week and Safe Driver Awareness Week. And it's a lot easier to do pedestrian and bicyclists education because you can kind of stop people on the street. But it does get tricky when it comes to driver education. So I'm excited they're launching a Drive Safe Long Beach program later this year, and this will include both drug impaired driving prevention as well as distracted driving prevention. So we look forward to working closely with health and all of our other city partners as we start implementing this plan. And with that, I'm going to turn it back over to Carl Hickman, our city traffic engineer. It was great. As Rachel mentioned prior, our report, our study and the things that we had to look at were very data driven and we had to determine exactly how were the majority of our collisions occurring in the city. And what we found was that speeding was the most frequent violation. The next problem was that people were not complying with traffic signals or signage. And then we also found that bicyclists were colliding with vehicles because they were traveling on the right. The bikes were on the wrong side of the road. Many times there are a lot of other factors involved in. There are collisions and sometimes we don't know exactly what they are. But those were the main three items. And then, although it seems to make common sense that if you get hit by a car going at a high speed, the damage would be worse. We did do some research and we found these interesting numbers where if you were hit by a car at 20 miles an hour, there would be a 13% likelihood that she would you'd experience a fatality or severe injury as speed increases at 30 miles an hour, that likelihood increases to 40%. And then if you're hitting a car doing 40 m iles an hour, there's a 73% chance that there's going to be a fatality or severe injury. So, again, if a pedestrian is struck at a high rate of speed, there's a very high probability that you're going to have a severe injury or fatality. And then we went a little further and decided, well, who was getting involved in these collisions? We looked at what could be done to protect the vulnerable users of the road, and we found that bicyclists, pedestrians and motorcyclists make up 14% of all of this, all but 65% of severe collisions. And we also looked at equity concerns. Many of those who walk or bike for transportation do so for economic reasons or disability. So you can see the charts on the right where we have the percentages of the different modes of transportation and the fact that, again, bicyclists, pedestrians and motorcyclists are the largest number of vehicles, I'm sorry. And people who are individual are involved in collisions. So we look at another important factor, which was who was getting involved in these collisions. Is it men? Is it females? Is it people who are older? And what we found is that men and young adults are more likely to be killed or seriously injured in collisions, and that we can target these target groups, the same men and young adults, to try to reduce collisions. You can see the chart on the right that shows the different age groups and clearly the red or the the males in this study are the higher prevalence of collisions. Then we then we looked at the charts that show where are the collisions happening? And we can see that the majority of the collisions are happening on our major arterials. And there is also a high concentration of collisions happening in downtown and central Long Beach. Again, 73% of high injury collision corridors and there are 83% of the intersections are in disadvantaged communities. So we have a very good idea of where these collisions are happening. And our next task is to figure out what we're going to do about it. So we have seven Keystone actions to to discuss in our plan to help address this issue. First, we have to dedicate resources to the safe streets, Long Beach effort, increased staffing and funding for traffic safety programs and projects. We have to address speeding. And to do that, we have to look at arterial road designs. We have to consider additional enforcement, as Susy Price mentioned earlier. If you don't have that enforcement, at the end of the day, all of the things that we are doing sometimes just are for not. So it's really important that we have our officers support us in our efforts to enforce our posted speed limits. And then from an engineering standpoint, we have to do a better job in our street designs. We have to reduce areas of conflicts at intersections. We have to build comfortable bicycle infrastructures and routes. And we have to have shorter pedestrian crossings to allow pedestrians to get out of the street so that they can avoid conflicts with vehicles. We also have to have additional education about walking and biking large scale campaigns again targeting drivers, pedestrians, bicyclists and efforts tied to street reconfiguration projects. We call them roadway safety projects, and we have to do a better job communicating to the public about our designs and what we're trying to achieve. Item number five of our Keystone actions. We need to collect better data. Again, everything that we do in traffic engineering is very data driven, so we have to get better information about how these collisions are happening. We need to improve and be able to be more transparent, providing before and after data to the public and also to the folks that we work with to mitigate these issues. We have to partner with local, regional and different stakeholders to support safe street efforts. Talk with Metro, Caltrans, etc.. Work on grant programs. Different resources to get funding. As I mentioned, funding is critical. So we've got to work on these different stakeholders to get more funding. Also, we've got to work with our state partners to discuss, to consider automating enforcement techniques. There are ways through automated enforcement that we can achieve some of our ah of our safety goals. As you know, in the city of Long Beach about five years ago, we discontinued our use of red light enforcement systems. Maybe we should reconsider that or think about that or discuss it. And there are other options as well as far as automated enforcement goes. Item number seven, we need to emphasize automated enforcement and maybe we try to work on getting some automated speed enforcement cameras. Work on these things at the state level to maybe change some rules, change some ideas. Sometimes these these ideas are controversial at first. But, you know, we can make changes that will be positive and decrease the number of collisions if we increase the number of tools that we have on our toolbox. Again, we need to increase community engagement for our transportation projects, and we need to think about bicycle citations, diversion programs, as opposed to citations or fines. The next steps would be to formally adopt our plan to move forward with safe streets. Long Beach. We need to evaluate resources, priorities, implement Keystone actions. We need to encourage Long Beach community to sign safe a site. I'm sorry. Encourage the Long Beach community to sign Safe Streets pledges, basically as a resident committing to doing things that will make our streets safer. Promise not to use your cell phone when you're driving. Promise to have your phone in your pocket or you're not using it when you cross the street. Have individuals commit to making lifestyle changes that are going to make our streets safer. Again, safety education campaigns continue with traffic advisory committees, and we're going to also have annual progress reporting regarding our collisions. The numbers that we have and a similar data that we've discussed so far. So, a gain, looking for formal approval of our plan and we look forward to making an improvement on our streets in the city of Long Beach. And we're welcome and able to answer any of the questions that you might have. Thank you, Mr. Hickman, for the great report. We have a motion by Councilmember Pierce, seconded by Councilmember Turanga. We're going to go to Councilmember Pierce. Thank you so much. I'm very excited about this presentation and this action step tonight. I know that this was something that started with my predecessor in trying to ensure that we had a plan for safe streets. During my tenure, we have talked about Safe Streets. Almost every community meeting that we've had, particularly around Seventh Street, where I know we've had a lot of incidents, but also around Broadway, when we decided to slow Broadway down, it was using this lens, even though we had not yet passed a Safe Streets policy. So I'd like to. I know that it's late into the night. I definitely would like to sit down with staff and go through the agenda item and the the policy in more detail. I did have a question on what you the next steps are after we take this vote, how are we engage community members? And then is there a tool kit that will be used as we're addressing other street improvements? I know that we won't have as many as we had, you know, two years ago or three years ago. But knowing that we do have a lot of key areas that need improvements. I think what's important is that any particular safety concern that any of the council members might have, you know, we can address those items one by one when we understand and get a better idea of what the specific problem is. And we do have a so-called tool kit in mind where depending on the issue or the problem that we have to mitigate, we do have certain steps that we take, certain data collections that we have to do, and then we can, you know, determine what our solution will be. There's a variety of things on the table that I'm sure you've all heard of traffic calming. And there are different things that you can do in regards to traffic calming. But I think, again, the report that we presented this evening demonstrates that our data shows that our biggest problem is speeding in our city. And that's a unique issue that requires unique solutions. And again, I would like to partner with our law enforcement friends and do the best that we can to see that we are enforcing our posted speed limits. Let me ask. We have Seventh Street as a main corridor that kind of takes you from, you know, four or five all the way into downtown. And that's the exit you decide to take. Mm hmm. And I know that there's a lot of traffic. I think there's a couple of fatalities. But I know incidents because we did have Alvin come and present to our seventh Street group at maybe two years ago on a street like like seventh Street, where we have been denied in the past for things like crosswalks that like or Zorba and things like that. Could we now go back and revisit our traffic counts with this lens and possibly get approval for additional changes? Well, one of the important things to remember is that any of the changes that we decide to implement, let's say it's a crosswalk, or let's say it's even as extreme as a traffic signal. We do have rules and regulations, guidelines that are given to us by the state of California that we need to follow. So, yes, we can always go back and take another look at things, but it's not going to change the requirements that we have to meet to make those things happen. So we can investigate. Again, any of the problem areas that you might have, problem intersections, whatever it may be. But at the end of the day, even though we re-investigate or take another look, I mean, the rules and the regulations that we have to follow from an engineering standpoint are still the same. So, yes, we can take a look and we're always open to that. Well, in case this might be my last public meeting where we talk about safe streets, I would just like to say that Seventh Street needs a lot of TLC, and I hope that we can revisit how we have safety through that entire corridor. So again, thank you for all the work. I know this has been a long time coming for Shayna. Thank you. Counselor Bergeron. Good. Thank you custom Embraer and thank you for this report is very timely and that last point you made in regards to from an engineering standpoint and you had to follow rules and regs. That's the most frustrating point for me. I've had a number of traffic accidents in my district that have just really been heightened, the importance of safety. And I'm talking about a stretch of road in my district between the 17 Freeway and Santa Fe, where I've had at least five fatalities within the last two years. But it doesn't make a threat to you have any kind of. Traffic calming measures such as a sidewalk crossing or a traffic light. And that's that's become very frustrating for me because I got situated within that area who are getting very frustrated because the fatalities are happening not only like in the early evening, but there's a market and a and a convenience store nearby, a little strip mall where people have to cross the street and there is nothing there for them to cross with. No crosswalk, no traffic signal, nothing. And so what ends up happening is that the cars are speeding. It's about a mile stretch and the cars are speeding along and they don't see pedestrians and the rest is history. So that's a bit of a frustrating issue for me in that respect that the engineering may not be there, but yet we're looking at this program for Safe Streets. So, I mean, I'm I'm looking at with a jaundiced eye on this world because of the fact that if engineering and regulations are going to come into play, I mean, it's going to be frustrating all along the way. So we need to look at that. The fact that when a death occurs and there is a propensity for accidents in that area, we need t o look at it from a different lens and be more accommodating towards what is something there. And of course, the big question is where we going? How are we going to find out? Where is the funding going to come to put up a sidewalk, to put up a streetlight, a turn signal, whatever? That that's the other frustrating portion of this is that, you know, funding is going to be critical in this in this era of public safety. And yet, you know, during this pandemic and crises that we've had, I mean, is critical going to keep? However, I do appreciate this coming forward at this time. It's important. But again, I'm looking at with a jaundiced eye because I don't see that we can really have real significant change and improvements if we still have to follow by some outdated rules and regulations based on engineering. So I'm just throwing that out there. And if I sound frustrated and because my community is frustrated and angry as to what's happening in these areas. Question I remember years ago, I recall seeing some kind of report where all the streets in Long Beach were visited and there was like a ranking of the top ten most dangerous corner streets in Long Beach. And the reason I know that is because when one of those top ten streets was on my my district and the intersection of Wardlow and Long Beach Boulevard, and that was that I want to say about maybe seven, eight years ago before I came on council. Does that report still exists and will you be looking at that? Councilman Turanga I'm not sure what report you're referring to, but I would be willing to take a look to see if I could find it or I would be able to go out and do another investigation of that intersection. Again, I respect your comments about the streets or the intersections that you're concerned about in your district. So please feel free to contact my office and we can open up a fresh investigation of those locations. And again, you know, we do need to follow engineering standards. I won't get into all the discussion and the explanation and the reasons why during this meeting at such a late hour. However, again, I welcome any investigation that you can present to us. We'll definitely take a look. I appreciate your response tonight. And I do appreciate the fact that the hour is late. And I am talking specifically about marriage in my district. So there will be a hopefully it will be a time where I can sit down with you and my staff and revisit some of these areas of concern. Thank you very much. This is Rachel Junk. And I would just like to point out in the action plan in appendix B, I believe it is, we have a ranking, I believe, top 40 intersections and corridors that came out out of our 2013, 2017 collision analysis. And that's where we'll be focusing a lot of our attention going forward. So Appendix B has our high injury network. Thank you. Councilmember Mongo, you're up. Thank you. A couple of things. Let's talk state law since state law regarding speeding. Does this plan talk about an

y items that we can bring to the state legislative committee for consideration and advocacy? There were recent attempts by many agencies within the state of California that presented a bill to legislature to change the way that we set our speed limits. That bill last month, I think it was in early June, was shot down again. Many of the folks want to keep things the way that they've been for many, many years. I won't go into the way that we set speed limits again. We'll be here too long. But. So that item has been looked at and the idea got all the way to the state legislature. And then it was shot down the way that we set our speed limits. Now, what I will say about speed limits is that to support our plan that we've presented this evening, we have already proactively started looking at streets within the city where we can reduce speed limits under the current guidelines that we do have. And we're looking at locations, corridors, segments of roadway where we can reduce speed limits on average, typically a five mile increment reduction. So we are already started along that path where we can reduce some speed limits. Councilmember Alston, who's the maker of the motion to deliver and file. I remember also your muted. Councilwoman Pierce is the maker. Of the. Baker. Okay. Great. So I would like to initiate a receiving file city clerk. Or it's an adoption. This is an adoption of a group. So I would like to add a friendly amendment that the plan include strategies to continue to pursue with state legislation. Oftentimes on bills come forward. They don't last their first or second or third time. And we need to be persistent in continuing to change those laws. There are more locally elected individuals who are currently in the state legislature than almost ever before in our history. This is a very recent thing in the last few cycles of elections, and so those individuals are more likely than ever to understand the perils that we deal with in cities like this. So I would love for that to be a part of the motion. Except in. Great stuff. Are you able to tell me, does this plan identify any specific. Implementations. I hear the strategies that are considered, whether they're lane narrowing or any of these things, but it doesn't say we're going to do a road diet on the street or we're going to do this on that street. I think there's some misinformation out there. This is more like a tool kit. Is that accurate? Well, I think that this plan is a very comprehensive plan, city wide. That's a very macro level. Look at some of the ideas that we have to solve our issues. You know, it doesn't get into the specifics of a project, one or another. However, as we do move forward with this plan and its adoption, we will be getting more specific with our projects, more transparent, more sharing and educating of the public to make sure that we're making the right moves and that our funds are being spent on projects that are accepted by the community. So again, what? Go ahe ad. So that's exactly where I was looking to go, because when I was elected, I was quickly met with an implementation of a previous plan that I was not even notified about, nor was the community. I will say in the last eight weeks I've received more compliments on bike bollards than ever as an elected because I think that people are biking to and from. But I still feel that the presentation needs the determination, the implementation needs to have that connectivity that the plan prescribes. And never before have I had people actually ask me for protected bike lanes implementation. And my answer to them is, please share with your neighbors and see what kind of feedback you get. But you're not the first person to tell me recently, so I'm just for consideration. As we move forward through COVID, I know some of our council offices are open to allocating some funding, but we need to connect some of these bike lanes to parks because individuals are stuck in their homes or having less opportunity and access than ever. I know that on any given days on our bike is our only way we leave the house. So just some things to consider, but most importantly, that council office notification and community input will happen before any of the strategies included in this plan are implemented. And so as long as that is affirmed, then I'm more comfortable supporting the plan. And Councilmember, this is Tom. I want to jump in on that. So you're correct. We are not picking streets or specific projects in this plan. That's very clear. But you are tonight and we wanted to give you this presentation because this is a policy shift. And this is going in the direction of Vision Zero. And we wanted to make sure the council understood that. And so when staff are looking at projects and designing them and thinking about things and doing those outreach, they will be looking at it with this in mind. And so we wanted to make sure that you all were aware of that and had a chance to give input. And then of course on specific projects, we will be doing some more that engagement and trying to get some community buy in. But it will start with a kind of lens of doing some things that are a little different than just a traditional street in every single, you know, and for every project. But looking at some of those more creative ways to lower accidents and to make them safe for everybody. Well, I'm confident, at least in the presentations I've had from Elvin and others that come to our community meetings, that the team is doing the due diligence that's necessary. And I appreciate us discussing that in detail. Thank you, Mr. Modica. And with that, I will be supportive of this item. Thank you. Next up is Councilman Richardson. Thank you, Councilmember. So this is you know, I've been paying attention to this for a long time. I think the first conversations were back in 2014. The data at that point showed that consistently one of the deadliest intersections was Atlantic and Artesia.

I like where we've come since then. I look at this plan. There's a lot that I write that I like to highlight. So specifically, under each of these Keystone actions, it calls out very easy to understand it because of the timeframe, whether these can be complete within one year and three years. That's really easy to understand. I love that. It points out whose responsibility is it to do each part of this plan? It calls out, you know, where does the city council have to take action? Where does the public works department or the health department have to take action? I think that's that's really good. I'd like to see that utilized more. When these plans do come back. We do we deploy a lot of plans where it says ease of implementation. I think, you know, it's some are very easy. Some are very difficult. And it helps set those expectations. So those are really good. I love that. It acknowledges acknowledges equity. It talks about barriers and acknowledges I don't feel like that. You go to the appendix rather than showing just like the worst intersections in the city, it's more clear and talks about which ones are more dangerous for bikes, which ones are more dangerous for cars, cars versus bikes and all these other things. I think it's easy for us to look at it and see that there are certain parts that you see that pop up a lot. I just look at these three or four lists. I see. Well, Street comes up often. I see Artesia Boulevard, the Alamo. That tells me that we need to be making sure that our investments align with those corridors so we can make them safer. If the priority is really to preserve life and have a safer experience, we get what the data tells us. So know I'm hoping to see our teams report above our for example. I mean, that project, it's funding, it's been funded, you know, through metro coffer projects for years and you know, haven't seen a lot of movement on it. I would hope that when we go forward, we can prioritize, you know, projects like that, big projects pop up on every one of these lists. Yeah, a lot of these Boulevard Artesia down the avenue in Atlantic of Artesia just takes the street. Take the money. It's the street. Make it safe right there where an elementary school and high school is. Make it a priority. Make it safe. So I like this plan. I like it a lot. I think I think the message that I'm from I support a Vision Zero since 2014. I support it today. And I think we should just now get to work. Yeah, I think that's that's all I can for my comments on this. Thanks. Thank you. Members in the House Unified. Thank you. Council Member Austin. I guess this is a really great presentation and plan. Thank you. To go in your department for this very, very detailed presentation. I think that, you know, it's very needed at this time. I know that we have a lot of accidents in in my district and particularly, you know, some of them are because of reasons you've already explained in your presentation, like, you know, driving t oo fast. And I mean, just just weeks ago, we had one of my residents was killed and his his. Dog was killed on Sixth Street and Magnolia and. You know, it was just horrific. So if we can try to, you know, think about things before this happen, that would be great. I know that, you know, sometimes we we are kind of forced to look at things after someone has passed. But I think that with this plan, I think that it'll be very, very good to help us in in kind of foreseeing what could happen so that we can prevent. That's another thing that that's been happening in a lot of my in my area is, you know, street racing, which is not good, or showing off with what neighbors call cars doing donuts in the middle of the streets or in the corners, you know. Is there anything in the plans to address that? I think it's important that we address those items with support from law enforcement. We do get notified a lot. Residents tell us that people are doing donuts in the middle of the intersection and that there's, you know, regular speeding and may even know who the person is is doing this. So, again, we're going to be looking to law enforcement to provide us that support to to mitigate that problem. Wonderful. Wonderful. Yes. And I I think that one of the things that was mentioned, like you said in earlier items, was the enforcement part of it. So I think that that in conjunction with this plan is going to really help us prevent some of the accidents that could happen. So I'm really excited to see this plan coming forward, and I look forward to having you working really close with my office so that we can assist and also tell you what our problem areas are. And you so much for speaking with us to this very late being. So thank you for that. Thank you. Councilmember Price. You council in Austin. I just wanted to just take a moment and thank staff. This is a project that I've been aware of for years through my day job and working with knits, and I'm really glad that the city is taking part in the initiative. I know staff put a lot of work into tonight's item. I know we're all really tired and we're going to want to pick apart this data. I think individually for our own districts. I was particularly interested in that slide that you put up, Mr. Hickman, showing where the majority of collisions are, the the collision activity throughout the city. So that's that's a chart I'm going to want to take a look at with you down the road to look at mitigation measures in my own district, for sure. But I just wanted to take a moment to thank staff. You guys are just fantastic. And I think one of the most difficult conversations topics that I have with my residents is centered around traffic all the time and changing traffic patterns and traffic calming measures. They seem to be the most passionate conversations that we have at times, certainly before COVID, they were. And so I think that having this presentation tonight and showing where we're headed in the future is really i mportant. So just to thank you and appreciate the presentation. Thank you, Mr. Supernormal. Thank you. As staff reference the hours late. So I'll make my comments very brief. I did have one question about the presentation. I think it might have been on page ten or slide ten, and that is the chart showing the years of the total fatal and serious injury collisions. Is there a reason we don't have data for 2018 and 2019? Sure. So this effort began in late 2018. So we utilize 2013 through 2017 data. Of course, we work closely with PD to keep our collision database fresh in public works. But the in-depth analysis that really fed into this plan was based on that 2013 to 2017 data. So if you have specific questions about more recent data, we'd be happy to supply you with that. You know, I appreciate that. But we have a major policy decision in front of us tonight. It's almost 11:30 p.m.. Beyond that. We've had a lot of experience with some of the principles here, as is applying to our bike boulevards and whatnot in our district. And every conversation I've had has been with a former director of Public Works. So it's a little unfair to staff who's here tonight to go through this stuff. I guess for that reasons, you know, I'll agree with your anger. If I sound a little frustrated, it's because our residents are and as you mentioned, that ours is late. And for those reasons, I won't be supporting tonight. Thank you. Okay. Well, I'll take the opportunity to weigh in as well. I did have a couple of questions. And looking at the appendixes, I'm a little confused. One street that I think is the major, major issue, and that is the Alamo Boulevard. And I don't see that on the corridors of high injury or intersections or. Of bicycle corridors or motor vehicle or motorcycle intersections. But in the report on page 38, there is at least two deaths on Delamar Boulevard at intersections. So I don't want to challenge the data here, but maybe I am challenging their data. The Alamo is a is a street that is as you know, we've we've seen multiple deaths, multiple collisions on that street as a result of speeding. And to your credit, Mr. Heckman, to the department traffic engineer, we've really been creative and bold and tried to mitigate those issues. My question is regarding where we're now. Tonight, we will adopt a plan and I expect it will be adopted. It's a major policy shift in direction and there will be potentially some resource budget implications. I'm curious to know what we have been doing leading up to this moment. Have we not been implementing this philosophy of Vision Zero and how? Will after we adopt this tonight, will things change? That's a very good question. And let me answer by saying that as a professional engineer and the engineers who were before me and my predecessors, I'm 100% confident to say that they had safety on their minds. That was their number one priority as well. That's the ethical code that we follow, that, you know, safety is our num ber one priority for everything that we do. So I highly doubt that there's any change there. However, what we're doing tonight is adopting a formal policy that city wide. We are moving forward with a formal policy to to create change and to create new ideas and to be open to to possible things that we may not have seen before in our city. So I think that's the main core of what we're trying to accomplish tonight, is that we're we're formally adopting a policy that's going to allow us to have a little bit of freedom and possible funding, as you mentioned, to move forward with some of our ideas to make changes that are going to improve the level of safety on our streets. Maybe you can speak to it or. I know I had a conversation with the city manager just a little a little earlier today, a but earlier today, maybe about 10 hours ago. But can you talk to me tell us a little bit about the funding for for the Vision Zero projects that we identified, where we would find those find those resources. Well, as many. As I mentioned earlier. You know, one of the sources that we do have is we we regularly apply for grant sources of of funding, whether it's through Metro Caltrans and even other smaller amounts of money that are available out there. And when we get these these funds, we apply them to projects and we try to implement our ideas that we're talking about this evening, things to make our roads safer. And there are projects out there that champion our causes that we apply for. We compete statewide, and we are successful in many occasions on getting what we call other people's money. And additionally, we will be moving forward to approach our city manager and others to find additional funding sources to accomplish many of these goals. So as we move forward, we want to make a positive change. Councilmember, as you and I talked about, this document that you're approving does say that you want us to invest in this and look at this. It does have those kind of goals and aspirations there. The good thing is there are a lot of funding sources out there that are non general fund that help with our transportation. But the budget is the overriding document. So every year we have a lot of plans and say these are all our needs and this is what the council has priorities for. And then we look at that every year in the budget. What can we find to move those initiatives forward and then what the priorities are? So you're not committing today to anything specific. This isn't putting it on a on a automatic payment plan or anything like that. It's but it is saying that this is something that's important and we should continue to look for funding. Thank you for answering that question in the clarification of city clerk. Are there any is there any public comment on this? Yes. Our first speaker is James Rossi cello. Your time starts now. Yeah. James Rash. Hi, folks. Too late. The agenda is document states. City Council action on this matter is not time critical. There's en ough controversy surrounding road diets and the vision zero vision that it be in the best interests of the people alarmed to postpone action on this item until after the November election. Excuse me. I'm a resident of the second District, directly affected by the modifications to the Broadway corridor. I'm especially interested to see the city remain uncommitted on this issue until after either Mr. Fox or Ms.. Allen is elected as they hold largely opposing positions on the benefit of the modifications and their debate should benefit citizens of all districts. To the traffic engineer. What does your data tell you about virtually no motorcycle traffic cops issuing citations? No radar speed enforcement cops issuing citations? I don't recall the last time I saw a cop citing a driver like for a rolling stop, which have become ridiculous. There's almost no stopping anymore. What is your data tell you about that? Could increased enforcement by live personnel be constructive there? Finally, I'd like to encourage the council, mayor and city government to honor the spirit of full transparency in their work for the public, not just the letter of the law. Government's got a long way to go to regain the trust of the people, and that's probably the best and simplest way to begin the journey. Thanks. Thank you. Our next speakers and control your time starts now. Good evening. And Cantrell. And who doesn't want safe streets? But. Street. Narrowing road diets and roundabouts may help reduce speed, but it seems to me they cause different. And. Serious problems. Take Ocean Boulevard. When it was reduced to one lane in each direction, it resulted in motorists backing out of diagonal parking spaces into a bike lane and on growing traffic. Having only one lane on a busy street, results in emergency vehicles having to go against traffic. And slows. Response time. The roundabouts are hard to see, especially at night, and cause a traffic hazard. The narrowing of Broadway. Resulted in many accidents until most drivers learned to avoid it and use other streets. This. Staff report says that. 40,000 deaths, traffic deaths. Or nationally. And tonight, I think I heard Mr. Hickman say that in 2019, there were 30 traffic deaths. In Long Beach. I'm wondering how many of these deaths. Involved alcohol use. Phone use. Many of these things that we can't change. And I really doubt. That all of these efforts to slow traffic down. Are going not going to be worth the. Amount of money that it's going to take. My idea of a safe street is one with no potholes. So I would suggest as. Some others have. Indicated that you postponed. Approval of this plan until there's a lot more information about where the money's going to come from. I don't think you can rely on grants. This sounds like it's way too expensive. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Okay. Thank you. Any other comments from the council? Uri Nunn. Let's go to a vote. District one. I. District two, D istrict three. I. District four. Nay. District IV. I. District seven, District eight. All right. District nine. I. Motion carries. Okay. So our last item of. Let's go to item number 26. We're so members, we have six items left. We will go on to go to item number 29. Regarding communication from Councilmember Appearance Councilwoman Zendaya's Councilwoman Price Recommendation to direct city attorney to amend the City of Long Beaches Eviction Moratorium Ordinance on commercial and residential units to extend through August 31st, 2020. So member Pearce has made a motion their second on the motion. Second by price. All right. We have a motion in second. Councilmember peers. Thank you. Glad to be bringing this item today. I'm happy to have Councilwoman Pryce on this agenda item with us. We know that this week the government has shut down more businesses, more people are going back on unemployment. And the situation is not exactly what it was a week ago. Last time we brought this up, I had hoped to do to do more. And this item extends this moratorium until August 31st, which I fully support. If there's support for something beyond that, I also would love to hear from my council colleagues on that. Second on this item is we had a lot of debate about the areas that we wanted to include and exclude, and we had previously excluded the Tidelands area, and that was for our intention. I believe our full attention intention was for larger leases with the city. It's come to my attention that that has not been the way that it panned out. And I have several businesses in the Pike area that are excluded from a moratorium. Meanwhile, we've got small businesses and restaurants outside of that area that are included. So we do not have consistency with our eviction moratorium as it is right now. So I'd like to make the motion to include in this moratorium to extend the eviction moratorium to the tidelands area. Following the guidelines and making it retroactive to March 4th, 2020. I'd like to extend the moratorium on penalties and late fees to be retroactive to March 4th, 2020. And if at all possible, I'd like to require that master holders within the Tidelands area enter into a forbearance agreement with leases in the Tidelands that would near what we have at the airport where food service companies are paying a portion of their gross revenue. So that's the motion on the floor. I know that Councilmember Price and I have had several conversations today. Look forward to her comments and look forward to our city attorney's comments. I did not have a chance to run the words by the city attorney, but we ran it by in concept. So with that, I ask for your support. The second part of the motion is Councilmember Price. To Councilman Austin. So I support this motion. I think it's prudent for us as a city to have our own eviction moratorium ordinance, because I am concerned that anything that we would fall into with the county would take into consideration a lot of the discussi ons that we've had as a city that we have worked really hard to try to mitigate impacts for everyone involved. And so I think it's important for us to have our city ordinance be the one that guides this particular discussion. A few things I want to talk about with the Tidelands exemption. Council member Pearce is accurate. She's absolutely correct that we exempted Tidelands, but at the time at least I'll speak for myself. I envisioned that it would apply, that the Tidelands exemption would apply to all master leaseholders as well as the sub tenants sub lessees. And I did not articulate that.

And so it created a loophole such that the small business owners in the Tidelands area whose landlord is this, is a master leaseholder and not the city, have really no advantage and no opportunity to further rents. And I don't think that was the intent of anyone on the council. The purpose of this moratorium is and has always been to prevent and reduce evictions and specifically to prevent evictions as a result of COVID impacts. And so those businesses that are located in the tidelands area that would qualify as commercial tenants and small businesses should get the same benefits as commercial tenants throughout the city and should not be penalized because of their location or because of who their landlord is and that it's not the city. So I think that's a loophole that we identified. And I want to make sure that that that loophole is corrected. I also wanted to note that the retroactive provision that Councilmember Pierce just mentioned is retroactive in terms of the intent of the ordinance, which was to prevent evictions. So anyone who received an eviction notice as a result of partial payment or nonpayment, this moratorium should extend to those individuals in a retroactive manner for entities or lessees who have already paid within the Tidelands area. Those lessees, those tenants, have received the benefit of having paid and presumably not received an eviction notice. And also they have received a benefit in that the amount of money that they will have to pay back in deferred rent will be lessened by the amount of money that they have already paid. So the intention isn't really to for the city isn't really to get into any sort of accounting of rent payments at this point. For those who have paid or have not paid, the entire legislative intent of this legislation is to avoid evictions. And so that's the aspect of this ordinance that should be retroactive. And I want to make sure that legislative intent is clear. Also, I wanted to just make her ask one question. Councilmember Pierce, I know you put it out there as a discussion point, if we wanted to extend it beyond August 31st. I'm not comfortable doing that. I think this is one of those items of legislation that we do need to continue to revisit because of the fast pace changing nature of this pandemic. And so I would feel much more comfortable. I think all of us have the same intent to try to do every thing we can to help prevent evictions that are based on nonpayment of rent due to COVID impacts. I think we all are in agreement on that. So I think that as long as we're continuing to bring it back regularly, we can revisit the issue. So I'd prefer to keep it till the 31st. The one question I did have for our city attorney is it is my understanding that there needs to be some sort of documentation to show a COVID related financial impact, whether it's a direct impact, such as the loss of a job or a collateral impact, like needing to secure childcare because you're an essential worker or something of that nature. Can you provide some clarity on that requirement, Mr.. Anthony if you're on the call. Certainly. Can you hear me? Councilmember Price? Yes. Yep. So I am on the call and you've stated it correctly. The original ordinance adopted back in March, I think it was, and extended on May 26, requires there to be some sort of a COVID related impact. And you may recall that we had some discussion, the council did, about exactly what level of specificity we would include in the ordinance regarding what constituted legitimate documentation. And we didn't get into too many specifics, and I think that was by design because we wanted kind of landlords and tenants and the courts to figure out what was legitimate evidence of a COVID related impact. But certainly there needs to be some evidence of a COVID related impact. Tenants just cannot defer rent willy nilly. Okay. I got that. Okay. Thank you very much. Okay. I don't think, Mr. Anthony, is there anything that you need further clarification on in regards to either the retroactivity of the tidelands provision or the extension of the moratorium? There there are there are two things, and thank you for asking. So this question I think is directed at Councilmember Pearce, but it will need your input as the second dir. Councilmember Price and that is tidelands tenancies will now be included in the moratorium. I get that I'm comfortable with it being retroactive provided that and I think Councilmember Price, you were clear that rent that has already been paid, the landlords are under no obligation to pay that rent back or otherwise credit their tenants due to this retroactivity that rent has been paid and landlords keep it. But what I'm what I think both of you intended, but I'm not sure I'm looking for this clarification is that you do not want to include tenancies administered by the harbor department in the eviction moratorium. And technically those are within the Tidelands. But when Council originally considered this exemption on May 26, I think Harbor Department Tenancies were considered separately from Tidelands. So I don't want to put words in the mouth of Councilmember Pierce, but I think when you say you want to include Tidelands, it's all the tenancies within the Tidelands that are not administered by the harbor department. Is that correct? Correct. Okay, good. So those would still remain exempted.

And is that okay with you? Council member Price. Absolutely. Okay. Good. So that's one piece of clarification I needed. The second one was I didn't quite follow the last portion of Councilmember Pierce's motion regarding requiring the master lessees, who I guess would be the sub landlords to enter into some sort of forbearance agreements. That gives me some pause, but I'm not sure I quite understand that. Yeah, I. I had hoped to. Yeah, I think the first two are great. And I guess my question, I should have put it in the form of a question instead of a motion. Is there something that the city can do in working with these master lease leases to allow for when they're coming back, paying their rent, that they're paying it based on a percentage? And I brought that up because I know that I looked at the airport lease with our food service and they pay a base amount and then they pay a percentage so that they're not paying the full rent that they were paying pre-COVID. And that might be too much for this motion, but at least one to give staff direction, to have some conversations with the master leases, to make sure that there's some conversation happening between them, because that's not happening right now. I think. Okay, I think that would be better if it's out of the motion with respect to the ordinance I'm going to bring back before August 1st, which will evidence this extension. But it can be its own kind of stand. It can be part of the motion, but it will have nothing to do with the ordinance amending Section 8.100. It will be just direction to staff to work with cities, lessees to work with their sub lessees, as you just described. Does that does that make sense? That that satisfies me, yeah. Okay. In with that. That's that's the clarification that I needed. But I'm certainly standing by to answer any further questions that may come up. Oh, yes. We have a number of members queued up. We have a council member. Super. Not now. Thank you. And I'd like to thank the makers of the motion for bringing this item forward. I stand in support. I would like to introduce a friendly at this point, and that would be to request to send a letter to the congressional delegation urging forgiveness of mortgages until the pandemic is deemed over by government standards. You know, we keep talking about the balloon payment and whatnot. I don't know if anyone has attributed a number to that yet, but if my calculations are correct, I think with this motion it'll bring that amount to $9,000 on average per tenant. And another way to look at that number would be this is what the property owners would be out. And so I think it certainly brings some relief to both sides if we could at least make this request and that that is my motion. Thank you. Friendly amendment are freely accepted. It is accepted and I would like to add something. I feel like we've all talked in circles about wanting to have the state forgive mortgages, and I thought that we had already given direction to staff to communicate. That is was that happened or not happened? City Manager No, I don't think that ever was in the form of emotion and direction to staff. So that would be if you're if you're looking to do that, that would be added into emotion tonight. 100%, yes. And is that supposed to go to the federal government or the state government? Oh, okay. Great. So next up, we have Councilmember Richardson. Thank you. Just a couple minutes. So I'm support I'm obviously supportive of that that letter to the federal and state government saying we need federal action. The state government is limited in what they can do. You know, the banks are governed. They are regulated secondarily. So. So what I'm supportive of that they are going to say is I think so just looking at the way that our agendas have set up separately from, say, the county that were dark on the last Tuesday, the month. And even this action today is going to require us to come back and take another action next week, and then we'll have to come back. We're going to continue this. We have to come back the first or second year in August. There's only three council meetings in August. We have to come back, revisit this in a matter of two weeks. Revisit the very same issue. I, you know, I'm open to. I'd love to see this go forward for 60 days. I don't think the dynamics are going to change in the next 2 to 3 weeks. If they do, we can agenda it. What I don't want to do this is a full conference. This has been a full discussion. And I think we're going to end up with a unanimous vote like we have on just about every one of these these eviction moratoriums. I don't know that we need to come back to relitigate this every three weeks because, again, we don't have a fourth meeting. So I'm okay with going to 60 days. I'm afraid I'm gonna put that on the floor as a friendly amendment to the making of the motion. Councilmember Pearce. I accept the friendly. Okay. Now, does the secretary of the Motor Media accept that? Well, I guess I reluctantly accept, but I'd like I'd love to hear for the rest of my colleagues, but I guess I would accept for the moment, and I can always withdraw my second, but I reluctantly accept. We have, as I said. Okay. Well, next up is council member Deronda. Thank you, Councilmember, to remember that guy was headed towards that way because I saw August 1st right around the corner and there's really not enough time as I was looking at extending it beyond August or September. So I am totally supportive of the friendly crew for 60 days. You know, these difficult times, a grim, difficult decision. So I think we're one of those. Positions right now where we have to think creatively and not take the box and be as accommodating as we can to our business owners and our and our residents as it is. I'm very supportive of the motion on the floor assistance. Okay. Thank you. The sun has. Thank you. Council member Austin. This is this is a really critical time. I think that we were all hit really hard on Monday when we had to do the whole re re closing down of some of our businesses and stuff. And I've gotten so many calls, you know, all of the business owners throughout the district that are just so distraught, you know, with this this newest order that obviously we can't do anything about because our hands are tied. Right. And, you know, so. So I think that this is very important. And one of the biggest concerns that they have as business owners and as residents is, you know, not being able to pay rent and having to be evicted because of that reason. Unfortunately, I do not see things getting better in the next couple of weeks. I'm hoping that that's the case, but that I don't see it. So I, I think that it would be best to actually extended for the 60 days only because we don't have much time in between. And that way we can have staff really focus on how we're going to get out of this. All right, this crisis. Maybe they can use their time and their resources to be able to focus on trying to find ways to help our not only our business owners, but our residents and everyone else to get out of this crisis. I unfortunately, I think that we're not at the end of this crisis. I think that with everything happening in our county, around the nation, that we're only in the midst of our of this crisis. And that really concerns me a lot. So I also support what's on the floor right now. The comments are unless we have what Councilmember Mungo. Thank you. We are at a disadvantage with our council meetings being without a meeting on the last Tuesday of the month. We may want to consider that during this pandemic we shift and move maybe the second. Median of the month to the last week of the month so that we're in a better position to tackle these kinds of items. So I would just leave that to city staff. I know you have a lot of items already piling up on the agenda for August and September, but for us to maybe look at starting in September and moving the calendar later in the month for this particular purpose to allow us to be more in alignment, especially as other agencies are doing those kind of things. So that would be my friendly is to include city staff, to address potential adjustments of council meetings, to accommodate a more timely consideration of this policy in the future. Those are my comments. Thank you. Thank you. City clerk. Is there any public comment? There is therefore speakers for this item. The first speakers, Seagrams. Your time starts now. Hello again, District three. I was pretty put off by Suzy Price's comment earlier about how we should not be as aspirational with our emotions. I think this is the time when we need to be aspirational. I think we need to create new options because it's very obvious that the options that we have as citizens are not serving us, including an eviction moratorium that will end August 31st. We're in the middle of this pandemic. People are not back to work. People do not have m oney to to pay rent. That's just point blank the facts. This needs to be a permanent eviction moratorium, permanent in order to keep our the citizens, your constituents in their houses. You know, to to not have any more people who are experiencing homelessness in our community. Um, and we need to divest from the police and we need to raise funds. Housing programs. We need to get our own house folks off the street and into housing. You're doing the very bare minimum. Um, and it's a demand of the people of the city that you start being a little more aspirational. Suzy. All right. Thank you. Uh, see you next week. Thank you. Next, we have Leanne Hutchinson. Your time starts now. Good evening, honorable mayor and members of the City Council. Thank you very much for this opportunity to. Support item number 29 and with the amendments, as I have heard them this evening. I'm attending this evening as a member of the Small Property Owners Alliance. We appreciate that this item will extend the eviction moratorium, and we expect that this will. Allow. Tenants and owners more time to work together for a payment plan for the amounts that are in arrears. It should be. Noted that a number of owners are suffering when tenants each own thousands of dollars in unpaid rent and tenants are unable to pay it and that keeps piling on. Thus, this extension will, however, allow tenants time to apply for the rental payments allowed from the city in the rental payment program for a thousand a month. This is a benefit to both owners and tenants. We thank the city for this program. At this. Time, I would like to thank the City Council for your consideration of this item and and urge. Your approval. Thank you. Thank you. Next, we have Ray Miller. Good evening, council members. Yes, my name's Ray Mailer, the resident of District three. But I am disappointed in my council members. Reluctant acceptance of Mr. Richardson's motion to double the extension. As a small housing provider, I oppose extending the eviction moratorium for small housing providers beyond July 31st. Small housing providers act much more reasonably than the big players with whom city, county and state legislators lump us for small housing providers. Vacancies of any kind are expensive, so we have natural business incentive and personal inclination to negotiate reasonable outcomes for the big players. Tenants are just numbers managed by third parties, like property management firms. For small housing providers, the tenant relationship is a personal one, and with these differences between small housing providers and the big players, your removal of eviction protections for small housing providers removes the one protection we have when a reasonable outcome cannot be negotiated. And tenant's knowledge of this removal empowers those who do not bring good faith to their relationship with their housing provider. The leases and rental agreements in place are based on the existence of our rights with it. Even though s mall housing providers use this right very infrequently, the removal of this protection interferes with their contracts. Contracts which were reasonably reached by knowledgeable parties. Small housing providers act in good faith and request to be considered the important resource that we are for the city. When this council approved de facto rent control in April 2019, Councilmember Pierce addressed housing providers directly, saying to us, quote, I honestly cannot believe how you can let people you do not know enter your property, then proceed to vote in favor of the ordinance. I need you to consider her point, but not her vote and vote no tonight. And item 29. Thank you. Next, we have Wendy Henning. Your time starts now. Thank you. I hope you can hear me. Well, I'm calling on myself from Idaho. It's a little later than Long Beach, but I have a little in and out. With my phone cause I'm out in the country. Thank you, Vice Mayor and council members for your time. I am concerned about the. Many issues the housing providers have been facing during the. Last. Few years. Now, with regard. To COVID 19. The housing providers, tenants and non or delayed payment. We all know that the. COVID situation is not the fault of tenants, nor is it the fault of housing providers. Many housing providers face losing their properties and other. Financial. Hardships due to nonpayment of monthly rent. In my. Particular case, my husband and. I retired from our full time jobs about five years ago after working very hard. All of our lives and our rental property is our retirement. We cannot afford not to receive monthly rent. Since the mortgage, maintenance, etc. etc. etc. must be kept up and paid on time. Poorly because we are aware, because we are 73 and. 77. We no. Longer. Have or receive other regular income from our previous careers. The mortgage companies will not allow us to refinance our loan. Many others, small and small. Many other small housing providers are in the same situation as my husband and I. Please remember, most of us are just that. Small housing providers and as small housing providers we have been very. Respectful and good to our tenants and have in most cases a really good relationship. I ask all of you to please consider fighting for a no penalty mortgage for band. Extension for housing providers due to non. For late payment. The action. Would. Help housing. Providers to. Survive this. Difficult. Ordeal. Thank you for your consideration. And all of the efforts that all of you who are devoted to the city of Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Okay. Thank you. Before we go to a vote, I just want to make sure that the city attorney is clear on the motion. Yeah. Thank you. Councilmember Austin, this is Rich. I believe that I am. And I do want to make one clarifying point. There was some talk about extending it for 60 days because August has 21 days. I think I'm going to extend it for 61 days and I'm going to b ring it back saying it's going to extend through September 30th. That's what I'm hearing. Okay. And Councilmember Pearce just queued up. Again. Yes, I wanted to. I accept that Rich and I would ask that we get a report whether it's in a two from four or something about what the county does. I know we all kind of find things out, but I'd like to really understand how their vote goes at the end of this month that pertains to the moratorium. We'll do. Okay. So members in no other public comment or comment from the dais, please. The city clerk after the vote. District one. I district to. District three i district four i. District five. I. District seven. That is surprising. Not only to meet the moment, but as we were discussing that the last item. Many times these kind of criteria. I mean, the virus politicized what happens. That's true of other things as well, sir. Thank you for your time. Thank you. That concludes public comment. Yes, that's what gives. It's a great program. The Border Patrol. Councilman Price. I have no comments. Okay, fine. We have a most of my pricing mumbo jumbo. District one, district two. Five. District three I District four. High District five. II. District six. Or. Seven. I. District eight. Hi. District nine. All right. Motion carries as you please. Item 19. Communication from Councilwoman Pryce, Chair, Public Safety Committee Recommendation or request staff to explore revisiting the fire facility's impact fee ordinance and evaluate other financing solutions that are available. Councilwoman Price. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. This is this is an item that came before public safety. And we requested a report actually a very long time ago on our current fire impact fees and how those fees are utilized and how much money is a revenue is collected through those fees. In light of the recommendations or the presentation that was made by the fire department, it became apparent to all of us that we need to reassess our fire impact fees and look at alternative methods of funding fire facilities moving forward. Because we don't have really a long term way of preparing for infrastructure needs and building new facilities within the fire department. And as we start to see more density and growth throughout the city, we should be reevaluating whether our fire impact fees, our development fees that include impacts to city infrastructure are appropriate in light of our need. So this item is asking the city manager to evaluate its different financing or funding options, including creative approaches to create revenue creation for fire facilities and a report back to council with options. Thank you, Councilman. Councilwoman Price. Do every fiber come into the c enter? Yes, we have the issue. Your time starts now. Hello again. I'd like to. I'd like you all to strongly consider this item very carefully, very important. There are a lot of funding options from the case study. Clearly, our Fire and destruction needs to be modernized and updated to reflect the needs of the city. Getting new locations is good. Getting back to planning for how to most effectively meet our needs. The construction and furnishing of new buildings defined by the services. I mean, that's a tremendous opportunity not just to work with storage, but I mean, you know, just a community resource. I mean, there's so many things that can be done when people have to defund the police. I mean, $10 million a week, $10 million for some of these properties. I mean, item to get, you know, the purchase of the property which which is a good thing to land is the most important after the city. But how we optimize and utilize that, how we prepare for emergency services and potentiality, that is very, very important. I very much appreciate the councilwoman for bringing forth. Thank you. Any room comfortable in my purse, would you? Actually. I guess I'll second this motion. There's not already a second. And also we only have a second. Okay. I support this item, and I wanted to speak to it just because in the downtown, obviously we've had a lot of development with the downtown plan. There's other strategies that will happen after I leave office around more development throughout the city. And we also have our inclusionary housing policy that we've just adopted, recognizing that whenever we have increased density, which means new development, that we also need to respectfully ensure that we're collecting enough fees to build our infrastructure. And so I fully support this. I don't have the agenda item in front of me right now, but I'd love to see what our impact fees are and what other cities are doing. Thank you for bringing this item. It's been talked about for a while, so appreciate it, Mr. Vice Mayor. Can I just jump in real quick on this one? Yes, go ahead. I just wanted to point out that all the back up materials for this item are actually on the agenda for tonight, including the presentation that was made. So this remote, if I just wanted to point out that staff did follow up on this particular item. Hey. Thank you. I'll consider something. I'll just speak from the side of. Thank you. I support the motion as articulated. Thank you very much. Craig, would you please call for the vote? District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. District six. District seven. I. District eight. I. District nine. All right. Motion carries. And clerk. Mr. Shoop, when I was the second on this motion. Okay. Now, item 20, please. Thank you. Now we're going to go and go to entry into our continued budget hearing. The 2021 fiscal year we're here from health and opening up for questions from the council member and then parks public c omment on this hearing will be after all, council questions are answered by each department so we can start off with that. So would you call for the hearing. Report and financial management recommendation and conduct a budget hearing to receive and discuss an overview of the proposed fiscal year 2021 Budget for Health and Human Services. Fire and Parks. Recreation and Marine. Thank you, mayor and council. Vice mayor and council. We have Kelly Collopy here to present the Health Department budget, so I'll turn it over to Kelly. A 21 budget. 2020 has been and continues to be a challenging year for our department and across the city. At no time in my career has there ever been an incredible, such an incredible focus on public health and the impact of social condition the COVID pandemic, a declaration of racism as a public health crisis, and ongoing national and local focus on violence. Also as a public health crises and the need to utilize public health methods to address it. COVID 19 brought to light the impacts of underlying health conditions, overcrowded housing and poverty. This year brought us together as departments, employees and community to address common goals. The level of partnership is unprecedented and so essential. I want to give a huge shout out to all the department who are engaged in the pandemic response, as well as their support for racial equity and reconciliation efforts. I also want to give another huge shout out to our Health Department, Health and Human Services Services team for their dedication, commitment and passion for their work. It has really been elevated in these COVID times. The Health Department offers over 40 public facing programs across the lifespan from prenatal to end of life. We work in and for every community in our city. We work to protect the public's health and promote healthy living and to prevent and control communicable diseases such as COVID. We're building systems to improve access to early childhood and older adult services. We house people. We enhance opportunities, policies and systems to address health and social inequities. The Health Department is also a vital component of the public safety continuum in Long Beach. We plan daily to ensure the city is prepared for what we are facing right now. We coordinate emergency shelter, response and services. We lead bioterrorism efforts for the city and the region. Our environmental health team coordinates the response to hazardous waste threats and ensures all restaurants and waters are safe. We lead violence prevention efforts through safe Long Beach, and we immunize against public health threats. The impact of Cove on our department has been steep. The Health Department's Emergency Planning and Communicable Diseases team is fewer than 15 people in normal times, and they are all grant funded. The COVID pandemic far exceeds this team's capacity to respond, as well as public health capacity to respond across the nation. Given the chronic under-resourcing of public health locally and at all government levels in our health department, many programs and people were assigned to COVID response beginning in March. Almost all of those that you see are those teams that you see are grant funded as well. Reassignments vary. For instance, ours from our HIV team led the coordination of Medical Reserve Corps for the Rapid Assessment Clinic, worked in the jet, producing information, provided interpretation at the mayor's pressers, and also participated in gear and the race conversations. Our veteran services coordinator is managing the call center. Our Community Health Bureau manager designed and managed the isolation and quarantine site. The list goes on. Ryan focusing on the health department. None of the response could be possible without the leadership, support, engagement and hard work of employees from across the city as they took on their roles as disaster services workers. The city came together in an unprecedented way, in an unprecedented time. And I thank you all. Some of our outcomes and accomplishments through COVID. So in only five months, we've accomplished so much in our city. Prior to COVID 19, the Public Health Emergency Management Team received a grant to support the distribution center, which became a lifeline in our to our city team and managing media partners for PPE and Food. Our public health lab ran tests before any other testing was available. Test sites have served over 88,000 people, and a communicable disease team has investigated nearly 8000 positive cases. The same team, I'll response also responded to 22 skilled nursing center outbreaks, of which 13 have no new cases in the last two weeks. The team partnered with the Venue Task Force to educate more than 8000 businesses, including supporting restaurants to reopen safely during the pandemic. We established a warm line for older adults, family members of older adults, agencies who work with older adults, and others who are self-isolating due to health conditions. The Chronic Disease Team made it possible to distribute £245,000 of food to 3500 households. And we also opened two emergency shelters and isolation and quarantine site for people experiencing homelessness and those who cannot safely isolate at home. To date, we have had no COVID 19 outbreaks among our city's homeless population. Despite the challenges COVID 19 has presented, the Health Department has continued to deliver services in many of its programs. These accomplishments include identifying and investigating the largest restaurant associated hepatitis A outbreak in California in years. This team interviewed over 200 individuals and conducted an extensive outbreak investigation. Our workplace work has grown by over 3200 families due to COVID and now is serving nearly 18,000 households. The Safe Language Team established a collaborative partnership with 15 community based organizations in the Washington neighborhood to address gun violence, neighborhood empowerment and built and built environment factors that impact people's quality of life. And the Medical Outreach and Health Access Team has enrolled over 1500 people in health insurance. We continue to address mosquito and other vector borne diseases and can take and conduct safety inspections. The number of HIV tests double this year to nearly 2000 tests for our community. We've also strengthened fatherhood skills and families within our family and in families within our city. Many of our direct service programs are now conducted by telephone or video. In terms of homelessness, we're managing $52 million in homeless services. This includes the $9 million purchase of the ABC shelter 3.7 million for Project ROOMKEY If that is approved, 1 million spent on COVID sheltering. It also includes a reduction of measure funding at the point of $2 million. The remainder of the funds are for prevention, outreach, coordination and rapid rehousing. We're opening 125 bed shelter this September, and the MSI has had nearly 8500 visits in this time of COVID, and the CRC has personally housed nearly 1400 people this year. We've also had we also have nearly 7600 households who are permanent housing through the housing authority. And we received 45 additional vouchers this year for veterans and tenant protection. The Family Self-sufficiency Program graduated 21 participants with a combined earnings of over $200,000. The current health department budget is just under $158 million. This does not include the one time funds for COVID 19 response. The housing authority continues to be the largest of our funds, followed by the Health Fund. The general fund is now approximately 3% of the health budget. With the addition of the Hart team in the budget. Notable changes to the general fund this year include $414 for $414,000 for three new positions as the Hart team restructures to the Health Department and 1.5 million for racial equity and reconciliation efforts. The new structure for the Hart team will allow for two response teams made up of a public health nurse, mental health practitioner and two outreach workers. This will allow for medical and mental health response across the city. Seven days per week, this meets the Council and community requests for increased medical and mental health support for homeless population. The 1.5 million designated for racial equity and reconciliation efforts will focus on youth development, violence prevention and health equity. The Proactive Homeless Initiative will be funded at the same level as last year, with one time funds of $255,000. The Office of Equity is moving from the Health Department to the city manager's team, and the two FTEs for the cannabis positions there were previously funded by the General Fund will be allocated to the health fund. These costs will be offset by permit revenues. In the health front, we are adding ten PhDs for administrative, finance and accounting supports to effectively manage nearly $49 million in new grants and contracts. These positions are grant funded and will continue as long as funding is available in programs across the department. At this time, we're looking at expenditures of $69 million for testing, surge staffing, surveillance, contact tracing, AP data efforts and homelessness. Our current one time response funding totals $49 million. So there's a gap of $20 million. The expectation is that FEMA will reimburse testing efforts to fill the gap between expenditures and the resources. Over the past seven years, the Health Department has efficiently managed its annual budgets to build an $11 million reserve to ensure we'd be prepared for times like this, a pandemic response, and cuts to budgets outside of the general fund. We expect this fund to take a large hit this year to cover the expenses. Our racial equity and reconciliation funding will allow the Department to open a new Office of Youth Development, strengthen existing violence prevention efforts out of focus on reentry, and continue the department's equity efforts focusing specifically on health and housing equity. The Office of Youth Development will coordinate programs and investments with community based organizations and city programs in Long Beach. This would be staffed by a program manager, a program coordinator and two peer navigators. Funding would go to use serving organizations to create young leaders and also leverage and expand the city's workforce and parks programming for recreation, youth , employment and wellness opportunities. This office this office also creates the infrastructure for future funding and supports to community based organizations to focus on issues such as peer navigation, to increase youth linkage to services, mental health services, and skill development for youth in managing difficult situations, as well as mentoring opportunities for the funding, while also strengthen our safe one beach violence prevention efforts which are currently staffed with one FTE funding with support and additional violence prevention coordinator, as well as a reentry coordinator to lay the groundwork for a future one stop reentry location in the city. Funding would be utilized to support community based organizations to focus on reducing community level trauma and gun violence through violence. Interruption strategies in communities most impacted by violence. The Health Department's Center for Families and Youth in North Palm Beach is currently being remodeled and will house the Center for Health Equity, which will be focused on providing and coordinating services that focus on building health opportunities for communities most impacted by racism. The Department will hire one health equity program manager to focus on policies and programs to address the most disparate health outcomes in the city, and one coordinator to further support the Black Health Equity Coalition further fund currently being funded through the CARES Act, as well as other key he alth issues impacting those across the city. Funding would also be utilized to increase food access and sustainability, as well as ongoing health department efforts such as fatherhood, black infant health, Medi-Cal enrollment and mental health supports. Health equity has really taken a front seat during these COVID times as we see the impacts of underlying health conditions and overcrowded housing and the case rates of our Latinx population and hospitalizations and deaths among our black population. For housing equity. The Health Department is in the process of hiring a coordinator for the Everyone Home Line Beach Plan. Three Efforts to reach the goals outlined in that plan. This coordinator will include a focus on equity and homelessness. We do face challenges because the Health Department is primarily a grant funded organization. There's little funding for administrative functions such as finance contracts and human resources. The status makes it even greater challenge to respond to an influx in funding. This is exacerbated by the aggressive timelines of the federal funding coming to the city. Don't get me wrong, we appreciate every dollar coming in and our community needs it, but it requires that we immediately build a capacity to manage it. Our grant funds have been hit as we've reassigned people to COVID response. When this happened, staff are not drawing down their grant funds, which impacts our overall funding picture now and in the future. Staff building to grants isn't an absolute essential thing to draw down the funds that are out there. The state health re-alignment funding to local health jurisdictions was cut by approximately 10%, which is over $800,000 for the city of Long Beach. The state is working to backfill these funds with approximately $550,000. This will help but continues to leave our department with a $300,000 reduction in our structural funding. The uncertainty of the length of the pandemic and future impacts challenge our planning and funding efforts. As discussed before, the department's fund balance is taking a big hit through this pandemic. We do have opportunities. The CARES Act funding brings a real opportunity to partner with community based organizations to provide key supports to people in our city who are most impacted by COVID. We are establishing infrastructures to support food access, early child and older adult supports, basic needs and so much more into our future. The Racial Equity and reconciliation focus on youth development, trauma, violence prevention, health and housing equity will bring much needed structural funding to essential efforts to create a healthier and safer future in Long Beach. Additional federal funding may become available to support response and recovery efforts. The department has been planning for the implementation of a coordinated entry technology system to improve access and coordination of services in the department, as well as improve data on our services to be utilized for quality improvement efforts. This is moving forward this year. The increased focus on public health planning and services at all levels of government and community allows a broader conversation about health and public safety and the necessity of investing in upstream preventions. Building a social context for Health and wellness. And finally, we also have 107 more permanent housing units coming online for our homeless population. Our Health and Human Services Department stands for the health and well-being of this great city and look forward to partnering with you, our community members, community organizations and our other city departments to ensure all are thriving. Thank you for the opportunity to present a snapshot of our efforts in the midst of these COVID times. That concludes my presentation, and I'm open for questions. Thank you. This is an exclusive question. Greg. Can we hear all the presentations first? Well, let's find out. Does everyone agree to that? Would everyone agree to have an idea? Come to our minds? Okay, fine. Okay. Well, next we'll go to. Thanks. The next we'll have our fire chief Javier Espino giving the presentation on the fire department budget. Is that when you come out? Give us a 1/2 while we clean the microphone area for the next presentation. Good. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Members of the city council. This evening, I will be providing a brief overview of the Long Beach Fire Department's fiscal year 21 proposed budget. Our presentation will highlight the services provided by the Fire Department. Some of our key accomplishments for the current fiscal year. Notable changes in the fiscal year 21 proposed budget and some of the major issues and opportunities that we foresee for the upcoming fiscal year. The Long Beach Fire Department delivers fire rescue, emergency medical services, marine safety response, hazardous materials response, and non-emergency response services. We provide a 24 hour operation 365 days a year. Our personnel are well equipped and highly trained to mitigate all emergencies. The fire department strives to make a better long, to make Long Beach a better place to live, visit and operate a business. Additionally, we work to ensure the safety of the community through proactive fire prevention activities, including code enforcement, fire investigation and aggressive community outreach. We also provide training and education that is essential to the delivery of our core fire and rescue services. I would now like to present some of the fire department's accomplishments and highlights for the current fiscal year. Over the past 12 months, we've responded to over 73,000 fire, emergency medical services, marine safety and other emergency incidents. Since many incidents require multiple units to respond, these 73,000 incidents equate to more than 150,000 unit responses. Included in this number are over 50,000 medical calls and over 6500 fire calls. This number also includes hazardous materials response s, airport responses and other non fire responses. Our Operations Bureau hired and trained a diverse class of 23 new ambulance operators to state to staff. Our basic life support program in our training division turned out a diverse class of 23 new firefighters. These were both great investments in the fire department's futures. I'm immensely proud of the work that the men and women of the fire department have done this year from the very beginning of the pandemic. They responded, as they always do. Heading directly towards danger and potential harm to the to themselves to do their job, never knowing which patients might be infected with COVID 19. Fire staff has also been critical to the citywide response to this prolonged incident. Back in March, fire staff was instrumental in standing up the incident management team with their knowledge of and experience with the incident command system. Our chief officers led the charge in this area quickly providing leadership and educating city staff and management from all departments in both the Incident Management Team and the Emergency Operations Center, and providing structure to a rapidly developing and changing incident. I would also like to highlight our efforts in the recruitment and education of future firefighters with the City Council's Investment in our Diversity Recruitment Program. Our Diversity Recruitment and Partnerships Coordinator has developed short and long term strategies to recruit and retain the most qualified candidates now and in the future. Short term strategies include recruitment events and providing information to assist candidates in their preparation. Long term strategies include our relationship with the Long Beach Unified School District and the Fire Pathways Program at Jordan High School. The continuation of the diversity recruitment program is critical to continuing to bring in a diverse group of qualified fire recruits and for preparing the next generation for a career in the fire service. In the short term, efforts have resulted in another diverse and highly qualified recruit class. It starts on September 28th. The Diversity Recruit Recruitment Program also provides support for our employees preparing for promotional opportunities within the organization. Our Fire Prevention Bureau promoted community safety and economic growth by conducting over 11,000 residential construction and business related fire safety inspections. The department conducted over 200 arson investigations, which resulted in over 30 arrests. Our Community Emergency Response Team or CERT program once again proved to be a valuable community asset this year. Our trained CERT volunteers contributed over 3500 hours of service for the COVID 19 response. One of the highlights of our diversity recruitment program was our first ever girls camp. This was a one day event at the David Rosa Regional Training Center, where 40 young women were provided information on careers in the fire service. In addition, they h ad the opportunity to meet with some of our staff role models where real fire, fire turnouts and helmets and obtain some hands on experience with the tools we use in the fire service. Finally, we were able to modify our very popular Junior Lifeguard program to comply with state and County Youth Day camp recommendations involving social distancing and other protocols. The proposed fiscal year 21 budget for the fire department is just over $133 million. We have a total of 527.7 full time equivalent staff consisting of 401 sworn FTE in the fire ranks. Another 24 full time year round marine safety first responders, over 180 seasonal lifeguards and 26 full time ambulance operators. Additionally, the fire department is supported by civilian staff in fire operations, support services, fire prevention and administration. 76% of our budget is in the general fund, which supports most departmental activities. The proposed fiscal year 21 general fund budget for the fire department is $101.5 million. The Long Beach Airport provides support in the amount of just over $6 million for fire and rescue services provided to the airport. And this is included in the fire department's general fund budget. Additionally, the Tidelands Fund supports marine safety activities as well as our fire operations in the Port of Long Beach, which includes specialty programs of urban search and rescue, hazardous materials and marine firefighting. The harbor department provides cost reimbursement for the services provided in the port in the amount of $19.2 million, and that is included in the $28.8 million Tidelands Fund budget for fire. Proposition eight funds from the oil production tax continue to provide additional support for fire staffing in the amount of just over $1.6 million annually. The fire department, together with the Health Department, provides environment environmental protection services that are supported by the Cooper Fund. Cooper stands for Certified Unified Program Agency and through permit fees, provides funding for inspection services and business emergency plan reviews to ensure hazardous chemicals are handled, stored and transported in accordance with current state and local standards. The Cooper budget is $1.1 million. The Fire Department's proposed fiscal year 21 budget includes several notable changes that I would like to highlight. First, there is a structural reduction of $1.9 million in Fire's general fund budget in fiscal year 21. This will be offset by a one year delay in the collection of capital recovery charges for our fleet of vehicles. Each year, the Fleet Services Bureau charges the fire department $1.9 million in capital recovery charges in the general fund, which goes into a vehicle replacement fund. By not charging us these capital recovery charges in fiscal year 21. We will delay a replacement of fire apparatus by one year, resulting in a slightly older fleet over the years. We're operating a relatively young fleet of vehicles. 60% of our fr ont line emergency response vehicles are five years old or newer, and we are therefore confident that this change will not negatively impact operations. Since. Since this is a one time reduction, we will be required to submit an ongoing structural reduction to replace this in subsequent fiscal years . Additionally, the budget proposal includes a one time strategic investment of $200,000 to conduct a comprehensive fire operations study, which will identify efficiencies and potential areas of improvement. The proposed budget also includes the elimination of our two heart units and transfer of program responsibilities to the Department of Health and Human Services, who will operate the program with nurses and or social workers. By all accounts, the heart team has been a great success. However, when faced with make with making reductions of this magnitude, it was important to us to instead maintain our core services of fire and emergency medical response. Fire's proposed budget also includes several investments in the general fund. First is the addition of a new civilian fire inspector position. This position will work closely with development services to improve compliance with codes, laws, regulations and ordinances related to fire building and hazardous materials. The position will be funded through fires Memorandum of Understanding with Development Services. Additionally, partial funding is recommended to continue the Fire Diversity Recruitment Program for an additional year. The first year of this program was very successful and we look forward to continuing it. Program Highlights for fiscal year 20 included developing and implementing curriculum for the new Public Safety Pathway Program at Jordan High School. Hosting the inaugural Girls Fire Camp, attending over 30 recruitment events focused on improving diversity, redesigning all department branding to include images of a diverse workforce. Launching the BFD recruitment website to provide information about the department. The examination process and candidate expectations and how to prepare for the hiring process and pivoting to recruitment webinars via Zoom due to the COVID 19 pandemic. Again, I want to thank the City Council for your support of this important program. Finally, faced with a large reduction target in the title and fund, we had to make the difficult recommendation to reduce seasonal non-career lifeguard staffing by 10%, which will result in 5 to 7 fewer lifeguards on the beach on any given summer day. We're also proposing the elimination of one Marine safety officer, which will reduce the number of year round trained marine safety professionals and will require changes to the way that we manage our junior lifeguard program. The Fire Department put our first heart unit into service in November of 2016 with the mission of reducing the number of fire department responses to individuals experiencing homelessness through rapid response to nine one, one calls for service collaboratio

capabilities and continue to meet the expectations and needs of our community . This becomes increasingly challenging amidst reductions in the budget. Another challenge is that of continuing to protect patients and first responders. This will remain a daily challenge as long as the COVID 19 pandemic last. We remain committed to continuing to provide patients and first responders with all of the necessary personal protective equipment. As became evident last year. Fire staff live in and respond from fire stations and marine safety facilities, some of which are old and have significant health and maintenance issues. This will continue to be a challenge for our workforce as more buildings begin to exceed their useful lives. Additionally, we're seeing an increase in vegetation fires in the city. These have the capability of spreading fast and threatening lives and property. Preventing and managing these fires is a high priority for us. And finally, we will be facing the challenge of keeping our beaches and waterways safe while operating with the reduced staffing that was mentioned in the significant changes slide. We also have some exciting opportunities ahead. While anticipated retirement of our leadership in the management and supervisory ranks creates somewhat of a challenge. It also is a great opportunity to develop the next generation of leadership. We also plan to conclude work on the BFD strategic plan in the coming fiscal year and look forward to implementing s strategies to support the Department's vision and priorities. Finally, continued investment in the Fire Diversity Recruitment Program creates a great opportunity to continue to improve the diversity of the fire department through implementation of short and long term relationships and recruitment strategies. That concludes my report, and we are available to respond to any questions you may have. Thank you. Thank you very much. No motor parks. Thank you. Please give us a minute to transition and then you'll hear from Brant Dennis, our brand new director of Parks Rec and Marine, who will be assisted by Steve Scott as well, who has been serving previously as the interim director. Good evening, Honorable Vice Mayor and members of the City Council. It's my pleasure to present to you the 2021 proposed budget for the Department of Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Care Services. In just a few weeks that I've been serving the community as your director of the Long Beach Department of Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Care Services , I've spoken to many community members, and they all speak with pride and passion about our over 170 parks, places and open spaces. 27 community gardens. Community centers, nearly 6.5 miles of beautiful beaches, three marinas, recreation programs, and compassionate animal care services. The proposed budget will allow our department team members to continue passing forward their passion of bringing enjoyment to all from infants to older adults, as well as our companion dogs and cats. We do this knowing that we need to be strategic and nimble in order to be effective and equitable in responding to the diverse needs of our community. The court services of the Department of Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Care Services provide an array of programs and places for our residents, businesses and visitors to enjoy. Every corner of our city. Parks are an essential part of our public health infrastructure, and the uneven access to that infrastructure across the nation poses public health and safety challenges. The Department of Parks Recreation, Marina Animal Care Services is committed to making our parks and open spaces essential places where everyone is welcome and can thrive. We're excited about providing programs and services in all areas of the city to meet the evolving needs of our community. We take our role in the public safety continuum seriously and work hard to provide access to healthy recreation opportunities in safe environments for the community's youth, teens, adults and seniors who utilize our programs throughout Long Beach. We're very proud to further promote responsible pet ownership and the humane treatment of animals in alignment with our Compassion Saves model . Animal Care Services is developing a new strategic plan which will provide a roadmap to achieving future success and meeting compassion saves objectives. We're fortunate to have the largest municipally run marina system in the nation, and it's our goal to make sure our facilities and waterways are in excellent quality for the enjoyment of everyone who visits and recreates . I'm extremely proud of our team members for the many accomplishments this past year as the COVID 19 pandemic struck our city. Our department quickly moved into action. Team members proved their resilience in adapting and responding to COVID 19. This has been shown in numerous ways, such as the deployment of staff to temporary shelters set up in our park community centers and working around the clock to assist city staff in serving our community. Our department also adapted to safety measures mandated by local and state health orders and were able to provide enrichment programs for youth like recreation, reimagined our youth summer programming model and virtual summer camps as well as virtual recreation, which we called it for all ages. People realize that parks are even more important than ever during these unprecedented times. We kept our parks and restrooms open and enhanced with cleaning and sanitization for our community to utilize. We made it a top priority to assure our communities of Long Beach have safe and equitable access to our great park system. It's an honor to share with you some of the accomplishments delivered by our department. We are able to utilize our connections to all parts of the city to provide over 67,000 meals to seniors at seven various sites. Even during the COVID 19 pandemic, when it was most needed. Animal Care Services continues to improve the life release rate, reduce impound and support spay and neuter efforts. The compassion saves and implementation further promotes our goal of having positive outcomes for all animals in our care. Currently, we have a save rate of 92% and are heading towards ending the year with very good rates of saving animals. Our foster program has been successful in increasing pet adoptions. Once again, we participated in a partnership with Long Beach Unified School District to offer meals to children and youth. This summer, we were able to expand from 23 to 33 sites and offered more than 100,000 meals. Our department stretches across the city and is able to serve all of Long Beach communities. We strive to be flexible and responsive. To be sure, our communities are served to our fullest capacity. As a department, we continue to focus on enhancing park access throughout the city and improving the beauty, maintenance and safety aspects of our parks, open spaces, beaches and marinas. Earlier this year, our beach maintenance division began mobilization and preparation for the Peninsula Beach Hydraulic Pumping Pilot study. Winter storms tend to erode the beach and beach maintenance staff annually transports thousands of cubic yards of sand by truck from the West Beach to the Peninsula Beach. Reducing the truck trips and finding a less disruptive transport method has been a big priority, and we're looking to see if hydraulic pumping could be a viable tool for beach renou ishment in hopes of curbing natural erosion. Staff is in the process of determining the next steps of at the conclusion of that study. Our department, in partnership with public works, was able to construct the new playground at Jenni Rivera Park, reopened the K-9 dog park that occurred in January of this year. We built a brand new community center at Houghton Park, which opened in June of this year, and developed new parks such as Pike Park, which opened in February, which has the longest, I must say, the coolest slide in the city. As all of you know, Parks boosts the well-being for the entire neighborhood and foster community where everyone is welcome. Recently, we were awarded approximately $2 million from the National Park Service, which allows us to provide an additional six acres of much needed park space to the communities surrounding Davenport Park. We continue to work with partners to seek funding for future investment in our parks and open spaces for fiscal year 21. Our proposed budget totals over $60 million across all funds, with over $35 million or about 30 or 59% of our proposed budget from the general fund. The Department also has substantial tidelands funds budgets to support our operations in the marinas, beaches and waterways. That represents approximately 38% of our department's budget. Historically, we bring in over $38 million in revenue with significant revenue streams, helping to support our many free community programs. With general fund revenue of over $12 million from permits, facility reservations, contract classes and golf operations just to name a few. And in the Tidelands funds, it's over 24 million, most of which comes from marina slip fees, which amount to about 21 million. The city is currently undergoing a comprehensive fee study, which Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Services is taking part in. The fees. Study is one way the department continues to examine cost recovery and maximize revenue opportunities. The fiscal year 21 budget process proposes new revenues from youth sports and entry fees. The budget provides for over 427 full time equivalent positions in past years. During our busy summer months. Our team numbers grew to well over 800 people. We employ hundreds of seasonal staff and are proud of our role as a local workforce development engine. This is just another way that investment in your Long Beach Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Care Services is an investment back into the community. Additionally, we provide staff support and act as the liaison to four City Council appointed commissions, those being the Parks and Recreation Commission, Marine Advisory Commission, Senior Advisory Commission and the Commission on Youth and Children. The investments that are included in the fiscal year 21 budget will help our city continue to be recognized as one of the top park and recreation systems nationally. We have the great opportunity to continue to have a positive impact citywide on Long Beach residents ts and visitors each and every day by providing access for all to our many programs, services and open spaces. We look forward to the addition of a full time veterinarian to help drive positive outcomes for shelter animals and further improve our live release rate. The proposed budget continues the investment for the Be Safe program at 11 park sites next year, helping to keep youth and families engaged in positive and safe activities on weeknights during the longer daylight hours of summer work. We're excited to continue programming at the Expo Center. This program will further enhance the quality of life for our senior community by providing core health and enrichment services. The Expo Center is located in North Long Beach, which has the highest number of seniors in the city. Last year, the City Council approved the transfer to the city of the previously privately run historic asset known as the Sunnyside Cemetery. The cemetery is an important part of our city history, and we're pleased to make it a part of our park system. The proposed budget also includes enhanced resources for water, which will structurally maintain our current watering needed due to rate increases, as well as one time funds to help manage healthy plant needs, irrigate our park lands and keep them beautiful and safe. Although some of our critical needs have been addressed in the proposed budget, there are also some significant reductions. These reductions include the elimination of support and field staff in various bureaus in the General Fund and Tidelands operating funds. This includes the elimination of staff dedicated to nighttime lockups for mini parks, as well as park freestanding restrooms and also park permit compliant staff in El Dorado Regional Park. It also includes reductions of administrative staff in business operations, community recreation services and marine bureaus and supervisory support in our Community Recreation Services Bureau, as well as the Marine Bureau. Additionally, there will be a reduction in budget for materials and services such as landscaping and tree trimming services in the Tidelands area. There also be a reduction in budget for funds incentive programs during the summer by shortening our programming by one hour. Deferred maintenance, along with the continuing impact of vandalism and abuse of our facilities, continues to be challenged. We work with our partners to identify issues and how to best address them. We also collaborate with our partners to address the safety, health and environmental concerns related to people experiencing homelessness in our parks and beaches. These challenges must be addressed to enable us to provide court services and safe facilities for all of the community to enjoy. It can be a balancing act of resources to strategically address critical priorities while looking to the future. The development the department continually looks for future investment to support park infrastructure and development. We also explore m ore partnerships, collaborations and funding opportunities which allow us to offer scholarships for programs and classes. Beautification of our public spaces and future park. Development for our great city. With challenges do come opportunities, we hope to positively affect our parks through neighborhood involvement, beautification and positive activation through neighborhood involvement in parks and programs by volunteerism and other partnerships will create more welcoming and safe parks. This is so important because children who live in neighborhoods with safe parks, healthy foods and opportunities to grow and thrive live up to 17 years longer on average, than those in neighborhoods without those resources. That's actually according to our Cities Equity Toolkit, which I think is invaluable. We also look for ways to adapt our city service delivery model and operations to better meet the needs of the community, especially during these unprecedented times. We explore opportunities to take a creative approach to provide safe programming that is accessible for all. Like we've done with recreation, reimaged and virtual programs, we work towards promoting equity and making inequities visible, using data and storytelling. An example of this opportunity is through our Youth Strategic Plan, which emphasizes the importance of reaching out to our youth to identify these inequities and trying to work with them to have them addressed. We're passionate about using nature to benefit our parks, spaces, programming and services. We want to focus on clean water, sustainable park landscapes, clean beaches, and well-managed wetlands that align with the city's priorities. We'll continue to advance the development of the department's strategic plan. The plan strives to engage community voices to inform the delivery of park programming and services. We plan to bring to you the new strategic plan next year. This will further our efforts to be continually adaptable to the Long Beach Community Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Care Services and all its team members remain committed to offering award winning programs and excellent service while providing safe, clean parks, beaches and marinas from all of us to to use now and in the future years. We are dedicated to our city, our department, and championing a park system for all and for the future. From our recreation programs to animal care services, what we do provides enjoyment to a large, diverse community. Honorable Vice Mayor and Members of City Council. I thank you for your continued investment in Parks, Recreation, Marine and Animal Care Services. Your support helps us meet the needs of community all across the city. Our dedicated employees and I thank you for that support. And this concludes my presentation. Thank you. And I want to thank all three of the individuals from Park Slope, you know, and for our excellent report. So now we're going to on with the guys, you know, questions. First of. Councilman Rogers i n there? Yeah, I was waiting on you. Okay. Thanks, Vice Mayor. I'm going to be pretty quick here. I'm just going to have some brief comments for Mr. Dennis and Mr. Espino, and I'm gonna have just a few thoughts and comments for the Health Department. And when we get there, I'd like to pull up page 13 on the Health Department's report. Mr. Dennis, welcome to the team. You've hit the ground running. We have a great Parks and Recreation Department. It's difficult times right now, but I know that it's important to the public. So we want to make sure that we are doing all that we can to make sure we have a top notch world class parks. A few things just to highlight. I think, you know, the Parks Park Center, you know, unfortunately, we're in a pandemic, so the public hasn't been able to really experience it, but we're incredibly excited to have finished that project. It's been more than a decade of advocacy to get there. We're excited also about the Forest Park partnerships that are in the works with Camp Fire and Conservation Corps. I know that I'd like to see in the future just staff spend some time dedicating some focus on grant writing and other sorts of resources to implement the Uptown Open Space Plan. Highland Park took so much, so much energy and attention that it was, you know, that it was difficult to see prop funds and other things go to other other things like playgrounds and Hamilton, Greenbelt and other things. I'd like to see that also. I love seeing that the senior program at Expo and the BSA program, both of those are really popular in the North Long Beach and Uptown community, so I'm glad to see that that's there. So again, welcome and look forward to working with you. Chief Espino Great. I'm glad that you highlighted a lot of your success with the fire diversity recruitment. This was an important priority of the city council. I've been paying attention to this. So great job. You have very visible changes. And, you know, I'm hearing good things about the academy that you've been able to see some of the benefits of the fire diversity program. Can you speak just briefly to how the academy is shaping up? Thank you. Councilman, can you repeat the question one more time, please? Just just briefly, can you speak to the diversity when within like since you brought on this diversity recruiting program, what outcomes are we seeing with the with the current academy? So with the current academy that's coming up, it's a very diverse academy, I want to say on the order of 50%, either by gender and or ethnicity. And that also reflects what we we had just recently with our Engineers Academy with the same graduation rate and typical diversity as well. Great. I'm just glad to see that. And I've been following the Junior Lifeguard program and all those things, so we're excited about the future. Another, we're gonna have some difficult budget years. So moving forward, you know, I'd like to see more creativity in efficiencies and, you know, in revenue op tions so that we can prevent service cuts. I don't we don't want to lose engine 12. We don't want to lose rescue 12. Again, we saw what it was like without that. And so we know what's up against this next year or, you know, we're all going to have to work together and figure out some creative solutions. You know, I'd love to learn more about some of these. We focus on the heart themes, but those questions will have for for health. But thank you so much. And the other thing is, I love that you spoke to succession planning and training. I think that's really important to maintain a great culture. You really want to make sure that you you brought up, you know, use these opportunities to bring young people up into leadership. So so thank you. And keep up the good work, Chief. Thank you for thinking, Miss Collopy, on health. First of all, thank you for leading with health on the Health presentation. First, I think it's certainly appropriate given what we're dealing with in the pandemic. If we could pull up the health presentation, go to page 13. I think that's where I want to where where I want to start. So I'm glad to see that particularly this year, we're being nimble and responsive. We learned a lot this year about the way health impacts and the way it breaks down is along poverty lines, along racial lines. How it breaks down. One May economy recession. Okay. Okay, so so man it threw me off being I was on a roll. So yeah. Can you just speak to that? I want to speak to as I see these investments and they're really good and I think we'll have more time to talk about them later.

But the housing and homeless equity position, what I see here is that there's you know, we're dealing with a lot with respect to renters nowadays. And we've got housing authority, we've got rental assistance, all these things. And we want to place a focus on homeownership and and we have a homelessness issue. How is Colby? How are we going to make sure this housing equity position is situated to sort of streamline all of those doors into one door? That's easy for people to get to because I'd like to ultimately see one front door housing, rental housing division within the city that can deal with, you know, our rental issues. And I think it applies to racial equity as well, given 80% of African-Americans rent in Long Beach and 70% Latino. So could you speak to that? Yes. Councilmember So the focus of this at this time is really around the issues, around homeless homeless equity. We find an overrepresentation among our black population, within our homeless population. The other piece of it is the Everyone Home plan itself has a lot of focus on bringing forth affordable housing, rental and others. And so I think the starting point would be to leverage the person that is coming on through the Everyone Home plan and then to work throughout this year to establish the single office and bring that back to you for next year to move forward with that opening. Thank you. Thank you, Vice

Mayor. Go for it. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next to councilman, you venga. Thank you, Mayor. And I want to also thank the presenters, come up to speed on Denis for their work on this budget. And it's very tough, a lot of things to do. I'm going to start with health tourism with the first one up. I want to congratulate the occupants and they're doing exactly what I've been wanting to do for the last several years. And that's to welcome to analyze much of the separates is that you make it structural so that they're not always have to rely on grants and other funding to provide the services that they do. So I'm very happy to see that, and I hope that we're able to do even more in the coming years to structurally fund the whole department into the city's family. And that had to rely on grant. So I just want to say that the other part of the presentation did not did not address some of the other bureaus or what of what's going on with law or preventive health and the environmental health services. I especially interested in that one because we still have what we've had as COVID 19. We still have a West Nile virus out there in the comedian. And well, we've been very successful in controlling West Nile. What is the status of the Environmental Services Bureau? Yes. So our Environmental Health Bureau at this time said this past year they've responded to over 500 requests for the mosquito control and identified nine over 900 mosquitoes for vector borne borne disease surveillance. So they are working throughout all of this pandemic, doing exactly what they do every year. We have had one West Nile case in the city that I'm aware of. And it was the you know, it was one of the first ones in Southern California. So they continue to do that work, as well as the food safety inspections are working very closely with the restaurant at this time so that they can comply with the health order as well, ensuring that they can operate safely, you know, outside and kitchens and all those other pieces. So they're spending a lot of time in the field right now around health inspections as well. And then they're doing the pool inspections and the water testing and all the other events that they do. Would I be accurate in saying that the Environmental Services Bureau is doing their work in the capacity and funding that they currently have? Yes, they are. We are in the process of hiring additional inspectors because of the increased demand on their time and work. And they are sort of at the limit in terms of the resources they have available to them for the work that they can be doing. He will. Thank you for all you've done to keep his funeral pyre a little bit about what Councilmember Richardson brought up and Kennedy roommate. Very glad to see that you have that every single plan in place. That's another item that I have been wanting to see over the years to improve and get more institutionalization on there instead of doing it on a per recruitment strategy, something tha t you're doing year round and always looking at that. How you reviewed what you might be expecting in terms of attrition the next two or three years and what it might look like for your staffing, as well as the possibility of additional academies two or three years out. Thank you, Councilman. So on a normal basis, we anticipate approximately 12 retirements per year. That includes all ranks. We expect to see the same this year just based on our conversations with our workforce, with the academies, the system that we have set up now where we are testing annually and producing a an academy on an annual basis seems to give us a robust workforce, and I think that will keep us in line with maintaining our workforce. Of course, we're going to have to adapt and shift as the situation presents itself. Well, I'm glad to hear that as well as with you have ever seen recruitment.

I'm sure that we're going to be continuing to diversify our fire department at all levels. I appreciate that very much. Thank you. What a pleasure. One minute. One last question, and that is DMSO that you have targeted for elimination. I know I heard you correctly in your presentation. Yes, sorry about that. This whole works with your lifeguards. Would that be severely affecting that program at our class B or C that we had last week? Councilmember Price and I really supported that program. We want to see it continue. And so with this, MSO basically have a deleterious effect on that program. There would be a shift in responsibilities for who is administering the program. It would go from an MSO to Marine safety captain and also an analyst would be assisting with that process. So it would look different. And the responsibilities that the MSO currently has would have to be basically taken on by others. Well, my well, my question really relies on whether there would be a negative effect on the lifeguard program or sea right now. Cabrillo High School, Jordan High School schools up in all that are very well removed from the beach. We need that exposure. So, I mean, it wasn't when you were. Younger, so you could fill up again if you like. Boy, can I just finish up my question and then move on? Okay. Thank you. So, Tom, so basically those are the concerns that I have with the with the local programing. And and you're seeing they might look different. Yes, sir. You have a question? Do you have an answer to that? Yes. So as far as we know, the junior lifeguard program will continue with Mitchell gone. But it would be a marine safety captain, so it's going to look a bit different. We would still have a junior guard system, but it's going to be administered in a different direction. And the responsibilities that the MSL currently has would have to be farmed out to others within the organization. But the to my knowledge, the program that's at Jordan and Cabrillo and forwarding all of that, that will not be harmed in any way. Thank you very much. That's all I have, I swear. Thank you, s ir. Thank you. Since we're already with Chief Espino, I think so. We'll have to clean the microphone. My question would start with Cuba funds. So are you aware that there were some findings of agencies in the region and they met with the state and were able to designate their fines and fees to a local fire agency? I'm sorry, can you repeat the question? You talked about Cuba funds. Yes. Yes. So are there other a battalion chief for another fire agency mentioned to me that there were some businesses in the region, not in Long Beach, that had some violations. And when the violations occur, there are significant fines levied and associated. Typically, those fines are paid to a state agency. However, there was a recent lawsuit, I guess, that allows them to designate to give those funds to local agencies. Would you be open to looking into that and coming back to us in 6 to 8 weeks with a notice of whether or not we could start getting those funds directed to our agency, and that if we could start sending out letters after violations so that the revenue could come directly to us. Yeah, I would certainly be open to that. As stated earlier in the presentation, there is going to be a study of all things. Oops. All things. Fire department. And that would be something that we'd certainly look at. We're looking at different areas of the fire department as well in regards to billing and fines and fees and recouping those cost. Related to. And the additional increases of gate fees. Mr. MODICA I know that you'd stated that gig fees cannot be levied to one set of zip codes versus another set of zip codes separately or at different price points. But would you be open to creating a program where local residents could volunteer hours at a park or something of the such, where they could become some kind of ambassador, at which time they would be eligible for a lifetime reduced price or entrance fees. So if I understand the question correctly, it should. Can we look at a program where if you're volunteering and helping in the park, you get lower level of fees in terms of access to your annual passes that it. Something like that where their fees would stay the same. I know that our original intent was to raise fees for those who don't live in Long Beach. Since most tax dollars actually are. All support for Eldorado Park at this time comes from Long Beach taxpayers. And so my goal would be that Long Beach taxpayers don't have to pay additional to get into the park. However, other cities have taxpayers whose taxes go to their own parks. But because Eldorado Regional Park is such a desirable location, many of those residents use our parks. I am very supportive of the optimization of the front gate that would come from these fees. But I'm also of the mind that we do have a large number of Saturday cleanups now and other things. And so if members of our community took a pledge of some sort to help clean up the park and or to always follow the rules or any of those things, if they could get a discounted rate, which would be the current rate versus allowing that increase to go to people who don't participate in cleaning up our park, continue to violate the rules and are not

local residents. Does that make sense? Yeah, I think we can take a look at that. So we need to show that there was some kind of benefit that we received from their engagement. And there are a lot of really good volunteers that help out at the park. So we can take a look at that. And I think the item you were referring to is we did explore whether or not we could charge a higher fee for those who don't live in Long Beach. But because we've taken some money in the past, too, you know, that was kind of either state money or county money. We are not allowed to do that at this time. And I will further bring up that. I know that at the time I brought this up before was not in a public forum. So I think it's poignant to bring it up now so that the community can hear. And there are libraries who have taken regional county funds, hundreds of thousands of dollars of regional county, thousands, if not millions recently from the county and the city of St specifically. And they have a library that only services Cerritos residents. If you are not a Street Post resident, you cannot participate in that library. So I would be very interested to know what. Special thing that they did that allowed for that same kind of. Program right now. That's your. One man. Thank you. That access where our park is not eligible for the same types of restrictions. And then I just want to close with health services and wait. Let me. Youth sports fees. I second the mayor's comments that you support fees to not increase. We're in a time where youth sports is going to be on the brink of being able to survive. They're not able to play competitive play only practices. So they're at a place where they're going to have to reduce fees, not increase fees. And so I'm hoping that the city manager will bring forward alternatives to fix the funding gap created by not increasing our youth sports fees. I don't know what other options we have, but I don't think increasing youth sports fees is going to make sense, especially since they're going to have a significant reduction in utilization. So I think that that supply and demand is going to be an interesting one and it won't solve our problem. And finally, I just want to thank our Health Services Department and all our city employees who participated in the COVID response. I think that you guys did excellent work, and I think you've demonstrated a need that we have in our city to invest in health. Thank you. Thank you very much. Councilman Longo Price, please. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. So a couple of comments. I just want to let me start with fire. And I know that Chief has talked a little bit about the whole program and touched on our lifeguards. I know that both Councilman Pierce and I are probably very plugged in to the great work that our

lifeguards do every day. I am disappointed to see the reduction in their budget, especially in the areas where there are proposed reductions. I realize that we have some tremendous strains on Taiwan's budget right now and that that revenue source is going down and it's somewhat unpredictable because it's reliant on oil. But I'm hoping, Mr. City Manager, that we can figure out a way to fix the tide once. Allocation for lifeguards this year for FY 21 to allow them to continue operating at the level that they were. And then instead of cutting them now, require a proposal that they could submit for restructuring that we can consider next year if their budget is impacted by tidelands declines. And let me tell you why. I don't know if Chief has been our or I don't know if Deputy Chief Medina's is there or available can talk to a little bit about the rescues, talk to the rescue operations that have happened over the last year and how critical those are not just to the individuals who were rescued, but also to the community who witnessed who experienced trauma as a result. And just having the security of having the lifeguards out there, especially with our increased beach activation. So Chief Espinoza or Deputy Chief Medina, can either of you speak to some of the efforts of our lifeguards in the area of rescue? Thank you. Council member Chief Medina here. Just a quick a quick recap on our rescues. Two Sundays ago at the Colorado Lagoon, an eight year old boy and 14 year old sister were playing at the lagoon. And the eight year old boy stepped off a drop off and began to drown. The 14 year old sister, in an effort to render aid, reached down but was pulled down by the 14 year old, by the eight year old boy. Both of them were under water when our lifeguard Cooper got to them. She was able to bring them back to the surface and get them back to shore where we were able to render aid. They did take on a little water. And so our paramedics transported them to the children's memorial. That's just one example. I mean, we had a a choking infant. Alamitos Beach for many of the community that goes down there on the sand, it wasn't a water rescue, but our go render aid delivering and making sure that they had a pattern airway by the time that paramedics got there. They also were transported. And certainly our lifeguards have been involved throughout the year, not just in lifeguard rescue efforts. They've supported the pandemic by staffing many of the clinics, the testing sites, and they plan to return to that line of work once our summer season is over, if needed by the city. So they certainly do a lot more than than than just the rescue work. They're an incredibly talented team, and the fire department's extremely proud of all of their efforts. Well, thank you for that. I mean, I will say that one of the silver linings that we've seen with COVID and I've actually seen the evolution over the last six years, and I certainly hear from the residents in our parking impa cted areas, the beaches have gotten a lot more activated. Our water, our parks along the water are just, you know, completely packed with people on the weekends and on holidays and now during COVID, even on beach days. And so I think there is a very important place for our lifeguards and our seasonal lifeguards in public safety. And so, I mean, you. Have the government. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. I really want to make sure that that budget is considered. And, Mr. Modi, I'm looking to you for some guidance. We can talk offline about how we can continue to restore that budget through FY 21. And similarly, the junior guard program. I'm intimately involved with that program. I have a child in the program. I think it runs very smoothly and efficiently right now. And I'm very concerned that I've heard from a lot of parents in my community who are concerned about the change in operation. So I'd like to see that staffing stay as is for the next year. Finally, to our prime time, thank you very much for our beach maintenance crew. Cory Forrester does an amazing job with his team, with the sand replenishment project. And I'm very hopeful that the hydraulic system will yield some environmentally friendly alternatives for the future, because having those trucks go back and forth on the beach every day is very detrimental to public health. So think and I hope that's something that public health department can also help support us with because it's definitely a health crisis that we need to address in terms of environmental impact. So thank you very much and I appreciate the time. Mr. Vice Mayor. Thank you so much. Councilman Price Compliment. Thank you, Vice Mayor. And thank you everyone for the presentations. I will start with the Health Department. Very happy that we started with the Health Department on these presentations. Also, you know, the four years that we've been there, I've been a council member trying to get structural funds for the health department has been a top priority. I know it hasn't been everyone's top priority, but I do agree with the mayor when we look at this pandemic and all the situations that we're dealing with. But this is a top priority department to help ensure the safety and care of our residents. So with that, I love the presentation about how we would tackle some of the equity issues. Obviously, I think everyone's heard my questions that I asked last week about the Hart team. As the person that brought the heart team forward. I do know that the goal of that was to coordinate with the Health Department was to make sure that we were doing proactive outreach to our homeless population, but also that we were able to respond to 911 calls. I also know that we purchased new vehicles for that. A lot of resources were put into that. And I'd like to hear from the department how would the help how would the Health Department take this on? And really, I'd love to hear if there's a model that somewhere in between what the city manager is being proposed and working with what we already have, whether it's, you know, one paramedic with the heart team and somebody from the health department or is there an area in the middle that we can come up with? So with that, Kelly, I'll go ahead and leave it to you to answer. Good evening. Council Member The the current proposed model for the Hart team would be one public health nurse to be able to respond to the medical the medical issues, the public health nurses. Also, we have had one that's been embedded with our with our with our homeless services division. And that that public health nurse has been able to, you know, engage with people at encampments as well as really been able to connect people to levels of service that we have otherwise not had the capacity to connect people to. So we'd have one public health nurse and then one on one mental health, um, one mental health clinician who would join. So each team that would go out would have, we'd have someone that could focus on the physical health and the mental health, as well as partnering with existing outreach workers. So there would be two of those teams, they would be available across the city seven days a week to support the response. And so we would be working with 911 dispatch to determine what the potential is to support through that, as well as people calling at the mercy when they're seeing things. And they would like a response. And this is Tom. I do want to say that we have adjusted a little bit from the original what's in the budget book. We did just say in the beginning it was just going to be public health nurses. As we looked at this further, we really wanted to bring that mental health component to it. And also with the outreach workers, the model is going to be from going about a five day a week coverage under the current model to about a seven day or to seven day a week coverage. So we would have seven day a week with those mental health and the nurse and the outreach workers and actually have a reduction in savings as well. Right. So am I to understand, you said you'd be working with 911 dispatch, so someone calls 911 and it's somebody that is struggling with their mental health that might be homeless or, you know, out in the neighborhood. Would we be able to send just the heart team or would PD have to go as well? In this case, we're focusing this team is focused on our homeless population. So if a call comes in, we you know, this is we're in early negotiation figuring out exactly how the calls come in. So we would we working with the with nine would dispatch to understand what are what the opportunities are for responding to these situations . I know at this time that the her team often arrives and then the then ambulance or paramedics can return or turn back. I don't know if that's a possibility moving forward. It's something that I would need to work on with Chief Espino and the fire department to understand how that could work. Yeah, it's my understanding when we have women. Yeah, go ahead. You have one man. Okay. It was my understanding that our team worked really hard with the community to be able to get just one of the Hart teams to be able to respond to 911 calls. And so really, when I when I think about reduction in cost, it's making sure that we're not sending out a fire truck, hart team or a police car. And so I don't think that our health department, from the work that we've done, can respond to 911 calls. And so I hope that we can get that question very clearly answered. And if they can't respond to 911 calls, can Tom work with the health department and the fire department to try to find a middle area work, something that we can do, whether it's one person from the fire team, along with the with the rest of the staff, I'll come back up. And when I come back up, I'll I'll focus my questions at the fire department. So thank you for that. Thank you. Councilman Supernova. Okay. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Well, I'll move right to the fire department so it doesn't feel left out. But I don't have any questions for Kelly Colletti or for Brant Dennis. But I would. Like to quote both of them in my comments. To the fire department. And first, I think Kelly Colby said we're effective, that it's vital to draw upon grants. And I would ask that the same logic be applied to the fire department and specifically the safer grant that we, you know, dig a little deeper on this. If there are waivers, if there are any exceptions made for COVID 19, that we could take a closer look at the grants or that particular grant. Also, I believe Grant Dennis used the phrase maximized revenue opportunities applied to PRM. And I would also ask that the fire department look at that. If we can look at fee structures, fire inspection fees or whatnot, get a robust system in place of collecting those fees that the department generates. So we take the focus out of. Saving or cutting ourselves into prosperity. And look at revenue generation. The chief talked about core services and that that is a focus now that that we've done that we keep solid core services and not cutting into that. And Councilman Richardson made this statement, but we don't want to go backwards. We don't want to use rescue 12. We don't want to lose the equipment we've had restored. And I would echo that. And also, Chief, I want to ask you a question about the community service. And this is not I don't want your answer in terms of equity, which is how the system works. So when we lost E 17, we noticed that Engine ten was going on. A lot of those calls and Engine ten response area, but engine 17 is response area in 90804, which happens to be the densest zip code in the city. So is it fair to say that that without Engine 17 in place, you're taking Engine ten, which I believe is the busiest or the second busiest engine company in the city away from their service area? Is that is that a fair statement to me? Councilman. Yes, that's a fair statement. All of the units that s urround 17 the area would become busier just for the loss of that engine. Yes. But in particular, I talked about Engine ten. I think Station ten has been on 14th and Peterson in the vice district since the 1930s, I believe, and it has been a very busy station for a long time, at least 50 years. I know of they've been number one and number two busiest in the city. And the concept that we would take that engine company out of that service area and this is something I'll probably bring up under item 14. But I think the irony isn't lost in anyone where we have a robust fire diversity program that we should be very proud of. But to lose core services to the black community or communities of color, that's just an irony I don't want to experience. So I appreciate your time. Great reports all around. I do have one final question for Prime and this probably goes to Steve Scott. On his watch, I was just told that we had funds that went to the municipal bands this year. So you don't have to respond right now. But if we could just look into those that funding and whether because we haven't had concepts of some of that money can can come back. All right. That's all I have. Thank you, Vice

Mayor. Thank you, Councilman Stefano, councilwoman and dance. You miss me or thank you very much for all that great information to everyone. I want to echo to the comments that all of my colleagues have been making, as far as you know. Well, let me start off with Health and Human Services. First of all, I think that it needs to be stated again that our health department really stepped up to the plate and during this raid radically transformed themselves into the operations and capacity in the face of COVID 19. They've been doing an excellent job. And for that, you know, I think, you know, Kelly, you've been you and your team have really been doing a tremendous job. I also wanted to thank your team, you know, because I know that everybody over there has been working really hard on this. Question. I was wondering if there's any way that staff might be able to comment on the impacts of the 2021 proposed budget in the expected. Is expected to have on its city's language access program and whether we can expect services to service levels to change as a result of this New Year's budget. Councilmember. The the language access program has been really tapped through the COVID response. So at the beginning of last year, there was $80,000 aligned for interpretation and interpretation and translation support. We have quickly gone through that through COVID, and it's being sort of filled utilizing additional CARES Act funding and others for this upcoming year. There is a proposed $160,000 for language access response, which is double the double the amount of previous years. And so it will expand capacity and ability to respond as long as the COVID response and others continue. There will be a large demand in our attempt to get messaging out to all of our communities. Wonderful. Than k you. I think that that's very important because Long Beach is rich in diversity and we need to make sure that everyone's informed. So thank you for that, Kelly. In regards to our fire fire department, I also wanted to thank Chief Espinoza for his report. And I just would like to add a follow up. Question in regards to the the junior lifeguards, I know that as Councilmember Price is also concerned about them. I am, too. You know, I think it's a program that really, really helps out our youth and really to some really takes them out of their community and gives them , you know, the expertize to maybe make a choice in in becoming, you know. Maybe life guards in the future or just the experience that they get that makes them be such a better such a better person. So. You know, I was a little concerned about the possibility that that, you know, as proposed budget might be cut. So I you know, I'm I'm just curious to see if, you know, if we have. I guess my thing is that I really want to see that program remain, and I think that it's very important for our youth. And so I hope that we can take a look at it again and really consider our youth that are benefiting from this program. You have one minute, Mrs.. In there. Oh, thank you. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I just want to make sure that also, you know, that when we're dealing with the distribution of the of the budget during these times, that we really focus on equity and see these changes through an equity lens. For the Parks and Recreation. Thank you so much, Director Dennis, that you just came on and already you have this big task. So thank you for that great presentation. And I would just like to add, you know, now that we have COVID happening and you know, there's a lot of budget cuts going on. I wanted to see if if there was going to be still funding to move forward with the Drake Travis Greenbelt project that. Sunday as your time is up. You can keep it like that. Yes. Councilman manga. Thank you. I had an additional question. Someone brought up the life saving measures that were happening on our beaches and the heroic save that our paramedics and our lifeguards did. We appreciate that very much. There's some studies out there related to transporting drowning victims and cardiac patients, and the success rates can be improved with mechanical CPR devices . I know that we have a study coming to look at the efficiencies within our department, but when we come up with any of those potential efficiencies, I think it also important for us to consider the national standards and how they're changing. If mechanical CPR devices are saving more lives, then that's something we might want to consider. And if we cannot afford mechanical CPR devices at this time. Other agencies in Arizona have decided to just not transport when CPR is in process. And so I would just ask that we look at those as a part of our overall picture, because those kind of one time investments are expensive but worthwhile when they save liv es. So thanks. Councilwoman. Yes. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I'll try to finish up the conversation about the party team. I was just informed that I also received a letter from the DLP and Black Lives Matter around supporting keeping our Hart teams in place. And I think it's not so much like is it a firefighter, is it a health department person, but it's that we have somebody else that can respond. And I'm one one calls that's not a police officer. It's not one of the calls that a police officer needs to respond to. And so I just want to make sure that I spoke to that. On that point. I said that I had some questions for, you know, and so I wanted to ask. I know that this moment that we're in right now calls for a lot of structural changes, not only to the city budget because of COVID, but also our police budget. And I looked through some of those changes and I was curious. I know that there's a study that's being proposed around our billing and everything, which I completely support. And I think any studies that we haven't been able to do in the last several years should be a priority to make sure that our fire department is getting up to speed with all the technological advances that we are asking of our other departments, including FIRE and including PD. But I did want to ask, I know in the police department there were several positions that were shifted to civilian positions, and I'm not an expert on this. So I'm just curious, outside of the reduction of the 10% reduction for our lifeguards that was mentioned, are there other areas that I know this budget's moved quickly, but are there other areas that you can tell us you might be looking into to identify some other cuts? Yes. There are other areas that we have looked at civilian housing and unfortunately, many of the positions that we have that are not on the floor, as it were, say, like our fleet captain, that's that's a fleet sworn captain that also has all of the specifications for our apparatus. He was a former fire engineer. A lot of the different aspects that we would require of that position. And so we will continue to look at that. As I said, we will do a deep dive on the fire department in general and see if we can come up with some better efficiencies. Okay. Well, I definitely support the diversity work. I know that that's something that you've heard deeply about and this council has led on a lot. Again, just because I am now getting community letters around this hard time, I really hope that maybe in the memo that comes from this meeting that we can explore what that might look like, whether instead of housing and one department that having it as a partnership with the two. And so if that was it for your department. If I can just follow up quickly just to point the the recent pandemic highlighted the effect, the effect of having sworn personnel in different positions, in administrative positions at certain points. During the beginning of this in March, we had upwards of 60 personnel be yond what we had on the floor, staffing our engines and trucks and paramedic rescues , the ability to go from an administrative position and jump right over into a sworn position backfilling that is huge for us as far as surge capacity. And as you know, we're getting into fire season. We just had a strike team out with 22 personnel. Fortunately, they're all back safely, but they were back for potentially three or 4 hours before we were surveyed. Again, we have not gone back out, but I do believe we're going to have a very busy season. And so it does help us provide the best coverage possible. I understand. Thank you for that. Thank you. And you have one minute. One minute. Okay. One minute, Mrs. Barrett. Okay. Thank you. Parks Rec and Marine. Welcome to the team. I think it's great. I guess my my main point on this is recognizing that both this department and the Health Department lead on efforts with our youth and our senior department. And so this is more of a comment for for Mr. Modica. I know that we continue to talk about how we have these things work together, and I'm wondering if there's efficiencies and ways to make sure that we're fully supporting both of those populations by working with these departments collaboratively. I'm not sure which deputy city manager is in charge of both of these departments, but I think it would be great if it was the same person so that we have coordination there. I would love to hear about the opportunity of moving our. Park Rangers back to the park stalking Marine team. And so I would love to talk about that offline and also hopefully see some comments on that in the memo that will come forward. So with that, I think you guys are really play. Thank you very much. Country mums and dads. Thank you. I just wanted to go back to that question in regards to our Jake Chavis Green Belt project that we're working on. You know, just wanted to see how the budget might be affected on that, if at all. And that's probably for director Dennis. Yeah. Council member. That's a good question. So I know we're going to be when we welcome Meredith back to our team, putting in high gear for grant pursuits. I think there's lots of opportunities realizing what the vision is to expand Derek Chavez to become a more valuable community asset. I think that's our eye on the prize, but our hard work will be seeking out, you know, through research and then making a compelling case to bring grant funding. And also, you know, we're working to have a more robust relationship with partners of Parks. And I think they can be a real key player in helping attract funding to help accomplish that project. Thank you. Thank you. And and also, you know, I just want to also share my thoughts on, you know, the heart, you know, program that we have through fire. I know that when I first learned about it a year ago that I was super excited to have this program helping our

hope that we can find something in between what is being proposed right now and what what is currently in effect right now. So thank you very much. I think that's a very. Very important program. Thank you. You've seen this so many, ranga. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I really didn't get to finish last time in my speech. I didn't get to address Parks Recreation. But just to finish it with fire, the $200,000 has been set aside for a comprehensive study of the fire services. Has there been a plan yet in terms of what that study is going to conduct in regards to what aspects of revenue generation or possibilities we're going to look for in that study? Yes, Councilman. To date, I don't believe there has been any communications with city management as far as the actual actual that are going to be coming out in conversations have been told that we are going to put together a team that will identify those things to be brought up in the report, and then it will go out to an RFP and will have an agency come and take a look at the fire department. And. Some of your and I can speak to that a little bit as well. So we have a history of doing these types of reviews from time to time. So we would put together an internal study team and honestly we'd be looking at everything. So this would be looking at cost savings, would be looking at future cuts that we would have to make. As the chief mentioned, we have a $1.9 million structural cut in the budget that needs to be identified. And then we still have reductions coming up, about $75 million over the next three years that we need to identify. And so we'd be looking at cost cutting, we'd be looking at revenue generation, we're looking at efficiencies. We could be looking at Tidelands as well, would be a pretty comprehensive review and that would form the basis of the recommendations back to the Council. When can we expect to see that contract come? The City Council? So it's in the budget. So if you approved the budget, we would move forward. We can start a little bit in advance so that we can get going and then we would do the RFP. And if it's, you know, at the 200,000 level that normally comes to the council, unless there are we get three bids and then we would get started in this fiscal year. Okay. I'm looking forward to that. In Parks and Recreation. First of all, I did have a meeting today with Mr. Geithner, so we're very productive. Thank you. And welcome to Long Beach. You can do some great things here with very impressed with some of the ideas you have, especially as they relate to youth. In the budget that we have here. I see that we have one time for the SAFE program. I'd like to see eventually that there's a program that I would like to see institutionalized and provided with structural funding that that program going. I think it's proven its mettle and I think it deserves some structural funding to keep it going year in and year out. And that is my my comment on that. Also on page 57 of the budget bo ok, there are some comments here made about I'm sorry, not 57, 59 where we have an increase but due to revenue. Q For parking, increase budgetary revenues for new sports by increasing fees and then an increase in budgetary revenues or the entry into account for outlays. But there are parentheses as being identified as being cuts. So I'm not understanding. Can you explain that? Yes. The way that we show those in the budget book is if it is a negative, it actually helps the the issue. So by raising revenue, you actually reduce your deficit. So think of that as a deficit reduction measure which cuts into the $30 million deficit. That's why it's a negative. Okay. Thank you for the clarification. That's a. Thank you. Thank you very much. Coming from you in a courtroom on mango place. Thank you. I just wanted to say two things. The first one is that under no circumstances will I or the residents that I've spoken with be supportive of allowing armed park rangers to report through a command structure that does not undergo a eight 32.1 training. There is no reason why we should get ourselves into the issues of the eighties and nineties, where we had armed park rangers firing at fleeing vehicles and other escalation of forces. Escalation of use of force that were completely inappropriate, including but not limited to a 16 year old who was held at gunpoint on the roof of his car for eating ice cream at Hartwell Park. Those issues happened when there was not proper training in place and proper supervision from those who are trained in the same command structure. So if this city would like to consider transferring the Parks and Rec rangers out of police, I would also highly recommend them not being PC 32 certified and carrying weapons. So if you carry a lethal weapon, I strongly feel as the only person on this council who's probably gone through the PC 32 training, Susie may have some of it, but I think I'm the only one. That escalation of force needs to be supervised by a person who's gone through escalation of force training. We've had too many incidents in the past that were completely inappropriate that I think that we could recall before we get into that. So that would be my first statement. That was one of the main initiatives that I worked really hard with a lot of our community members, people. The park rangers are deployed at Eldorado Park. They often serve other parks, all in the fifth District. And the escalation of force issues were always brought to my attention, and they were completely inappropriate. So we have not had nearly the number of issues since then. Before they reported to the police department, we would have reports that the park ranger vehicles were driving around in Los Alamitos and other crazy things that would come in as complaints to my office. And all of that has been handled very professionally by the police department. So I just can't state enough my complete frustration with the potential. Second, Chief Espino, I'm interested because I actually don't know how our fire department works in this range, but when we do plan on wildfires, are we getting reimbursed back on overtime by our federal FEMA funding? And if so, does that mean that the more often we deploy, the more revenue we bring in? But my guess would be that it would be budget neutral. Would you be able to explain that to me. David? Please. I can't hear. Chief Espino Can anyone else? David Honey, who's coming up? Mike Okay. I heard something. I just wasn't sure if it was an answer. R Thank you. Good evening, Councilwoman Mongeau Thanks for the question. So when we're deployed on a wildland event, the, the positions are covered, the positions that are out that we're reimbursed by the state for the backfill for them. Through state FEMA. Correct. But does that put us on any kind of double overtime or do they reimburse at overtime or do they only reimburse the level of deployment of the individual who's being called in? Is it net neutral? I guess my question and this isn't we know, is it? That's correct. This is David Huntington, manager of administration. So, yeah, so we're reimbursed we were reimbursed for each position that that is out on the deployment. We also recover an administrative fee of about 10% administrative overhead. So it's it's neutral. But for the the administrative costs, we get back. Where it actually is. You have one minute, council. One minute. Thank you. Bye. From there, I hope not to use the whole thing. So we are reimbursed at operation side at net neutral. But theoretically, the more deployments we go on, the greater percentage of our administrative costs are covered by the state funds. That's correct. Each each deployment results in 10% administrative overhead, recovering those. Costs. So do we. How many fires do we budget to go out on per year? Each year we only budgeted a very small amount of overtime. We we budget $175,000 just kind of as a placeholder. And then when we we usually have well over $1,000,000 in reimbursement. But not one of the reasons why the fire budget always has a surplus at the end, would it be more appropriate during this exercise to consider budgeting that at actuals? I think that's actually something that. It has been brought to my attention before and I think we've discussed is there a reason it has not been executed? Well, we budget the 175,000 conservatively because we could have a year where there is a very low number of deployments. And in that case, if we had $1,000,000 and called back over time budget, we wouldn't, you know, we'd be well over budgeted. So we budget that very conservatively at the beginning of each fiscal year. So extremely able to tell. Me what your time is up to you can keep. I hope that we can find out what the five year average of deployment is it potentially budget at that level? Thank you. Thank you, Congresswoman Austin. Your vice mayor. I want to just thank all of the department heads for our great presentation and my colleagues fo

professionals as part of the outreach component. Heart has been discussed over the last couple of years. I know, and I think our firefighters have done a great job. I'm curious to know how those firefighters chief are going to be utilized because there's a there's a lot of good training these individuals have and there's a lot of knowledge that they have . You know, will they continue to be engaged and involved in in our homeless services outreach in their their roles as paramedics, number one? I guess it's a question for the chief. Yes. Thank you, Councilman. So those four paramedics will be reassigned back to vacancies on current rescues. They will still be used to deliver mental health awareness training to the department and also to the recruits that we have going through the academy as their role with the homeless. We're still working through that. As stated, we're going to work with Health and Human Services on a go forward. But right now there is nothing concrete as far as their continued assistance with homelessness in particular. Well, I would just say I would hope so. And it's encouraging that they're going to be utilized to help train others and obviously share the knowledge and experience that they have with other firefighters. But I would like to see that extended to other city staff as well, because I think there's an opportunity here to go beyond the scope that we're looking at. You know, we have we have homeless in our libraries. We have homeless in our and our parks. We have, you know, those experiencing homelessn ess along the railroad tracks and other areas across the city. And we have city employees who are engaging or could engage if comes 121 minutes. So I won't need it. They had the proper training, and so that's just my statement on that. Obviously, this is a tough budget and we have to look at creative ways to continue to provide the great services that we do as a city . So thank you. Those are my comments. Thank you very much. Council awesome council person. Thank you, Councilmember Vice Mayor. I really appreciate it. I am cued up one more time because I. You know, I'm kind of in budget for AIDS and and then I'm looking at some of the reconciliation work. And just I wanted to reiterate one more time. It was brought to my attention that this was something that came out of the reconciliation process as well. And so I wanted to say one more time that there's other models, I think it might be called if needs or something like that, that we might need to start from the ground up to build what this response team is, and not only for our homeless, but for people that are struggling with mental health. And so I hope that in the report that comes back from this that we would be able to look and see exactly how many stock are we talking total that would be doing mental health outreach, whether that's quality of life, the fire department or our health department, and that there's real coordination. I understand that we used to have better coordination between our quality of life officers and our fire department and our health team. And that's really going to be where we save the most resources and money and are able to train more people. And so I wanted to mention that I also wanted to mention the rental housing division that was brought up by the people's budget. I know that it's a lot of our resources that have been asked for, but it's something that I wholeheartedly support. I also wanted to mention the language access proposal by the mayor to make that structural. We've been having that conversation for a very long time. I think one of the important parts of this structurally funding it is also looking at when we get grants and different departments, making sure that we have a point person that's able to identify what percentage of those grants might be able to be used for language access because somebody said it before me. But we definitely have had a big surge in the need for language access in the middle of this COVID moment. And so wanted to make sure that I brought those up before we went to public comment. So oh, in the last, the last thing, that's where I could have Councilmember Mongeau mentioned the officers in the parks. You guys probably guessed, but I'm not really a fan of guns, so I definitely would love to understand what it would take to be able to have park rangers without guns. Councilmember Price And I've been working really hard on trying to secure Bixby Park, and I know that we tend to disagree on maybe what that looks like, but we ca me to agreement on a park ranger. I did not know at the time that park rangers were housed in our police department. I thought they were housed in our parks department. So I am looking for some kind of understanding about what changes can happen to make sure that we have some oversight and somebody that's in our parks consistently. I'm almost done. So if you're about, say, have one more minute, you. Got. And one example today is that I drove by Bixby Park and I saw two of our police SUVs driving through the grass on parcel three where people were laying out and picnicking and throwing Frisbees. And it just is a type of presence that doesn't make me comfortable as a as a white woman. And I think in this moment, it doesn't make people of color or black communities comfortable either. And when we're having these budget conversations, we have to take real life examples about what makes what makes people uncomfortable and how can we make it better. And I think of park ranger is what we need. I would prefer to be a park ranger that's in our Parks Department. So that is all I have to say. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you very much, Councilwoman Price. Mr. Vice Mayor. So. I do support park rangers in the park as well. I do not have any issue with them being armed. To me, it's more how they're dressed, not necessarily the safety tools that they have available, assuming that they've received proper training. And as Councilman Mungo stated, that they're working in a department that specializes in training and use of force and so that they're trained properly. But I think whatever we can do to ensure safety in the park and having a presence by someone who can actually assess a threat and have the means to protect themselves and others if necessary, is important. But I think we both do agree that park rangers are necessary in Bixby Park and any sort of ongoing presence in Bixby Park I think would be welcomed, armed or otherwise. But I actually really like the program that's taking place right now. I was at the park with my family last week, the week before, and soon after the commander implemented our our current model. And I thought it was really pleasant. So I didn't have the same experience that Councilwoman Pierce did, not to negate her experience. I just I didn't have the same experience. But anyway, what I wanted to ask about was the health department. There are a couple of programs that I have brought to council as agenda items that appear to have maybe fallen off of the radar because of COVID and other issues. So I was hoping that. Ms. Collopy, could you provide us an update on the real time bed app that we that you and I have met about and had a presentation at Council on and also the Homeless Work Program I know that started in the Health Department. I'm not sure where it landed, but those are two programs that I think really speak to the homelessness and equity issues and do service the entire city, which of course we want every city department to d

o. So if you could speak to those, I'd really appreciate it. Yes. Councilmember So the Homeless Bud app was aligned with the Sturt program, which is the start up and residence program that was intended to begin, I believe, in January and moving forward and I can find out where that progress is at this time. So we did select a vendor to start to build out that app as part of the start up and residence program. The intent was to have that done, I believe, in June, but with COVID and other things have been delayed and I will follow up and get that back to you. In terms of the work program, that program has started. It's working with workforce development. And so while it's it doesn't currently have an opportunity where people are being, you know, meeting at a certain location and going out in teams. I believe that there are connections to individual trainings and other work opportunities. So that is currently being run through the workforce services. Okay. Got it. Are we intending to use any of the funding for the homeless initiatives, the structural funding that we're getting to support any of these creative solutions that have been suggested through Council for Pilot Programs? At this time, none of the structural funding is outlined is focused on that. So the structural funding focuses more on services. All the remaining funding that we have is one time either the purchase of buildings and infrastructure or running different programs such as the Safe Parking Program, that's that's already been implemented. So we can look at funds to identify, to determine if there are some available to at least build off of the kick off point for the for the better. Okay. So for the better app, I must have been mistaken. But I thought we were. We met. I believe you and Mr. Murdoch and I met in my field office, and I thought that there was funding there for the pilot, the six month pilot. Right. In that case. Yeah. And that's going on right now. So through the Sturt program, that is the funding for the creation and the pilot. And then the question became, what would be the ability to extend that? So I will get back and follow up on that with the progress through the start up in residence program to determine where that currently exists and the ability to move it forward. Are there any grant funds or any CARES ACT funding that could be utilized to pursue creative homeless strategies? For. Right now, the CARES Act funding is when millions of dollars of that is going to fund our response to COVID in the congregate shelters and all those. The other million is if we're currently looking at the utilization of that, to maybe support a project HOMEKEY. So permanent housing. So that would be the CARES Act funding piece around homelessness. I think that there are other opportunities to look at some alternate pieces, but most of the things that are ongoing funding, the structural funding are very much focused specifically on on programs such as outreach prevention, rapid r ehousing, transitional housing, connection to permanent supportive housing. But we can certainly dig in and look and look at those resources right now. That would be great. Price for women. And I'm done. Thank you. Okay, fine. Thank you. With that said, I sense that since we're talking about park rangers, I'd like to know how many do we have and where are they? Station. Could anyone answer that question? About the park rangers. I we have and we're at the station. We have three park rangers. They are stationed in Hartwell Park and in Eldorado Park. Okay, Tom. So since that said, you know, we're talking about equity. I would really like a discussion off time with Tom and read about going to this with that. Thank you guys very much. And now we're going to we want to button public comment. Our first speaker is Adrina Redman. Your time starts now. Somehow I knew that. I was going to be the first. One. I don't know how that is going to happen. And then we thank you all for giving me this time. Long Beach thrives in part because of this black residents. And yet more and more black residents are finding Long Beach inhospitable. It costs too much to live here. Communities are harassed, abuse, overpoliced and killed by HLB. PD services aren't easily known or accessible. For example, the Health and Human Services has a program targeting black infant health. But my understanding is that it has little recognition in the community as it is one of many programs that need greater funding for staff and programing. The Black Infant Health Program deserves at least the funding for promotion similar to, if not greater than that allocated to LAPD for their public promotions. With all evidence from city funded studies like the 2019 equity growth profile is shamefully to COVID 19. And more so, the street uprisings related to the murder of George Floyd. To move the mayor and council to acknowledge that racism is a public health crisis. With the call to defund lbe PD. My organization, Black Lives Matters, Long Beach and others, I was shocked to learn that our health department is primarily a grant supported agency. Shameful that the city, which touts its diversity and is fortunate enough to have a Health and Human Services Department, is not providing the department with the permanent funding it needs. There is something deeply, deeply wrong with this picture. Now, our city elected leaders as city mayors. Thank you. Our next speaker is Caitlin Bellis. Your time starts now. Good evening. My name is Caitlin Bellis and I'm a resident of District two and a volunteer with Sanctuary Long Beach. I'm an immigration attorney with UCI Immigrant Rights Clinic, and I have been doing the paint removal defense in Southern California for five years. I urge you to defund LBP and instead adopt the people's budget. I urge you to invest in care for our community. And I especially urge you to make the Long Beach Trust Fund a part of the city budget for as long as it exists, and to fund it t his year at $400,000. The Justice Center so far helped 21 Long Beach families, but I know there are many more who have not gotten the help they need and have been torn apart. The worst part of my job has always been choosing clients. There are so many more people in Adelanto than I and the other service providers can help, and I know that having a lawyer often makes the difference between winning and losing. Between exile and family. And sometimes between life and death. I'm haunted by the hundreds of people I had to say no to. I've seen people with winnable cases lose because they could not gather evidence to prove their cases or present the necessary legal arguments. I've seen others give up their cases out of despair. Both are being in immigration, jail and facing the system alone, especially now. Detention can be a death sentence. Social distancing is not possible in Adelanto. Even before the pandemic, we heard many reports of the medical staff there telling people with serious medical and medical conditions just to drink more water. Rather than providing proper care. Now for an even more horrifying. Report and at the same time, the pandemic has made detention deadly. It has made it even harder for our community to pay for private attorneys. Thank you. Our next speaker is Jodi. And during your time starts now. Hello, counsel. My name is Jordan. I'm a Long Beach renter and resident. I wanted to say that Councilmember Richardson's idea of a centralized housing department is great, but I'm going to address the elephant in the room that the budget you're talking about now. The three departments are critical to the city, but not very important for the budget. And the reason I say that is that the shadow of LAPD's budget is blocking out all three departments I just heard from that are doing critical stuff. LAPD is barely getting a cut this year. They're still getting most of the general fund and other departments are struggling to provide essential services. So I've heard several councilmembers, including councilors Miguel Price and Super talk about various technocratic fixes, minor tweaks to try to keep thing services going. Well, I've got really great news for everyone. There is a $240 Million BPD budget that needs to be cut as a grant from BLM said. That's been a clear community ask. You're going to talk about that and reconciliation. But honestly, you're just rearranging deck chairs on the Titanic if you don't cut. Considering the fact that you have a $30 million budget shortfall, that would only require a 12% cut to his budget to fill. So, for example, you know, Councilmember Pearce said, you know, we need more money for our teams. That has to come out of Lupita's budget. So let me remind you, either you cut LAPD or you just let the city flounder and become more livable for working class people. My time. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Katie Traversal. Your time starts now. Good evening. This is Katie Silver. So on behalf of the

Very Institute of Justice. On behalf of the Institute, I urge the City of Long Beach to allocate funding at the level of 400,000 for the Long Beach Justice Fund and to ensure that it is a permanent reoccurring part of the budget. We have to applaud the city of Long Beach for leadership in providing legal defense to immigrants facing deportation through a model where everyone facing deportation is entitled to legal representation through a universal representation model. This means. Regardless of income, race. National origin or history with the criminal justice system. Long Beach is the first and only city in Los Angeles County that provides legal defense to immigrants through this model. We are proud that Long Beach is one of 18 jurisdictions, a safe. Network nationwide. During the first year of the fund. It enabled the representation of 21 Long Beach community members. But this is to the entire family, into the community. For example, those helped by the fund so far are deeply entrenched members of the community. They live in the United States, on average for 14 years. Over a third of the clients helped by the fund are parents to 21 children under the age of 18. Over a third of the clients are the breadwinners for the family. This means they're responsible for at least half of their family's income. Your investment in the fund will keep these families together and so people can continue to work and contribute to the economy and stabilize Long Beach during this uncertain time. Finally, the public overwhelmingly support. Thank you. Our next speaker is Kim Tee. Your time starts now. Good evening, council members. My condolences to Mayor Garcia on the tragic loss of both of his parents. I am truly sorry for your loss. A concerned District two resident for years has received over 45% of the city's budget funding, leaving less than 5% of the city's health department. The mayor and the city council have admitted that racism is a public health crisis, yet funding has been severely low for the health department. According to the Center for Disease Control. Black women are 3 to 4 times more likely to die from pregnancy related cause related causes. White women are black. Infant mortality program in Long Beach is severely underfunded and have no marketing budget, unlike the million dollar spent by the police and their PR. So even in our own city, black women are not aware of these services and are severely harmed. In local hospitals, they die at an extremely high rate. 2003 to 28, an average of ten babies died annually. This is inexcusable and a direct link to systemic and institutional racism experienced by black women. So therefore, city council members, I encourage you to double the budget allocation for the Health Department by defunding the police and reinvesting LBP funds into our health department. Thank you. Our next speaker is Miles Paisley. Your time starts now. Hello. This is Myles Hensley. I'm calling to call on city council to defund APD. The proposed defunding of 1.7% for fiscal year 2021 is despicable. It is not enough. LAPD currently brutalizes and kills black and black and other community members in Long Beach, which is unacceptable. The proposed $3.2 million budget for racial equity and reconciliation reconciliation initiatives. That's only 1% of the police budget, which really shows how much stock you've put in to addressing the systemic inequality and brutalization of the black community as an example of what we can do. Instead, with the police budget, a 25% cut in the police budget would fund 800 new units of affordable housing per year by leveraging state, federal and private dollars. Long Beach needs 15,300 units of affordable housing over the next decade, according to the Regional Housing Needs Assessment. Furthermore, a 10% cut in the police budget reallocated to the Health Department would fund 300 public health nurses, housing specialists and outreach workers. A measly $400,000 taken from the police would also help to fund the Long Beach Trust Fund, which would represent at least 80% of our neighbors facing deportation and family separation, which is just a drop in the bucket. And less than a 1% cut in our police budget would fully fund the city's language access policy to ensure that all residents can access vital city documents, services and public meetings in Spanish. My and currently these people cannot participate in the democratic process and they are being erased from the democratic discourse. Just a 2% clip. Thank you. Our next speaker is Tanya Jimenez. Your time starts now. Well, now he's going to be a tough act to follow. I had prepared other comments, but after reading a piece published by fourth titled Why from the Police, I was inspired to go. As the piece reads, the police are paid for by the people. In theory, they work for the people. With almost half of the general fund paid for by people's taxes and fines, going to DPD with money flowing upwards and then back and forth between those in power. It is helpful to understand the relationship between the public and the police as transactional. The question of why some the police behooves is to consider what is produced by funding the police. What do the people get in return? In light of today's presentations by the Health and Parks Departments, I wanted to pose the question why from the police department to the point of OVERBLOW over the Health and Parks Department? I'd like to see afterschool programing and our parks expanded to 7 p.m.. Most juvenile crime occurs weekdays after school between three and 7 p.m.. I'd also like to see the BFA program receive structural funding. It should not be reliant on one time funding. That is not guaranteed. I'd also like to see all youth targeted parks programing to cater to youth up to age 18. Current afterschool programing is marketed as being for youth ages 5 to 14 only. I'd also like to see free non congregate housing with wraparound wraparound support services for al

I individuals experiencing homelessness, inner city housing with the human rights efforts like the year round shelter and Project Roomkey do not go far enough. Ah, you deserve better. Are individuals experiencing homelessness deserve better? And like I said last week, you all need to do better. Define BPD and reinvest in black and brown communities. Thank you. Yeah. Our next speaker is Tess Parkhouse. Your time starts now. Hello. My name is Cath Parkhouse and I am the president of the Long Beach Lifeguard Association. I'm here today to express our concern over the proposed elimination of the junior lifeguard coordinator and 10% of our ocean lifeguards. A clear safety risk that would result from these cuts. But what the council may not know is how these cuts would affect the progress we've made in increasing the diversity of our ranks. We've been striving to establish a workforce that reflects the Long Beach community by increasing recruitment and accessibility. We identified two main obstacles to the program passing the swim, tryout and transportation to the beach. As always, we created a tryout prep class at Rio and Jordan and developed a partnership with Long Beach Unified to provide free access to both the prep class and the program, as well as transportation to the beach. This program has always been a career pathway for public safety, jobs and lifeguard to fire employees. And now it is a pathway that is highly accessible to underrepresented communities. I want to make it clear that there's no way this program can run safely and effectively without the Marine Safety Officer position. Our non-career lifeguards are a first line of defense against drownings and other emergencies, and they actively engage with our community to warn them of potential dangers and prevent tragedy. Fortunately, unfortunately, the lifeguards that will be impacted by these cuts, our most recent hires who came through that exact career pathway and where the progress that we have made in diversity is most notable in 2020, over half our classes for our junior lifeguards. I urge you to reevaluate these cuts and allow our lifeguards to continue to serve their community. Thank you. Our next speaker is Don McCain's. Your time starts now. Dawn. Hello? Yes, we can hear you. Hi. Okay. Hey. So, um, where, um, some of this additional funding comes from in order to ties are basically housing and jobs and food like a couple of folks have mentioned. Where can these these resources come from? And when we talk about reimagining public financing and divestment from police and reinvestment in community, we're talking about things like the work that police do that does not actually belong to them. I'm really excited, actually. I'm shocked to hear that park rangers are happening under the police department. I would think, too, that they would be under park and that is crazy. Clearly, the police departments under the police department understands what we're saying when we're saying to dives

t because they move the crossing guards into public works. Why are crossing guards even under the police? Right. The quality of life work. If we just got rid of five of those quality of life, folks gave them to the health department, who are the ones just now, as Kelly mentioned, struggling, you know, not struggling, but preparing to figure out how to manage that at work. Even if you got rid of five, that saved nearly $1,000,000, you can hire 5 to 10 more for the same cost and be able to maximize tending to the needs in the community. You can cut six officers from a narcotic field teams that are just focusing on kids and street drug sales. If we invested better in the programs and services to support their development and learning and other activities, then you might not even need that work. I give that work to the community. That was. Thank you. Our next speaker is

Maniac be. Your time starts. Right. Good evening. This is Maniac Bay, and I'm calling on the City Council. And to defund the police department by at least 25%, because we need to reinvest those funds in community based organizations. We need to reinvest those funds and the health and well-being of the black community and also educational needs of the black community that have been already impacted by racism, the white supremacy, and now COVID. And since racism was declared a public health emergency, we need to understand what racism is, systematic and organized, and it affects black people socially, economically, educationally and otherwise. And this budget does not reflect a real dedication of the city council, the mayor or the city manager, to really address these issues that you claim are so emergency based that you made those declarations. So the community made their voice. They won't be funding. The word defund just means reallocate those funds. You know what they mean? So listen to the community and do what your been elected to do is serve the needs of the community, and the black community is the one with the most need. And this budget does not reflect that. Thank you. Our next speaker is Max Norse. Your time starts now. Although I called to insist that you defund the IBP and adopt the people's budget. We need deep cuts. Another 100 million. At least we can use this money for fire, health and Human Services, Parks and Rec, the Housing Rental Division, Long Beach. Just this one. We don't need to beg for scraps. If we scrap the cops. I was on several of the city's so-called reconciliation calls, and I heard loud and clear from the community that we need to defund LGBT. I was so lucky to get this spot to speak and was also given a spot to speak on item 14. And I'd like to cede my spot on item 14 to community member committee. We need to send our black boys. Does not hang up on them. Thank you. Give us one moment while we transition to the Spanish language portion of public comment. Our next speaker is Betty Ruiz. Your time starts now. Right? Yes. Why not? Why? We're not. Moment of

profound. We're not. Right now. I L.A.. When I started. I mean, I'm blessed by degrees Miembro de la Guardia. And its own miembros de la policia on the verge of being granted the Long Beach. Hello. Good evening. My name is Mary Cruz and I'm a member of the Coalition for the Human about the very for the immigrants of Long Beach. You'll get all of that policy and you can discuss one with the needle or ice or por la policia. And I want to fight for the ones that are detained by ice or by the police. But that's on top of more enforcement and lost interest in attention. Because they are treated very unjustly in the detention centers. That I must be most Quattro means. But I'll point out that this year people may not both me honest but Alexis a medium. We request a 4000 for the for that center in at least 2 million for the access to the language. Then wish access. And of discuss both me and bring on the policy of a long beach. Establish parental separate then at my special man and but officially what I'm in Bible. In the fiscal year 2021. The police is getting ready to have a bigger staff and sworn police officers. Oh, come on. And service your civil mask. And of the member of Salute Biblioteca Barca. This are all your economical. And in civil service. We would like to have more and service, more libraries, more parks, a more for the community. My son Ben also became this born boss. And not only that or Cooper. Because they are not giving enough resources to the UN, they're not giving enough funds to the resources that the community needs. Por favor, keep an eye on both her policy on gun laws and the communities that look local them. We need to be there. Please take away some of the funds from the LAPD and give them to the community for whatever the community is asking for. If want to spiral departamento de salud Barca either stole all your economical grass you. And I funds for the Health Department, for the Parks and Recreation Centers. Thank you. Our next speaker is Elizabeth Gonzalez. And that's us into what, Elizabeth Gonzalez. When I started this May number 77 is going to be that alone. Good evening. My name is Elizabeth Gonzalez. I'm a resident of the city of Long Beach. But I just knew that getting up in that place all along. And thanks for this opportunity. I want to opine in regard to the funds for the city of Long Beach. Consider Angola, Mississippi, Alabama to hamper Mississippi imposing testimony. Considering the needs of our people in these times of uncertainty. You have the legal system over the bottle. Call it the familiar. Thing and the dangers that we are going through because of COVID 19. Get most of Elliot's organs. Quadro Santos needed donor is the handle. This was these. Yeah, they loaned this. We want to have the. $400,000 funded for the center of justice. You know. Scarcity or not or gender bias was the idea that most of the money that. This would be about 80 cases of help for our community. In the of reporter Seong. And the oth er part of. And if this is a protection which equals the same as the separation of the families. DACA, the Commonwealth. Yes. Cuomo. If Cuomo will know what that they are when they. This would be like a drop of water into a bucket. Cinco de la policia. In comparison to the funds that the LAPD is receiving. Napoleonic wars are not as lovely as anchors in France and less persona. We cannot ignore the risks that the people are facing. For the GOP parochial, it's been quite resonant of male donors and their position on this. That's why I'm here expressing my opinions of the $400,000 can be funded to the department. Before that they made a deal that the. A lack of money that the only way. They can have fair help for the community of Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Griselda Soto. Your time starts. Oh, like you said, I mean. I don't think it is fair to say they last year are the longest. I see your point as one of them this year. Hello. My name is Chris and I'm here. I'm also from the city of Long Beach and I'm here supporting the justice fund. If I'm going to say I was on the squadron. What is it necessary to separate a man into? I'm also fighting for the 400,000 and to make sure that the service is a permanent one. This unfortunate element that one lawmaker in immigration, not the American media information I said that is sort of the of music get out up on here. Unfortunately what my when my son ended up in immigration there was no one to give me information about those funds, not even the LAPD. You look up at Barcelona, Leicester, they must have ever done that with the lack of passion. There must have been a very effective system at those Wonder Games within a year that Nokia totally passed out. The familiar. Pau Gasol. Yeah. They all come off in a severe oblivion and it's a critical moment the emotions the more important they they're not for there I you that. And me going through the concern the frustration of not being able to do anything. I don't want any other families to go through that. A feeling unable to do anything. We're unable to help. You know, get them in and say, look, these are companies that are policies and getting them as in-a-row, for example, ozone levels and the lead to single bill as opposed to the policy as if within their DNA, just the levels of both of their DNA but are into perennial products and all of that are a bonus for their artistic revival. And I want this to be taken seriously. If we take some of the funds from the LAPD, we could invest that into eight, 800 living spaces and we could invest that into the city, taking some of the funds, whether they're from the state, city or any other funds. No longer necessary to get into the busses. Aviva and I succeeded that until approximated that I say able to understand their necessity though they may be in the communal somewhat garment, the colonial corporation employs madura, but I won't know. According to a study, there's a need in long before 15, 300 affordable housing spaces. Yeah, according to a study. Grassley has put out a memo, an opportunity, others that are home to some of the farmers but as borrowing much of the ACA. And thank you very much for allowing me to express a bit. We would like to express a lot more, but thank you very much. Thank you. The next speaker is for Lynda Harrow. Your time starts now. Travelers are also coming to our. When I started in August. Linda Good evening. My name is Linda. But then it's called the street corner. So I belong to the street, one or two. There's money there that. I'm here to fight for the community. The mandamus order control is post internal departmental policy. We are demanding a 10% cut in the LAPD or. Balancing the governmental. Department to. Restore the National Departamento de Salud. Two out of allocate to the Health Department. Financiera. That doesn't go to matters of Salud Publica. And we like to have the 300 nurses for the public health. Especially if it doesn't look good. You're not going to need a. Specialist in housing and people to help out the community. In the community. And the resources that are available for the community. The mandate was interpreted as its own adequate. We are asking for interpreters and proper translation. And but let us continue. In all of the council meetings. And information, because it gives the socialists. And the information that is given out in social and social media. Thank you for your time. Thank you for your time. Thank you. Our next speaker is Jamil Ochoa. Your time starts now. You got two sentences into the choice in Minnesota. Hi. Before I saw my very own comment, I would like to address that. It is unfortunate to see that my community members comments were butchered and did not pick what they were asking for. I just want to clarify that there are asking for support of the justice fund and they are asking for the defunding of police and of course, adequate interpretation and translation, because clearly community members cannot even adequately provide their testimony because it is not being told the way their words are trying to depict what they need. Now, let's start with my own comments. Good evening, everybody. My name is Jamila, a resident of District two and a community organizer with the Long Beach Immigrants Rights Coalition. I'm here today to advocate for the people's budget of Long Beach.

We're here to urge you to really divest from police and instead fund programs that are positively impact communities. We have done our part by protesting, coming to city hall, calling our district leaders even when our meetings are inaccessible to non-English speakers. Now it is time for you to do your part and meet the needs of our community. The proposed 3.2 million and the racial equity and reconciliation initiatives only two 1% of the police budget. Racial equity must start with divesting from racist police systems. The mayor has proposed to make both language active a program and just this one structural. Can we count on the city council to allocate 400,000 for the justice fund to ensure that immigrant families have the opportunity to remain together? Can we come to the City Council to allocate 2,000,345 staff? Thank you. Our next speaker is Magnolia Rodriguez. Your time starts now. Finally, Rodriguez, a typical Minnesota. When the magic number is magnolia robbery. Yes, people can. Good evening. It is all. Were let. Okay. But then it's called history to see if they agree. My name is Magnolia Rodrigues. I belong to the District seven. Yeah. Keep it up as you can from those. Sophie Countess. Alexia So I'll leave your math guess on the unit that all this based upon by his idea. Okay the whole interpretation and beyond. I'm here to ask for funds for the access to language. That would be $2 million. This money would help to the a access of language and for the interpretation. If they keep them in this part of government, but especially La Policia, the Long Beach. White Album. Well. Son had to make a comment about the fund for the Long Beach Police Department. They continue to see the end of. Let me turn quarantine quattroporte into their phone book in Iraq. The last single here. If you don't see any post-quarantine yoga mats, then Nordstrom contribution. Which is 44% year, which is equal to $240 million. Yes. In my building in L.A. recently we entered. Which is more than the money that we receive from our contributors. Well, that's the testing scandal salon. Don de la Comunidad to them. My own. When you just want to be used where the city needs it the most nowadays. Gadhafi has pursued the impulse. Thank you for your time. Thank you. Our next speaker is Ruth Mueller. Your time starts now. Texas Supreme Court. Minnesota. Yes. Can you hear me? C. C. Which I copied. Now when I notice the minimalist looking unit. But then this quality st the numeral metal. You saw me in Baroque people. Then they lack coalition. Delorme. Hi. My name is Mary. I belong to District eight in a more active member of the language coalition. Perfect me petition Oscar seven level of bond of the permanent. The main thing Fadela represents is the La Familia immigrants are. My petition is that the justice funds be renewed permanently so that they can be used for the representation of the families. Yes, their level of stress familia will need us in the community. And this way we can maintain our families together in our community. If remote if your target lds post positive until they look fondle get DNA in departamento policy. And we asked that 10% of the funds that the police department has be granted to us. Necesitamos diversity that the lingua. In the same way we mirror the diversity of languages. But I believe that appropriate channels be fed into this programa de la ciudad de launch. We are able to take ad

And to be sure that the language is not an obstacle for the community. Not guilty. Roberto Garcia. You represent your representative. Concealed. You get the body invested in the struggle. Money that Charles Grassley has to appoint as a mayor. Roberto Orci and the council members of the City of Long Beach. It's time to start thinking about the city of Long Beach. Thank you very much. Thank you. And that concludes. Public comment for this item. Can we get in a second on the hearing, please? Can I get a motion in a second on the hearing, please? Also investigating surveillance in the US. We have a second, please. Would you please come for the vote? District one. District one, district two. I'm from. District three. By. District four. By District five, by district six. By I. District eight. All right. District nine. Our motion carries. And clerk. Mr. Shoop, when I was the second on this motion. Okay. Now, item 20, please. Report from economic development via recommendation to execute all documents necessary for the purchase of certain real property located at 410124107 Long Beach Boulevard, and an amount not to exceed 2,350,000 District eight. Thank you. We have reached our report on economic development. Yes, Sergio Ramirez will give a brief staff report. This is a very important item. Thank you, Tom. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Council members. I'll try to be as brief as possible, but this is exciting. I think we may have found a kind of finally a permanent home for Fire Station nine. By way of background, as you all recall, back in 2019, Fire Station nine was permanently closed due to the mold being present at the property. Last month, the city council approved a lease for a temporary location, the former Boeing fitness facility on Wardlow Road, that will allow three years for staff to identify a location for identify funding, identify funding and also build a facility. Staff has identified a location at 4101 Long Beach Boulevard in District eight. It's a little bit over 16,000 square feet and recently came on the market. It currently is occupied by Catalina Adventures Tours. And in summary, as in regards to the proposed acquisition price, we would acquire it for $2.35 million, have 120 day escrow period and allow the seller to lease back the property for six months after we close of escrow. Funding for the purchase has been identified through Measure eight and over the next few months funding for the construction of the permit facility will be sought. It is anticipated that the construction costs will be approximately $20 million if approved. This evening, staff will move forward the purchase of the property. Public Works will then work with fire department to design the facility and concurrently work with the financial management and city manager's office to identify funding. And once that is secured, the public works will bid the project and select the contractor. It is anticipated the construction period and period for the rollout of the opening of the fire station will be approximately 28 months. And with that, we'd like to request a city council approval to authorize the city manager or designee to execute all necessary documents for the purchase of this property. That concludes my presentation. Happy to answer any questions. You may minds councilman asked. Would like to speak inside. Absolutely. First of all, I'd like to thank the economic development and Fire Department city manager Tom Modica and the entire team, our city team, for their focus and determination in helping to identify a new permanent home for fire station mine. This property is located very strategically, just, you know, within walking distance of the former Fire Park Fire Station nine. It is it serves a community in a strategically located and a service area that for fire services, that is critically important. This is a major public safety infrastructure investment that we will be making all and I certainly hope to have the entire support and unanimous support of the Council on this item. So I'd like to make the motion to support this this effort to purchase this property. They are located on Long Beach Boulevard 41 one 4107 Long Beach Boulevard of some old. Thank you. As a customer, you angle you like to speak on item. Yes. Thank you, guys. Mayor. And I want to totally agree with the comments of Councilmember Austin. This has been a long awaited project that we need to go through. And I've been that is just a few blocks away from the original fire station. I think the greatest solution that we could possibly wish for. It'll also address our our response times. And they would be a great service to the communities around that area. So thank you very much. As Councilman Richardson. Vice mayor, just trying to get my support as well. This is, you know, our system and some of its parts. It's not power station, you know, and, you know, when when things are changed, it has an impact on the entire system. And, you know, from the community meeting back in the day on this all the way through, there's a great resolution to this situation. So congratulations to community. Congratulations, Councilman Austin, Councilman Miranda and all the uptown community on this. Thanks. Thank you very much. Is there any problem coming inside? Yes, our first speakers, Dave Shukla. Your time starts now. Hello. Thank you very much for your support of this item. When I grew up in Cowhide 16 All-Stars, this number named one of our faces. I very much support and I hope that you do support as well. Demolishing your building and rebuilding at that site eventually and being intentional again about the design of this temporary site, so that once the city owned land and the city owned structure used for something else and repurposed and we don't just lose that functionality after this outweigh the courtesy step is to be commended for for working this up over the past month. Thank you so much. Thank you. Our next speakers and control your time starts now. Yes. Good evening. I hope someone can help me understand why the old building cannot be, if not refurbished. Uh, I know I had mold, and, uh, a company came in and cleaned with bleach and painted and got rid of it. But if that's not possible, uh, why can't you demolish the building on site and build the new fire station on this land? Doesn't the city own the property? Where? The old fire station. Withstanding, I do not understand having to spend over $2,350,000 to buy new property to build the station. It just doesn't make sense to me, especially when we're looking to save money and if. You don't use those current. Location for a fire station. What are you planning to do? With this property. Uh, I, I, I hope that I can get some answers to these questions. Thank you. Thank you very much. But. Good public comment. Okay, fine. We have a first and second look. Would you please? After the vote. I'm sorry. Can you repeat the seconder for the item? Vice Mayor Durango. Durango. Thank you. District one. High district to. I feel. District three. A District four. All right. District five. Right. District six. By. District seven. I am District eight. Hi. District nine. Right. Motion carries. Thank you. We have no public no no public speakers signed up for the second public comment period. So I'm going to turn this over to Councilwoman Sun has made closing remarks and Greg Walden. So please queue up if you would like to speak on this as well. Well, she carries. Thank you. Now we'll go to item 36, please. Item 36 is a report from city manager. Recommendation to amend agreement with the County of Los Angeles to accept, expend and administer and increase in funding in the amount of 50,000 for 2020 census community outreach services citywide. SLO moved. Back. Dickinson Sun has. Could you please? You have any public comment on this item? No public comment. By the police constable. District one I district to fight district three I District four. I. District five. Of Patrol Ego. District six. All right. District seven. District eight. District nine. All right. Motion carries. District by. Okay. Thank you very much. Can we please call again to move all items to next week? I need a motion and a second by price. Yeah, we don't I don't think anybody wants 5 hours, but I'm happy to have brought this item along with my council colleagues. This item really it's the first time that this council I think it's had a presentation from Clean Power Alliance. Given the other presentation that we have on the feasibility study, we thought it would be imperative to hear this today. And so with that, I'll hand it over to Ted with clean power lines. Hi. Good. Good afternoon. Thank you, Mayor and city council for having me on. Are you able to hear me okay? We are. Okay. Thank you. I also, just before I started, I did want to also thank staff from nu merous departments in Long Beach, including Chris Garner and Bob Dole and Tony Foster and all the folks in the Planning Department all working on the Climate Action. And Adaptation. Plan. As this issue started to discussion has started to percolate. There's been lots of good, honest, transparent information exchange. And again, when there's been sort of differences of perspectives, that it's been a real pleasure to work with them. So I just wanted to acknowledge that as well. Although I'm with second ton of city clerk, I mean, I'm getting texts that people at home now can't hear. Ted. We're working on the audio issue. Okay. Let's let me. Let's. Let's do this. I'm. Let's go. All right, now. Let's. Let's go ahead. Is. I'm just wondering. Mr. Mayor, if I can offer a suggestion because I believe in the chambers, we can actually. Project. And here everybody can hear. Can everybody hear us right now? Yes, I think so. So we can go ahead. And while we work on the the issue that has to do with WebEx, I believe we can go ahead and give our staff presentation and keep moving forward. Okay. Cosmo appears to be good with that. Sure. Okay. So let's go ahead. And so, I mean, essentially, we're going to essentially your thing is we're going to go to item ten. Is that right, Mr. Modica? Actually, I know I think we need to hear from CPA before we do ten. That's fine. I mean, we were planning to hear from CPA before we hear ten. I'm just. Well, I mean, we have to get the meeting moving. So let me let me do this. So we're going to go ahead. And Ted, can you go ahead and continue and let's see if we hear it. I can hear you. If we can't, we're going to move on and do number ten du Chien and then we'll come back to six. So if that works. Oh, can you go ahead and continue? Sure. I'm happy to accommodate whatever whatever needs to get done here. So. Can you hear me or can the folks on. If you're watching on a computer, you can hear if you're watching on your phone at home, you can't. Nothing. Okay. Welcome to Distance Learning. So I'm going to run through this relatively quickly. I know that there's a lot on campus, but I just want to provide an introduction to our alliance and offer some thoughts about, you know, a potential relationship with with Long Beach. And the first thing is to just start with our mission statement, where we talk about a clean energy future, which I believe is the the desire of most of the state of California. But it is local. And what I mean by local is there's local control, a local voice, but also local jobs and investment where communities are empowered. And this is really about using our electricity service providers to achieve local and state wide policy goals, which are very well set up to do. And then, of course, customer choice. It's important, we believe that competition makes everybody better. And in this space, we've already seen that as kids have started to proliferate. If we can go to the next slide, please. On the next slide. Thank you. I think you'll be hearing a lot more about this in agenda item ten. But I did want to highlight a couple of things. One is in that last bullet that by 2022, we expect that more than half the load. In. Eugenie and Ste. Jeannie Territory will be served by non I.O.U. providers and approximately a quarter in SC territory. This is a trend around the state growing every year. The other thing is that point in in bold there, that third bullet that is mostly our joint powers authorities although there are single jurisdiction enterprise funds which which I believe is was the focus of the of the Long Beach study. But I will note that today. Only. Two major cities have done this. San Francisco and San Jose, other big cities and counties, San Diego, Oakland, L.A. County, others decided to join or help form joint powers authorities to run their cases. And I'll talk a little bit about about why. Next slide, please. So under a KIA model, the KIA takes over the that top it. Box purchasing power, setting rates, providing customer programs at a in areas that it serves. For customers who don't want to be part of this thing is to do the same thing purchasing power, setting rates and providing customer programs. The one thing that I will note is that most customer programs that Edison offers still remain open to customers. While our programs are exclusively available to our customers. But you'll note that that AC e remains in SCCA model remains a crucial partner. We do with Edison coordinate on a daily basis. We consider customers to be mutual customers and that particularly in this area and Edison, we have some similar policy goals around decarbonization and electrification. But just we do believe that the competition among us around rates and power does get us to all sharpen our pencils and be better. Go to the next slide, please. These are some of the details in terms of what those potential benefits are. I want to focus on the last. One environmental. Impact, because the fact that cars are a default opt in tool, that means that when it's when a city or county joins a car or starts a car, all customers automatically become customers unless they opt out. It makes it a very, very, very strong policy tool. For. Cities in in a number of areas, but particularly around expanding renewables and THG reduction. If that is the policy goal of the city, which I understand is is more and more of the policy goal of the city of Long Beach. If you could go two slides down. No. X. A couple of quick factoids. We serve approximately 1 million customer accounts across two counties in 30 cities. We are the largest K in the state, professionally managed and clear on that last bullet point. We cover our costs. We do not receive any subsidies or tax dollars. We're fully covered by ratepayer rates, people that receive our service. Next slide, please. We are a. JPA. And. Were. Unique in some ways in a JPA where our governing document not only talks about, you know, how we're governed

and processes and sort of the standard governance and legal stuff, but it also has a statement of of shared values. And when I think about any city thinking about joining Clean Power Alliance, I understand they're signing up for this legal entity. But I also really want to stress that folks are considering signing up to support these values. And that's that's unique. And I think these statements of values are really important in any consideration because they span the gamut of sustainability, not just environmental stuff, but clearly local economic development, equity considerations as well as environmental progress. Next slide, please. But just in our two and a half years of of actual operations, we've started to put some of these values into practice with some of the items listed listed here for folks in our customers in our 100% range default areas, they get the 100% green program, 100% green energy at no additional cost. And we're expanding those programs both to our broader residents, as well as through community solar programs. This fall, we are going to begin publicly providing incentives for publicly funded or sorry, publicly available electric vehicle chargers with a set aside for disadvantaged communities. Beginning next year, we have demand response available for commercial residential customers and are developing a resiliency program for clean backup power at member jurisdictions. Critical facilities where we will put clean. On essential facilities at no cost to our member agencies. We are rapidly expanding the supply of renewable energy and energy. Battery energy storage in the State of California having created or planned to create over 1500 approximately 1500 construction jobs using union labor and with most with formal project labor agreements will also be beginning a roll out a program, a $1 million workforce development program beginning in 2021. Next slide, please. But we also because our governing board is made up of local elected officials and we can be very nimble and quick to respond in. In the spring, we launched a $1 million COVID 19 bill relief program for residential small business customers to give them direct discounts on their electricity bills if they were facing reduced income, unemployment or otherwise. COVID 19 economic hardship. These are the kinds of things that we can as as you know. Social issues rise to the fore where we can respond rapidly and attend to a very wide and diverse economic group of customers. Next slide, please. Just a couple of nuts and bolts. We offer. Three rate. Options 36% renewables. That also offers a cost savings, a 50% renewable product that is at cost parity and a 100% renewable energy project that is at a premium.

Although I would remind you that there's no upcharge for low income customers in most areas in that in that on that rate, as it's. Sorted out. Approximately 80% of our customers are on those two higher environmentally performing tiers. And we have found that to be quite a

important development to show that many customers really want that kind of higher environmentally performing product. They often just don't know about it. Or if we tell them we're going to do something good for them, they say, okay, I would. But I will also note that residents and businesses have have the choice to opt up, opt down or opt out and return to service at any time. Mr. Bartlett. Last, last. Yes. Your time is up. You've had that kind of presentation time. Sure. Let me if you could just go to my last slide and I will summarize. That. That CPA sort of JPA structure is a lower risk option for cities. We are very focused on keeping our jobs and economic benefits to stay within the region. The strong relationship with labor. We target our programs that and incentives that communities need strong governance structure and focusing on a reliable and swift transition to a zero carbon footprint. So with that, I will stop at any point in any of the four items. I'm happy to answer any questions. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you for that. Let me go back to Councilmember Pearce. Thank you so much for sharing with everyone today. I know that when we first started talking about CCS, you guys were just getting started. And so it's great to see the success that you've gotten so far. 30 cities is no small feat. If you could, I know that you weren't able to show that slide, but I'd like to ask just one question. There was one about opt outs. I think it was two slides back. You skipped over it. If. If the staff could slide. One more. There you go. Now go back to the graph. Thank you. Let's take a look at this since you didn't get a chance to mention it. What's the highest opt out rate that you have? Yeah. Our highest opt. Out rate. Is generally concentrated in Ventura County with very low opt out rate in Los Angeles. That's the first thing I will note for Los Angeles County. The second thing I'll note is that opt outs tend across the spectrum. To. Be driven more by either media attention. Or political. Leanings in the city and not so much by price. You know, if you look at our 100% green default cities in L.A. County at the residential level of a 4.7% opt out rates. Similarly, there's less than one percentage point higher than. And the clean power default rate. So what I think by the point I would make here is, is back to this point that this default is probably one of the major or is one of the major policy tools that we offer our member agencies. Every member agency gets to, if they join, gets to choose what the default is. And, you know, if you were to choose a 100% green power default, for example, yes, it would come at a cost premium. You'd also be pretty much overnight the largest city in the country to serve your residents with 100% renewable energy. All right. Thank you for that. And then I have one other question for you. How many do you have? 30 seats on the board because there's 30 cities. Oh, we have 32 seats on the board because we're 30 cities and two unincorporated county jurisdictions. So L.A. County. Ventura County. And 30 cities within those two counties. And what's the largest? How many ratepayers are there with L.A. County? Just around 250,000. Long Beach would be the second largest city and our second largest jurisdiction in our GTA. Currently the second largest is Castle. Right. And my last question before we hear from other council members is I know the the next item talks about the need if we went with the word to have hydro electricity. And that's something that CPA have. Yes. So we what we do is we tend to focus on renewables and new build renewables, because we're very much trying to exceed state mandates and put ratepayer dollars back into the development of new renewable energy in order to keep our carbon content low. And we have a mandate by our EPA to keep it lower than than Southern California Edison. We buy existing large hydro power resources in order to reduce our carbon footprint even further. Okay. I might I have one more question. I'm trying to talk really fast because we also only get 5 minutes. Which unions do you guys have project labor agreements with? So most of our projects have five trade agreements. So it's typically IBEW, ironworkers, carpenters, laborers, and I'm spacing on the fourth. I'm on the fifth. I apologize, but it's it's IBEW laborers, carpenters and our workers. And are those jobs all created in L.A. County, California or other states? The of the 1500 we have, about 1350 are in the state of California. And a smaller subset of that is in L.A. L.A. County is an expensive place to do business in general, and particularly for our large scale projects. We have two major projects in L.A. County, and the rest is in southern and central California. Okay, I have other questions, but I will see if my council calls, have thoughts. But I appreciate the effort and the presentation today is very insightful. Thank you. Is there any of the other council members who'd like to speak on this item? Yes, madam, this is

Councilman. And I did keep up, but I don't know what would happen. Anyway, I just wanted to say thank you. Thank you very much, Ted, for this. For then I think that, you know, having this in front, in front and sharing it with the community is very important. I know that this is new territory for us as a city, and the more that we are able to have it detailed and broken down into, you know, so to help the community also understand is is very important. So I just wanted to say that thank you. Thank you very much for your detailed presentation. Thank you. I'm not sure if the system is up. But I don't think it is cute as well. Councilmember Richardson. Okay, great. Mr. Pataki, thanks for this presentation. If requested a copy of this, but if you're unable to get it, certainly a part of the program. It's a big decision. I'd love to learn a little bit more, certainly about what this means, particularly the screen we're looking at, opt out. Would you min d spending a little bit of time in the chair with me? What exactly they opted out of? And, you know, I think a big part of understanding, you know, if people want to stay with what they have with that, that would be walk me through this opt out piece. Sure. So the state legislation that enabled this case that was passed in 2022 made it what they call an automatic default program. That is when a city joins a SCCA or forms a SCCA. When that car starts service, the the assumption and the operating principle is that every every electricity customer would be defaulted into the. Into. Being a CCR customer. Now, in practice, what that means is that we send out we do a lot of public outreach, we send out notices before people are defaulted into the system as well as after. And they are given the ability to say, no, I'm not interested. I would like to go back and quote unquote go back, but I would like to remain a bundled customer, which is mean. I'm getting my electricity and my transmission and distribution from from SC in this case. So really what this is, is how you. And people can do that at any time. They could also change their rates if you defaulted in at 100% green power or clean power and people really wanted to save money, they could put a top down and to a money saving tier. So it is an opt in program. And then. We ask people, we inform. People. And then they need to affirmatively opt out. If they do nothing, they are automatically become our customers and they're automatically put on the. Rate that. The CB chose as its default. Right. That's why we're in this we're in this default. I'm going to say it's the number one sort of confusion at that at launch. But, you know, we we get through. Sure. And, you know, I have other questions that they'll be from staff later. And the question that I have for you is, given the fact that we'd be the largest if we opt to move forward with the largest, does that open up playbook, if you will, in terms of offering more creative programs that, you know, maybe maybe targeted to achieve our goals the city sets forward like what is great for us, does it us the ability to to change what is going here and present and that may be superior. Yeah. So there's you know, I'll say that formally, we are a one jurisdiction, one member agency, one vote, a governance structure. But in practice, you kind of you get what you give. And the cities that. Are active, that. Have some expertize, that have staff on the ground ready to propose and shape programs, get in practice, have a greater voice in the decision making because that's just who's putting the time and the energy into it. So while I will say that, you know, hopefully there's only a one vote per member and I don't see that changing any time soon, how that voice and vote gets exercised. Our larger agencies. So is that because they've got the time and the energy and resources to dedicate to it? Councilman, that concludes your questions. Now. Fine. Okay. Councilman Mongo.

Yes. What is the amount of renewable energy we currently get through Southern California Edison, for comparison's sake? So if there's there's no coal, it's mostly natural gas. Large hydro and nuclear. And Councilmember, we'll get to that when we get to the staff presentation will be able to give a little bit of that comparison. Okay, great. And then then I have other questions for staff at that time. Thank you. Is there is there a public comment on this item? Yes. There is public comment on this item. It was going. Let's go. The. Yes. Can you hear me? Gabrielle is the pronunciation. Go ahead. Great height. Everything cool. Today? I made the comments online and. I want to reiterate, been following this issue since the late nineties. Community choice. Aggregates started in some other. States on the East Coast and Ohio. They've been doing it for quite a while up in California. Worked out by this and as detailed at the agenda report, the Clean Power Alliance establish itself and is a highly. Effective, successful ccaea to avoid missing another. User of opportunity to provide our residents with local choice, cleaner energy. And job creation. I hope the. City Council will direct staff to submit a letter. Of interest to the CPA and give you the flexibility to join it as soon as. Possible. It happened in. Hi. My name is Mallory Hurley and I am a student and president of the Long Beach Youth Climate Taskforce, a group of 15 movie stars dedicated to making the Long Beach a 100% renewable energy city. I'm here today to persuade Long Beach City Council to listen to the presentations and clean power lines in the hopes that they will use the information will join the EPA over the past few months. My team and I researched clean power lines extensively and come to the conclusion that doing the data would be the best option for Long Beach. We reached out to almost every single city that joined and each one expressed nothing but positive remarks about their experiences. The transition away from Southern California Edison, the head of the Office of Sustainability for the City of Santa Monica, explained that it was one of the easiest climate initiatives to pass, with little to no pushback from constituents and a very low opt out rate in their city between four and 5%. It is abundantly clear that joining clean power lines when the easiest and most effective way to transition will be towards 100% renewable energy system as outlined in the DCC Usability Report. Joining clean power lines would have many benefits, such as increased negotiating and buying power for power purchases, access to better financing, tariffs and borrowing, and will distribute any potential cost or risk associated with creating a CCR among other participating cities. Joining Pintar Alliance means that Long Beach could provide competitive grants to Southern California Edison while providing clean, renewable energy to all of its citizens. As I've mentioned before, the Power Alliance offers a 36% ren ewable option, which is 1 to 2% cheaper than Edison, facing a 50% renewable option, which crosses James Edison and the 100% renewable energy option at a slightly higher price premium relative to Edison. It's a mean even if residents chose not to have 100% renewable energy, they would still be paying less or the same for cleaner energy. Many cities aligned to clean power lines also provide a subsidy for low income residents and ensure that people in marginalized communities won't pay more than Edison. Phase three, which is very important measure that may not be addressed at Long Beach, which create its own future. Only City Council must agree to use the information gained from clean power lines and will then be able to make informed decision to transition Long Beach away from Southern California Edison to clean, renewable energy systems. Thank you. I just thank you for that and thank you to the speaker just before me. That was an incredible summary and research that her group has done on China as the chair of the Sustainable City Commission. We've been looking at Community Choice Energy for quite a number of years now here in the city, at the commission side and with a working group that's been advocating on this issue. We heard here from Tyson and Clean Power Alliance that TPA is a viable community choice energy entity in the Los Angeles area and the largest operating with approximately 1 million customers. BP has shown that it's able to successfully accumulate financial reserves, build an energy portfolio that meets California's. Renewable. Energy mandates ten years ahead of schedule. Erica members. Sorry. And we're urging Long Beach to submit a letter of interest to CPA so that CPA can assess whether the addition of damage to electricity service is beneficial. In addition to being financially sound, they share that CPA is increasing energy storage, creating projects with 1500 union jobs and rolling out $1,000,000 workforce development program next year. These are all great benefits for the energy grid, for green jobs and for economic recovery. The city can consider other governance options, while CPA is completing this assessment and should do so in a timely manner in order to make a decision on whether to join CPA or file this invitation plan for stand alone program in Long Beach by December 31st of this year. Now is the time for Long Beach to take action on this issue and move our community into the clean energy future instead of waiting another two years before making any decisions or exploring next steps. Thank you. Thank you. I'm going to go ahead and move on to the next item connected to this. Do I need I guess I should take a I don't think I've received a follow on to. Confirm that you're not on any other item. Want to be. Take a reason to think on this item. District one. I'm District two. I'm District three. I district for. I. District five. I. District six. All right. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. Moving on to the staff presentation, please. Item. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So we do have a fairly robust presentation for you today. I think the council is starting to get into some of the questions. This is a very complex issue and you've asked us to study this for about two years now. So we have brought on some energy experts that really know this field, and they provided about 130 page report. We also have our three department directors who have substantial experience in this area and have provided a recommendation. So we want to make sure that you really understand this issue. Communication from Council Member Pearce, Chair of Environmental

Committee. Recommendation to request City Council to endorse the Climate Action Adaptation Plan. Consider the Community Choice Aggregation Initiative and include a construction career policy with the Climate Action Adaptation Plan. Councilmember Pearce. Yes. I'd like to make a motion to move this item to another time for re agenda. Change there a second. Look. Is there a second queue up on the factory? Thank you. Okay. There's a second there's a public comment on this item to move it. There is public comment on this item. Our first speaker is Gabrielle Weekes. Choice Aggregate has worked very well. For the 30 some odd cities. I believe it's 34 that have been using it. With CPA and then Lancaster as its own. Standalone, and they've been. Doing that successfully for years. Take a look at these things. Do their due diligence. It's working in industrial as. Well as suburban areas, and it's preposterous. To pretend that it's not successful. If we wish to just. Deliver more money out of loyalty. Let's just admit that. Thank you. Our next speaker is Adeline Yoon. Adeline, you. Hi. Good afternoon. Good evening, Mayor, vice mayor and council members. My name is widely known and I'm a government relations manager with Southern California Edison. In light of the fact that this is going to be pushed off, I will hold off on my comment. Thank you very much. Our next speaker is Kobe Sky. Thank you. Given that this item is being moved, I will provide additional comments when it's brought back. But I do hope that the Council recognizes the connection between the Climate Action Plan and the serious climate impacts that we're already facing as a region, and the need to have more flexibility and really control over our own future direction by considering it in, because it really is a critical step in our climate goals, in our environmental goals. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Stella. Ursula. Hello. I will hold off on my comments until the item. Is brought back to a an. Upcoming meeting. Thank you. Our next speaker is Maryanne Buchanan. I see the council and a mayor. So I am going to talk about this because I'll talk about it when it comes up later, too. But we're talking about two environmental things on this item, a climate action plan. And second, whether we should enter into a community choic e energy program. But I suggest we are dealing with a third initiative here, and that is the racial equity and reconciliation report, that report on race in Long Beach. That third thing urges you to address both the other two planned, namely to advance environmental and racial justice by supporting the Climate Action Plan and to explore renewable energy resources. These two environmental plans are nested in that third report on race. We just cannot deal with either of the climate related two without looking through the racial lens of the third, because those three plans have one goal a healthy and happy life for all of us who live and work in Long Beach. Our neighbors are hurting. They are getting sick and dying. And we look to your leadership and compassion to put this right. Thank you. I yield my time. Thank you. Our last speaker is Tiffany Davey. Hi. Good evening. I'm going to. Take this opportunity. To just up the list. Again, the fact that we're in a pandemic mixed with a public health crisis. And encouraged in this. Time between the items brought back to the Council. For us to look. At the Council on Foreign Relations report titled Impact of Climate Risk on the Energy System is imperative to understand. For every dollar you spend. Now for. Mitigation efforts, you save six. So what will cost you $1.6 million to implement? Without doing that, you are raising your cost at least six times that of the. Council convened in March of 2019 for a two day workshop where they essentially spoke about. How are these climate related events separate from just the racial equity aspect, which we are all giving a considerable amount of time to. Create risk to the US energy. Infrastructure, financial markets and national security. We don't have really a full scope on how to manage and mitigate the future catastrophes that I mean, if we look, we've already kind of taken some damage and lost a part of our peer a number of years ago during a storm. We must think, especially as we're getting ready to deliberate on the oil. Wells that are abandoned. Coming up on the 27th of Mission Development Services set to be considered. Thank you. Thank you. And that concludes public comment for this item. Okay. Let's go ahead and take the vote, please. This moves in District one. I. District two. And District three. I. District four. AI. District five AI District six by District seven. By District eight. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Okay. And I know we could not get public comment working earlier. Have we. Have we fixed it Madam Court. Yes, we have the public comment. Speaker's waiting. Communication from Councilmember Pierce, Chair of Environmental Committee. Recommendation to request City Council to create a A or join the Clean Power Alliance and file an implementation plan by the end of the year. Contacted Pearce. Had you queued up for a motion? Can we do public comment on this item and then I'll go to you? Or did you want to see if you can. Do a public comment first? Okay, let's go and get a cup of coffee. Madam Court. Our first speaker is Koby Sky. Kobe Sky. Jim Stewart. Jimmy Stewart. Your time starts now. Jim Stewart. Yes. I'm starts now. Agenda Item ten that we are very disappointed that the city staff wants to wait two more years. We can move ahead now. There's no reason for us to allow Edison to determine what kind of power we get. We can have the power of the community choice and Long Beach residents and city council, and we can decide how what kind of power we want. And I recommend that we move forward with the community choice item and reject that report. Thank you. Our next speaker is. Gabriel weeks. Your time starts now. Gabrielle Weeks. Yes. Your Kobe sky has been Kobe sky has been trying to speak. They called his name, but they wouldn't let him speak. Are you aware of this? We couldn't hear him. We'll try calling him back. He's. Yeah, he. Okay? He's right there. I'll call him back. He's standing by. Let me know when. You'd like me to begin. Yeah. Well, would you like to start your public comment? Yes, please. Hi, I'm Gabrielle Weeks. I think you guys know me. I'm an engineer. I live locally in Long Beach and have been following community choice energy for, gosh, over ten years. It was. Working very well in in. Massachusetts and. Ohio. Those areas have a lot of industry. I heard it said by somebody. That this wasn't good for industry. That they would opt out. You guys may remember on the city council and in the mayor's office. That we bought a bunch of booted electric busses from a. Company in Lancaster, California. They use this. Energy. There's a lot of industry in Lancaster. They spawned. A CCE there because although they have a lot fewer residents. Than. Our city and some other cities, they have huge industrial draw. So it made. Sense for them to start getting more environmentally responsible and. Financially responsible. Energy if. They. Wanted. And Lancaster, California can do it. For years now, I'm sure. We can figure it out. Also, there are 34 cities that have already joined the Clean Power Alliance. Some of those are somewhat industrial cities, Downey and some things like that. The notion that industrial areas will. Opt out. Is nonsense and. It's easy. To look it up. I hope. We will move forward with this and start dragging. Our feet. We we could be doing. More for the environment and we could be. Thank you. Our next speaker. Is Clay sandwich. Clay sandwich? Your time starts now. Oh, yes. This is quite a sandwich. What? Chair? The longest Community Choice Energy Working Group. You've heard a lot of my remarks earlier, but what I would like to do is just repeat and reiterate that on this Community Choice Energy Working Group, respectfully request to you that you unanimous vote to direct city staff to file a letter of interest with the Clean Power Alliance, which will allow Long Beach to complete an implementation plan by the end of. Including forming a standalone city enterprise, c

has done, or to join the Clean Power Alliance, which is the largest and one of the most effective programs in California. It doesn't make sense to me that we're raising the same questions that have already been raised three years ago, two years ago and last year. I think we have more than enough information seeing the success that these other programs have shown and the fact that they're addressing the challenges that they have been subject to very effectively. I strongly recommend that the City Council move forward to sign a letter of intent with the Clean Power Alliance and see the kind of success that they have recognized in advancing renewable energy, creating local jobs and reducing greenhouse gas emission. This is an existential issue for the city, and it's very important for us to move forward. Thank you. Our next speaker is Kate Brown. Your time starts now. Kate Brown in. High. Your time, sir. Good afternoon. Thank you. Good afternoon. Austin City Council members. And there. Garcia. My name is Kate Brown. I am a senior in high school, my time constituent of District 30 and a member of the UN Climate Taskforce. I'm calling in today to request that Long Beach join the Clean Power Alliance. I, along with other members of the Climate Taskforce, have been working since the summer of 2019 to commit Long Beach to a renewable energy implementation plan. As members of Generation Z, we are acutely aware of the fragility of our relationship with the Earth and the existential threat of climate change. We are so truly lucky to have grown up in a progressive, forward thinking city like Long Beach, and we know that our city has the potential to leave the rest of the country and sustainability and environmental consciousness. That is why we believe it is time for our city to adopt a 100% renewable energy plan with an earlier deadline than that of the current current state guidelines. The most cost effective and simplest way to achieve 100% renewable energy in Long Beach will be switching our energy provider to clean power lines. This would provide all of the environmental benefits of establishing a community choice aggregator without the administrative burden or economic instability. The young people in the city are depending upon government leaders to protect our future, and we cannot afford to defer this decision any longer. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Mary Dawn. Hello. My name is. May you. In the past, I was an organizer with clergy in the City United for Economic Justice, also known as CREW, a network of more than 900 free theaters across L.A. County and also Orange County that are committed to accompanying low income families and immigrants in the struggle for a just economy and a secret society for all. And I was born and raised in Vietnam, and last year, the New York Times report that by 2015, my motherland would be submerged under the sea as a result of climate change. It means that in my lifetime, everything and means a livelihood in our community will be gone. So climate change is more than an environmental problem to me. My community and many communities of color. But it is a matter of life and death. And as I've been working alongside truck drivers at the ports of Long Beach in Los Angeles for the last few years, many of them have shared with me how their children and family members have asthma and other critical health conditions as a result of pollution in our city. So tonight, I want to ask how members they get here to create a city, a joy, the Clean Power Alliance to accelerate the transition of our city to renewable energy. Thank you. Our next speaker is Patricia Chen. Hi. Can you he ar me? Yes, we can hear you. Oh, great. Thank you. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and council members. My name is Richard Chin. I'm speaking on behalf of the green team of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Long Beach. You use the. We are located in Council District five. The mission of the Green team is to educate members and friends of the CLP about the moral imperative imposed. By climate change. It inspires our congregation and the wider community to take actions that honor and sustain the Earth for future generations. Item eight is just such an action. We urge you to vote yes and commit to joining or creating a community choice aggregation as soon as possible. So that the city. Can accelerate the transition to renewable energy, create good green jobs here in Long Beach, and provide clean electricity for zero emission. Cars, trucks and busses so that everyone, and especially residents now. Living with air pollution can breathe easier. Thank you. Thank you. And that concludes public comment for this item. Okay. I'm going to go back to Councilmember Pearce. Thank you, Mayor. Thank you. All the great community members that have spoken today. Obviously, there's a lot of interest, a lot of people that have been working on this for a long time. There's clearly a lot of data and info that still needs to be had. And I'd like to just briefly talk about what what we could do to get that info. It's my understanding that not a letter of intent, but just saying that we are interested in getting some more of the data in working with CPA is something that doesn't tie our hands. It's not a vote for an implementation plan or an ordinance. It's a simple vote that makes it possible for us to move on to the next step. Is that your understanding? City manager. Yes. So what we understand is the motion that's that's here is it sounds like you're modifying that a little bit. So there is a process through CPA where you can ask to join them or to express an interest at which point they they do require you to pay them about $30,000 to go through a process where they do some further analysis and then ask their board if they would like to consider adding another city. And then there is a stopping point where you would know, you know, we would be able to to make a decision. So if that's the motion, that would not tie your hands to actually implement. Okay. Wonderful. That's what I was hoping. I know that there's been a lot of talk because we've got so many passionate people that have been working on this for a long time. I, for instance, I think that that is the motion that we'd like to make. I recognize that the Sustainability Commission and Environmental Committee have done a lot of work on this and had lots of conversations, and that that's what's in front of us today is their recommendation. But I'd like to just make the recommendation and take that next step of getting more data which was in the stock report on the previous item. So that would be my motion. Okay. So ju st to be clear, so the motion that we have in front of us is not what the the what was the risk just to go ahead and create the join, but for the city to essentially take the next step and work with work with to get more data and do some data sharing, which is smart , which is modified by councilmember member Pearce. Mm hmm. That's the motion. I have a second Councilmember Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. Just a few comments. I think this is the first I didn't queue up on the last item because I knew this was the appropriate item to make to make motions and take a few things. I think I acknowledge the urgency and the merit that we need to be creative in the way that we address energy. I get that and I support that. And I think it's time that we sort of reevaluate all of our relationships, including the relationship with Edison. You know, Edison has been a partner in the city for a very long time. But I also think that, you know, that our standards need to improve in terms of how we've dealt with Edison. In North Palm Beach, we have we don't have a lot of open space, you know, something like 1.2 acres of open space for 10,000 residents and some of our most significant open space opportunities in the Edison rights of way. We've attempted to work with them over the years to be creative about green belts and other things, and we haven't had any real partnership. Most recently, we had a you know, we're moving forward with our citywide bridge housing facility, our citywide shelter, which is adjacent to five acres of open space. We've engaged with them over the years. We haven't gotten anywhere with it. And then they signed a lease for five years with a nursery completely in respect of our discussions with the city. So I'm saying all this to say is the car is one piece, but we also need to just increase our standards for how we engage with all of our partners. So we're not our communities are not taking it for granted. Now, in terms of the CC, I understand the concerns. I think I think the motion in front of us acknowledges some of the concerns that were raised in terms of the readiness and the risk. I think there is know I'm a little uncomfortable with two years, I think. But but I understand that this is something that we want to sort of move forward with, with, you know, more than a split vote on Council of five four. This is something you want the public on board with. You want the council on board with it. So it takes it will take some time for us to do that. So I'm supportive. I've taken a little bit of time to do that. I'm also support of the motion that's here that says, let's sharpen that pencil. Let's not you know, let's not wait. Let's get more information, less engage and get more information and come back to this when we've sort of, you know, we're facing the crisis on multiple fronts when we get a little bit more stability. I heard the consultant say, you know, the risk is a little bit higher today than it was when some of these other groups joined the C CPI. Another thing is that I think that we should as a city, you know, when I heard that we get one vote out of numerous votes, that's concerning to me. I'd like to see just in the same way that that I'd like to reevaluate our relationship with others. And I'd also like, if we move forward this, to reevaluate how we have a say in how EPA or whatever apparatus of that, how the governance is structured. I think that's just, Mark, on behalf of our city and our residents expect us to cut the best deal in their interests, and that's something that I'd be interested in. So I think the motion in front of us, I think, allows us to do that, continue to kind of explore it, but does not tie our hands. So I'm supportive of that. I think that's what the city council. Thank you. Thank you. Council

Councilmember. Mango. Thank you. Can you hear me, Mia? Yes. Thank you. I received a couple of notes. Maybe if a Joel's were frustrated with the delivery of power and the blackouts. But I wanted to be clear and get staff's confirmation that the delivery of power, even if we joined us, would still maintain with Southern California. And that independent of us, we should be working hand in hand with them to facilitate a strong working relationship with our public works department, to ensure that they are upgrading those those lines and those cabinets underground so that we will not be in as vulnerable position as we were in several years ago during the three day blackout , and that we are in today with the continued rolling shortages of energy. Is that accurate? And are we working hand in hand with them as their biggest client? I think you had mentioned we make up 10% of their clients. Mommy presidents do. Are we working hand in hand with them to ensure that they are upgrading as quickly as possible, that we have no barriers in their path at City Hall and with public works and development services. Wonderful. It's my understanding that they make up 10% of Southern California's customer base. If we joined the Clean Power Alliance today, what percentage of their customer base would we be? Without opt outs if everyone joined. Or did you? Well, I was I guess there's 32 cities that joined. I think I heard that and to I'm sorry, 30 cities and two unincorporated areas. And so that would make up just the unincorporated areas or 250,000. We have 5000 residents, but not necessarily residents, residents, people, but not necessarily residents, consumers of power, if that makes sense. Or maybe a family of four on one bill. So I'm I'm not clear how many customers do we have of Edison that would be potentially moving over. So it can't be 50%, because if the county of Los Angeles alone is 250,000 and there's 30 other cities, including moderate size like Downey and Carson, I imagine we'd be smaller than that. Is that some information you could get back to me? Oh, by. Volume. And so we but we get back to you with the correct numbers on that. I see. By volume, not by customer number. Oh, that's interesting. So when we make up 10% of Southern California Edison's customers, it's not by number of customers. It's also by volume. That? I don't know. I'd have to check on that. Could we get an apples to apples comparison of those two different charts of what that looks like? I think that that's really. Important for us to know in terms of. Who we are in a in a perspective and in a relationship. And I think it's really important that we as a council are taking a closer look. I know that I also have had some issues come up, and I have to work hand in hand with Southern California Edison in my district on bridge repair and other things when they are fixing bolts and the impact to our neighbors. And I think that we really need to work on that relationship to be a bigger part of that discussion and decision base. Also, a member of the community talked about the number of industrial customers that opted out in any of the other 30 cities that have joined and that it has been much lower. It would be great to know what that number or volume is and then what are the costs in staff hours that would be necessary to continue on in this process. I would have to venture that certainly would involve both John GROSS, Bob Dole and myself and then our staff. So it is quite a bit working with a CPA and with Southern covering Edison to get the data across and work on a final report. And then my last question is for Southern California Edison. The CCI option provides residents the alternative to opt into a 35%, 50% or 100% renewable energy. What options do you have available today and what options do you project? We will have available two years from now. So Mike Morelli from Southern California, Edison. So we have our base product, which is 35% and climbing as the regulations increase. We have what we call our 50%, but it's kind of a mislabel because it's 50% of the base product and 50%, 100% renewable. So it's like 67% renewable. And then we have the 100% renewable option. And then as far as products going forward, we're working on community solar and on renewable access for disadvantaged communities. And those in our low income programs predominantly are the programs that are the near term that are that are coming out. Excellent. And so on. The last item that we voted on, it sounds as though you will be moving forward on a plan with our staff and bringing that back to us to better understand the renewable sources of energy available. Yeah. I mean, we're working on a framework that may include a lot of things. I hope it goes into some of the items you you mentioned as far as how to make sure if there are priorities in the city, such as how we operate in that, then I'd like to get those on the table as well and figure out how we can be more efficient in in meeting those needs of the of the city as well. So it's not kind of just focus on, you know, the energy portion of it. Wonderful. Well, that answers a lot of my questions. I want to apprec iate everyone I met with on this matter. There were letters from community members, both for and against. Even people that are pastors of churches. And I think that the further dialog and while I appreciate public comment where people can come forward and say something for 3 minutes, and when people write an email and engage with you in advance of an agenda item, you're really able to talk with them about the things that's important. And so the things that sound important to them are the renewable energy component. How we get there isn't as important, but we need to be moving in that direction. So I'm continuing to listen to the community and my colleagues. Thank you. Thank you. Councilmember Price. Mr. MAYOR. So I'm a little bit I'm feeling like this item is actually in conflict with item ten that we just approved. So maybe I can just ask some clarifying questions. I know we didn't go into them, but there were some included items in item ten that staff is to do and complete to follow up on this possibility. And so can the city manager or someone from energy resources go through those staff action items. Yes. So let me start by kind of a summary of what what it is that the staff recommendation was. And then where I see this kind of taking that next step to help you make a decision, because it really is a policy choice. In our recommendation, we were recommending, given the volatility of the market, that we wait for about two years for making any type of decision. In the meantime, we would be doing additional community outreach. We would be doing a governance study and kind of understanding the CPA model versus going our own route versus forming another JPA with another city and a couple of other kind of steps and working with Southern California Edison. That's the basic summary. What the motion on the floor is, is kind of asking a policy direction. Do you want to take a little bit of a of another step towards a CCAR? You would be filing a letter of interest. We would call it that rather than a letter of intent. But it would essentially be a request and spending money with C pay to say give us more information about your model that would allow you and to see if they want to invite us to to participate or not. Typically, you file that letter of interest or intent when you are ready to move forward with the CPA or I'm sorry, with a K, and then you would have to come back to council and file an implementation plan and an ordinance and have two readings of the ordinance to move forward with that implementation plan. And so the timeline is, if you wanted to do that, you would have to do all those steps before December. That really is the part that has been removed from the motion is that direction to do it by December. This is an interim step to do it. Is the council asking us to modify the motion to say, take another step in this direction by doing the study and letter of intent and then reviewing that with all of your other governance options and returning to the council. Okay. So, so the in order for us to express interest in getting more information about their model and asking them to consider us, we have to pay them $30,000. This crossing in, what we were told was would be approximately $35,000. And that's for it's can we not get any information about their model without paying them $30,000? What that does is that pays them to do their own study, not not us. So they have to do their own due diligence and see if they want to invite Long Beach to the dance. Okay. So to me, that seems like a very premature step because we're not even sure that we want to dance with them yet. So why would we be paying them $35,000 to vet us to see if they want to be our partner when we haven't decided? We may very well decide that, but one of the things that came back in the staff report today, which I was I've met with everybody who's asked to meet with me on this, too. And I think there's a lot of, you know, opportunities for us to explore and really look at here. But one of the main parts of the staff recommendation is that we haven't done enough community outreach on this. So why would I pay someone $30,000 to decide if they liked me when I haven't even checked with my constituents that we want to participate in this? So I'm not in favor of this motion. I am in favor of shortening that two year window to a one year window. And I want to appreciate the and Councilmember Pearce has mentioned this several times, the number of people who have worked on this for many years. Absolutely. I'm incredibly indebted to the organizations that have worked on this for years. I'm not really sure what the goal post of getting some sort of a letter filed is. I know there's going to be a $35,000 transfer of money to another organization, but I'm not really sure what that goal post is. I'm very grateful for the community members who have participated. I'm also very grateful for the city staff who have participated in this, all of whom are people whose subject matter expertise I rely on to do my job every day. So the staff report that was delivered tonight was to me very eye opening. So I would like to make a substitute motion to. Not file a letter of interest, but to shorten the window of time that staff will bring this back to the council from two years to one year. And that would be my substitute motion. Is there a second on that? So a second on that. Okay. But no second. So that.

That'll. That'll die. No second. Okay. Second by Councilmember one. Go. Moving on. It doesn't run. Mongo, did you have any comments on that or did you want to keep going? We might have more information. I also feel it's very important that we get that report back. Okay. Moving on to Councilwoman Zendejas. Councilman's and has. Councilman's in Dallas. You're sorry about that? Was trying to unmute. Yeah. This is a this is something that, you know, it's been a lot on my mind lately. I know that there has been a lot of work put into this for a ve ry, very long time, you know? From my colleagues as well as from. You know, the community. I want to thank all the community members that have really stepped up and have really invested their time throughout the years in getting us to this point. I know that for me, something like this is very important because. It affects a lot of the people in my district having three elementary schools right here, but close to the 710. I can't help but think about the children that are affected that grow up with having all kinds of. Illnesses due to the quality of the pollution that we have here. And, you know, so this is very important to moving forward and, you know, creating some kind of solution now. You know, I'm very supportive of coming up with solutions, you know, and finding out more information on how we can make this happen. I know that, you know, we're still in the beginning stages of this to some sort. You know, to some people it might feel like that, even though to others that might feel like we've been at this for years and years. So I really look forward to to working together not only as as a council, but working together as a as a city, as a community to really bring forward these, you know, these these creative solutions that will help everyone at the end of the day. So with that being said, I would like to make a sub sub. And in that self-serve, I think I would want to include Kevin. Getting back some of the original message and also including on their letter of a letter the. Intent. So that we could move forward. But with that, I would also like to include working with with the city I'm sorry, a letter of intent and working with the city and having city staff work with development services on every step of the way and having six months check in. And also I would like to propose that I know that it is expensive but that. You know, but in the long run, I think that we owe it to our constituents, to our city, to our residents to move forward with this. And actually. So first of all, city staff are trying to break it up into pieces. But if you could tell me what your what you're following as of right now, please. This is Charlie Parker in Council Member. I'm not clear on your substitute substitute motion. The original motion was to prepare and send a letter of interest along with a contract to receive additional information. There's a substitute motion that would shorten the time period from the city of Long Beach from two years to one year. And then, as I understand what you mentioned, is that you wanted to make a substitute substitute motion to send a letter of intent or a letter of interest. And then I didn't know it was six month check in. I'm sorry. It was a letter in intent, please. Not a letter of interest. I confused myself. A letter with a six month check in. And just to be clear, the letter of intent is. A more formal process that will. Move this forward. A letter of interest will allow us to collect data and analyze that data. Thank you for clearing that up for me. Yes. Letter of interest. Thank you. So as a as I understand it right now, there's not a substantive difference between your motion and the original motion as made by Council member Pierce. Yes. Except for the. I do want to include there's a six month check in and shorten the and shorten the time to one year as well. Kind of like would be a combination of both. Thank you. Okay. Thank you. So there is a sub sub for Don. I need a second on the sub sub, please. Second. I'll second that, Mr. Mayor. Okay. That's Councilmember Richardson. Okay. Still have I still have folks queued up council returns. Did you want to talk to me? Can I just go to the last. Call, Mr. Mayor? Go. Go ahead. Okay. Well, spoke a bit earlier. I hear the concerns on both sides. I want to sort of simplify this. The concern, the readiness I heard was about making a decision or committing staff to do you know what Tom said? You know, he's going to have to take some of the best people and focus it. This motion that Councilwoman Sun has as it doesn't encumber staff to reprioritize projects. It's really about getting additional data and information. It doesn't fly the cities and allows us to get through a very difficult year that we have. You know, I've heard on I've heard a number of folks say, hey, two years is too long. This says, hey, let's give it a year. Come back to it. I think that's fair. I think that's fair enough. So I think this is a good compromise motion here. If folks are concerned about what the what the cost is, the 30, $35,000, I think city staff can come back with some options for us to consider. I'm sure there are some ways to look at paying for discretionary dollars, look at the budget process. I even think this may be something we look to see if there's $5 to help support. But I really don't see a downside with this motion. A lot of people are invested in our climate, invest in our future. And so it's important to me that folks feel included and feel good about this process. As we understand and address our concerns, we should be able to express that this is something we're going to continue to take seriously and not just going to delay for two years. So I encourage I think this is a good compromise motion. I think the city council should adopt this. I'm going to support this motion. I strongly encourage the city council, adopt this and looking forward. Thank you. Okay. Count Councilor Ringa. Thank you, Mayor. And I want to thank my colleagues for the comments they've been making on this. I've been listening with a great amount of interest. I didn't say anything on the eight and ten because I thought that was just a stack of audio as we see the file. So I didn't really chime in too much. And now I'm feeling that this is where we need to really put our money, where our mouth is. And if we want to have an interest in creating a either as a separate JPA or a separate CTA or joint CPA doesn't matter to me. What matters is having th e complete and full information that allows us to make a complete decision that is full of information and that makes us feel comfortable in whatever decision or whatever direction we take on this. So I am supportive of the subject to such a motion because it does it is a compromise that brings the two motions together to their interest, which would provide more information for us to evaluate and look at. And it also includes a when you can arrive closer to that would bring it that much sooner to us. You know, there was an analogy made about the 35,000 to go to dance. While you know what you're looking at going to the prom, you make a commitment, you pay for your tickets, you buy a dress where you get a title, you get the concert, you get whatever it is, and you get ready for the best. And then we present your ticket. They let you in. So this is pretty much along the same lines, literally. It's great to have somebody to dance. So the end of the day, it's how we react to the information we receive. And I'm really looking forward to serving this not further to getting all the information we need to make a real sound and a decision that will be best for not only our communities but regional as well, that we what I represent, which is an area that that is more important than a freeway and a river runs to it. And I got a lot of the last few weeks and said, I'm definitely interested in trying to lower our carbon footprint, looking at getting rid of our gas, our greenhouse gases, and moving forward with an electrical electrical energy plan that the Lord supports. So I have support with that subsidy. Thank you. Thank you. Councilmember over now. Thank you. I actually queued up so long ago, I think we were just I think it was before the submission. So I guess I'd like to just comment on the last two comments. And that is, I believe the compromise was made when the length of time was changed from two years to one year, and that was in exchange for removing the $35,000 letter. So for that reason, I go back to the original point was our unanimous vote on item ten seems to be in conflict with what this sub sub is. So I. Will not be. Supporting the subs for that. Reason. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I want to appreciate all of the comments from the public, from staff, also my colleagues on this very important issue. You know, I did have some came into this this evening on on the fence. And I'm still not exactly sure what we are seeking to accomplish with the substitute motions of the. And I agree with councilmember supernormal. Item ten seem to be pretty resolute. And in item ten it directs the city manager to prepare a study that does an analysis of governance options, including forming a standalone city enterprise, creating new joint powers authority with another interested public agency, or joining an existing JPA. There there are a number of directives in the the item previous to the one that we are here now that I rea

Ily think accomplishes the same thing and shows that our city is very much interested in TCAS or looking at alternatives to what we have today in terms of energy. And so I'm a little perplexed with the urgency, particularly when we have discussed the the financial uncertainty that we face right now as a city. And I'm just saying everything is. Is related to timing here. Of course, it is feasible. And we've we've walked down that path already. We understand the feasibility of the question, I guess, to me is, is the most impractical and irresponsible for us to move in this direction right now? I'm not so certain of that, so I don't think I'll be supporting the motion on before us right now. And I certainly hope we can come together with the Council and understand that again, we voted 902 to receive a final report and give our city managers, our city manager, clear direction on how to move forward on this issue. I support that. Thank you, Councilmember. Councilmember Pearce. Thank you, everyone. I hope that we can. Do great mine. Do you mind if everyone goes? It hasn't gone first. And I go back to the people that are. Well, they're gone. There's some misunderstandings on the floor of the floor. Good. Thank you. I appreciate everyone's comments on this. And I think that this is not something that is in contradiction to the last item. Mainly, this is something that operationalize is the vote that we took before. And the money is not necessarily to give directly to CPA. It's money for the exact same consultants to do a deeper dive. And it was my understanding that we might have some money left over from our contract with IMR. W is that true? City Manager. I'm going to ask, um, Chris or Bob or John to answer that more specifically. If the question I understand is where the $35,000 goes, it goes to CPA to cover their costs for doing a study, whether they want us to join or to allow us to join CPA. Now, of course. The question is the money. It's my understanding and I know that we've got both the consultants on here and RW and CPA. It's my understanding that the money is used for M RW to do the deeper analysis along with CPA and that we would be billed later on for the balance that $35 is the cap, but we'd be billed for the balance. Not that it's something we would have to allocate today. So I'm not sure if one of them wants to clarify on that process. And then I'd like to talk about resources for funding that. It's certainly my understanding that and this is from CPA, that we would pay them directly $35,000. I am so CPA. I believe that that Ted is still on the call. It's sad. Yes, yes, I'm. I'm. I'm here. Can you do this for me? Yeah. So the vast majority of the data that was in the feasibility study talked about the financial viability of of. Of China's Long Beach starting its own care. We have a different cost structure. We have a different rate structure than was studied in that in that in the feasibility study. So we need to look at it from our perspective and our data to know if it's viable if it's a viable option that you would like to consider. That costs consulting dollars, and every penny that you would pay us would go to M. RW, who is already your consultant to undertake the study using our cost structure, our load profile, how you would fit in, in addition to the fact that we already have built reserves over time. So it's it would be a reimbursement to CPA that would for the charges that are w would would fill us. But there's no financial benefit to Clean Power Alliance in this arrangement. Thank you for that. And so I just wanted to make sure that we were clear that this is something just to extend us to be able to do that deeper dive and just operationalizing the task that we already voted on. And so I know what, Matt, I know that everybody's received a lot of calls on this. I know we've got a lot of community. I think there's a lot of knee jerk responses from some not the council per se, but other folks. Um, there's I am fine to put whatever resources I can use from my discretionary funds to move forward on this. I think that it is the right step. But I also believe that that we've identified that we need to spend resources for the CPA or not the CPA before the cap, and that these resources are in line with the goals that we've already identified as as a city. If we do not take this step, then we are. There's not resources there to make sure that we're getting the data and information that so many of the community members have asked us for. I'd also like to address that there aren't just costs associated with joining us. There's costs with not joining us. There's a ton of reports out there, and I know that we don't have this data in front of us, and I hope it comes forward with this with the CAP discussion. But we spend three we spend 200 and $224 billion a year based on climate health outcomes as a country. So there are a lot of costs, but I think that this is a middle road. I think respect for the fact that we've all been going through a lot of process. I was completely surprised by the fact that Edison was invited to participate today. I know that there are community members that have a lot of questions about the appearance of conflict of interest, because we as a city are a member of support and super does, you know, isn't somebody that technically would go and advocate for clean energy. I know that that we are part of five other associations that have to deal with the oil industry. We need to have that debate and that conversation down the road. I tried not to have it today, but I think that if we don't vote to help operationalize the previous vote that council took, that it will appear as such. And so I'm really asking as respectfully as I can for my colleagues to see that this is a pretty soft landing compared to where the community members have been advocating for and those that were supportive of it last week before they changed. Community members and organizati ons that decided to change their mind. It's a good process to go through and we just need to be able to have the resources to do it. So I don't know that I have 35. I probably do, but I do think that it is resources that we should all be spending together. So I'd like to hear counsel conversation just on those facts, please. Thank you. Thanks. Mary Andrews. Oh, no, no. I'm sorry. Councilman Mongo. Thank you. Councilwoman Pearce, I really appreciate your comments. I came into the day with a very open mind and I still have a very open mind. I think that the challenge I have is that some of the statements being made are in conflict with what I'm hearing. So I want to make sure that I'm hearing correctly because I don't think that we're in the same place. You're saying that we are going to look at more information, but the information that the $35,000 pays for is not information for us. It is actually information for them. It doesn't concern us what their rate loads are. That's for them to know if they want to invite us. It's still unsure if we want to be invited. And as a kind of a single mom who was barely able to afford to go to prom, I didn't get to buy a ticket. I didn't put forward the money until I knew I could afford to go. And right now we are in some very uncertain times. And it sounds to me like you don't even know if your budget has the 35,000. I think 35,000 is a small investment. We've already spent over 200,000. So I'm not as conflicted about just the amount. But here we're talking about. When else to do the study of their organization on whether or not they want to invite us to the party. When we're not sure we want to go to the party. And so I actually thought I would be in a different place now than I was before. And it happened to me a few times over the last week. I think that's part of the process of really listening to that and kind of waiting it out. I want to know, quite frankly, if we can get to this clean energy point without taking the risks. But I do want Southern California Edison to take us seriously and want to have that timeline condense to one year, because I don't want to be sitting around twiddling their thumbs if they don't come to the table with an offer that is exceeding what their current performances. And so I think that we are in a really great position with what was passed in item. And so I really appreciate Mary's efforts to create a soft landing. I think item ten can already accomplish that. So I'll be supporting the substitute motion, not the item on the floor. Thank you. Thank you, Vice Mayor Andrews. Yes, thank you, Mayor. I've been listening to everyone who tries to speak on this, but we're going to do a, you know, potentially raise rate for prices, you know, for players prices. I think we need to do more outreach. And that's why I'm going to support, you know, council members prices, price, emotions that we can so we can, you know, study this for one more year instead of two and come back with a r ecommendation on the CTA when we are hopefully recovering from this pandemic. Everything else is going on in and, you know, economy. And thank you very much, Mayor. Thank you, vice mayor. Next up is councilwoman. Pierce. Thank you, Mayor. I do have 35 and I'm committed to raise that money. I guess the question that I. I would ask one more time is the fact, you know, I know that the staff's presentation had a lot of conversation about risk. I read the full report. It is feasible. And I do think that we are at a place where we deserve to get more info. It is info about what it would look like if Long Beach joined EPA. They might come back and say it's not feasible. And I think that that is a very solid next step that doesn't require staff time. So I respectfully would ask council members in De Haas to amend or accept my friendly to pay for the 35 K out of my own divide by nine and and include that in your motion and see if possibly taking that off the table will allow us to vote today instead of having a split vote. Council members and de Haas. Do you accept my friendly. I do. Thank you. Councilor Pearce. Anything else? No, I have lots of comments, but I think that the the view of the conflict of interest, for one, and I just hope that we can move forward today and and get to a place where we can clean up our environment and take the appropriate next steps. Thank you. Okay. That concludes the we do public comment on this. I think we did have a comment already, correct? Correct. Yes. We completed public comment on this item. Okay. Next item is 12. Please report from Parks, Recreation and Marine recommendation to receive and file a report on the DeForest Park Vision Plan District nine. Take the negative motion in a second, please. Can I get a second? Okay. Second Council is in the house. Can I get the member of the public please comment. Our first speaker is Alexander Young. What? Hello. Yes. Please begin. Me. Hi. Yeah. Good evening, honorable members. My name's Alex Chung, and I represent City Fabric. We're a local nonprofit design studio located here in Long Beach, and we're dedicated to reshaping communities through collaborative design, planning and policy development and advocacy. We have the honor of providing capacity to the Report Park Vision Plan Team through community engagement, design and planning. Working closely with the City of Long Beach Conservation Corps of Long Beach, Campfire, Angela's Council, the Forest Park Neighborhood Association, and the larger the fourth Park community over the past year. And just wanted to state that we're in full support of this vision plan. And we want to emphasize how much this vision plan and the process of developing it was a community led and data driven process. We held three rounds of public outreach using both online and in-person tools and shared in multiple languages for people of all ages and abilities. As a nonprofit dedicated to serving communities in need, we have we have been working with Knauf on these for several years now, on several projects related to parks and open space. And we find that the area has 2.9 acres of open space per 1000 residents, which is in stark contrast to the citywide average of 5.6 acres of open space per 1000 Long Beach residents across the city. So we hope that the City Council and City of Long Beach will favorably choose to invest in the fourth park, and we hope to continue working with the community to realize their vision. Thank you, Councilmembers. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you. With that, please go ahead. Actually, Cosmo Richardson, did you do you have any comments or do you want answer? You want to start quickly? I got comments in the staff report. Why don't we do let's go ahead and do I do want you to comment first s ort. Of a turn. Absolutely. And we're going to suffer for this. Great. Well, so this is an important project. I want to say thanks to staffer for their work on this. This was sort of the third master plan, open space master plan in the series of master plans that the ninth District has has led over the last five years or so. First was the the uptown open space plan. Second was the Halton Park Master Plan. And now we're moving on to the the fourth part plan. And we find is investing in these plans really puts us in a position to actually bring down draw down additional regional resources and state resources in order to implement some of the changes in our in our parks. And additionally, the Speaker mentioned the open space deficit. We have to be really creative about finding opportunities to expand open space. And so we're really proud of all of these plans, but especially this one here with the Forest Park plan, particularly in the way that it's. We're partnering this with Conservation Corps and Campfire to implement a better vision for a cleaner and safer and more active Forest Park. So that said, let's hear the staff report. Thank you, Mr. and Mr. Richardson. We will be getting a staff report from Brant Dennis, our director of Parks and Rec and Recreation, and Meredith Reynolds. Thank you. City manager, honorable mayor and members of Council were real pleased to bring presentation before you this evening for the Forest Park Vision Plan. I'd like to introduce Meredith Reynolds, who's our bureau manager of Parks Planning and Partnerships. I'll provide a brief presentation. Thank you, Meredith. Thank you. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the city council will walk you through a presentation here this evening that outlines the effort for the Diverse Park Vision Plan. This vision plan is meant to provide the strategic guidance for future investments and improvements to this park to maximize the impact and best serve the community to enhance the overall park user experience. This particular vision plan was funded in collaboration with our partners. We have worked with the Conservation Corps, Campfire Angeles Council, City Fabric and the Ninth District to put this together. This is also part of kind of a larger investment from our proposal and grant funds. With the partners here. You'll see two other items on the council agenda this evening related to right of entry permits. These are early action projects that came from this plan. And I just wanted to point this out in advance before jumping into the vision plan. So there is some additional funds from the Conservation Corps of Long Beach that they were able to secure for an early action project that you'll see in the vision plan for an environmental center and also a proposed right of entry for Campfire Angeles for some trails project that they were able to secure grant funds from the Port of Long Beach as another early action project. With these two items, should they be approved this evening, we wou ld be returning to the City Council in a future meeting for long term leases for these partners to operate and continue their investment in the park. Back to the vision plan. As a councilmember mentioned, this is a long term effort that began earlier in 2016 with the L.A. County identifying North Long Beach as having a very high need for parks. And that was followed by the Uptown Open Space Vision Plan, which identified a series of parks in need for vision plans and improvements . And we began this effort in August of 2019, where we were able to perform some site analysis, park assessment. And that was followed by a series of workshops through the spring, both with in-person stakeholder engagement when it was possible, and then online engagement when it was not due to COVID. The item went to the Parks and Recreation Commission in June, and we're here before you today. Part of our work on this includes existing conditions and analysis of the existing plans. You can see here some of those demographics that we paid attention to and that we sought out as a part of reviewing existing conditions. Overall, through the series of engagements, we held 13 public workshops and stakeholder meetings. We had 156 park assessment and community surveys completed, and all in all of which you will see seven ideas that culminated into the final idea that is in the vision plan. The park assessment was where we have folks go out into the park and evaluate what they see using a paper survey tool. So we did two of these at two different days, two different times. We had 22 park assessment participants. These were available in multiple languages. And really here, trying to get a sense of the kind of first person experience from our users. Then we held our first series of workshops. We had three of them. They were the same content, just different days and times in multiple languages. And we had an activity board, as you see here in the photo. These are some of the ideas that came out of that activity. And so we had little kind of player chips that would indicate whether there was good placement or bad placement of existing amenity, good activity, bad activity where there were opportunities and challenges and participants got to put their activity chip on a large scale map to indicate what they saw during their site assessment. You'll see here the different sections of the park. And here is the south end of the park. From there, we ask some additional questions through some public surveys. We found that the park is active and very active during the day and the night and throughout the entire week. We heard a lot about the convenience of being able to walk from the neighbors neighborhood into the park. There is a lot of attractiveness of the park because of the trails and the new wetlands just south of the park. And there were a lot of information that the community was able to provide about some of the improvements they would like to see. From there, we had a second series of workshops, four of them in all for the community, and then three specific stakeholder workshops where the community was able to take a activity board again and sort of more in-depth design their park as they would like to see it in the future. So here are the different ideas that came out of the different groups through this community engagement. And you'll see in the legend, in the bottom right corner the different types of activities people had identified. So arts and education programs, events. Fitness and health classes. Sports. Park improvements. Youth programs. And other. And then finally in the third workshop series, we whittle it down to two ideas, and folks were able to view that during our virtual public workshop in a follow up survey. So here are some of the types of questions where we were able to really clarify what the community wanted to see. So they preferred design. Number two, they had some preferences related to replacing the existing community center and maximizing space. And then there were some concerns about unsafe driving behavior. And so what additional kind of safe streets improvements might be useful? There's a handball court that separates the park and provides a visual barrier. There was support for removing that in favor of other activities. You'll see some of the different kinds of levels of demand for the different play here. And then finally, I asked we asked about prioritizing small projects, medium projects and large scale projects to get a sense of folks sequencing and priority. After all of that, here is a final vision plan concept. Going from north to south. In this case, it is right to left. The northern part of the park was identified for a discovery trail and use camping access to Los Angeles River as well as some fitness stations. There is ideas to have a environmental education center and enhance the community center and entry plaza. There is a desire to have some community gardens where the playground exists now and pulling the playground to the front of the park where there's eyes on the children and you can easily access it without changing the grade or a kind of right off of the parking lot. There was a desire to extend the Nature Trail and Creek to have a small dog area, a community amphitheater and plaza where the handball court used to be, and then continuing some of the walking and skiing pedestrian and bike improvements and making sure that the fields were playable with the new concession stand and restroom toward the southern end near the ballfields. I'll give you a sense of some renderings of what this could potentially look like when all phases are complete, once funding has been identified. Here you will see that Re-Envisioned playground in front of the courts next to on street parking. And then finally here you can see the amphitheater and these sports fields with some embankment seating and that the topography allows for at this particular location. I mentioned some of the early action projects and the funding that has been secured. So the Conservation Corps has secured additional funding for the Environmental Education Center, and CAMPFIRE has secured that grant from the Port of Long Beach. So we do have a lot of momentum built behind this plan and this effort. With that, I will conclude the presentation and I will stop sharing my screen and will be available for questions. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Mr. Vice Minister, so quickly, I thought there were two slides from the the items that are coming up next. If we could just see those. If we can see those, that will be helpful. So we don't have to do a presentation on the next two items that are related. Happy to. Just one moment. There you are, sir. Okafor There was a rendering of the

stewardship center. There's no rendering the stewardship center. And we consolidated it into this presentation. If you give me one moment, we're going to pull that off for good. If you wouldn't mind, just send that over to me and I'll share. Another community, members of the Forest Park are really excited about this. And thank you. I just want to thank you to sit, you know, Meredith and everyone on the team that's worked hard, especially our partners, Conservation Corps and Campfire, who have stepped up to really adopt this park and to offer services to the broader North Beach community. It's kind of a big deal. Campfire was in North Long Beach before the 91 Freeway was established and 91 freeways brought in. They moved their facilities. They acquired facilities in East Long Beach and left North Long Beach. And with this project, it's pretty cool because it's a part of Hitler Family's history returning. So as a part of the Uptown Renaissance, if you will. So thank you all for your time and indulging us. And congratulations to the Forest Park neighbors. Thank you. And we do have a comment on this already. Yes, we did. Okay, fine. Would you please come up the vote? District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. By District six. By District seven. By District nine. Buy motion carries. District two are. District three are District four. My District five. District six. I. District seven. District eight. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Item 69 Report from Energy Resources Recommendation to adopt a resolution to address certain natural gas transmission rates and adopt a resolution to increase Low-Income Gas discount rate from 5% to 20% citywide. Okay. I got a motion by Councilmember Pierce Second Councilman's and has. I don't see any public comment. Correct. No, we have Tiffany Davey. Oh, sorry about that. Good evening, Disney baby again. I do the concert. I know the very item. I believe 79. In regards to moving item to. The December 1st meeting, which. We don't know what that will be. It's one of 69. I would have supported moving another right. Of course. However, I would have supported moving this item to the December 1st meeting. I do. Sup port the increase of the discount to the lower income. Persons. However, I don't support raising utility. Rates. During a pandemic. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes our public comment for this item. Okay. We're going to do roll over. District one. District two by district three. District four. All right. District five. By District six. Right? District seven. I. District eight. Where District nine. All right. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. We're going to skip 72. 71. Please report from Human Resources recommendation to adopt a resolution approving a memorandum of understanding with the Service Employees International Union located at 712. Or Local 71721 citywide. Okay. Thank you. Item 64. Recommendation to consider a request from community members to name the Bixby Dog Park. Dr. Myrna, Mickey Donohoe, Dog Park, and refer this item to the Parks and Recreation Committee for consideration. Customer appears. Thank you, Mayor. And this item is one that is dear to our heart. We know that the second District Dog Park is something that we did in our first year in office. And we did it with the support of Dr. Mickey Donahue, who really had been a big advocate to ensure that we activated parcel. One of the dog park was so fortunate to have Mickey as an advocate from its inception. Her tireless persistence benefited the park in so many ways, including the establishment of our nonprofit status through Partners of Park, the addition of new safer benches in the small dog area, a kiosk for notices and community engagement, the regular delivery of wood chips and mulch to mitigate dust. Mickey was always respectful in her approach and her intention with everyone, regardless of who they were or what their background was. Myra passed away last month. Too much of us, you know, broken down and sad for this. So we were approached by the dog park and everybody, not only at the dog park, but the friends of Bixby Park and made a speech neighborhood association all support naming this dog park after Dr. Myra Donahue. So I encourage my council colleagues to support this motion. I want to make sure that this goes not only to the Parks Rec and Marine, but that it also goes to our Neighborhoods Committee. This won't be a process that I get to set to finish through, but I know that the Second District residents are committed to seeing this process follow through to the end. So with that, I encourage my colleagues support. Thank you. Councilman Price. Mr. Mayor, I'm happy to second this item. And I know that council district to and council district three split the cost of the dog park. And that's a space in our borders that I'm super proud to have. And I appreciate Councilwoman Councilmember Pearce bringing this item forward. I think it's it's very fitting that this dog park would be named after such a strong advocate and someone who the community has so much respect for. And I'm in total support in agreement of this item. So thank you, Council Member Pearce for bring

covered logs, kiosk and the drinking water features we are now enjoying their were achieved through her respectful perseverance in working with all the stakeholders involved. It would be a joy to see her remembered this way. Thank you. Our next speaker is Thomas Donahoe. I think it's fitting to name this dog park. Dr. Myrna Mikita. Who? Dog Park. She advocated for the dog park since its inception, and she realized the need for a dog park in this neighborhood with so many apartment blocks, with pets in the area. And that's why she was devoted to it. She was always building community support even before the board was established. Her colleagues voted her as the first president of the Friends of Dog Park, and he worked tirelessly for the dog park. She organized community events. She developed social media sites for the dog park. She organized community cleanups and would spreading tips. Many a Saturday she would have 50 volunteers at that park working. She's instrumental in getting the water fountains out for for our furry friends. She made this a real community dog park, and it's only fitting she'd be honored in this way. Thank you. Thank you. Castle. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you. Craig, would you please call for the vote? Can we please get a mover in a second here on this item? Councilmember Pierce is the motion. The second Suzy Price is the second, I think. I guess I'm the second to thank you. Thank you. District one. Very heartfelt. Yes. District. Very heartfelt. Yes. District three. Yes. District Court. All right. District five. I district. By District seven. Hi. District eight. District nine. Ocean carries. Thank you. The next at number 65. Okay. 49, please. Each report from Human Resources recommendation to adopt a resolution approving an exception to the 180 day waiting period for public agencies to hire Charles Tripp for a limited duration to work in the Energy Resources Department citywide. Public comment, please. Yes, we have Dave Shukla. Dave Shukla. Did she go on sale? I have a host of questions about her facility, but it's really one of the important. So this is not dancing or prefer. Can we pipe offshore wind perhaps from the far side of Catalina Island where that generation sources know what is the relative toxicity of the ash that we pay people to bury? What are the processes? That are only known to a handful of people that might just by chance have already been lost this year. Four. Continue to keep the facility open. And do we have any estimates of the total amount of black carbon that has been absorbed into the local environment? From that facility. Over the past. Couple of years that we haven't really been monitoring anything by a whole bunch of other things as much nationally, but even locally we've kind of a bit less. I'd love to talk to Mr. Tripp, frankly. Thank you for your time. Thank you. That concludes public comment. Roll call vote. Actually, I need a motion in a second, please, on t his item. Motion pocket. General roll cover, please. I. Sorry. But who is the maker of the Motion Mayor District? I think it was Pierson in the house. Thank you. District one. I'm District two, i district three, i district four. All right. District five. District seven. By. District eight. I. District nine. Ocean carries. I? Yes. I'd like to make a motion to postpone this to the next. To the next meeting. Okay. Is there a second? Second, my customary ringa is right. Is there any public comment on the on the postponement? Yes. First speaker is Anna Wong. We have several public speakers. Mayor on on the item, if we're going to postpone the item. Mr. City Attorney. I think the motion's on postponement, correct? That's correct. But they're they're given the opportunity to speak if they want to speak to the item of continuing it to the next week. OC What's going to go through that, Madam Clerk? The first. Pictures. Anna Wong. I'm fine with continuing. Okay. Thank you. Our next speaker is Jacqueline Case. Good morning. Commander. Yes, good morning. Yes, I actually the values of tonight's presentation are lost due to items still pending an investigation. So I would have the support to postpone 52 and postpone it for for not just until next week, but 90 days. Thank you. Our next speaker is Christine O'Malley. Her steamer, Amélie. Our next speaker is Michelle Baker. Michelle Baker. Hi. Good morning. My name is Michelle Baker, a resident of District two and business owner in District three. I am asking that the vote for item 52 be postponed for 90 days. So the community has an opportunity to review the detailed plan and to have public comment. I would also like to thank council members Pearce, Place and Mango, who have been tireless advocates for the shelter animals improving health. I also want to wish Councilmember Janine Pearce all the best for future endeavors. Thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker is Laura Silver. You are. Hello. Good morning. My name is Laura Silver and I want to thank counsel who are working late. I do support the postponement. We have been urging a postponement of 90 days or more. So there is public review and comment and I appreciate your time and thank you for your service to Long Beach. Thank you. That concludes further comments and some. Okay. There is a motion then to postpone. Concern for Pierce. Did you want to go ahead and comment? Yes. It actually going to make the motion to postpone for a date and a date certain of March 2nd. Councilmember Mongo. I just want to appreciate Councilmember Pearce for giving. I know that it's meant a lot to her to be a part of this item, and it's important to the community to have the opportunity to add additional input. And I think a date certain of March 2nd would be an appropriate amount of time. Thank you. To roll call vote, please. District one. I am. District two. I. District three. District four. High five. High District seven. District eight. District nine. Motion carries. Okay, grea

t. We're going to go back to the agenda. We have two hearings. One side is to hearing tape. Thank you. Next item is item 65. Communication from Councilmember Pearce. Councilwoman Zendaya's Councilmember Miranda Recommendation to request city manager to report back on enforcement for violations of the city's health order. That's a reverse. Thank you, Mayor. This item came up from a letter that came from the commission, from our health commissioners. Many people have been asking us about what we're doing on enforcement for mask. As we recently discussed in this council meeting. We've had to close down our economy because we've had COVID cases on the rise. It's very difficult to see some of our small businesses closed whenever we see in some places that people aren't following the rules and that it's those rules that are being broken that are leading to some of our high cases. So I've asked the city manager just to share briefly what the process currently is for enforcing our mask. And then I'm asking the city manager to come back to the council with some examples of what other cities have done. I know that there's some people that are saying other cities are enforcing and other cities aren't. So that's the gist of this item. Tom, could you please share just briefly what the enforcement is for the public? Yeah, just briefly. So we do have a requirement in our health order to mask and wear face coverings. We've been having a pretty strict run in since the very beginning of the pandemic, and we are now currently aligned with what the state law is, which is essentially that it needs to be worn almost at all times. It's subject to a couple of exclusions and it is a violation of the health order with a misdemeanor. Generally, when our team sees people, whether that be our health team, our code enforcement or even police officers are called, we tend to see pretty good compliance where when we ask them, they put on a mask or they are . And at times we also hand out mass. We have youth ambassadors who go into hotspots and they can actually hand people masks. And a lot of times when a youth hands you a mask and asks you to wear it, we get good compliance. There are times where people do not want to do that, and that's where enforcement becomes difficult. So, you know, that would technically be a misdemeanor or a criminal citation. So we're happy to look into if other cities have done that. There are some concerns about just staffing impact of having police officers do that, plus the potential for uses of force and things that we want to avoid, as well as whether or not that would be fired upon as a misdemeanor site. On the other hand, if it's civilian ized, you know, that would be a different approach. But if the person does become, you know, combative with the employee, that does put the employee at some risk. So we're happy to talk to some other departments or I'm sorry cities and see what if they found a better solution to do it. I know there's a couple of examples and we'd be happy to do the research. Thank you so much for that, Tom. I did get a good group of community members that shared their input. I think that what I've what I've heard from my constituents is that they want to feel safe and they want to see that the city is taking our mask mandate seriously. Having police officers be the ones that are enforcing that is something that a lot of my constituents, at least in the second District, would not like to see. Having civilians being able to hand out, mask or do more education on it is definitely something that they support. I think that you've also done a good job about having the Health Department go in to businesses that might not be adhering to the health order, and that that is another area of enforcement. And so making sure that whenever you bring back for city staff or for the council to look at, that you're including all of those ideas as well. So that that was suggestive of my item. I'm happy to hear from council colleagues again, not giving a lot of direction today, but want to make sure that we're doing our part as much as possible. And let me close out with the one last statement that I think is included in the item as well. I know that I have personally called you Tom on a number of occasions. Whenever we have seen police officers not wearing their mask, I've had a case outside my house and there was a car accident and I had to go up to the police officers and tell them to put their mask on when they were dealing with the people that were in the accident on Pine and Broadway. And so could you talk a little bit about what we're doing whenever we see our city employees out there not adhering to our health order? Yes. As city manager, it is my expectation that all of our employees wear masks. That has been a constant message since the beginning. But we are ramping up the enforcement of that as well. And particularly in the last couple of weeks, the police department has put in a number of very specific directions about the requirement for officers to be wearing masks. And that's not just MPD. That's, you know, he's doing it there, but it's elsewhere as well. And there will be discipline that is associated with that if we're not getting compliance. So if you do see those, please let us know. We do follow up with employees and. Remind them of the rules and take progressive steps if we need to. Thank you. With that, I ask for my council colleagues support. Thank you. Customers are being asked. Thank you. I'm happy to second this motion and to for this request. I, too, have seen a lot of my residents asking for more enforcement when it comes to mask wearing. So I think this is very important. I also heard from my constituents, my residents said they also would prefer that it's not our police officers because I think we're all immigrants, that they are they have other more I don't want to say more important tasks to handle, but there are other calls that need their immediate attenti on. So if we can rely on our on our city staff and I'm super glad that, you know, we have programs that pass out mask, I think that, you know, having a mask at hand makes a big difference. So I think you and I hope that we continue to, you know, to give those out as much as possible. And if you're a first District resident and you need a mask, please don't hesitate to call my office. I'd be more than happy to help you out with that. So thank you with that. I think next is customary. Ranga then Councilman Mongo. Thank you, Mayor. I think it's important that we keep in line with whatever is going on in the communities around us. And I'm looking forward to see what the city manager can discover in their research and bring it back to seek elsewhere. Consideration. Thank you for emerging, Pierce, for bringing this forward. I think it's important that we maintain some consistency with our colleagues as well as being able to address what's going on with COVID. It's been more than research that masks work and we need to continue that. Thank you. Thank you,

Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. I was trying to get some clarity from Mr. Modica and Mr. Modica. You're discussing specifically when staff are on duty or when staff are within the city limits, or what is the scope of the impact that you're discussing? Well, I would want all of our city employees to be good stewards in their private life. And when they're here as well, our directions are essentially that they have to follow the state health or the city health order, which is the state health order. And especially when they're on city property, when they are on duty, they should be wearing a mask. There are exceptions in the state law and in city law. My expectation is that those be exercised rarely because, you know, people don't always realize what the exceptions are. So there are going to be times where if we have a police officer chasing someone down, you know, in a in a crisis situation, that there may not be a mask on. But if you're doing normal interactions, there should be a mask on. And same thing for any other employee who's out there. So that is really the expectation that we've been trying to communicate. Well, today, around 130, I was walking my daughter to put her to sleep and taking a conference call, walking around my neighborhood. And I was approached by two individuals, both concerned about the health order and with a bunch of questions. I do appreciate that the Health Department does a great job of promoting on Twitter and Facebook, but I think it's really important that we recognize that a lot of our community does not have access to the Internet. They're older members of our community, and they're one of my more spry elderly neighbors. I don't know that she'd want me to call her elderly, but she's in her eighties. She said she doesn't know if she should be wearing a mask while she rides a bike. She has no intent of being within six feet of a person. She doesn't understand if that is n ecessary. I had to agree with her. She said, you know, walking alone. I don't walk near people. I walk into the street. I don't ever get within six feet of a person. Are are do I have to wear a mask? And I think these are good questions. And I don't think that we're going to have a high level of compliance with those types of areas. I have to agree with her. In many respects, it's harder for her to breathe with a mask on. She's older. So what do we what do we do in those cases? Those are both exemptions under the state health law or under the state health order. So if you are six feet away from anyone else, you do not have to have a mask. It has been updated recently that you need to carry it with you, so you need to have it with you at all times and in your pocket. And when you come in within six feet of somebody, you need to be masking up. So that would apply to someone riding a bike or someone walking alone in their neighborhood or with their family. And it would apply to workers as well. Okay. I'm going to try to see if I see her again tomorrow and give it to you. But the way that it was written on the document that she showed me that was published in a local paper, it had the word or except for next to it, and it read to me like it was all the time , unless you had a condition. So I don't know what we can do potentially if there's free ad space in local papers that we could help get that communication out to individuals. Because what she showed me, I said, you know, I'm happy to ask, but I don't know. And so we're just going to need help getting that message out to our community, because the main source that they have is the local paper and what they see on TV. Thank you. Sure thing. Thank you. Let's see who is next here. I have come to Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. I know this is you know, we're in a difficult time. We're all thinking about different ways to be helpful and encourage the right type of activity. I think, you know, there's people all over the place on this discussion on on masks. I think we all know masks are part of the solution. They help. They help people. They help slow down the spread, the transmission of the virus. I also know that, you know, as it relates to how we get people to wear masks, sometimes mandates, sometimes the mandates, depending on the angels and the details, how do we make sure that, you know, you get it? How do you actually enforce if you're not using police or others? Are you talking about hiring additional people to do it? I just have a lot of questions here to make it happen. And I agree that's not a position that you want to put the police department or the community in. So I agree with that point. But I also want to know just think about public health and what we've learned about enforcing, you know, war on drugs. We're on heroin. We've changed. We talk about education. We talk about harm reduction. No, you don't go out and say you don't have sex anymore. You say wear a condom. You don't say, you know, there's you know, this is a conversation on harm reduction. How do you encourage embrace this and be smart about it, I think. How do you enforce it in big box retailers that are still open? How do you how do you enforce that? Some of them enforce it very well, like Costco, but then Walmart does it. I think that's somewhere that we can control. I think our own employees, ensuring that our employees are really following the rules. Every department, our police department, any department that's out there, I think that is very clear is within the realm of our control. I think we just have to be very, very delicate in how we we talk about how we understand very clearly the impacts of of of the mandate and how to make sure that it doesn't have unintended consequences. So once we understand that threshold, I can support it, but I want to see more information. And that's what I'll support doing, you know, doing the research and understanding the feasibility. I want to see what our public health experts say about this issue. But but I do have my own concerns about it. But I think it's something that we should that's the conversation that we should have as a city. Thanks a lot. Okay. Thank you. That concludes, I think, council comment and the public comment on this. Yes. Our first segment is Tiffany Davey. Hey, good evening again. Tiffany David District from resident of the fourth District nearing midnight here. I agree with a lot of the comments that were made between council. I think it's truly important to have consistent. Messaging and consistent support by City Council for. Enforcement. However, there are. Very complex moving parts. To this crisis. I mean, the political motivation of response at the national level definitely. Didn't help local efforts. Potential to look into what disaster service workers can do in these spaces where we know that there are there's a need for folks to remove their mask when they go into. Big box stores for phone calls or whatever the nature. Of any. General case. And also look at the Covered Helpers. Page for the enforcement. Section. The language there could further state with clarity not just. Businesses, but rather the onus upon individuals as well. Thank you. Your next speaker is Christopher Robson. Christopher Ross. Hello, this is Chris Robson. And I'm a member of the. Can you hear me? Yes. Please continue. Hello. Okay. So I am a member of the Long Beach Board of Health and Human Services. I've had the position for three years and former chair that basically the issue is this is the law. It is a state mandate to wear a mask. It's not optional. It's not up to whether or not the police wish to enforce it or whether the city wants the police or anyone else to enforce it. The Long Beach Police Department had a photograph in the newspaper, The Post, with over 100 officers without masks on. You have to wear a mask. It's the only thing we've got until we have vaccination. The city has no. Way to make this optional, i t must be enforced. Doesn't have to be a misdemeanor, does not have to be criminalized, can be administrative, fine. Other jurisdictions throughout L.A. County have done this. From Glendale to Manhattan Beach, we need to enforce the mask ordinance. Period. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment. Thank you. Then we're going to do a roll call vote, please. District one. I am. District two. I. District three. A district for. My. District five. The. District seven. District seven. Hi. District eight. Yes, thank you. District eight. District nine. I. Motion carries. Great. Next item will be we're going we have we have two hearings which we haven't gotten to yet. So let's go out and do the tearing, which is item 28 and 29. You're. Item 28 Report from Economic Development Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing. Adopt a resolution. Actually, actually, you know what, Madam Court, let me do I have a request from Councilmember Pearce, and it is it is her last meeting. So we're going to we're going to take items 31 and 34. Thank you. Item 48, please. Communication from Councilwoman Mongo Councilwoman Price. Councilman Austin Recommendation directs City Manager to update the City of Long Beach COVID 19 Data Dashboard Report Back on our city's efforts to lobby our federal and state legislature for a community focused relief bill and bring back options to advocate for federal legislative action, support, deferment and forbearance of government backed Small Business Association loans. Councilman McGregor. Thank you. I know that the city has done an exceptional amount of work in lobbying the federal and state legislature. I know that people call our offices all the time or post on social media. The council's not doing enough. The council is not doing enough, and the council has taken action almost weekly as things have continued to change, to support workers and laid off individuals and parents and businesses. And I just think it's important that we communicate what we're doing so that people know that we're standing with them and fighting for them. Additionally, as we talked about earlier, the data transparency component is critical specifically. If we're going to use hospitalizations, that needs to be on the dashboard. I appreciate how quickly health and I.T. team came together to put that up. And I look forward to additional amendments to that page coming in the future. I hope I have the full council support. Councilman Price. I want to thank Councilwoman Margo for bringing this forward. And I look forward to our federal legislative committee looking at the option of what options are possible with the government that small business loans so that people aren't in default. Thank you. Public comment. Our first speakers, Dave Shukla. Eve Shukla. Yes. Sorry about that. I already made most my comments related to the issue of indemnity immunity, liability waivers, whatever they. This is. Important as are some of the changes that. We we had an election for a reason. From the changes in the society needed to be made for a couple of years that been delayed. It's late. I'll be brief. Please think carefully about what Norm institutionally are paying. I've been permitted and kind of allowed in this period of transition. Thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker is Tiffany, D.V.. Good evening, Kathleen Davey. Generally supportive. You know, all recovery and response efforts. However, an approaching recovery focus should be centered around all affected by that crisis. We can't afford to continue the misinformed, elitist of the public into believing any one sector. Is potentially experiencing greater losses. When we launched the first counties, state and city health orders. We did so specific purposes to slow the spread. Of COVID 19 and continue to address injuries. Losses and impacts on the weaknesses of a. Holistic, short, intermediate and long term strategic recovery plan. Further. I think that's expanding. Upon the why the enforcement. Does run the risk. Of potentially delegitimizing or undermining efforts. To combat the pandemic and already allocating potentially already scarce. Public service needs. Last couple of points, again, because it's time. I'd look to potentially appointing a local disaster recovery manager. For managing the recovery and assisting. The city manager potentially within that office. I also highlight that since this meeting began, L.A. County's two in one has. Sent out information about L.A. County residents receiving assistance from financial navigators. These are difficult times. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you. Roll call vote, please. District one district. I. District two. I. District three. I've. District four. All right. District five, I. District six. District seven. High District eight. I. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. Next item is item 65. Next item is 63. Communication from Councilwoman Zendejas. Councilmember Pierce. Councilmember Arango, Councilmember Richardson Recommendation to increase appropriations in the City Manager Department by 4000 to provide a contribution to Central Shore for their food distribution program. Okay. I don't have any public comment. Customers and they have mixed emotions. Don't give any comments. Councilman. Just really quick, I just wanted to thank Central Channel. It was a great event that we had with them and we were able to provide food for Thanksgiving for over 200 homes. So thank you very much for the help and the partnership in helping these families, especially during these unprecedented times. Thank you. Okay. There's a motion in a second by Councilmember Austin members. Is Gordon casseroles. District one. By. District two. I. District three. I. District Court. All right. District five. District seven. My District eight. Hi. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. Next up is item 35. I. Item 35. Is a communic ation from councilman's and day has councilmember Ranka and Vice Mayor Richardson. Recommendation. Recommendation to. Recommendation to request city attorney to drop an urgency ordinance to restore hero pay for frontline grocery workers at a rate of $4 per hour to sunset 120 days after the approval of the ordinance. Okay, Councilwoman. And down. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you to all my to my colleagues who helped me bring this item forward. Thank you for signing onto this very important item that we're discussing here today on this issue. Especially after when when we have had seven days average for new COVID cases in Lake County and above that 10,000 per day. And our regional I see you capacity has fallen below 2%. We are at a critical moment in this crisis when things are far more serious than at any other point this year. And we also know that some of the people most impacted by this pandemic are frontline workers. And among those that are most vulnerable right now are the grocery store workers. This is an item and an issue that is so important to me and to many of my residents in the first District. And it's so very important to me personally. I have had family members who have worked in the grocery stores and have tested positive for COVID. And after testing positive for COVID, they then brought it home to their family, their spouse, and affected the whole family. And the whole family struggled with COVID. And they're not far from being the only ones who have been impacted in this way from working at our grocery stores. This is something that I firmly believe in and in in the matter of equity, fairness. And it's a way that we as a city council can do a lot of good on behalf of our residents. In fact, the city of Los Angeles just moved forward with this very similar policy earlier today. So we even we're even lucky enough to have a bit of a road map from them on what the policy could look like. I'd like to just begin by. Though, by offering some brief clarifications as to what I'm hoping that this item will look like before we turn it over to discussion. First of all, I want to make it clear that this is priority for this is how these are paid to be available to all hourly paid members of stores and staff who are reporting to work during this this crisis, this pandemic. I know that there may be some concerns of enforcement, but one of the things is that I think that that we will this will be an ordinance that will be very similar to the I'm Sick leave ordinance that we brought forward a couple months ago during this year in the pandemic. Additionally, it is my hope that we can all incorporate specific language that prohibits any kind of retaliation against whistle blowers to report on companies who are not in compliance with this ordinance. And lastly, while this ordinance is set to sunset at 120 days after it's adopted, I would really like to see if staff could report back with options to potentially extend it if needed, especially because we are living in such uncertain times with this pandemic. And hopefully I'm hopeful that things will get better and that we won't need this as much then as we do now. But I hope that all of my colleagues will support this and support our. Frontline workers who are risking their lives every single day to bring food to our tables. And thank you. And with that, and I also would like to see if we have public comment, maybe we can hear the public comment before we hear from council. That would be great. We appreciate it. I'm sure Councilman Richardson is the second. Are you okay with that, councilman? That was on you? Absolutely. Vice mayor. Sorry. Okay. Let me go ahead. Go to the public comment. Our first speaker is Derrick Smith. Hi. My name is Derek Smith and the political director for us. 324. Good evening, Mayor. City Council. On behalf of my union, I'd like to congratulate new council members Alan and Sorrow for both. We're very happy for you both. I wish to speak in support of council members and they are in motion. Our local represents 1200 grocery workers in Long Beach and 18,000 grocery workers regionally. Intuitively, we know. The big box grocery retail. Has profited greatly from the change in shopping habits due to COVID and thanks to a study done by the Brookings. Institute. That intuition has been confirmed. According to the report, 2020. Has resulted in record profits for large grocery, retail. Amazon Whole Foods 53% profit above 2019. Walmart 45%. Kroger, which owns Ralphs 90%. Albertsons Vons 153%. In the beginning of this pandemic, all of these chains gave wage increases in acknowledgment for the health risks that essential workers are being asked to shoulder. Amazon, Kroger. Albertsons, Target gave $2 an hour hero pay. And in each example, hero pay was phased out in May or June. So as COVID cases spiked in the summer and again in the fall, these companies refused to reinstate here. Okay. And instead they opted to give small one time bonuses or even gift cards for store credit. It's simply not enough. Calling grocery workers heroes or essential is not enough. Our members didn't ask to be heroes, and they surely. Aren't paid like heroes. We can no longer rely on the industry to do the right thing. Compelling the industry to pay worker. Think your next speaker is Donna via Gomez. None of you, Gomez. Good evening to the members of the Long Beach City Council. My name is Donna via Gomez and I am a 35 year employee of Bonds grocery store. I work in the city of Long Beach, and I'm here today to identify myself as an essential worker. The governor has reinstituted another stay at home order, but my fellow grocery workers do not get to stay home. We are all scared of contracting the current COVID 19 virus. But we serve. We serve because it is our honor to serve. This is our community, our family. We keep our community healthy and nourish with food and friendship. But we receive little, if any, reward for putting our lives o n the line every day. Every contact with the public and our fellow employees put our lives at risk. We take all of the risk for little compensation for the company's profit growth. The workers is now the proverbial canary in the coal mine, waiting for an invisible enemy to take one of us. The grocery companies do not look out for their employees well-being. We have no cleaning staff disinfecting. We have no management overseeing the mess that Martha Warren. We have no one managing social distancing. We have no one monitoring cloud capacity. It appears to me that being an essential worker at bonds means that I am little more than slave labor and then expendable. We deserve to be paid hazard pay because we take all the risk. Thank you for listening, and I appreciate your help in this matter. Thank you. Your next speaker is Connor Collette. Can you hear me? Yes. Please begin. Hello? Okay. My. I'm. I'm Connor. And I wanted to call in on behalf of, like, the grocery workers and stuff. It's just like the last one made a point. We don't have extra crews. We don't have extra people to monitor the feed or the masks or anything like that. But all of that responsibility has been put on us as employees of Albertsons and Bonds and things like that. And we're not given extra time. We're not given extra money, we're not given easy, especially whenever we have so many employees like on the frontline, kind of support people that have that are that are either past the age of 5050 or they have like mental or physical disabilities. This is all of us having to work twice as hard during this time to keep up with new regulations, to keep up with everybody staying far enough apart, yet to call them to register. There's just so much extra work and we're not being compensated for that at all. And while if we were to contract the virus, which is highly likely because of what we do, if we were to contract the virus, yeah, we do that. Can we take time off? But what if what if the corona virus doesn't go away in two weeks? What happens to people? What if we have other financial concerns that we're not able to make up for it? We're not able to pay for because all we're getting is a base pay since we're out of six or so . Thank you. Your next speaker is Dorian Varner. Hello? Can you hear me? Yes. Please begin. Thank you. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members and congratulations to our newly elected. My name is Doreen Bonner. I am a resident of District one. As we all know, the COVID 19 pandemic has been ravaging our nation for more than nine months. And in that time, we have lost hundreds of thousands of people across the country, including hundreds in our own city, as our communities navigate their way through this crisis. One group of people has been consistently asked to show up on the front lines and the few places where many people are still legally allowed to congregate. And that's grocery store workers know in the beginning of the pandemic these people were g iven some hazard pay, as a previous commenter mentioned, which was an increase of about $2 an hour across most companies. However, in the time since, as we all know, this crucial boon has been rescinded that was once given to these workers and their families. And this is frankly nonsensical because the pandemic is now worse than it was during the initial lockdown period. And most of these grocery conglomerates, such as Kroger, Vons and Albertsons, have replaced it with bonuses that are dependent on hours worked, which is a solution that fails to give workers the financial leverage to take necessary time off if they are sick. Now, none of these options give workers the ability to properly provide for their families, while also accounting for the hazard of working during the worst global pandemic in 100 years. We must guarantee workers at these major store at least a $4 an hour rates for the next 120 days, especially considering that families rely heavily on grocery stores during the holiday season. It's time we start treating. I think your next speaker is Dr. Katie Dudley. Dr. Katie Dudley. Dr. Katie Dudley. If you're there, please remove yourself. Our next speaker, Dr. Katie Dudley. Yes. Hi. Good evening. My name is Katie Dudley. I'm a resident of the third district. And a professor at Cal State Long Beach, where I specialize in labor within socially sustainable tourism. Destinations. I'm speaking tonight in support of Councilwoman Zendaya's item regarding hazard pay for frontline grocery workers. I'm going to start by talking about how the word sustainable has become a common phrase that talked about more as a marketing tool these days than been an attempt to truly achieve sustainability. I only bring this up because what's often left out of the equation, whether it be in my field of sustainability in the context of tourism destinations or in cities like Long Beach, striving to become a sustainable city are the people that actually sustain the area. The ones that keep coming to work so that we can have continued access to our supply of food and other items even during a pandemic. The people who are applauded and deemed essential yet had to make tougher decisions than you or I during this pandemic, and that have consequences not only to themselves and their immediate family, but to the community at large. These these decisions that they make include whether or not to ignore symptoms of an illness themselves, because under the current structure, they can't afford to miss even a single day of work. And although there is a vaccine that is being distributed as we speak, it does not automatically erase the health and financial burden. Thank. Think your next speaker is Elizabeth Leone. Elizabeth Leone. Good evening. My name is Elizabeth Leone. I have worked in the city of Long Beach for about five years. My life, as well as my coworkers life and anyone working in the grocery store. Our lives have changed. I am stressed out physically and mentally drai ned. I go to work every day. With the question in mind is today the day is the day. The day I get infected with COVID as the day of the day I give it to my kids. It's very stressful. Sorry. It's harder than I thought. The bottom line. They are profiting and they are making so much money and they say that they don't have enough money to pay. They do. They are making millions of dollars on us. And we're the ones that are there. They're at home and we are there. They're doing meetings on Zoom calls. But we're there and. I'm sorry. That's all I have. Thank your next speakers. Gil Kiyoko, Yokoyama. Jack Yokoyama? Yes. Please begin. Hi. Good evening, Mayor. And now the council man. My name is Reverend Gil Yokoyama. I serve as a minister for Long Beach Parish Church, the Japanese Buddhist community in West Long Beach. We have many Mexican and Filipino neighbors in this community. And for years, I have known some of them quite closely who were working at the nearby grocery stores that I regularly go to. I support Long Beach's front line grocery workers because we realized during a time like this, the grocery constitutes the most necessary foundation of a life that keeps our and our family's health intact. It's essential for us to recognize the causality within this community that affects our society with deep insight and also with clear foresight toward the next year. I recognize the impact of the health and well-being of these workers on the collective well-being of their residents of the city. So during this unprecedented way, harsh winter in our lifetime, I hope that the city we ask the residents can collectively support these workers. I thank you for listening. Thank you. Our next speaker is Jean Alfonzo. Yes. This is Jane. Afonso, can you hear me? Yes. Please begin. Okay. I'm here representing the South Coast Interfaith Council, which is located in Long Beach and prides itself on creating communities of compassion among people of different faiths, promoting mutual understanding, appreciation, cooperation. And part of our mission is to provide moral leadership and work for justice, which is what brings me here tonight. Long Beach has the opportunity to show its commitment to compassion and justice. And grocery workers have been on the front lines since the pandemic began. And it's only getting worse. I know we had a brutal speaker previously, but I know that empathy is can be traced back to an early Buddhist teachings. But instead of focusing just on empathy, which can drain you, as I see during this council meeting, the worries and the needs of Long Beach residents and workers is just as so difficult. And so I, I encourage you to take the practice of compassion, which is sharing not just not just with others, but or others, so that you're able to make a measured and good decision rather than just being drained by all the pain. And it's painful. I know my neighbor has a grocery worker, is struggling to pay for childcare for her child while he's on Zo om. And she may not be able to make rent and may not. Thank you. Your next speaker is Julie Buchanan. Julie Buchanan. Why this is truly Buchanan. I'm a second generation Long Beach native. I live in District four across the street from Fire Station 17, and I live, work and play in Long Beach. I am currently off from work from COVID. If anyone at my store, which is Vons unexamined, shows any sign of sickness automatically off for ten days without pay. I work at the self-checkout and there is no protection for us. There is no distance from the customers between me and them, and it's very disheartening. These companies are making huge profits and they're not paying us. We have no, no protections whatsoever. Hazard pay stopped in around June, and we're still wearing masks and we're still in danger and we're still in danger of being infected. And lastly, I'd like to say that I just got word that one of my coworkers who was over 20, your employee, passed away and he's not going home to his family. I don't think I told you what I did. Yeah, I'm fine. Thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker is Lucas Walter. Hello? Can you hear me? Yes. Please begin. All right. Thank you very much. First off, good evening to Mayor Garcia and council members and congratulations to our newly elected council members, Alan and Sara, and to Vice Mayor Richardson on your new appointment. My name is Lucas Walczak, and I'm the vice president of political affairs for the Long Beach Democrat. And I'm here to speak in support of reinstating heroes pay for. The pandemic has ravaged our community like so many others, and is exposed and brought into stark relief the systemic inequities within our economy. Too often we hear the term essential worker, and these days, without recognizing the inherent irony that those who are deemed most essential to the function of our society are too often overworked and underpaid. As we heard from earlier, these workers are at the end of the road. We have an obligation to have their back while they risk their health and safety and that of their family so that we can buy our 5000 bottles of wine and wait out this collective nightmare. We can no longer in good conscience continue to refer to our brothers and sisters on the lines as essential workers and not make them legit. I vehemently urge you to support this item. Thank you for. Thank you. Our next speaker is Patrick Swimmer. Hello there. Go say in council. Thank you for the time to speak tonight. My name is Patrick Swimmer and I'm a second district resident here urging the council to draft and pass this ordinance and reinstate heroes, pay the grocery workers immediately. The COVID crisis has had an incredible impact on all of our lives, but the impacts have not been evenly distributed. As we sit here in a virtual meeting with many of us having transitioned to near-total virtual work, we have been sheltered from the daily stress and turmoil of deciding whether to risk catching this virus or losing your

job. But at the struggle of frontline, workers face every shift they're scheduled for. These are the folks who are already among the lowest paid in our economy and have allowed the rest of us to maintain our ability to access the food and essential care items we need. It is their work which has allowed a windfall of profits to befall the companies they work for. The statistics of which were staggering that we heard earlier that their work has remained as undervalued in their wages as ever. The choice these workers face should not be any one has to, especially for those with elderly and at risk family members. But in an economy where some sectors are facing unemployment of 30% increases since January is an impossible decision. They face $4 an hour will not necessarily make their choice easier, but we can at least show these essential workers that they are exactly that, that their work is being valued, and that those who allow these stores to not only survive but thrive this year are reaping the benefits of the economic boom they created. We hope we will stand with working families and reinstate heroes pay as soon as possible. Thank you very much for your time tonight. And your next speaker is Reverend Jean Claude. Reverend Gene. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And thank you, Mr. Mayor, and members of the council. I'm the Reverend Gene Gould, rector of St Luke's and Lucas Episcopal Church at Seventh and Atlantic. And I live in District two. I'm grateful to grocery workers in Long Beach who have continued to work despite hazardous conditions of working inside without safe ventilation, dealing in close proximity, often less than six feet, with customers who have ineffective face coverings or failed to keep face coverings over our noses and mouths, and who risk taking infection home to their families and friends. Thanks to these dedicated workers, I've been able to purchase food, cleaning supplies and whatever else I needed to maintain my life. In my congregation, members who work low wage jobs in grocery stores and other essential businesses have gotten sick with the novel coronavirus. But even those who've managed to escape infection live with constant stress because they know that their work situation puts them and their families at risk. Now is the time to renew a commitment to hazard pay for grocery store workers. In fact, now our infection rates. Think your next speaker is Rudy Meir Montes. Rudy Montes. Oh, yeah. Hi, guys. How you guys doing? I'm Rudy Miramar. I work at Gelson's Long Beach. I got COVID 19 back in May, which is pretty bad. I was out for three weeks. Very, very, very uncomfortable. My wife had to take three weeks off also and moved to her mother's, which is very, very convenient there. I got back half my store was already out. So we had. Half the store working 11 hours. That's crazy. We're so tired. We're tired. We're stressed. I was scared to get into it again, to bring it back to my family. It was very, very stressful for me. When you to ok away that group was pretty, pretty crushing blow to the gut. But. Yeah. I've been in this industry for 26 years. I mean, it's it's crazy. It's very, very crazy out there. Thank you, guys. Thank you. Your next speaker is Shamika Picco. Jimmy Pickle. Hello, my name? Yes, hello. My name is Shoemaker. I have worked for Vons for almost 20 years. So in this pandemic, I have not been able to stay at home because I am an essential worker. At the beginning, due to public pressure, we got appreciation and pay, but then the company phased it out as if the pandemic had gone away. Who cuts appreciation pay for their employees when? Sorry. They're making so much money and we don't see any of it. We can be investing in small businesses here in the city of Long Beach who are struggling to survive. While my company make record breaking profits. We've been fighting for our lives. We've been fighting. We're fighting now for dignity. They say we're essential, but most of us feel like we're expendable as they put profits over people. And let's not forget that a lot of us are not full time. We may be a one income household. So when the people that were not working was getting extra unemployment to stay at home, they were making more money than we were going to work, putting ourselves at risk. But yet we still went to work. I know there is a lot to consider here and even more. That wasn't said, but I do thank you for your time and consideration. There are more numbers of grocery store workers getting the virus. Thank you. Our next speaker is Terry Mander. Good evening, Mr. Mayor and council members. My name is Kerry Landau, and I've worked for Ralph's grocery company for 38 years. My current location is Ralph's at Marina Pacifica. My partner, Vanessa and I have lived in the East Village in Long Beach for the past eight years and resources workers on the front line working and exposing myself to COVID every day. I go to work scared every day, knowing I'm risking my health and possibly my life. I do everything I can to take care of myself and be socially responsible and not bring the virus home to my family. It would be nice if my employer felt the same as me. Ralphs ignores and cut corners on many safety guidelines.

They read Not enforcing mask requirements, not proper sanitization of registration cards. The grocery companies are making money hand over fist and still cut corners. I'm tired of having my health and well-being unappreciated. Ralph tried to show their appreciation by loading $100 of pure points to our company, Ralph Card. Many of our members do not have company Ralph fought for. Not all of us benefited from it. It is far below what I feel we deserve. This only serves drought and it does not help bring money back into our local communities economy. We need your help. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Mr. MILLER. That concludes the public comment. Now we're going to go back to the council. We have Vice Mayor Richardson who took the second. Thank you, Mayor Garcia. So I certainly rise in support of this this item. We know that during the summer here will pay. You know, the workers demanded, the company provided it. And we hope that as we head into the winter and the holiday, that it will be provided universally to to front line workers, particularly now, since the numbers that we experienced today are higher than what they were during the last spike. But unfortunately, we we you know, I've been on a few picket lines and and workers have been fighting for this for for a while. And we were hoping to have gotten there. But but, you know, it hasn't happened. So I think it's certainly necessary. I want to, you know, bring to our attention that another city council in Los Angeles made a motion to do something similar just just earlier today and go to two $5. I think where where we are, a motion stands on its own integrity. And we we we certainly are supportive of $4 that four months zero pay. I hope that the companies come forward and do something voluntarily as well. One point that I want to raise up as a friendly is when we initiated worker protections for ICE in terms of sick leave during the summer, we carved out and protected small businesses. We have bodegas, you know, and small markets who do serve grocers. But I think the intent here is to protect is to, you know, sort of treat the large, publicly traded, sort of larger chain grocers very differently than the small, small businesses who are having a difficult time just keeping up with ease and things like that. And so we're sick leave. We pegged it at 500 employees nationally. I understand that Los Angeles just packed bear that 300 employees nationally. I think we should do the same thing in this case. I want to offer a friendly amendment to Councilwoman Zendaya's that we also include a provision to exempt grocers that are 300 employees or more nationally, well below sorry, lower than 300 employees and below nationally. So I want to I want to I certainly want to offer that. And I'll wait on the response for in a moment. The second thing I want to highlight is that there was a slide up a bit earlier, and I don't know if we can get it back up, but I asked for that slide to come up because it makes and it illustrates an interesting point and I'll describe until we'll see if it can come up, but I'll describe it. Here it is. It looks like it's coming up. So this slide really illustrates this was put forward by Dr. Side Steinmetz, who, you know, puts forward the Quarterly Economic Summit in partnership with Economic Forum. And. And what it showed was individuals making 27 to $60000 a year or individuals making 60,000 and up for the most part. We're almost back to where we were in terms of employment levels sort of at the beginning. Prior to that, we're almost back. But if you look at for low wage workers and low wage families, people living within the poverty line, this is this illustrates that their trend is heading in the wrong direction. And what that means is the economic impact of COVID is harder and is widening economic gaps on low wage workers. And so it will require some level of economic attention, inclusive economic policy, to make sure that frontline workers, low wage workers, are not left behind. Hourly workers are not left behind. As we as we move forward. And this this this just illustrates it. But if you were to look at other other indicators, economic indicators demonstrate the same. So I think we can take that now. And so the point here is that I think this makes sense. This should have been done already heading into the holidays. We should exempt low wage, small pilot, I mean, exempt the smaller grocers. And I think this sends a clear message that that these are the types of policies that we think should help with an inclusive recovery . And so I'll pause there and council members and they answer, you go with that framework. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson, thank you for that. I know that the intent of this ordinance is definitely not to include our mom and pop shops that are barely making it, and we don't want to put an extra burden on them. The this item is intended to help those that have a lot of employees and that have a lot of profit coming in. So this this makes sense to set up friendly. So thank you. I will. Thank you. Thank you. Next up, I have Councilmember Ringa. Thank you, Mary. And I want to thank Councilmembers and Richardson for their presentation of the motion. The chart that was up there is compelling. I think it tells the story that we tried to work through here. And I think the the the friendly that was offered is a good one. And they told me, support the motion. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. Q Mr. Mayor. So I appreciate all the comments tonight. And I was wondering, I'm not sure if there's someone from staff that can that can share on this topic or maybe councilman said they have. But I do know that there was a hazard pay provision in place. Can someone maybe share with me why did that go away? And was it was it because it was temporary in nature to begin with? Thank you, Councilmember. I would like to see if staff has an answer with that. I think it was. That's the question I keep asking myself is why did it go away? It made so much sense. So maybe city staff had to another end for that. So this this is Tom. This is not something that was required by the city. This was, as I understand, a negotiation between the employees and their employer. So this was something they came to an agreement on and was instituted. We don't really have information on why it went away. Thank you. You for that. Thank you, Councilman Xavier. Yeah, I. I have to say that I think our grocery workers are the most vulnerable populations right now. And and because I feel necessary to say this, I don't mean to offend any other essential workers or first responders. I'm just really sticking to this item. So I hope really nobody mishear me on that. I'm not just talking about grocery workers right now, but they have a very, very difficult position and job function and requirement. And I know that I think about them with a lot of empathy every time I interact with them and see them. And and I'm a worker that's an essential worker who's been reporting to work every day since March. But I have protections in place that are grocery workers don't have there are space and space requirements and distance precautions and things that protect me as an example that they don't have. So I think if they received it in the past, certainly the COVID crisis and dangers and risks have not gone away. In fact, they're probably worse now. So the same logic that allowed them to have it in the in the first place certainly has not been eliminated. So I do support this item. The one thing that I wanted to ask council members in their houses about is I know that you had the sunset being 120 days after the ordinance is adopted. And I know you asked the city attorney to look at a possible language about an extension. You know, I think one of the things, if you're open to them also considering this is if if that the sunset could be tied somehow to the declaration of state of emergency in the city. And the reason I say that is they don't want it tied to the state, because as we mentioned last week, we may be in a situation where we're differently situated from L.A. County or other parts of the state. And we certainly don't want to be lumped in in terms of the state of emergency. Our situation may be better, hopefully, or it may be worse. But I think this the sunset on this, we might want to tie it to the declaration of a state of emergency. So for the period of time that we have a state of emergency declared in the city is when this additional pay would last until. And that to me, that makes sense because I know that we've talked about some of the other relief items that we've passed and we've set a sunset. We've had to reconvene and think about extensions. And that's always been very controversial each time. But I think if we if we tie it to the state of emergency, the assumption there is the safety impacts and the risk impacts are tied to the. And and not some arbitrary carrier that we pick. So I don't know if you're open to having the city attorney look at tying the sunset to the length of time that this is a state of emergency in the city of Long Beach. And also, if we're able to think about, you know, I don't know when these workers will be eligible for vaccines when those become available. But it's reasonable to assume that it'll be several months down the road. I don't know. And, you know, not to not to put anyone on the spot, but maybe the city attorney can report back next week on, you know, when would we expect social hour grocery workers to receive the vaccines in terms of our timeline? I know I didn't prepare anybody with that question ahead of time. So maybe the city attorney can explore that, too, b ecause if it's if it's five or six months out, then we want to make sure that we have a sunset that's reasonable in terms of actually protecting the employees. So, Councilman Sunday House, I hope that you'd be open to those two things, tying the sunset to the state of emergency and also evaluating, you know, when when these individuals might be eligible to get some long term protection through a vaccine. Thank you very much, Councilwoman Price, for that. Those requests, I think that I absolutely understand your intent. BE It's one of the things that I was hoping for is to maybe bring it back in, you know, after the 120 days and maybe evaluated then and see if we can do that at that time. I know that right now, with things being as uncertain as they are with this pandemic, you know, I think that it might be best to just leave it as it is right now and ask staff to please bring it back. And when we bring it back, we can evaluate both. I think that would be make the most sense for me right now, but I thank you for that. Councilman Price, did you have anything else? But, Mr. Mayor. Council Councilwoman Allen. Okay. Sorry if I'm muted. Yes. Thank you, Councilwoman Zin de Haas. And I wish that we all could be a second on this agenda item because it's such an important issue. Some of the highest rates of transmission in our workforce are, as we know, are among the frontline and essential workers, and especially our grocery store workers. And I personally been out to the stores. I have met with many of the workers, and I understand their fears and I wholeheartedly support them, support them. And these folks, they don't have a choice to stay home and they largely can't control the actions or members of the public and their personal space. Even though we have a cap or control of how many people go in the grocery stores. These workers are in constant contact with the public and the burden of ensuring their personal safety is a stressor. We heard this and so many of the folks that talk today and it really spoke to me and it spoke to my heart and and I just I want to say, please be kind to these workers. They're under so much stress. So I think grocery store workers should have their hero pay reinstated for the risks that they undertake just to keep us fed. And to my friends that are working out there on the front line as a grocery store worker. I am with you. And I strongly support the reinstatement of the hero pay, which by my calculations is about $160 a week per employee, which would make a huge difference to these folks. And it's not an unreasonable burden. On the employers. Thanks. Thank you, Councilwoman. I think that concludes the council comment. I'm just going to just add before we go to a vote, I'm very supportive of this action today. Our grocery workers are on the front line. They're working hard. It's been an honor and a pleasure to know many of them that have been there working nonstop to ensure that folks across our city and around our country have access to food and to all the needs that they have that they have in need. I'm hero. I was happy when they were receiving hero pay earlier in the pandemic. They should be. They should be receiving it now as well. And so I'm very, very heartened to have seen this come forward. I want to thank Councilwoman and De Hauser for bringing this forward. And and I want to thank, most importantly, the grocery workers and really all those retail workers that are working in these stores for their amazing work. So thank you very much. And it looks like we actually have two other folks queued up on the council side that they saw right now. So let me get to them. Councilwoman Sorrow and then Councilman Mongo. Yes. Thank you so much. I want to thank Councilman Emmerson Day for bringing this agenda item forward with it and representing a district with the highest current rates. And we shared a district councilwoman Sunday. And I understand the risk that essential workers, especially grocery workers, take when they go to work and and the risk that they bring and bringing it home. You know, we recognize them as heroes during the very beginning of the pandemic. And they continue to be heroes working at the front line, as well as our many other essential workers. And in this case, I really think that we need to reinstate it. And I think they they continue to deserve to be treated as such, which is heroes. And so I support this recommendation to strike up an ordinance to restore the heroes pay. Thank you very much. And Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. I'm very supportive of this, and I appreciate all of our grocery store workers. I just had an additional question based on the comment of one of the members of the public. Mr. MODICA Do we not have any additional suggestions for our grocery stores related to added protections that the checkers can have built in? I know some stores have chosen to put up additional barriers between checkers and those that are checking in and out. If there is some information you can provide on that and or what we as a city could do to better protect individuals who work in the grocery industry. I know on my side of town, I've been to several different stores that have that protection, but I don't think that it's consistent. Yes. So those protections are in the health order. They're pretty strict in terms of how they're supposed to operate. Plexiglas should be separating customers. They should have the ability to wash their hands every 30 minutes there. They are required to be provided a face mask and other things as is required or as needed to keep them safe and gloves and all those types of things. Some, you know, you might see a higher level at some stores than others. And if we do get complaints, if there is one that we know that is not doing those things, please let us know and we'll pay them a visit and make sure that they are abiding by the health order. So I think, you know, there's there's a lot of requirements for PPE. And then the you know, even with all of that, you still have workers who are in this environment, which requires a lot of interaction with a lot of people who are looking to buy groceries. Right. Even people stocking shelves and helping customers and all of those things. Well, I hope that we can continue to support any additional measures that are necessary to continue to keep people safe. Thank you. And Councilman's in D.C.. Thank you. I just wanted to say thank you to all the grocery workers that are out there and those who are who were brave enough to speak. And it just compels me so much and breaks my heart to hear what they're going through. So I just want to thank in advance all of my colleagues for supporting on this item. And I know that together we can bring forward an item that will not only protect our most vulnerable frontline workers, but also saved lives. And that's the end game here. So thank you. Thank you. And with that, we will go ahead and go to a roll call vote. Councilwoman Sun has. I can swim in, Alan. I can't woman priced. And I. Handsome and super. Now I can swim in mango. Hi. Councilwoman. Sara. I Council member Oranga. Councilman Austin. All right. Vice Mayor Richardson. I mentioned Kay's. Thank you. We have two other items that are related to economic recovery. I want to get to those. I do have an item with Ford City Auditor Laura Dow, which we'll do right after those two items. So let's let's try to get to 33 and 26 as expeditiously as possible. Thank you very much. Let me go ahead and go to the last item, which is item 17. Please report from Development Services recommendation to receive a report and confirm the proposed Climate Action and Adaptation Plan and direct staff to prepare the subsequent IIR citywide. Mr. MODICA. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of the Council were here in front of you tonight with a really significant policy action for your consideration. This has been several years in the making. It's clear that this council has prioritized climate change and that staff has embraced that. This is a multi-year effort that is really grounded and based on science. And we came to you in a study session a couple of months ago when we were close to a climate adaptation plan, but not quite there yet, where we got some direction from the council to focus on a couple of areas, including electricity, oil and the port, among other things. We're happy to be back to you in front of you tonight, having resolved all of those and met our targets and are looking to present that to you tonight and get your feedback so we can start the process. So I will turn this over to our development services staff to walk through the presentation. Council members. Jennifer Lee will be making this presentation. Thank you. Hi council members and Jennifer Li, planner with development services. So as an overview, what is the Climate Action and Adaptation Plan or the CAP? It's a road map for the city to reach state greenhouse gas or GHG emissions manda tes and to adapt to the impacts of climate change. It does this by establishing a framework for creating new or updating existing policies, programs and practices for Long Beach to reduce its carbon footprint. The plan aims to cut carbon emissions while fostering a healthier and prosperous city. The cap is informed by technical studies of climate stressors and community wide vulnerabilities. As a timeline of of recent Council actions and direction. The City Council heard a study session update on March 19th, 2019, and provided direction to establish an aspirational carbon neutrality goal by 2045 consistent with state goals. The City Council recently heard a study session update on Oct 20, 2020 and directed staff to work with departments to identify reduction measures. Staff did that and this is what was identified. These are the key actions which we will tell you more about later in this presentation. So why do we need a cap? The state mandates that 40% below 1990 levels are reached by 2030. The CAP is the plan for Long Beach to meet the state requirement. Long Beach has established an aspirational goal of net carbon neutrality by 2045, consistent with the state's recent executive order. However Long Beach Long Beach is, CAP is a plan to the 2030 Horizon year. There are a variety of additional laws that the CAP helps Long Beach comply with. Additionally, the City of Long Beach joined the Global Covenant of Mayors in 2015, which is the Global Alliance for City Climate Leadership. Additionally, the cap is a mitigation measure of the general plan. Land use element or GHG emissions are associated with growth anticipated by the iwi, which would include things like vehicle trips and electricity usage associated with future development as a mitigation measure to address GHG emissions associated with the plan. The city has committed to adoption of a cap within three years of the adoption of the EUI and subsequent monitoring of GHG emissions. California is doing well and is on track to meeting GHG reduction targets statewide. However, local climate action plans are needed to implement mitigation measures locally, help communities adapt to climate change and to advance equity . Examples of actions that occur at the local level are updating building codes and zoning and siting electric vehicle infrastructure. Local climate action plans help studies be more resilient against current and future climate threats and help ensure that efforts address environmental justice, such as by steering climate finance opportunities to communities most impacted by climate change. The Long Beach City Council has adopted a resolution acknowledging racism as a public health crisis and adopted the framework for reconciliation. The cap supports this initiative, which calls for advancing environmental and climate justice in the communities most impacted by racism. Very extensive community outreach and engagement was done to provide information and engage the public, reaching mor e than 10,000 community members. The cap is divided into mitigation and adaptation. Mitigation actions reduce GHG emissions their across transportation, building and waste sectors. Reducing vehicle trips, for example, is an important mitigation measure. Adaptation actions help adapt to the impacts of climate change. An example of an adaptation measure is to address extreme heat by increasing shade. The cap increase includes a number of actions across mitigation and adaptation in the plan. The plan includes an equity strategy for each action. An example of an equity strategy is to identify corridors in the areas most impacted by extreme heat or poor air quality, to prioritize them for urban forest, cover, shade, pavement and other cooler surfaces. Emissions come from three main sectors stationary energy at 49%, transportation at 44%, and waste at 6%. The stationary energy category is made up of emissions from building electricity and natural gas use in residential, commercial, institutional and industrial buildings, as well as emissions from energy industries operating within the city. The transportation category is made up of emissions associated with passenger vehicles, busses, trucks, rail transit, freight rail, Off-Road Vehicles and aviation operations within the city limits. Most of emissions coming from the transportation sector come from gasoline vehicles. The waste category is made up of emissions from waste disposal and emissions from wastewater treatment. The CAP implements the state's GHG reduction strategy. The graph shows business as usual forecasts which protect emissions in the absence of specific local action, as provided through the city's cap. As you can see in the graph business as usual, forecasts decline over time, which is due to statewide actions that decrease emissions from the energy sector, as well as improved vehicle efficiency standards in the transportation sector. The CAP also implements the city's general plan element, which provides for greater density and mixed use. Mix of uses in development of the city. This graph shows city emissions targets versus forecasts from 2015 to 2050. GHG emissions forecasts or business as usual forecasts and the Purple Line have a general downward trend due to efficiency improvements at the state level. The solid blue line that goes from 2015 to 2030 represents GHG reductions from actions that the city will take to reach target levels and the dotted blue line, which is the GHG reduction goal , which goes to zero in 2045 representing the state and the city's goal of net carbon neutrality. The production needed between the business as usual forecast and target emission level in 2030 is 192,600 metric tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent. Provide a better idea of the amount of this reduction target based on the EPA's equivalencies calculator? On the left you can see that 192,600 metric tons of carbon dioxide equivalent is about the emissions from 41,600 passenger vehicles for one year. Or electricity usage for 32,600 homes for one year. This is a relatively small reduction compared to that needed to achieve net carbon neutrality in 2045, which is 1.5 million metric tons of CO₂, i.e.. On an individual basis, each person living and working in the city would need to reduce their emissions by about 90 sorry 9% in 2030 to achieve the GHG reduction target. The city must reduce GHG emissions by 190 to 600 metric tons of carbon dioxide equivalent by 2030 in order to reach our target. Here's how we'll meet and even exceed the target reduction. The GHG reduction pathway includes GHG emissions reductions achieved from implementation of cities, commitment to providing 80% of carbon free energy by 2030, an increase from 48% carbon free electricity delivered in 2019, as well as the additional net emissions reductions that would occur from 10% voluntary participation as these 100% green rate program relating to oil extraction activities in the city. The GHG reduction pathway accounts for decreased oil production by 20%. The GHG reduction pathway includes the city purchasing 100% carbon free electricity for ominous by accounts, as well as an increase in solar power use for a continued community wide from an estimated 2% of current solar potential developed to 5% of solar potential developed. In the transportation sector, the duty reduction pathway includes actions to implement the ports clean trucks program and reduction of vehicle miles traveled or VMT consistent with the state's VMT reduction in the waste sector. The GHG reduction pathway includes actions to increase commercial recycling and organics diversion. A total emissions reduction achieved by the actions on this slide and the previous is 363,200 metric tons of carbon dioxide equivalent exceeding the reduction needed to reach the target. There are additional actions that were not included in the quantified GHG reduction target at this time, but are anticipated to be implemented and will result in reduced GHG emissions. The port has committed to 100% emissions free cargo handling equipment by 2030. The port will also implement curbs oceangoing vessels at berth regulation that will result in reduced use by certain vessel types when at berth. The port's waterborne emissions are not included in the city's jurisdictional GHG inventory because they're not regulated by the city. So the reductions are not reflected in the city's pathway. But emissions reductions are going to be achieved through these efforts on the part of the port. The Long Beach Airport is implementing programs to increase use of electric ground service equipment, to reduce emissions from gasoline and diesel powered equipment, which will also result in GHG emissions reductions that will be tracked by the city through implementation and monitoring. The recommendation at this time is to receive the report and supporting documentation, confirm the CAP and direct staff to prepare the subsequent environmental impact report. Next s steps are to prepare the subsequent EMR and when that is complete, adopt the final plan and environmental document. Thank you. Includes the president. Thank you very much. Wonderful presentation. Why don't we do a public comment first? Our first speaker is Dave Shukla. Eve Shukla. Hello? Yes, please begin. And thoughts and prayers for everyone in Long Beach with the coronavirus. The proposed cap in front of you today is an important starting point to formalize and catalyze legislative. Efforts to. Not only account for, but. Drastically. To reduce the carbon emissions. Many of those carbon emissions or. Specifically tied to. The utilities we. And the electricity factored in. The gloss put especially in the presentation on how one of the pathways by sticking with you. A proposed schedule of slowly adding in 10% of the population by year over the next ten years. They are on record proposing rate increases, which no doubt will increase even further. More recently, the. Rate increases each and every year along with improving. There's a lot of hard decisions, especially it's one of our legislative priorities of the city is local control. The city has to make. I've been on record many times supporting the development of a Long Beach specific. Community Choice Energy Program. And I think that is not only a viable, but increasingly necessary. Pathway for not only meeting eight targets that are reflected maybe in SPF 30 to, but increasingly in more ambitious 2030 part as a signatory of the Climate Safe California campaign. I think it's only possible existing renewable along with emergent clean energy economy technologies, especially distributed energy resources to achieve. The goals of. Not only that, but. With an understanding of climate science and what realistically we want business as usual to become. What the embassy. What a climate stabilized. California and specifically Long Beach after all the. Climate change is the reason people have come and gone, really that kind of vision of how everyone can participate in building that for the future. That's more what I like to see coming out of this plan and look forward to providing further written testimony along with the county plan on Friday. Thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker is Elaine Vernon. Good evening, members of Council. My name is Dr. Elaine Bray and we have a. I live in the fourth district and my address is on file. I teach chemistry at Cal State Long Beach, and I teach global climate change in Catholic Dominguez Hills. My comments are Appendices D and E for the CAP report. Regarding appendix, the IT states that the AOP and 2015 study showed a recent downward trend in air pollution in the region. However, the American Lung Association states that there was an increase in average number of unhealthy ozone days in the Los Angeles Miami area, and the area had the worst ozone pollution in the nation between 2015 and 2017 too. Ozone is only regionally monitored by Air Canada and the EPA, but level s can change on an hourly basis and differs from neighborhood to neighborhood. We need to be specific and transparent about where we are placing air quality monitors and advocate for census level data. Most of our sensors in the region are clustered in Islam Beach, but you have more north and west side residents being impacted by asthma, and we have less sensors in those areas. And finally, for community outreach as listed in Appendix E, we need to shift more effort towards listening to the community by working with grassroots, local organizations about how they are being impacted by environmental racism and climate change, rather than pushing information out from local, state and academic institutions. We have a wealth of cultural and indigenous with them on how to steward our land, and I believe that as a city we have failed to acknowledge that. Thank you. Think your next speaker is Maryanne Buchanan. Hi. This is Mary Ann Buchanan, District three. I attended all of the city's forums on the Climate Action Plan, and they were there were informed speakers from the good people at Development Services who just brought you that slideshow. There were easels outlining the climate threat. We looked at maps and found where we lived and could see just where the climate problems will be worse. Many solutions were added to those evils by ordinary citizens, and I thought we were off to a great start. Now I am just disappointed. It is bad enough that this plan does not meet the state's greenhouse gas reduction targets. But it also suggests that Edison will solve our energy problems, and it leaves us both sort of out of it. Where did all that community input go? It's time to get out the city's equity tool kit and take a harder look at the solutions, not just the problems. This plan has almost no actionable items that address equity and frontline communities. If you're under the Gun City Council to get this process started so you meet a state deadline, I beg you to also revisit this particular climate plan so it's made more accessible and actually attainable. There's climate trouble coming and we can fix it. We just need a clearer plan than this one. I thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker is Grace Lawrenson. Grace Lawrenson. Grace Lorenzen, please meet yourself. We'll move on to. Dean Todd, you. You know. Okay. The intrigue. Please begin. Yes, sir. D.A., can you hear me? Yes, please begin. So what would you say? This has been. Yes. Please begin. I look. My name. Dean told me. Or Star six. What do you. Need? Oh, please begin your public comment. Okay? Yes. Okay. And ready to go. I don't see the number going in. Please begin. Your time has already started. Okay. My name is hello. My name is Dean Todd. I live in the seventh district. I teach at Cal State Long Beach, and I'm a member of Long Beach 350, which put together the community letter you got today. And I also. Served on the scientific advisory committee for the CAP. We are recommending that. The Council not confirm the proposed cap and to return it for revision, to put. It in the more. Readable form that's actually more usable to you and to the community. There's two reasons that I'll talk about. The first one is on page two that talks about the greenhouse gas reductions. The state law requires a 40% reduction in greenhouse gases that. Cause global warming. The chart, if you look at it, shows how the cap is supposed to reduce those gases. Take a look at the line that starts in the year 2015. It's the lower solid line that goes down to 2030. If you do the arithmetic based on that, that's a decrease of only 29% rather than 40%. So by its own evidence, on page two of the document, you got a 17. The cap is a failure on the most basic thing it's supposed to do. The other problem is that it might even be worse. There's other information in the appendix that talks about reductions are case by case, by different actions. And I could find that it only added up to a 13% decrease. So this seems to be serious deficiencies. In the most. Basic thing that the cap is supposed to do. The other problem is that it's extremely hard to evaluate the proposals. It's written and organized in a way that prevents policymakers. That's the city council and the community from evaluating the proposed actions. It's basically it's really. Hard to find the evidence that supports the. Proposals issues. If there's a proposal that you're interested. In, the. Action proposal, you can't find the evidence to back it up. There's no way to get from the main draft to the appendices. It might be somewhere in there, but the proposed cap doesn't see where that is, and the appendices don't have useful tables of context, content or indexes. So you have to scroll and go through the whole thing to find what's there. I don't think I have. To make an analysis for this problem. Try it yourself. Choose an interesting issue that you're interested in or a proposal, and see if you can find the facts to back it up. You might find it after a couple of hours. But. I think your next speaker is Grace Lawrenson. GRACE. Hi, this is Grace. Grace LAURENSEN Hello. Yes. Please begin. Yes, I'm a resident of District seven and I've been following the cap since the early neighborhood meetings. And I know the plan is not perfect, but I do think it is a start. Climate solutions are urgent and we need to start on one item at a time. And I would urge the Council to approve the plan and then make sure that any of the climate actions take into account the equity toolkit that asks us to consider how the action reduces racial, economic and social disparities. That is very important in the climate change issues, reducing the economic and social disparities. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Okay. Well, thank you. Let me go to the council and start with Councilwoman Price. You, Mr. Mayor, I want to thank staff for this excellent presentation and the briefing that I'm sure we all have the opp portunity to participate in prior to council on the report. The attachment that were prepared, I thought, were very thorough and very, for me, educational in terms of some of the need and some of the goals. So I want to thank staff for that presentation. I do have a couple of questions that I have for staff. When we're talking about reduction of greenhouse gases and our emissions numbers, is there any way that we can somehow quantify that for residents in terms of what that means. On an individual. Basis or a household basis? For example, is that one less car per week or conservation practices that might help? That's a question that I get a lot from residents is how can they individually contribute to our broader goals? Is it realistic for them to individually contribute? Yes. So we've done a give, just a brief overview about that. So the website is this, to meet the state GHG target, it would require that each person who lives and works in the city would reduce their GHG emissions by 9% for because their GHG target reduces emissions beyond the required state target that would result of a 363,000 metric tons of CO2. E would be a 17% reduction per person who lives and works in the city. And we can do a little bit more to to put those in terms of like, you know, cars driven our electricity. Usage, right? Yeah. But basically, what does 9% look like? That's just a question that we get a lot of what is 9% like. So yeah, if there's if there's any way to quantify that with examples, real life examples that people can, you know, one, utilize themselves but also educate the youth and the community about. That would be really fantastic. I did have a couple of teachers collectively email me today and say that this is a topic they've been talking about in schools and and finding ways to bring it home in terms of what these percentages mean to to children and the youth would be really helpful. So I'm not sure if there's any way to quantify that, but just something for you to think about. And the other thing is the community outreach component. I know staff has been really gracious with their availability in terms of providing information at community meetings. But what's the community outreach process moving forward from here? I know that. There's some information in the staff report regarding, you know, regular progress reports and updates. How frequent do we expect those to be? I certainly hope that we can engage the community more frequently than on an annual basis. Council member this is Patricia Defender for be happy to answer that question so that the plan has a section that sort of identifies city leadership actions. And among those actions are you will see ongoing education, outreach and engagement. It's actually on page 182 of the plan. So really this demonstrates the or expresses the city's commitment to continuing to do outreach on climate issues through the implementation of the plan, engaging the public, raising public awareness. The comment you m ade about helping people understand what some of these numbers mean on a very kind of individual level, I think those are things that we can really strive and attempt to do through the ongoing engagement. There's also targeted education working with the schools, so there are a number of strategies outlined in the plan, in the ways in which the city content will continue to engage the public going forward. Great. The other question that I wanted to ask was about the conversion of our city fleet to electric or zero emission. What's the plan for that? Maybe that's a better question for the city manager moving forward. I got it. I got it. Councilmember. This is Christopher Coons. So well, this is a plan developed by a development services. We have a lot of partners and that includes public works and RFM. And we've had a lot of discussions about fleet. You know, we've made a lot of improvement on the efficiency of our fleet already. So you're going to see by 2030 a basically almost entirely electric fleet, but that's not going to happen overnight. So one of your budget balancing measures this year was to actually delay certain fleet purchases and to extend the lifespan of certain vehicles in the city. And that's going to have an unintended positive consequence climate wise, because technology improves every single year. So what performance we get out of electric vehicles and the cost efficiency of those vehicles improves every year. So there are a it sounds a little counterintuitive, but there are times where delaying that changeover by an additional year or an additional two years actually helps us in achieving our 2030 goals because we're trying to hit that future number. And that doesn't necessarily require us to turn over everything tomorrow, and it requires us to be knowledgeable of that future goal point. And that's what we're working with all the parties on. And just to add to that, Councilmember, this is Tom Modica. We currently are a leader in terms of Green Fleet. We just won an award for that. I think we're the third best fleet in the nation and we also have a policy in place that every replacement that comes up, we ask the question first Can it be an electric vehicle or an electric plug in vehicle? That has to be disproven before we can move on to purchase other types of vehicles. So that's already in place. Okay. Understood. I'm probably running a little bit short on time, so I'm. In or 5 minutes are up.

community and our city staff. And we've been trying to be as creative as possible, trying to be as forthcoming and forward thinking as possible when creating this plan. So thank you very much for all your hard work on this. Would it be possible to force staff to explain how much? How much of this adaptation plan that we have before us. I know that in my mind I see it as, you know, we're giving permission or we're in this plan. We're giving Southern California the chance to meet our requirements by 30 years. And from what I understand then, if that those are not met and then we can go into CCR. Is it my understanding that correctly? Council member, Mrs. Patricia Devendorf. Her I think what you're alluding to is the fact that the plan itself is meant to be kind of an iterative plan. There are provisions in the plan that call for monitoring all of these measures that we've quantified. Biannually, we will look at that the how we're doing in terms of meeting those reductions. And we will have opportunities to evaluate whether those strategies are resulting in the emissions we expect or whether we need to pursue other strategies. And this is time the council action is still stands, which says for us to continue to look at CCR, especially as the market changes. And that was instead of delaying it for two years of a look at what it is to bring that down to one year. So we'll be back at the end of the year. Things have changed. For example, when we were comparing CCR to Edison, Edison was not nearly at the level that they're making the commitment under the cap here. So that is increased substantially is the level of commitment to greenhouse gas emission reductions by Edison. Yes, thank you. And so I see this as a win win. I'm hoping that Edison will help us get to where we want to get with this plan. And I like the fact that we're not completely omitting the ACA with this plan, but actually, you know, providing some some opportunity for it. So I look forward to that. And I think that. That right now it is very important. And, you know, for this plan to move forward, I, I also wanted to ask I know that some community members were thinking that we're not ready to move forward with this plan. But if we were to halt it, for instance, which you know, I I'm not sure that I support that right now, but because I don't understand what it would do if we were to halt it right now. Can you explain can somebody on stuff explain that to me? This is Patricia Devendorf. I think that there's a lot of cost. I mean, we always talk about the cost of inaction and not having a plan in place that allows us to pursue grant funding and other opportunities to partner with other agencies. So there is, you know, sort of urgency to 2030 is not that far away. And we do have to have a plan in place so that it provides that roadmap so that the city departments can work together and pursue funding and help to implement some of these measures. Yes. Thank you. Thank you for the explanatio n, Patricia. I think that that not only does it you know, does that prevent us from getting some financial assistance? But I'm really hopeful that with this new administration coming on board and the new administration really having some some plans for for these kinds of plans, I think it's important that we as the city have a plan like this in place already so that we can be in the front of the line to be able to receive some of those funding. So, again, I thank you guys for all the work that you've been doing on this. I know that a lot of my residents here in the First District would benefit a lot from having an action plan like this, because right now we are obviously one of the districts that is the hardest hit with having, you know, the 710 adjacent to our district, which is obviously one of the freeways that supports our port and all the traveling that goes in and out to our port. And as identified in the presentation that we're. Going to have 5 minutes. And thank you. I thank you very much. And I'm just out recue if I have more questions. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Ciro. Thank you, Mayor. I, too, would like to thank the community organizers and advocates for working hard to ensure that it's a community engagement and led process with the council members, thanks to council members and staff who have been working so hard to get us to this point. I know that a lot of work for many years was done, and as a new, new council member, I appreciate all of that. I want to speak to just how do we ensure that there are accountable mutual accountability points that maybe we can put into the process to ensure that community is engaged in this? Perhaps we can consider kind of a quarterly meeting where, you know, community can provide feedback and also ensuring that we hopefully set up markers or measures about, you know, around equity. And for example, you know, I would like to see how do we ensure that we also have measures on addressing environmental racism and inequity in the communities that are largely impacted, such as my district, for example. How can we be sure that there are green jobs allocated to marginalized community or disadvantaged communities impacted by pollution or other other issues? So for example, are we going to make sure that they are getting maybe green jobs like just installing EV charging stations? So so that's one of the things that I'd like to ask is can we create a quarterly, you know, a mutually accountable meeting, a mutual accountable meeting with community members to ensure that we keep equity in the forefront of this plan as well? Council members, I'll start out by answering and saying that, you know, part of this plan involves creating a dashboard. We are working with other departments to create a dashboard that's going to be available to the public that will create a lot of transparency about how we're doing in terms of reaching these different metrics. Many of the actions of the plan, you will see that there are specifically actions associated with ensuring that there's local workforce and economic development is integrated into any of the of these measures. So, for example, many of the building and energy actions that are associated with clean energy, solar power, many of them have actions that would involve , you know, involve entities like the Pacific Gateway Workforce Innovation Network and educational institutions like Long Beach Community College in the School District. So there's there's a commitment on the part of the city already expressed through this plan about and this is part of that equity lens as well, about trying to ensure that there are, you know, economic opportunities created for those communities that are most impacted by the effects of climate change. There will be biannual reports when we do the monitoring to to report to the city council on how we're doing. And so there may be opportunities to to do certainly more outreach in that the plan expresses the commitment to do outreach through the implementation process. Thank you. I do hope that we ensure there is a process to include community input in these plans and reports so that we're not only certainly using science and data, but also are we being effective in is it actually getting through to communities that are low income but also speaking other languages as well, such as Spanish and climbing? So I just want to make sure that we don't overlap those communities and sometimes it's a great way to just do a check in. I do like the idea of dashboards. It's a great way to look at markers for some of these, I think, actions we can measure. But sometimes it's a little harder, I think for, you know, in a community is feeling like the plan is is working for them. Thank you. Thank you. Next up is Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. Big thank you to the community for their input. Big thank you to the staff for putting this together. And it's just an introductory step. We have a lot more to do. I did have some specific questions about the plan. It's extensive and I know we've seen it twice and I just wanted to see if I understood this plan by 2030. Expects what percentage of the city fleet to be electric. Councilmember. I'm looking for a particular page in the plan. I don't think there's an express number of like a target for the city fleet. It it does have a we have an action associated with just increasing electric vehicle charging stations in the city overall. And that is. Sorry, one moment. I'm just looking for that. So that is a there's a one of the options is to develop an electric vehicle infrastructure master plan in the city. And there is an ongoing partnership right now with among the city, between the city and the Southern California Edison. It's called the Charge Ready Program, and it has installed. There's a plan to install 140 electric vehicle charging ports at public and city fleet locations between 2018 and 2020. And there's a target to by the end of 2020 to have 65 more chargi ng stations. I guess we just passed in 2020. But so there there has been a very concerted partnership between the city and Southern California Edison to increase vehicle charging stations. And that is that is the commitment that's in the plan right now. Okay. Wonderful, great plan. And I just want to echo the comments of Councilman Zoro. I also love dashboards to see our progress. Thank you. Next up is, uh, who hasn't gone yet, Councilmember? I'm sorry. Vice Mayor Richardson then comes from a supermarket. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Just a few things. So can we. Can we see that that the slide that showed the totals of our goal for the carbon and how we how we plan to make that up. And while they're pulling that up, I'll just give some my comments, though. First, I think the outreach was impressive here. I love the slide. The infographic talks about 10,260 total participants, 67 events, so on and so forth. So really great work for the staff and consultants and the community based groups and the community members who participate in this. That's fantastic. Also appreciate the fact that the feedback from October is clear and evident here. We, you know, we talked about, you know, accelerating the timetable and what's presented in front of us today accelerates the timetable by five years. And I think that's that's a good thing. And I'm looking for that. I'll wait on that slide. You know, today briefing with with with me and talked about, you know, the L.A. Times op ed and, you know, how we are at the place where we have the worst air quality index in a decade in our L.A. region . And, you know, how does that happen when all of our technology is newer, everything is cleaner and the cars are cleaner, mobile sources are a lot cleaner. How does that how does that actually happen? And the answer is really that we're beginning to see we're seeing the impacts of climate change. You're seeing you know, you're seeing hotter summers, you seeing wildfires. All of those things accelerate. They're causing intersectional problems with air quality and other issues. So we have a more responsibility to accelerate our climate action adaptation plan. That just makes sense. The slide I'm looking for, it is the one that shows how we're going to meet our what the target is and how we're going to be our target. You keep going. No, it's not. Okay. This is it. This is the one. So it shows that what's needed is 190,000 metric tons is what we need to reduce. And the plan, if you go to the next slide shows 363,000 is what will be produced if we follow these these strategy. I love that each strategy has a one pager that outlines what's needed, what we need to do as a city , and what external factors need to be part of it. I think, you know, I think that a lot of this is outside of our direct control. Some of it is reflected in the port. Some of it is reflected in partnerships with Edison. I think we want to know that what we like to see are what are some things that the council can do w ithin our own power to accelerate this? For example, I know there's a big conversation about the waste incinerator facility. I know that. And I want to ask staff about this. I know that, you know, we've seen that, you know, eliminating it outright. Maybe it directs things into landfills and it creates other methane issues and it doesn't give you the same impacts. But moving forward, what we have isn't feasible option either. So I'm looking for sort of some strategies or something that shows that there's a B or C, option B, option C is that can you speak to some alternatives or how you plan to think about the incineration facility? Councilman Richardson, this is Christopher Koonce. So there's a few things to understand. As you see in the slide, everything is quantified and it totals 363,000, which is far in excess of the reduction we need, which is 192,000. So we fully anticipate, while we will try to execute every recommendation in this plan and every implementation measure, that we won't be successful on every single one. So there's a little bit of wiggle room worked into the plan to start with. But then when you talk about waste, you know what's in the plan talks about improving commercial recycling and improving organics diversion. The most plan A is to be able to do that at Serv and to be able to do anaerobic digestion at surface and be able to handle organics there. That requires a whole series of decisions that this council will be a part of and that have financial implications for the city. So that's the plan. A but that's not the only plan. So while it may not appear in this document, there's working groups across the departments that are looking at it. If we had to send waste to a different organics facility, where would that be? How would that happen if we had to? Unfortunately, which would not be a good outcome. But if we had to just start landfilling everything that actually results in a number in the other direction, that's an increase in emissions. But we're thinking about in that case, how can we achieve greater reductions elsewhere to offset any of those increased emissions from from waste? So we're doing a lot of that scenario planning. There's only so much we can put in the plan. I think it's like a thousand pages with all the appendices already, but I want you to feel comfortable that that type of scenario work is happening at the staff level today. Okay. Thank you. I'm happy to back up. But three things I want to just note. One, I think, you know, organics and commercial waste is important. I want to make sure that we are revisiting the conversation on the commercial waste and franchising system. There are benefits here and it makes a lot of sense. Secondly, the plan needs funding. We know that measure was passed. There will be some portion of funding to go help implement and make and bring this plan to life. But there will certainly be more. And and third, I think new industry can be created through through these regulations.

New industry can be created. That's the plan on the state's mandates, on getting rid of combustion vehicles is going to create entire industries around infrastructure and clean vehicle infrastructure within our within our state. I would like to see a real I like programing an emphasis on the green industries and the things that be correct created by going through this transition. This will require changing traffic, creating jobs through transitioning equipment and all these other things. I'm really interested in that. So the last thing on task relates to funding. Do you have an idea of what your gap in funding is to implement this? Or can you come back with your update with some ideas of what the gap in funding. This is Tom so we have a general sense of what we tried to do in the plan was to for you like lay out what are the relatively inexpensive ones and what are the the heavy the heavy duty items that we would have to do pay for. So we categorize that in the plan. We would suggest, when this comes back to you, that we come back with a more robust financial analysis. We are certainly going to need money. So this is going to be costly both to the city and there will be some cost to it, to our business and residents as well. We think it's manageable, but we would like to come back to you on that. Thank you. Thank you. What you have Councilmember Supernova and Councilmember Allen who have not spoken yet. And then I'll go back. Councilmember Supernova. Thank you. Thanks to the staff and the public for a presentation and a question on one of the slides, you don't have to go back to the site, but it was on the reduction of oil production and I was just curious how we get there. Does this reference I just city of Long Beach production or is it both public and private sector production? Councilmember this is Patricia defender over this represents reductions in in oil production in the city boundaries. So the in on the inventory side any oil production activity has a certain amount of emissions. And this is a reduction. This is GHG reductions, emissions reductions from reducing oil production in the city by 20%. In 2030 by 2030. And so the answer to that is both public and private production. Yes, oil production. Okay. Thank you. Then during public comment, I just wanted to commend Dr. Elaine Banal for her comments, one in particular about something. I think it's just very practical, and that is when we have something where we have fewer air quality monitors in the areas of need. That seems to be something that's very tangible, very measurable. And to Councilwoman Price's point, something the public could really understand if we make some inroads in that area. So I would just like staff to keep that in mind. Thank you. Thank you. Now, Councilwoman Price. I'm sorry. I'm sorry, Councilwoman Allen. And then we'll go back to Councilman Price. Thanks. Thank you, Mayor. I, too, would like to thank all of my council colleagues with comments and think general

y for the presentation and the staff for providing a road map for a more sustainable and equitable city. I know I met with the staff earlier today and I know that you guys have been working on this for a lot of years, and I know you put a lot of work into this, and I do appreciate the time that you spent with me today answering a lot of my questions and as I have heard from members of our community and advocates. One of the things that I'd like to say is we must be willing to change aspects of this plan, even those that are already approved and underway, if they don't significantly tackle air quality issues and track and tackle climate change. I also look forward, I know there was a huge community involvement in the plan and I look forward to continuing at forward and the process and some of my questions have already been answered. I know with regards to compliance and the dashboard, but a follow up question to that is so when the dashboard shows that we're not meeting our goals, then what do we do? What is the process for making sure that we're ensuring compliance? And I also had a question on a gap in funding that Councilman Richardson talked about. So I look forward to seeing any reports on that. And then also, I had a question that I didn't ask earlier today. When you look at the city multifamily organic waste ordinances ordinance, what is that? I'm not familiar with that. Councilmember, I'll start with your question about what happens when we're not meeting our goal. So that's the purpose of the monitoring. The biannual monitoring is to see how we're doing in relation to those goals. And then the plan also has provisions for plan updates. They're contemplated to be potentially as much as every five years. If the measures are not achieving the objectives that they were intended to achieve, then we would come back to council with essentially updates to this plan that would suggest new measures that might need to be addressed. And then also those those biannual monitoring. When we do the biennial monitoring, we also measure redo the inventory. So we have an understanding of what our emissions are, how they are changing, and then also whether the measures that we have we're pursuing are reducing, resulting in the reductions that we are had estimated. So that's that's the answer to the question of what happens when we don't achieve the targets, the funding. Okay. And then I'm sorry, can you remind me what your last question was? I apologize. Councilmember, if I understand your last question, it's about what is multi-family organic diversion. So a couple of things need to happen in the waste sector, both to comply with state law and to achieve our goals. So organic waste is waste that could be composted but oftentimes ends up in the waste stream and is either incinerated or ends up in a landfill. So for some single family homeowners that have the space, they can compost at home and there's programs that encourage them to do so and we can do better

. But if you're living in an apartment or a condo, your options to compost on site are zero, right? So right now, we don't have a way to segregate that waste. There's not a separate bin and there's not a separate pick up for that organic waste. What the state and this plan are looking for us to do is to be able to separate that waste, either at the point of pick up or later in the waste stream so that it can be either composted or processed in a way that results in the fewest greenhouse gases possible as part of the waste disposal process. Okay. Thank you very much. Okay, Councilman Price. Mr. Mayor. So I want to go back to one particular issue that I see that that both contains the greenhouse gas goals and measures that we have, but also the add up to climate change adaptation goals that we have. And that's the Senate takes place every day on the peninsula with multiple trucks taking sand from west to east because our sand shifts from east to west during the day. And we have. Multiple truck trips back and forth every day. And so the city has participated in some pilot projects to try to replenish the sand without utilizing those trucks. And that's an example of us trying to reduce our our emissions, but also think about sea level rise in terms of broadening our beach. So when we're talking about vehicles like these trucks, the fleet, the truck fleet, I don't believe the ones that are currently on the beach doing the sand replenishment are electrical electric trucks. But does the city manager or anyone on the development services team know whether we're moving in that direction for similar projects? I'm not sure that there's any projects that have that much consistent traffic or perhaps sewage, but I'm sure there are some others in public works that I'm not aware of. But I know that in the third district it's a consistent daily, multiple trucks back and forth. So I think reducing or converting those trucks to electric would make a huge difference. What's the status on that? Yeah, this is Tom. So the the market for commercial heavy duty machinery is really just getting developed for battery electric. We're starting to see some battery electric pilots for dredge trucks in the port and they have been exploring those really aren't in big commercial production at this point. The type of equipment that we're using on the beach is really heavy duty and requires a big load. So those are right now still, you know, they're they're the cleanest type of fuel that that we can find when when we're able to buy those new machines. But they are not electric at this point. We would love to if there is a market that would create those for us. We would love to switch those out as we go forward. And that's good. And I'm hoping that we have technology available to us that I know will be costly, but that will eliminate the need for those trucks like the the the the pumps the sand pumps that we tried to utilize. And now we're thinking about utilizing a second version of

that. I know we've talked about funding gaps. I mean, the funding gap here is is enormous. And I'm hoping that there are state and federal grant opportunities for us to be able to tap into immediately after we've approved this plan. And I'm sure that since this is going to be administered out of the city manager's office, we have committed staff looking at exploring grant opportunities for both the climate change adaptation portion and the greenhouse emissions portion. Is that correct? So, yes, our experience has been once you have a solid plan that's been adopted by your policymakers and lines up with what state and federal governments want to fund your chances of getting funding go way, way up. So we do think that will help. We will then look at the various grant opportunities that are out there. We don't have dedicated staff just in our department that only does grants. We do have some high level coordination, and then we'll be working with each individual department to help implement those strategies for their specific department, but coordinated through the city manager's office. So in the city manager's office, will we have is there a goal moving forward to have a climate officer or climate action officer, anyone that will be able to take this project on and move it forward through the years? Yes. So we're going to be having a task force type model to really maintain accountability and to have a governance structure. It'll be led by our assistant city manager, Linda Tatum, who's got a lot of experience in this area from her previous oversight over development services. If we need to be bringing on dedicated staff, you know that go beyond that. We'll have to address that through our budget process. But we believe we'll have the initial governance structure run kind of each department will have representatives. We have Linda kind of at the top and then we'll use some analyst support as we need to in our office to help support that. That's fantastic. And I know Linda is extremely well versed on this topic because we worked with her, all of us worked with her on this before her current position. So that's great to have her leading the team. The other question that I had was for development services in terms of how this plan gets merged with our city policies in terms of buildings or other zoning type of regulations that we might want to adopt. Is that currently being folded into our applications? Let's say I know for Coastal Commission, for example, any project that we put forth, this Coastal Commission has components of this adaptation plan that's required by that regulatory agency. So is that something that's already being factored into our plans moving forward in terms of permitting, planning, developing specific plans and zoning and things of that nature? Sure. So Councilmember, on the adaptation side, absolutely. That's part of our permitting process. And we want to be aware of sea level rise and other climate risk. At the same time,

I think it's just important to remember that on the reduction side, these are reductions that are going to be achieved by the city and everyone that lives in the city and every business in the city working together. So we've been very careful not to balance the budget, so to speak, on the carbon carbon reductions, on only new development or only on the business sector. So you will see minor changes to affect, you know, sort of those sectors. But really, the on the reduction side is going to be achieved by small changes across all of society here in the city of Long Beach. So it's not going to be designed not to burden any individual, new business or new construction, but rather to be something that everyone contributes to in some way. So I hope that answers your question. It does work in terms of controlling. Price for 5 minutes are up. Thank you. I'll just finish the thought of converting our existing facilities so that they're most energy efficient would be a major priority and I'm sure something that we can apply for matching grant funds for. And I know that the city manager's team will be looking at that. So thank you very much. I appreciate all the answers. Thank you. And then to close this up, we have Councilman Sun in there. And I will be quick. I know that this has been long and that this this plan has a lot a lot of information in it. One of the things that I wanted to say that Councilman Price did touch upon was the fact that we now have are moving this plan under the city manager's office, which is a huge win. I know that this is going to be a good place for this plan, but I also want to thank the ability department for all of their work on this on this plan, but really happy to see it in the city manager's office, as well as the fact that I am a big a big fan of leading by example. And I was wondering if someone on staff could explain to me how we might be able to lay out a specific timeline for our city government, for us ourselves to transition to 100% green. And renewable energy. Do we have a timeline for that? So that'll be part of it. Sorry, this is Tom. So that'll be a part of when the plan is adopted. Then we go into implementation mode on that. That is, if I memory recall, as from the discussion on CAAs, that's probably about a 3 to $4 million price tag to go to that level of 100%. So that's tough to do in any single year. I think we would look at a phased in implementation plan, but that is what we're trying to do in this plan is to lead by example. So before we asked residents to do about 10% of residents to sign in to that plan to do 100% green power, we wanted to lead by example, so we'll need to plan that in in our financial projections. I do think it'll take several years to get there just because we're facing some budget deficits, but we would include that. Just simply wonderful. Thank you for explaining that to me. Time. With that, I'd like to just say thank you once again. Thank you. I'm going to make some closing c omments. Wait. Actually, I'm sorry. Councilman Allen, did you did you come back up? I think you may have another question. Sorry about that. Councilman Allen. Yes, I do have one more question. And one of the things I would like for the staff to speak on is how can we prioritize activities that deliver the most improvement on our day to day life by aligning with the state requirements? Can someone speak on that? So this plan has already prioritized actions based on the metric cubic tons of CO2 that are reduced. So there are a number of actions. There's several dozen actions in the plan. But the ones that we showed you on the PowerPoint slides are the ones where we get the most bang for our buck, we get the most actual reduction. So the plan has already gone through that prioritization, and I think we'll be doing some more materials for the public. But I think. If you think about achieving that 10 to 30% reduction, you're in your own life. It's things that are not one time but are recurring. So when we talk about building energy and making buildings more efficient and we talk about transportation and clean vehicles, you know, as COVID subsidies, you know, for the individual residents, it's about can they make one trip per week, not just one time, but per week, you know, on foot or on a bicycle rather than in a in a car? Can they think about their next vehicle being electric? So we're going to put together some more public outreach materials as we switch from plan preparation to plan implementation. And that will really help the public better understand their piece of how they prioritize actions. But in terms of the actions in the plan itself, we've already done that prioritizing, and that's based on the amount of carbon reduction and ranking those those measures. Thank you so much for that. And again, I just appreciate all your hard work on. Thank you. And I'm just going to wrap us up. I want to just first thank the staff. Amazing work. This is really a significant, huge contribution to the work around climate change and climate action and ensuring that we have a safe city for all of our healthy families. I want to thank the staff who put in a tremendous amount of work on this. I also want to give a shout out to former Councilmember Pearce. She really wanted push to get this before she you know, her term was up and we tried, but she wanted to come out. Right. And I want to thank her for that. And I know the amount of work that she also spent with staff time. So just a shout out to her and to this entire body. Thank you for your incredible work. Folks on on this body have been working on this plan incredibly hard. And I can think about community meetings and think about, you know, Councilman Price or some of the early meetings in her district that I think happened first. And the involvement of of Councilmember Super not particularly what he was on the Sustainability Commission. The contributions that our council members in the North have made on the issues that matter around equity issues, basically. Richardson So everyone has played a big part in this climate climate action plan and the community has as well. So a huge thank you to the community. I want to just note as we move on to this next, you know, kind of E.R. phase that and I mentioned this to staff already, we have still a lot of work to do as it relates to to oil. And I just want to I know that it's referenced and I think cause we're super and I brought it up. But I think as we as we move forward and we have to also put and dig in a more on how we really, really reduce our fossil fuel consumption and how we really transition from, you know, an oil economy that has been for many years very beneficial from a revenue perspective to the city. And we depend a lot, of course, on oil, but it's also damaging our community and it damages the planet and it damages our long term ability to be sustainable. And so we we have to redouble our efforts in that transition away from oil. And I think that that is a both a part of this discussion, and it certainly is in the plan, but it has to be part of a much broader discussion as well, and one that needs to be more aggressive and that this body has to weigh in on, because so much of our services that are dependent and have been for for decades are on oil and how and how oil the tidelands is doing and so many other aspects. And that's a conversation I look forward to having. And it's one where I think this council is ready to weigh in on. And I want to thank again the staff for their incredible work on this issue. And with that, I want to turn this over to the clerk for the roll call. District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six. Park District seven. District eight. II. District nine. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. Appreciate the great work here. And again, thank you. And a huge milestone. Well, that concludes the agenda. We are going to go to two closing comments. I do want to really, really close with a few a few folks that we're going to close the meeting in remembrance of some amazing people. Thank you. We are now going to go on to the rest of the agenda. So let's do item 26, please. Item. Item 26. Communication from City Attorney. Recommendation to declare ordinance. Amending the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to inclusionary housing and for the purpose of implementing California Senate Bill 330. Read the first time and lead over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for Final Reading and adopt a resolution establishing an inclusionary housing in lieu fee citywide. Thank you. I'm going to turn this over to staff. I know we have a this is a very obviously important issue. And so well, let's go through the whole presentation and then we will take some public comment and then we'll go back and do together with the Council on questions in private there. This is Cindy. Turn I'll turn this over to Rich Anthony, deputy city a

by developers. Under the. Inclusionary housing ordinance in lieu of providing affordable units on site. These ordinance are all based on both council direction and modeled on other ordinances currently in use by other municipalities in the state, which we believe reflect best practices. I do want to apologize for the delay in bringing this back to the council. We had you had hoped and we had hoped to have this effective as of January one, but we're going to be a couple of months late. I want to make it clear that staff bears no responsibility for the delay. Christopher Koontz and his team were ready to go a couple of months before I was. I do want to note for the mayor and for the clerk, and notwithstanding the fact this is a single agenda item, we will need three different votes on each of the three things I just mentioned, the inclusionary housing ordinance, the no net loss ordinance, and then lastly, the resolution establishing in lieu fees. So when the Council is ready to vote after question and answers, please remember that there'll be three different votes required. And with that, I am standing by to answer any questions. Mike Mayes, the assistant city attorney, is standing by to answer questions on the no net loss ordinance. Christopher Coons and his team are also standing by to answer any questions to the extent they can. And I turn it back over to you, Mr. Mayor, and the council. I don't have. Let me let me go ahead and do this, if we don't mind. Should we just should we do want to get a public comment first? Yeah, sure. Medical. Yes, that's fine. So we're available. If you want to ask more questions, we're available. Or we can just take direction from the council. Okay. I just thought that was gonna be a little bit of a presentation, I guess. There. There wasn't. Okay. Why don't we go ahead and do. Our first speaker is also tongue. Well, certain. Good evening, Mayor and Council. My name is Elissa Tung, the land use program manager at Long Beach Forward. Thank you to staff and council members for bringing these two. Critical affordable. Housing policies forward tonight. Inclusionary housing and. No net loss are crucial solutions on the dual front of the covenant, the COVID pandemic and racial justice amid the spiking pandemic. Evictions are a death sentence and led to over 10,000 additional deaths nationwide during the first six months of the pandemic. Long Beach renters are mostly black and other people of color, with black women being the most rent burdened. So let's make good on the city's promise in the racial reconciliation report to adopt, quote, a strong inclusionary housing policy. Now, specifically, the draft ordinances before you allow for two alternative compliance options other than building the affordable units on site or paying a fee for the inclusionary ordinance. Number one, developers must not be allowed to propose arbitrary compliance methods to be approved at council's discretion case by case. And number two, land dedication off site should. Only be allowed when the land will accommodate more. Affordable units than would have been built on site. And when the land is. Prioritized for community land trust with deeply affordable units. For the no net loss. Ordinance, affordable replacement units must be on site. If that's. Completely impossible, then the replacement units must be within one. Half mile of the originating. Development. These changes and a number of others which my colleagues will address are critical, most of which are programmatic and clarifying in nature to create a robust inclusionary. Housing and no net. Loss ordinances to build affordable housing for our most vulnerable neighbors. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Jordan Wynn. Hi, this is Jordan Wynn speaking with everyone in Long Beach. I'd like to thank you for taking the time to talk about this. Today, my colleague made great points on inclusionary housing. I would like to bring up three in particular. It was evaluated in the 2021 to 2029 regional housing needs assessment that lawmakers needs to develop up to 11,160 units of low and very low income housing to keep up with demand for affordable housing in the city. Our greatest need is for very low income units. Now, this is something that I don't think can wait. One of the major things that I think we need to shift in this policy is eliminating the proposed three year phasing of this policy. The community cannot afford to wait three more years for the 11% of new rental units being affordable to be set aside. We need every tool in place for an equitable recovery from COVID 19. Waiting this long will cause a frontloading of development that will negatively impact the number of affordable units on the ground. If developers opt for the other compliance option and pay in lieu fees, they must be more narrowly tailored than they are in the current policy. They must be spent entirely on very low income rental units. They must be set to the economic equivalent of providing affordable units on site. They must be tied to an objective index that accurately reflects the costs of land development so that fees respond to market changes. They must be spent on the creation of net new unit and they should not be allowed by write for rental projects of 20 or fewer units. They should be allowed buy right for four or fewer units. These are the changes and many more as you will continue to hear that will make this inclusionary housing policy stronger for all residents of Long Beach. Thank you very much. Thank you. Your next speaker is Victor Sanchez. Councilmember General Mary Garcia. My name is Victor Sanchez, director of the Long Beach Coalition. I want to thank you for bringing this item forward and ask that you consider some changes to include fees as well as a no net loss ordinance with respect to the fees. Fees from rental projects must be spent entirely. On very low income unit, not unknown communities as currently drafted. And they must be spent on the creation of net new units in the fees must be set at the economic equivalent of providing the affordable units on site and tied to an objective annual index that accurately reflects the cost of land and development. These fees should not. Be allowed by write for rental. Projects of 20 or fewer units. Why wouldn't the city want to maximize the number of inclusionary units built on site? With respect to the no net loss ordinance. We must eliminate the 2025 expiration date. No net loss runs with inclusionary policy and should not have an arbitrary end date. The city doesn't have. Nearly enough affordable housing to meet our needs. As my two previous colleagues have mentioned, the arena numbers show that we have a. Deep need for affordable housing here in. Miami, specifically for. Very low. And low income families. And so our hope is that we take into consideration the changes that have been mentioned before. Me and that I mentioned. The current draft of the inclusionary housing and the LOS. Ordinances falls short. And we urge you to consider that. Thank you. Our next speaker is Suzanne Brown. Good evening. My name is Suzanne Brown, and I'm an attorney with the Legal Aid. Foundation of Los Angeles. And our Long. Beach office. We applaud the city for moving forward with land use policies to create and preserve affordable housing. However, we urge the Council to strengthen these ordinances to address our severe, affordable housing crisis and the devastating and disproportionate impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic on low income communities of color. For inclusionary housing, we request for amendments of the Council. First, eliminate the proposed three year phase, and the timeline is overly generous to developers, and it does not put the city's affordable housing needs first. Second, tighten up. And lower fees. So that they are more effective in live fees from rental projects should be spent on very low income rental units, not online communities proposed in the fees should also be tied to an objective index so that they go up and down with the market and do not become annual political fights at council and in lieu fees should be spent on the creation of new uni ts, not on the rehabilitation or subsidy of existing market rate units. Third, developers should not be allowed to propose alternative methods for inclusionary housing compliance. This is an unnecessary Newport loophole that should be closed. Finally, affordable. Units should be covenanted as affordable for the life of the project or in perpetuity. This ensures that affordable units do not expire while building is still in existence, and therefore it also prevents displacement for no net loss. We respectfully request three amendments of the City Council. First, eliminate the 2025 expiration date for this policy. The Council did not direct staff to include an expiration date, and there is no legal reason to do so. Second, similar to inclusionary require that affordable units be covenanted as affordable in perpetuity or for the life of the project. The County of Los Angeles just included this requirement. In its inclusionary housing and no net loss. Ordinances. We ask that Lombard to move with our partners in the region. Third, and finally require that replacement units be located onsite in the development causing the displacement. Thank you for your consideration of our comments. Thank you. Our next speaker is Norberto Lopez. Yes. Hello. City Council and Mayor Garcia. There's not a Lopez project director. With Long Beach resident and powered local tenant. Advocacy. Group. Here, just talk about the inclusionary housing policy as well as on that last policy. We are losing more unit than. We are building affordable units. And that is the sad truth. Although we're in the. Pandemic and there's all these eviction moratoriums. They're going to end one day. And all those. Units that we are holding on to are going to be gone. We're currently working with 11 buildings who have been issued 60 day notices which are invalid, but we have one that is currently in trial, so we need to do better and ensure that we pass a stronger inclusionary housing policy that really live up to what it's supposed to do. And on that last policy, that helps us preserve the existing units and if they are destroyed, they need to be redone and on site as well. We also need to make sure that the affordability needs to last throughout the project. And it's not just 55 years or 50 years added as it is commonly known. And you know, one thing I definitely want to say and inclusionary policy should definitely be strong and not just be paraded as a policy that is supposed to do.

Something and not. Necessarily do it. We need it now more than ever and not. Wait three more years. Thank you. Thank. Think your next speaker is Liane Noble. The evening council. And Mayor, I want to talk to you as a neighborhood activist who lives downtown in District one. And I want to highlight some of the other folks have done some changes. That is the neighborhood we need you to please make to the inclusionary housing and the no net loss policy you are considering. First of all, we need. This. Now. My neighbor

ood has seen market rate apartments being built, which the people who live here can not afford. We now know that there are three buildings in the 700 block of time that have new owners, which means that we are likely to see more new development. This is great, but what we need is low cost. Low income, very low income rental housing now. So please, let's not face it in over three years. Let's not set aspirations of 2025. We need inclusionary housing and no net loss as neighborhoods that will protect these affordable units for the life of the project. The same. Thing with the in. Fees. Let's use criteria that link them to market chain change and that so that we're not finding this issue every year. As the neighborhood you put them at an impossible disadvantage when you adopt policies that have to be looked at on an annual basis. Please make these low income, affordable units affordable for the life of the project. Please make these. Policies kick in. Now. My neighbors who are Kinect have been terrorized for months now because eviction moratoriums go from month to month. We made a commitment to equality as Long Beach. This is an equity issue. It impacts the lives of the people of color who live in my neighborhood. And it affects the. Delivery of the entire neighborhood. You can provide us with equity, leadership and affordable housing, which we so desperately need. Now, I thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Andrew O'Connor. Hello. My name is Angela. Do I know what the. Long Beach Tenants Union, the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic is devastating our communities. Evictions and homelessness are skyrocketing among our community members, just as COVID cases are. With a new variant now specific to Southern California, we must ask ourselves. Are we doing everything. To prevent displacement and ensure our community has access to affordable housing, especially when landlords continue to serve 60 day notices under the guise of substantial rehabilitation and while unlawful detainers. Simply put, the answer is no. We have proof that evictions equal. The nationwide evictions led to over 10,000 additional deaths during the first six months of the pandemic deaths that we just honored at the start of this meeting and will obviously continue if we don't take more aggressive action. This inclusionary housing policy is long overdue and should have been adopted before council decided to start approving the development of highrises in our downtown to include a three year phase in four. This ordinance is not only absurd but negligent decision making. We need this immediately. Furthermore, we're both inclusionary and no net loss. Affordable units should be covenanted as affordable for the life of the project or in perpetuity. L.A. County included covenants in perpetuity in its recent adoption of inclusionary housing and no net loss policies. This is the best practice. I look forward to council taking aggressive action to ease the crisis our communities are currently exper encing as this pandemic continues. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Okay. Thank you very much. We will go back. I have councilman's in Dallas. Thank you, Major. First of all, I'm so grateful to staff for bringing the inclusionary housing back before council today. I know that this is this has been a cumulation of so many and so much incredible work that has been previously done by our previous council, by our City of Long Beach team, and especially by members of our community who have been champions for inclusionary housing for many, many, many years. Policies like this have also been something I've been personally interested in for a long time. I understand how significant this step is for City. I'm also incredibly grateful for the opportunity that we had this past summer to ensure that this policy is able to be best met met by the needs of our community. In that spirit, I would like to make the following motion to help clarify and strengthen parts of the of this ordinance and to have our staff report back on options to continue the conversation and help create more affordable housing moving forward. I move that we accept steps recommendation to declare an ordinance amending the Long Beach Municipal Code relating to the inclusionary housing and associated no net loss ordinance ordinance. With the following reports we put back some amendments. One. I'd like to request city staff to evaluate an extension of the affordability covenants for both inclusionary housing and no net no net loss ordinance from 55 years to two either to improve Treasury. I. I have a hard time pronouncing that word, which means for the life of the project and to report back in 120 days with an analysis and recommendations. Two. I'd also like to request the city staff come back in 120 days with a recommendation on how to ensure that the in lieu fees are captured from inclusionary housing. Rental projects are dedicated to the production of very low income units. Three. I'd like to amend the Inclusionary Housing Industry Resolution to ensure that new fees are used to create new, affordable units and not use for rehabilitation or subsidize of rents in the existing market rate units. Four. I'd like to adopt the resolution with the previous amendments and also request that city staff return in 120 days with the resolution to tie in new fees to an annual index based on changes in the construction and costs of costs of land costs. A fee should be adjusted annually based on two factors one being changes in construction costs, as measured by the engineer's new record construction cost index and two changes in the land costs measured by using the proxy a change in median condominium sale prices. Before I go on, I was also wondering if city attorney could quickly clarify if the no net loss ordinance before us now would expire in 2025? And if that is the case. Would it be possible to amend the ordinance to eliminate that expiration? Councilwoman Zend ejas, it's Mike Mayes, and I was the one that wrote the no net loss ordinance. And yes, the direction we got four counts back on July 14, 2019. Order to implement SB 333330, which was adopted by the state legislature on January 1st or implement on January 1st, 2019, and SB 330 currently does have a sunset. There no requirement that are unserved. You could adopt a no net loss to tonight and simply eliminate the provision that parents the conditions that are in SB 330 as far as the sunset date. So if you want to pass that ordinance tonight, it's separate from the inclusionary zoning ordinance. You can do that. And we would bring it back for a second reading at the next council meeting with the January 2025 being eliminated. I would like to do that. Thank you so much, Mike. Thank you for that. I was also wondering and thank you. I was also wondering if someone, our city attorney, could clarify for me whether amending the no net loss ordinance to ensure that all replacement units under the policy are built on site, we have to trigger another first reading of the ordinance. So what? Councilwoman Cindy Haas. It's Mike Mayes again. Yes, that's a substantive change to the ordinance that would require us to bring it back for a new first reading. Currently, the way the ordinance is written, replacement housing could be built within two mile. You know, the the replaced. So we would need to bring that back. Okay. Thank you. Thank you, Mike, again. Well, I really don't want to further delay this inclusionary housing ordinance. So in that case, I would I would like to request that that staff report back in 120 days with the recommendation to ensure all replacement units are on site so that we don't have to trigger another first reading of this ordinance. Please. Councilwoman Cindy Haas. So as to the inclusionary zoning ordinance, you laid out five points, it's my understanding. To pass the ordinance tonight with the caveat that staff bring back now five, basically five different items in a subsequent report in 120 days that might lean towards maybe amending the ordinance at that the two ordinances at that time. And your intent also is to pass the no net law tonight with the understanding that in five days we come back with a recommendation. On whether or not all requests and how they run. I answered within two miles of the development. Is that correct? Yes, that's correct. Thank you. Thank you. I know there was a lot. I know that was a lot, too. So thank you. Thank you for capturing all that. No problem. And then I have a I think the second on this is Councilwoman Allen, correct? Councilwoman? Yes. Did you have any additional comments? I sure do. I just want to say, first of all, that this is a very important legislation for our city. And I want to thank Council Woman's and De Haas and Vice Mayor Richardson for their leadership and their vision on this. We are in the middle of a housing crisis which is anticipated to get worse if we don't act today. We need th is now. This legislation addresses our acute housing shortage by establishing affordable housing requirements. It also ensures that our affordable housing is protected and secured for future generations. It also ensures that our integrated housing is prioritized. And that's really important to our community. This is not a Band-Aid or a temporary solution, but a major step forward in making our city a more equitable and inclusive place to live. I am so proud to support this policy and with all of the changes that Councilwoman and Dana included in her motion. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson. Mr. Mayor, thank you. First of all, city staff for presenting a good ordinance. It factored in the feedback from the city council from a few months back. All of the feedback and what we have today is is ready to go. And I appreciate the community moving so quickly. I know that it was agenda. On supplementals, there wasn't a lot of time to analyze and evaluate all the different pieces, but the feedback from the community has been incredibly helpful. And and I want to thank

Councilmember Zendejas for her leadership on this both back in a few months ago and tonight. I'm in full support of those recommendations. I think it's it helps make the policy stronger. It also takes into consideration the real market factors in terms of ensuring that, you know, the development market is ready, remains in support and willing to work within our city, in developing our city, because it's important to know that, you know, although this could generate 11% of very low income units, if no development happens, 0% is 0%. And we actually want to build housing that's affordable for people. So there so the recommendations here I think are balanced and they do that and make it stronger. We did move the phase in from five years to three years. So that was that should be noted. So in the last few months that has happened. And so what I think in front of us is ready to go. I think the approach of, hey, the things that we may want to do to make it even stronger, approach it through a 120 day analysis. I think that's a that's a good way to to address it. So we get the policy on the books today. We need our commitment today, and we continue to make it make the policy better. And I think that's that's a smart, important way to to agenda. Is this so so I don't have any questions. I just want to offer my thanks. And this is an incredible moment for the city. I remember my predecessor, Steve Neill, fought for inclusionary housing in the downtown plan years ago. And to finally see all the work of community organizers advocating for this and residents having an advocate advocating for this, I think it's an incredible moment to note and we look forward to continuing to develop our city in the future. Thanks a lot. Thank you. We'll go ahead and do a roll call vote as we get ready for that. I'll just add that, you know, it's been a long time coming and obviously I've made extended comments on on this in the past. So I'll just leave it at that. I'll leave it at that. And just think for their hard work on this issue. Mr. Mayor, this. Is you're absolutely right. Just logged in, Councilman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Sorry about that. I just wanted to weigh in and support this as well. I want to thank the members of the community who reached out to talk with me about this before tonight. I think they raised a lot of issues that Councilwoman De has brought up that caused me pause. But I think that the recommendation by Councilwoman Zendejas is perfect. That's spot on because it allows us to incorporate those changes but doesn't delay the implementation tonight, which is where I thought we might be headed after I talked with the groups and realized there were a lot of good points there that we needed to further consider. So I'm supportive of this, and I want to thank Zendaya's on her leadership on this. Great. Thank you very much. And with that, we will go to Roll Call Misdemeanors. Just to let you know, we need three votes on this items. Okay. I'll let you call on three. The next councilwoman, Cindy has. I. Councilwoman Ellen. Councilwoman Price. I am so, so. All right. Councilwoman Mango. I. Councilwoman Sara. I'm Councilmember Arango. By Councilman Austin. Councilman Alston. Vice Mayor Richardson. Yes. Motion carries. Thank you very much. What's that? Mayor? I'm sorry. The city attorney. We're going to need two more votes on this item. The first vote was the inclusionary zoning ordinance. The next vote will be the no net loss ordinance. And then the final vote will be on the resolution. Okay. Thank you. Item 20 E. Which 23, please? Item 23 is a report from Parks, Recreation and Marine recommendation to submit application to the Los Angeles County Regional Parks and Open Space District for guarantee funding. Increase appropriation in the public purse in the Public Works Department and Parks, Recreation and Marine Department for the Projects and Grant Administration Citywide. Okay. I have a I have a motion and a second. Can I please get a, you know, public comment, a motion by I think this is councilmember. Aston Martin and a second by Councilwoman Sarno. I think that's gone from the last one. Councilman Robson. Councilman sorrow roll call votes which. Councilwoman Sun House. All right, Councilwoman Allen. Hi, Councilwoman Price. Sky Councilmen. Sabrina High Councilwoman Mango II. Councilwoman Sara. I. Councilmember Oranga. I. Councilman Austin. Hi. Vice Mayor Richardson. Vice Mayor Richardson, motion carries. Item 20 Report from Economic Development and Public Works. Recommendation to authorize City Manager to execute all documents necessary for the Second Amendment to project labor agreement and execute a new citywide project. Labor agreement for all covered projects over 750,000 and also street related right of way project over 1 million citywide. Thank you. Let's go and take it to the staff. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, members of the cou ncil. We're excited to be here tonight. We put a lot of good negotiation into a project labor agreement, and we're happy to bring this back after getting some good direction from the council in October and really working through a number of things to make our play even stronger. So I will turn that over to John Keisler and Nick Schulz for the presentation. Thank you, Tom. An honorable mayor and members of the city council. Happy to present to you the details behind the new project labor agreement. So just as a quick background, back in 2015, the council authorized the original play. That agreement funded projects over 500,000. It ran for five years and it required certain things like the jobs coordinator for only projects over a certain amount that was extended by the city council last year so that we could negotiate a new agreement. As you also remember, on October 13th, we actually conducted a study session to get feedback from the city council and hear about the city council priorities. As you, as you recall, the independent jobs coordinator, new definitions for our workers and who would be eligible for the program and new requirements for holding our contractors accountable for the program goals. Another important aspect that the Council highlighted was how can we use our project labor agreement to create good jobs for disadvantaged communities and include goals from our framework for racial reconciliation? I'm happy to report tonight that this new agreement really does hit on all those priorities and that the Council brought forward at the study session and really grateful for our partners at the trades, members of the community that have really provided a lot of input. And this really does establish a ten year agreement that prioritizes our residents, those that have the most challenges, and adds the independent jobs coordinator for all projects to support them in finding and keeping jobs. This new agreement also substantially adds more eligible projects. In fact, in the last play, we covered about $50 million worth of projects. This one will cover almost a quarter billion dollars over $260 million worth of projects that are projected by our public works department over the next five years. This also expands the definition of disadvantaged workers, adds the accountability that the council had prioritized. And to do this, we also increased the thresholds for projects so that we can cover the costs of these additional support programs, address some of the bidding issues we had encountered in the last play, and provide stability longer and bigger projects for our workers so that they have more continuity in their in their jobs. So just as a quick summary of the specific terms and conditions that the trades and and that our team, Nick Schultz hammered out, this is actually doubles the term from five years to ten years effective on the execution by both parties and covers all projects over $750,000 for street related or right of way proj ects over $1,000,000. And what we'll be doing is we'll be coming back after five years when we get our new project list to talk with the trades about a cost escalation factor based on year six and through ten. This also the trades have agreed to place referrals from the city in their apprenticeship program. They've also agreed to prioritize local workers on local jobs no matter where they were on the priority hiring list. And it requires the independent jobs coordinator to support all projects no matter their size. Union membership is not required for our residents and workers to participate in the play. And disadvantage workers now have a range of of different categories, including veteran chronic employment, homeless, single parent, criminal record, all of the same categories that the Metro play requires up in Los Angeles. Also, we're expanding our reporting to record disadvantaged work hours by city and tier so that we can better identify if local workers are benefiting from the program. And we're implementing a program on our side to hold our contractors accountable for these hiring goals that the Council has set. In terms of cost, this really will cover 40 to 50 projects over this next five year period. I have to call out Eric Lopez, our public works director, who has been really working closely, closely with us in really being an advocate for how we can make expand the number of projects in total budget. Those 40, 50 to 50 projects over the next five years are projected to be $266 million. That's a five times increase from our last. And we anticipate for the new programs that we talked about around independent jobs, coordination and reporting that it will be about 1% to 2% of the total project cost depending on the size of the project. That is a total of roughly 2.6 million to 5.3 million over the five year period for the total package. There's only one thing that I have to add to this presentation, which is an A. The recommendations should be approved as written except for the following amendment. And I have this up on the screen. It's in the the second recommendation that the language should read beginning after five years from the effective date of this agreement, the parties shall meet and discuss potential changes to these thresholds with any agreement reached to be put in writing and signed by the City and Building Trades Council. So with that, I will end my report and I'm happy with here with Nick Schulz, who really was at the forefront of negotiating this agreement to answer any questions you might have. Thank you so much. Thank you. Mr. Murdoch, did you have any additional comments? Just that I am really happy with the work that was done. I think we've seen a lot of great projects getting done through our project labor agreement over the past five years. We've employed a lot of people. We've reported on all of that progress and the last time that we did this and we're going to keep tracking it and looking about prioritizing jobs go ing forward. This also is part of our reconciliation work. As the council passed, the reconciliation plan was to really look at how do we do additional jobs, especially in areas that haven't had access to jobs. And that's what the jobs coordinator is going to do. So with that, we're turn it back to the council for questions. Well, thank you. I'm going to make a few comment and then turn it over to Councilmember Ringa who made the motion. Let me let me just begin broadly by saying that I'm really proud that Long Beach has really led the way in the creation of its original city wide project labor agreement. It was not it was done, obviously, with a lot of pain that went into it getting there. And I remember first being on the council when we were having these discussions and the resistance that we ran into as council members and certainly even even some resistance are when all of us came off this body together, a lot of folks that were still learning about what these project labor agreements were really all about from the community. But we got it done and we signed really one of the most substantial city wide agreements in the state of the agreement. It was a partnership with our construction trades, with all of our building trades that do such amazing work across our city, who build our city every single day. And I want to just thank each and every one of them, especially Ron Miller, who has carried who's been our go to leader on that end, but really all the heads of all the trades and the members. And I just want to also note that our work on this place and of course, the work that's happening now as we extend our wasn't just about what happened here in Long Beach, but we took this energy and began to work then with the port to ensure that they had a play. And then pretty soon Long Beach City College moved forward and they put a project labor agreement in place. And then recently the school district moved forward and put their project labor agreement in place. So we we made this not just about our public projects, our large infrastructure projects. We created a system where all project public projects across the city, across jurisdiction, would be ensured to have these level of good jobs. And we know that these projects come in and they come in in great shape. They're done by skilled labor. There's community benefits. There's apprenticeship programs. And they're done with the quality that we expect and within the budget parameters that we put in place. And so it's been it's been a home run for us, really proud to be here again for this extension. And I want to thank all the members that have been so supportive of our project labor agreement work. And so with that, we have a motion and first step is councilmember uranium. Thank you, Mayor. And if you can please put up a Slide seven. Think it's the one that I will be referring to. I want to agree totally with everything that the mayor said when I was on the committee, college board trustees. There was an effort also to create a play when I was on that board and there was resistance as well as during the time that Councilmember Ranga was on the city council to try to bring this forward. And there was also resistance in those days. So this is a major threshold that we're crossing at this point. You can put up Slide seven that. Anyway, the the whole issue is that it is community based. We are still doing a remarkable job of working with our community, our affiliates with Ron Miller and the construction and trades with all the other unions. And we're also dealing with this long before the legal foundation, I'll tell you, the teachers Liberal Lobbyist Mediation Project and many other community groups and leaders who also put a lot of work into this project. The most important parts of the project, obviously, I guess I'm able to fly there, is that it provides the Metro's definition of a disadvantage worker, and it also includes in their the city's ability to not only track these disadvantaged workers, but also find out where the cities are, what period you're in. And also, I think the most important part of it is that it holds our contractors accountable for local, for meeting local, and it's valid, charitable. I think that's one of the most important aspects of this project labor agreement. And as mayor said, it also provides a guarantee that the work that gets done in the city, in Long Beach and that well is done with codes and that with the the knowledge that there are going to be fair wages and living wages for workers in this project. So I'm very happy and pleased toward this motion forward. And we appreciate the unanimous endorsement supported by council. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. Next up is Councilwoman Cindy. Thank you, Mayor. I just want to. Give. A huge congratulations to city staff to council member Rhode Island for all the hard work throughout the year that has been done in advocating for our local construction trade jobs. I know it's been really great to be able to see, you know, this this presentation and see how much work has been put into it. I'm really excited because this this agreement actually brings so many good paying jobs to so many residents in need, especially right now. We're going to need so much of this. So I am looking forward to supporting this item. And again, congratulations on this. Thank you. Council member Austin. Thank you. Obviously, this item has my full support. I want to congratulate and just salute staff for negotiating a great agreement with the the building trades and the interest. I love the fact that many of the points raised by the community over the years, as we have learned over the last five years with the play of how to tweak it, our, our, our, our recommendations to to look at the Metro agreement, it looks like we're we're fully implement kit and agreed upon in this this agreement and that I think will help with equity but but ensure that that a as a member already mentioned that we h ave quality labor peace and quality projects in our city expands it to many other public works jobs that that we currently do now which I think is good. Local hiring is is extremely, extremely important. And I just want to just mention how far we've come. You know, over the last five years, I can remember, you know, the very first meeting when Patrick O'Donnell was the original author to to move the project labor agreement forward. I was a coauthor on that had matriculated it brought came back with you know Gonzales so much work and effort has come in over the years but it did start off very rocky and with a lot of uncertainty and uneasiness. And today I think we it's a 180 degrees. The relationship with the building trades over the last five years and the results that the original play has produced are commendable and something that we can build upon. And so I'm looking forward to supporting this item and putting people to work over the next several years. Thank you. Thank you. Council member I'm sorry. Vice Mayor Richardson is next. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. This is certainly a monumental, monumental achievement for a Long Beach. The last play represented about $2 billion in work. This new play tonight represents more than $260 million more significantly. That's five times the impact on this honest play. It's five times the opportunity. Most of the jobs are coming to our local community, and that's largely by expanding to include street projects. And my colleagues are right. This has been refined. I want to lift up Councilmember Turanga, who's really been a voice and advocate for this since his time at LBC. Standing up for, you know, construction, local training and jobs. So I think it's appropriate that, you know, that he made this motion tonight. And I know he's got a tremendous like going to try to do it. I remember when I was a chief of staff, Steve Meal Break Appalachian Gerry ships Detroit. It's been a long history and it wasn't really until I think 2014 when all of us joined the city council that the support, the votes were there to really make this happen. I'm glad to see that the four high level community needs have been addressed in here. Shout out to the Long Beach local hire coalition and Long Beach Ministers Alliance. They fought for eight years to get this right. These these recommendations were not new. They advocated for these. When we began begin this conversation. They were advocating for these these these four measures. And it's great to see that it's been negotiated. Thank you to the L.A. Building Trades Council and city staff for making sure that these provisions are there. I also want to acknowledge the work of the Long Beach Racial Group Racial Equity and Reconciliation Initiative, specifically calling out the opportunity to ensure that the construction workforce reflects our local community. That's important. So the four pieces, the independent jobs coordinator, I'm glad to see this. They're utilizing strategies from the equ ity toolkit that's important to ensure that black workers, brown workers from our local communities of color can work on these projects. I'm glad to see the definition of disadvantaged work targeting the most to need. You know, I've said it before, we have a k-shaped recovery disadvantage, workers taking a lot longer to recover. So we have to align all of our strategies, including the play with that effort on reporting disadvantage, work hours. Incredibly important. Talked about this and glad to see that in there. And I love that we have a process to move the metro, hold contractors accountable. That's the view of all these things together has brought brought us to this point. So this is a big moment for the community. It's a big moment for jobs, the big moment for labor. It's a big moment, moment for language. And it's all about the recovery. So so thanks a lot. And I'm happy to support this motion. Thank you, Councilwoman Allen. Councilwoman Allen. Not going too well. Sorry about that. Yes, I'm sorry about that. I was still on mute. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. And I'm just really excited that we're at a good point and that everyone is happy. And I know that it always hasn't been this way in the past, but so much good work has been put into this . And I have heard from several of our partners and this is a good package. Local hires. Goals are being met and the play has mechanisms to ensure a good faith effort by contractors, which is good. It encourages hiring of disadvantaged workers and implements independent job coordinator and also covers our street and gas line projects that weren't covered in the past. But most importantly, like my colleagues have already talked about, it establishes a ten year agreement that prioritizes Long Beach residents on the hiring list. And this is important for our community in a time where, you know, we need these jobs. So I do want to thank John Keiser and Nick Schultz and Eric Lopez for their work on this play and for all of our partners and trade. And I also want to acknowledge my colleague, Councilman Roberto Ranga, for his history and advocating for our local construction trades since his time on the council. So great work, everyone, and I'm excited to pass this tonight. Thank you, Councilman Allen. Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Can you hear me okay? Yes. No problem. Okay. Thank you very much. I do want to acknowledge the great work of staff of getting us to this point. And I know that during the conversations tonight, we've talked a lot about, you know, initial resistance to this. And I'm not sure exactly what specific conduct or words folks are recalling, but I do. Just like Councilman Austin, I do remember when this item came forth, I believe we were having our meeting offsite at the Highland Park Community Center when we first discussed this topic. And I think, you know, I was one of the council members that really was concerned about the additional cost of the project, because that was a communit y concern that would city projects now take on an additional cost. So I don't know that I would necessarily call that resistance, but I was really grateful at the time because the makers of the motion did accept some of the friendlies that I made that resulted in us having more transparency and regular reporting than we would normally have on citywide projects, which allowed us to be able to demonstrate to the constituents the best use of the public funds that we were using for these projects, which of course, is is the number one concern for all of us with the fiduciary duty to to make sure that we're getting the best price for projects. One thing that I have learned over the years is as several of the projects in my district and along the coastline have been completed with the play, they've been tremendously successful projects. And while there may be an additional cost associated with the terms of a play, that cost is is far outweighed by the benefits of utilizing a play. What I have been able to determine and speak of as fact from my own personal opinion as a result of some of the report back requirements that were part of the friendly amendment that we adopted five years ago, actually seven years ago, was that six years ago, on balance, the additional costs of the yielded in projects that are consistent in terms of the work quality and the quality of the final product, the efficiencies that have been identified as a result of working of the play, our efficiencies that we would not have without a play. And I think overall having some consistency and also at the same time putting quality Long Beach and regional workers on our city projects has far outweighed any additional costs that would come with the projects. And in my experience, the projects that I've been involved in have all come in under budget. So I feel very confident. I'm grateful that we had a robust dialog that was critical of some of the the concerns because we were able to demonstrate through the data that the play is actually a beneficial opportunity for the city in terms of executing city wide projects. And I'm grateful for John Keisler and Nick Schulz for putting the work that they put into place tonight, but also in the consistent reporting that was adopted as part of this provision in 2015. So I fully support this project and I look forward to having more city wide projects that can be completed through a play. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I want to thank so many members of our community who have continued to stand up for the community needs. I remember the dialog as well and at the time I was really modeling my goals after the Metro contract. It was the only conference that I was pretty familiar with and in meeting with elected officials that had passed a play and they really felt it was the gold standard. And here we are today. I'm able to mirror some of those things today, so I want to appreciate Labor for their work over the last five years. They'

ve done excellent projects that I don't think would have been possible without the coordinated collaboration between our staff, the unions and the bid winners. And then I also want to thank our city staff. It has not been an easy path. It is a lot of additional work and we know that you're taking it on and taking it very seriously has led to amazing community impacts for individuals who might not otherwise have a job. And when you talk to someone who has had an opportunity because of the building trades and the confidence they have and how you can hear in their voice that their life has changed, you can tell that these agreements are really more than just jobs. They're really life.

They're life for a family. They're breadwinners, they're community members that are able to have a living wage and also feel competent about how they can be a productive member of the community by contributing to their family. And so I just want to thank everyone who's worked with me over the past several years. I had a lot to learn about plays, and I think that now as a member of a council that's really I'm leading with partnership, I'm really proud to be here. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Next up is Councilman Ringo. Thank you very much. I haven't had a chance to speak yet. I don't know if you're kind of going back. Yeah, I have your next. Sorry about that. Let me, let me. Let me. Let me, actually. What am I going to cancel in sorrow. And then I'll go to Castleman sorrow. Thank you. Sorry about that. I thought. Councilmember, you and I have spoken already, but I just want to make sure that to thank everyone who has been involved to getting it to this version, I know that it's taken a lot of conversations and work. And so I think John Kaiser Mitchell and Eric Lopez and their staff are getting it working so hard. And also our community organizers and advocates who have also made sure that we got all these different pieces together particularly. So just making sure I know that it's going to help, you know, contribute to increasing equity in my district. And I especially think it's a bit important that we incorporate the Metro's play definition of disadvantage workers and getting independent jobs coordinator. And it's going to be so crucial to ensuring that we get people in my district back to work and improving the livelihoods in their family as well. And also, I just want to echo to what Councilwoman Allen shared about again, referring back to Councilmember Urunga, as, you know, making this motion and his leadership and not only having his expertise around plays and labor and workforce development to the council, but also at bringing it from his past work as a LPC trustee. So I'm very supportive of this item and happy to support it. Thank you. Thank you. And now Councilmember Ringo. Thank you, Mayor. And I want to express my gratitude to all my colleagues for their very positive thoughts on this project here and the project legal agreement. It's been a long time coming. It's been a labor of love for many of us. And it's a culmination of a lot of blood, sweat and tears volunteers in bringing this forward. But one last thing, if I can. I'd like to see if we can have an annual review as to how we're doing with our place in our hiring efforts so that we can keep track of what we're doing here. And with that, a motion to approve the project agreement. Okay. Can we take public comment, please? Our first speakers, Abraham Zavala. Abraham Zavala. Hello? Yes. Yes. Please begin. Okay. Hello, everybody. This is Lopez speaking on behalf of Abraham that I couldn't make it. Representing Libra. Hello, Honorable Mayor and City Council. Thank you so much for digging. And also thank you for taking step forward and doing what's right, right. And protecting and ensuring that workers here locally get jobs. And hopefully with the new steps, we can ensure that local Long Beach residents are the ones taking up these local jobs with good benefits and the entry way to also union jobs that will ensure, you know, and ensure that we continue to grow middle class. So you can offer an opportunity to recreate and regrow a middle class to low income, marginalized residents who at times are, you know, put to the side, whether it's a criminal record or any other thing that is, you know, not allowing them to get a job. And, you know, we're offering opportunities here. So as a Long Beach resident, I'm really excited to see this forward. Really happy to see this as a tenant advocate, you know, to be able to offer, you know, opportunity for people who, like I said, get marginalized. And as we take that forward towards equity, you know, we're headed in the right direction. So, once again, thank you so much. And as a member of the of the coalition, you know, we support this and are really thankful for everyone who's taking a stab at this. Thank you. I think your next speaker is Chris Hannan. Chris Hannan. Hello. Good evening. Honorable mayor, honorable city council members. This is Chris Hannan, representative for the Los Angeles Orange County's Building Construction Trades Council. The city of Long Beach is the project. Labor agreement has created opportunities for so many, with 235,000 work hours that were created or that were worked constructing those projects for the residents of Long Beach, the impact was much greater. And I'd like to echo some of the comments that were made earlier. The impact and example the city of Long Beach said is just so much bigger than that. The individuals that were taken in through the Long Beach City College's apprenticeship readiness program. That was created because of the city of Long Beach's Project Labor Agreement. Those individuals are now over the same period of time working between 680 to 850,000 work hours for that same five year period of time. It's led to other project labor agreements and community workforce agreements in the area. When I was at the Long Beach Unified School District's meeting, as well as the Long Beach City College's meetings for their project labor agreements, there were individuals that started their careers because of the city of Long Beach. This play. And it's just incredible the impact that it's made on their lives. And now they're working not just on those Long Beach projects, but in and around the region. And bringing those dollars back to their communities along the Pacific Gateways has done a great job supporting and removing barriers for these for these candidates as they entered into apprenticeship. And now many of them are even completing their apprenticeships and our journey level workers within our local unions. So the new ten year agreement is just going to create an expansion of those opportunities. And on behalf of the Building Trades Council and our local union affiliates and apprenticeship programs, we support the approval of item number 20. And want to thank all of you for the partnership. Thank you. I think your next speaker is Elsa Tung. Hi. Good evening, Honorable Mayor and City Council. My name is Elsa Tung from Long Beach Forward, a member of the Long Beach Local Hire Coalition, which is a community based coalition that has been fighting for years for local and disadvantaged hire. Best practices within the city wide project labor agreement to benefit our Long Beach neighbors most in need. Today we say thank you. Thank you so much to economic development director John Keisler to city staff and to our council champions. Thank you for listening and with your vote today, thank you for doing right by our community. The proposed new plea includes the four structural improvements that have been consistently recommended by the local higher coalition to strengthen local disadvantage. Tire number one require an independent jobs coordinator for all projects to define disadvantaged worker using Metro's definition, which targets the most economically and socially disadvantaged population. Three Report Disadvantaged work hours by city or tier. So we know if Long Beach residents are benefiting and for use Metro's process for holding contractors liable for local and disadvantaged hiring goals. Council members recall that under the original 2015 plea, only an average of 19% of work hours were performed by Long Beach workers, with a majority of work hours coming from outside Long Beach. With these four structural changes, we should see this balance tips back toward Long Beach workers, and specifically the Long Beach workers who are most structurally disadvantaged. Finally, I want to read out loud the equity lens section of the staff report, because this is the city's promise that everyone needs to hear, quote, exploring and enhancing the role of the independent jobs coordinator in the proposed plan to improve access to local jobs for black communities and communities of color was explicitly called for as an action item in the strategy for Advancing Economic Equity in the city's Racial Equity and Reconciliation

n Initiative. Report to advance the strategy, the play administrator in the Economic Development Department will develop an implementation plan using strategies from the Equity Toolkit to enhance the role of the Independent Jobs Coordinator in the recruitment, training and ongoing support of black workers and local communities of color for work on play projects. Now, to keep track of this promise over the next ten years of the agreement, the play should be brought back to council regularly for official review and evaluation council members. We find ourselves in one of the worst health, economic and racial injustice crises this city has ever seen. But with your leadership, we will have a brighter future. Thank you so much for your leadership today. Thank you. I think your next speaker is Jessie. I'll call her. Yeah. Well, also the council on all council. Mayor, my name is Jessie Alcala. I am a single father of five daughters. I live in the city of Long Beach. And the one thing I want to thank the city council for is creating this program that focuses on disadvantaged workers like myself. I am a single parent raising five girls all on my own. And this opportunity that I believe that can program, that can provide. Well to make a huge impact on my life and many lives. Long Beach residents. So what we would like to do is to have a strong commitment from the Honorable Council to stay focused on hiring locals as an active tenant leader in the housing. Just a moment. I want to call on council to remember that your jobs can lead to more stable housing for families like myself and my residents around. Thank you for your time. Thank your next speaker, Suzanne Brown. Yeah. Good evening. My name is Suzanne Brown, and I'm an attorney with the Legal Aid Foundation of Los Angeles in our Long Beach office. I'm speaking this evening on behalf of the Long Beach Local Hire Coalition. Our coalition came together eight years ago to fight for strong, local and disadvantaged hiring requirements in the city's play. We strongly support plays and all the benefits of good paying union jobs, which is why the local and disadvantaged hiring pieces are so important to us. While it has taken some time to get the local and disadvantaged hiring provisions right, the recommendations in the staff report reflect what the community has been fighting for since the Coalition was formed eight years ago. We want to acknowledge this progress. We strongly support the adoption of a new play for ten years, with the four additional provisions laid out in the staff report, which you've heard restated many times, requiring an independent third party jobs coordinator for all play projects, utilizing Metro's definition of disadvantaged worker reporting, disadvantage, work hours by city or tier, and using Metro's process for holding contractors liable. These additional provisions will bring languages play into alignment with best practices by our partners in the region, such as L.A. Metro, and they will result in more jobs for Long Beach residents at a time when jobs are desperately needed. With the devastating and unequal impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic, we must seize opportunities to assist with a more equitable recovery. The play is one such opportunity and it was identified as such in the reconciliation initiative. We want to especially thank Councilmember Urunga and Vice Mayor Richardson for the leadership on this item. They have been working alongside us for years now. We also want to thank John Keisler and his team for working with us to create a play that includes the community's priorities. Thank you. I think your next speaker is coming off of a. Bob. President. Yes, good evening. Mayor and city council some provide here. You know, I just wanted to mention that, you know, ever since this project global agreement was in place five, six years ago, you know, thanks to the city mayor and. And the city council for taking on the adoption of the plea. You know, we know it was, you know, hard negotiations between the building trades, Roger Miller and Ray and and and the city staff at the time. But, you know, we we always experience these type of project labor agreements that come across a renewal process. And I don't think there's not one project labor agreement that has not been renewed since the project labor agreements have been in place for for many, many years. So, you know, I just want to echo the mayor's comments when he mentioned earlier about, you know, the city of Long Beach taking on, you know, throughout the city departments and the different agencies in the city of Long Beach that have adopted project agreements. Thank you to you, Mayor, for, you know, being the advocate that you are and the city council, you know, being advocates as well to the to the other agencies within the city. You know, and I think, you know, the city of Long Beach, you know, you know, take their hats off and say, hey, you know what? You're the you're basically the only city that has done this, I think, in all California, when it comes to having all the different agencies within the city of Long Beach adopt a project labor agreement. And I think the top probably three or four cities that have adopted a ten year agreement, you know, within L.A. County. So, you know, this is you know, this this day is a historical day, especially moving forward with the infrastructure dollars that the city is looking forward to in the near future. We look forward to working closely with the city of Long Beach and making sure that these project improvements, you know, keep keep moving and in making sure that we keep ourselves accountable. I want to thank the city staff, Nick and John and Public Works director for negotiating this contract. You know, these contracts and you know, they're not easy, but, you know, you guys got it done. And, you know, he'll be out tonight getting this applicants approved. So thank you. Thank you very much. And we look forward to working clos ely with the city and then. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Mayor. That concludes public comment. Customer Ringa before we go to the depot or I'm sorry you made a motion. I just want to confirm that that includes the the revisions the staff discussed. Yes, it does. And I also think in the annual review of the progress. Yes, we we definitely we definitely got that and then I have so that's the motion to have the second by councilman's in Dallas and councilman price. Tamara, just real quickly, I wanted to just highlight a couple of things as as my colleagues were talking. It occurred to me that this conversation regarding plays has been going on far before, even when I was on the council and councilman Councilman Ranga highlighting that former Councilwoman Ranga had also brought this issue before council and that he himself had brought it with City College as a reminder that this is a lot of conversation. Then when I was involved in this through this council, and so there probably has been a lot of historical procedures with resistance and concerns and things in the past that I'm not even aware of. But I do. I would be remiss if I didn't call out specifically now Assemblymember O'Donnell and Senator Gonzales. Assemblymember O'Donnell is the one who brought that item forth at that first meeting that I think lasted until one or 2 a.m. at Highland Park, where we first talked about this issue. And he was really passionate about the topic and did a lot to educate me. And I know some of my other colleagues on why he felt passionately about it. And when he went on to the assembly, Senator Gonzalez really took the lead on this as well. And so, Councilmember Ranga, thank you for your efforts on this and for reminding us of how long this discussion has actually been happening, that it even predated you on this body, but that you had initiated on the College Board as well. So I really appreciate that. But I didn't want the night to go by without acknowledging some of our former colleagues who contributed so much to this conversation. So thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. There is a motion and a second roll call. Vote, please. District one. I district to. I think District three, I District four. All right. District five. District five. I. Can you hear me? Yes, thank you. Oh, good. Thank you. District six. I. District seven. A resounding A. District eight. II. District nine. By. Motion carries. Thank you very much. Moving on, we have I think we've got four or five kind of second readings of ordinances. So why don't we go ahead and get through these rather quickly? I 22 please. Right. Ocean carries. Thank you. Can we please read out five, please? Report from financial management. Recommendation to receive and file an amendment to this contract with GSI for providing security services, security guard services, and contract for providing all Social Security Guard services in the amount of $909,000 to provide. Thank you. I do have a motion by Councilmember Allen who's cued up on this, but she pulled the item. Councilwoman Allen, did you want a staff report on this or did you want to just go? Did you have comments? Yes, I have comments. I can make the comments either before or after the staff report. Okay. Why don't we go ahead and have a maybe have a staff report from from staff, Mr. MODICA. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Jan GROSS will give a brief staff report on this item. Hi. Good evening. A mayor and council members. And this is a contract for security guard services, but only. For. Outlying facilities. Of the city. Uses employees at the city hall, the airport in the harbor. The contract was approved by. Council, but it has been authorized. Only in. Increments, so that council can look at the potential of using in-house security guards at the request of council. There was a study done by the city which. Showed that there would be a estimated 138%. Cost premium, more than double the cost. To go in-house. And that those costs could be. At the health and the library for the large. Part. There have been communications with council about the status and with the I am and the I. Think that's unless there are questions, that's. Kind of the. Status report. And I'm open for questions. Thank you. Let me turn this over to Councilwoman Allen. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I did ask for this item to be pulled for a separate discussion. It's important to me that, you know, these good paying union jobs stay in Long Beach, and I don't want these jobs outsourced to nonunion employers. And prior to COVID 19, the previous council did give direction to the staff to bring back a plan on how these job hubs can be brought in-house. And I understand that projects have been delayed due to the pandemic response. But last week I did receive a letter from IBM that was sent to our office and response to the letter. I had several discussions with the city manager. I would like to approve this contract extension on the condition that a plan be made to bring these jobs in-house and brought back to council within 90 days. So I would therefore like to move that. We approve staff recommendations as amended to avoid service disruption while recognizing the ability of the city to terminate the contractual services at any time and request a preliminary report in 90 days that identifies the outlying security positions that are best suited for using city employees while there. And I think that some of these security work may not be as well suited for full time assignments. Additionally, the report should include information on ways to offset cost, including options to alter non general fund and general fund security services as needed security services and all the other alternatives. Thank you very much. Thank you. I think I have a second by. Customary Ringo. Customary Ringo. Thank you, Mary. And I want to echo the comments that Councilmember Allard has stated. Those were exactly my thoughts. Also, you know, when we have these long term contracts that basically continue on year after year and we have a prop owl study. Sometimes the Prop eight also doesn't fully reflect the amount of time that it's given into the contracts and the amount of money in there. So I think that the study that Councilmember Allen has requested come back in 90 days with how we can incorporate dispositions into the family is an excellent idea that we should always consider the fact that we are not a contract city and we should always look at positions that are part of our jurisdiction and part of our responsibilities, that these are full time paid jobs. Thank you. But you. Next up is council. I'm sorry, Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. I'll be brief. I think this is is the right approach to take a look at what we can do and bring a plan back to restore restore what jobs we can, what job we can restore. So I'll certainly support that. I think, Councilmember Allen, for hitting the ground running and picking up this issue and understanding it, given the critical analysis and making sure that we we are preserving local jobs as best we can. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. Yes. Thank you. During this time of a pandemic, I think it's more important than ever that we ensure that people aren't losing their jobs. And I would like to ask the maker of the motion to also add in a component where the H.R. department would help evaluate the criteria that would be need to be met so that these individuals could be become a part of the city family. Oftentimes, when contracts become city contractors become city employees, those contractors just lay off the people and other people who meet city standards are able to get those jobs. 23 of these individuals are Long Beach residents, and I think it's critical during this time that we ensure that our residents have opportunities to become part of our city family. So if the maker of the motion is open to adding that to the direction, I would be very supportive. Okay. So I think the the friendly concept mango is also have a chart. Take a look at the report that comes back to see if there's ways of incorporating some of the folks that are currently in those jobs, if they're part of the process and bring those back that I get that right. Yes. Thank you. Councilwoman Allen, are you okay with that friendly? Yes, I am. I am okay with that. Okay. Next up is Councilwoman Zendejas. I would like to thank Councilmember Allen for taking this out of the consent calendar. I really think that it needed to be discussed. So thank you for that. This is something that I think is really important for both the city government and for our working families in Long Beach. I think it's critical for us to do business in the way that preserves and extends opportunities for good union jobs in our community. And as such, it's my hope that we can work on a transition of some of these roles into our in-house, you know, city, city employees. I understand that we are going through a very hard budget cycle and budget situation overall, but I think that this is something that in the long run will benefit us as a city and will benefit our residents as a city as well. So again, thank you, Councilmember Allen, for bringing this this out of consent calendar and for your motion tonight. Thank you for that. Want to go ahead and also just add if you had to add a few things. First is, I do want to thank Councilman Allen for for bringing this issue forward and for communicating with me directly about your thoughts, which I of course, I agree with. And in addition to, I am for raising the issue, which is an important issue. I think all of us are proud of the work that our city employees do. We're obviously proud of the partnerships we have with across across the city as well with different organizations or different small businesses. We always want to ensure that the folks that work with us, the more that we can do to ensure that they have those great good jobs and benefits and are represented, I think is a great thing. So I look forward to this coming back in the next few months. And I know that in my conversations with with staff and Mr. Modack, I know that obviously this this is a the contract is a combination of more full time folks and some part time work that happens as well and kind of dedicated to types of security services. And so it'll be good to see kind of what what makes sense for us in Long Beach to kind of bring in-house and and how we can support those folks, especially like like we said earlier, our folks that are that are part of our community and part of our city. So anytime we can support these good jobs in our in our within our city structure, we know that the work is going to get done. Well, we know that these are folks that are part of our community. And so I'm happy to support this. So thank you all to everyone for being involved in this item and that. Councilman Allen Especially with that, I don't think there is any public comment that I have on my comment sheet. So we will go ahead and take a roll call vote. District one. A District two. I District three. High District for. I. District five. By District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. By. Motion carries. Thank you very much. Let's move on to item. 12. Item 12 is a report from financial management. Recommendation to receive and file the fiscal year 2020 year end budget performance report and increase appropriation in several funds to reflect final expenditures and carryover up CDI. Okay. I know. Mr. Modica. I think Mr. GROSS was gonna give us an update. Yes, sir. Mr. GROSS and Grayson are able to give us that report. Hello, Mayor. And members of the City Council. Can you all hear me? Yes, we can. Okay, great. Good evening, Mayor and members of the City Council. This is the year end performance report for FY 20 for all funds. As we know, this past year was an unprecedented year with the city facing issues, a worldwide pandemic, the injustices and increased exposure of systemic racism and economic disruption. These events altered the city's priorities and focus in Fy20 and has had a significant impact on the city's finances and our financial strength. As a reminder, the Fy20 budget was adopted before employee contract negotiations were complete and the budget did not include funding for these potential costs. Therefore, when negotiations were complete, cost of about 10 to 12 million were unfunded. However, based on strong fy19 performance, there were encouraging signs at that time that strong revenue performance in FY20 could help cover these costs. Unfortunately, the pandemic hit and that strong revenue did not occur after it became clear that the world was in a pandemic situation. The initial shortfall projection indicated that the general fund could have a potential shortfall of 25 to 41 million, largely due to pandemic related revenue loss. Fortunately, the final shortfall didn't turn out to be as bad as initial signs showed. The ending of FY 20 shortfall in the general fund is 19.7 million. However, I would like to note that this is an incredibly unusual and unique year with many accounting complexities that we are still researching, adjusting entries and the financial systems were still occurring subsequent to finalizing this report that could impact the shortfall by 2 to 3 million. Potentially to the good. But the ultimate situation of a large shortfall will not change. This ending shortfall is better than the early projections due to several factors, both on the revenue and expenditure side. The revenue shortfalls were not as severe as originally thought to be possible. Additionally, some revenues outperformed expectations such as cannabis revenues. Lastly, the revenue loss was mitigated by actions such as not funding the annual oilfield abandonment liability costs to preserve as much of the expected oil transfer, as well as additional gasoline transfers due to strong performance in the gas fund while staying within charter limits. In terms of expenditure, proactive measures were taken during the year. The city manager issued mid-year savings target and a hiring freeze to departments who work to scale back on costs and generate savings. The City Council also suspended some previously approved one time projects. Federal and state grants such as FEMA and CARES also help cover eligible pandemic costs. And a separate report providing full detail on pandemic related expenses and offsets will be issued soon in a separate tff. Ultimately, while these actions help to reduce the shortfalls, revenue were not sufficient in covering expenses, which included unexpected costs related to First Amendment demonstrations, response to civil unrest, the negotiated contract costs that were not budgeted, as well as additional funds needing to be reserved, such as the measure and litigation lawsuit. This general fund shortfall is being addressed by utilizing 12.6 million of the 13.5 million operating re serves and about 6.8 million of the 46 million emergency reserve. This essentially depletes the operating reserves and bring both reserves below the recommended minimum levels. Replenishing these reserves and restoring financial resiliency should be a high priority for any future surplus use or for any federal stimulus funds the city might receive. Other funds were also adversely impacted by the pandemic or have fiscal challenges for other reasons. These include the Tidelands Operating Fund, the Special Advertising and Promotions Fund, the Insurance Fund, the Civic Center Fund and the Towing Fund. Unlike the Tidelands and the special advertising and promotion funds are anticipated to have continuing challenges in FY 21, with the pandemic related revenue loss and expenses, they will need to be closely monitored with potential mitigating adjustments in FY 21. To conclude with some good news, the measure program ended with a surplus of 5.3 million due to a mix of revenue coming in over budget expenditure, savings from the delayed police academy and not contributing to the measure b stabilization reserves which occurs by design when there are fiscal difficulties such as the one we faced in FY20. The city manager is proposing to allocate these dollars towards critical infrastructure projects as listed in the report, with investments for street improvements, improvements in sidewalk, curb ramp and ADA compliance program, traffic circle, wayfinding signs, tree trimming program, and support for repairing and upgrading citywide security cameras. In FY 20, the City Council had adopted a motion designated future measure surplus funds to be focused on alleys and park improvements. But with the pandemic impacting the availability of funds for various critical needs. The recommendations focus on immediate needs, which other funding is not available. If the City Council concurs with these allocations, the measure recommendations will be incorporated into a FY 21 Budget Adjustment Report as contingent appropriations subject to the Citizens Advisory Committee review in April to ensure that a use is in compliance with the intent of measuring spending. This concludes my staff report and I'm available for questions. Thank you. I have a motion to approve by Councilmember Ringa. Is there a second place? Second by Councilwoman Zendejas. Let me before I go back to Councilmember Durango, I just want to make some broad comments. First is I certainly there's no question that this is a better update than we had a few months ago. And it's great to see, obviously, many of our funds and projections perform better than we were expecting. So I think that's really great news. I think also it's important to note that we are using our emergency reserve on exactly what the name of the reserve is called, and that's in case of emergencies. These are kind of once in a generation events. This certainly this pandemic has been the truly the largest challenge to us that we have faced as a city and community. And so it's very appropriate that that in these emergencies, we have this fund to help us get by and get through. Let me also just add, and I think also that which is really critical and this this is not not a conversation for tonight, but it certainly will be a few weeks from now is that the White House and Congress are putting final touches on the American rescue plan, and we don't have final details yet on what those numbers look like. But we do know that there is going to be significant support for cities. And we are working very hard to ensure that Long Beach receives a significant share of that plan. We should know kind of the conclusion of that in the in the in the weeks ahead. And and as part of that, many of our kind of shortfall challenges, including the ability to look at how we build back that reserve, is all possible within this plan. And so I think I look forward to sharing more when when it is set by the Congress. And I know this council also looks forward to having that conversation in the future. And so I just wanted to add that a little context to what's in front of us. And so thank you again to our budget staff for this presentation. Customer Oranga Did you have any comments? You made the motion. I just thank you there for the hard work that you're doing and making sure that we get this fair share of the assistance that's going to be coming from the federal government. And as a member of the Oversight Budget Oversight Committee, I am committed to looking further into other creative ways that we can manage this budget and weather this pandemic, as well as all the other challenges that we face this past year. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman. Sunday House. To thank you, Mayor and staff, for working really hard on this. I know it's been a very difficult year, so I appreciate all the hard work that has gone into saving as much as we can, wherever we can. And I'm looking forward to the funds coming down to us. So thank you. Thank you for super now. Thank you, Mayor. I just have one comment on the report and it is regarding an item on page 12. The Measure A and it is an enhancement of $800,000 to be spent on signage and landscaping at the traffic circle in the fourth Council District. First, I'd like to thank staff for supporting the city for project. Unfortunately, I have not received any information on the proposed project, so I cannot vote in support of the agenda item for a project of this magnitude. I would have expected to receive a briefing renderings and the opportunity to share the project with the public. That did not happen. So regretfully, I will not be able to support the item and also like to add that I am not commenting on the merits of the project. Potentially, this could be the greatest public works projects in the history of mankind. The problem is, I don't know what it is, so it puts me in an awkward position of turning down $800,000 for my district, but I can't do that without knowing anything about the project. So thank you for that. And that concludes my comments. Councilman Austin. Thank you. I just wanted to thank staff, particularly Ms.. HUME, for the great presentation, our finance team for for really staying on top of our budget. It's good for us to know where we've been, to know where we're going. And just a couple of remarks here. Measure a you know, again, I want to thank the voters in Long Beach for for passing Measure A, because I don't know where we'd be without that fund. We'd be really handicapped to be able to do anything comes related to infrastructure repair as well as, you know, maintaining the level of public safety that we do have today. And then congratulate the the council and the city staff or for its work related to cannabis as well. Cannabis is is a new industry that is really way outperforming projections that were that were projected back in 19 and 20. So, you know, again, being innovative, being creative, being bolder, looking at new revenue opportunities was was incredibly important for us. We still had a deficit year on balance of $19 million in FY 20, but it could have been much, much worse. I'm, again, very interested in seeing how we how we rebound over the next several months and hopefully and and we'll be working with you, Mr. Mayor, to. To get all the support we can from the federal and state governments to replenish our reserves and continue to provide a great service that we do for the residents of Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I guess my biggest concern is something that I communicated to the city manager when he brought forward this. The city council voted when we brought forward measure what we wanted those next set of priorities to be. And those priorities are not here. And so while a lot of these projects are important, we told the voters and and we also told the community when we had these hearings and people came forward to talk about the budget, that the next round of measure funding, if it became available, would be for park bathrooms, would be for pump values. We talked about these things. And so my big hesitation is we went through a process and the Budget Committee and the budget chair brought that forward. And we discussed it as a council and we made those recommendations. And I get that it's important to make adjustments on the floor. And as time goes by. But in the discussions with city staff, it sounds as though those priorities were an afterthought. And so that gives me heartburn. And so I feel like this was the same type of thing that came up when we discussed the worst streets first. We talked about that there are streets across the city that are very poor and alleys across the city that are very poor. And we agreed that those were the priorities. So is, as Mr. Otunga, the maker of the motion. He is. I guess I would ask the city staff, what's the urgency of approving this tonight and if there potentially are other councilmembers that f eel that this needs to go back and get another look? And if there is, then I would hope Councilmember Odinga would be open to having some city staff bring back a revision next week. And let's continue this item. Councilmember. How can we have a motion on the floor? We're going to go ahead and go to a vote. Kashmir ranga. Unless you have a. A change or a friendly on that. I'm asking if you'd be open to a. Sorry. Attenuation. A friendly amendment to continue for a week. Cut from your income? No, I don't think so. I think what we can do is we can work this out through the Budget Advisory Committee for the whole country. Okay. We're going to go to a roll call vote. Madam Clerk. Councilwoman Sunday House. Hi. Councilwoman Ellen. I. Councilwoman Price. I. Councilman subpoena. Names. Councilman Mangum. No. Councilwoman Sara. I. Councilmember Oranga. I. Councilman Alston. I. Vice Mayor Richardson. May motion carries. Thank you. Next up is item number ten. Item tense communication from Councilwoman Price Recommendation to receive and Fire Presentation and Public Service Announcement regarding Teen Dating Abuse Awareness Month. Mr. Mayor. With your permission. Yes, I have you. Have you? I think I'm seeing a performance, a performance, a presentation cued up. So I'm going to turn this over to Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So I'm glad to have the opportunity tonight to highlight the importance of an often overlooked issue of teen dating violence. Nearly 1.5 million high school students nationwide experienced physical abuse from a dating partner in a single year. Often high school students lack the knowledge to identify unhealthy relationship behaviors and to report the same. To speak on this tonight, we have two speakers on the phone who will provide us an update. We have with us tonight, Sharon we from Interval House and Ava Carbonaro, who is the student and president of the Female Leadership Academy at Wilson High School. We also have a brief PSA that I would like to show you before regarding this topic, and then I'll conclude with some final remarks. So with that, let me turn it over to Sharon and then Eva. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and honorable council members. My name is Sharon. We with Interval House. We are so grateful and proud that our beloved city of Long Beach and our influential city leaders are considering recognizing this important teen dating violence Awareness Month, which is February. Dating violence has already impacted so many of our community's youth. As you most of you know, Interval House has a long history of spearheading efforts related to dating violence. Our work has been recognized as a national model for youth violence prevention, largely because our executive director, Cara Williams, has always encouraged us to engage and empower youth to be involved and to be the voice for change. Youth who grew up in the interval house shelters for abused women and children have become pioneers in the youth violence prevention mov

years, but also featured in our PSA for Orange Day, which was February 9th. We want to thank you for this incredible recognition for our community's youth to break the cycle of violence and as Councilmember Price stated. Also joining tonight is one of our wonderful student leaders at Wilson High School. Okay. Ava, you're on. Take it away. Yes. Hello. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members. My name is Carbonara and I'm a senior at Wilson High School and president of our Female Leadership Academy. As you know, this year has been quite a challenge for so many of us students and youth because of these extraordinary circumstances. Student leaders at Wilson High School are so proud to continue bringing awareness to teen dating violence while attending school virtually. As we stressed in our online campaign, you young people are at the highest risk of dating violence and minority groups like LGBTQ plus black and Native American women are at even higher risk. As an academy is dedicated to the empowerment and support of young women. We aim to educate our Long Beach community on this enduring issue and prevent future violence. Through Female Leadership Academy and the Associated Student Body in partnership with Interval House, we have used our passion and creativity to create a campaign that engages students and gives them the power to promote healthy and safe love for all. We are so proud of this year's Orange Day event and February's teen Dating Violence Awareness Month and are honored to be part of such an important movement. To the people of Long Beach and City Council, we kindly ask you to continue sharing our message and protect our youth against physical, emotional and sexual violence in relationships. Thank you for

for this incredible proclamation and for helping us to spread a message of love and leadership. This means so much to you to see our city leaders supporting our efforts. Thank you. Yvonne, if we could please have our team run the PSA. That'd be great. Okay. So the mayor stepped away. There's the vice mayor Richardson. I don't see any additional cues from from the council. Vice mayor. I think they say. Oh, forget me, forget. Thank you very much to our Abbie Tex for showing that PSA and to the students at Wilson for putting it together and for bringing this item to our attention. And I just want to end with sharing that, you know, increasing education regarding teen dating violence is critical because violent relationships in adolescence can have serious ramifications by putting the victims at higher risk for substance abuse, eating disorders, risky sexual behavior and further domestic violence. Here in Long Beach, we are lucky to have several organizations taking this topic seriously this year. Interval House is working with Wilson High School to bring attention to this problem, as we discussed. But we're also lucky to have the Long Beach Women's Shelter providing support year round to stop teen dating violence. They'll be holding their fourth annual youth conference this Saturday, February, February 20th, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.. Through dedicated efforts of community groups like Interval House and the Woman's Shout Long Beach Women's Shelter, we can work together to prevent long, long, lifelong impacts of teen violence, and hopefully we can all be more mindful of it as we talk with our communities about this important issue. I want to thank both Sharon and Ava for joining us this evening. And Vice Mayor Richardson, I'm going to turn it back over to you. Thank you. Sorry about that. It got silent. I know. That was an ongoing loop. I see a second from mayor councilmembers in De Haas. I don't see any additional council comments, any public comment on this. There's no public comment. Right. Let's go ahead and have the roll call vote then. As we mentioned, there's. I like. Councilwoman Allen. I. Councilwoman Price. I. Councilman Sabrina. Hi. Councilwoman. Mongo. Hi. Councilwoman Sarah. I council member otunga. I. Councilman Austin. Vice Mayor Richardson. All right. Motion carries. Thank you. Item 21, please. Report from Parks, Recreation and Marine recommendation to receive a report and confirm the proposed Long Beach Animal Care Services Strategic Plan Citywide. Thank you. And we're going to go ahead and turn this over to staff. We know that there's a full. Presentation on this. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of the council. Yes. We do have a fairly in-depth presentation to go over our strategic plan for Animal Care Services. This has been the culmination of several years of work with our community members and the department. It started with an audit from the city auditor to really encourage us to do a strategic plan. So to ask you through what those recommendations are. This was in front of the council back in December, and the council has to spend a little bit more time going out to the community. We did that in February and we had some more community meetings back now to present it. So I will turn it over to Brant, Dennis and his team to present their strategic plan for your consideration. Thank you, city manager Monica. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members. I'm joined this evening by Stacie Daines, our director of Long Beach Animal Care Services, which provides outstanding services not just to the residents of Long Beach, but also to several surrounding communities. So with that, I'd like to turn it over to Stacey for a presentation this evening. Thank you, Brant. And what an interesting time we live in right now. I really want to just thank you, honorable mayor and council, for your continued service and leadership to our community, especially in these uncertain and trying times. I'm here this evening to share with you the current draft of the strategic plan as it was developed in cooperation with the Mayor's Animal Care Visioning Task Force. So this evening's report will include an update on recent operational changes and impacts, as well as an historical perspective on the shelter. In addition, I'll share with you the development of the strategic plan, including a brief overview of that plan and what are some of our next steps. And then I'll be happy to take questions, Brant and I, after the at the end of the presentation. So I do definitely want to acknowledge the efforts of our mayor, Robert Garcia, in his establishment of the Mayor's Animal Care Visioning Task Force, and certainly each of you council members for your support of Long Beach Animal Care Services. Without your support, this plan and that task force would not have been possible. So you should know that each task force member really deserves a great deal of time spent recognizing their efforts in our community in addition to their work on the task force. This task force worked hard for two years and struggled personally and professionally with the questions posed to them by the community and one another. They remained engaged in agonizing conversations about what kind of shelter their community deserves, and they faced harsh criticism on all sides and persevered to help bring this plan to life. And I know this council understands the journey of the task force, because you've faced and been engaged in much of the same. And your work, too, has been critical to reuniting and creating thousands of happy beginnings for pets and their families. In just the last two years alone, you've continued to support animals in the shelter and our community by approving the addition of a full time registered veterinary technician, a full time veterinarian, a full time volunteer coordinator, a full time adoption clerk, a full time marketing staff. And in May, our City Council adopted the Compassion Saves operational mo del that calls the shelter and the community to save all healthy and treatable animals. And now this year, you've provided additional skilled veterinary resources that will allow us to continue to provide life saving outcomes for animals. So I want to share with you admissions to our backs and our admissions have followed national trends of reductions year after year. Spay neuter laws, breeding laws, licensing laws, and a lot of hard work from the animal advocacy community and rescue groups, as well as generous support from shelter donors have contributed to the reduction of animal intake at the shelter from over 10,000 dogs and cats in 2010 to a little less than 4000 in 2020. Now, a lot of that has to do with managed intake and COVID, but we think that that could be sustainable. And with those reductions in shelter admissions, shelter deaths have also fallen exponentially. By comparison, Alberts more aggressively pursues live outcomes for animals than any time in its history. And animals that were killed without outreach to the community are now stabilized. They're treated and they're made well. And when this is not practical to do in the shelter, rescue groups are engaged for their assistance in securing positive outcomes for the most medically and behaviorally, challenging animals in our community and our rescue partners should be absolutely recognized and honored for their very significant contribution to unprecedented SAVE rates of Long Beach Animal Care Services. By rescuing these animals, they are forever changing the fabric of what compassion means for our community. Today, compassion saves. Operational model is working. No longer are people only looking for the most perfect of pets in shelters and rescue. People actively want to help those animals that are less fortunate and who may need lifelong management. This work would not be possible without El Doc's willingness to first save these animals and without our rescue groups ability to support their loving homes and working together, we have been able to save 98% of the animals in our care. Historically, for decades, the Long Beach, the city of Long Beach has provided animal control services to the community. Our original shelter. Was located on Willow Avenue and it housed the city stray an abandoned animals. They were cared for for up to 72 hours. And if they weren't taken by their owners in that time period, they were killed in accordance with and by direction of California state law. But, you know, this was true for 90% of all animals entering animal control shelters in California prior to 2000. Communities were also demanding that animals be saved and not killed and destroyed as many laws dictated. The outdated laws were being rewritten. New laws were being created to protect animals. And these laws would replace the edict of killing

of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Los Angeles expressed to the city their serious interest in establishing a presence in Long Beach, and in 1998, agreements were signed and a partnership or a joint venture was sort of created. These agreements emerged before a tumultuous backdrop of the animal welfare movement. Animal control was moving to animal care, and shelters were rejecting the catch and kill model of the past. And this movement became known as the no kill movement. The PD, Pitchford Companion, Animal Village and Education Center, also known as the Village, opened its doors. Then in 2009, this Council enacted major improvements in Long Beach Municipal Code. And those changes have had dramatic and lasting impacts on shelter operations and the lives of animals in our community. Long Beach Animal Control officially became Long Beach Animal Care Services in 2010. Long Beach Animal Care Services implemented an adoption program, and that continues to grow from 150. The first year to now, we are adopting over 1000 animals a year. In 2013, we implemented a volunteer program to enhance the care of animals in the shelter, to include enrichment and socialization above and beyond the cleaning and feeding provided by staff. And now, today, nearly 300 volunteers contribute nearly 13000 hours of loving life annually to the care and keeping of the animals in our shelter. In 2014, we began to create partnerships with other animal welfare and rescue organizations who would assist with the medical and behavioral rehabilitation of animals to place thousands more. And then in 2017 to 2020, the city really ramped up its efforts to enact true shelter reform. In 2017, in response to the community's growing concern that despite its best efforts, our backs continued to fall far behind the policy set by the state of California that no healthy or no treatable animal should be killed in the shelter. The city auditor retained the services of Jbr Shelter Strategies to bring the operation of El Bax, to review the operation of El Bax and to determine what efforts might be enhanced to bring about better outcomes for shelter animals. And that review was conducted in two phases. The first phase focused really on shelter operations, while the second phase focused on staffing and resources that were already in place, as well as what resources might be needed to provide an acceptable standard of care for animals. Over 200 recommendations were made in over 14 areas of operation, so it was quite extensive and a bit overwhelming. Those recommendations were broken into immediate, short term and long term priorities, and the most urgent and necessary recommendation in the first phase was really an identity for the shelter, which included developing a mission and a vision and a strategic plan. While the second phase really focused strongly on underscoring the need for increased and more developed staffing, regardless of what direction Long Beach Animal Care Services decided to go in. And then in 2018, in response to this, Mayor Robert Garcia convened the Mayor's Animal Care Visioning Task Force. And this was represented by 20 members of various stakeholders, including reputable and local animal rescue, welfare organizations, shelter volunteers, animal advocates. And this group met in a public forum each month to find a path forward for El Box and some key areas. The task force focused on were the recommendations, of course, made in the audit. Growing and expanding the Long Beach Volunteer and Adoption Program. What was the relationship and agreements between the SPCA and what was the viability of no kill in Long Beach? And it was clear that the top priority that could address all of the other goals of the task force was to develop a mission and vision for BAX, and a strategic plan would be necessary. The department hired Jbr to lead the strategic planning efforts because of their previous experience knowing about Albert's operation in partnership with the Odyssey Group, who also provided consultants that are well-respected animal welfare professionals with proven track records of success in bringing about systemic change in shelters to improve and save lives. The development of that strategic plan included a review of the audit conducted by the city auditor. There was also a public meeting held on March 3rd that invited the community March 3rd, 2019, that invited the community to give feedback on the kind of shelter they would like to become. Feedback was welcome for weeks to follow in preparation for two strategic planning workshops that were held separately in May 2019. One day long workshop was held with the task force and a two day long workshop was held with Long Beach staff, animal care services staff. And then in 2019, Long Beach City Council adopted the operational model as a framework for the strategic plan called Compassion Saves, and it strives to expand what can be done to not just stop the killing of animals in the shelter, but really to imbue our community with compassion for people and animals. Compassion drives the work that is necessary to save lives, including foster care. Adoption of pets falling. Terrorism, donor funding and a lot more. And it is compassion upon which the success of the plan rests. The working group met weekly and reported regularly to the task force. The task force meetings were really focused primarily on the progress being made in developing the strategic plan to ensure the plan remained relevant and on track for final approval, as well as to give the community an opportunity to provide timely feedback during the development process. The final rough draft of the plan was reviewed by the task force in a public meeting on July six, 2020 and was approved by the task force in another public meeting on September 11th, 2020. This draft plan was then provided to certain stakeholders in October, and those stakeholders included Long Beach staff or volunteers, rescue and transfer partners, certainly anybody who requested it. And then other engagement opportunities were made possible through two public meetings held in February. This plan is publicly available on Long Beach Animal Care Services website for anyone to review. Individuals can complete a survey that captures specific ideas and thoughts about the plan. In addition, an email is also provided on our website to allow for sort of a free form of gathering feedback about the plan. These mechanisms will be made available for the life of the plan, so the questions or concerns or ideas can be captured in a timely fashion. This data may also be used to help further develop the current plan or or really to help shape the next one. So our vision is simple and clear, and that is that Long Beach is a responsible, compassionate and informed community working together for the health and welfare of its animals. This vision can be realized when we accomplish the mission of compassion saves, which is that we ensure that compassion saves by supporting the people and animals of our communities through outreach, education, guidance and support services. We protect shelter animals by creating an environment of care through enrichment and innovative programs. And that's really what this plan is all about. It's all of the things that we need to do to accomplish that mission. There are five strategic goal areas. The first one is that the shelter is an animal welfare centered operation. Next is outreach and engagement and also financial sustainability, life saving and staff development. The first strategic goal is that our operation is healthy for animals, and this means that animals receive the care necessary for their age, their health and behavior status according to national guidelines and best practices. And that we're not just sort of making things up as we go, but it's evidence based and that they experience the shortest shelter stay necessary. This is accomplished through several strategies, and the first is ensuring all programs in operation have data analytics that measure our success and program effectiveness. Pathway planning, housing plans and communication strategies will also ensure a healthy and short shelter stay. Our second strategic goal is that EL supports and engages the community and this is a very robust portion of our plan in order to support and engage the community. El Bax must provide contemporary animal care services. These services are comprehensive adoption and volunteer programs. Pet Surrender Intervention. Connection to resources for low cost medical and spay neuter services. Pet friendly housing behavior and training help. These are all important aspects of providing contemporary animal services over abandonment and relinquishment of pets. All that's also needs to increase accessibility to awareness of and compliance with lax services and city ordinances. This can be accomplished through effective marketing and communication strategies. And finally, huma ne education. Another strategic objective has long been a foundation for helping a community develop a humane ethic not only toward animals but towards each other. Making human humane education available through El Box will fill a much needed gap in our community. These are real equity issues for our city, too. The same individuals that struggle with education, housing, health care and employment are the same individuals that struggle with providing necessary and mandated care for their pets. The third strategic goal is that Lubbock's operation is sustainable. We've been working to establish effective ways to manage our current agreements with SPCA, to maintain the integrity of our operation, and to ensure that the compassion service model of operation is able to be fully realized. In addition. Back. Is conducting a budget gap analysis to determine what opportunities exist, to reposition staffing, to provide services for the community in line with compassion saves. And there are several key positions or responsibilities necessary to fully implement compassion saves, especially in the areas of foster care, behavior and enrichment. Fundraising goals and strategies are also needed to help provide sustainability and compassion saves model. We have already begun work with the Bureau of Park Planning and Partnership to identify this for Alberts. The fourth strategic goal is that programs improve and save lives. El Bax has provided life saving programs out of necessity and response to need. And these programs need structure and more communication between the shelter and those that use them. These programs need to enter their next stage of development, and this includes adoption and rescue and transfers or volunteer program, as well as a comprehensive foster care program. They need guidelines, process and resources to help animals who are saved by them, but also to provide clarity and ease of use for those that are using the programs. This effort will be enormously important in ensuring our community and stakeholders can have confidence in our programming. And then the fifth and final strategic goal is that all operation is healthy for people providing our staff and volunteers with updated and clear policies and procedures, relevant job descriptions, solid professional development and training programs and wellness programs that help them build resiliency and deepen their engagement with their work is fundamental to the success of any plan for Long Beach Animal Care Services. Our next steps include continuing to provide platforms for our community to engage with us. We are in the process of reviewing feedback that we receive and we look forward to your continued support as we finalize and implement this important plan. An important part of any strategic plan is really keeping it alive and accountable in front of the community so they can participate in progress and celebrate the plan. So I thank you for hearing this report and on the hard work and dedicat ion of the Mayor's Animal Care Visioning Task Force and shelter staff. We are open for your questions. Well, why don't we go to public commenters? We have a good list of public comment. Let's go through all those. Our first speaker is Carol Peterson. Hello. Like I commented on a public forums held on for the 13th and 17th. I have a concern with the very beginning of the strategic plan, the mission statement. It says that the shelter will ensure compassionate saves by supporting the people and animals of the community through outreach, education, guidance and support services. It doesn't say that we protect shelter animals by creating an environment of shelter, enrichment and innovative programs. That's kind of a red flag for me. The last time I heard Innovative in relation to the shelter was UCLA entered into a partnership with the US, promising to deliver innovative and revolutionary care. We all know how that turned out and ordered, resulting in 186 recommendations to improve. I know Long Beach didn't want to commit to don't kill. There weren't even any vocal advocates on the task force. And what concerns me about the mission statement is that nowhere does it say we will save lives. Instead, it links compassionate cities with outreach, education, guidance and support services. This just doesn't seem specific enough with respect to animals lives, and to say that the shelter will protect and care for the animals is necessary as stated in the audit. But again, it's not the same as saving lives. Language is important and it needs to be specific in writing. Take best friends, for instance. Their mission statement says they want to end the killing in America shelters. That seems to be pretty clear about saving lives. I would have liked to see specific language in our mission statement that above all else, right up front lets the community know that old access about save lives. To do that, a comprehensive adoption program is vital. It needs to be a direct function of shelter policies. Instead, goal number four in the strategic plan titled Life Saving is all about transferring, fostering and volunteering again. Nothing about adoption. In fact, I only saw the word adoption mentioned a few times in the entire plan. Yet a comprehensive adoption program independent of SPCA is what many people have advocated for years. It would. Seem again throughout this process that engaging the public for feedback. About the. Development organization and fulfillment of the strategic plan was all for show. Because I wrote the original draft with subsequent drafts of the strategic plan, not much changed. This seems troublesome to me, especially for the animals, but also for the city council. Thank you. Our next speaker is Joanne Weiss. Joanna. Oh, thank you. Thank you, counsel, for your time this evening. I'm very concerned with agenda item 21, which seems to have suddenly changed to receive and confirm. It would be helpful to understand what that exactly means. That's why

I'm asking that we make some motion to change it, to receive and file, which is what we have been told for since back in December, that this was just a draft plan and it was only to be received and filed for the intent of disbanding the task force. So this confusion, this confusion of what the agenda item is to occur tonight, and there are 21. It mentions that. The plan is to be move forward that the. They're looking for city council to move forward with the plan. And I that again is vague and I'm not sure what that means to move forward there. The public only have an opportunity for the very first time. I know there's been mention of other meetings, but that is not the case. I want to go on record to make that very clear. February 13th and 17 was the very first time that the community was allowed to give input, and that was only last week. So we were told that the plan was draft and there would be further revision because the plan is not ready to be anything but received at this time. So the question is, is ethical or is one of the core values listed in this plan? Yeah. If there was something changing the motion to approve and make this a final strategic plan, that's very concerning on the plan. This is the mark beginning with this nebulous, confusing and mean on a mission of vision statement. There's no goal for spay neuter, which is the biggest gap in our city. Adoptions is hardly mentioned, which is again very troublesome. The metrics and deadlines have been removed between years and waiting over a decade for a meaningful strategic plan. The audit in 2017 pointed to significant issues. Yet we do not see a spreadsheet of any sort where lists the audit items and a checklist confirming they have been addressed in the plan. There's no SWOT analysis that I can see in every strategic plan. Processing would have a SWOT analysis. I don't see any industry trends that would collected. We don't need to reinvent the wheel. There are many shelters out there already doing have robust adoption programs. And also missing is that any strategic plan has goals and objectives. And then you would see strategy, action, steps and deadlines. There's no strategy action. Again, I said the metrics are missing. So this plan is extremely nebulous. Goals that should be included on maximizing adoptions and are homing. That's not mentioned. We could go on and on. But, you know, the public is the main major stakeholder here and only having opportunity last week. Thank you. Our next speaker is Christine O'Malley. Hello. I'm a third district resident the last 67 years, and I'm concerned about the cell backs plan to enter into any operating agreement with SPCA, PCAOB. More than a year ago, in January 2020, there was an extensive discussion at City Council about allegations of bad behavior by SPCA, L.A. That was unprecedented. That was preceded by several other meetings in 2018 and 19 about problems with SPCA, L.A. As a result of those meetings and through those meetings, the pub lic was informed that SPCA, Ala. Was unilaterally deciding policy at our shelter, had been operating businesses without business licenses, was creating a hostile work environment at El Beck, and had multiple other violations of the lease between the city and IL, including not allowing IL backs to use common areas that it had a right to use under the lease and not providing keys to common areas as required by the lease. It was also taking the adoption fees generated from L backs animals which should have been put into an account to funding for spay neuter at El Beck. Council member Susie Price at the January 21st, 2020 council meeting expressed serious reservations about entering into any further agreements with a partner SPCA a that was violating terms of their original agreement. Is that still a concern? Councilmember Elston specifically asked for an audit of SPCA, Ella's operations and finances. Has that occurred? The public has heard nothing but these requests. Excuse me. About these requests. No audit has been done on SPCA, only that the public has been informed of a number of council members at the January 2020 meeting noted that SPCA has not been a good partner to Albert. We need three things here in Long Beach. Number one. We need our backs to be completely independent of SPCA. Number two, we need the city to enforce the terms of the lease. And number three, we need the city to require SPCA to provide reports on all of its intakes and outcomes, including adoptions, euthanasia, transfers, etc., to the city. That is the only way that we know that our shelter animals are receiving the proper care and treatment that they deserve and that the taxpayers want. This just makes no sense. This plan. Another issue with the item is the enormous emphasis on licensing in this plan. On Plan Page seven, it says the city wants to increase license sales by 50% or. Thank you. Our next speaker is Michele Baker. I want to thank the mayor and city council for taking animal care so seriously. You have made so many positive changes and really listened to constituents. However, tonight I am asking that you don't confirm back certification until changes are made to the plan. Hyper. Typically, in a meeting two weeks ago with other residents, we had many questions that were not addressed or included in this plan. The plan is ambiguous without any specific metrics. I'm also very concerned about recent animal policies that Lufthansa's implemented in the last year, especially in regards to stray cats. The shelter is not being transparent. With intake and released numbers, public records are taking weeks to get a response and there is confusion. And who's managing the shelter in the volunteer program? Lessons confirmed to me on email today that implement and manage intakes and said that California does not mandate that shelters have to take in stray cats unless they are injured.

What does that mean? That goes against Hayden's law and other California welfare laws. Curren tly, the shelter has around 12 cats, which is low because intake is low. Opacities requiring people to make appointments to turn in strays, including filling out paperwork before an appointment will be issued. They're even making it more difficult to turn into a stray cat, encouraging people to leave the cat where they found it. This is a best friend's coffee and it is. You can make it look better. Let's intake better outcomes. What is happening is we have more cats roaming in the neighborhoods and searching for food and being vulnerable to coyotes. Look at next door and see the daily concerns about stray cats in different neighborhoods manage intake and dubious arts programs. What Orange County Shelter did a couple of years ago until they were sued? San Diego Humane Society was served this week for similar policy. I'm asking for clarification. L Beck's current policy and also an update on SPCA. Intel Backs Contract with City Council. Asked for an update almost a year ago. Please do not comply with plan until we have some clarification. Thank you. Thank you. Your next speaker is Patricia Turner. Good evening, Mayor and City Council. My name is Patricia Turner. I'm the director of No Kill Long Beach. Our organization has been advocating for a no kill shelter since 2012. I'd like to address the strategic plans take on adoptions in a town hall meeting back in 2014. Mayor Garcia promised over 200 animal advocates that he would put in place a robust adoption program. A well-articulated, fully developed adoption program is one of the key programs that every animal shelter should have. And that adoption program is noticeably missing from this plan. In fact, adoptions are only briefly mentioned, and the few actions listed with regard to adoptions do not directly increase adoptions. Among the actions mentioned are customer satisfaction surveys, communications volunteers and the shelter beautification plan. Those are good plan, but the most important ones that directly increase adoptions are missing. Some areas need to have weekly offsite adoptions in order to place animals into good homes. They also need to have local adoptions that take animals to neighborhoods around Long Beach, making it easier for people to adopt. Albert's received a mobile adoption van as a donation. A few years ago, that mobile adoption van, which was valued at $100,000, is not mentioned in the plan. In addition, a robust adoption plan has daily or weekly goals for adopting out animals. These are also not articulated in the plan, nor are our plans for low cost adoptions or frequent ongoing adoption promotions and events. With all due respect, it is not possible to adopt animals out by indirect means, such as giving surveys and improving the look of the shelter, both of which are prioritized in the plan. Garcia You made a promise to the people of Long Beach to have a strong adoption program. However, what we are seeing here is essentially the same plan. Long Beach has always had to a ct as animal control and allow us to do the adoptions with no transparency from that agency. Folks in Long Beach have been asking for a no kill shelter with a strong adoption program for 12 years now. The city organized a public feedback meeting in March of 2019 that was overwhelmingly dominated by people who wanted a no kill shelter that is separate from SPCA, L.A. and their requests have seemingly fallen on deaf ears. It's time for Long Beach to do the right thing and stop saying all that says animal control and a cash cow with all of the licensing that they're asking us to do, which all goes straight to the general fund, which many people don't really even realize does not go to the shelter and make back into the proactive, animal friendly, lifesaving and transparent no kill shelter that people and taxpayers in Long Beach want. Thank you. Thank your next speaker is Wendy Aragon. Wendy Aragon. Thank you. Good evening, honorable mayor and city council members. My name is Wendy Aragon, president of Pet Assistance Foundation and a Long Beach resident. Of the third district. We recognize the great amount of work and time involved in developing the strategic plan. We applaud the plan for its recommendations to improve excuse me, improving adoptions, fostering and shelter care practices. However, we do see some major problems in two fundamental areas the proposed managed or limited mission and the Community Cat Rescue Relief Program Manager should mission is not managed or limited admission is not open admission. We know COVID understandably had an impact on how admission is handled, but we have been told the practice will likely continue indefinitely because, quote, it seems to work well for the shelter. And of course, limited admission greatly inconveniences residents turning in owned animals and strays, especially those good Samaritans who go out of their way to rescue an animal from a dangerous situation. Many people don't have the capacity to keep strays or the time to show up for appointments and fill out extensive paperwork. We have knowledge of cases where people have waited 4 to 5 days to relinquish a stray. Second concern is a community cat program where friendly to feral cats and kittens over 12 weeks of age are being released into areas that come. They come from without caretakers to provide food, shelter in a safe area with neighborhood approval. We are very aware of the suffering endured by these cats in areas where the community cat programs abound, such as Orange and Riverside counties. Tragically, these community cat programs present an exemplary modeling for the public to think it's okay to abandon their cats. The proponents of this program, in conjunction with big humane organizations, argue forcibly about the success of these release programs supposedly grounded in best practices and research, while negating the profound humane issues involved. We want to see our shelter address the root cause of overcrowded shelters, pet overpopu lation. It is through education enforcement of our very progressive laws and convenient low cost land neuter services that will ultimately prevail in modeling a meaningful life release rate that reflects humane reforms in addressing pet overpopulation. At this point in the discussion, we recommend that the strategic plan be put on, receive and file. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. My comments are short. We've seen a lot of this presentation last time this came around. I want to thank Stacey. You obviously have demonstrated your passion here. I thank you for acknowledging that this is a living document. There's clearly more work to do. I think the community wants to see a more rigorous effort around adoptions, and that's going to have to be demonstrated. And so we look forward to regular updates on how we can do that. I'm also interested in, you know, we've talked about this in the past, you know, stray animals in a minor way till five. It's still still a problem. I know that we've been knocked off course in many ways on a lot of our priorities with COVID 19. So the more that we can talk about how this impacted our ability to respond and how we can get back on, you know, get back on track for the future, I think is good. Regular communication with the council on how we're doing would be good. I just want to see how we can continue to invest in mobile, mobile adoptions and things like that. So I want to see, you know, what lens are based on budget discussions and all of those things. But I think this plan, the city council should adopt this plan and we can always add or make adjustments to this plan. But this is this is a strategy. That's what they said. Any given through, they can make adjustments to this plan. And so I think we need to make the move forward and adopt this tonight. So that said, I move. Staff recommendation. Thanks. Okay. I have a second or a councilwoman. Go second. Yes, Mr. Mayor. I had tried to remove the item, but that's fine. Did you have any comments, Councilman? I do. Sometime ago. Thank you. First, I want to recognize the task force, the volunteers in the rescue groups. This has been a huge and. A huge left for the community and I'm really proud of the work that's been done. I do appreciate a lot of community comment today and I know that there are a lot of things that continue to change, and I don't know that the community or even the council have heard back on a lot of the things that have made progress over the last several months. The real dialog has been around COVID and vaccinations and the sick humans, and so that the animal progress has maybe not been front and center, and so we can do a better job with that. I think that that kind of ties into providing the communication toolkit to the Parks and Rec team to ensure that they are able to provide that kind of use the to utilize the toolkit to share that information across the community. I kn ow that community meetings have been held and I appreciate that. I would like to differentiate something. So I'm in my full time job. We've been going through strategic planning, and I think that's something that I didn't hear in the plan today, which would really fulfill the needs of the community is a 100 year purpose. Now I get a mission and I get strategies and goals and I know that in my discussions with Mr. Denis that is coming next. But first, before you even get to the mission, you really need to talk about, one, your purpose. And a lot of what I'm hearing from the community are things that aren't potentially executable in the next five years under certain restraints and commitments that previous councils had made. But I will offer the following. I listened to the community and I had not written down 100 year purpose or anything related to it before the community comments started. But it really tried to pull some pieces from the things that you each said. And I think what you're looking for is that you're you were hoping that the mission would be more of this kind of 100 year purpose, all backs becomes or is at that time you'd say 100 year X is the premier proactive, independent , humane reformer of lost or abandoned animals and the educator and supporter of responsible animal caretakers in Long Beach. That kind of says a lot of things, right? We heard a lot about being proactive. We heard about our independence from SPCA,

L.A. We talked about the humane components of our education program, both in the community and the way we treat animals in our shelter, including veterinary care. We talk about how we take care of lost or abandoned animals and how we support animals that are already in homes in the community. I can't tell you how often I hear about irresponsible pet ownership and really that us helping an animal find a home is not the end of our relationship with that that pet caretaker. And so I think that that's just a baseline and maybe the animal task force could add to it or that staff could contribute. But I think that the community really wants to hear that there is a long term vision, as was articulated by the council at previous meetings of a proactive, independent, humane organization. And I know we're growing into that, and I want to appreciate Stacy for her work. This has gone through many iterations. It has been a really, really great process, a lot of community input and all of that. While she was working on that, many of you know, she has many agenda items that are due back to the council any day now, including the revision to the commitment to adopt policy, the changes that have happened already with our relationship with SPCA, L.A., I know a lot of you are asking for an audit or those kinds of things, but independent organizations don't have to provide those to us and they're not required by the contract. And for that, you should be angry at councils of the past that allowed that to happen. And many of those people stil

I live in our city and we have to take heed from the lessons of the past in every decision that we make at the Council so that we don't set up future councils or situations such as this. And I know that there are many controversial issues before the Council on a daily basis and relationships with major entities on other assets in our city. And we look to this relationship with animal control, we look to our relationship with the Queen Mary. We look to our relationships across the city that we're in, in hopes of drawing both reflection and strength moving forward. So for that, I want to say that please don't despair that there is still progress moving forward. I am in contact with animal care regularly. We were just over at the shelter. I don't remember how many days ago. And my husband was there. With. An animal that needed help of the port. And I get to see the volunteers that are there on a daily basis. They're working with the animals, they're running the dogs. And when they get a big dog or an animal, that perhaps the volunteers that are there aren't able to. Go for 5 minutes before. Thank you. They call in additional tears who may have kind of been out of the loop during COVID. So I appreciate that. Thank you for all the progress you've made. And as you can tell, I'm a big supporter of this item. And thank you. Thank you. Truman Price. Okay. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So I do have a couple of questions based on the community comments. The first question I have is what is the status with the SPCA, L.A. issues that we talked about at our last meeting? Not our last meeting, but the last meeting where we discussed this and some of the potential issues with the contractual relationships. Yeah. Councilwoman Pryce, thank you so much for asking your question. This is Stacey. We have been meeting regularly with the SPCA to sort of go over the agreements and attempt to really get on the same page and determine what is needed in order to do that. So I am happy that our last meeting was very productive and we were able to identify what we think is really sort of holding us back. And I think this council, as well as me and SPCA, have all recognized that this agreement as as it was drawn is probably not the agreement we would draw today, but it's the one we have. And so it's really about making it work and making it be relevant and finding out how how that is or is not the case. And that's been very, very challenging. So we do have some forward movement. We will be working together with the SPCA to ensure that all of the parts of the agreements are actually there. I don't know if you know, but some agreement or some exhibits are not. We don't have them. So we're in the process of really working on those things. So I'm encouraged by our last meeting. And I guess that's that's what I have to say about that. Do you have any. No, no, I think I think I think forward movement is good. And I think that's what we were all hoping for, understanding that there were a lo t of concerns, both from the operation side in the city, but also from some community concerns. So I'm happy to hear that there is some forward movement and I'm okay with that as long as you're letting us know that it continues to be a forward movement. The other I would also I'm sorry. Councilmember Prentice, I also want to let you know that I've been working closely with the director, Brant Dennis, and he's been working closely with the city manager. And both have been very supportive and very, very much concerned about making sure that this is right and it's going in the right way. So there isn't a sense that anything is being put off or there's a back burner other than what typically is happening with COVID. So I just want our council to know that that this is first and foremost inter as far as animal services is concerned, and our director is very much aware of that and supporting our efforts. Okay. Thank you very much. I think I'm probably going to run out of time in just a minute here. But there was some community concern regarding whether this is a received file item. It's my understanding that it is a receive and file item, that this is the plan. The plan can be modified, it can be tweaked. It can contain additional inputs in the future, is my understanding? Correct. Councilmember this is City Attorney Park and the the item this evening is a report to confirm the proposed Long Beach Animal Care Services Strategic Plan. And so you're basically adopting it this evening. But as you also said, and I think the maker of the motion mentioned also that it can be amended and modified at any Tuesday meeting at the direction of the council. Okay. So this this document that we would be confirming, it's this is the strategy and the vision that at this moment we want to move forward with. But this strategy can be modified based on community inputs, based on the directors observations, the directors operational recommendations, things of that nature. I just want to make sure that it's not set in stone, that it is something that it's a it's a it's a plan, but it's not that a such a plan that it can't be modified. That that's correct. However, it couldn't be modified by the public or by the director. It would have to come back to. The council and five votes could modify it. Okay. So Councilmember. This is Tom Urquhart. I think that's absolutely right. The strategic plan would be the plan to modify it. There's still going to be lots of different things that we work on. Three Animal Care Services. So this isn't an operational plan where it's down to every single task that is done. That is really the responsibility of Stacie and her group and Grant. But there's going to be lots of things that will continue to be worked on. All of our adoption programs and all of the things that council has talked about, about, you know, getting an operational agreement. Let's be clear, those are all going to continue. Okay. And I appreciate that. And I know, Ms.. Dai nes, you talked about the community outreach process. Many of the residents who called in tonight for public comment are third district residents. I think they identified themselves as such and they meet regularly. They're very active in the conversation. And I want to make sure that they're heard and they continue to be heard. So in terms of moving forward, to the extent they feel more input from them, would would make this plan better or or enough input wasn't. Your 5 minutes are up. Okay. Let me just finish this question. What are there opportunities are there for for potential modifications if parts of the plan need to be tweaked or are, that's brought to your attention? So I think those modifications would be based on, you know, data collection and, you know, how programs are effective or not effective. So it's really going to happen as the plan is unfolding and as we are actually engaging with our community, because it's not something that Animal Services does in a proactive way. We're very reactive. So I think it's important that there's an update provided on a quarterly basis about where we're at with the plan and that we're sharing all of that with our community and engaging with them and hearing, you know, what's happening and not just a handful of folks, but people who are really the ones who need the services that we are providing or not providing. Okay. So my time is up, but I'm going to queue up again because I do have a follow up on that. Councilwoman, why don't you go ahead if it's just one question, go ahead and just do the follow up on that question. Thank you very much, Mr. Mayor. So is it possible, since we're going to be having quarterly updates, is it possible can this council request a community meeting prior to the next quarterly meeting? Our quarterly update to get input from what's going right, what's not going right that can be included in the quarterly report. This is Don. Can I suggest that the first one be maybe more like six months or so? If we did a meeting and for a quarterly report, we'd be setting, you know, there's not going to be a whole lot to report back in about two and a half months or three months. You're right. I think that report right now. I agree with that. I agree. I just want to make sure and I agree. Six months would be ideal, but it could we could we commit for a community meeting to really get feedback because there are a lot of people who don't feel like they were heard. And I just want to make sure they have an opportunity to be heard before the quarterly update or the six months. This is Stacey. You know, I'm very open to that in terms of engaging our community with animal services. And so I think that that is something that we can do as a department more frequently than it necessarily needs to go to council for, you know, review, as Mr. Modica was suggesting. So. Sure. So we're great. That's a wonderful thing to do, especially in the beginning phases of this plan as we're rolling out and pr ogressing. Okay. So so then we can we don't that doesn't that that community feedback doesn't have to be at the council level. In fact, I'd prefer it not be because there are going to be details and things that that you and your team are going to understand and be able to have meaningful conversations with the community on that council may not necessarily have the expertise on. So could you just house those and just before you report back to the council? Absolutely. Fantastic. Thank you very much. I appreciate that. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Thank you, then, Councilwoman Allen. Yeah, I thank you, Brant and Stacy and everyone from the Animal Care and our parks team for this report. I do also agree that I think it's important that we keep our community engaged. I do have a really quick question. One of my residents raised this question about turning around stray animals. So can you clarify whether residents need appointments to turn in stray animals? Some residents are concerned that requiring appointments and and paperwork for stray animals will result in less animals being cared for. And so can you address that question, please? Sure. So anyone can certainly bring a stray animal to the shelter or turn in a stray animal. We've always required paperwork. People do have to show us their government issued photo ID and we have a process that we go through when we're interviewing them to determine what's going on with an animal so that we can accurately look for its owner or place that animal. If an animal is sick or injured, those animals can come right in. If somebody is not able to take care of an animal for a few days to see if they can locate the owner, which is a far more effective way to reunite an animal with its owner, is that it stays where it was found for 2 to 3 days before it comes to the shelter. Neighbor owner returner owner. Return rates are 4 to 5 times higher than at a shelter. They're significantly reduced when an animal is removed from its community and placed into a shelter, and the chances of reunification go from about 80% in a neighborhood to about 20% in the shelter. So it's being done because it's best for the animal. However, if someone doesn't feel safe or they're not able to adequately care for an animal or they just simply don't want to, they absolutely can bring an animal to the shelter. We are going to ask them if they can make an appointment with us. But if they absolutely refuse and they say no, then we will help them. Great. Thank you. Thank you very much. With that, we will we have a motion and a second. So please go ahead and cast your vote. Roll call. District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. District eight, District nine. Right. Motion carries. Great. Thank you very much. We are moving on to new business, starting off with Councilman Alan. Thank you. With that, we are going item 18, please. Communication from Councilman Austin, Councilman

Super and Councilman Mongo. Recommendation to request city manager to identify and implement health and safety protocols to allow the mayor and City Council to resume in-person council meetings. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Right. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and thank you for indulging me. I want to thank my colleagues, our council member, Supernova and Mongo for joining me on this item. I think it's been on now been almost a year since we've been meeting via teleconference, and there's certainly good reason for that as we needed to avoid gatherings as a result of the COVID 19 virus. But many of us, as we have experienced over the year, would participate in city council meetings remotely. There are frequent technical barriers to our current set up. We've seen numerous challenges, whether it's dropped Internet or phone connections, actually mixing both speaking one muted outside distraction and of course, the inability for the public to actually see us or for us to see each other as we engage in deliberations. Unimportant city matters, as are. The vaccination process is moving forward, including with most of us on city council. It is important that we begin having this conversation about how we begin to return to conducting the city's business in person. The goal here is to improve transparency and promote good government while being able to work in a more collegial manner. As city council members and elected officials, this recommendation is not meant to put any city employees, any of our legislative staff or staff in that matter, or the public at risk. The council meetings are currently being conducted with the limited number of city staff in the council chambers, as is while also observing safety protocols. And so we're simply asking and I'm simply asking the city manager. These protocols can be implemented in a way that would allow our body or mayor council to also be present one location as we conduct our city business. There are other cities as well as the state legislature in Congress. I think that we can look to to provide some models as to how this can take place. And I'm actually pleased to have see some additional steps being taken over the past few days that would actually help provide additional transparency for council meetings beyond the current model. I want to thank you, Mr. Mayor and Tom, for thinking and working to provide video access to the public. I do believe that this will be a step in the right direction. But I also want this item to move forward as Long Beach and our region continue to move forward with vaccinations and reducing the spread and risk of COVID 19. We should be engaged in discussions as to how we should, and we are engaged in discussions on how we are open in our schools, our workforce and our economy. And as we're having those discussions, we should also be considering how we can safely begin to reopen and reengage with transparency in our city government. And I believe we need to plan accordingly. And thi s is more written in a way, in requesting the city manager to give us a plan and, of course, move it forward so that we don't. So we have some some direction. I look forward to the discussion this evening on the item and our request council support. Is there is there a second on the motion? Second buy comes from mango. Comes from a mango. No, thank you. I want to thank Councilmember Austin for bringing this item forward. I know that on some committees we're able to see each other, but the public can't see us. I think that there's a lot of transparency that comes with the ability to see one another. I was at my field office today in the park and many residents very far apart popped by and said hello and are feeling very protected by their vaccine. And I know that not all of our city staff have been able to get that vaccine yet. However, I'm sure that the city manager can come up with a way for all of our employees to be safe and for there to be additional transparency. Thank you. Thank you. Councilor Marie Ringo. Thank you, Mayor. It's have a couple of questions and then a couple of comments. Where are we right now in the tears? Are we still in the purple way for days? Yes. L.A. County, of which Long Beach is tiered for for those types of openings, is still in the purple tier. Is there any expectation there will be going to be a Renteria offensive? Potentially. We've been tracking the trends for the county and if it continues on the same downward trend, we could reach the seven 400,000 case limit. You know, the next probably week or two weeks and then there's a two week process to two opens later in March, potentially we could be in the red. And where are we in regards to scheduling or vaccination? So that we were able to early on identify a number of employees as emergency workers. That was a very difficult exercise. You know, we want to get all of our employees vaccinated. We were hoping to do all 6000 right up front, but clearly there was not enough vaccine to do that. We went through a prioritization process and looked at employees that were emergency responders and also ones that were really dedicated to COVID efforts and were able to get a number of them done. Over the past week or two, we were seeing a lot more vaccine coming out. We're also getting the ability now to classify more as emergency workers. And we do believe the state is also going to starting expanding some of those near those categories, hopefully in the next week or so, so that we can begin to do more. So right now, I would say more than half of our employees do not have access to the vaccine. I would just give you some examples about probably most of the department directors that attend meetings are not vaccinated. Some are, but a lot are not, and some of their support staff are not as well. So we still have a ways to go before we can have, you know, all of our staff able to be vaccinated. Okay. Is there any requirement since this is a change to some work in the working env ironment of our employees? Zero requirement for us to get our unions to the challenges of find this meeting for or whatever we have to do, meet and confer. Anytime we're changing working conditions, we look at each one individually. Some of the staff who operate know this. You know, the council chambers, you know, have been operating the council chambers, but obviously in a teleconference format and not a full format. So we do need to talk about any major changes with our unions. I would make that determination and then sit down and do some meeting. Okay. So I'll read you correctly that we have not had a discussion of of it. We have not done any meeting. Confer on this now. Okay. Well, if we are not fully vaccinated, we have not had a beautiful immunity, so I can't stay away. So I would if I can, I would like to make such a motion to go to a video call to that topic until that time when we can. We're going to talk face to face with it. Okay. Think just just to be clear, so contrary to so I think you are second to the motion to just do the video. Is that what you said exactly? Yes. Okay. Is there a second on that motion? Vice Mayor Richardson That's the second version. Richardson of Vice Mayor Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. And, you know, I think we can. I want to start off just asking staff just how would you go back to the original motion? Because I don't want to dismiss the sentiment here. I think the sentiment here is that you want to get back we want to get back to in-person meetings because of the value that that it brings. And I think the readiness that I have is that I think that should be guided by both health and logistical health guidance, logistical guidance. And so I want to ask more specifically to our city manager, what would be the logistical or health concerns with returning within 30 days, the in-person meeting? So we've been taking a look at this. There are a number of things we would have to do to be able to resume in-person meetings or new video. It is easier to turn on video using the current WebEx system if we just use the exact same system that we're all using now, we're able to then turn on that video if we bring back the council in-house. We would need to do a couple of things. We'd have to run a video system of the cameras in the chamber so that everyone can see that. And that takes certain staffing. We would then need to have a call in line as well for city staff, because we would have to have a number of staff still who aren't vaccinated and are comfortable coming in, be able to call in and then have the public line as well to make sure that they have that. So that does take some technological support. We also want to make sure that all of the council have, you know, for the video option, have the access to a good, strong Internet connection and have that tool that you need. Often it's easier to do video and not audio and not just video. And so that's something we got to work on as well. And then as raised and we got a note from our unions today that I think you want to confer and discuss some of this. We would need to do that as well. Great. Thank you. So I would say I think the sentiment the sentiment is right. I think two things would need to happen. I would just ask Councilman Granger that the fact that he's n but I think, you know, we're part time, our staff is full time. You know, Congress, state legislature, L.A. City, they're all full time. The dynamics are completely different. So to go back to in-person meetings, I think we would need to actually talk with you. We definitely need to do that. So I would say, can we include one for staff to begin that conversation? Because we don't want that to delay the process once we get to the place of reopening. I think secondly, as it relates to the video, I think that's again, something we can do now. I think that's what the substitute motion is. I think the video we can do, we can do that. I was ready to do that already. I think we do that now. But the in-person meetings, we need to figure out those logistical issues and we need to make comparison to things. I would ask you them compare and then give us a to run for on what considerations need to be factored in in order to pull the trigger. So is it is it certainty? Is it vaccination details? Is it, you know, how we're going to handle public comment, all of those things, putting the two front four. So we do we have a better picture of this. And so those will be the two additions that I would offer to Councilman Rankin. Read Manga. Was that a political question? That's a that's a friendly one to meet and confer and to to do a true form for on what needs to happen. Yep. Well, I guess I wasn't clear. My line of questioning was obviously that we need we need to step back to maybe we need to have a meeting with the unions and we need to work out the logistics of of the meetings. And until those are addressed and I feel safe and our staff feel safe and go to in-person meetings. But if if going to a TFF is essential to clarify this paper, I certainly support that. Thank you. Okay. So that's the motion in the second on the floor. Let me move on to the next next speaker councilman's in the House. Thank you very much, Mayor. Like Councilmember and Vice Mayor Richardson said. I think that the original motion, you know, I do agree with the sentiment. I think we're all ready and willing and eager to to go back to our city chambers and conduct our meetings. I think a year has exhausted all of us. But I think that we need to do that with all the safety measures in place. And right now, I don't think it's safe. I also think it's very important, since our staff would be with us, that they also are vaccinated. If we're asking them to come back. So I am supportive of the step motion. I know I've been pushing for video for several months now and so I'm glad that we are looking into that right now. I know that also one of the things that I've been advocating for is easier access to public comments. I know that it's it's easier for residents who are more tech savvy to be able to access public comment. But I know that even in my district, even the most tech savvy residents, that I have also had difficulties. So I look forward to being able to explore that option of being able to have easier access to public safety. And I know that I'm working right now with city clerk to figure out easier ways of being able to bring about easier access to our public comments. Because I do think that it's very important that we are on video and that we are seen through video. But I also think it's equally as important that we hear from our constituents and that we give them the opportunity to be able to do a public comment if they so do wish to do so. So I'm I'm excited that we're moving forward and hopefully one day we will soon. And I do see that as the end of the time. And then the tunnel, the light at the end of the tunnel, I do see that light. So hopefully we will be in our city chambers soon. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilwoman Allen. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I just want to say, I certainly understand the activity and the technical issues that we all experience, especially the public, and that that can be frustrating. And I certainly can't wait for things to get back to normal and get back in the chambers and have being a newly elected councilwoman that I'm just excited to be in front of that community and just to have that face to face time with my colleagues. But I just don't believe that the time is right. I think that, you know, we have been offered counsel. Folks have been offered to be vaccinated. But our support team and I don't believe the city clerk's office has been vaccinated yet either. And. And I also agree that it's important that we hear from our from our labor unions and how this could impact their membership. So, I mean, I did receive a letter today from Richard Chavez from A.I.M., and this is one thing he said in this letter. He said, We believe that bringing folks back without any science to support the safety of this action is wrong. And we believe that an item like this requires a robust conversation. We cannot and will not allow our members lives to be gambled with. And I certainly and I know I know I can imagine anyone who wants to gamble with any of anyone's lives. And we definitely want to to see, you know, the staff vaccinated before we open up the chambers to the public. So I can totally support the substitute motion. And and I look forward to getting on video. Thank you, Councilwoman Zorro. Thank you, Mayor. I, too, also support the substitute motion, because I think that first and foremost, the safety of all staff, especially members of, you know, of our union as well, are taking into consideration when not only the council member asks, but there's so much more that takes to run a council meeting that we have to consider and that I believe it's important and I want to uplift what council members and they have said about making sure we continue to put public commenting process that's accessible and is easy and not just technology wise but language wise as well in the forefront of everything we continue to do, whether it is the teleconference, the video and hopefully in the future in-person. So I again just believe that it continues. I support the video and that we need to make sure we have extensive conversation about about it before we go in-person. So thank you. Thank you, Councilman Austin. Thank you. We have heard from the public comment yet, but I do want to just say that I do appreciate the sentimental considerations from most of my colleagues who we've heard speak already. I think there's been some some some misunderstanding in terms of intent. I want to just say that I knew that agenda izing this item would create an uncomfortable kind of conversation. But, you know, we all ran for office and any time we are before the public, even on the council dais, it's not a comfortable situation. And and so the intent behind city council meetings are not supposed to be be comfortable. We but we should be safe. That is something that I think we all agree on. I will claim some success on this item since we are moving toward being more transparent and more accountable. And that means video access to our meetings that that that is a I'm thrilled with the direction that we're moving in. And I think I mentioned that. And so the substitute motion I will support, but I would have supported that is a friendly. Had I been given the opportunity to do that and pointing I want to point to the to the Ms. Allan called it the AM Union. The the the meeting our process is is directed oftentimes by policy, directed by council and direction, by the city council. And so should we move forward, whatever we're moving forward, that that process is going to be what it is anyway. And so I think, you know, we do a pretty good job of engaging with our city representative employees unions. We should continue to do that, but moving forward with this process in any way. And so I'm going to support the substitute on the on the floor. I mean, I do not need to there's no reason for me to to die on the sword over having in-person city council meetings. But I do think we should be thinking about this. We should be planning for that in which we should be transparent with the public in terms of give it an expectation on what that looks like. We are moving forward. We are we are leading our our vaccine rollout. Many city employees already are vaccinated. And I don't you know, everyone has people privacy. And so no one knows exactly who has been vaccinated. But I do expect over the next few weeks, 3 to 4 weeks with the vaccine that we know we're we're supposed to be getting, we should be in very good shape within the next 30 to 45 days. And so hopefully we can revisit this conversation very soon. Thank you. We have one member of the public for public comment. Yes.

Michelle Baker. Good evening. My name is Michelle Baker and I'm a resident district two and a business owner District three. I agree with Councilmember Austin's comments to have a plan to return to in-person meetings. Most council members have been vaccinated and there's only three meetings per month. Although the public can't attend, in-person meetings should be video live streamed and public still should be able to provide comments even if you don't approve this item. It is imperative that city council video streams are meeting. Most other government entities have WebEx Zoom video meetings, including L.A. City Council and the Coastal Commission. Even the DNC held their convention on Zoom. I have reached out to the city clerk several times inquiring about video stream meetings or told them July. Yes, it's up to the mayor to decide. And it's ultimately the decision of the council as a whole, the whole of the WebEx video meeting. I don't understand why there is reluctance to hold video meetings and most other government entities have been doing them for months. Transparency is crucial and it's an open society and people need to know that their council members and mayor are listening to them. Video streaming ensures that the Long Beach community can see their representatives in action and see what's going on in the city. Thank you so much and hope to see you live too. Thank you. That concludes public comment. Thank you, Councilman Price. Mr. Mayor. So I agree that we should proceed with the video access if we can, but I'm not clear because there was a lot of dialog. How long that will take for our city team to be able to make that technology work for all of us and for the public. Yeah, and let me let me. That's a good question, actually, for for the clerk and Councilman Price, if you don't mind, we could ask the crowd and ask the same thing. Madam Carter, Della Garza, if you're if you're if you're available. I know that I know you've been working on this video kind of transition for a few weeks. And I know Mr. Modica had mentioned to me a couple of weeks that there were there were some some tie issues that you guys were trying to figure out with software. Can you maybe update the council on kind of where that's at? Because I know that your team's in working on that. Yes. Thank you, Mayor and Council, we have been working on this for a few weeks and we were able to meet last week with tech and innovation on Friday and determined that there is a way to move forward using WebEx and showing the video. So we're fairly confident if we do some testing with the council and make sure that the Internet speed and the equipment is adequate, that we'll be able to do that going forward. And again, it's just a matter of when we can work with the council offices and determine if the equipment is sufficient and get this going. So we feel we feel really good that we can make this happen pretty quickly. And Madam Clerk, just to clarify also Councilman Price's questi on, I think what you had mentioned to me is that you think in the next meeting or two that you'll have everything kind of tested. And then whatever software that I think you guys were looking at buying or or you guys were looking at some kind of text back in back of the house piece that you needed to add is would be in place, is that correct? So there is a piece of equipment or some software that we're looking at for translation services that won't be ready within the next couple of weeks. However, that will not prevent us from moving forward showing WebEx video on screen. We we feel fairly confident in the next week or two we can get the equipment distributed to the council members and get it tested and verify that everybody's connection is sufficient. We should be able to do that. Absolutely. The soonest would be next week, but it might be the week after if we can't reach out to all the council members and get that situated. Thank you, Councilman Price. Giving back to you. Sorry. Councilman Price. So, Mr. Mayor, you you have my question answered, so I'm fine, thank you. Okay, great. There's a motion. Any second members, please go ahead and cast votes. It's a substitute motion. District one. I. District two. I District three. I. District four. II. District five. I District six i district seven. By. District eight, district nine. I. Motion carries. District nine. My motion carries. Thank you. Moving on to item number 15, please. Report from Technology and Innovation recommendation to approve the City Smart City Initiative Strategy and Data Privacy Guidelines Citywide. I have a motion by Vice Mayor Richardson. Can I get a second, please? Yes, ma'am. It's not a motion. I'm going to I'm going to go ahead and had an abundance of caution. I work in the fiber optics space on an abundance of caution to log off or recuse myself here. Thank you. Got it. I have a motion by Councilwoman Mongo and a second by Councilmember Ringa, I. Let's do. Let's go ahead and go. I do we have a short presentation, Mr. Modica? Yes, we do. This is a strategic plan that the Council asks us to put together back in October of 2019. So we'd like to walk through what that effort has been. And I will turn it over to Leah ERICKSEN to walk us through the presentation. Good evening, Mayor. And members of the City Council, the Technology and Innovation Department is pleased to. Provide an overview. Of the proposed Smart City Initiative Strategy and data privacy guidelines for your overview and discussion. Go to the next slide. To provide background and context. In October 2019, McCarthy and the one page council directed city staff to develop a smart city strategic. Initiative to create a coordinated, coordinated approach to

irective. We recognize that the city has already completed many projects. Using new and smart technology over the last several years, such as our automated utility meters and our E-SCOOTER program. So the intent of the Smart City Initiative is to engage in a collaborative effort to build our foundations that are already in place, expand our capacity and use resources efficiently. I will now turn the presentation over to Ryan Kurtzman, who is our Smart Cities program manager, to continue the presentations. Thank you, Leah, and good evening, Mayor, and members of the City Council. I will provide additional context for the Smart City Initiative and discuss the proposed vision, guiding principles, strategies and objectives. Next slide, please. From day one, I'd idealism to the Long Beach community members and local stakeholders to inform the Smart City strategy. We held 13 community meetings in addition to workshops, interviews and online outreach. We approach this unique lens and intentionally uplifted the voices of community groups that represent individuals left behind by the digital divide. We also spoke with technology, industry partners and city staff and launched a multilingual paper and online survey. We acknowledge that reach was not exhaustive and was limited due to the COVID 19 pandemic and the inequities associated with the digital divide. Many community groups that we reached out to let us know that they did not have the capacity to participate due to other priorities during the pandemic. However, we are committed to continuing community engagement citywide every step of this initiative. Throughout this process, TIME collaborated closely with the Technology and Innovation Commission. On January 27th of this year, the Commission voted unanimously to approve the Smart City Initiative strategy and recommended bringing it to the full City Council for approval today. Exide. Before we present to you the proposed Smart City strategy, we must acknowledge that smart city technologies, if not regulated, have the potential to infringe upon residents' personal privacy. In our community survey, we heard that although residents believe smart tools are essential, they are strongly concerned that this could mean less personal privacy. This is why city staff is proposing data privacy guidelines. In addition to the Smart City initiative for your review and approval this evening, the data privacy guidelines are contained in attachment to the staff report and address transparency and accountability. Participatory feedback channels, digital equity, ethics and nondiscrimination. Next slide. What follows is an overview of the Long Beach Smart City Initiative, vision, guiding principles and objectives. The Smart City Initiative advances solutions to civic challenges next time. By engaging the community staff and the private sector. Next slide. To explore and implement emerging technology. Next slide. It is important to note that this vision is rooted in co llaboration and meeting real city challenges. The Smart City Initiative will strive to provide solutions to the needs already identified in the city's framework for racial reconciliation, Digital Inclusion Initiative, 2030 Strategic Vision and the recently proposed Long Beach Recovery Act. Next slide. Next, the Smart City Initiative proposes four guiding principles that will provide a framework to align the city's portfolio of technology projects. These principles have been adapted to address challenges following the COVID 19 pandemic and echo what we heard from the Long Beach community, which can be found in Appendix A of the final Smart City Initiative report. The first principle is to design for equity. Smart city technologies must reduce historic inequities, be accessible to all, and improve the quality of life for underserved communities. Second, the city's use of emerging technologies must build public trust by championing excellence in data privacy and transparency. Third, the Smart City Initiative will cultivate local expertise by promoting economic inclusion, supporting local businesses, improving workforce job readiness, and strengthening local partnership networks. And finally, our smart city technologies must build civic resilience. We must prioritize new technologies that improve our ability to meet resident needs and respond to the most pressing civic challenges. Next slide. The Smart City Initiative proposes four interconnected strategies and 11 objectives that align with these guiding principles and together create a roadmap through FY 2022. Guide staff will continue to lead this work in collaboration with other city departments, local stakeholders and community members. To start, the city needs to lay a strong foundation. While smart city projects will take many different forms, much of their underlying infrastructure must be shared across departments. The first strategy is for the city to assess the needed infrastructure for smart city projects. This includes conducting an inventory of physical infrastructure such as our fiber network and streetlights, and also our policy infrastructure, such as our purchasing guidelines and data sharing agreements. Upon evaluating the infrastructure, we will develop a high level public facing road map for smart city priorities. This will again align with the Framework for Racial Reconciliation, Digital Inclusion Initiative, 2030 Strategic Vision and proposed Long Beach Recovery Plan, and will continually be assessed based on what's working and what isn't. Next slide. To ensure the Smart City Initiative uplifts diverse Long Beach perspectives. The second strategy is to build a broad stakeholder network connecting industry experts, community members and city staff. We will invite collaboration from tech industry leaders to generate ideas and identify viable partnership opportunities. We will also work to create opportunities for Long Beach residents and other local stakeholders to co-design city technology solutions with a particular emphasis on including low income communities and communities of color who stand to benefit the most from gains in digital literacy and participation in the smart city economy. Next slide. The third strategy is focus on developing a lean operating model so that the Smart City Initiative can succeed with limited resources in the near term, while also setting a vision for what a more robust organization may look like in the future. In the short term, it will utilize its currently assigned 1.5 FTE to manage the Smart City Initiative and will leverage available city department funds based on department interest in technology projects in order to fund longer term or cross-departmental smart city technology projects. We will also seek outside funding sources, including philanthropic grants and revenue sharing models with private partners. Next slide. The fourth and final strategy is to develop flexible pilot models, to advance smart city technology projects that originate from three different sources the private sector, city staff and Long Beach residents and businesses. The unsolicited private pilot model would provide a framework for funneling unsolicited vendor proposals from tech companies to a single point of contact. Evaluating them with with a transparent criteria and implementing those that offer promising solutions to legitimate city needs. The city solicited. The model would prioritize challenges developed by city departments and issue a call for solutions to solicit private partners. And lastly, through the community led pilot model, the city would engage community members and solicit solicit their neighborhood specific ideas and concerns. Community members would have the power to define pilot goals and objectives, propose a prototype and select potential solutions, test and evaluate implemented solutions and make recommendations for scaling the project beyond the initial pilot phase. Next slide. I will now turn it back over to Lia to finish the presentation. Thank you, Brian. If the Smart City Initiative strategy is approved by the City Council, it will work with city staff from other departments, local stakeholders and community members to implement the strategies, objectives and pilot. Project models discussed in the previous. Slides. We will provide regular updates to the Long Beach community and will leverage the Smart City website to report on progress in meeting the key objectives. To protect residents privacy. City staff will also develop a work plan to. Operationalize the data privacy. Guidelines within city policies. Educational campaigns and procedures as appropriate. Finally, we will continue to advocate only for smart city solutions that meet city challenges, medical needs, and the priorities of the mayor and the Long Beach City Council. Next slide. With that, we conclude our staff report and we are available for any questions or feedback that you may have on the Smart City Strategic Initiat ive. Or the Data Privacy Guidelines. Thank you for that. Why don't we. Public comment. I think we've got two members of the public and then we'll go back to the council. Yes, we have three speakers. The first speaker is Dave Shukla. I agree with the. I'd like to speak in support of the data privacy guidelines as currently drafted by city staff. These guidelines are best understood as a public living kind of document that can and will be updated as technologies and opportunities emerge and mature. As you consider the Smart Cities initiative, I urge the City Council and city staff to adopt privacy by design principles and practice privacy by design refers to specific measures that can be taken so that smart city initiatives don't devolve into surveillance or data mining program. These measures include setting contractor or California Consumer Privacy Act compliance, refusing to grant contracts to vendors who reserve the right to change or alter their terms of use or data collection policies. Also, working with municipal purchasing and procurement at all stages of product development or data utilization by a third party to implement privacy safeguard into these technologies . Another privacy by design practice would be for the City of Long Beach to continue what it's doing, building an in-house capacity, staff capacity for a lot of the privacy and data protection issues that arise from a lot of smart city infrastructure kind of development deployment. We must recognize that private companies, for instance, digital solutions, don't have the same privacy or data protection goals as. No Roadmap for Smart City Initiative in Long Beach should proceed without first recognizing that the city, in this instance and in many other, find a contract with a vendor with a defined field for data collection. In this instance, license plate reading that. Actually it loads tremendous potential abuse and particularly when combined with other routine data, location data, time of use data can be used to build behavioral profiles of people and those behavioral profile can be sold third party vendors. So having stronger, first of all, having defined policies at all, that's a good first step. But having stronger policies specifically defined and how the city relates to vendors in these contracts is. Something I hope you all support and consider implementing some of these practices, specifically privacy by design that other things are already kind of. Do you think your next speaker is Gwen SCHIEFFER? Good evening. They are Garcia and members of City Council. My name is Gwen Schaefer. I'm on faculty at Cal State Long Beach and I chair the city of Long Beach Technology and Innovation Commission. As Leah mentioned, in October 2019, Mayor Garcia directed staff to develop a smart city strategic initiative and guiding priorities. Clearly, Mayor Garcia recognizes the potential for technology to spur economic development, to make Long Beach safer, to develop a resilient workforce, a

and generally to improve quality of life. But you could not create a smart city without data collection and artificial intelligence. A majority of Americans responding to a recent Pew Research poll reported that they are, quote, concerned, confused and feel a lack of control over their personal information. Even so, Congress has failed to enact a comprehensive privacy law to combat the data aggregation, profiling and selective targeting that dominate our online activities. While the CFPA went into effect more than a year ago, municipal governments are exempt from complying, even though nearly 80% of Americans responding to that same Pew Research survey reported feeling very or somewhat concerned about how companies and the government use their personal data. Between November 2019 and April 2020, Ryan and I co facilitated focus group discussions with 82 Long Beach residents from all across the city ranging in age from teens to seniors. We presented them with three specific smart technologies currently deployed in Long Beach. The first scenario centered around the passport parking mobile app used for beach plots owned by the city. The second scenario presented study participants told them about ring security cameras, which collect surveillance footage that residents may voluntarily share with the police department. Finally, we asked study participants about their attitudes towards Internet connected water meters that capture usage in real time. The findings reveal that privacy concerns transcend data collection practices. In fact, Long Beach residents are equally concerned about which government agencies or corporations collect their personal information and how it may be used in the future. Furthermore, through agreements for third party vendors, data generated by smart city technologies may end up serving private interests and leaving residents feeling exploited and distrustful. This underscores the need for the city of Long Beach to incorporate data privacy language into third party vendor contracts that explicitly prohibits partners from reselling personal data or using it for non stated purposes. This evening I urge City Council to approve both the Smart City Initiative and the data privacy guidelines developed by the Department of Technology and Innovation. Without such protections, Long Beach residents may ultimately determine that compromised privacy is simply too high a price to pay for the privacy. Your next speaker is Myron Rolle Wallen. Thank you, Mayor. Garcia. And members of the City Council. I am Myron Walden, president of the Long Beach Gray Panthers. The Gray Panthers. Are in favor of the Smart City initiative that aims to explore. And implement emerging technology. It is a notable goal in this current era, and Long Beach seniors are in dire need of a new technology. We were one. Of the groups that participated. In the community. Engagement outreach efforts. At the Long Beach Technology and Innovation Department. We parti cipated in two focus. Groups selected surveys from low income residents and encouraged. Our members and partners to complete the digital. Survey. The Long Beach Gray Panthers applaud the Smarts. Initiative. For including older adults as one of the. Groups that. Need help with today's new technology. During the pandemic, older. Adults have been isolated at home with little social contact. They would like to contact their family, their grandchildren, their friends. They have been depressed. We are grateful. With the city's limited ability to. Provide hardware. We have participated in distributing. This to worthy older adults in Long Beach. Then they need to learn how to use them. We have partnered with Long Beach City College to provide the instruction for this. In addition, we have received a grant from Spectrum to set up a computer lab in the Fourth Street Senior Center. The 20 or so computers just set up this month have already been used to help seniors fill out their income tax. Which has been a big hit. See, we are all well aware of how the digital revolution is a necessity for us. As older adults are frequent targets for scammers and criminals. They must be kept safe in their online privacy, protected as they learn to bank, shop, pay bills, visit remotely to prevent social isolation with friends and family and if remote doctor visits. It is important that city policy consider the needs of older adults and ensure they have all the access to technology and the equipment and education to use it effectively, as well as keep current and new technology. We need more hardware, learning instruction, access to the Internet. We applaud the efforts of the city to help provide access to the Internet in some high rise buildings with the technology from a private company. Sorry, this needs to be expanded to more buildings. Free public Wi-Fi in wide areas in town and on Long Beach is also a necessity. We look forward to the implementation of the Smart Cities Initiative. We urge you to support this initiative. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you. I have a motion in a second by councilman Mongo and Councilman Ringa. Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I'm so pleased that we're moving in this direction. This is the second time I got to see this excellent presentation and thank you to the community and the commission for all their work. And thank you to the staff in I.T. for your great leadership. I look forward to this. I'm leading us through many exciting projects ahead, including the Long Beach Passport or whatever we'll call it, to link all residents up and break the digital divide so they can access city resources from the palm of their hand 24 hours a day. Thank you. Thank you. From Ringa. I too have very supportive of this item. I think it's important that we all protect our personal data and information in the smart cities. This is a long time coming. It's been basically adopted in many cities throu ghout the country. And Long Beach is now going to be one of those smart cities. So be included in that to appreciate everyone's forward thinking. Thank you, Councilman Allen. Thank you, Emir. I'm also happy to see this report tonight from Director Ericsson, and I'm very supportive. I've heard from many of my constituents about the importance of this item tonight. New technologies present existing possibilities. And I absolutely love that we are engaging the private sector and the community to help harness this emerging tech. I look forward to seeing how it's built out and continue in your work with our commissioners and the community. I do have a quick question for you, Director Ericsson. What is the one high potential emerging technology that you are most excited about? I thank you, Councilwoman Allen. In addition to what Councilwoman Mongo was mentioning, our password initiative. That makes services easier to access. There's there's actually quite a few interesting things that we're looking at, including extremely excited by the use of AI and chat bots to make city hall services more accessible, less bureaucratic. We're using sensors on trash trucks to detect graffiti dumped. Items of trouble. But, you know, as some of our residents mentioned, we also really need to make sure that we are also focusing on the digital divide, that that the technology investments that we're making are accessible to all. So I look forward to approval of this item today. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you. I want to thank staff for the report tonight as well. And I'm excited about the possibilities. I will say, although it was not directly on point, I can't really let this item tonight go without reminding somebody. I hope somebody out there is listening. But I have brought a couple of different items to explore how we can utilize technology in our city currently to advance some of our goals. And unfortunately, we've really not heard too much about those technologies that other cities are using. One of them was the street sweeping app. When we brought that item, we asked whether we had the technology for our because we have GPS on the street streets, we bring vehicles to alert residents when the truck had passed their home so that for parking impacted areas, they could go ahead and park on the side of the street once the street sweeping truck has passed. That is a technology that's been utilized in other cities. I'd love to see that incorporated in the city of Long Beach. I think we brought that item maybe a year and a half ago or so, maybe to another item that we brought probably maybe three years ago was the app for homelessness, and it's the real time bed availability app that would allow first responders to see what beds are available in the region in terms of detox beds, mental health beds, substance abuse beds or co-occurring disorder facilities. So that if we do have an individual who wants to accept a service seven days a week, our first responders would be able to take them to a facility that would be willing and available to receive them. So those are two technologies that I know other cities have been utilizing, and I feel like we can't really call ourselves a smart city until we are at least using some of the technology that's already out there being used by others. And then we can build upon that. But I think our technology team is fantastic and I know that those items that I brought, we did not bring specifically to the technology team. We brought them as general items. So I'm not sure where they ended up, but those are examples of technologies that I hope that in the future we're able to utilize because there are cities and municipalities that are using both of those technologies that I mentioned and probably a whole bunch of others that I did to advance their goals. And I'm certainly hoping that we can use it. And then I do also want to say that until we're at the place where we have closed the digital divide, our libraries are doing a tremendous job in providing digital access. And certainly they do not have sufficient resources to be able to serve all the residents. So I think that's really important and I think this report is very positive. And the possibilities in terms of where the city can go, in my opinion, are endless. And until then, we have institutions like our libraries around to help everyone have access. So thank you for that. Is in the house. Thank you. I'm very excited about this item coming before us. This is very near and dear to my heart as well, especially because it will affect a lot of a lot of seniors, people with disabilities. It will affect the Latino community and our neighborhoods here on the west side and central Long Beach in ways of accessing technology. I know that during COVID, we have realized that there is a huge digital divide. And I'm just so happy to see something like this moving forward. I encourage us to look at would my colleague just stated these technologies that Councilmember Price stated and that we look into that and that we start looking in that direction. I think that would be very, very helpful for our city. And also, I wanted to say a big congratulations to our Great Panthers, who got a big a big grant from Spectrum, a $25,000 grant to provide our seniors who had been affected by the digital divide throughout our city and to provide them with with tablets. And I think that that's a huge, huge thing. And I'm so happy that so many seniors are were able to take advantage of that. And so I'm just really excited to see us moving in this direction. Congratulations, Mr. Erikson, for this great work to the commission. Thank you. Keep up the good work. And I'm looking forward to seeing what else you bring to us in the future. Thank you. Great work. Roll Call the. District one. And. District two. I. District three. I. II. District four. By. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. By District eight. All r

central workers. They have a footprint right here in the ninth Council District in North Long Beach. And and they're a great organization in long term care givers of work throughout this pandemic to support our most vulnerable population, particularly individuals with disabilities. Now that our vaccine is available to all individuals with disabilities, that we continue to protect our frontline workers that act as a lifeline for these homebound Californians. Let'

s go to the next. So here's a short video highlighting how this group on Morning America broke three members of the largest long term care union in the country document women of color and include over 400,000 essential workers in nursing homes and assisted living centers in California. So how are these front line? How are you going to be able to hear the audio at all times? With us now is the president of the Service Employees International Union Local 2015. April for it. April, thank you so much for being with us. And and our hats off to these caregivers who are going in each and every day truly risking their lives. They're up close and personal with their patients. They great. So it doesn't seem like we're going to be able to get on. From a safe distance. So Councilmember Richard, from the audio. Trying to do it as safely as possible. Thanks so much for having me. It's an honor to be here. Our yeah, it's hard for me. To you're bearing through this pandemic, just like all of all other Americans. It's been extremely hard. But as you said, our members cannot socially distance. They do close personal, hard work. They touch people for a living, they give care. And so for them, they have continued to risk their lives every single day to do the work that they are called to do to care for our most vulnerable people with disabilities, our elders. And they are they are caring love givers. And this pandemic has been hard. But we're ready to move on. We're over being victim to this pandemic. It's time for a real fight, a real plan to fight this pandemic, to break the back of this pandemic. And together we can do it. Well, a new CDC report is telling us that 62% of nursing home workers still have not gotten the vaccine. Why is that the case? Is there still some hesitation there in getting the vaccine? There's a lot of hesitation to get the vaccine. But the story here for me is not about the hesitation. It's about what are the solutions we're going to bring forward to move past that hesitation. I don't believe that we have invested the adequate amount of resources and time to be able to move people past whatever is stopping them from getting that shot in their arm. So let's spend the time educating people, talking through their fears and their concerns, having people who are really trusted. Here's something that is not a secret to me. People don't necessarily trust their employers, so we need people who are trusted, respected that are a part of spreading the word about this vaccine and getting people over their hesitancy is time for real solutions. And April, so you have a vaccination normalization program underway. I see they're behind you, Rosie the Riveter. We can do it. Tell us about this campaign and why you chose Rosie the Riveter. Absolutely. Rosie the Riveter, as we know, has been an icon for labor and icon for women like the women in my union. Back in 1942, during World War Two, Rosie was an image of bringing people together, of uniting, to fight du ring a time that our country needed to come together. And for us, we're in a similar moment. And so we are introducing Carmen, the caregiver, and Carmen and her coworkers are standing up to say, we can do it, we can get vaccinated, we can get our communities vaccinated. And but most importantly, we are going to move past this COVID moment and say, how are we strengthening our long term care system to make sure we are never this vulnerable again? The new administration is still in its infancy. Right. Just getting going a month in here. But how are you seeing things already? Or do you hope to see something very soon just with the new administration that will make a difference and to help that long term health care workers are getting. Absolutely. Our members are so proud to have stood beside now President Biden and our very own Kamala Harris from right here in California. It's been a breath of fresh air ever since they came onto the scene because they actually talked to Americans. They tell us the truth. They are compassionate and we know they have a plan. From the very beginning, this administration has talked about what we're going to do to come together, to end this virus, to end this pandemic. And we're going to unite and we're going to do it together. So we're really proud at the promising signs that we're seeing from the administration, and we're ready to roll up our sleeves and get to work. Our president and vice president cannot do this alone. It's going to take all Americans and the 400,000 members of SEIU Local 2015. We're ready for the fight. It's our moment. It's been you all's moment and you all have been. And doing it quite admirably over this past year or so. Thank you so much to all your members for what you all are doing. April, the president of SEIU Local 2015, thanks so much. We'll see you again. All right. Thank you. Bye bye. All right. And I know that folks could hear it on TV and our grandkids hear it on WebEx. And I understand we're going to make sure we correct that for the future. But I wanted to take a moment to recognize this campaign of Carmen, the caregiver. And this recognizes it pays homage to Rosie the Riveter World War Two icon that we lifted up in here in the city of Long Beach, who symbolized American women, who went to work in factories and shipyards to replace men who had joined the military. And so when working women of America then and now find themselves at the center of an existential crisis facing our country and are called upon to be heroes, to help our nation survive. And this campaign is really about vaccine normalization, particularly within our communities, our diverse communities and vaccine equity. Let's go on to the next line. And so these are the images of Carmen, the caregiver. She's strong. She's the first you see that sticker on her arm. And she is really encouraging people to make sure that, you know, we bring in some confidence and public trust in our public vaccination process, but also ca lling on, you know, calling our institutions to make sure that we promote mass vaccination the right way to ensure that our our country is strong and our communities can recover. Let's go to the next part. It's also the high level goals. Target Cogat impact the communities on establishing network of distribution and preparing Long Beach. We're already doing a number of these things, and these are things that that SEIU 2015 is encouraging all communities to do and organize and facilitate distribution in a way that utmost confidence in the vaccine process. And these are these are great values. The lobbies is upholding a number of these things. We can always do better, particularly as we get into further phases of the vaccination process. And let's go on to the last part. And so and so this is a great slide. This is how we can do it means we can beat the virus. We can do it means we can repair and improve the long term care system we can do it means we can honor the essential workers in the nation's frontline heroes of the pandemic. Great, great. So we can do it together. We can take down the presentation. And so I wanted to just take a moment to recognize this group. And and as the city council passed a resolution in support of this, incredible, we can do it initiative. And so I think I know that we have a number of folks here to speak on. And so I think we'll we'll go through some public comment and we'll go through council comment and then we'll go and hear from the public. And so I'm looking to Mayor Garcia. Are you still here? Do you believe are you still here? Do you have the Q? Okay. We're going to just have the council. So I'm going to make this motion for a second. We're going to do both. I I this is councilwoman Sunday. Has that cued up to second. But I don't know. Okay. They recognize the second. Do you want to go ahead and get your comments now? Yes. Thank you. Vice Mayor, I just wanted to thank you friend from the very bottom of my heart for bringing this item forward tonight. And also to everyone. Happy International Women's Day. I'm so excited to be signed on to this item that is so important to me personally, but also to the disability community as well. And the work of these home caregivers is absolutely essential. And and and is is being done for so many of our most vulnerable residents that rely on them for their everyday health and safety. And I know they have been. In, you know, risking their life for over almost a year now through this pandemic, not only feeling can't, you know, contracting the virus, but also exposing their families to them. And on top of that, exposing their clients to them, because I think that that would be so, so hard on them, because these are persons that they care for and that have so many, so many underlying conditions. I know that personally my caregivers have teased with me saying, You know what, Mary? Maybe I, maybe I should work from home next week. And I just look at them like, okay, you know, bec ause that's not an option for them. They really have their clients lives in their hands and people really, really rely on them, and it is our duty to protect them. I'm so excited for this idea and I'm hoping that we'll be successful in passing this resolution because I think it'll go a very, very long way and we will be able to save so many lives in our community alone. So thank you again, Vice Mayor Richardson, for bringing this item up. Fantastic. Thank you. Council member Next we have council member Sara. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I just want to thank you for bringing this item forward so that we can acknowledge the very hard working, front line in-home care providers and our nursing home workers who have been really just the hardest and most passionate, compassionate people of knows that they have to go in every day regardless of the dangers that they face. And they appreciate us lifting up many of the women as well as men in the front line, and that we're doing this in honor of International Women's Day. And I just want to thank SEIU 2015 for their amazing work that they do. Thank you. Thank you. Next, we have council member Urunga. But you

HMRC have accused you of. First of all, I want to thank you for bringing this forward. I mean, it's a great acknowledgment that the long term care facility workers were in the frontline of the whole the pandemic. It was the long term care facility that were first hit the hardest with this pandemic. And these workers are heroes, and no question about that. They're warriors. And they really feel proud that this pandemic straight on and being that it is International Women's Day. And let's keep in mind that there are many women all over the world who are not only sacrificing themselves, but sacrificing their families as well when it comes to civil rights and human rights. So thank you again for bringing this forward and happy, happy International Women's Day. Thank you, Councilmember. Next, we have Councilman Alston. Thank you. And I want to thank you for bringing this item forward. I want to salute the women, but the members of SEIU Local 2015 with a courageous work day in and day out, providing care and dignity to those who often can't care for themselves. You know, on a personal note, I have a close family member who is cared for by a SEIU 2013 member. And my, my, my, my, my cousin is developmentally, developmentally disabled and his caregivers have for his entire life have been part of our family. And I have the distinct honor of actually had the opportunity to work with real Rosie the Riveter back in, you know, 25, 30 years ago in the Carl Douglas. And it's ironic that during World War Two, Rosie the Riveter really helped us, you know, boost up our manufacturing base. A lot of that was based here, right here in Long Beach. And without that workforce, you know, we may not have prevailed the way we did as a country. That was a major crisis in our country. In the US, today's crisis is a world crisis. But the pandemic of COVID 19 and and the frontline workers, being those caregivers in long term care facilities and individual homes, really helped get people through. And so these are heroes and they should be saluted. And and I really like the irony of this. Just saw this item coming to an end. Women's History Month celebrating, but it's Carmen, the care giver. Thanks. Thank you, Councilmember. Next, we have council member Alan. Yes. Thank you, vice mayor. I just really appreciate your work on this and just thank you for bringing this forward. I'm just so happy to co-sponsor this item that promotes mass vaccinations. And so we just must continue to encourage support and normalize mass vaccinations in every way. And I, too, want to thank SEIU 2015 for their work on this. So happy to support this effort that will protect women and happy International Women's Day. And just one last thing. We can do it. Thank you. Council member. Next, we have council member Mungo. Thank you. I want to thank SEIU and the women that have really served us so well over the last year. They show up every day and they do the great work. And I think this is an amazing campaign and great work. Thank you. That's not a side council comment. And can we go to. Now, can we go to public comment? Yes. Our first speaker is Sally Inder. Okay. Sally? Yes. Please begin. Hi. Um, so in my home, we've been waiting and hoping for more Long Beach residents to be vaccinated as a care provider to my child. Although in-person school hasn't offered, we have had to decline because we do understand the seriousness of the virus. And if that means that my child has to stay home and we have issues keeping him online, that's what it means, because this past December, my immediate entire family had been infected with the coronavirus. And they have very severe symptoms because because they live together, because they are low income, they have to live with my grandmother. She's been a long time local business owner in Long Beach, and she had to remain open when possible. So she have brought the corona virus to the rest of the family. Luckily, I don't live with them. My child doesn't live with them, so we were the only ones who didn't get it. But we definitely understand the severity of it. And I'm currently working as a health screener and I'm hoping that as we get more vaccinations in Long Beach that we'll see a turn of results that makes it safe for people to return to work, return to school and live their lives in person, and giving people the choice to go back in person. Fluff is. Hello? Is everybody still there? Yes. Your time is concluded. Thank you. Oh, I. Our next speaker is Kelly Ellis. Yes, I'm here. Yes. This is Kelly Ellis. Did you call me? Yes. Kelly. To my name, please begin. Yes. Um. I already have the corona vaccination. I just completed my second one this past Saturday. And I was leery about giving it at first, however. I figured, you know. What can I do? Just go in here and get the vaccinati on. The first one I have. I didn't have any. Side effects. But the second one, my arm was. It was about maybe the following day. My arm was a little sore and there was a chin. And then, you know, I felt like I had like some flu symptoms. Now I felt better now, which I'm glad I. Got it. Because I also. Do other things outside. The house. Besides, you not allowed to go to the grocery store and do other things for my client who I live with and want to bring. Home anything to her. I always wore.

My mask, my gloves. I still think as caregivers, we should also be supplies. Those are disposable gowns, which will help a lot, especially we go out and do like, you know, washing the clothes and grocery shopping. Even though. Think your next speaker is Martha Vila. Hi. Good evening. I am a member of SEIU 2015. I have been a home care provider for almost 13 years now due to the pandemic. I lost three family members within a period of 22 days. I lost my mother. My brother and his wife, which now they have left behind. Eight their only 15 year old son for whom I'm seeking legal guardianship as he has no more relative family close to him. And I am thrilled to see my city supporting the work I have done through this pandemic. My fellow caregivers and I have worked recently, mostly over the last year in the face of this virus, and the vaccine is our only hope for a return to safety and normalcy. Knowing that the city is supportive of this need to protect us is a relief after a year of living in fear. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Wendy Duchin. Hello? Yes, please. Begin. Hello. Thank you. Thank you. My name is Wendy Duchin. I'm with SEIU 2015. And I would like to thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson and the entire city council and the city of Long Beach for really taking this step in, in taking this decision, in adopting and supporting a resolution that as a testimony that you have heard or you're going to hear the life changing situations for many of our caregivers and their families. So we want to thank you on behalf of thousands and thousands of members in the city of one, because we like to thank you for supporting and really treating us like essential workers, but also heroes of this community. Thank you. Thank you. Give us a moment when we transition to the Spanish portion of public. Our first speaker is Claudia Horace. Gloria Juarez. Claudia Juarez. Can you hear me? Yes. Begin. Put up as evidence. See mucho. You ask me. No worries. Claudia Juarez professional, the local SEIU been picking. So you get all that. Let's get Gracias. As we sell their recs for support, you are recognized and supported from whatever reason. Socialists and Democrats get most of our phone and collect. You get all good ideas that, for example, Europe and the mechanisms by which I got here. And yes, thank you very much. My name is Claudia Juarez. I am a member of SEIU, the 2015. And thanks to the vice mayor for his recognition and this entire group, because these workers are rea lly angels, are true angels, and they are supporting our society. So thank you very much for all your support from the bottom of my heart. Thank you. Our next speaker is Gabriela Gutierrez. Areola with the rest of the London. See. Also want to start of this year, April, I hope I don't indicate to you guys there are going to be sweaters which are in certain circles e but are so simple yet amplification is fun. These La la canal Kobe at La Quinta but at the near massive rally that ensues here that if that are established they don't have record economy to go into in because it will be Muskogee. I will just reallocate a vignette you left me for, but then you can set it up. A cuatro is an embargo theme so it could open soon for you're for. Hello. My name is Gabriela Gutierrez and I am a member of SEIU and I want my voice to be heard before this council meeting. And I appreciate this opportunity and I really would like to see an increment and having a more aggressive COVID vaccine vaccination for everyone to increase the safety in this society and also to stimulate the economy again to get the economy moving. In my home, everyone had COVID, even though we were all trying to protect ourselves and I was going out with protection all the time. And my father was a victim of cancer at the same. Time continues and you're out the virus. The cookies from the lemonade was so good. But I could tell those investors the evolve. Some of my strong kilos are in the supermarket. C'est la vie. Superar. But also to stick with Amazon a lot better. Saw nothing to look at. I believe that vaccination will be the safest and will be the best way for the society to relaxed, for people to go to the store, to go to the market, particularly us that would take care of people. We must go to the market to provide for them. Continue. What? See. Yeah. So yeah so gay in study animals in law and police in Sudan. Massive good are better certainly important to me but I thought the people that were honest. And these we are going to have a safe city and we're going to have a safer nation. And I think that this is important that we vaccinate everyone in this city. Thank you. Which addresses our next speaker is Maryellen DeRose. Marylanders. When I start this, I mean this material, and it'll save me. I'm glad to see you got making it. When I thought of this man on my good afternoon. My name is Maryland Theros. I am a member of SEIU 2015. Continue what Iris said in the last few days, a lot of which in proposito the ME participant is put up with evil in my favor. And I am a resident of the city of Long Beach. I am a neighbor. And the reason why I'm here is to ask you, please, for a massive vaccination against COVID 19. Again, we stress you that you're aggressive. Obviously, we made up the whole family. And here in this city dance, God, I received the first dose of the vaccine, but my children did not yet. In my opinion. Goodell de la Vacunacion

Familia is complete. And I believe in my opinion that massive vaccination will protect the entire family and the entire city. But it seems I meant they were always able to give this award to another man. There are no poodle dresses with La Vacuna. Fortunately, today we buried an acquaintance of ours and he would not receive the vaccine on time. Still we're still waiting for these young, supportive service. Perhaps his life could have been saved, but we're not going to know that. But if our business had domain considered us to do so. Please, I take. I ask you to take into consideration massive vaccination. Moto graphics for full attention. Thank you very much for your attention. Thank you. Your next speaker is Aurelia Mendez. Aurélien mendez. Yeah. We invest. We want to meet. So we have already this in the Sindicato Azteca. Eat those milking. And I would have to know. My name is Aurelia Menendez and I am a resident and neighbor of Long Beach. And I am a caregiver. I am a member of SEIU 2015 continuing. In itself. I think it's a miracle opportunity that we have left here beneath the total aspersions on us for that interactive concert of coronavirus in a facility at the corner of they more about taking a look here. And in this location in which I am the opportunity to speak up, I ask if we have vaccination available for all and especially for those that do not have the knowledge to access technology. You silly person. If you consider you don't see the point of supporting them for not being the Pope of the course of the pandemic. And the government recommended a canonical. And this group of people usually is the people that have has a very difficult time trying to access the Internet or even using the telephone. And there at the same time, people with very low income and they're the victims of the pandemic in the most part. Go ahead. You get kids to go Muslim in the UK, citizens and other organisms, radical forces, they will see impressionable. Mr. Maxim with caution. Mr. Laborde. But are you there on as good as you have? Possibly. And I ask you to keep on supporting us the way you are supporting us all the time. Our job is not an easy job, but we do it with love, with dedication, and we always need your support. So thank you very much for this opportunity. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you. And we're going to go ahead and go for our roll call vote now. District one. I. District two. I saw three. High District for. I District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine. I know she cares. Thank you. Number 17, please. Communication from Vice Mayor Richardson, Councilwoman Allen, Councilwoman Sato. Councilman Austin. Recommendation to receive and file a presentation on Care Closet LBC. Thank you. Item 14 Communication from Councilman Austin and Councilwoman Mango. Recommendation to include up to eight new storefront retailers licenses in the feasibility analysis that is being pr pared for the Long Beach Cannabis Equity Program. Council member, Austin. Okay. I'm on. Thank you so much. First of all, I want to thank you for the time. It's been a long day. I want to especially thank our council member, Mongo, our DNF chair, for signing on in support of extending this opportunity for. Economic inclusion that will provide additional cannabis retail licenses for social equity qualified applicants. I have really appreciated the many thought provoking conversations with advocates of the Long Beach Cannabis Commerce Council, the BCA, and with members of the community who reached out to me over the past several months about addressing this perceived equity void. And for context, back on January 5th, the Council received a report on the current cannabis equity program, which we do. We have one. And the the staff recommendation included preparing a feasibility analysis on licensing and regulating non storefront delivery only shared manufacturing facilities. However, direction on establishing storefront retail licenses exclusively for social equity applicants was deferred and sent to. The abyss. That direction didn't sit well with me and many others who were paying attention to that item in the community. And so this item that I'm bringing forward this evening is really pretty straightforward. We're simply asking staff to include up to eight new retail storefront licenses in the Peace and stability analysis currently being prepared for the Lombard's social equity program. These new licenses will be exclusively for social worker to equip applicants who have at least a 51% equity in profits who are interested in the business. The Why eight Council colleagues. I am open for discussion and open to amend it to up to ten new licenses increases the council. Our city has and should continue to lead with thoughtful and innovative approaches to cannabis policy in the areas of equity especially. Continuous improvement should be our drive. Today, there are no currently no black owned cannabis retail operations in Long Beach that I'm aware of. And for that fact, I'm not aware of any indigenous or people of color or minority owned storefronts. Our current equity provisions allow for 40% social equity and employment for retail candidates, but there are no provisions to allow for ownership. And that's a glaring flaw in our equity program. In my opinion, it's a progressive city that is leading on racial equity and inclusion. We can and should do much better. I also see this work as critically important to restorative justice. Expanding retail cannabis licenses can create wealth and hundreds of new, good paying jobs for communities that have been impacted by the overpolicing and criminalization of cannabis, which is now legal in a very profitable industry. So tonight I'm asking my colleagues and staff to be thoughtful while moving this item forward. Continue to maintain high standards. Let's be geographically sensitive to approved locations. And I will

I just let you know I am not interested in over concentrating retail storefront cannabis storefronts in any any area of the city. And I'm not interested in unfairly scrutinizing new applicants. And so with that said, I would like to move this item and hope for a good discussion this evening and hope I can count on your unanimous support from my colleagues to direct the city manager and staff to expand cannabis retail licenses to social equity qualified applicants. And my final point is equity delayed is equity denied. Thank you. Councilman. I have a second by. Councilman, Mango. Councilman. Councilwoman. Before we have a full speakers list, did you want to go first to the public comment? Which one was it? Public. I know there's a delay on the screen, sir. Public comment would be great. Okay, so we'll go have a comment and I'll go back to you. So. Madam Clerk, please begin public comment. Our first speaker is Brandon Bolton. Good evening, mayor, council members and staff, thank you for your time. I am Brant Bolden from the Cannabis Commerce Council of Long Beach. I'm also a member of the National Cannabis Industry Association on the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee. Lee Triple C We focus on economic empowerment, educational development and career. Development in the cannabis. Space. And I also like to give a special thanks to Councilman Austin and his staff. For bringing this wonderful recommendation forward. These licenses are a step. Forward to bring economic prosperity for communities of. Color's most impacted by the war on drugs in Long Beach. I am in support of the June 14 request to add eight new store to retail licenses in Long Beach. There are currently zero black owned retail storefronts, even though that this industry was really built. On the sacrifices of these. Black and brown communities in the We Are, that isn't really reflected in the legal cannabis market. In Long Beach. And it's imperative that the cannabis. Equity members retain at least 51% of ownership and 51% of profit sharing in these new license types. So that way we don't. Undermine the definition of what social equity is in cannabis. And then also, you know, social equity member these retail outlets. Will allow. Retail channels and pipelines for social equity members who don't own retail outlets. Right now, a lot of the operators. Currently are fully vertical. So I think your next speaker is brave. Freeman. Hello, my name is Choreographers. I'd like to first start by taking the opportunity to thank the city staff, the council today for allowing me to speak. I am a long time cannabis. Enthusiast who is passionate about. Social equity as well as community redevelopment. As Long Beach resident, I have watched a person I call my brother struggle to enter the cannabis industry, even with the verified equity applicant paperwork provided by the city of Long Beach. I want to give credit to LBC, Triple C and other equity groups. For championing this issue. Brandon Bolton, who just spoke, and Edgar Cruz as many other diverse recognition for this tireless. Pursuit of this issue. I've seen hardworking man take ten steps back. Just. To assure that individuals like myself and others can even think of the opportunity of getting into the cannabis industry. As I am guided by the Cannabis Commerce Council of Long Beach. I would also urge the city to approve the recommendations to create more retail license opportunities. As we have seen, we have more dispensary storefronts being opened across the nation. We also see the legacy markets and communities of colors are being left out, which is unacceptable. Long Beach has the opportunity to show not just the city but the nation how to operate a successful social equity program. Thank you. Think your next speaker's brain is. I'd really be mayor, vice mayor and council members. My name is Brian, and I'm a. Cannabis entrepreneur here in Long Beach. And I'm just calling in support of eight new. Retail licenses. When the social equity program was created. By the time that happened, there was really the retailers were already at their. Capacity was. A lot of buzz out. And get this, you know, not included in this race. So I'm definitely in favor of adding new retail licenses. And I believe it'll enhance our economic inclusion and really give us a fighting chance in and competing with the current operators that seem to be advancing at a faster rate than we could. So yeah, I'm just trying to be supportive. And so. And so to our solidarity, you know, for our new licenses. Thank you. And your next speaker is Edgar Cruz. Good evening, councilmembers. My name is Cruz and I am the founder of the Cannabis Commerce Council of Long Beach, where we focus on kind of social equity within our jurisdiction. I'd like to start off by thanking Councilwoman Safety, Mongo, countryman Nelson and the staff for championing this agenda. Also like to thank the City Council, women and men, as well as Vice Mayor Richardson and McCarthy for your time and energy. As the gender 14 is very sacred and historic for some individuals, just like myself, as being an equity applicant. The first year it started, I was told I was in. I was able to create a cannabis business but unfortunately not create a dispensary just due to the opportunities lacking within our within our community. With the city having a cap of 32 dispensaries within the lottery process, basically created a block of any minorities dreamed of getting any retail space. While we see multiple private entity obtaining more licensing and opening up more shops, which is basically a big slap in the face to most individuals like myself and the communities of color as I fully support this motion. I will also say that there are more recommendations that need to be considered as well to assure the success of obtaining by licensing exclusively to social equity recipients as well. Just like my partner said, Brandon. 51% of equity ownership is very exclusive. And also the opportunity to, you know, give grant or loans when when it comes to real estate, because. I think your next speaker is James Marks. Hello. Yes, I'd like to thank. Councilman. Alston and Councilwoman Stacey Mongo for bringing. Forth this bill. What I want to talk about. Perspective. Imagine opening a lucrative store. Or brand. In which you've worked hard to. Build, and then now you've been targeted. By mass. Incarceration and your families destroyed. Beyond reconciling repair and that same product that you used as a survival mechanism. Is. Now a legal in enterprise in your community. And that has somewhat formed a monopoly and excluded you and others like you from your. Community, from participating in the growth and. Development of that in your own respective communities economy. So for over ten years, we have to deny not only ownership but also our opportunity of ownership. This is a ten year journey vision fight that many may not know about. But it has had weekly. Meetings, whether. Via Zoom, many. Airlines flight across the country in all 12 Los Angeles County. And we're still a block out of that market today. We're still being denied a basic human right. And that is the opportunity to become. Business owners. In our own community. Thank you, Councilwoman Sorrell. And my heart goes out to you and your community. I really not only understand. But I don't really understand. What's going to win. The face of racism rears its ugly head. It is something that. Think your next speaker is Julian Xavier. Good evening. To the mayor and to the city council. My name is Julian Xavier, representing me and my son who was an angel, Andre, as a verified social equity applicant. I'm here to discuss the city opening eight retail locations with social equity verified applicants. This is a great way for us to get into the industry with so many real estate hurdles along side with owners are still showing locations that are. Applicants have submitted initial applications and have not withdrawn. We are just like in a limbo and it's hard for us and we really need this to catapult us in to the next era of. Creating generational wealth, you know, is really hard for us. There's so much stacked against us. You know, we need this to just get in and help us help you get tax money to really take us to the next level in this community. As a Long Beach applicant, I'm telling you, it's a really hard fight and we really need. The city to look at applicants and applications who have been sitting there dormant, holding up locations. Right. And not moving forward. There's so much that's going on that we really need your help and we're here for the long haul. Some people are just here for a just a lunch meal, but we're here for the long haul to just. Create this generational wealth that we. Think your next speakers memorial burial. Great evening for giving glory and honor to God. Second, thank you, Mayor and Council, for opening the Florida comments. My name is Muriel Barrow, als o known as Mae Barrow, and I'm a verified social equity applicant, a mother of four and a cannabis company CEO. I was born and raised in Long Beach, where my immigrant, Filipino mother and my black father growing up in the projects, graduating from poly, then later on purchasing a home within the city. Needless to say, Long Beach is home. Currently I have a cannabis events license and have been in talks with the City of Long Beach regarding being allowed to host its first ever legal cannabis education fair where consumption is allowed, as well as seeking your approval to open a retail locations. After our conversations, I found out that over 30 dispensaries are allowed in Long Beach, yet none were social equity. This is very disheartening as there is nothing equal about this scenario. Today we have the opportunity to change that. Allowing these social equity retail licenses is a small step toward righting the decades worth of wrongs that the city and this war on drugs, a.k.a. the war on people, has done. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Nasreen Elahi. Hello, City Council. My name is a strange story and I'm a cannabis equity applicant. In 2018, the Cannabis Equity Program was designed to bolster opportunities for minority community members that were directly impacted by the war on drugs. Currently, equity applicants have no access to retail licenses. Applicants are still being shut out of the most significant revenue source of the cannabis economy. How does the cannabis equity program expect to give equal opportunities if equity applicants are missing from the most important and most financially accessible part of the cannabis industry? Opening eight new storefront licenses for equity applicants will help close the divide on economic exclusion. It will allow us to be a part of the new industry that is expected to grow to 35 billion by 2025, according to North Bay Business Journal. Giving equity applicants for these storefronts will allow us to boost our local economy and help close the economic divide that we are currently facing. As an equity applicant, I've experienced the frustration of red tape firsthand, knowing that I currently do not have the same opportunities in the new and complex industry of cannabis. As frustrating. My parents were immigrants who started a small business in Long Beach. I grew up watching my parents struggle, trying to make it out of economic oppression while cultivating community. The community is what kept us going. It gives us a space not just for retail, but a place where we create a family. While funding is a huge improvement for this program, inclusion in retail is the next step we need to make together. Allow us to be part of the industry that had originally targeted us. Help us to heal and bring us closer. Closer to closing the economic oppression and bondage allowed ink. Your next speaker is Miko Macias. Michael Macias. Our next speaker is Sherry Franklin. Hello. This is Sherry Franklin. Thank you, may or and council members. And thank you, council member Austin for your leadership. I represent Calvary Incubator with the largest cannabis incubator in the country, proving that social equity applicants can thrive. Hi. How's it going? My name is Mike. And give back to their community. We are also we have thinking Gro Lab, which provides technical assistance to organizations such as the Cannabis Coalition of Long Beach. And I so support the leadership of Edgar Cruz and Brandon Bolden. We should lift them up in their drive to make sure their social equity is available. When we do that, we improve our community, communities, economic empowerment. We help the small businesses, people buy homes when the licenses are not up and from our community they do not help recycle dollars, only provide the taxes. And that isn't a way to to improve a community. And also the pride of a community we found where social equity thrives, so does the community. And we urge you to support the eight additional licenses or more. And we applaud you for your leadership. Everyone is watching and we want to share how wonderful your leadership has helped move social equity forward. Thank you. Thank you. Our next speaker is Michael Macias. Hi. How's it going? My name is Michael Macias. I was born and raised in Long Beach, California. I now live in Sacramento, California. I'm actually. In huge support of this. Coming through. With our city. I have now seen many other cities that are starting to do the right thing and. Really have a stance and support system for the social equity programs coming out. Sacramento specifically has already. Moved. Towards a positive direction. As well. You know, they are giving. Social equity applicants ten dispensaries. So there's many other cities as well as the state. That's now moving, you know, has now opened up their own social equity. Section and everyone is just moving towards the support. I feel like Long Beach should. Also stand behind all of us and they should also show their support by opening the storefront section, which. We all know is a. Huge role in the cannabis industry. So my comment is just to support and say thank you to everyone that's working really hard on this. Thank you. Edgar. Thank you, councilman and councilwoman, for for doing this. And I really appreciate everyone and I hope you guys are. Able to make the right call and the right decision on this and show your support. I think that this city is a great city and I really love this city. I would love to see all these positive impacts happen. So if we can be in a. I think your next speaker, Stefan. With a rescue. Stefan Blatter rescue. Hi there. First, I'd like to take the opportunity to thank. City council today for allowing me to speak. My name is Justin Steel, and I have been a Long Beach resident all my life. I'm on the board of the. Cannabis Commerce Council of Long Beach, and as I see the city of Long Beach in the process of discussing more opportunities social equity

, storefront retail, licensing. I completely fully support this. Motion to approve and also go to take extra steps to ensure they can sustain. A successful cannabis business to begin with. There are many pathways the city can create to achieve these goals, and I urge that you make sure when having these. Discussions in regards to social equity, it's imperative that social equity recipients. Are at the table. In the state and nation needs to see a thriving, successful social equity program. And I truly. Believe, along with many others, that Long Beach is the perfect. Place. Providing retail store opportunity exclusively to social. Equity would be a vital asset for equity applicants. To continue becoming more part of an industry. The revolt revolves. Its marketing structure. And regular and regular regularities around minorities being in the cannabis. Industry. I really appreciate you. Guys only speak today and I truly want to thank everybody. Pushing this forward. All of the Long Beach community. Thank you. That concludes public comment for this item. Thank you. Let me go ahead and go back. So I'm going to go back to Councilman Mongo. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I really appreciate the community and all their comments. Many of you know that this item was heard before a committee that I have served on since 2014, in December, at which time the item I didn't get a lot of advance notice except for the general posting of the agenda, and I brought up some concerns at the time related to equity and some of the other opportunities that are available for community members to actually really build wealth. And what does that look like? And some of the conversations I had with cannabis. Dispensary owners in my district and in other cities and their experiences in how to learn and build wealth. And that was on a really sharp turn turnaround with a 72 hour posting. So when Councilmember Austin reached out to me, I thought, you know, this could go back to my committee now that I am chairwoman of economic development and finance. But I felt like it was really worthy of a city wide discussion. And I really appreciate Councilmember Austin for having the courage to stand up and bring it forward. There are other cities like ours. Sacramento was mentioned by one of the participants there of similar size 500,000 people. They have similar number of dispensaries. They currently have 30. And they are to considering an additional ten potential licenses because of the opportunity to really be serious about equity and put the communities that were most impacted first. And while we while it's easiest to move forward with delivery opportunities and the such, the wealth building opportunities are just not the thing. I really appreciate the plan put forward by the Long Beach Collective Association. While I connected with many of the members on their social equity committee, I was not able to fit in another agenda at a meeting with them yet, but I hope to meet with them later this wee

k. I really appreciated a lot of the things that they drew attention to. They talk about the business education and the revision of the point system. They talk about getting the Human Relations Commission involved in the revision. I think that all of these are really important because when we hear from our city staff and I know that the timing on the agenda item in December was also unfortunate. It was important, and I really appreciate the former chair bringing it forward because I was not aware that we were going to lose our our cannabis czar. AJ was a champion for the industry in the city and really knew and understood the details. And I felt in hindsight it was important to move forward on something related to equity before he exited the city and moved on to other opportunities. But that doesn't mean that we can leave well enough alone. We really need to address the opportunities. And like Councilmember Austin said, it's not I'm not sure where we go with how many, if it's one, if it's five, if it's eight. But I do know that one of the main things that we talked about when we talked about creating a cannabis ordinance way back when, before it went to the voters, was the concern that we had related to the number of dispensaries. And when that concern was brought forward by certain members of the Council, the response by many of the members of the council who sit here with us today was that if we have too few dispensaries, we're going to be looking at a a. More impact to the communities that have those dispensaries. And I am one of those districts. So we have several dispensaries in the district. And at some of those dispensaries it looks like it's Black Friday. Every single day the lines are around the building. There is not enough parking because even though the parking meets the city requirements, the volume and demand for cannabis is so high that when we add an extra hour, you directly see the revenue increase of those dispensaries. I've talked to some of those dispensary owners and of course, when we had an honest conversation, they're like, you know , giving up eight additional licenses or four additional licenses or who knows, 12 additional licenses means cutting into my profit share and my market. And, you know, I really talk a lot about the fear that the community had when we were adding a Starbucks and how that could disproportionately impact the grounds coffee shop and the coffee bean. But what we found was that both of those other coffee shops thrived more when another was introduced to the market because the real commitment to growing the customer base was there. And different customers have different needs and different stores function differently to reach out to and gain those customers. And I think that ownership that comes with equity is going to have a different perspective. And I think it's I said this in December, I can't remember it wasn't a meeting at the dais, but the fact that we had 200 applicants and only one made it to the finish line or the final stages means there's something wrong with the process. And I know I heard some individuals talk about the 51% ownership and 50% profitability. And when talking to some of the highest grossing cannabis dispensary owners, it's a really scary thought for them to. Invest a lot of their personal capital in an industry or a not an industry, an additional store that they would be a minority shareholder in. And so if you watch Shark Tank, you learn a lot about investment strategy and you often see that you can choose to be upfront 1% owner. Thank you. I'll finish the sentence and I'll be glad to pass it on. There are lots of businesses that say I want to own 51% of my company and that's the most important thing. But as Mark Cuban says, you can own 51% of a grape or you can partner with me and you can own 10% of the ocean because the amount of money you can make, if properly partnered with a person who really knows the industry, the possibilities are endless. So while I would like 51% to stay with equity, I don't necessarily. Feel like we know that the best route is that all 51% needs to be owned by one person. There might be strategies that we could implore to make five or six millionaires out of a partner. So I really appreciate and want to hear from my colleagues and I want to continue to hear from the industry and what they've learned. And I want to continue to hear from the communities that are near these cannabis dispensaries, because they're the ones that feel very strongly that more are needed so that their communities could get a break from the parking challenges that come with the number of customers that some of these very successful cannabis operators, despite their amazing community resilience and their partnership with the communities, but what they could look at, they could do together. So thank you so much. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. I don't have any other councilmembers cued up right now. We went through public comment, so I'm going to go ahead and call for a roll call vote. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So I'll queue up a few times because I think there I have a lot of questions about people. So I've been an advocate for this for a long time. I know the timeline was presented today. It started in January. This goes actually this goes back pretty far. And so I want to start and ask some questions. I'll just clarify the record here. So, Tom or Kevin, can you walk us through the timeline of cannabis equity since this issue was brought up last summer during the reconciliation process? Walk us through what took place. Yes, Vice Mayor, I'll start and Kevin can jump in. This started back in July, I believe, of 2020, where there was a request to really look at what are some of the options for cannabis equity. We came back with a memo outlining some of those options in August, and that kind of started the ball rolling. We looked at shared use manufacturing, we looked at equity ownership. We also looked at delivery only. This then had some further discussion at Economic and Development and Finance Committee, and then that is the motion that was forwarded to the Council in January 5th, I believe, where we kind of outlined a number of the pros and cons to each of those strategies, talked a little bit about some of the staff time it takes to do those types of work. And then the council ultimately approved the two items that was part of our current work plan. And then, of course, if we're looking to add anything else, we'd have to figure out how that fits into our work plan just with the amount of staff that we do have. All right. So the motion in July was that a staff recommendation was a council recommendation. And do you know do you know that you have. In July was account's recommendation? Right. So that was a council recommendation that I made with Councilman Austin, Councilman Andrews as cosigners on that item with Councilmember Pierce. And what it expressed, what it requested was it said the cannabis equity program is not doing the right things, it's not delivering. Began the process of starting and evaluating the program. Now find out if there needs to be a ballot measure because there was a question on whether or not because it was originally established by a ballot measure, where do we need it to go to the ballot? That's what initiated this conversation. The report came back and said, You do not need to go to the ballot on recreational, not medicinal, and came back with a recommendation to start with shared use and delivery and do more research on brick and mortar because of a number of factors. Now, city manager staff recommended to go with brick and mortar. I mean, to go with delivery and shared use first. What was that based on? Why did staff recommend that? Yeah, I'll have Kevin Jackson answer that, please. Sure. Yeah. Thank you, Vice Mayor. So the recommendation. So, again, just

to paraphrase, we. All three options were under consideration. The recommendation to move forward with shared use, development of a shared use manufacturing ordinance and the feasibility study on the delivery only license type was to try to provide an immediate opportunity to facilitate access to equity ownership, because these two license types actually require less capital and they're less complex to develop while all of them are complex to develop in terms of regulations and programming, these were the least complex and require the least capital and provided a lower barrier to entry for equity owners than the dispensary retail option. So the dispensary retail option was among the three. But we prioritize the other two because we felt like they gave us an immediate opportunity to provide some opportunities for equity ownership while still pursuing the third option with retail dispensaries in the future. Okay. Thank you. So you brought up there was a 15 minute presentation about the barriers to brick and mortar. And we acknowledge I remember push you in saying, well, you know, we need to make some time for this now. I'll get to that. We need to make sure we sort of get there and address this. So the idea was staff recommend it be that these we can do today we can do this today, but we need a little bit more time on the others. So we recommended to move forward with those. So I want to know so I want to know about some of those barriers. Some of the things that were raised were concerns about the prices to get in the market of a lack of examples of cities who got it right, a lot of predatory practices, a lot of, you know, things that that you really don't want in the neighborhood. Right. So there were a lot of barriers. Can you walk us through a few of those barriers that staff stood tall and said, these are the issues that we really need to make sure we get right. What are some of those barriers? Yeah. So what, what we found in just monitoring what's happened in some of the other jurisdictions throughout California where they've applied a cap and reserved an absolute number of licenses for four equity applicants, is that there has not been a lot of success in maintaining those equity applicants once they actually get a license. And so the what we found is that there are partnerships that have been formed with investors that begin with the equity applicant having a majority ownership, 51% or more ownership. But then shortly thereafter, these equity applicants are not either in the majority ownership or they're no longer in the ownership structure at all. And so what it amounts to is there are multiple instances in multiple cities where just investors have employed predatory practices and taken advantages, taking advantage of equity applicants. And so while we've been keeping an eye on this and looking at this option, because we do believe it's a viable option for us to look at, we just recognize that it's very complex and will require some feasibility analysis and analysis for us to understand how to address that issue so that equity applicants are not taken advantage of when we do put a process in place. Right, it's been 5 minutes great that great are cued up again and my next in line where. Actually have another person, and then you're up after that. Okay, great. I'll come back. Got a lot of questions. A lot of good facts need to come out in this discussion, so I'm just gonna keep doing this. Keep it going. Thanks, councilman. Councilman. Mongo. Thank you. I'm glad this is a good break so we can have a good dialog here. Mr. Richardson So we did talk about less complex and how delivery is less complex. At that point. I kind of brought up that there are also other delivery models that really support franchising so much better. We have not yet tackled the same thing that we did for like the Yelp and the delivery models for our restaurants, for the big owner in the market. Right. The the £5,000 gor illa is really weakness and their barrier to entry and ownership of that market. One of the things I think is really amazing about the language cannabis growth is that a majority of the owners, at least in my district, they're all Long Beach residents. Right. So when you want someone to really invest in equity, their likelihood of picking up another Long Beach person. It's a market they know well. Some of our Long Beach cannabis owners also are breaking into other cities. And so that really allows them to grow their market. But they also feel that there's opportunity still in Long Beach. So some of those owners I've encouraged to join, I'll be seeing not all of them have. Some have been before and then they aren't. And there's all sorts of dynamics of that. But I know that it's really important to listen to stuff recommendations. And Kevin and I have talked about it many, many times and sometimes very excitedly. But you, Mr. Richardson, led last week on an item where we rejected the staff's recommendation. And I think that it's important that when an item such as equity is so important, that it be able to come back. Even when the staff are leveraged. I know that you and I agree on this, and we brought many items to the city manager and there was just not enough time and not enough resources. And then many of those things, especially with the digital divide and now Senator Gonzalez was on a lot of those items with us. They became a top priority once Coburn was here, but there was never enough resources to make those shifts. And how do we done those things and how do we push staff when we knew we were in a position to do that and we were excited about those items, we would have been so much farther along in the digital divide by the time Cogan got here. And so as I see these other cities moving forward on equity, I just want to make sure that we're still at the table. So that wasn't what I had originally planned to say, but you had such great comments. I just wanted to kind of add on to that. Thank you. Thank you. I think it comes from Mango. I have basically Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Just be clear. I have a number of questions for staff. I'll get my opinions. I'll get my opinions later. I want to see this happen. I just don't want to mislead the community as if this thing started in January. I don't want to raise until the expectations about if you get it. All we have to do is pick a number. We would have picked the number. This was about going through the process of doing the right place. We have some integrity about the process. A couple of questions. So. So, Kevin. Kevin, you mentioned those barriers. Now, has the landscape changed at all from January when this council voted unanimously, including Councilman Austin Mango voted unanimously on the recommendation? Has the landscape changed from January to today? Around some of those concerns, other concerns going away. No. Those are still very real concerns that we'll have to grapple with in the feasibility analysis whenever we get to it. The only thing that's that's changed a little bit is, you know, we're just we're further along on the initiatives that council gave us direction to work on. And so those initiatives are currently underway, which is the development of the shared use manufacturing ordinance and the feasibility analysis on the delivery only license type. Right. So. So what we set out and said was we're going to phase. Just want to start with the easier things. We started in January. Where are you with those two easier things? The particularly shared use and delivery. Are we close to delivering those? So we do have a workplan for those two items. And in those work, plans are underway. I'm going to ask Emily Armstrong, our new cannabis program manager, to to to share information on kind of where we are with the current status of those initiatives. Okay. Before we do that report, I kind of manage this five minute clock a little bit. There was a statement that what the council did was send the brick and mortar to the abyss. That was the language that was, you guessed it. OC Was was there a reference to six months and six coming back within six months in the Economic Development Committee recommendation was that reference that city council. The reference to six months was was actually a part of the motion. The Ely and F Economic Development Finance Committee motion. The the recommendation at council. The motion that was approved only included the the the direction to move forward with the preparation of the shared use manufacturing ordinance and to conduct the delivery only feasibility analysis. There was some discussion at the meeting that indicated that that described the conversations in the motion that happened at EDI and F, but the six month reference was not in the council motion. It was in the EDI and F motion. Right. Right. So that's not the abyss. Staff said, Hey, we got to do this 1/1. We need more direction on some very key deliverables. Like how many dispensaries? How are you going to protect it from, you know, some of these predatory practices and starting the work plan? So we said, okay, do the easy stuff now and come back now. I have to say, if there were concerns about the six month, they're not coming back within six months. I would have accepted a motion to make it three or whatever it was. But the only friendly amendment that was offered was not from Councilman Austin, was not from Councilmember Mango. It was from Councilmember Sara. She talked about the loophole, the gaping loophole in our program that needed to be corrected and that anybody who's unemployed in our city, no matter what district you're from, from any district in the city, any community, if you're unemployed, you are considered an equity applicant. Now, that loophole was inserted into this process by Councilmember Mango. I vocally opposed it. I voted against it. And what ultimately happened was I had a meeting where there wasn't a full city council. Councilmember Mango, supported by Councilman Alston, inserted that loophole that effectively gutted our cannabis equity ordinance. Councilmember Sorrow. Fix that in January. If there were a friendly amendment to say, I'm uncomfortable with six months, how about we phase it in three months? How about we do explore these factors now? We would have expected, except that I think it's just important that people understand that there were concerns, there was a whole discussion and this was not some big industry thing about we want to do this, we want to do that. I thought it was a healthy discussion of council, so I'm probably at my 5 minutes, but I actually have I have some recommendations that will make it better. And I have just a few more kind of questions that I want to I want to get to. So I just cued up again about my 5 minutes. I just had a timer. I want to do this, Mr. Mayor. Okay. I have two other folks queued up right now. Johnson, Austin. Thanks. So cannabis has been a long policy and complicated policy for many years. Been on the council since 2012. And when I first got on this council, there was a ban in place. The ban actually went in place a week before I joined the council and we went through those machinations. We are now at a place where cannabis is a legal commodity. We have storefronts opening it and the fact is that people are still excluded from owning retail storefronts. My item actually addresses that and gives clear direction and shows that this council is is committed truly committed to two to equity. We can filibuster this all night long and go through the revisionist history of cannabis policy in Long Beach. I don't think that's necessary, Mr. Richardson. I think with any policy on any given Tuesday, we can come back and clean up correct and give clear direction for staff, and that is the intent. This evening, again, I spoke when this item came in January, on January 5th. I spoke and I have my concerns. And and I did ask that regarding the items that we were looking at in terms of delivery services and shared manufacturing. I asked if this was excluded exclusively for social equity qualified candidates in the response was no. So anybody would be qualified for to use those. And so so the difference in what we're trying to do this evening is clear for exclusively. It's an exclusive policy exclusively for social equity qualified candidates. Stop mention that we decided to move with the less complex, the less in the in the direction that will require less capital, which assumes a lot about the applicants. But it also says that that we are we're saying that if you're socially if you're a social equity candidate, that you're going to make less profits and you're going to be in the less profitable areas of the cannabis industry. And I think that's the wrong message to send tonight. And then another question is regarding the investors. One thing that we did not do and we still don't do, it doesn't matter if it's a cannabis business or if it's a pizza place. The city council does not get involved in who's investing, right? Where's your money coming from? Right. I mean, we have done that for every every every every applicant. You know, I think we were probably been it would have been very alarming. Investors come in and people can invest in businesses. And we should we should encourage that. But we should encourage minorities. We should encourage young black entrepreneurs, young Latino entrepreneurs, young young people of color to get involved, particularly in this industry. And so I understand, you know, you may have some recommendations. I like to help the conversation, but I mean, at the end of the day. And I know you were a champion for equity. This is about ownership equity in the cannabis retail space. I hope you can support this. Thanks. I think it. Councilmember Vice Mayor Richardson. All right? Yeah, I'm just trying to land this plane the right way. So the issue here is that it's been the framing. Number one, the frame is off. You're right. Ask for equity, and I want to get there as soon as possible. I also want to make sure we consider we you know, we go through the process that and consider some of those risks we talked about. And staff should be studying that and evaluating that. So my question for staff is based on based on what it requires to get to cannabis ownership for brick and mortar, what are the next steps required? What would you recommend? Are the next steps required? That's where. That's where Mr. Mulder go. Yeah, I'll take it. Okay. Smart. So, you know, we need it. We need it. We need a licensing process in order to to facilitate access to equity ownership, access to brick and mortar dispensary facilities. And so we need an opportunity to study that and and develop the appropriate regulations and programs and programing to to facilitate that. The but I will say that capital is, you know, having enough capital to actually invest in an equity business or start up an equity business or start up a cannabis business, I should say I'm sorry, is, is, is the number one issue. And so if you want to start up a brick and mortar dispensary business, you know, from what we've what we've learned, it's at least $1,000,000 to do that. Some of these the level of investment to start up, some of these smaller scale businesses like that are related to shared use and delivery. Only the capital requirements are less. And so it just provides more of an opportunity, an immediate opportunity. Right. Right. I get that. And we did that. Are very devoted on that. I'm talking about with House of Mouse milestones. Really try and get to here. I think, you know, there was a floor in the motion in January. I wish you would have brought it up in January, but it didn't in any given Tuesday. These things can come up absolutely right. My concern is that we're not overcommitting or promising things or making promises not rooted on data or science or any kind of best p ractice. So I want to just get to what steps needs to start from now. So sort of so what would be involved in this in this effort? And this is similar to the other efforts. So we're going to have to do a regulatory analysis. And in this particular instance, the in order to create additional dispensary licenses, they're more likely going to have to be adult use only licenses and not dual license like the other 32. Because in order to create additional licenses for medical dual lights were meant for for medical the it would right the the voter approved initiative it would have to go to the voters to do that. So. So that's that's one issue. We have to develop the application and licensing process, which will be very involved is, you know, if you can recall, we just got to the point where we're nearly done issuing all of the 32 licenses from the from the initial dispensary process. And so that process was very involved in this. One will be two, particularly if there's going to be a cap and a resident reservation for equity. So we'll have to develop the appropriate application and licensing process for that. We were we would also be benchmarking the other cities. We've done some analysis of some of the other cities and the lack of success and relative success they've had in this area. We understand that there are some issues with with predatory practices. So we would want to to make sure whatever we create here, that we create something that works and that we resolve that issue and that we don't experience the issues that are happening in some of the other cities. So as part of the benchmarking study and looking at the other cities more closely, we would get a better understanding of what we need to do to address that issue. We also, because we're talking about equity is critically important and we're already doing this with the other initiatives, and we would do that with this one as well, is making sure that we are reaching out to the the community, those who are concerned about equity and making sure that we're taking and collecting that input so that it informs the development of the regulations in the program and also reaching out to the industry as well. We'd also do an examination of all the resources that would be required to implement the the the new licensing program. So in general of that takes about how much time, I would say. So figure that out. So if we were doing this. Six months at the committee, does it really take six months? And six months have already gone in January? At least for how long does it take you to get it done? If if if we and I want to mention that we're going to be doing this with with nine departments. So this is not just the city management practice. This this this work impacts the nine other departments. And so, you know, we have to evaluate the the workload of all the other departments in the context of everything that's going on in the city. So so that's an element of it as well. But I would say that if we were i f we were doing this work in isolation of anything else, it like, say, if we put the other initiatives on hold and we did this in isolation of everything else, we could probably get this work done in 90 days. Okay. All right. Now we got a number, and I wouldn't want you to stop what you're currently doing. I think. I think the goal here is that was left out. We got to include that. It realistically takes 90 days to do it. So this is. Okay. That's good to know. And so 5 minutes I cued up again. Okay. Okay. I'll be in my next mayor. No, we have accounts. I'll come back. Yeah. Well, I'm still trying to wait for this plane to land. And, you know, it's been a long night. You want to. I just want to finish. With a good discussion. Good discussion. And I think one of the questions that that was also asked is how has the landscape changed between January and today? And we just had a report earlier, about $235 million of economic relief coming to the city. And part of that is cannabis start startup could go toward economic development for cannabis startups. And so I think the landscape has significantly changed since January, number one, and we need to keep that in mind. And that should be part of a driver here to move forward on equity ownership in in cannabis retail space. And so I wanted to make sure I got that point in our. Mr. RICHARDSON Vice Mayor, because you again, have been involved with our Edendale economic development base. To me, I'm kind of befuddled as to why we this is this is even more of an exercise right now. This should be something that this council should be jumping at doing, considering all that we have been through, considering the goals of our racial equity and reconciliation process, understanding that we have a mission and a in any charge to deliver equity for all our constituents. And so that I would I would ask that, you know, again, I'm glad we're doing kind of. I was going to ask the city manager and to put a timeline on this to me 90 days. And if I can amend my initial motion to include that this return to the council in 90 days. And just for clarification, I'll read with the motion this request that the city manager include up to eight new storefront retail licenses in the feasibility analysis that is being prepared for the Long Beach Cannabis Equity Program right in there. And secondly, we define that, that it should be exclusively for socially social equity qualified candidates, and they should have at least 51% interest in the business. I think that's pretty clear. You know, what we're talking about is an analysis and including this in the study that's concurrently underway, currently underway to to allow social equity for delivery services as well as shared use manufacturing that's able. Vice Mayor Richards didn't. Thank you. Is the five minute process. When when this discussion started, we didn't have these rules. You can get all your questions answered at once and then land the plane. But this is the rules from us. S

o. All right. So, you know, I don't want to filibuster, but when we put the. Rules in place because of one. Long council meeting. Right. Some things require conversation. If there was more conversation, we wouldn't have a lot of dispensaries concentrated in my neighborhood and certain areas of town. We should have put more consideration. You know, there was a vote when we talked about one four district years ago. You voted against that motion, one per district. That's what triggered this to go to the ballot. And we lost all the control here. But I just want to I just want to finish. So I agree that things have changed when we made this decision on the fifth of a six month phase, it may not make sense. When we made this decision back on January 5th, we were at the height of a pandemic. We couldn't think about opening stores or restaurants, and everybody was literally potete protest. And at the time there was a lot of drama going on. Couldn't think about that. Also, a number of cities attempted this across California. It failed. So I want to make sure we get the program right. I've said that from beginning this motion today. I get it. It's political theater. But that doesn't change my position that these things need to be done the right way. I don't want to see you know, I don't want to make ourselves risk, you know, increase the risk of exploitation. Somebody in my community get a license. They're moved out six months from them. I want to make sure that it's tight if the goal is to explore and to provide cannabis entrepreneurs opportunities. But I open up brick and mortar I support that is built on a solid foundation. That's that's what needs to happen. So there are a number of points that we need to decide on as a council. So, one, how do we make sure the system is fair and balanced for local people? I got letters from Sacramento, Oakland, all these people. Why are they so interested in Long Beach opening up their dispensary business? No. You know, I'm not getting a lot of like residents reaching out to me, saying, you know, hey, this is this is what I'm not getting that I'm not really here. So I'm going to make sure the local residents who want to do it get a fair shot of doing it. So the motion in January wanted a more full evaluation. It was clear that we need three months to make that happen. Sounds like you're amenable to keeping that in. You're making that a part of your your motion sounded like it sounded like that, so I'm good with that. So what's the timetable of six months? So I'm going to offer to friendly members here. Councilman Austin one of them is in addition to the 30, the 90 days. So one, I want to make sure that we're setting aside the funds. We made a motion at the recovery during the recovery discussion to identify economic empowerment zones. A strategy within that that's called out is to build a local pipeline, an actual local pipeline, so local people can get in Q and go through the process and get a preference for local pe ople to actually land these licenses. And so I'm offering a friendly amendment that or I can just substitute it, but I can offer a friendly amendment that we begin this pipeline and make that a part of this process, a local ground up pipeline. So local people have an opportunity to get into this. I'm I'm okay with that. Right. All right. I would make sure that pipeline is connected to this economic empowerment zones. People north central west Long Beach. So need those opportunities. So absolutely sure that will work. All right. And you know, and just to be clear, I'm asking these questions I need to ask. You know, I don't have to control everything related to equity. The hope was at some point the political support would change. So if this is an issue you want to take on and lead on support, you can take this run with not a big deal, but we're going to have to make sure it's real. So my next amendment, the reality is we need to you cannot invest. You're not can't talk about cannabis equity without talking about the fact that we're not investing the resources from the cannabis industry back into the community, that we're impacted by the war on drugs. This has been something I brought up from the very beginning. It's something we need to do. Councilmember Mongo It's been on the Budget Oversight Committee, the current chair. I want to add to my motion a recommendation to make sure that we invest 50% of proceeds from the cannabis industry back into these communities and back into you. I think it's shameful that we are not investing cannabis dollars into youth in our city. This has been an issue we've invested in and public safety. We've been generous in homelessness and we're not investing youth or back into the communities impacted. So I'm offering you a friendly amendment to and you can take the committee and work on it. You can take the committee work on it. I want you to take that on the side of the cannabis dollars. I love to do that, to commit to that, but I'm not going to accept that as a friendly at this point because it really has nothing to do with the equity program. It has nothing to do with the motion right now. How about we do this? We are connected with you. How about 100% of the proceeds that are generated from any new cannabis business, new cannabis business, any brick and mortar, any delivery, any share you get back invested into our communities. That means our impact if you accept that and run. I think there's a fair amount. I will accept there, too. All right, Councilman Austin, I'm happy to support this motion. Thank you. I'm glad we got there. It takes time. This one we. Learned. Are we on the runway? I wish you would have just said this two months ago, but you're welcome to have the conversation, because when I look over here, you're up next. I think that the community should be really proud that there are so many people that care about equity and it doesn't have to be one over the other. It doesn't have to be all of the quote unquote, filibustering and political theater. I think that we as a council are fortunate to have multiple champions of equity, and I think that that's important in a city. I think that any issue that only has one champion doesn't thrive in the same way. So I want to be supportive of that. I will ask Councilmember Austin to really seriously consider taking that to your committee. When you talk about revenue, I have worked really hard and it is the same thing I said to Councilmember Richardson a few weeks ago on a different item. I worked really hard to get restricted funds in place and the city has some really significant fiscal policy reasons why they have not existed in the past. Specifically, it was related to a discussion that also talked about creating false hope for a community, specifically youth. And if we need to revisit those policies of the city, then let's do that. Let's not break off one agenda item after another, agenda item after another agenda item where we're moving in that direction when staff have made a strong recommendation against it and we have fiscal policies against it. So I'm I've been a supporter of restricted funds from the beginning. You're going to hear me champion that. I would be happy to do it at economic development, oversight, economic development and finance, as the mayor was so gracious to add in revenue creation and revenue grants to our committee charter when we were recreated in this news cycle . So I'd be happy to help with that because I do believe that and I've said this before, Bill Fujioka was a CEO of L.A. County and a champion of a lot of great things. And one of them is you eat what you kill. If something's bringing in the revenue, it should get a bite to invest back into that industry. That group that that that investment I believe in doubling down in the way that when you when you're making some money you pay down your mortgage if you can. So we need to make those investments that I feel very strongly about it. But I do feel that this will be multiple times in just the first 12 weeks of the year, nine council meetings that we are trying to go around, a policy that we have. So let's just be honest about it. Let's bring that policy to the council. Let's discuss it on where it doesn't doesn't make sense. I think it's a great conversation to have also with the discussion earlier related to the mention of our fees and our programs and and how those restricted funds can be put back into those communities . And I think they're really important things to do. So thank you for that. I also want to there was a comment made earlier about me gutting this policy, and I really just don't like that characteristic. I want to think doctor sorrow because I feel that the time had definitely changed from where we were with record unemployment rates in the city and quite frankly, not a lot of interest from local residents to to become equity applicants and furthermore, their ability to make it to the finish line. I mean

, I appreciate what Mr. Austin said related to. I'm just assuming that they don't have the capital to to get into the brick and mortar ownership side. So I feel that on a weekly basis, I'm learning and I appreciate the comments from Councilman Zoro several weeks back. And I didn't think the time had come to change that. So thank you for that. And I hope that we as a council can continue to learn from each other and lift each other up and support each other, even when it means changing policies or agenda items or council decisions. That happened just a few weeks prior because I can't remember who said it. But yes, every single Tuesday we can make a change. We can write a policy or a process this week and next week decide that that that's not the process for us, because sometimes the constituencies haven't had a chance to voice their opinion. And I think that that circles back to something I've really been hammering with the city manager's office. And I know Councilmember Ortega is a big supporter of this, but communication to our community about all of our strategies and all of our agenda items needs to be timely and in every language, because there are lots of communities that are impacted by this that are not hearing this council meeting tonight in the language of their choice. And the agenda item was not written in the language of their choice, and we need to be very cognizant of that. So thank you for everyone who contributed to this, and thank you all for having the courage to bring it forward. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilman Sorrell. Well, I want to thank everyone for such a robust conversation again about cannabis equity and inclusion. And I definitely want to I appreciate the questions getting clarified because I was a little bit I needed clarification on why this was coming back. So before that and I was able to do the report back and I do want to lift up that. You know, I think it's really important that there is a healthy business process for a process and opportunities. Right. But the thing about this, the heart of this equity program is protecting those who have been victims and criminalized because of the war on drugs. And I want to make sure that there is already a disadvantage point in where we're trying to bring it back to a level of an even playing field. So that that, I believe, is our job as council member, that we want to make sure there is inclusion, that we prevent further exploitation. And, you know, especially those who have been victim mines by criminalization of the war on drugs. So that is why I think that for me, it's really important that we take the time to do this right and that we do it thoughtfully, given the study that's been done prior. Right, many months ago that's been shared. So that's kind of where I'm at on this, is that I just I want to make sure it's done right no matter how many license we have. Right. It could be maybe ten. It could be five. That's not important. What is important is certain. I mean

, certainly the numbers are important, but I think what's important right now is that we do a good process to ensure there's equity inclusion of the applicants. Right. So so I'm happy the ten. I'm happy of eight. And that's that my focus right now. I'd like to hear more about how we can do it. Right. So that's kind of where I'm at and appreciate the conversation that we ever had to kind of come to the plane being land. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Allen. I'm the mayor. Yes. I also support the robust. Ah. Appreciate the robust conversations. We our office has heard from a lot of our cannabis cannabis folks tonight about the importance of equity, access and support for future licenses. And retail licenses are really the crown jewel to the social equity question, and currently there aren't any storefront licenses available to social equity applicants. So I do want to thank everyone who wrote letters and who spoke tonight earlier. I will be supporting this item and support, supporting and specific funding for equity. Thank you. Mayor. Mayor, this is Kevin. Can I can I make a quick clarification on the on the timeframe? Sure. Let me. But I. Sure, go ahead. I have more speakers, but we can do it now. Sure. Okay. Yeah, I'll just. I'll grab a quick. So I just want to clarify the 90 days. So when I spoke about the 90 days that I said that if we were to stop working on the other items and to focus on this particular item, we could probably get it done in 90 days. So if if we were to have 90 days from today to do the feasibility analysis on the storefront licenses, it would impact the other items. It would it would basically it would probably prevent us from working on the other items. It would prevent us working on the items. So if we're going to move forward with this, I think the ideal and we want to keep the other initiatives going. I think the the the timing that would work for us is if we could bring this back in September. Our current work plan for the other items is to provide the come back to Council on the Shared Use Manufacturing Ordinance in June and then shortly thereafter in July, bring the delivery only feasibility analysis back to council. So roughly, you know, 90 days, a little more than 90 days, 90 days from mid-June. We we could we could get it done, get the feasibility analysis done on the storefront license type in that. That brings us to about mid-September. Okay. Thank you very much, Councilman Ringo. Thank you, Mayor. And I agree that this was quite a robust, informative, clarifying. And eventually unifying discussion to to where we got to. Yes. And so I will be supporting the motion table. And I want to agree with I mean, truly sorrow is the newest council member here basically and well, are with Cindy, of course. So, I mean, they both of you bring these different perspectives to an item that we had been discussing since since I got on the council in 2014. And it was at at that point very contentious and very a lot of debate. An

d so to get to this point where we are now, I think it speaks volumes about this city council, about our abilities to listen and and weigh each other's opinions and then come to a come to an agreement as to where we should be. I want to thank staff for their patience, if you will, with us. But then they get paid for it. So that's what they're supposed to do. But they're also listening, which is great, because that's what we need. We need a staff that is not going to be pushing back. We need a state that's going to be working with us to get these policies in line to where they should be. So I am totally in agreement with the with the item on the table. Thank you. Councilwoman has a. Thank you, Mayor. And I, too, agree with Councilmember Dunga. I'm very happy that we have finally landed at a place where we can unify and support this item. I am obviously a big supporter of cannabis equity and not only in my district, but city wide. I think that that is very, very important. I think it is our obligation as city leaders to really always have that, as you know, in our forefront as we move forward through through even through this recovery plan, we really need to focus on being able to give those opportunities and really making sure that we help issue some of these equitable licenses to those black and brown communities that really, really need it and that I know will thrive because they have our support. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Just wanted to chime in now that we've got it worked out, we've heard from the rest of the council. I think, you know, I think it's the right I think it's the right motion where we are. I would hope that in the future we just work together on these issues. We are districts border by one street. You know, we've had these conversations in the past. This is an open invitation. I care about equity issues. I don't need to be as involved in every single one of them. I welcome more involvement. And so my hope is we don't have a moment like this again, like healthy discussion. I love the council days and healthy discussion. Back when Steve Neal Reagan-Bush were on the council, they would spend an hour on an issue and die. I mean, it's hard to do in this virtual format. These are big, big issues. And I just want to make sure that what we do is sincere and we get it right. So, Councilman Austin, good. Good luck. I'm happy to support it. I want to make sure sincere we do it right and we create some real opportunities for people. What I wouldn't want to see is for the program to say, you know, and you know how proud I am talking about award winning programs. I want this one of those more permanent programs. Councilman Austin So that's really my sincere hope is that we really can kind of work together on these issues that jointly uplift the communities that we both serve. So thanks a lot. Happy to support the motion tonight. Councilman Austin. Thank you. And I want to appreciate all of my colleagues for their comments and your insight. Providing it to this. I think everybody is is certainly sincere in their wishes to get us to a place where more business is more equitable. This particular in particular cannabis is more equitable in our city. I know I'm sincere. I would not have brought this forward if it weren't for my sincerity in terms of working together. You mentioned we love that it's difficult to do this in a virtual space. You know, I tried to get us together a couple of weeks ago. You guys push back on that. And so we're here in a virtual space. But I do think we'll be together soon in the council chambers and be able to collaborate in person at some point in the very near future. Again, I do appreciate the support. I really appreciate the the comments coming from the public. I know there's a lot of young people, there are a lot of individuals who have waited with their ticket and have been quiet for many years now about the opportunity to do this. And and, you know, it's 810 or new new licenses. It's going to be a competitive process. And we understand that as well. And yes. Or a step is a is a is a great step. We've got a great team here. I know that they'll be able to get this done in a timely manner and I expect that to happen. Thank you. I'm ready to go to both. Okay. Thank you, Councilman Austin. I think that we're all ready to jump off the plane or something without a parachute, at least in my case. And so when I would go ahead and go to a vote and thank you all for the discussion. Councilman in Dallas. Thank you, Mayor. And happy pride, everyone. I just wanted to say that I know that me is Pride Month here in Long Beach, and unfortunately we are celebrating it differently this year, but it's still something very important to celebrate. I think then it's just super important to be able to celebrate it, especially during these times. One of the things that I'm super excited to do is to partner up with Safe Spaces Alliance, and I'm just going to give them the rest of my time to do a brief presentation on something that I'm very, very proud to support. Think you. Thank you, Councilwoman Zendejas and everyone, we just wanted to share with you a little bit about our Safe Spaces alliance. After the Rainbow Tower burned, we wanted to reassure our LGBTQ plus community and visitors that they're safe and they're welcome here. So we created the Safe Spaces Alliance. We reached out to the Long Beach, LGBTQ plus Chamber of Commerce and also the LGBTQ center, Long Beach, for their support, as well as Councilwoman Sun House. And we launched our video campaign about two weeks ago, and we've gotten a really amazing positive response. Over 45 businesses have already taken the pledge. And we have a short video, just a compilation that we'd like to show. Hi. My name is Carla Stories and I am the director of the LGBTQ Center in Long Beach for us here at the LGBTQ center, what's important is to become part of the Safe Space Alliance and really embody the You Are Welcome Here initiative because it is important for members of our communities young and. Not in. Thinking that we are part of the fabric of Long Beach, where everywhere and we need to feel safe being ourselves in a variety of. Different numbers. The video is playing at home, but. The center will be working with employers to help provide tools on how they can become more affirming and welcoming, or don't see it on the online screen as employee masks as well as serving the community at large. So anyone who's interested, stay tuned because more information is coming. You're welcome here. Ira MGM. And I. Patrick Vieira on what is a specialty coffee shop, the Cafe Natural Organic Wine Bakery here in Long Beach. We are really, really clear and we just want to let everybody know that you are welcome here. Hello. My name is genuinely I'm the owner of Fluffy Snowballs. We are the first specialty quick service restaurant in Long Beach that sells authentic. New Orleans snowballs. I am a member of the LGBTQ idea and I want you to know that you are welcome. You are welcome. Here. Lovely snowballs. Man trying to find one of the owners here or the horseman or sitting in the dark area, which is dark reality that. Behind us right before. Do we, our friends or allies? We are employers. Who want everyone to know Iraq. Everybody. It's a stubborn president. Long Beach, LGBTQ plus Chamber of Commerce. You provide education. To show you how you can win big business with big corporations. We provide networking and promotion to make sure you get the visibility you need. We provide advocacy and inclusivity. We advocate for you and we try to include all of us and the friendship and community. This is a small community and we like to lift each other up. Here in Long Beach, we think it's important to make sure that you feel comfortable in your own city. And we want to make sure that, you know, you are welcome here. Hey, everybody

y, at Jones and Hamburger Mary's. And we want you. To know that you are welcome. Here in the LBC. We love you, baby. That's when the video is over. Thank you. Thank you very. Much for. That video. I think that was such a beautiful video. Great job. I'm so excited. It just warms my heart. But would you do you have any closing remarks? Oh, well, we just wanted to say that the reason why we did this, because we do want people to feel comfortable in Long Beach and physically. Long Beach is a nonprofit organization. And what we do is we want people when they come here, to feel comfortable, especially their LGBTQ visitors. We want them to have inclusive, safe experiences here. And we will we do we do fundraising so that we can give back to our community. So we're hoping to get the city's support to make this a citywide initiative. Thank you. Thank you so much, both of you. I'm super excited about this. And I can't wait to see these flags just plastered throughout our city. And and just for us to really, really send a clear message out there that you are welcome here in Long Beach. Things got repriced. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I wanted to echo the comments of Councilman Zane de Haas. Thank you for allowing me to sign on to this item. I really wish we had the this is actually the second year that we're having to really change the way we celebrate pride and change the activities of the city. And if you would have asked me last year, I would have never thought it would be two years. So I'm really grateful for everything that you guys are doing to keep just inclusive inclusivity and diversity and acceptance and love at the forefront of all of our minds. And thank you, Councilwoman Zendejas, for bringing this item forth. Thank you, Councilman Alamo. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I absolutely love this item. And and thank you, Councilwoman Sun Hoss, for highlighting just the great work safe spaces. I know that the burning of our pride tower was just shocking and painful, and our community is still recovering from that. Just know that you're, you know, as one of your elected council women that I will do everything that I possibly can to uplift the LGBT community and just send a clear message of inclusion. And I think together, all of us, that we will create this welcoming and inviting space for all of our communities. And I do believe that the Safe Spaces DeKalb campaign is one of the ways that we can just tell everyone that they are welcome here in Long Beach. So I just want to recognize you and applaud you and thank you for all of your hard work. And I look forward to seeing these decals all over the city on every door. So thank you. That's 72. Thank you, Councilmember Ringo. Thank you, Mayor, and thank you, councilmember senators, for bringing this forward. Thank you for inviting me joining us, because I always have fun this time of year. I'll be praying. Last May, Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. Thanks. Thanks, Mary, for bringing this forward. Happy pride, everyone

e. I just have a simple question. Where can I get Medicare? I'll take the pledge and I'll send you on the Safe Spaces Alliance dot com. Fantastic. Thank you so much. Thank you, Madam Cook. Is there any additional public comment? There's no additional cover coming. Consumers and they have. I'm sorry, were you cued up again? I do. I just wanted to see if we could share where where we can get our decals. But that was just said, too. But if you could please repeat it one more time so that everyone that's watching us or listening to us knows where they can get their data. Please. Sure. Sure. We have a website. It's Safe Spaces Alliance dot com. So if you take the pledge and you put in your mailing address, we will Melbourne to you. Amazing. Thank you. Thank you very much. And as you know, Pride and the Pride Parade is one of my favorite events in the city all year long. I really look forward to it. But one of my biggest goals during my term that I had when I became councilwoman is not only to attend the Pride Parade, but to actually beat out Councilwoman Price because she always has a party at her house, you know? So I wanted to make it a competition, but we weren't able to do it last year. We weren't able to do it this year. But next year I look forward to bringing back all of our festivities during Pride Month and that gives us something to look forward to and a lot of time to make sure that we compete with Councilmember Price. So thank you. Thank you so much for this wonderful presentation and thank you, everybody, for supporting this. Thank you for your time. Thank you. Thank you very much and thank you both for a really great presentation and amazing program and happy to talk to both of you. But happy pride to everyone as well. And obviously these kind of projects are really what language is all about. So just thank you very much for joining us tonight. We appreciate it. Thank you, Mary. Thank you. With that metal circle. Couldn't do the roll call. As we mentioned, they have. I'm Councilwoman Allen. I'm Councilwoman Pryce, I. Councilman Spinner. Right. Plus a woman. Mango? Yes. Kind of woman. Sara. I council member. Oranga i. Councilmen Austin. I. Vice Mayor Richardson. Yes. Person case. Vernon Kay. Thank you. Next up with item 33, please. Item 33 is communication from council member Virunga Councilwoman Sunday has Councilwoman Ellen and Councilman Alston recommendation to request city attorney to drop an urgency ordinance establishing a moratorium on the issuance of building or construction permits for the construction of new standalone residential structures along transportation corridors in West Long Beach to ensure land use element zoning change changes occur prior to issuing building or construction permit and requires city manager to develop a plan and identify funding to conduct a market study to attract investment and neighborhood serving users. Sorry, Ringo. Thank you, Mary. And I want to thank council members and Allen and Austin for joining me in sponsoring Recital Weston, which is a working class neighborhood bounded by the port of all Mich on the south Wilmington refineries on the west, the four or five freeway to the north and the 710 freeway and the Los Angeles River to the east. The proximity to industry and major freeways have resulted in pollution and historic disinvestment in the area. Today, West Long Beach does not have a single full service grocery store, bank or pharmacy. For these needs, residents of West Palm Beach must drive over the river to spend their money in other neighborhoods. This is not just an inconvenience. This is a lack of service and slow economic growth in the area. It would be devastating if a natural disaster were to render the L.A. River impassable. To address this land use element. To address this, the land use element adopted by the City Council in 2019 2019 designated the corridors of Santa Fe Avenue between Pacific Coast Highway and Wardlow and will a street between the 710 Freeway and the terminus as neighborhood serving centers. This designation is designed to make consumers daily needs for goods and services close to residential areas. Ideally, residents could walk to these locations where shopping, banking, personal services or dining. Unfortunately, current zoning practices allow for development that does not serve as designation as those progress toward attracting important neighborhoods or serving businesses such as grocery stores, pharmacies, banks or cafes. In the city clerk put up. Those are pictures I sent earlier. This is the corner of Santa Fe and Hill and West Long Beach. This is a before picture. You notice there's a commercial building to the left and a parking lot in that area. Behind that is a soccer field and rocket park. You could bring up the next picture, please. City clerk. The next picture. And this picture. Now, you see that same parking lot converted into a single family residence. And you still see the commercial building right next door. So not only does it block the view to the park, it just totally transform that corner into a residential house with no parking whatsoever unless you go to the park area. This is a type of development that disenfranchises the community and just limits the economic growth of the area. This item will pause the issuance of permits for new residential developments at Santa Fe and will allow time for the city to update its zoning practices to better comply with the land use element. Additionally, the city manager the city manager Will is being tasked to conduct a market study with the goal of attracting major neighborhoods, serving businesses into that area. Thank you for joining me again in supporting this item. And it is important for the investment of our West Palm Beach area neighborhoods. And I ask for your yes vote on this. Thank you. Thank you. Can I get. I have a second. But, Councilman Allen. He's seeing anything no other from comment or account members will cover. Compliments of the house. Is that I think Councilmember Allen was trying to say something. Yes. I just wanted to say something very quickly. Absolutely. Councilman Allen. Okay. Yes. I just want to say, first of all, just to say thank you, Councilmember you're Ranga, for bringing this forward. I just support this item. We need our development projects to be aligned with our land use element. You know, I grew up on the West Side at Baltic and Spring, and as Councilman Turanga said, projects in the West Side should follow the land use element and complement neighborhoods and mixed use services. I definitely think the housing is important, but we also need to focus on building up the area. And for God's sake, they need a they need a grocery store. So I guess I look forward to hearing back on strategies that can that can attract businesses and investments. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Roll call. Vote, please. Councilwoman Sun has. By District nine. By Motion carries. Thank you. I believe that concludes all the business. We do have some announcements. Madam Clerk, we do have some announcements from the Council. I have the first. One from. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I want to take a moment to acknowledge North Long Beach resident, a long time friend and mentor from since I was a 23 year old organizer, Linda Dent, who, you know, she passed away this this past weekend. Thank you for that. Now we're going to have the rest of the agenda. Let's go ahead and do item 22. Arms control. Adam 12. A Report from Economic Development. Parks. Recreation. Marine and Public Works. Recommendation to authorize City Manager to enter into three beach concessions. Agreements for the operation of concessions at various beach location districts. Two and three. Can I get a second, please? I get a significant number often come from an on comments. I yes, I do. I'm a I'm excited to see these concession stands moving closer to opening. I know that we have a fair amount of work that's left to do on the Alamitos Beach facility that I know we're going to get there. I love looking out the back, my porch and seeing progress done daily. It also makes me happy to see that we're activating these spaces and getting back to normal. And I know my colleague, Councilwoman Price, is having some connectivity issues. And so she has she has some comments to make on this item to a clerk. Can you can you just read her comments? A councilwoman. We did not receive the comments from the council member. Okay. Okay. All right. I do have a just a quick question. Do we have any updated timeline on the Alamitos facility? Yes. I believe Eric Lopez is available and can answer that question. Yes. Thank you. Thank you. Tom. Councilman Allen, we are on track to come back to council in August with a recommendation for Alamitos. So Alamitos and Granada are a little more complicated. We're going to we're still working on those. So those will be forthcoming. Okay. Wonderful. Thank you, Eric, for that update. I appreciate it. Councilman Austin, any comments? Oh, yes. Obviously, I support this. I spent a lot of time at the beach and. Ah ah ah or walk or bike path and walking path are where you really busy. You know, I think this addition particularly is right on time for the summer confessions to have a great, great summer here in Long Beach. I didn't want to hear I know there's a presentation from staff. You know, I think this is a big item that we could just give here, a brief presentation to hear about what will be actually here for the public. Sure thing. I mean, do it. And I mean customers and because first. Thank you, Mayor. These projects sound so very exciting and I know that it is something people are really looking forward to being able to enjoy. I was happy to hear that the cost up for business were kept at a low as low as possible, so that to be able to ensure that prices will be kept somewhat affordable for our residents, which is something that's very important to me. In addition to that, something that I have always wanted to ensure is to be part of the conversation when it comes to the development of new businesses and projects like these. And one of the things that is, as you know, very important to me is that we are at a compliant and we have accessibility for everyone to enjoy this, these amendments. So I'm really happy that we are being part of the conversation and that ADA compliance is actually part of the planning as we move forward. I know that these projects seem to be, you know, designed, you know, in phases. So I'm really, really excited to see all of the upcoming new new ones that are coming in. And I'm like, this said, I'm so very happy that they are ADA compliant that way. Everyone here in Long Beach and from out of state of Long Beach can enjoy these equally. Thank you. Thank you. Mr. Monica, do you have a quick staff presentation? Yes, we can. Agenda? Yes, we can certainly show a couple of pictures of before and after work that's happened. And we'll skip over some of the terms, real estate terms, and the council has those in front of them. But I'd like to show what these projects could look like. So, John and Sergio. Thank you, Tom. Good evening, honorable mayor. Council members, really quickly, just as as Tom mentioned, we have our five beach locations along our four miles of waterfront here in Long Beach. Just to highlight just the beautiful work that has been done, here is an image of the Granada Beach concession, the before and after. And you can see kind of the enhancement that has been taking place. The next picture on your screen shows the public improvements that actually have been made to the Granada Beach lot. This next image is a picture of the Junipero Beach concession and the before and after, and you can see that tremendous change that actually has taken place. And this next image shows the junior Broadbeach Beach concession area, a public area, and the just the tremendous change that took place with the addition of new play equipment. And as as Eric mentioned, a forthcoming item that we will bring to you in in August is going to be the Alamitos Beach concession. But here's a preview just showing the tremendous improvement at Alamitos Beach. Just quickly, very, very quickly, the goals of the concession was to really activate the waterfront, increase the use of the coast, and bring just a great overall assortment of mixes of of of tenants and uses. Here, I'll skip over a couple of these items just to keep it as brief as possible. I'm sorry. Here we go. In just for the beach or launch. We've actually selected Grill Em All. It is a location that will have a five year lease. The second location, Juniper will have salt water depth. And at Mother's Beach, we've selected Louisiana. Charlie's. And selected pedal movement for to provide beach amenities to three at three locations and really almost providing a microm obility program. And with that we select and recommend these concessionaires for for your approval. Thank you so much for your consideration. Thank you very much. You guys are doing a great job at this stuff. Look, all of them look really, really great. And I'm just very excited about this moving forward. So thank you, staff. Roll call vote, please. Mr. Mayor, we just received a statement from Councilwoman Pryce, if I could read the comments into the record this evening. Absolutely. Thank you. I want to thank city staff for working diligently to pursue qualified concession concessionaires for these locations. I had the opportunity to receive a briefing from Director Lopez last week on the recommended vendors, and I'm excited to see this item come to council tonight. There have been so many Thailand's projects that have helped activate our beach front in the past seven years, starting with the beach pedestrian path and then the concession stand upgrades. I don't think our beaches have ever looked so good or offered so many amenities for beachgoers. Throughout. The city and region. I urge my colleagues to support this item tonight so that we can get these vendors operating at this site as soon as possible. That concludes. Thank you. Thank you very. Much. Thank you very much. We'll call the police. Councilwoman Cindy has. High. Councilwoman Ellen. I can cement a banana, I can throw in mango. I. Councilwoman Sara. I. Councilmember Oranga. I. Councilman Austin. Hi. Vice Mayor Richardson. Hi. Bush and Kerry. Thank you very much. We have word that we're down to our last item, item 22, which is staff item on Queen Mary. Madam. Item 22 is a report from Economic Development Recommendation to authorize City Manager to execute a contract with Evolution Hospitality for the continue operation of the Queen Mary and execute a contract with Moffat and Nicholls to operate as needed. Engineering Design services for critical repair work on the Queen Mary district to. Thank you so much, Mr. Murdoch and Mr. Carson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Members of the city council. So everyone's been tracking this issue very, very closely. And the city council has and doing numerous close sessions. And now here we are in open session. For over 40 years, the Queen Mary has been under some sort of contract, or at least for an operator, whether that be a nonprofit or a for profit institution with varying results. We clearly have had that under other operating circumstances where that entity was responsible for both the risks and the rewards on the site. But that has now changed. We are now in full possession of the ship and and controlling its future, which is an exciting time. It does come with both positives and negatives, and we'll go through a little bit of those today. But we're excited to take this next step with the Queen Mary. We knew that if this were an eventuality with exiting the bankruptcy, the city needed to be prepared quickly to step in and run an agreement to to have a s hipboard operator and to immediately start the repairs. And that's exactly what we're doing. So we're asking you tonight to really allow us to take the next step of bringing on an operator and to take the first step of bringing on engineering to quickly work on repairs. And we'll be back to you later with additional funding on those repairs. So I'd like John Keisler to give a quick overview of the specific actions tonight, and then we're available to answer questions. Thank you so much, Tom. An honorable mayor and members of the city council. As as Tom said, there's two recommendations before you tonight. One is to authorize the city manager to enter into a contract for the immediate operations and caretaking of the ship while it's closed. The second is to approve the the the appropriation of funding up to $500,000 so that we can begin the immediate design work for the critical repairs that we believe our engineers have identified. As soon as the courts have settled the legal question about the lease. So I'm going to start with a quick overview, just to give you a sense of who evolution hospitality is. They are a trusted partner of the city. Over the last 11 years, they've been the on ship operator with approximately 500 employees. They helped to manage about $65 million in annual revenue related activities for the 347 hotel rooms, five different restaurants, all the amazing banqueting, catering, etc. special events, tours, attractions, parking, property, engineering, maintenance and security. And so they're really are a full service operator. And I just want to make sure that everybody knows that Evolution Hospitality also is wholly owned by Ambridge Hospitality, which has almost 2000 hotels worldwide. They operate some of the most high end hotels in Marriot and Hilton and the Curios and some of the boutique hotels that you're familiar with as well as resorts. So they're very, very capable and they have a very large organization behind them, which is based in Dallas. But Hospitality, Evolution, Hospitality is based right here in San Clemente. So we know their their leadership. And we actually will be meeting with their leadership on the ship this week as they take over this caretaker agreement between the city and evolution. So real quick about this actual agreement. This is this is remember, the ship is closed right now. So there are no hotel guests, there are no banquets or Sunday brunches. And this is really about a short term, six month agreement with the option for just a 16 month extension. Our goal is to address some of the repairs and a longer term solution for the reopening of the ship. We're estimating $300,000 per month. This is a 1 million square foot facility. This is a big building in any rate. And so ultimately, six months would give us not only all the utilities payments, the security, the maintenance, running those big systems to make sure that nothing goes wrong out there. But it also provides us with some contingency funds to d eal with some one time issues. We need to freshen up some of those systems. And of course, there's publicly facing landscaping and and things like that that we need to repair to make sure that the parks and other things surrounding the ship look good. This is also what we call basic and limited safeguard services. While close to the public I mentioned, we're trying to minimize damage in ways that that might occur with a large facility like that being in in sort of a closed mode. But the operator is not required to provide any additional services at the property unless we request it and unless we specifically approve it. So this will not be money available to the operator unless it's approved every single month will also approve their management expenses and these payments. So the city manager recommendation on this caretaker agreement with Evolution Hospitality of San Clemente, California, is up to and not to exceed $2 million for this six month period and one optional renewal period for the city manager for up to six months. We'll provide regular updates to the Council about activities on the ship related to this caretaker agreement as we move along. We do that typically in written memos already, and so that way the public and the city council are aware of how we're doing. The second recommendation here is, is really about moving quickly with the critical repairs that have been identified by our engineers and recent inspection reports. And so this is about design services. We won't be swinging any hammers over the next few weeks. We'll really be focused on getting what are called the construction bids back together, really doing some additional investigation in inspection. And that way we will work with our own public works department now, our own capital improvement project managers, to provide them with the right kinds of designs to do temporary. These are temporary immediate repairs that can be completed within about 180 days. Now, these we're not asking for the construct construction costs tonight. We are simply asking for the the design work. This will be for these these five key projects. So temporary build systems would help to pump out water from the bottom of the ship. Remember decades ago. Previous administration removed the bilge pump systems which would remove water from the hole of the ship. If there was a flooding event, we need to get some temporary systems back in there as soon as possible. Also, an alarm system for water intrusion will help us. There is no leaking right now. We we were in the hole yesterday. It's it's very dry down there. But but ultimately, we want to have an early warning system that would notify not only our fire department, who is prepared to deal with all hazards responses, but also to help us to trigger some of those pumping systems and other things that might be needed in the faster we move. The more we can prevent. There's also something called bulkhead. These are the barriers that separate the different compartments at the bottom of this. This ship and some of those bulkheads have been removed or compromised as as we've converted it to a hotel, you know, decades ago. But we need to we need to make some temporary improvements. We need to do some testing and some modeling. And so this this funding will help us to do that. And then removing our lifeboats, those lifeboats are very heavy. And ultimately, we need to start removing those to take some of the pressure off what we call the sideshow or the the walls of the ship. And so this funding will not remove those lifeboats, but what it'll do is it'll put together the plans to efficiently, safely and with an eye toward restoration of the two original lifeboats, of course, to deal to put those plans in place so that we can move quickly once the courts have made final decisions. And then finally, some of these systems need an electrical source. So we need to to rebuild portions of the electric electrical system, as well as secure a new emergency generator. And we're talking about a very large generator that will actually sit on the land but serve the ships so that those big pumps and other things that we need to protect the ship are are powered. So essentially, the design work and construction bids, we can complete those immediately while we wait for some of the legal issues to be settled by the judge. But temporary work can commence immediately after the city receives final decisions from the lease termination and bankruptcy court. Construction for some of these repairs will be defined more, more specifically during these design design process. But right now our engineers are saying we can get these temporary fixes done in six months, 180 days, and the ship will remain closed. We we actually can move more quickly and get a lot more done when we don't have, you know, large events to move around. Or we can be as loud as we need to be to get the stuff done quickly and efficiently. And the goal is to complete these emergency repairs by the end of the year. The funding decisions now will be based on the specifications and the bids. So once we're able to build this construction, we'll know specifically what those those actual prices will be. And then the funding sources, the city manager, our financial management team will bring back some some options for the city council. So this recommendation is, is to of to to authorize the city manager up to $500,000. And we'll work with our current engineering consultant, Mofteh Nicole. Our public works department, our CIP program, and ultimately come back to the city council with some funding sources at a later time. And this one will be paid for by our our critical Tidelands Operating Fund. With that of Robert, my report and happy to answer any questions and turn it back over to Tom. Thank you, mayor and council. That's what we're doing now. We will be back later. Expected right now at the end of July to really have a fuller discussion about the Queen Mary, about t he future, about some of the the things that we're looking at for a potential partnership through alternatives. And we'll be scheduling that with the public and the council in July. Thank you, Mr. America. Let me first go to the council. I have Councilman Allen. I'm. Yes, I'd like to first make a motion that we approve these two contracts. The staff recommendation OC she a second by Councilwoman Sara Councilman Allen? Yes. I just want to first say thank you, John, for the concise, informative and, you know, the detailing of exactly what these contracts will accomplish. I think that is going to be absolutely critical that we continue regular operations and maintenance on the ship as we take back ownership for the first time in decades. Evolution has been the hotel operator for years and has performed well. I had an opportunity to tour the ship yesterday and I definitely have a first hand knowledge and stay on the scale and understand the scope of the necessary repairs. The Queen Mary has been a world symbol of Lumbee speech, and I think it is important that we maintain the ship. I move that we approve these two contracts and until further discussion in July. I do have a question for staff. Just for clarification, John. For the critical repair work that you're referring to, that's going to happen on the ship. Can you talk about who is going to be entering those those those repairs or who's going to be overseeing those repairs? Thank you, Councilmember Allen. So so we're we're really happy that our public works capital improvement projects team manages most all city infrastructure projects. And now that we're able to step in and do these repairs ourselves, our engineers Moffitt and Nicole and some of their expert subcontractors will help to to design and provide input to the actual specifications for the for the approach and the construction. But these these projects will be managed in-house by our capital improvement projects managers from public works. All right. Thank you, John. And then also, will any of the bids as we go out and look for folks that can do this repairs? Who's going to be managing that those those bids and that process? Absolutely. So. So we have a very rigorous internal competitive bid process with, you know, certain policies and procedures that we have to follow. So this work will be bid by our public works capital improvement projects team as well, following all of our city financial policies and procedures and all the controls that are required not only for bidding the work, awarding the work, potentially bringing those contracts back to council depending on their size, but also then managing the review of of payments and invoicing, collecting the documentation and ensuring that that all the work is completed in the ways that the contractors have have documented. Okay. All right. Thank you very much. Thank you. Councilwoman. Councilwoman Sara. Yes. I want to thank Mr. Kaiser for the presentation on the two contract, and I I'm in support of it. I think, you know, there's certainly been a lot that's gone on with this Queen Mary, but I think this is the next best step for it. And that's why I support this item. Thank you. Councilwoman. Councilwoman Price. I think things are. I'm here, Mr. Mayor. Hold on one sec. Okay. We can hear you, too. You're good. Okay. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I am actually in an airport, so I want to thank everyone for indulging me and allowing me the opportunity to share a few comments on this very important item. I want to thank, first of all, staff for the presentation. I think it was very valuable to hear what the scope of tonight's item is. But I do believe that there are a few points that we need to make sure that we fully discuss as we approve this item. If I can just have one moment to pull up my notes here. Okay. Okay. My apologies. Just give me 1/2 here. Okay. I'm literally just walking off of an airplane. So just so everyone knows, I'm accompanying our Long Beach Youth, the National Youth Rowing Competition in Florida. And our plane just landed in the middle of a major rainstorm. So the item before us tonight was certainly a foreseeable item, although the timing of it was sudden and unexpected. There is no doubt that the Queen Mary is an icon for the city of Long Beach, and it is certainly an asset that is universally recognizable in the city of Long Beach, is connected to the image of the ship. It is a part of our city and a part of our history. The many efforts have failed to invest in the ship and make sure that it is maintained. Time and time again, the efforts have failed. We are now in a situation where the ship's operation and maintenance responsibilities have fallen to the city. While the total city asset that includes the vast coastline property as well as the ship, presents a new opportunity for the city, the cost of true historic preservation of this ship is significant and it is an unrealistic expenditure for the city at this time. I am in support of tonight's item, which dedicates a specific amount of tidelands funds to be used at this time. And these are for the immediate needs of the ship. But as I have done in the past, I must express concern about leveraging any tidelands or general funds moneys should that be requested in the future towards. The maintenance and operation of the ship. In 2016, I voted against an item that leveraged the Tidelands Fund to support the effort of urban commons to conduct maintenance and repairs on the ship. I was concerned at the time about a worst case scenario that we were told would be unlikely and unforeseeable. Unfortunately, that turned out to be exactly what happened, and the Tidelands Fund has already had to cover the debt service at a level of approximately $2.5 million. We have a fiduciary duty to protect the public's money. If any significant moneys were needed in the future to support the maintenance and repair of this ship. I would want the public to weigh in on that decision. The re are many competing projects that the city is currently working on, and it's likely most, if not all of them, would have to be deferred in order to meet the maintenance demands of the ship. That's certainly a decision the public would have to weigh in on how that input would be provided. It's not before us, though, yet. And that decision for us to take over the ship, allow alone without partners is still premature. For now, I am hopeful that the opportunity presented from this asset as a whole, including the waterfront property, make this a desirable site for future investment for any entity that is equipped to oversee the preservation of the ship and to closely monitor the future development of the site adjacent to the ship. I hope that creativity and the preservation of the ship as a monument and in streamlining the ship's current operations are considered as part of the process. The ship's current location seems to be contributing to its rapid demise. I think there are tremendous opportunities for this site, given its location and the totality of the opportunities that accompany the city assets. I look forward to hopefully seeing those opportunities materialize in the coming months. For now, I would like to ask city staff if it's possible for us to reach out to the federal government to see if the Queen Mary would possibly qualify as a national monument similar to other attractions throughout the country. I'm curious as to what that process would be and whether or not the Queen Mary is a feasible consideration. So I would request, if it's acceptable to the maker of the motion, that city staff consider that as an option when they come back to us in July. Mr. Mayor, can you hear me? Yeah, I do. For me, the last part cut off some. Can you repeat the friendly Councilman Price? Sure. If city staff can take a look at the process with the federal government to assess the feasibility of the Queen Mary being considered a national monument such that it would be treated similarly to other monuments throughout the country. So it's looking at national monument status, I think, for staff to look at that. Is that correct, Councilwoman? Much better articulated. Yes. Thank you. Okay. Great. Thank you. So that would be added to the act? Yeah. I mean, I think that's it's always good to look at that. I think Councilman Price. Councilman Price made a friendly councilman Alan. Yes, I would. Absolutely. Thank you. And Councilman, sorry, I'm assuming you accept that as well. Yes. Yes. Thank you. Thank you. Next up, I have counselors and de Haas. Thank you, Mary, and thank you for the comments from my colleagues. I think of the comic too, very, very important. And I, for one, am very happy that as a city we now have control of our beloved Queen Mary and the Queen Mary, such an integral part of our city's identity. And it is a great value to many of our lifelong residents who perhaps were able to take pictures of their quinceaneras, their graduations, their proms, yo u know, with the with the Queen Mary in the background. Or maybe they even had their events there, like their weddings. Or like me, I had my prom there at the Queen Mary many years ago. But, you know, it holds a lot of wonderful, wonderful memories. And so I'm very thankful that we have it and that we're going to be able to take care of that. I know that it has a lot of repairs that it needs. And thank you. Thank you, John, so much for the detailed and transparent presentation that you gave us. I know that on one of my last visits at the Queen Mary, I the elevator broke. And so I had to take an adventure in getting to know the Queen Mary very intimately, where they escorted me out through a very different and very closed off way. But I know firsthand some of those repairs that need to be taken. So I really appreciate the transparent with the companies that we're using and the, you know, how we're moving forward, where the money is coming from. And I really think it's a great idea to actually look into it further and see if if we can be seen as a as the national monument. Because anywhere we we go, Long Beach or the Queen Mary represents Long Beach. And so I think that's something that we all need to be very, very proud of. Nobody is going to be able to take care of the Queen Mary as much as we can now that we have it back in our hands. And and now we have the ability to do so. So I'm really looking forward to being able to support the motion on the floor. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilmember Supernova. Thank you. I stand in support of tonight's item, but I just had a couple of questions because I think I heard it the wrong way that I clarified before July and I can ask all the questions and Christ, you can answer them all at once if he'd like. So I think I heard that the votes were to be removed, but then not to be removed. So if you can explain that, it's that just before July. Another point was, I think Elliot Page is saying group was referred to as a contractor. Technically they're a subcontractor to Moffett Nicol. And so my question would be, would they come back? What's the likelihood of them coming back for a re-inspection or a more robust inspection before we get underway? That's it. Thank you. Councilmember super supernova, certainly. So short answer to the lifeboat question is we'd like to get them down over the next six months. So we would start the design process planning, how we would do that logistically immediately. And then over the next couple of months we'd remove them and begin the restoration of the two that are originals. To the second question about subcontracting, yes. Elliott Bay Design Group has some specific expertise with regard to these historic vessels that Moffitt and Nicole subcontracts for. They serve as an expert witness, but they also do engineering work, design and investigation modeling. Flood modeling is a really important thing they do. And so they would be coming back as part of this agreement under Mo ffitt and Nicole as a subcontractor, simply because they have some very, very specific expertise. Okay. Thank you. Thank you. That concludes council. Actually, Councilman Allen, I'm going to make some comments as well. But Councilman Allen, just some additional comments. No, I do not. That was my question was answered. Okay, great. Let me make some comments. And I think we may have a public comment and we'll go to go to go to the vote. Well, first, I just want to first, I actually I think I know everyone has I think had really good comments or I agree with what everyone has said all ultimately all of our colleagues on the council, this is a very, I think, unique opportunity for the city to really have this this chance to have not just the ownership of the ship, but have no lease in place. That is really, you know, causing the challenges for our ability to fully control kind of the future of the ship in front of us. And so I think Mr. Morgan mentioned it's been over 40 years and and here we are for the first time in many decades where we have this very unique opportunity. I want to also just just know, I think I mean, I've said this publicly many times. Preservation has to be at the center of what we do moving forward. Councilman Price mentioned this as as a national monument. I think that's fantastic. I believe currently the Queen Mary. It is, of course, a historic icon. We made a commitment to to to take care of and to preserve this piece of history. And I think I believe the designation the Queen Mary has, I mean, similar to the designation of the Statue of Liberty as a historical place. Is that right, Mr. Keisler? Mr. Mayor, I believe it's it's a national historic register for historic hotels. So I will confirm that in their report. Back to the council. Yeah, I thought there was a similar other type of designation as well, but let us know in the report back. And I'd be curious if I've heard that from a lot of residents that have approached me about the topic. And I think obviously the preservation is really important as we as we as we move forward. I want to add something and I think a customer super now I know will agree with me on this. One thing that I'm really hoping that when we get back to the public discussion at the council is just the importance of having a actual public foundation for any major project, those being involved in the community hospital work and really the just saving of that amazing resource for the community. The council member will tell you that the foundation was just an important part, not just of community support, but also, of course, of funding important projects. And so I know that there have been attempts in the past on kind of structuring a foundation board for the Queen Mary. I just want to make sure that the council and I receive a little bit of a historical perspective of what what how the foundations work. I know there have been numerous groups that some that have had conditions or wanted to start foundation

s. I believe that there was a foundation in place recently that was just getting off the ground, but forming a community foundation that can be a source of of fundraising, of support, of oversight, I think is going to be important in the short and long term. And so there's no need to, you know, to give in to that tonight. But I would like to see Mr. Murdoch. Mr. Keiser, let me come back just a further discussion about what the foundation could look like in the future and those that have shown interest. They've also received interest from folks that want to be involved or have been involved in the past. Is that possible? Absolutely. Yes, you're right. There have been some foundations in the past, some of which were not very successful. And there is one underway right now that we believe will be very successful. And we can certainly give you an update on that as well as how for people to get engaged involved. That's a great addition to our report back in January. In July. Okay. Thank you. And then in addition to that, I think I'm very supportive of the critical repairs. So I'm really glad that that's where the focus is. That is that is obviously really, really important. And and I'm just to all of you just thankful that you that we got on this really quick. And just also, more broadly speaking, I think it's important to kind of sit back and also just I think folks who have been involved, the truth is,

is that and I told this to our city auditor over the weekend, I just also want to publicly thank our our city auditor, Laura Dowd, who has been on issues around the Queen Mary now for many years. And it's a lot of her audit work is also what led us to this point. And so I just want to publicly thank her for her kind of continuous oversight of the Queen Mary and and her oversight of the future of it as well. It has made and will make what happens in the future better. And so I just want to publicly thank her for her for her work on that. And so with that, I look forward to the one. I'm sorry. One more thing. Just wanted to also just convey I know that just earlier today and yesterday, the port leadership has conveyed to me and to our no competitor, to the city manager as well, that they view what happened with the city having the least as a very positive development in their conversations with the city as far as all of Pier H. And so I know that when the city session comes back to to us, it's sounding like Mr. City Manager in July will be able to have a robust conversation about kind of where things are at with that port analysis on Pier H as well. So I look, I think we all look forward to those to those discussions. And I do agree that that the what Councilman Price and others talked about, the partnership, you know, whoever that partner ends up being is is critical as we move forward. And that's, I think, what we're all moving towards right now. So thank you all for for for that and for all the all the leadership on behalf of staff as well. And wi th that, I think there may be one public comment and then we'll go ahead and go to a roll call vote and control. Yes. This is in control. And I appreciate this report and I appreciate the. The city attempting to hold on to the Queen Mary. I think it's known around the world as the icon of Long Beach. I do have some questions about. Why we are making a contract with evolution hospitality, which I understand is a hotel business. When? As I understood it, there's going to be no one allowed on the Queen Mary except workers. For six months. Or at least six months while the repairs are being done. And it sounded like we are. Promising. Asked to pay a revolution. Hospitality, $2 million. And I'm wondering what for? It sounds like Moffat Nicholls Public Works. The City staff will be working on this. What will Evolution Hospitality be doing? Can somebody answer my question? Thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment for The Sentinel. Thank you. I think, Mr. Kaiser, I think you had a slide that kind of listed some of the work that that what happened. Do you want to just briefly, again, just kind of review some of the work that that evolution evolution would be doing? Yeah, absolutely. So, um, there actually on, on staff, um, while the ship has closed over the past year, in fact, there's an entire security team. So not just on the perimeter of the ship, but there has not been one break in in the in the in the ship over the period of this last year. Remember, we're also protecting the historic assets. It there's many, many historic assets on the ships that security is important and involves a whole team rotating 24 seven. It also covers all of our engineering team and maintenance team. And so in firing up those systems, even replacing belts and in light bulbs and turning things on and making sure that things are working. There's there's mechanical systems, plumbing, electrical warning systems, fire systems. All that stuff has to be run and managed on a day to day basis. And then, of course, there's there's basic custodial and other work that that happens, and that's pretty extensive. And so we have landscapers. We have with painting all that is happening even though the ship is closed. They're working every single day and making sure that that large facility is taken care of. So we also have huge electricity and power bills. Believe it or not, there's a million square feet out there and powering it and and making sure that all our hookup fees, the technology, the power, anything that you have in your home, multiply that by about a thousand and those bills have to be paid as well. So I can get into further detail in a report to the council, if you like, but I was pretty impressed. It's pretty extensive and ultimately evolution is doing all that while the ship is closed. Thank you, Mr. Castro. And I'll add one last thing to that. And I know that evolution is also I'm ensuring that John Thomas is retained as kind of a historical preservation officer on during this time, and he has, of course, in the past. And there's probably nobody in the city or very few people that know more about the Queen Mary than John Thomas does. And certainly his love for the ship, I think, is well known across the city. So that I know that evolution is also, I believe, has John as part of their team to kind of oversee some of that preservation. And so with that, thank you very much. Got to take a roll call. Councilwoman Sun has. I'm Councilwoman Allen. I Councilwoman Pryce. I councilman's subpoena. High. Councilwoman mongo. I. Councilwoman Sara. I. Council Member Muranga. I. Austin Vice Mayor Richardson. I. Motion carried. Thank you. I think that concludes the agenda. I don't see anyone signed up for any new business or announcements. So with that, I will go ahead and close the meeting and we'll adjourned until the next one. Thank you very much, everyone. Thank you. Moving on. We have three hearings. We'll start with our first hearing. Item 17. Communication from City Attorney. Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. The hearing and declared ordinance relating to the temporary limitation on the issuance of building or construction permits for new residential standalone construction along commercial and transportation corridors in West Long Beach. Read the first time and later the next regular meeting of the City Council for final reading and declare the urgency thereof and declaring this ordinance shall take effect immediately. District seven And there are two votes required for this item. Think it was Gordon turning over to. Mike May's from the city attorney's office. I can provide a short staff report if the council desires. Please. Go ahead, Mike. Yeah. You all remember that on May 18th, the Council adopted a minute order pursuant to an agenda request from District seven, which set in motion this moratorium process that we have here tonight on this form, the ordinance before you formalizes. The actual moratorium in the area that Monique. Just described for you on Willow Street and Santa Fe Avenue in the west side of Long Beach. This will establish a 12 month moratorium period. And during that time, no building permits will be issued for standalone new residential construction in the area of concern. And during this 12 month period. The matter will be referred to the Planning Commission. And the planning staff to initiate a study of. Potential amendments to the existing zoning. And building regulations in the city to have them more closely aligned with the more recently adopted land use and urban design elements of the city's general plan. If anyone should have any questions, I'd be more than happy to try and answer them. Thank you. Is there any public comment for this hearing? No. There's no public comment for this item. Canterbury Ranga. Sorry. Still getting adjusted to being back in the chamber. No real comment just to thank staff for their great work on this and we're looking forward to having some positive results at the end of the period. Downtown Boston. A second emotion. Thank you. We're going to do a roll call vote, please. District one. My district to my district three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. I. Monique, and we'll need another vote on the urgency. Thank you. Do another vote on the urgency, please, echoing emotion in the second, countering your rank as a motion. Second by. Can I get a second, please? Captain Boston. Council District one. I. Council, District two I Council, District three i District four i district by district six i. District seven i. District eight District nine I. Motion carries. Great. Thank you. Next item, please. Item 27 Report from Economic Development. Recommendation to execute a Second Amendment to Exclusive Negotiation Agreement with Howard CDB for the continuation of negotiations in connection with the proposed development of the former Long Beach Armory at 854 East Seventh Street District one. Can have a second, please. Thank you, Mr. Modica. Just just briefly, because I'm I'm very personally very interested in this project. I think it's a phenomenal opportunity and we've been discussing it for for many years, and it seems to be in a very good place. Can you can Stafford provide a just a brief update on this? Yes, John Keisler. Honorable mayor and members of the city council. It's so good to see you. And I'm going to ask our deputy director, Sergio Ramirez, to give a short staff report about this amazing project. Thank you, John. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members. We have actually been working with Country Partners, a partnership between Howard Cdm, Saint Anthony and Pacific six on the adaptive reuse of the former Armory Building, which would consist of the Adaptive Reuse Project and a new development component back in February entered into an inner with the developers and have been working with them. They are. We've been working on several items and have negotiations gone very well. They are actually applying for a state and for infrastructure grant and that's part of the grant and requires them to have additional time and staff is supportive of the extension and we will continue to work with them to hopefully bring forward to you a definitive project agreement. And that hopefully request. Support for this item. Thank you. Very supportive of this. I appreciate the update conference and discuss an article. Thank you, Mary. Thank you. Thank you so much to both John and Sergio who have been working really hard on this item. I'm I'm super excited to continue seeing the partnership with Howard CDM and so happy to know that the proposed development would be bringing in 100% affordable housing projects right here in in my district, in the first district. As I mentioned, finding creative ways to address our housing crisis and supporting affordable housing projects is altogether one of my greatest prior

workforce center that did not exist, that happened in the past that focuses on things like reentry. It will have a clinic focused on sexual health for the community. It will have youth development programs, violence prevention programs, fatherhood initiative. A number of things that we're not present at the park in the past, and this is going to be a transformative impact. And, you know, I met Ron. I think Ron is the appropriate person to name this facility. After I met Ron, my first year as chief of staff for Councilman Steve Neal, and Ron came in. I remember the briefing. He already had a relationship with Councilman the I don't know how long or how far back, but Ron came in. He brought in Lori Ruska, Shawna Stevens, who was like right and left hand. And I hadn't known them, but they came in and said, hey, we want to talk about health equity in North Long Beach Community Health. Initially, it started with healthy corner stores. We organized around healthy corner stores that turned into the Alcohol Nuisance Abatement Ordinance and liquor store modernization program. Change that transforming liquor stores into healthy markets that ultimately developed into the hills on initiative. Initially, $1,000,000 investment from Kaiser Permanente into advancing health equity. In North Long Beach, we created the Coalition for Healthy North Long Beach together. We did a lot. Ron's legacy was really community health, investing in local communities to spur transformational change because a lot came out of that initial investment. And so Ron has contributed so much over his career to our city's public health and to health equity. And for that reason, I believe Ron embodies the character and legacy befitting of someone whose name belongs on a city building, particularly at Highland Park in North Long Beach. And so with that, I submit to the City Council the proposal to make, to create, to name the North Health Facility, the Ron Arias Ronald Arias Health Equity Center. Thank you. Okay. Councilman Noriega. Thank you, Vice Mayor. That was a. Awesome presentation in terms of what what you're doing out there. And of course, that facility has provided so much service in the north Long Beach area that is very much needed. Point of history. I when I worked with Sea Long Beach, I was the assistant, the administrative officer for the Health Department. So I used to go to that facility quite a bit to talk to employees and see the programs that were there. And the the black health the black infant health program was stationed out there. And so I would go out there a lot to talk to people, look at the kids, and the facility was in quite a bit of disrepair and a congratulations to you to getting the funding to make those very significant improvements. In regards to the naming of the round, our Audience Health Equity Center I think is very appropriate since Ron was the executive director for many years and I think it was around 15, 20 years that he was director of the health d epartment there and was the main proponent for a lot of the programs that were there, a lot of the funding that came to the health department. For those of you out there who might not know, our health department is 95% grant funded. So there's very little actual city funds to grant general fund money that goes into the health department for the little programs that come out of there, whether it's in the in the facility center, there's a center also in Admiral in Admiral Kidd Park and one at a at a martin Luther King Park, MLK. So those those facilities provide a lot of different services as we go into the community. But the but the naming of this facility here in Ronald's name, I think is very appropriate in the sense that there's a lot of healthy programs that go out of that facility. And a brief resume on Ron is that he did have a lot to do with equity, a lot to do with employment for kids or youth, provided a lot of services in Long Beach in general. Even before he became the director of the Health and Human Services Department. He was one of the founders of the the La Raza Neighborhood Center, which was which then later became the UCC center. He was very much involved in, in, in tobacco education when he worked for the I was at the Cancer Society. I think it was forget the name the leaves me right now. But a lot of what he's done has been involved with health and involved with assistance for the community and working in neighborhoods that required a lot of a lot of help and a lot of assistance and a lot of grant funding which he was able to bring. And he brought it through the health department. So I'm very happy and pleased and honored actually to be able to second this motion and looking forward for it to go through the government personnel and Elections Committee for further consideration. And I'm sure that once they hear the complete background of Mr. Arias, there will be no question as to the appropriateness of naming this facility after after such a wonderful person, a great man for Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you, councilman and House. Thank you very much. Thank you, Vice Mayor, for recognizing the importance of naming such a fitting project, such a fitting, you know, felt health center at heart at your park by the name of Ronald. Ah, yes. I think he is so perfect for this. He's been a leader in our community for so many years, and I think that projects like this really give us an opportunity to honor our Long Beach leaders. And Mr. Arias has definitely been that for our city as a whole. So I thank you and congratulate you at the same time. Thank you. Councilwoman Sara. You Mayor. I also want to express what a good call this is, Vice Mayor, for naming this unit in our facility to the run areas health equity center. You know, speaking of his youth work, that's actually the first time I met Ron was probably back in 2000. I want to say eight or nine when I was the executive director of my Girls in Action. You know, me being a new ed and getting to know all of the various ways to work in partnership with the city, and here he was, the director of a department inviting me and my staff at that time to come and meet with his staff, all of the department directors. And it was just really, I think, a demonstration of how much he is a champion for ensuring that he includes young people as well as working with and partnership truly with everyone. So I just want to, you know, also thank council member Urunga and Sun House for signing on to this. And I think this is a great honor for him and I think overall for the community. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I just wanted to say a few words of support and just talk about that. When Ron brought forward solutions, they weren't always the easiest solutions. We really thought about comprehensive ways to reach out and go into the community, out to council members to find a way to make a long term difference. And I think that naming something after him because of the impact he made on the city is a really great move. Thank you. Last May, Richardson. Just before we go to public comment, just want to acknowledge this community letter. So I want to thank the public for this community letter organized by the steering committee. Honorable Steven Neal, Susanna Edmond, Mario Gonzalez, Jessica Quintana and Shanna Stephens. The steering committee and a total of 25 leaders, including former city managers, community leaders, every elected official in the north, the you know, that represents the area surrounding this, the center, our community members. And so I want to just acknowledge their support and thank you for sending that letter. Thank you. I know we have just got Quintana who has a comment and she just comes up and is going to say a few remarks. I think this is a very fitting tribute to someone that is really the the father of the modern health department that we have here at the city of Long Beach. And also just a mentor to so many people across the city, including myself. I'm very grateful that Ron led this health department with the passion for for the city that he did. I him and Phyllis are two of just the kindest, most generous people that we have. And I'm just very grateful to to both of them for their service to to our community. Ron Arias is not just really a legend in the health world. Sure. Locally, but also for the Latino community. He is someone of significant contributions. He, as a young student and as an activist, was raising issues for the Chicano and Latino community, as a as a young college student, as moving on as a as a health specialist, as an activist, ensuring that the city was meeting goals around equity when there weren't a lot of managers and folks in his and leading departments that were that were people of color and certainly Latinos at the time. And so I think Ron is a very loved in our community among all people. And and I'm really, I think touched that vice mayor, that you and the community in North

Long Beach are active in getting this across the finish line. And we also gave Ron the key to the city not that long ago and well deserved for him and his family. And he's just a fantastic person. So I'm very, very happy to support this. And with that, Miss Quintana. Definitely. Thank you so much. Parker Garcia and city council members. And this is just I mean, on behalf of center chair in our board of. Directors. And the Latino community, we can't say enough about Ron. You know, definitely want to borrow that key to the city from him one day. But he's he's just been a champion in public health, among so many other things. You know, upon his retirement, Ron never retired. He continued to stay active, a diligent in the community serving on the Miller Health Foundation. He serves on our Latino Cultural Advisory Committee. Ron is as an advisor, you know, to all of our community organizations in the city. You know, he works diligently fundraising for the Rancho for the Assistance League. Yes. And he started the Latin managers professional organization because it does believe in education and really developing our young people to become in higher education and taking manager positions. So we're delighted. Thank you, Councilmember Richardson, for bringing this forward. Definitely. You know, the North Long Beach area needs support and needs health and human services in the area. They have high needs, you know, as well as other areas in the city of Long Beach. So thank you for having the opportunity to speak. And this is very, very just you know, we're all really excited for Ron and his family. And as you said, Mayor Garcia, they do a lot for this city. It should be the Ron and Phyllis Center, actually, because Phyllis is his pillar. She supports him so much. And so thank you so much. We truly appreciate this. Thank you. And with that, we have a motion and a second. Members, please go ahead and cast your vote. Motion carries. Thank you. Item 13, please. Thank you, sir. And with that, we have the both of the hearings on the agenda. So let me let me start by going into our first hearing, which is the budget hearing, and then we'll do the second hearing, which is on a entertainment permit. So let's let's go ahead and begin with the budget hearing. Madam Clerk, if you want to read that and I know there's a full agenda, I also just want to remind the public that today is the first of. A handful of budget hearings that will happen in this chamber and some in the community. And so it does push meetings back. This is a time of the year where we spend a good amount of time talking about the budget. And so I do want to just make sure folks know that as we go into these next few weeks. Item 22 Report from Financial Management Recommendation to conduct a budget hearing to receive and discuss an overview of the proposed fiscal year 2022 budget city wide. Thank you. There is a of an item in front of you on I think there's a presentation. I'm going to start the presen tation and go through a few slides as as we all know, every year the budget is and the way it's proposed to the Council is a partnership that we undergo and that I undergo with the city manager. But it's really the department directors and Mr. and Mr. Modica that put together the budget every single year and then it's presented to the City Council. I think most folks received the budget and the public I think last week I believe was Friday and then today is the first kind of public review of that document . So what we have in front of us is a budget proposal that's focused around building back and recovering from this pandemic. The city's total proposed budget for FY22 is 3 billion. That reflects the city's recovery from the largest public health crisis of our lifetime. And I think the most important piece of this budget is that the budget includes no cuts, has no deficit, and replenishes, most importantly, the reserves that were lost during the pandemic. And I mentioned to the council before there's probably nothing more important than being prepared for that next emergency. And so having a replenish reserves is is, I think, a critical piece of this budget presentation. The F-22 budget takes into account the city's racial equity and reconciliation plan. And Mr. Mourdock will speak to that. And he will also speak to measure us, which of course, was approved by 57% of voters and how that integrates into the budget presentation. Also the budget, I think, makes a very, very strong makes a very strong statement as far as what we're focused on as it relates to our recovery. The Limited Recovery Act, which was the first Municipal Recovery Act presented actually across the country, is is a part of this budget. It's about almost $250 million of federal and state funds, most of it federal, as we know. And the city council has approved that Budget Recovery Act, as we know it allocates about 64 million for economic recovery, about 108 million to healthy and safe communities, and about 76 million to the city's reserves. Eliminating the furloughs and the elimination of the deficit, which is all part of securing our city's future. If you look at the economic recovery piece, you'll find in the budget there's a variety of of resources for residents and businesses, everything from protection for nonprofits and businesses on on COVID to support direct business support. At 20 million, there's airport support for 15 million. There's economic inclusion resources, the Clean Language Initiative, and so many others that are involved. These are just a sample of some of the economic recovery funds. In addition, under Health and Safe Community, there's also a variety of different investments investments around basic needs, around ensuring that people have child support and child care in our community. There's additional support for public health and COVID response, bounce prevention and Safe Cities money. There is about $10 million for homelessness and we also added to cer tain funds. So while example, the justice fund and language access were already in the budget, the American Recovery Act and through us, the long a recovery plan really added to those as well. And you see housing support at 56 million, which is really significant around tenant assistance. And then, of course, we spent a good amount of resources eliminating our shortfalls, replenishing reserves and ending furloughs, which was important for us as a city. I want to just to highlight a few community investments that our folks were engaged on and I had discussions about and that some councilmembers discussed with me as well. Those are all in there as part of the Long Beach Recovery Act and the budget that Mr. Modica will we'll explore. There's a variety of resources. I do want to point out the digital inclusion money which is in there. That's been a great new initiative of the City Council and other priorities. I'll note that certain priorities, like the Justice Fund, is receiving its strongest support this year, which I think is a really great move for us as a community. And there's other investments as relates to health of the community across the budget. With that, I'm going to turn it over to Mr. Monica, who will do the majority of the presentation. And we did this presentation, of course, last Friday to the community and to the media. And I think many of the councilmembers also, I think, watched it online. So Mr. Monica. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. If we can bring up the city manager's presentation. We're in the clear. The Mayor gave a very good summary of the budget and I will launch with this part. So the F 22 budget is 3 billion, as the mayor mentioned. It's 37 different fund groups, 126 funds and 23 departments. The main message, really, and the thing to keep in mind is that we are basically per continuing the previous year's budget. Yes, the budget has changes and all of our different funds, but as a whole, especially in the general fund, we were able to do something pretty significant which is not engage in reductions and not have some of these really difficult financial impacts. This year we were able to basically continue it from last year and the emphasis for the budget is really on pandemic recovery. I think it's been very clear that we're facing unprecedented challenges over the past 12 months, up to 16 months. It has been unprecedented both operationally and financially. We've really been focused on minimizing impacts of the pandemic, on our business community, on our residents, on people who had a very, very difficult times last year. We have strained our city resources and we've had to divert our staff capacity to the most urgent priorities. And that also means our financial resources. We've had a year of First Amendment demonstrations of civil unrest and systemic racial inequality in our society that we are addressing. So there's many accomplishments. We could be here a long time if we really went through them all. I'll just summarize ju st a couple. We really focused on safety and health during the pandemic and recovery. We implemented things like a relief payment plan, interest free and penalty free payment options for businesses, including parking citations as well. We launched for the first time ever, a $51 million rental assistance program where we're helping to pay rent, supporting both renters and landlords.

We launched business programs under language based care, helping them on free one on one in-person support. We suspended late charges for utility customers, suspended shut offs of utilities to assist our customers. We did the Open Streets Initiative. We had 120 parklets in Long Beach restaurants and another 250 occasional event permits where businesses can use their parking lots or other structures in nontraditional use. We expanded services for people experiencing homelessness through Project Roomkey. Project Homekey. We built our very first Atlantic Bridge housing community, a 125 room, our first year round shelter at the airport. One of our tenants completed construction of the largest solar energy project in the airport's history. We got the airport health accreditation for commitment to passenger safety. We transitioned our library programs to online and went to contactless pickup. We had free printing services, and we distributed Chromebooks and modified devices. We developed a Youth Trust Strategic Plan to elevate youth and child development. At the same time, we focused on core services repairing over 25,000 potholes, trimming trees, removing tree stumps and replacing signs. And then we were also still recognized as a top ten digital city for the 10th year in a row. I want to remind you, too, that during the year we did some very significant investments in both our residents and our community through the CARES Act. We got $40 million and six months to spend it and really put it to good use. And we're able to show that we created a plan very quickly as a mayor and council staff implemented, that we passed every single audit of the funds and did a lot of good. I won't go through all of these, but you have them here on the slide. Everything from digital inclusion to black health equity to children and families and diapers and supporting communities most in need, access to food in individuals experiencing homelessness with shelter, and just a number of really amazing things. And so this council did approve the Recovery Act. We do believe we're the first big city that did that. It was a came together very quickly as an initial plan in focusing on economic recovery, health and safe community and securing our city's future. I won't go through all the the buckets because the mayor did that very well. I will say that it has temporary or temporarily solved the $30 million short fund in the general fund shortfall in the general fund. And just to give a sense of that, if we hadn't had those dollars, we'd be talking right now about some pretty significant reductions in the area of 145 different positions throughout our organization, because people are what we prefer who provide the services to our communities, and we would have to be having those discussions. And, you know, we are still going to have to have some budget balancing discussions and options and look at that for the next year and that there will be some service reductions. But we have a year to plan and we really still are looking at some of the strategic investments as well, so that we have to look to the future over this next year to figure out how we're going to address some of those future challenges. And so the funding for the Recovery Act comes from federal, state and county grants. It is actually up now. So we increased it was originally a $235 million plan that the council acted on in March. It's up it's 249 million since approved by the council. We've added a number of different areas, but at the same time, the biggest bucket of money, which is the money that we have the most discretion on from the federal government, actually went down. It went down about $17.9 million when we got our final allocation. So we did have to make some adjustments. We went through a methodology to essentially protect all of the programs that the council approved, but programs under 300,000, those were real small. We did not take any reductions in those. We because any percent reduction there would be pretty impactful from 300000 to 2 million, we reduced those by 10% and programs over 2 million. We reduced by 20% so that we didn't take it all out of the programing. We were able to identify about $6.5 million in the reserves category that due to financial projections, maybe did a little bit better. And we didn't need that $6.5 million as urgently. And the Recovery Act, just as you know, is 249 million is larger than some of the entire budgets of some of our other cities. And so that does require a lot of management, a lot of staffing to make sure that we're doing it appropriately and spending it effectively. We are proposing a three year staffing and administration plan to be able to incorporate into each one of those funds. And we also have some reporting requirements to the federal government and sort of minimize audit issues to keep the dollars as flexible as possible. We're using what's called the indirect funding option for ARPA. And so we're essentially attributing ARPA to revenue loss, which allows us to invest these dollars. But then we're also creating a very strict plan to be able to show that all of these programs line up with the original intent of the federal government. The framework for reconciliation is a big part of our budget. On August 11, 2020, we adopted that plan. There's been a number of actions that have occurred, and we're going to be coming back in August with a larger report on the one year anniversary of that work. The Office of Equity has moved to the city manager's office and has really been a liaison to all the different departments . We

've increased capacity with two positions. We have equity champions in each department. We've implemented racial equity one on one trainings. And a real big part of our response to COVID this year was our Vaccine Equity and Outreach Subcommittee that worked with the community providing vaccine opportunities in the hardest hit neighborhoods. The Recovery Act does support our racial reconciliation plan. We have in that plan youth academic programming at libraries. There is funding for youth life coaching and mentoring, expanding our Be Safe program for parks activities at night, expanding our Long Beach, Activating Safe Communities program that has been working in the Washington neighborhood and expanding that to others in high impact communities. Creating a reentry pilot program to reintegrate services for people that are reentering from incarceration, investing in economic empowerment zones, funding for community land trust, research and investment. Strong programs around digital inclusion. Inclusion for businesses and residents. A mental health crisis response pilot that's underway and under development. And our youth workforce development programs. Normally we have a long list of some of the new critical investments added. Normally with one time funds or one time funds, we're less this year than they've been in the past, given the the significant fiscal challenges. So it's a smaller list, but here it is. Here they are. We're investing in a diversity recruitment, mentorship and partnership partnership program in the police department, 220,000, which is structurally funded within the police budget for helping the workforce reflect our diverse community. We have a similar program in the fire department, 250,001 times, which is continuing that program from last year. We invested 2.18 million and our requirements for elections and redistricting. Those are both charter amendments and have specific timelines and deadlines that need to be funded. And then we have a number of commitments from previous years that were planned many years ago to come due in this budget, one of which was our brand new Wrigley greenbelt, which we got funding for, and it's now being implemented. And then we're launching a large new downtown park, and it'll be completed and opened in 2022. And so that park needs both maintenance and programming. One of the areas for new investment is measure us, and that is a subsection of funding that went to voters and was recommended by the Council to Fund Children and Youth Services, Community Health and Climate Change. We're very happy to announce that the Council gave us direction about a youth fund and that's been created as part of the city council or part of the budget to invest in youth and youth services informed by all of our strategic plans, reconciliation and other planning efforts. And this is a brand new program. So I want to tell the council, we're just starting we're listening to everything that we heard from you and the commun ity. And we made a proposal, but we know this is going to get some adjustment any time you adopt a new program like this. So we're very open to that. We're flexible to hear the ideas of the community and the council on that. And so the staff proposal is to create a youth fund in the amount of $918,000. That would include $200,000 of direct youth community based grants where they can apply and get funding for the most important things in the community. A youth ambassador program where we're hiring youth and training them in our parks, continuing the model from CARES. And then as those youth move on to other opportunities, hiring more youth in their place and having a standard program that can help out in our parks and teach a valuable skills as well to our youth steam and ecosystem programming. This is library services programming. We're focusing on science and technology and math and arts, youth mental health programming, continuing the Long Beach Youth Summit every single year, and also funding to communicate all the facts that are happening with our youth and data management. And looking at the plan and supporting that commission, we would fund 155,000 in community health. We have in the past created an older adult program that's been very important to the community. It's always been funded with some one times or something dollars that were available, and this would create actual structural support for the older adult program and also support our staffing in our racial equity efforts. And then finally, climate. This is taking pieces of the climate addict adaptation and adaption plan and $243,000 to invest in things like community based organization grants for farms and community gardens and teaching gardens. We would have more field work programs for youth and help to expand our neighborhood tree planting. We had a council item that asked about tree planting throughout the city and how can we enhance our resources. And this would help with that. And also creating an electric lawn equipment program. HMD has one and this would be helping supplement that for Long Beach people in need. Measure A continues to provide all the past restorations, public safety, maintenance and administrative support. And we have 2.5 million to be able to keep the budget status quo. And June 17 was funded in 21. It was set to not be funded in 22. And so this would continue. That is as per our philosophy this year, to keep going for one more year through one time dollars and measuring. We have $2.2 million for our Neighborhood Safe Streets Initiative in the police department. For a number of years, we've been planning that this year would be the year that measure would support our public safety radio replacement cost. So this is radio communication systems for police and fire that's antiquated and needs to be updated. Supporting community hospital, $4 million and then 20.8 million for infrastructure, which also includes funding our police and fire academy renovations and other infrastructure, as well as a new $4.0 million or $4 million for ADA sidewalk compliance and curb requirements. We have a robust capital improvement plan that you are going to have a very specific section on. We'll come to you and deconstruct the CP and talk about all the projects there. It's 470 million. The harbor is a big portion of that. But the next two biggest categories are utilities and mobility and mobility as all of our street work. And that's $51.8 million for streets and sidewalks. The General Fund is balanced with one time. So it's a balanced budget, but there is a significant amount of one time funding that we need to disclose. So it's not a structural solution there and it will need to be addressed in FY 23. So that structural shortfall in 22 for the next year I'm sorry, the original structural shortfall is $27 million for this year and then 3 million in additional one time costs, which is covered by the Recovery Act. And so while this isn't our normal strategy for addressing budgets, this was an amazing, incredible year. And reserves are there for a reason. And one time dollars have come in to help us. And so that's really why we're recommending the to do this for one year. And also, we know that this budget doesn't support everything. There are a number of things the council asked for, the community asked for that we're underfunded in our departments. We try to disclose the the big items of that in the budget, including all the items that have come from the city council that have some funding or partial funding. Those are listed in an attachment with links to the two fund for us for easy reading. So what is our general fund fiscal outlook look like? So in 22 we are balance, but in 23 we have a $9 million surplus, but we have to carry over the shortfall from the previous year. That's 27 million. So it's a total of 36, which is a lot. That is a big number. 24 is another $11 million to solve and 25 is another nine. So this also includes that we are expecting some recovery revenue of the next couple of years. But we do know that our revenues are just growing slower than our expenses and that fact still remains. We do assume that we're going to win the measure and litigation currently seems likely given that Sacramento won their case. Otherwise, 23 would be about $9 million worth, and it's going to be a high priority in 22, beginning earlier to develop approaches to address that structural shortfall. So we've had a number of meetings already on the budget in March and April and July, and now we really turn to our community budget meetings, the BRC meetings. It's it's a proposed budget and it's really in the council's hands. This is one of the most important things the council does every year is consider the manager's budget, look at mayor recommendations, and then listen to the community and make those tough decisions. There are many opportunities for community engagement. You can attend budget hearings, attend community b udget meetings, attend Bossi meetings. We have our Long Beach survey on funding priorities. And we're also, when we do the outreach, going to be working on the Long Beach strategic plan as well, and engaging residents per the council's request to get additional input on our strategic plan. And so I will finish with saying that this is an amazing city. It's a city committed to moving onwards and upwards. We say that a lot here. City of many accomplishments, a full service city, a wide variety of amazing services. We address our challenges head on. We don't shirk from them. We have such committed, dedicated employees who have just done extraordinary work throughout the pandemic to address and recover. And we have very strong leadership from our policymakers, our mayor and city council, and couldn't do this without the support and collaboration of our city auditor, our city attorney, our prosecutor, our city clerk, our civil service executive director, our harbor executive director and our water general manager. And that concludes the presentation, and we're available for questions. Thank you very much. And we are going to go to before I go to the council. I just want to also add that we say every year that this is just the first of these hearings. So there will be opportunities for out throughout the entire budget process where there will be different departments, of course, that will come forward and plenty opportunities for questions of specific departments in the future if the council has those. I do have a motion in a second to receive and file for this hearing the report, but I want to I councilman's already mentioned that she wants to hear I think there's four members of the public that have signed up. So let's hear the former members of the public and then we'll go to Councilwoman Sorrell. And then I'll just I'll just read them up here. If these four members could please come forward in this order, I believe it, says Jamil Ochoa or Jamil Ochoa, Karen Reside, Abraham Zavala and Jordan Winn. Or if those four folks could come forward, please. Jamil Ochoa. Karen Reside, Abraham Zavala and Jordan Winn. Good evening, Mayor and council members and city manager and city staff. My name is Joe Miller and I am a community organizer with the Long Beach Immigrants Rights Coalition. I want to start off by asking you a question for you to reflect on. Can we count on the city council to fund programs like the Long Beach Justice Fund that will give legal representation to loved ones that have been kidnaped out of their homes to be put into ICE vehicles. I'm here as part of the People's Budget Coalition as I multicultural and Multi-generational Alliance. I am calling on Mayor Garcia and all nine City Council members and the city city manager to one adopt the people's budget for fiscal year 2022 and structurally reform the city budget process to enable earlier and deeper participation from marginalized communities who are most impacted by budget decisions. Yo u must make public comments accessible to the communities who deserve to be part of this process, but can't be here today because of their vulnerability to COVID 19. When is this coming back to City Council? We believe that Black Lives Matter and that our communities cannot wait any longer. As the devastating impacts a public health crisis meets the harms inflicted by systemic racism and decades of immigrant attacks, anti-immigrant attacks, the accumulation of injustices facing immigrant communities has reached a tipping point. The need for urgent action to sustain and expand universal representation is more important now than ever. Immigrants of color feel the double oppression that comes from overpolicing which are giving way too much funding to from the both law enforcement and immigration enforcement. I am here today to demand that the city allocate 600,000 already promised from the Lumbee Justice Fund through a key for the structure of funding agreed upon last year and 300 Cree from the American Rescue Plan promised towards the Long Beach Justice Fund earlier this year. Our government is responsible for ensuring that everyone has equal access to the care that they need. This is the government's responsibility to use our tax dollars to protect the fundamental rights, health and safety of everyone in our communities. Universal representation ensures that the representation in immigration system operates in racially equitable way by ensuring legal representation. It helps us dismantle the present deportation pipeline and advances racial justice. We must work towards spending less city funding on policing and more on communities. I'm going to see that one more time. We must stop, start working towards spending, less funding on policing and more on our communities without a process to legal representation. Immigrants are facing deportation and an already unjust system alone. Let's please remember that the budgets are moral documents. They must represent the priorities of our communities needs and. That your time is up. Thank you. Hi. My name is Karen. Resign. I'm here tonight with the Long Beach Gray Panthers and we also are on the People's Budget Partnership Coalition. And I'm here tonight to address one of the last big isms that I had hoped hoped to see more in the budget this year. And it's sadly lacking. Ageism and ageism. We're working on the younger part of that. We've done a lot of good things with the youth, but it seems like our older people don't exist. 155,000. And I assume that's for Bixby Knolls, which isn't even really acceptable as a senior center. So I'm here tonight to address some of the issues. Three years ago, the city entered into the Livable Cities Initiative with AARP, which was to examine the impacts that our city had related to older adults. So far, we've done nothing for that. We also established the Healthy Aging Center at the Health Health Department, which has not been funded and certainly has done a main and amazing job with no money. And here we are scrambling as volunteers try and find funny find money for a plan that was not even done appropriately. It was based on a ten year old plan that doesn't include any input from baby boomers. And I have very different needs from someone that was the greatest generation. So the plan that we're using is way out of date. It's time we invest some money into the needs of our seniors. When I was young, my grandmother used to go visit her every weekend. She lived here and she came to Long Beach because it was such a wonderful city for older adults. I can't say that today. You know, we have to fight to get transportation. They haven't brought the passport back. Long Beach Transit is not talking about bringing the transport passport back, the senior center. Mr. Mayor, when you came and visited it two years ago, you said the city should be doing better for its seniors. Every day I watched the staff try and scramble and the two people that we lost during the pandemic haven't been replaced. So there are staff shortages and they're trying desperately to do programming with no supplies. The Great Panthers were lucky enough to get a couple of grants, so we've been trying to help buy decent furniture. The furniture is all falling apart. They replaced two floors and two spaces, but not the main spaces. So they still have gaps. They're broken. They're trip hazards for seniors. Right now, senior centers is not safe for seniors to be in. For a city our size. We should have ten senior centers and they should be standalone senior centers. But that's what the recommendations for Parks and Recreation Association. So we only have really one prestige standing senior centers there were way behind. Good evening, council members. My name is Abraham Zavala. I'm with Long Beach. Residents Empowered, who is also part of the Language Arts Coalition. And our coalition is also a part of the People's Budget Coalition as well. I want to begin by acknowledging the liberated leaders who are watching right now online who couldn't be here to make public comment in person. And also, my children, they're. Watching online as well right now. So just want to say hi to them or else when I get home they're going to. Tell me something or that to say. I think it's important to keep engaging telephonically. I know there are other ways of giving folks access. So I want to share the language access coalition's budget demands that we feel would make an. Impact in Long Beach. Language is important, and I think oftentimes that can be a barrier for a lot of our folks that are different communities, right to access government, other functions as well. So we want to uplift the following three items. First, we like to have the city dedicate adequate staff to implement the Language Access Program consistently throughout the city and create a culture of language. Just as in Long Beach, we feel that can be best be achieved by hiring two full time program coordinators at 200,00

1, full time program assistant as well at 85 for a total of 35,000. Second, bear with me. It's very specific. Primarily move interpretation and translation services in-house to provide a faster and higher quality response to residents who need interpretation and translation. Provide Spanish and more interpretation at our City Council and Charter Commission meetings without having to make a request in advance that is so helpful for folks to come and make public comment whenever that's possible. So that would be something that would make an impact. So we're asking for ten Spanish interpreters, six camera interpreters, four Tagalog interpreters as city staff at an estimated 140,000 per to a total of to 2,000,800. Third demand is to provide community based organizations who work with Aleppo residents ongoing stipends to conduct outreach about the policy. Such organizations have a deep community relationship, trust and cultural competency to do that kind of outreach to effectively communicate with residents about their rights specifically and how to access city services for a total budget amount of 3,285,000 . We feel that's fair, given that oftentimes, even when you call in over the phone, folks sometimes don't get through to the department, they need to get through. So we feel this would make a huge impact. So thank you for your time. Hello. And thank you. My name is Jordan Winn. I'm a District two resident in the city of Long Beach. My theme for the city budget today is to move past symbolic actions. And move towards permanent actions. Last year, thanks to the advocacy of the People's Budget Coalition, we. Sent many of the things that were were reflected in the city's budget last year, and many of those pilots. Are. Continuing. We thank you for that. Last year, we also saw a decrease in the city's proposed police budget. By $5 million. Tonight, we see an increase probably coming in within the fiscal budget itself, $15 million of increase coming our way. We need to move past symbolic measures and start dedicating ourself wholeheartedly with the millions of dollars that go there into community resources instead. Not hundreds of thousands of. Dollars for our seniors, for our families, but millions. We need to start investing those real dollars. I'm here to present three specific items from the Housing Justice Coalition of Long Beach that are three budget priorities that build on some of the things that the people's budget brought forth last year. One is a dedication to the rental housing division. We're very grateful to the City Council for dedicating $1 million from the Long Beach Recovery Act for the creation of three temporary housing navigator positions. And we now call on the city to build on that commitment and fund the creation of a permanent, structurally funded and fully staffed rental housing division within development services. The Rental Housing Division would be staffed by one division officer full time, two planners. Full time, two administrative analysts, three assistant. Military analysts, two clerks, and one deputy city attorney. We've broken it down very granularly, and it is this kind of service that is very necessary to maintain the large housing stock that we have within our city. And as we continue to expand and grow as a wonderful city that we are, this is going to become a greater and greater need for us locally.

Number two is tenant rights of council. We are asking for $7 million of that. There was a pilot program launched last year, dedicated $250 million, one time in the fiscal year 2021 budget for right to counsel. The city further acknowledged the need for additional funding by allocating $900,000 to right council for the Long Beach Recovery Act, which will be spent fully over the next two years. We really do appreciate that this dedication is coming out from the city. And we want the city to go further. We call on the city to fully fund this crucial program, which has only received partial funding thus far. Black and indigenous people of color and tenants throughout the city are disproportionately impacted by the pandemic. As we've seen, are still waiting on funding, and Long Beach needs a fully funded right to counsel program to prevent mass displacement. Finally, we call on the city to continue to invest in community land trusts. Calling on 4000. Sorry, $4,750,000 from the fiscal year 2022 budget. To fund the remaining balance of our original budget ask, we're thankful for the original allocation of $1 million from the Long Beach Recovery Act. And once again, we ask the city to go further for our low income black indigenous tenants of color who've been disproportionately impacted by the COVID 19 pandemic. Thank you very much. Thank you very much. I want to thank you for the very public comments. We're going to go back to the council and I'll start with Councilwoman Sorrell. Thank you, Mayor. You know, I want to thank the members of the public for making their comments. And I also want to thank our amazing city staff, city manager and the mayor's leadership for in the past year of navigating us through such a challenging time with the pandemic. So I know that that's been one of the things that's been mentioned earlier, how we've also been just impacted financially in so many ways. But I also just want to lift up our amazing residents who have been there for each other and protected each other by providing mutual aid and assistance. While we are not yet out of the pandemic, I think that it's an amazing, you know, the way that our city staff and mayor as well is helping us lead into the recovery part and grateful for the federal and state funding that's making it possible. You know, I just want to make sure to left out, you know, of the 249 million of federal and state funds, that 108.5 million of it is specifically for our healthy and safe community, which is going into our community. That's ranging from early childhood education and support to the physical and mental health equity to violence prevention and safe cities and homelessness. So I really want to make sure we lift that up because a lot of money is being invested into our community and particularly want to make sure to point out that 600,000 is going to the justice fund and 700,000 is going to the language access. Supporting and language access are so important to me and ensuring that, you know, we're making sure, you know, we're able to communicate across various languages as well as accessibility as well. But I just want to mention of the 700 million for our language access and 600,000 for the Justice one. It's the most we've ever funded in these two areas, as well as our source 1.8 million into the digital inclusion. So many amazing thing. I know it was a lot of information thrown at all of you and we're hoping that, as you know, this comes up over time and that it's various opportunities for engagement, that there are opportunities for more digestion of the information shared and better dialog and more dialogs that can be had in the community and with each other about it. So that's just what I wanted to make sure that provide to share. Thank you so much. Thank you, Councilwoman. Before I go to Councilman Manga, I do want to just add to that because I think she had mentioned two items that I had was chatting with someone earlier about it. Just it's important to note that the justice fund is as is at $600,000. When you look at the full budget, which is the largest allocation it's had. And so it's something I strongly support and I know the community supports and I think that we have seen those resources put to work and how important they are to ensure legal protection for people that are incredibly vulnerable and that need our support as a community. In addition, I just want to say on the language access question that Councilman Sara brought up, Mr. Monaco, you also we don't have to do it today, but I think there's also I know that the 700,000 direct allocation is the largest direct allocation we've made. But I think that there's also resources within language access that is kind of split among departments or that you've put into other departments. So the actual number, I think is a lot larger.

Is that right? Absolutely. It actually in FY 22, if when you total up all the programs that we do for language access, it's $3.2 million. So we can break that out for you. There is the staffing in the city manager's office, about $323,000. We then have, you know, $250,000 in the Recovery Act budget. We then have our health department budget and our economic development budget. And then we also pay a number of city staff members to be bilingual. And that's about $1.8 million, $1.9 million, so that they're always available to the community. So I'd like to have one of our follow up items be to break this down for you so that we can get a truer picture of language access. Appreciate that. And I know I've had I was chatting with someone from the La nguage Access Coalition. I think there just needs to be a they just want to kind of understand at least what's in the current budget and how it's broken up. And so that way I think I think it'd be helpful for the community and for the council to have a better understanding of how those resources are are divided up in the city. So we can have a better idea of that. So but thank you, Councilwoman Sara, for for the for the bringing up those items. Let me go to Councilman Mongo. Thank you. And I think that and I don't want to speak for Councilmember Odinga, but a long time we've been fighting about language access and the movement forward. And I think that what has really come of it is not about an allocation. And I think that in many of my one on ones with community groups we talk about it's not about an allocation, it's about a full integration into the city as a component of what we do, period. It's a part of what we do and there isn't an amount that it is limited to or associated with. It's everything needs to be available in the languages. And specifically we've talked about and different departments have different needs and have different access to different communities and have more need or less need. And from year to year, those adjustments just need to be made so that people have access period. So just to follow up on that. Page 12 of the presentation talks about rental assistance. It's my understanding that additional funds have become available July one through the state budget, but we had previously closed the window on the rental assistance funds. Do we plan to reopen it because of these new funds? So we had extended our rental assistance program twice and we are incorporated those new funds into the third revision. So the 51 million includes the new money that we got as well, and that's now in the recovery plan. That's part of the reason it went up from 235 up into to 49. So do we believe we have applicants for that much funding? We do. So when we assessed it over the weekend, we were looking at July 11th as the date we had contemplated potentially extending it, but we did a big push on social media, on outreach, and we got enough applications to fulfill the whole $51 million. And we're currently. So we closed it and we're going through the process with applicants to help them with all the paperwork that they need to file for federal and state reimbursement. And when do we think that money will be operationalized and in the hands of the community? Some of it's gone out already. I sent out an update, I think a week and a half ago. I can get you a new one. At that point, several million dollars had already gone out. And we have just it's a big process to go through that. And we let checks out every single week when we get those applications done. So we think six weeks, eight weeks. I don't have that answer right now. I don't know if Oscar or Christopher does. Christopher's got a better handle on it. Council member, we expect about $2 mill ion to go out the door this week and then we expect the amount of going out the door to increase each week over the coming six weeks. So in 6 to 8 weeks, we will have paid out a very large portion of the rental assistance, but then we'll be into the very difficult cases. So we have cases where one party or the other isn't cooperating or there's a paperwork problem or there's audit trail problem. So it's hard for me to say everything will be paid in eight weeks. Most things will be paid in eight weeks. But then when we get to the really difficult ones, it'll take us all the way until December 31st to pay out those more difficult cases. Wonderful. Thank you for that information. I want to take a pause from my questions because I kind of move things around based on other comments of my colleagues. And I just want to thank the staff. I know not everybody spends the time. The moment these books are released, my staff know they come to my house immediately or I drive to City Hall and get them. I spent the weekend with these books and I love what you've done with them. We've come a really long way. You've always been excellent, but the amount of work that you've put in this year, the different layouts that you've adopted, the more easy to read sections. For those of you who don't know, when people call my office and ask questions, I reference the book and I send them the PDF and I think that this is more user friendly. And so what I meet with community groups and we have questions. The quality of this book makes a difference and I really think it's a reflection of the staff and the efforts and the training. I have to say my favorite part is that you have our fiscal or fiscal policies in the beginning of the book. I think that's a really important reminder and I really appreciate and through the work that we did together for several years to get these right, that they're front and center for people to remember why we do what we do and why it's important to be with our revenue projections and how we handle each and every component of this book. So and I think that that will really help for years to come. So I want to thank the staff for all the work that went into this. And not just the budget staff. The budget staff that are in the facility manager's office are critical and important, but there are also a lot of staff out in departments and a lot of those staff are stretched really thin and taking multiple hats in the department at this time. And so I want to take an extra special moment to thank you, filling out all the reports and requirements and projections that the city manager's office requests are not easy. I just look forward to seeing more details in the police budget about the least cost of the radio. That just sounded like a high number for lease costs versus purchase price. I don't know a lot about it, so I don't know if we're frontloading it and putting in a reserve account or maybe I can go into that at that presentation and then I look for ward to additional details on measure use and what that's going to look like on the granular level when we get there. Thank you. Thank you very much. RICHARDSON Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Thanks city staff for the presentation. I was able to watch the budget reveal the other day, so I got a bit of a head start on some of this and I'm sure most of the community has to. I just want to acknowledge the speakers who came forward I think is really good. And I think I don't remember if it was Jordan or someone who kind of articulated, you know, last year's budget, then the recovery, the pieces that the community advocated for and have made it in, I think is important. The community should be proud of those achievements and the council should be proud of those achievements. These are significant investments that helped shape the region. Other people pay attention to these impacts. You know, enough members of the council spoke to the justice, foreign language, access and things like that. But we know that there's always more to do and we have a good organizing base in our community that will continue to push the city, and that's just the dynamics of inside outside. And so we know that there's certainly much more to do. But I do want to say, you know, context is important. This time last year, we were I think we were talking about relief efforts and sick days, and we were in a very, very different place. And to have a budget in front of us with no service cuts at a time when our services are already stretched, strained, I think is important. And it would not have been possible if it hadn't been for the federal relief that we're fortunate to receive the CARES Act. We didn't originally receive that. We were just shy of the 500,000 we had to go agitate to get resources. So the fact that we're in a place where we don't have cuts, I think that's important context because we're not out of the clear. This is the very, very beginning of a recovery. But we are not out of the out of the woods. Our revenues have not recovered. We're in a different place. And I think we need to understand that now. There are some good things that I'm proud of in this in this budget. Some new things measure us and and, you know, some of the recovery dollars. I think it's important that the reconciliation came up a lot. And, you know, I think I think that we need to make sure that we are keeping score and telling the story outwardly of the way the reconciliation is shaped. A lot of this and, you know, it was organized in a way there was immediate, immediate mid-term, long term investments. And there's actually a really good story to tell on some of the immediate and the short term and medium term investments. And I want to see us tell that story a bit better. We launched the Office of Youth Development this year. That's important. We're investing in violence prevention. That's important. We didn't have staff for violence prevention before we adopted Measure US. That was called out in the re conciliation plan the voters adopted. That opens up the playbook, allows us we'll talk a little bit more about that. But I think that opens up the playbook, allows some down payments on some really important things like the youth fund. There's policy things in front of in front of us that we know some we move forward on that were called out inclusionary housing inclusive play box checked. There are some things that still are outstanding we know we need to do CPK reform. We funded the study. We look forward to closing that out and putting in front of the voters. You have a health equity center called out. There's an item this evening talking about the health equity center. There's alternative. A big, big item was alternative clinical response model that was big over the course of the past year. And we look forward to the update and where we are with alternative clinical response model. That's that's important the community that's for that and a whole host of other things that are really creative people have advocated for a long time. I've advocated for some of these for a long time, like down payment assistance, economic empowerment zones. Some of the economic inclusion work called out everyone in the community land trust. These are really, really good ideas and strategies that have been funded. And I look forward to an update where we can look comprehensively at where we are now in terms of major U.S. that that really I'm glad to see that here. Mary has opened up the playbook and we're fortunate to the voters for making that happen. I'm glad to see the great majority that almost $1,000,000 invested in youth. We need to make sure that you know we go back to particularly we invest in youth coalition is push for our youth fund for a very long time we're going to have a community discussion, a youth town hall with them on August 5th to take a deeper dive and hear directly from youth about now this is possible and the reality. What do we need to consider? I think the investments in community health from us I think is a great start. We've talked about investing as seniors in aging adults, the fact that we're going to have funding to dedicate now to that to help build out that program I think is good. And I think with climate, the goal was to have funding to leverage, to amplify the impact on accelerating our climate action adaptation plan. And what you see is an alignment that allows us to go out to groups like AQAP and others and multiply the impact on our climate resiliency programs. So we only have 5 minutes immaculate later, but we only have 5 minutes. But but I think these are things that I think need to be discussed in this budget and the things that in general, as an implementation point, we need to be better at telling the story and communicating outwardly the work, the good work that's happening within the city and understand the delta of where we still need to push. Thank you, Councilor Marie Ranga. Thank you. And I want to follow up on Vice

Mayor Richardson's comments regarding the discussions we're going to have in the future. On slide 27, you have a schedule there of hearings, and we're going to be coming up. And I know that three of those are going to be out in the community and encouraging the community to please come out to those public hearings so we can hear you and and share your thoughts and ideas as to how we can build a better budget for the city of Long Beach or build one at least that is strong and addresses all the needs that we have at the city. I also want to make sure that we are inclusive in our budget hearings that we have. We have all four points of our city east, west, north and south to make sure that there is an ample opportunity for people from all over the city to attend these hearings. One of the most important things that I think came up for me anyway. And I want to thank Councilmember Mungo and Councilmember Sarah, of course, our mayor, for bringing up the issues related to language access. Everybody knows that this has been a very important item for me in regards to communication, being able to talk to our people, to our residents from all languages, from all backgrounds, because we can't if we don't have and we don't speak their language. And so that's very important. And I'm glad that city manager, you brought up some issues there that are that are internal, that are actually built in to our language access program, such as bilingual staff. I know I can speak to it from a historical perspective. I used to be the the bilingual language assessor providing the skimpy. So I know that there are city staff out there who are receiving the skill page, but obviously it's not enough. We need a lot more and we probably need to budget it more. So I'm looking forward to those discussions and those hearings when we can throughout the city. Is there going to be a specific schedule in regards to what departments are going to be reviewed in these budget hearings as we move along, like, for example, August 3rd, August 10th, in August 17th, which I think are the three that you have scheduled in the community before we get our first adoption date of August 24th. I'm especially interested in in those departments that are non non city manager departments. I'm talking specifically about civil service department. I mean, they're they're the biggest department that does all our employment testing. They test for basically all jobs in the city. And that's where also the the bilingual skill comes in with the civil service department in regards to testing that these individuals apply for for these skilled jobs do, in fact, possess. So is there going to be a release of of a schedule of what departments are going to be coming to the city council or rephrase it to the budget hearings in the future? Yes. So we do have a proposal. We do this every year where we identify certain departments and then we get council feedback. And it's important that we get consensus. We have 23 department s and it's hard to do every single one and be efficient with your time. So we do want to get input from you on that. You can go through what those are. We had originally planned on kind of focusing since the changes are really in the Recovery Act that we focus a lot of the presentations on those that are getting resources and programs in the Recovery Act. So to. Council member. We have a budget hearing next on August 3rd for the CIP presentation. Then on August 10th, we have the health department and the police department presenting. And then on August 17th, we have the fire department and Economic Development Department presenting. And then two weeks following that or the following week, we have our first budget adoption night on August 24th. This is a pretty aggressive schedule. So I'm guessing, Mayor, that we're trying to adopt our budget while before September 30th or the date that we actually have to? No, I mean, the council always can adopt it whenever it would like up until that date. I think we also released the budget was also, I think probably out probably about two weeks earlier than normal. So I think the staff is adjusting for that time. So I think normally we probably have this conversation like two weeks from now or the first budget presentation. So I think it's just an adjustment for that. But we can I think any time the council wants to add an apartment to one of these sessions, I think we're able to just let Mr. Morgan to go at it. Yeah, I did have a brief discussion with Mr. Moore today about a presentation, and since I'm making a request also to include an department, perhaps we could do it at that time as well, or be able to accommodate other department presentations at a at a hearing if we need to adjust a just a schedule a little bit by, you know, the August 24 or when we back the August 24 through the seventh and the seven to the 14th. Yeah. And I would and I know that I would, I would connect definitely. I know that Councilmember Austin is not here, but I know that he's working on the schedule with staff as well. So definitely want to connect with him as well and we'll go from there. Thank you. Councilman and the house. Mayor And first of all, thank you for that great presentation to city staff, especially financial management. Thank you very much. Agree with most all of the comments being said by my colleagues tonight. One of my top priorities as a councilwoman is public safety. I think it's crucial for our city or our thriving city to be the best and make sure that our residents feel as safe as possible, especially our youth. I feel that they need to feel protected and our youth are usually seen as easy targets when they go alone to parks or, you know, to play basketball at the courts or even just walking home from school. So I wanted to see what if there was a if we could look into maybe the feasibility of establishing a program that would consist of police placing panic buttons throughout our parks, especially those that suffer the most violent crimes and and are most at risk. I think that, you know, if a child is in danger or feels harassed, that that would be something really good to have it where they could press the alert or the panic button and they could receive immediate help. I know that they have such a program like that at Cal State University, Long Beach, and would like to see what kind of feasibility that would be. And on another note, I think that one of the things that I've been like council member Ortega and Council member Sara Champion on is language access. One of the things that I worry about is not having the best interpretation for our residents when they come up and speak. You know, sometimes the the translation isn't as effective as it could be. So, again, I would like to see a feasibility on what it would be to to actually move the translation services in-house and actually be able to provide those, those individuals with training some of the wordings and terminology and words that we use during council meetings that we, our residents that don't speak English, can really get their true meaning across them by having by having these kinds of interpretations or employees that serve as interpreters in-house might be the best way to go. So I know we've we've been working really hard to get the best interpretation that we can get, but I think it would be very beneficial to us to have those in the house. So I'd like to see us look into that and let's see. And also I'd like to see us maybe look into the feasibility of building like community centers in the hardest hit neighborhoods with violent crimes. I think that prevent having programs that prevent violent crimes are are super important. So I'm really looking forward to seeing something like that. To be able to bring community centers to those particular areas, I think would be more than beneficial. Thank you. Thank you. Let me go ahead and just add up again. No. Okay. So thank you to the council for those comments. There'll be obviously additional opportunities for the budget hearing that will continue on. I just want to just make a note of three other items, Mr. City Manager, I know we can discuss in the weeks ahead. And these are things that have been mentioned to me by some council members community. I want to just first highlight, I think, some of what Vice Mayor Richard Sutton said around measure U.S.. I think one thing that you and I mentioned at the presentation that we did to to the media and to the community, we, I think, obviously, staff put together a proposal for measure us that is a lot of work from a lot of departments. And I think we also recognize, and I certainly do that it's the first year that Measure

USA is coming in and this was a community effort. And so I expect that there will be some dialog among the council and some strong thoughts about how that money should be spent in this first year. And so I think that staff should be ready to hear from council members. And as far as how those dollars should be, should be set aside, I think that broadly speaking, I think the proposal you guys have put together hits a lot of those major points, but I think there will be some dialog around that. So I just want to note that for the staff. I also want to note that I have had some conversations about, you know, in our in our budget, there is a proposal to change kind of how we do a helicopter patrol within the police department. And I think that's something that's been discussed in the past. And you send out information to the council in a memo. I do think that deserves broader discussion on this body this year as part of as part of this budget cycle as well. I think most of us are first and foremost concerned about safety and ensuring that the helicopter system that we have in place is able to do the work they need to do, particularly in across the city and in support to other jurisdictions and vice versa. So I'd like to ask staff to be prepared to have that conversation in the weeks ahead. And then I also want I'd like to ask Steph about there are resources in this budget for digital inclusion. And what I'm really excited about is today there was this huge announcement. I mean, the governor signed a I think a six, $7 billion digital inclusion bill, which dwarfs the enormous amount of money that we put in our digital inclusion, which is exciting. So I would just like I think we said in the budget that maybe we put maybe 2 million for digital inclusion. 1.8. It's 1.8. So I support that. But what I'd like to know in the next couple weeks also is what how much, considering the author of the Digital Inclusion Bill lives in Long Beach and she's very committed to bringing those resources down here. I just want to see if there's an opportunity to, you know, dramatically increase what we're actually going to spend on digital inclusion and ensure that the dollars that we put aside are if that's where they should be and they likely should be. But I just want to make sure that we're looking at the digital inclusion part of money that got signed by the governor today. And I think for those that hadn't heard, this is probably the biggest digital, digital and broadband investment in the state of California to low income communities and to communities that are underserved by broadband. So it's going to be substantial for us in Long Beach or we are excited about that. And so with that, there is a motion and a second to continue the hearing to the next meeting and receive and file the information that was presented. So, Members, please cast your vote on that. Motion carries. Ocean cares. Thank you. Let's read five in the consent, please. Report from financial management recommendation or award to contracts for the purchase and delivery of new tires for a total annual aggregate amount not to exceed 770,000 citywide. There's a motion about Councilman Price. Is there a second on this? It's going to be customary. Ringa, do we know who pulled this item? That was me. Okay. Did you. Did you want to. Yes. Can I just. Yeah, go ahead. Speak to the item council. Okay. Okay. Awesome. And thank you. I just have a couple comments. I pulled this item because I think it's really important that we support local businesses. And I wanted to understand, like, how much industrial tire the local company is getting on the contract. And I also want to make sure that our local procurements and preferences are more than just, you know, window dressing, that when we're awarding these these companies, these local companies, that they actually also get a significant amount of the contract because, as we all know, local businesses strengthen our local economy and communities. And I know that later on today, we're going to be talking about the procurement study and the 250,000 that's allocated for this. And I think it's very important that we look at minority owned businesses and disadvantaged businesses right here in our backyard. And I also in the future, I want to go further. I would like to see that on these RFPs and local business that we give a greater local preference to local businesses. I don't know what the preference is right now if it's 5%, but I would like to see it somewhere around 15%. So I look forward to bring in that item later on this year. I think there's a there is a much wider public comment on this item that was pulled. Please. Your. Motion carries. Thank you. We do have a we have two hearings. I wanted to if we traditionally always do the hearings first. But if there is any objection, there is an ADA item. And I think we're going to try to. Here are 88 items at the top of the agenda, if possible. So can we hear item 24? Here are 88 items at the top of the agenda, if possible. So can we hear item 24? Communication from Vice Mayor Richardson, Councilwoman Zendejas, Councilwoman Sauro, Councilman Austin. Recommendation to acknowledge and celebrate the 31st anniversary of the signing of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. And receive and file an update from Citizens Advisory Commission on Disabilities. Question.

RICHARDSON Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I wanted to start here first by thanking my colleagues and, second, Councilwoman Niehaus for coming in and joining us here. Most recently, I had a great conversation with some of the members of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Disabilities, and we talked about some of the important work that the commission is doing and how it's important that we integrate. We are fully inclusive and we integrate the interests and the voices of our residents, our differently abled residents, into everything that we do. And that that talks about advancing equity events that we plan, the Uptown Jazz Festival, all of those things. And so that conversation led to a request. They've asked that we bring them forward and hear from them on some of the work that they're doing, but also recognize this 31st anniversary of the signing of the

ADA. And so, with that said, I'd love to hear from the second of the motion and then invite up the team from Cape Cod to hear their presentation and take it from there. Thank you. Councilman. And there has. Thank you, Mayor. Thank you so much, Vice Mayor Richardson, for putting forward this item and Councilmember Austin and Councilwoman Sorrell for your support as well. First of all, I want to highlight that the fact that these three council city council representatives who live with no disability are presenting this item and gives me it brings me great joy to see this. It's a major milestone for us here at the city to be able to have other representatives living with no disabilities actually represent and present something that means so much to the disability community. And for that, I applaud you and it makes me really proud to be in on the city council with you. And it truly warms my heart to be part of a city council that is growing not only conscious nurse but also active. Lee committed to ensuring accessibility to ARM Because accessibility is not only an issue that should pertain to some, but rather it is a city issue that should pertain to. The key card members who presented the idea for this item. Is is in District nine, a District nine resident. And it makes me so happy to know that in our city, our residents with disabilities can feel the support of their vice mayor and city representatives on issues pertaining to accessibility. So once again, thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson, Council Member Austin and Council member Sulley Sorum for taking the initiative for and the step one's going one step further into more equitable and more accessible city that is conscious, mindful of our people, especially people with disabilities. That, in my opinion, is the best form of celebration we can have for the 31st anniversary of the signing of the Americans with Disabilities Act. That is upon us and has been signed in. That was signed in the year 20 I'm sorry, 1990. And I am so happy that that signing and that act has been the forefront and the reason for changing millions and millions of lives for the better, including mine. So thank you again. Thank you, Councilwoman Sara. Thank you, Mayor. I want to also thank the vice mayor, as well as bringing it forward with and council members and Diaz and Councilmember Austen. I do think it's truly important that we recognize the anniversary of the ADA, ADA. But I also want to make sure that we acknowledge that there still continues to be a lot of work done that I've learned from the Cape Cod that, you know, while things are ADA compliant, doesn't mean that it meets the needs of everybody around issues, around the sensibility. So it has to be mindful, too, that on this anniversary, while we celebrate the accomplishment of how far we have come to ensure that we're holding, you know, the values and moving forward to increasing accessibility, that we continue to do more and that we consider it in all of our projec ts that we do that we build in the city. Thank you. Thank you. With that, I think by summer. Did you say there was a presentation? Yes. The commission is going to give a presentation. Ninth District resident Nubia said. Daniel coming to the stage. The Chair of the commission. Now. Let me take off my mask. I am Nubia Flores, current chair of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Disabilities and resident of Council District nine. Thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson, for the invitation to speak during the special item at tonight's city council meeting. I'd like to also thank Mayor Garcia for the proclamation acknowledging this year's ADA anniversary. Organizations by and for people with disabilities have existed since the 1800s. Explorer exploding in popularity in the 1900s. Treatment and perceptions of disability have undergone transformations since the 1900s, largely because people with disabilities, caregivers and allies have demanded and created those changes. US Congress has passed over 50 pieces of legislation that support disability rights either directly or by recognizing and enforcing civil rights, including Brown versus Board of Education, which laid the groundwork for recognizing the rights of people with disabilities. To date, the 1990 to date the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act, also known as ADA and the subsequent ADA Amendments Act in 2008, are the movement's greatest legal achievements. 31 years after President George H.W. Bush signed the ADA, we've seen great progress, but still have far to go. I say this not to take away from the barriers the ADA has helped to eliminate, but to highlight the countless barriers that still exist. I believe that we can get to a place where barriers no longer exist, but only if we collectively work together. In 1976, the Long Beach Municipal Code was amended by the City Council that created the Citizens Advisory Commission on Disabilities, Cape Cod, for short. 44 years. This tells me that the city has taken seriously for a long time the importance and value of the disability community. The commissioners on Cape Cod, past and present, take great pride in our roles and the opportunities to make recommendations to the Mayor, Council and City Manager on behalf of the disability community. More recent recommendations have included modifications to the existing blue curve application process and policy. More accessible and inclusive park spaces, including mobility maps at our beaches, the discontinued use of certain models of truncated domes style guide recommendations. The importance of including intersectionality of race and disability in the framework for reconciliation and the call to action for people with disabilities to be considered a higher priority for COVID vaccine distribution. We have created recognized events that now occur annually, including Mentoring Day and Diem. We are consistently looking at creative ways to better engage the public, including new ways to hold events in the COVID area. O ne of our primary goals for 2021 is focused on equity and public space and working with the city on getting past the ADA checkbox. Because while the ADA requires equal access, it's important to remember that this required access is only minimum in scope. Our goal should always be to achieve more than the minimum. Equality does not equal equity, and signing for the city's signing on to the city's for all initiative is an invaluable next step for our city. As you all know, we've been working with each other, which each of your offices to schedule a meeting that allows you, allows for you to meet with us and hear from Cape Cod directly about things. We're working on our concerns and our hopes for establishing an ongoing working relationship not only with each district, but the city as a whole. Our meetings so far have been very productive and positive, and we look forward to meeting with the rest of you. Former Cape Cod chairperson and community advocate Deacon McLane always likes to remind us in our advocacy work the importance of being, and I'm quoting her a before thought and not an afterthought. Invite us Cape Cod to the table. We would love to consult on projects. It's essential to have a community that is the most impacted at the planning stages, and we advise that this include people with disabilities and the families of children with disabilities. How do we make our city and programs truly accessible without the lived experience of those most impacted? Inviting us to the table ensures that we identify opportunities together instead of missing them. I'm thankful for this opportunity to speak before you to lift up Cape Cod and the importance of the inclusion of people with disabilities in civic engagement . I stand before you not only as chairperson of Cape Cod. I stand here as a mother of a child with disabilities and an. Ally. I hope that in this moment, members of the public with disabilities, including families with children with disabilities, see our moment here as a call to action to become more engaged in the civic process and help foster the inclusion of people with disabilities. I hope that Council also sees this as a call to action to engage with leaders of the disability community and provide a space to support and value them as decision makers. As a mother, I look to these leaders in our city to guide us in this moment to help build a more inclusive, community, driven and accessible community for children like my own. Cape Cod is here to serve the public and also welcomes the public to follow our meetings. It's every second Thursday of the month at 1:00. Members of the public are invited to attend to listen and speak during public comment on items on our agenda or speak during public comment to share concerns in the community. We are excited that starting next month, Cape Cod will be led by a new chairperson, Commissioner Jennifer Kumi Armor, one of our city's most dedicated advocates. And before I wrap up, I'd like to recognize an d thank the rest of my fellow commissioners Gretchen, Kim, Victor, Steve, Jeremy and Chris as well. The city manager's office for the ongoing support of Cape Cod. Thank you again for this opportunity. We're here for you. Please take advantage of that. Thank you. Thank you so much. Let me go to Councilmember Turanga and I have a couple of comments and then we'll go to him. Thank you for that wonderful presentation. It's very well done and long overdue. I just want to mention that 30 years ago when this ADA first came into being, I was a member of the city's civil service department. I was a recruitment officer then, and it changed. It was a game changer for those especially seeking employment from the disability community. And it was it was a game changer in the sense that we were now required to put a statement under every job announcement that we had to be ADA compliant. And I think that's very important. It was a game changer for not only the city, but for the U.S. in general, for the country in terms of employment, for those with disabilities. So I would go to the ADA, I would go to Cape Cod meetings and talk about what were the employment opportunities that were existing then in the city and encouraged people to apply. And I think that we have a nice representative sample of people who have been applying for jobs with a similar language that we've hired. It wasn't easy because there are still people out there who feel that if you have any kind of disability, you're not eligible to apply for employment. And we know that that is wrong and that and that it's mistake. It's a mistaken belief that people with any kind of disability cannot do a job. I have a disability, if you want to call it that. I'm colorblind. So I would never be a police officer. I would never be a firefighter because my color blindness blindness keeps me from recognizing a red wire from a green wire, the regular color blind or what color of the vehicle was it and what was what was that perpetrator wearing in terms of color? So there are some jobs that can be restricted, but that doesn't mean that I couldn't be a good employee for the police department. So let's keep that in mind that there are all the alternatives and there are other ways to get jobs. So thank you for the presentation. And let's celebrate 30 years of ADA. Madam Clerk. Thank you. I'd like to gently remind everybody participating in this meeting and in this chamber that masks are required at all times. So if you can please keep your mask on when you're coming up to the podium to speak. Thank you. And massing to be kept on by everyone the entire time. Please. And Vice Mayor Richardson. Just briefly, Mayor, before you wrap it up, I just want to say thank you to Nubia. Thanks for referencing your incredible son, Elijah. You know, I think you do incredible work, Heather, as well, who you spent time on the 14th floor for many years. And Jennifer, look forward to your leadership as well. So we we hear you. We look for ward to continuing to partner and look forward to you, your excellent leadership on Cape Cod. So thank you. Thank you. And I just want to I just wanted to add, I think that obviously the commission key card is one of our most consequential active commissions. And you guys continue to do that work. And I'm just just so grateful to all of you. So I just want to thank you for always bringing bringing the council, so many ideas and so many changes of policy. And you also have a great staff support and and a great team. And Heather, you do a great a great job and you're such a great advocate for the commission to the staff. And so I just want to thank the commission itself, the leadership. Congratulations to Januvia, but also to Jennifer and just to the whole just the whole team of amazing commissioners. I will also add that I'm grateful for this and I'm grateful that we have such strong advocacy, not just from council members, but I would be remiss by just also just not addressing and saying that on this moment and and this recognition that one of the things I'm most proud of is we are also one of the few bodies that not just has, I think, an amazing commission, but also one of the few bodies in a country with someone with lived experience that's in a wheelchair on our city council. And I think when you think about the diversity of council members and perspectives, I'm really proud that the Lombard City Council also has someone with a disability that is that adds to her ability to advocate and provide us with an important perspective. So I'm grateful to council and I'm grateful to the commission. I'm grateful to all the advocates in the community. And so with that, we have a motion and a second. Please cast your votes. Motion carries. Great. Thank you. I do have two hearings, which we'll do. I because we have just one member for open public comment that is signed up. I'm going to let him go before the hearings. I know we to do the hearings first, but I want to let him speak. Mr. Cohen, please come forward. I think I. I thought I'd seen him here. Oh, there he is. And then we'll go right into it. We'll go right into both of our hearings. But it's got to turn on itself. We're actually going to pause 1/2. I think we did not do 23. So I wonder I wonder what the agenda aims for. So if I can have the clock, please. I'm 23, please. It'll be a quick vote. Report from Financial Management Recommendation to adopt a resolution authorizing city manager to execute a contract with Periscope Holdings Inc for Procurement Technology Solutions citywide. There's a motion or second is for public comment. Not on this item? No. Mr. Merkel, I don't know that we have of the agenda. Did you want to make a presentation or if you. Do, this is a pretty significant effort to really reform purchasing. We've been working on this for a couple of years and I hear from a number of you about how important purchasing is. So we were planning to take about 7. Minutes to. Go through a pres entation on this new system and what we're doing. Let's do it. Thank you. All right. Thank you very much. I will introduce Sandeep Singh Palmer, our deputy director. Good evening, Mayor, and members of the City Council. Thank you. For this opportunity to provide you with information about. The Department of Financial Management's. Proposed procurement technology purchase, along with how it fits into our work to make over procurement and Long Beach. With me tonight are Michelle Wilson, Long Beach's purchasing agent, and Acosta Goodman, our project manager. iPro at its core will manage our prospective vendor database, provide an. Online platform. For competitive solicitations, like our invitations to bid and request for proposals. Help us manage our small. Local and. Disadvantaged business data. Assist with important contract management tasks and help with reporting. Are purchasing a business services manager. Terry Mortenson was not able to be here tonight. Under her excellent direction. The purchasing division. Has worked for the last several years to evaluate and greatly improve its operations and citywide procurement in response to City Council, city leadership and city auditor requests. And iPro is an integral part of the extreme procurement makeover happening in Long Beach to make procurement more inclusive and responsive. There are many aspects involved in this comprehensive program update and Michele will be walking you through a few highlights to provide some insight about. How tonight's decision fits into that. Larger body of work. Thank you, sandy. And good evening, mayor. Members of City Council. In prior years updates we've provided you with information about critical program improvements such as streamlining insurance requirements and better categorization of vendors. Reform accelerated in 2020 with the kickoff of what we are calling our extreme procurement makeover. This is a deliberate and comprehensive remaking of the city's procurement operations. We are evaluating our policy process and practice to increase equity and access for vendors, enable better outcomes in our contracts, and to make things more efficient and strategic. Our extreme procurement makeover is enhanced by our partnership with Harvard Kennedy School Government Performance Lab, also known as GPL. EPO has a highly sought after fellowship program with hands on technical assistance, specifically in public procurement. They provide dedicated resources for change, along with access to their research and prior results through their work across the country, including recent projects in Boston, Chicago and Los Angeles, UPL is well-positioned to support us with the implementation of national industry best practices. Long Beach was seen as being on the cutting edge of a national movement for ambitious procurement reform. Building on our success in Year one, Gcpl has taken the rare step of assigning us not only one but two full time fellows to support an expanded scope of wo rk in year two, which was approved by City Council just a few weeks ago. One of our first steps was to formalize our guiding values, goals and metrics into a simplified strategic plan. We use national best practices from industry organizations and GPL, as well as important goals and principles from everyone in the framework for Reconciliation and the city's equity toolkit. This document guides our procurement reform, and we hold it to use ourselves accountable for making procurement more inviting, equitable, efficient and impactful. Another pillar of our reform was a complete renovation of our request for proposals. This document, which is one of the primary tools the city uses to select vendors for medium or large dollar purchases is now easier and more inviting to the business community. Their description of city needs lowers barriers to entry and better positioned small, local and disadvantaged businesses to submit proposals and ultimately to be awarded opportunities. We've been meeting with departments to enhance planning efforts as well. Procurement forecasting will allow city staff to do more and better local outreach for procurement opportunities, particularly important for disadvantaged vendors. It also allows us time to better partner with city stakeholders like the Department of Economic Development and the Business License Division to better coordinate efforts to help the local business community to have greater impact on the Long Beach economy. Our work this year has largely been internally focused to lay a strong foundation and we are now able to pivot and look outward. We will focus on inclusive procurement trends in three key strategies increasing accessibility to government contracting, improving engagement with the business community, and building capacity for vendors to compete for city business. We've throughout our makeover plans is the use of a new procurement management platform E pro which brings us back to the item before you tonight and I will pass it to Augusta. Thank you and good evening, Mayor. And members of City Council. IPRO will assist us in three critical areas, and the first. Is lowering barriers. The system is approachable and easy to use and will help us bridge the digital divide. We will expand our language access options and over time be able to help staff better. Source small dollar purchases from Long Beach businesses. Contract management tools will aid vendor relationships, improve contract outcomes, and improve compliance to contract terms. This will address some of the city auditor's concerns regarding contract management. And finally, iPro will help us make data driven operational decisions and better answer questions about the economic impact of the city's dollars. It will help us track vendor diversity goals. Support us while we continue to identify additional barriers and provide tools for analysis of procurement trends in the city. And I will pass back to Michel. Before you conclude, I'd like to take a moment to celebrate one final success with you. We just learned this past week that we won for the second year in a row a national achievement and excellence in procurement. We were one of only seven cities to be recognized and only five other cities that were longer larger than Long Beach. The review process for this award was extremely comprehensive. The criteria were designed to measure innovation, professionalism, productivity, e-procurement and leadership attributes of the procurement organization, and included components from the great work the team has done to support COVID 19 pandemic emergency response and recovery efforts. Procurement in Long Beach has changed and improved greatly over the last several years. We are becoming a national leader in even more change and improvement is still to come. You pro software before you tonight is an important part of that overall improvement. Thank you. And this concludes our presentation and we are available for any questions. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I want to thank the staff and the team. Contract management systems have been a consistent reporting issue in all of the city auditor's reports and having tools available that automate and ensure timely practices in a city of our size, especially with the turnover and opportunities for people to advance within a local government. You have staff that move before the term of a grant or a contract has expired, and it's unrealistic to think that a paper based system is going to be able to be viable in today's day and age when so much of what we do is on the computer. So I just want to thank you for ensuring that that was a big part of this. The only comment I have on the presentation, besides the fact that it was excellent, is that you talk about low dollar contracts to local vendors. And again, most of the time recently I haven't had to make comments on vendor selection because since Councilman Allen has joined the council, she's really taken the charge on that. And so I would just be repeating her comments. But consistently, it's not just low dollar contracts. I mean, there are times where we're buying $1,000,000 in tires from outside of our city. And that extra $0.02 of sales tax revenue is something that we need to compute into that bidding process of that additional value to us as a city. So I just want to make sure that's not just for low dollar value. We need to talk about the local jobs and other things that are viable. And a factor of that that I think we found to be particularly impactful during the pandemic is the number of local residents that are employed by a particular company. I think the more people in our city that they employ at a fair wage is a big impact. Thank you. All right. Thank you very much, Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So on. First, thanks to staff for this presentation. More importantly, thanks for the context in which you presented this presentation. It's been an ongoing conversation within the city abo ut how we can diversify and leverage our purchasing power to create local jobs, local economic input. And we always run into two barriers. One, our software is not designed in a way where we can easily point to and identify where the opportunities are, quantify how much we're actually spending in certain departments, in certain areas. And then secondly, it's hard to coordinate when you see you have a harbor department, you've got an airport, you've got different departments or maybe different processes. And implementing this allows a reset and begins to allow us to set some goals, particularly. I'm going to go back and do a refresher. So back in 2017, we adopted the Everyone airplane and it asked us to begin to get to a point where we can start setting a goal. L.A. County has a target. It's 10% of our procurement, targeted social enterprises, minority businesses, women owned businesses. More specifically, the recommendation is increase the percentage of city of Long Beach spending on local, small and diverse businesses by establishing a streamlined certification process, integrated vendor database and for Long Beach agencies and industry institutions and transparent supplier participation goals. Public procurement is one of the most powerful tools that local governments can deploy to foster more equitable Long Beach economies. That's the standard on the city council already adopted. And then last year, in terms of the framework for reconciliation, the framework calls on the city under goal one to ensure budget contracting procurement processes intentionally and equity equitably address past and present impacts of systemic racism and build positive futures for those most impacted. It calls for the creation of a resource and support center for new and small businesses to help them get started, participate and succeed in city procurement opportunities. It talks about upgrading technology to provide online versions of versions of that center. It also talks about creating and implementing policies and associated programs in addition to the technology updates that help our city ensure that contractors, vendors and consultants embrace and reflect the city's diversity. That means the outreach associated with the software and the training and education in our communities to make sure people know how to use the software. And simplifying our processes for participating in city procurement, including adjusting insurance requirements and simplifying and reducing required forms. All of these things have been voted on and direction has been given to make them a priority, ensuring that we have an equitable procurement system. What I see today with this adoption of this system makes all of these goals, and we're one step closer to making it a reality. And I think that's what's important here today. And so thank you so much. I'm proud to support this and I look forward to the follow up. And you know what the next steps look like in leveraging this to achieve those goals that we talked about. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Allen. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I am super excited about this presentation. As someone in my previous life who has responded to hundreds of RFPs throughout the state, Planet Bids is not fun. It's it's definitely some fun as a vendor. And it had a lot of problems. So I look forward to seeing this this rolled out. I also there are several questions that I have, so maybe we can do some of this offline, but just making sure that, you know, the outreach is important, but also that we are tracking, you know, how those awards are given on the system right away. And then also, I've had problems in the past, Planet Bids, where people were awarded contracts that weren't registered on Planet Bids. And I think the city has fixed that. But there's just this is just really exciting for our local businesses, and I just look forward to seeing this rolled out. So thank you very much. Thank you. General public comment. Republican. We will go ahead and cast a vote. Thank you. Councilwoman. I'll. Thank you. Next up. Let's go ahead and do items ten, 11, 12, 14 and 15, which are all the funds transfer, please? Item Tense Communication from Councilwoman Allen recommendation to increase appropriation in the City Manager Department by 400 to provide a contribution to our West women. Item 11 Communication from Councilman Allen. Recommendation to increase appropriations in the city manager's department by $705 to provide contribution to partners of Parks to support AOC seven. CAVUTO Street BLOCK Party on August 14, 2021. Adam, 14, is communication from councilmen subpoena recommendation to increase appropriation in the city manager's department by 400 to provide a donation to the Long Beach Suffrage 100. And item 15 is communication from Councilwoman Sara recommendation to increase appropriations in the City Manager Department by 400 to provide a contribution to Wild West woman. Thank you, Councilman Allen. I have no comments, but I support all these items. And Truman zero. Same thing that I support the items of supporting our women's Long Beach women's suffrage. Councilman Price. I'd like to make a friendly because this is an item that we were going to bring next week, but we pulled it for next week to add that council district three through our divide by $9 would be contributing $400 to Wild West Women Inc for the Long Beach 100th suffrage event and for $400. There's a. That's item ten. That's your money. I believe so, yes. Thank you. We have all the there is no public comment on these. There's no public coming. Please cast your votes. As women mango. Hell of a man, Alan. We should, Kerry. Thank you. I'm going to go ahead and move on to the five members of the public that are here to speak on public co mment. General public comment, please. We can have these. These folks, please line up at the podium in this order. Thank you very much. We're now moving to the budget hearing. Continuation, please. Budget Hearing Item nine report from Financial Management Recommendation to conduct a budget hearing to receive and discuss an overview of the proposed fiscal year 2022 Budget for the Department of Health and Human Services and Police CDI. Thank you. I'll turn this over to Mr. Modica. Now we're getting the presentation set up. Yes. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and members of the council. This is our third budget presentation. And as we enter budget season, you're going to hear from two really important and big departments today. You're going to hear from Health and Human Services and you're going to hear from police. And the next week you're going to hear from,

I believe, economic development fire and I believe civil service, or that might be the following week. But I wanted to make some entry comments about what you're going to hear tonight. So you're going to hear a lot of accomplishments, a lot of opportunities and challenges and a number of things that have happened. But I want to take us back about one year. Almost one year. Exactly. Tomorrow is the one year anniversary of the racial reconciliation plan. That was a monumental vote that we took as a as a body. And it was a culmination of a number of of outreach that we heard from a variety of different groups about the importance of looking at things a little differently. Here we are one year later and we heard a lot. For example, we heard we should have an alternative response program for homelessness and mental health. We just talked about the REACH program that's been implemented. We heard a lot about health equity. You're hear about us hiring a health equity manager and putting aside money towards health equity. We heard about alternate responses for incarceration of individuals and we you'll hear about our homeless court system and working with our prosecutor. We heard about the need for investing in youth. And you're going to hear about measure us funding in youth. We heard about mental alternative mental health response models, and that effort is underway and funded by the Recovery Act that this Council put funding towards. We heard about a reentry coordinator that was funded last year and is included. We heard for the need to invest in our health department. We have done 250 new positions in our health department that are supporting COVID response. We heard about the need for PD to interact in not just an enforcement setting, but interact with our community. And you'll hear about our PD Neighborhood Walk program. We heard about the need to look at things differently from a from a reform perspective, from a policy perspective. And you'll hear about the department's policy around Police Department's Office of Constitutional Policing, their collaboration with the Office of Equity. We also heard about the need for an early intervention program for PD, and that is being implemented through a program called IPRO. You'll hear about tonight. We also heard about diversity, mentoring and how important that was and diversity hiring in our police department. And there's new enhancements there. And then, of course, civilian position in positions in police department and looking at non sworn positions to do certain jobs. That is also included in our budget and that was implemented last year. I just wanted to kind of pull some of those major themes together. Those are things we heard from the Council on, things we specifically talked about a year ago, and a lot of progress has been made. And with that, I will turn it over to Kelly Collopy, our director of Health and Human Services. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members. You'll probably be tired of my voice by the end of this evening. Thank you for this opportunity to present the many Health Department FBI 21 accomplishments and FBI to you. Opportunities and challenges. The Health Department, the Health and Human Services Department launched a strategic plan earlier this year. Instead of providing a long list of the services we provide. I wanted to share these goals because all of our work aligns with moving these goals forward over the next five years. We seek to ensure people have the culturally competent health care and social supports they need to be healthy, that we have sufficient behavioral health services citywide to prevent and reduce mental illness, substance misuse and trauma that we prevent the spread of communicable diseases in Long Beach, and that people engage in healthy behaviors and have access to healthy food as well as safe and affordable opportunities for physical activity. We are also working to ensure permanent housing for people in Long Beach who are precariously housed or experiencing homelessness. That social and economic conditions are improved for people in Long Beach across their life spans. The preventable deaths and injuries are reduced, that communities are safe from violence, and that people live in safe environments and are prepared for emergencies. We know this is not possible without a department workforce that is strong, resilient and valued and a center of equity in trauma informed practices. If why 22 was even more busy than FBI 21, which is hard, is going to be even busier. And if I 21, which is hard to believe. The department puts forward important plans, technology and services while also distributing more than 10 million it CARES Act funding to support communities and responding to a massive COVID surge and vaccine implementation. And I think around us all, and the fact that we've been working through the largest public health crisis of our time and the pandemic, as well as the declaration of racism as a public health crisis. Through all of this, your Health and Human Services Department, in partnership with our sister departments and community member s, have been required to take on many roles and accomplish so much. I'd like to focus first on the COVID response. We began this work with a team of ten people focused on public health, emergency management and communicable disease response. We hired and trained more than 250 employees in the response so far. That in itself was a huge lift. Reestablish nationally recognized testing and vaccine infrastructures, providing more than 4000 tests in one day during the height of the surge and 6000 vaccines in a day at the convention center. These efforts continue and expand and contract based on demand and COVID transmission to create the greatest access to vaccine. We launched the mobile vaccine teams, which have now done more than 450 community clinics. We just moved into an expanded permanent distribution site to ensure the city and region have access to PPE and medical countermeasures. Reestablish a beach research line and a COVID vaccine line. All in all, more than 30,000 calls have been answered and more than 60,000 emails. Environmental Health joined the Vendor Task Force and educated more than 22,000 businesses and responded to 600 complaints related to COVID and reestablished an internationally recognized vaccination program at the port were coming for incoming international cargo ships. This program is ongoing. In the past year, we have launched a number of initiatives and plans as well as a flavored tobacco ban. We launched an internal integrated system of care, which is a common intake and referral system to strengthen services for people engaging with the health department to ensure a single intake to any of our programs, as well as connections to other services. We also launched the Unite US platform as a basis for referrals from the resource line to the community. Relaunch the Department Strategic Plan and the Strategic Plan for youth and emerging adults. And with that launched the Office of Youth Development and strengthened our violence prevention efforts. We also launched the Long Beach Advancing Peace Initiative, which envisions the city of Long Beach, where everyone lives in safe communities, attend safe schools and are contributing neighbors or contributor connecting to their community. They're working to develop and strengthen a community safety collaborative, a community led steering committee and neighborhood mobilization focused on neighborhood capacity, collaboration and alignment of resources and services. They're holding for block by block neighborhood parties. And the first in Washington neighborhood had more than 200 people from organizations and the community. And then earlier this year, we passed the tobacco to flavor tobacco ban, which is a strong stand. And I'm very proud of the city for moving that forward. Through all of this, we maintain an expanded many services across our department, including but certainly not limited to HIV infested testing and treatment risk and black infant health. Older adult supports health, education and environmental health inspections and approximately 30 other programs. The COVID pandemic certainly made meeting the needs of homeless people experiencing homelessness more difficult. We just had a long conversation about homelessness, and so I wanted to just to share with you that that has been a big accomplishment for the city. We've continued to see MSD operations and outreach with more than 7000 visits. We've already discussed the housing authority vouchers and the news and the new sites. We were able to permanently house 637 people even within the pandemic. And then supported housing for 6900 households through the Housing Choice voucher program. We've committed innovative models for homelessness as well, including the REACH program that we've just recently discussed. We're also partnering with UCLA to offer a mobile opioid treatment and HIV testing, testing and treatment in Long Beach hotspots to address the intersection of homelessness and housing, insecurity, energy, business, drug use and HIV and FTD infection. This is a very, very cool opportunity, and we're looking forward to increasing opportunity and cruising different locations with this model. And then as earlier discussed, we've launched the homeless drug court at the NSA in partnership with the city prosecutor. The CARES Act funding brought an incredible opportunity to support our communities most impacted by COVID. The department personnel had to be nimble and creative to find the best way to use these resources for maximum benefit. Through the Health Department portion of the funding, we fed thousands of people through meals and food distribution. Supported families with young children through developmental and physical activity kits, labor and formula supplies and subsidized care. We launched a mental health awareness campaign where you can see the posters all throughout Long Beach, and we provided approximately $1,000,000 of services to both our Latino and black communities for health, education and outreach. Mental health care care packages. Food distribution, and early childhood supplies. And we were able to provide services for more than 21,000 older adults through the resource line through distribution, transportation and care kits. We also fund a peer navigation for ages ten through 24, which focused on mentorship, peer to peer learning and connection to mental health services. Direct services to 484 domestic violence survivors. We remediated 65 properties for hazards that exacerbate COVID and provided operational supports for 102 local non-business nonprofits. That was a very busy six months. Our focus for FY22 continues to remain on pandemic response as we work to increase the number of people who are vaccinated and to ensure safety for our city, particularly in the face of the Delta variant induced surge currently taking place. We're also focusing on strengthening our department staffing and administrative capacity technology and building infrastructure.

Increase in funding. Staffing and programing in the past year has put serious pressure on all of our systems and we are working to ensure we can continue to prepare and respond to Long Beach Recovery Act brings significant opportunity to engage with our community and to expand opportunities for youth development, violence prevention, basic needs, housing, food security, mental health, early childhood and older adult services as well as people experiencing homelessness. Measure us also becomes available this year, providing approximately $900,000 for youth, including a youth fund to support community organizations. Structural funding to support an older adult coordinator and some grant writing and data support. Much needed a department that survives primarily off of grants. The various new funding opportunities also allow us to strengthen our health equity work, to work closely with our communities, to build health and wellness. We are hiring a health equity manager as well as a number of coordinators to work specifically with communities most impacted by COVID. As well as launching a Multicultural Health Council to bring communities together, develop integrated collective approaches to health and wellness. We know that the COVID 19 pandemic had the greatest impacts on our Latino and black populations in terms of cases, hospitalizations and deaths, as well as economic impacts. We will invest in the Vida Quinta Black Health Equity Collaborative Partners, as well as services and services, as well as focus on communities living in census tracts with the highest cases and lowest vaccine uptake. This health equity focus was called out in the Racial Equity and Reconciliation Report. In addition, we continue to focus on our goals outlined in that report. We're opening the Health Equity Center on North Long Beach in the next month. We're investing in black health and Latino health equity. We're completing a strategic we've completed the strategic plan and are opening the Office of Youth Development. We are strengthening violence prevention and reentry efforts through a number of programs and launching the REACH program, a model for alternative mental health response as we further develop alternative response models outside of the homeless population. The challenge is focused primarily on funding and capacity at this time. You hear about significant resources coming to the Health Department for pandemic response and community support. It is truly amazing what it is allowing us to do. However, these funds are only 2 to 3 year opportunities. Ongoing Sustainable Corps public health funding has not yet been made available through city, state or federal channels. Our core public health services in Long Beach are currently grant funded. Funding for programs outside of the pandemic response remain underfunded as need increases. Health Department fund balance was depleted in the early days of COVID. It has not been backfilled by other funding and we are not sure how FEMA will reimburse and buy one. We continue to need a comprehensive public health infrastructure in Long Beach to focus on health promotion and disease prevention post-pandemic. The fragmented funding has made it difficult to sustain even highly effective programs past the initial grant funded, often pilot stages. The demands this year have been extraordinary and exponential. The capacity to respond to meet expectation has truly been challenging as well as the ability of our internal finance and h.r. Systems to manage the grants and to hire quickly and maintain staff to meet the needs. We also are concerned because the social and health needs in our community continue to grow in this ongoing pandemic and these needs and challenges. All of us in the city. The challenges I discuss, however, have brought incredible opportunities in the past year and continue into this year. The new funding provides unprecedented opportunity to engage with our communities in planning and services, strengthening relationships, services and outcomes. We have hired more than 250 people to support the COVID response, nearly doubling the size of the Health Department's staff. We've strengthened health equity, provided much needed service to the community, and so much more. They've all jumped in and become strong. Stands for Public Health in our city, a significantly increase homeless services funding, which will allow for new programs such as our mobile messages, increase outreach and case management and additional housing opportunities, including the modular housing and our resource and referral platforms will allow for a better understanding of service availability and strengthen our ability to connect people to services they need. And finally, the opportunities for mental health campaigns to address stigma. The REACH team and partnering with the county to support alternative mental health response brings a new level of focus on mental health and access to care in our city. It has been truly been an extraordinary year for public health in Long Beach and across our nation. I am so, so proud of our health department team and all they've accomplished and continue to accomplish as an organization and as partners. To all of you in our work together to continue to push and achieve every day, even as they have experienced long days, uncomfortable jobs, staffing challenges, fear, family losses and ongoing change. Thank you for your support and understanding as we meet each new challenge and create new opportunities. With that, I conclude my presentation and I'm open for questions. Thank you. We're actually gonna do that for presentation first for all the departments, and then we'll go to the council. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Police Department is on their way out. Would you like to do both presentations and questions? Okay, we will do that. Our police department will now present. Thank you, Mr. Modica and Ms.. Tatum. Good evening, Honorable Mayor and members of the City Council

I. Tonight, Assistant Chief Hébert and I will be providing our proposed FY 22 budget presentation. As you are aware, the last year and a half has been tumultuous, not just in Long Beach, but across our country. We have focused on supporting the health and safety of our communities from the menace of COVID 19. The city has done a tremendous job of providing an unprecedented level of economic and community support to those most impacted. The men and women of the Long Beach Police Department are committed to serving our community and have demonstrated this commitment despite the risk to their own personal safety and well-being. In addition to the pandemic, we've also experienced unprecedented polarization and animosity towards law enforcement personnel. It is not easy to be a police officer, but the last year and a half has been particularly trying for our officers. I am proud to say that the men and women of the Long Beach Police Department did not avoid their duty to our community during this once in a lifetime pandemic event. At great risk to their health. Our employees reported to work every day supporting the city wide response efforts, working with persons experiencing homelessness, which we've heard a lot about in the last hour or so, and mental illness and addressing spikes in violent crime. I cannot say enough about the dedication, resilience and adaptability of our employees. We have made advancements over the past several years towards becoming more transparent and data driven, and we will continue to pursue this goal with unwavering focus, integrity and fortitude . Our department is committed to increased engagement, a sensible review of our practices and culture to ensure our principles reflect those of our community and proactively re-envisioning processes that would benefit from change. These practices will ensure good policing that is professional, empathetic and constitutional. That is what our community wants and deserves. And we will provide it. Before I jump into the budget discussion, I want to take a moment to thank you, the mayor. You, the city council and our city manager for their prudent use of the Federal Safety Recovery Funds to provide for a pause from budget reductions in fy22 and for the measure of funding that continues to support our community. Although there are no major budget reductions in FY 22, the police department will not become complacent. We will address the many upstream factors that have created an environment ripe for increased crime and gun violence, specifically by prohibitive possessors. I'd now like to turn some of this presentation over to Assistant Chief Wally Ibish to go over our core services and accomplishments. Thank you, Chief. And thank you, honorable mayor and council members. The police department provides a variety of public safety services in our community. Our core services include responding to 911 emergencies and calls for service 24 hours a day and seven days a week, conducting crimin al investigations and providing victim support. Working with local, state and federal partners on Homeland Security, which includes protecting major critical infrastructure throughout our city. Contracting in services with the Port Airport Metro Line and Long Beach Transit. In collaborating with multiple city departments and other partners to address violent crime. Support city efforts and assist with persons experiencing homelessness or mental illness through various alternative response models such as our met. Detail or quality of life teams and an integrated medical response. We also continue providing current services while the city and county explore alternative response models for persons experiencing homelessness and alternatives to incarceration. We spent count. We spent countless service hours focused on issues associated with homelessness. As mentioned, we also provide investigative services and resource information for victims of crime. Our detectives receive specialized training in trauma informed and victim centered investigations, enhancing their ability to serve as victim advocates. In addition, we work very closely with our nonprofit partners, and we're collaborating. And we're currently onboarding the trauma intervention program known as TIP, to provide support to emotionally traumatized community members after critical incidents. I'd also like to mention that none of this work would be possible without the support of our amazing professional staff. This next slide highlights some statistics that exemplify the great work of our employees. Our officers average over 1600 contacts per day, which includes responding to an average of 590 calls for service daily. While modifying our operations. In response to recent challenges, we still managed to keep our response time to priority one. Calls for service is one of the best in the nation. At less than 5 minutes. However, our priority two and three response times have increased. Like many major cities, Long Beach began 2021 with a significant increase in violent crime. In January of this year, firearm assaults increased 280% compared to January of 2020. Here you see the results of the hard work our employees have been doing. Although firearm assaults are up 53% citywide year to date, we are now seeing a downward trend in firearm assaults. July data shows a 33% reduction in shootings as compared to January of this year. Our officers. Our officers have worked tirelessly to impact the illegal possession of firearms and have already seized over 631 guns. 105. Those are known as ghost guns. Self-Assembled firearms often made by parts ordered online. We've made over 352 firearm related arrests. 209 of those have been for prohibited possessors. That's a 62% increase compared to the same time last year. As we continue into the second half of 2021, we're committed to working to prevent nationwide trends and violence from becoming normalized. Here's an example of some of our social media posts highl ighting the neighborhood watch program and our coordinated response team. Two initiatives which have been designed to help us work with our community to impact violent crime. Both programs require community engagement and neighborhood awareness regarding our public safety efforts. EARNEST. Community engagement builds trust and legitimacy. This is fundamental to strengthening the connection between officers and the community we serve. In FY 21, we created the Office of Constitutional Policing, OCP. This office ensures the department meets community public safety concerns through a forward looking analysis of current policies, procedures and training. OCP works collaboratively with the Office of Equity on initiatives associated with building greater public trust and strengthening relationships through increased responsiveness, transparency and accountability. It's part of the department's ongoing commitment to community engagement. We created a community advisory committee to assist in policy review and creation. This committee provides input on department policies that impact community police interactions. Through OCP. We've also conducted training on the use of our early intervention program known as the Pro. All sworn supervisors are able to use pro to enhance the recognition of behavior patterns when employees have been involved in a higher than average number of key performance indicators. Supervisors are trained to conduct detailed reviews in mentoring sessions to modify behavior and improve performance. You'll also see here on this slide the many institutions we are partnering with to ensure we are in line with best practices and community expectations. These partnerships include the Center for Policing Equity, Harvard USC brand, Georgetown University and Long Beach State. In addition, ensuring we are delivering on our promise of constitutional policing. We need to safeguard the physical and psychological well-being of our employees. With the assistance of Counseling Team International. We are doing just that. We're working to expand counseling services to include a peer support program for both our sworn and professional staff. And we've applied for grant funding to help with this effort. At this point, I'd like to turn the presentation back over to Chief Lynagh to talk about our FY 22 focus. Thank you for your time. Thank you, Assistant Chief. Although there were few budgetary changes for FY 22, there are still important things taking place within the police department. I will highlight only a few and then move on to the work that we will be doing with the Long Beach Safety Recovery Fund allocation in FY 22. We will continue to focus on onboarding civilian positions. In addition, we will be enhancing proactive, connection based recruitment, retention and advancement efforts by setting aside funds for a diversity, recruitment, mentorship and partnership program. With the help of our partners in the

uit for and hold to 50 person police academies in FY 22. Ideally, we would start the first academy sometime in the fall. Furthermore, we will continue our focus on technology in FY 22 with more efficient systems like a new records management system. E citations and recruitment and scheduling technology. In addition to programs funded through our operating budget, I am grateful for the additional investments in public safety and violence prevention, which is being provided through the Long Beach Safety Recovery Plan. These funds will provide for both upstream and downstream violence prevention and crime reduction activities. Here you will see some initiatives that will continue to impact violent crime and strengthen, strengthen relationships in our community throughout FY22, including a new training program to support accountability. As a police chief, I am ever vigilant and aware of the challenges not only facing our department, but other police departments across our nation. Higher crime rates than we have seen in many years. Lower staffing due to prior budget reductions and higher attrition and recruitment challenges equate to fewer resources to respond to and investigate crime and homeless challenges. In addition, changes in the criminal justice system have led some habitual offenders not being held accountable for violent crimes or serious felony property crimes. To address these challenges, we are reprioritizing and taking positions from other areas of our department in attempt to reconcile the demand and community expectations with our current resources. Our department experienced high attrition of sworn personnel in FY 21 and will experience numerous retirements and separations this year as well. There is a lot of speculation as to the cause of the recent increases in the level of attrition. There are no simple answers. It's a tough job that is heavily scrutinized and criticized. The continuous disparagement of the police negatively impacts our ability to hire a workforce that accurately, accurately represents the demographics of our city. Unfunded legislative mandates pose additional challenges for law enforcement. I'm not opposed to making changes in our department to enhance transparency, accountability and trust. But there should be funding behind it. Most of our department budget is dedicated to sworn staffing who respond to the needs of our community, leaving limited staffing for administrative support, transparency and other accountability functions. Even with all these challenges, I still believe that being a police officer is the greatest job in the world. I wouldn't trade a day of it, and I know that a career with the Long Beach Police Department will be just as rewarding for new officers. As it has been for me. Despite the many challenges we face today, our department is hopeful for new opportunities in FY 22. We are a nimble department that has been able to pivot and handle all the challenges thrown at us since FY 20, and I be lieve we will continue to do so in FY 22. Our proposed budget and the allocation from the Long Beach Safety Recovery Plan will allow us to continue to reduce crime while engaging our community through various programs. We will also continue to work with. Community organizations and youth at a level we have not had an opportunity to do so since the Great Recession. We look forward to developing new strategies that promote connections between patrol officers and the community that they serve. Again, I would like to thank the mayor and City Council for the measure. A funding to build a new training facility. We hope to break ground in FY 22. Lastly, we commit to the continuous hiring of diverse recruit classes and placing special emphasis on candidates who align with the values of our community. In closing, I want to thank the men and women of the Long Beach Police Department who I am proud to serve alongside every day because of their service and dedication. I am confident that we will build on our existing strengths and knowledge while continuing to learn and improve. We will continue to analyze data to identify root causes of crime and focus on community policing, sincere engagement, and community and officer wellness. Our dedication to fair, just and equitable policing will allow us to continue making advancements towards realizing our vision of a safe city for all by achieving our mission of public safety. Through partnerships. And with that, I thank you. I know we're going to answer questions between the health department and police department, but just we talk about diversity and we talk about all our efforts of diversity. And if you look at this table here in front of you, I'm the first Hispanic chief in the history of the police department. I have one of the highest ranking Muslim American police executives in the entire country of the United States and the assistant chief and sitting next to him as bureau chief. Julissa Jose Murray, who is our basically our our bureau manager, our finance chief. Look at our faces. When we talk about diversity. We're not just talking about it. We are diversity. We are the people who are making decisions for this police department. And that's counter to a narrative that's out there that we don't do that. So with that, we'll turn it over to all of you. And I look forward to all your questions. Thank you, Chief. I appreciate both presentations. Unless there's any objection, we're going to do public comment first. There's a significant amount of public comment. So we want to get through the public comment and then I'll turn it over to the Council for further comment. So, Madam Clerk. Can I have the first five speaker approach to the podium? Starting with Karen Resi. Maurice Coleman. Giovanna Ferrero. Maggi Collins and Audrina Redman. Please line up. Thank you for those detailed presentations, but listening to the presentations. Karen Reside I'm representing Long Beach, Gray Panthers. We do education and advocac y on older adult issues and we're part of the People's Budget Coalition. I have an 8420 2% of the population. That's ridiculous. This is what we're being given. Does our city really care about seniors? That's why we're asking for $2 million. Cynthia, how has done a phenomenal job in getting a group of us going on older adult issues. She has to have funding to update the plan for seniors. We don't really have a plan. It was done ten years ago. Does that include the baby boomers? I mean, are we really going to continue to ignore older adults? We took most of the death burdens during the pandemic. We're actually still under stay at home orders. There's a lot of us missing tonight because too many were afraid to go out because of the Delta variant. There's a lot of things moving in a positive direction. We just want to be included in the positive movement. I don't think that's too much to ask. We pay most of the taxes. We have most of the wealth in the city. And it's like we're not being paid attention to in the budget and for the police department. You're too expensive and you don't really do anything for older people. So it's time that we look at different ways and you need to address older adult needs and issues. I think. Hello. My name is Magic Collins. I'm part of B World Collaborative in Long Beach. And for me, I don't get the whole campaign on. We're nice guys. I understand. I see your humanity. No, we don't have to do the campaign. And for what we've gone through, the community has done nothing but show their strength as they've created food, drive the Fed to the public. They fought the house, the homeless. We don't have the campaign. We're we're kind. We know we're human beings. That's why we're here. Everybody here right now, we're not. We're here to fight for something that's real. We don't have the campaign that things are working in the streets. If we empower the leaders, they will tell the truth. They will tell everybody that it's working. We don't have to campaign on that. Disproportionately African-Americans are the most the homeless. The impact of violence. Violence has already been normalized. Sometimes addiction, spousal abuse, mental illness, trauma, watching. Loved ones paths. Foster care system. Food. Apartheid. Compounded medical issues. Militarized police force. The African-American community. This is a mental health emergency. Thank you. Your time is up. Thank you. Giovanna. Hi. Thank you all for being here. And I just want to make sure that one thing is discussed in these presentations. I understand you're giving us information. You're giving us statistical information. You're giving us the hope that you, you know, want to relay. You're not discussing racism. You're not discussing classism. This is the core. I don't know why that's not being talked about. I understand you need to give us information. Thank you for that. I'm not saying y'all aren't doing anything. It's not enough when it comes to this. It's just not you. You look at that budget. 1%, 1%. The smallest piece of the pie should be the biggest piece of the pie. It's not enough. You got people out here. These are your constituents. We don't we know what we're talking about because we have experiences with with you on this side, in your uniforms. And those experiences are very real. The accountability and lack of diversity. And Chief Luna. I can't get over the comment. The day of the protests and what happened in downtown. This poor man has his young girl on his shoulders. This black man. And your comment in quote is he should have been arrested for child endangerment. Thank you. Your time is up. We have Magic Collins. Adrina Redman. Pamela Fields. Tesla coal. Kenny Allan. Please line up at the pole. Maggie Collins. Adrienne Redman. Pamela Fields. Classical. Remember him? Chip Luna. My name is Pamela Fields. I'm the mother of Dante Jordan, who was killed by Long Beach Police Department on November 10th. 2013. This budget is ridiculous. What about mental health? What about putting their money into the communities? You guys don't live in our community. You don't see what? Go on. You go on back home where you live. Words are plush and everything, and you come on in our communities to rob, kill and destroy mostly. So where is the money going to go to? Why did you guys get a big chunk of the money? What about the aftermath? And you cannot charge here.

Nobody offered me any counseling. Nothing. Nobody even told me my son was dead for a long time and it wasn't no police officer that taught me how to find out in the streets. And you guys ought to be ashamed of yourself. You shoot first, a line later. Please approach the podium. Hi. My name is Tessa. I'm a resident of District three. I'm here to express my support, along with all my friends here for the priorities outlined in the people's budget. I recognize that we have seen some marginal shifts in budget priorities, some of them hard won, but they are wildly insufficient. For the realities we're facing. I mean, we just heard so much today. Amount housing, reentry programs, health programs, and so much more. They could all use this funding. It's heartbreaking to hear our own health department leaders tell us that there isn't enough funding over and over again for these programs. And Longreach PD sits here with almost half the city budget. And we heard some great ideas mentioned here tonight. But. Our budget doesn't reflect what we need. Having the police continue to play roles way outside their job description and training is not part of the solution. It's part of the problem. If you want to prevent crime and you want to bring our city into a successful future, you need to embrace the priorities in the people's budget and support health and support care, not cops. Thank you. Thank. Good evening, Mr. Mayor, and city council members. My name is Kenny Allen. I live in the second district of Long Beach, and I'm here to echo the voice of the community in asking that you adopt the people's budget demands specifically to reduce the police department budget by 65 million and reinvest that in our community. The city manager prefaced this budget hearing by listing what he thinks are examples of the city listening and responding to community concerns. Clearly, you've misheard us. We have not been asking for better police training, more police diversity or more constitutional methods of policing. Those things are not the problem. The problem is the dramatic and unprecedented expansion and intensity of policing in the last 40 years a fundamental shift of the role of police in society. The problem is the police themselves. Here is your second chance to listen. We're not asking for more equitable policing. We are asking for our money back 65 million. That is what we are asking for it. Do not miss. Hear us again. Thank you, a. We have your age. Ms.. Dell Lora age and yeah. Led, please line up. As a reminder, please keep your mask on while speaking at podium. Hi everyone. My name is Jamilah and I'm a community organizer with the Long Beach Immigrants Rights Coalition. I want to slow down for just a minute and consider the fact that we are listening to a presentation by the very same department who will benefit in funding by using the scare tactics of crime. Unfortunately, ultimately, police are violence workers. Their response to violence is more violence or threat of violence. This means police contact and police resources automatically means violence because cops out of their own violence to them already what's happening in the mix? So as Tamara, an opera says, instead of being violence prevention, cops are violence promoters. The evidence that police stop people from killing each other is weaker than many people previously thought. While the evidence of police killing people is strong, the statistics presented by the Long Beach Police Department today consider shoplifting out of necessity to be a crime. But what about the theft of funding from art communities that has been giving to policing? To me, that sounds like theft. We're asking for funding to be giving to community programs like the ones listed on the people's budgets demand. Defund the police by at least 25%. And give funding to the programs that meet our community needs. Thank you. Your time is up. Well, I want not just sorry. Pertaining to that immigrant lobby that as opposed to the limit of 20% and departamento policy are the technology over here, Nancy. Last year, the upright last year during the uprisings, many cities, including Long Beach, vowed to implement structural changes and deemed racism a public health crisis. Today, I call on you, Mayor Garcia, and all you council members and the city manager to allocate funds towards programs that actually help communities recover from the pandemic. Instead of funding the police department with millions of dollars, additionally, police funding will only increase violence in our communities and fill up our jails and prisons with people of color . Police don't stop violence no matter how big their budgets are. What the real question you should be asking is what are the root causes of these inequities, this inequality? And what can Long Beach do to help our community thrive? I urge you to please divest from police and invest in programs that establish rental housing divisions. Support youth recovery. Fully fund the right to counsel and language access. Thank you. Thank you. Allowing as much as they willing. Garcia. Good evening. My name is Evelyn Garcia. SOPA under the late Jose. I thought they were all in the same boat. The La Policia. To accept the budget, the people's budget and defund the police. And stay in control. The man the that I mean. I am against the technology for facial recognition. That I mean they certainly dress automatic or the placards get certain money then we grant the amnesty and. Also to stop using the license plate readers that affect mostly our youth and our community. And still keep our abogado busy. I am here to advocate also for the Division of Housing for Rent. And some of the enormous reservoir of poverty, that of the rent that. We are losing our houses, our homes, because we cannot pay the rent. And this is it may be acceptable para money that. We need acceptable housing for our own communities. Guerrasio Fortescue Chairman, you broke a dominant Kwanza. And thanks for listening to me and for taking this into account. I hope. Inadmissible remarks come when the recognizing me into fashion or let automatically pluck us in three orders. I am here to request this honorable council of Language to accept the people's budget and also to stop using facial recognition software and also license plate recognition software. Among other things. Is the technology embedded in strip privacy that in resistant, informative and worthless community assembly levels. This kind of technology is an invasion of privacy. It is racist and it doesn't protect our communities. This embolden and Annapolis here is informed. Those have already amassed majorities. Defund the police and use these funding to for programs. It's good to see you again. Victor Sanchez, the project director of the Language Coalition for Good Jobs in a Healthy Community. I just wanted to say, unfortunately, we had a few members of workers actually that were here who had to leave home early because they work very early. And I regret that this item was moved so late because of that. And there are a lot of members whose names have been called and have not been able. To give testimony that I. Wish they would have. So I just wanted to acknowledge that before I give my remarks, I will say that, you know, our coalition has had about 1200 conversations in the last three months with all renters in Long Beach. And two things really stood out. 98% of them believe that more is needed on behalf of the city with regards to rent relief and resources to fight illegal eviction notices that continue to make in front of in front of them. 97% of those respondents believe that there should be greater investment in social programs and direct relief for marginalized communities. Rather than increasing the budget. For the LAPD. In this pandemic has only worsened the pressure these families are facing. And so we're asking that you reallocate money from the LAPD to address the root causes. That a lot of these families are having to deal with during this. Time. And specifically, the housing needs that are mentioned in the people's budget, the community land trust investment, the full funding of the Right to counsel program, and the creation of a housing department specifically that can liaise. With landlords and tenants. So again, I ask that you adopt the people's budget. Thank you very much. Danielle. Real little. Camilla Holmes. Magnolia. Pre. Pre. Ada. Jane. Alfonso. Mary. Joan. Good evening. My name is Camilla, and I have been a resident of Long Beach since 93 and a sixth District resident for about 20 years. The following is my assessment of some of some of the community needs and what I think should be prioritized in the budget over the Long Beach. Over Long Beach Police Department. Based on my own observations. Well, I do see. That there is that there is not enough housing services, mental health services and health services. And this has been. Mirrored in the previous presentations today. From downtown to north Long Beach, you can see a steady landscape that evidences an unreasonable or unreasonably large. Population of houseless people. Tents line the river and increasingly our streets. People are walking around often clearly in some sort of mental distress. We need resources for them. We need the health department to be fully funded. We need resources for our children. I was happy to see that Parks and Rec set up some mobile recreation programs some months ago. We need more of that. We need more resources for our

libraries. The libraries play such a vital role in the city, especially in lower income neighborhoods. In normal times, they provide tutoring or just a place to go internet for those who don't have it job resources, other educational resources. And the list goes on and on. The library should not have to do private fundraising to run their stellar, beneficial programs. One police department. Must have had most of the city budget. There. Your time is up. Next picture. Please. I'm Jane Alfonso, and I'm chair of the Justice and Peace Committee at the South Coast Interfaith Council. And I represent hundreds of faith leaders in both the Interfaith Council and Clergy and Laity United for Economic Justice. And I'm asking. You to pass the. People's budget. Faith communities share the values. Of justice. Including economic justice. And peace. Love of neighbor and care of neighbor, and privileging the most vulnerable. Imagine a budget that prioritized people and not police and prioritized the most marginalized. You've seen that we need to invest in housing and health. Seniors and youth, not police. A budget is a moral document. It's a spiritual document. Long Beach can invest in equity and care, not fear and scarcity. The people's budget reflects the structural changes and economic justice that reallocate assets to black lives. Undocumented, other people of color and all march and marginalized communities. Mayor Eric Garcia suggested that Long Beach could be a model for housing policy. Why not pass a model budget? Faith Leaders. We will continue to pray for you as you deliberate on passing a people's budget. Thank you. Hmm. Hmm. I'm not sure what you mean either. And so I keep an eye on the school channel and the silhouette of the black woman with other equal numbers. I am deliberate, and I am here for to tell you about the needs in the Long Beach community. Yeah, personally. I did not bring the necessity recourses, but I look at in massive capacity my muscle data. Well, on the carousel seahorse, they would only be just close around him. One thing that we need first is a safe place for our single parents to be able to drop their children while they are going to work. You can see an accessible asparagus. For them for those spaces to be affordable. It's a necessity. Amala you must tell you that perilous persona, the letters that are going on out them, I say what goes on. They just put on a stern pseudonym in the case of familiar travel or personas give you and soldiers. And also we need help for places for the elderly to feel safe while their children are working. Getting entry and thus accessible is precarious. But look, look, use commodious boy, then begin. To have affordable rent in order for them to be able to live anywhere they really can leave. But again, not all. And they're going to go there be. Because not everyone can get access to government help. It does mean precarious, turbulent animosity with others. But alas, foreigners in the news n otwithstanding luxuries like Leandro Paredes will see another August. And also to have more activities for children and the youth to keep them away from the street, from doing graffiti and getting into trouble. With soil area. So an unfortunate surprise. That the future of this country. Ever ultimate Syria movie. When Musk Inarritu called Marcel persona la la policia capable, they are confronting Neos in not the Netherlands meu guan are you not Americans in Gaza and start to say what does get banal? You got other inaugurals, but I love persona comprar lima and all the other organs. And also to train the police department to teach them so we can trust them and not have

fear. Every time there is an emergency, we should be able to trust them and not have fear that they are going to come with violence and shoot people even people with mental issues. There in the do Carlos Spaghetti Newcastle welcome to actor article so Scousers who can do the mask on a problem. So they want to be better trained in order to learn and know what to do in those cases when they face that kind of situation. But I can say I'm patella solution in moment that I problem. For them to be part of the solution and not to increase. The problem. Is that people punto a mysterious burial of the men in children as yes. That is my point of view and I hope you are taking into account. Thank you very much. You know since. The nursing. Good evening, Mayor Garcia and council members. Good to see you all. My name is Mary you. I am a pastor and a faith rooted organizer. With Clergy and Laity. United for Economic Justice, also known as CLU. And today I represent hundreds of faith leaders connected through Crewe. To ask our City Council and Mayor to adopt the people's budget to ensure safety and health for our community in Long Beach. We want our city to be safe and free from violence. Then we need to stop using violence to end violence. Because we cannot. Expect to stop the fire by using more fire. And so we need more resources of. Care if we want a healthy. City. And I know that all of you want that for our community. And I love Long Beach because our community here is strong and compassionate. We take care of one another and you see that through this pandemic year. So if our city gives more resources to our community by divesting funding from the police department, our community can protect and take care of one another. Well. So this is a sustainable way to ensure public safety and public health. In particular, we need more investment to address the housing crisis in Long Beach as we talk about this tonight. Just a 2% cut in the police budget could fully fund a ten and right to council program that could provide legal defense and protection for 1700 families, which would prevent homelessness. So this is a great opportunity for our city council to take bold leadership and to lead with the values of care and equity. Thank you. Margarita Valenzuela City. Gabby. Vicky. Tanisha. NAB. Christianson

. Good evening, Mayor and council members, city manager and city staff. My name is. Margarita. Valenzuela and I'm an organizer with the Long Beach Coalition for Good Jobs and Healthy Community. We are calling on Mayor Garcia and all nine city council members and the city manager to adopt the people's budget for fiscal year 2022 and structurally reform the city budget process to enable earlier and deeper participation for marginalized communities who are most impacted by budget decisions. We believe Black Lives Matter and all our communities cannot wait any longer. We demand support, legal representation for immigrants by boosting funding to be through the Long Beach. Justice Fund. To provide. Free, universal legal representation to immigrant residents facing deportation. I have personally spoken to community who continue to struggle to find the resources they need to stay in Long Beach. Expanding the justice fund will only help more families who are struggling because of the pandemic. We ask you to support the demands of the people's budget. Thank you. First off, I want to thank you, Mayor Garcia, and council members, for your time. My name is City Men and I am part of the Long Beach Immigrant Rights Coalition. I'm here to express to the Lonely City Council members why it's important to defund the police and adopt the people's budget. Does the police department really need more money? No. I heard one of the reason to build a more diverse police force, and that is not in keeping our communities healthy. To keep our community healthy, we need to invest in it. We need to invest in the community. We need to defund the police for no less than 25% and give it to programs that will keep the community healthy. Adopt the people's budget, which is needed. There are other programs like housing assistance, providing legal counsel and providing funds for immigrant communities. I am impacted immigrant and I'm letting you know right now that the community needs the fund, not the police. So let us defund the police department and use it for the people budget. Use it to reinvest in the communities, the marginalized communities, the communities of color. Thank you for listening. And I hope and pray that you would take steps to support our community. Thank you. Good evening. My name is. Gordon Anders, and I'm the executive. Director for the Long Beach Immigrants Coalition, a member organization of the People's Budget, Long Beach. First, I want to thank the Council for Investing in the Justice Fund, allocating additional money from the American Rescue Plan to make this program better. The immigrant community in Long Beach deserve this. However, I also want to express my frustration and disappointment in seeing the proposed increase in funding for the police department. This now means we're spending over $700,000 a year a day in policing again, 700,000 a day in policing. Rather than focusing on the root causes of increased violence and economic crisis, skyrocketing g un sales and an increased pressure on communities already pushed to the brink of survival. The systems, the symptoms being used to justify pouring more money and more resources into policing, policing instead of community based safety strategies. Cops do not keep us safe, nor do they stop violence. The best way to reduce violence and increase safety is to increase access to health care, housing, mental health care, education, sustainable and living wages and community care, connection and programs. It's time to recognize that decades of pouring more money, resources and legitimacy into policing and effort to increase safety have failed because policing is functioning as it is intended to do, which is to contain control and criminalize black and brown communities right near them. Thank you. Hello. My name is Vicky and I am the rapid response coordinator for the Long Beach Immigrant Rights Coalition. I'm here today alongside my community, to demand that the city council defund the proposed police budget by at least 25% and invest those funds back into the people's budget. 25% of the police budget is $65 million. Imagine what this money can do for a community. Imagine this money invested into affordable housing as the rapid response coordinator. I wish I had the opportunity to coordinate and fund a fund made up of private donations. Not federal, not state and not city, but private donations. Do you want to know what the biggest need from those applicants were? Rent. I ask how in the middle of a pandemic did the city offer so little rent relief to our communities? Who needed it most? Again, imagine the support the city can provide to families if we defund the police and reallocate those funds to community. I also heard today that there is a concern about communities that are about community members that are chronically homeless. I want to ask how many council members have actually talked to members of our community that are unhoused? If you had, you'd understand that it's not just about getting a roof over someone's head or placing someone in a hotel room as Project Homekey does. If you've ever spoken to an unhoused community member, you know that they're just trying to survive the day. So we need to invest in programs like mental health care, detox food and direct cash assistance. Again. Least by at least 20. Station. NAB Christianson. Alia. Ramirez. Jessie. Alka. Abraham Zavala and Juan and Vanessa, please line up. Elliot. Jesse Abraham. And I'm Vanessa. Hello. Good evening. My name's Vanessa, and I am part of the Long Beach Immigrant Rights Coalition to damn. Demanding that the Long Beach. City Council defund the police and adopt the people's budget. The police department does not need any more money. Instead, we should be investing in the community. Investing in the community hubs, decreased crime, investing in the police department creates fear in our community. They use technology that targets minority communities, although the police d epartment says that they do not share information with Immigration Customs Enforcement. We know that the. Contractors carry license plate readers and facial recognition that is shared with them. I asked that police. I ask why the police need such a huge chunk of. Funding for tools that have been proven. To be racist, abusive, invasive and efficient. Long Beach is a wonderful city that prides itself on being friendly and diverse, and let's invest more into our communities to create a safe and welcome welcoming place for everyone by investing in education, childcare, and affordable housing by defunding the police. Thank you. Good evening. My name is Abrams, Apollo organizer with Long Beach. Residents Empowered. We're part of the people's budget as well, the People's Budget Coalition. Just to talk a little bit more about what we're asking, why we're asking the reallocation of funds to already overly funded department, to put that into a lot of the things that we need in the communities. So just to give a picture, right, when we say to meet the gap of what it's being proposed already for the rental housing division. Right. To meet those gaps. It would it would be the not invest in 1111 more cops on the street right to think about one we would take to meet the gap for right to council the right for tenants to have someone to defend them in eviction court and things like that. Not investing in 33 more police officers would help you meet that gap to fully fund the right to council program. And lastly, the idea of lack of ownership, right ownership in our communities, community land trusts, the ability to create permanently affordable housing while allowing low income residents to build generational wealth as homeowners not investing in 27 parks and investing fully right in TLT, that's the amount we're talking for. So it's possible, it's possible to reimagine how we allocate wealth, money into our communities. And on those three points, I want to just speak on that as as myself. I always like to make comment on behalf of Jesse whenever possible. Should I do that now or. Yes, Bear, should I just tell callers in here? But I want to say something on his behalf as well. Okay. I'm going to go ahead and do it. Typically, the council of people have to be here, but I'm going to do it to just please. Be sure it'll be two people off the list, Jesse and Eli. So Eli is a street vendor. He also wanted to be here tonight to talk about the idea of law enforcement. Right. Recently, street vendors have been given misdemeanors. And as you all might know, SB 946 has been in politics. A state law expressly prohibits the criminalization of street vendors, yet the health department and the Long Beach Police Department have threatened street vendors with with misdemeanors. So he wanted to talk about that, his ability to feel fear, to go out and strip and knowing that that would cost him the ability to pay rent. Which leads back to the idea of we're talking about now, right, th e idea of rental defense and all these things. So I just want to illustrate, there are so many things that when we talk about reallocation of money, right. Giving folks opportunity to have a legal counsel could make such a huge impact. So he wanted to come here today and also talk about that and general comment and also for this piece. So thank you. We have eaten. Elsa Tom James was on. Kevin, Georgia. Tina True and Marlene Alvarado. Good evening to everyone in attendance. My name is Irene and I'm a community member here to support the people's budget. Heavily policing our communities does not prevent crime. Healing and care prevents crime. And as a city, we have to invest in the betterment of our community, not fund more policing to lock up our community members. We must move forward today to make sure that we create stronger, productive and safer communities. And this begins by funding the request of the people and not law enforcement. My first interaction with law enforcement occurred when I was eight years old. My pregnant mother and I, alongside my family, were removed from our home at gunpoint. My second and third interaction occurred when I was ten and then 11 years old. And just like the first one, me and my family were removed from our homes at gunpoint, all on a mistaken identity and all before the age of 12. For the last 17 years of my life to present day to day, I have been on some kind of police supervision. And it's absurd to see that we'd rather fund law enforcement than to actually allocate some of the money to our underserved communities to things like housing, mental health and social workers. It is also disappointing that as a teenager I had more contact with police officers than I did with youth centers and resources. And this will be the norm when we continue to allocate majority of our funding to policing. I urge you today to adopt the people's budget and I asked the lines of law enforcement and the police departments to really serve. But I mean, really serve and protect. Thank you. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members. You are being distributed. The people's budget that has been referred to so many times tonight. My name is Ailsa Chang, seventh district resident member of the People's Budget Coalition. So we know that 83% of DPD budget goes towards compensating the the city's more than 850 cops. We know that according to our analysis of transparent California data, the average total compensation for an LBE PD officers about 250 $215,000 a year. So knowing all this, let's do some simple math. Removing just 33 cops would fully fund the tenant right to council program. Removing just 27 cops would fully fund the establishment of a community land trust for permanently affordable housing. Removing just 20 cops would fully fund youth recovery, especially for transitional aged and disengaged youth. Removing just 15 cops would fully fund the city's language access policy. Removing just 11 cops would fully fund a rental housing division. Removing just ten cops would fully fund the Health and Aging Center in the Health Department. Removing cops would allow for the exponential expansion of the Health Department's reach team we all heard about earlier tonight. Council members like Long Beach needs care, not cops. Let's divest from harm. Invest in healing. Defund LAPD by at least 25%. And adopt the people's budget. Thank you. Hi. My name is Running Alvarado. I'm with District One. I'm here to support the people's budget. I know you guys have tried to do a lot of stuff in social programing. I saw what you told us about, but you're always crying about your. I said there's not enough money. I really do think and believe and know that we need to divest the money from the police in order to reinvest in our communities. It will really increase better. It will really increase the access and help that people need. And once again, when the majority of our our police, our money goes to police departments, like 42%. Let's look at it. It is basically a police state. We are paying more money to the police and it really is a police state when you're not putting enough money into social programs and education and all that. So please fund the people's budget. Thank you very much. Hi. I'm Kevin Yeager, District one resident here to support. The people's budget. Like others have said, cops don't stop crime. Repeated analysis fails to find any connection between the number of police officers and crime rates because cops are violence. Workers showing up after harm has already been done to punish and incarcerate. Instead, we can respond to violence without police terror by funding the community led alternative emergency response teams called for in the Race and Reconciliation Report. We can fund public safety by addressing root causes of violence, funding, affordable housing, education, jobs programs, health care, youth programs actually addressing poverty. And that 26.2 or twice 262 million figure doesn't even include money. Our city pays out in lawsuits over Ibe PD uses of excessive force and shootings every single year 32 million since 2014. There's not enough. Time to touch on all the ways LAPD avoids accountability from Tiger text, turning off body cams, implementing drone. And facial recognition surveillance technology without any policy governing its use. Sharing license plate data with ICE, destroying records, shooting at protesters and journalists. Alvi plays stranglehold over city politics on and on. Defund LAPD start with 25%. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the city council. My name is James Watson pronounced I'm his and I'm a resident of the third district. And speaking on behalf tonight of Long Beach Forward, I was talking with a neighbor of mine the other day about how people respond to a pandemic primarily in three different ways avoidance, denying that it exists at all. Scapegoating, often blaming people who are different than us or fixing it. Accepting a pandemic for w hat it is. And actually getting to solutions. So I'm proud to be part of the Long Beach community that is fixing it, not just the people behind me, but all of us who are doing our part to get people vaccinated and talk about community led solutions. The Council has also accepted this for what it is the Recovery Act, hero pay, tenant protections, all of that. So to be honest, I'm lost hearing and wondering and hearing these presentations why a year and a half into the global pandemic? And we still haven't structurally invested in our highly regarded city run health department that is actively fixing our public health crisis and increasing funds to the police department that refuse to even acknowledge the severity of a global pandemic and actually get vaccinated. So if we're in a public health crisis, we must have a public health response. And as it currently stands, the biggest threat to public health in Long Beach apparently is public safety. So this is why I'm proud to be part of the fixers, like so many of the community who are behind me here tonight, advocating for bold solutions like the people's budget and asking you to divest from the police department and invest in departments and programs that actually keep people safe, can empower people out of poverty and into opportunity. So please support the people's budget. Thank you. Is China transgender? Tina True. That concludes the public comments. Thank you, Madam Cook, and thank you to all the members of the public. We're going to go ahead now and turn to the Lombard City Council. This is a hearing. So this is a continuation of the of the budget hearing. There is a motion in the second to continue the budget hearing, as we do at these meetings. I want to start off with Councilman Brosnan. Thank you, Mayor. I'm going to pass right now Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I want to thank the community for showing up tonight and sharing your ideas, bringing in additional materials. I know I've met with some individuals and received many of your emails. We appreciate the input and there's a lot of work still to be done in Long Beach. And I think you should celebrate many of the successes and continue to provide the pressure because there is more work to do. So thank you for taking the time to bring thoughtful comments. I know the council meetings can be long and we appreciate you sharing with us. There's a lot of important things that try to get done at this dyas and. Your input and support is appreciated to our police department. It's been a it's been a long year and a lot of changes and a lot of growth. And we appreciate the work that you continue to do. We know that there is a difficult. Road ahead in terms of resources and needs. I think that there are tools that have been discussed by this council that really provide a different methodology for supporting. The community and our officers. And I know that this council has talked a lot about our body worn camera program, but we've also talked a lot about

t our Arabs division and other divisions that really support safety differently and more effectively. And so I look forward to hearing how those partnerships and transitions impact and support our police. I think that it is important to note that. A lot of our violent crime happens in our most disadvantaged communities. And working through the creative programs that and Day House has partnered with in terms of the the police officers walking in , getting to know the community. I've seen. And I heard amazing things. And I look forward to seeing how the new programs that you've brought forward with the additional funding will develop. But we also have to train the next generation of police officers to be in alignment, to replace and really change the culture. And to do that means funding an academy and ensuring that our officers are not overtired and making big mistakes and saying the wrong thing in the community because they're exhausted. And in a position to do something that's not good for them or the community. And so I look forward to hearing our solution for how we make sure that we're not leaving our officers in a position where they're working. Double overtime shifts because that the person that I am when I work would exert a large amount of overtime is not the person that this community can partnership effectively. So I'll just continue to say that we need to find that funding needs to be available. And I don't I don't see any way around that. That's for our health department. Thank you for an exemplary presentation. You guys continue to do a lot with very, very little. I appreciate the work that you've done and expanding a lot of our grant programs, and I really look forward to a day where we do a better job partnering with the major foundations for more consistent ongoing support. I know that. Taxes can't pay for everything. And we've gotten creative with some different funds that are available and made those investments. But we need more money. And I think that we need to work together to find where those can be and if there's a department that goes after grants, effectively. Yours has been a lead. And then. Theresa, I know you're out in the field, in the community area, and the work that you're doing is phenomenal and you should be recognized. You've really changed the face of how we interact with the community, and I want you to be appreciated and I want you to know how much your heart we hear and how we really we try to meet with as many community members as we can. We know you meet with more. And I think you do an excellent job of bringing forward and consolidating those ideas into solutions in a meaningful way. Thank you for all that you've done. You've been an amazing, amazing leader through this year, and I look forward to seeing what you do next as long as it's here in Long Beach. Thank you, Councilman Allen. Yes, thank you, Mayor, and thank you, chief and Assistant Chief, for your presentation. And I just want to say thank you to all the speakers and the faith leaders that came out. I know many of you personally, and I know we have a lot of work to do. And there's a there's a lot of programs that are important that we need to continue to work on. I'm to the police department. I just want to thank you and the officers or all the work that you have done in the past year. I know it's been tough. You know, for those of you don't know, I was a police officer here for many years and I was seriously injured in the line of duty. I have rides and pins and other people's bones in my back. And I can imagine being a police officer today in this environment. I felt the pain of having a coworker. Friend murdered in the line of duty. I felt the pain of having a classmate and a friend kill himself. This is a tough this is a tough job mentally, physically and spiritually. Definitely don't have to tell me how tough the job is because I know. I am really concerned about the mental health of officers. The sheer. And I sure hope that we are doing everything that we can do to address that. One of the things that you talked about, Chief, that I was. You know, I know that we need to continue to expand. Our visibility and our presence. We've got work to do in the community. We need sincere engagement. Getting back. We need diversity. One of the things that I like to say is I was raised you know, I was born here and I went to Poly Am from the community. And being a police officer here really helped. And I think it's important when we look at diversity and local hire because we have to mend a lot of bridges and and relationships and and and we just have to continue to be to focus on, you know, transparency and accountability. One of the things that we have seen is, you know, the crime rate has continued to increase in our neighborhoods. And we see that in the data. I know that your coordinator response teams have done an excellent job with the gun violence, and I've definitely seen seen a increased presence, you know, and in our district. I don't think that it's a good idea for us to live with any fewer officers. It's just putting more strain on the officers that are currently out there. So I, I know that Councilwoman Margo did talk about recruitment for for 2020. So I definitely would like to hear more about that. And I do want to speak when I have a minute and a half left about the councilman. There was a had a couple suggestions from a couple of members because it's a budget hearing and there's two departments to extend the time for council members for questions or comments. And so instead of queuing up, if you want to extend your time, feel free to do so. Just we'll try to stay as close to post 5 minutes as possible. Will extend it. Okay. And I'll I'll be I'll be brief. One of the things that I you know, I am a huge advocate for the for the helicopter. And. You know, as a as a policewoman out there, there was nothing better than hearing the blades up above knowing that they were coming. I wo rked a one person Unit one Adam six for a lot of my career and and I can tell you the the police helicopter is really important for de-escalation. There were times even when police pursuits we could call those off, which is, you know, safer for the community having that that resource. I definitely didn't. I think putting a civilian up in a helicopter, replacing a police officer is absolutely crazy to me. It's like it's like asking Uber or Lyft driver to drive you around. You know, it just it doesn't make any sense to me. And so I just want you to really consider that, you know, an officer has somewhere and you can correct me, but, you know, 3000 hours of training, they understand tactics. You understand police procedures. They can give really good direction to officers on the ground. And I think that's really important. Excuse me. And so it's actually time that we've extended the time. We're fine, thank you. Great, councilman. And so I think that that is it's it's just, you know, the good direction on down the ground is really important. And so I just want to leave you with I think experience matters. And I'm just not a fan of considering any civilian to do that job. So I'm going to go back to a question that I had on. Can we talk a little bit about what's the estimate for recruitment in 22? Mayor and members of the city council. We're working with the Civil Service Department. I think most of you are aware that civil service is the department that takes the lead in doing recruitment and promotional testing for all the city departments, not just the police department. We currently have a list of interested police recruits and we're working with them on looking at that list. We are pushing for a new list to come out. What we find is every time we go out and recruit, as time goes on, we evolve. The community demands more. As you've heard tonight and and honestly, as we look at putting together a new list, even the list of demands that we're asking for, for our new police recruits change and which I think makes a better police officer that serves this entire community. So those are the things we're working out with civil service right now. We're putting a lot of demand on civil service, as other departments are. And that's why I'm pushing we are pushing for a class sometime in the fall, maybe early winter. So it is on the top of our priority list. But having officers that match the values of our community, all of you and the diversity that we all seek is a very top priority when we're looking for police officers for the city of Long Beach. Okay. All right. Thank you again, Chief, for all that you do. Thank you, Councilwoman Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And first, I think that was a good call. This is dense, dense stuff. It's, you know, two departments. I'm going to try to get this all in in 5 minutes, no more than seven. But this is an instance of. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, following that for flexibility to Councilwoman Allen. So first I had to step out earlier, but I heard the introduction. And to step out and call the kids and tell them. Night. But I heard it on TV. Mr. Murdoch, I think the way that you help frame this, I think is important. You said we heard from the community last year that is enshrined in a document, the reconciliation initiative. And here's the progress that we've made on many of these priorities that were not priorities prior to hearing it from the community. The REACH, innovation, this strategy, the community came out early and said, Hey, we want to see something similar to cahoots. It doesn't have to be cahoots. Make it your own Long Beach model. That's in its budget today. The Office of Youth Development was called out in the reconciliation plan. That is an action that is funded through reconciliation hours that is here today. The youth fund made possible by Measure USA that is here today. The violence prevention were incredibly important to many members of this council, a great plan that did not have funding. It is here today in this budget. It's in the recovery budget. And it was in last year's budget. The Health Equity Center called out in the in the reconciliation plan. It is here. It's funding early intervention strategies. A big theme. It's here. Alternative response models. It's here. Lots of discussion on diversity. I tend to agree. I think one of the best things we can do is make sure that our police officers and all of our city employees come from our local community. That takes investment, that takes focus to place that as a priority in our academies. And the best way you can build relationships with the communities, making sure that our new recruits that are coming in are from our local community. That's important. That's key. All of that is in that in this budget, all while managing 250 additional staff on COVID in our health department. I remember I was joking a bit earlier. I remember when the Health Department had to ask to do a budget presentation that council had to request it. Tonight, the budget for tonight's budget presentation, the health department is giving a presentation alongside the police department. That is an incredible change. And I've watched every budget process since 2010 without any request. And this is I'm seeing a dramatic, dramatic shift here from asking to hear about it to receiving this information in a in a healthy report on what's happening. I'll tell you, I read the people's budget every year and I try to attend. You know, the people stay in the city and hear the words every year. And we make strides to hit every category in many, many categories every year. And and we try to do that this year. We look at it, we meet with the community. I think the major difference and I think it's clear a major difference isn't that the categories lifted up aren't ignored because they are reflected. And we talk about what the levels are. But, you know, there is a justice fund, there is, you know, strategies around language access, there's a youth fund. These are things that have been priorities for many, many years. I think the difference is the request in a budget this year is $65 million. And. It makes it very difficult to achieve the scale of the investment that people are looking at. And I think we have to be honest about what long term investment looks like for the sake of actually being able to deliver a budget that's reflective of, you know, our diverse interests within our city. And so $65 million is dramatically higher than any other people's budget request in the past. And I think that is needed to be said, I think, in terms of our health department. And thank you. I see everybody is up here. A great presentation, a lot there. A few things I want to give some input on. First, thank you for including the conversation on Measure US. We're excited that that's here. That's a significant enhancement. I'm glad to see some focus on older adults in the health department. That's been a priority the council for many years, but we have not had funding to implement that and it was great to see that there. Secondly, you know, there's a lot of conversation with the youth in the community. They've been advocating a youth fund for many, many years, and I'm a big proponent of this from the very beginning. But what I see in the youth fund is about 26% of that funding going out to the community, about 74% of that. He retained, you know, being retained by city staff. And I think we have to invert that. I think we want to see, you know, 20% retain 20, 20, 25% retained, but the great majority going out to community based organizations to use serving organizations and allow them allow the youth the way in through a process. And we'll continue talking with youth, but we really want to see that are youth. Finally, we can stand up, put out to the community and actually support, you know, youth serving organizations. You know, let's say starting elementary school is doing their play and they need a micro grant to buy programs. We should be able to provide that. Let's say it's something like the Jordan High School Math Collaborative, a great program that struggles for funding every year. That's proven. Those are the types of things we'd like to see. Let's say it's youth sports. Let's say it's Pop Warner. Let's say it's midnight basketball. Youth organizations will tell you what it is that they need, and we need to invert that. The youth funds should be going out to the community, not being retained by city staff. And I feel and I'm sure more recommendations come out, but I really feel strongly about that. A good solid, you know, around the million dollars for youth is a great start for our youth fund. With, with, with. In terms of the police presentation, first, thank you for highlighting the response time issue. When I talk to my residents, a lot of times I hear as it relates to city services from street sweeping to trash collection. And I want the same level of service that other people are receiving in every part of town. And we've seen historically our response times in North Long Beach have been slower than other parts of town, particularly with fire, when we didn't have rescue 12. Now, I think we've maintained our overall response time. Can you speak to the response times? The PD, you know, Category one response times in North Long Beach, is that an average across town or is there a slower response time in North Miami? It's a real question that I receive from our residents that I would love to hear you address. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Thank you for the question. And I'm looking up on my form here. My stats reflect this. And this is from July of 2021, because our numbers are about two or three weeks behind always. So for July, for priority one calls in North Division, I show 5.1 minutes for priority one calls. Was that your specific question just for. And how does that compare to the three whatever? It's 5.1 in north real power. Well, the citywide average. East division, as an example, is 5.2. So it's a little bit higher. And you have to account for geography because the area is a little bit bigger, bigger, and it takes just a little bit more time to get there. So for example, in South Division, which is the smallest division but busiest in regards to calls for service, their priority one time is down to 3.9 and that's an average. These are all on the way. So North East may have a slower response time than maybe in the middle of the city. Yes, sir. Okay. That's good. That's good to understand. When I talk about this with our residents, proximity is important. Thank you so much. Just a couple of things I would say I love the discussion about making sure we're doing recruitment in our local community. I know we're talking about academies coming up. Can you speak just briefly about what efforts or what support you need to make sure that this upcoming class of recruits has a healthy amount of people from our local Long Beach community? Again, an excellent question. It takes every single person in this room between not only members of the city, employee, family, all of you as policymakers, our audiences, even the people who have very different opinions of the police. If if we go into a room and we're talking negatively about the police all the time, people of color, people we want from this city are going to say, why do you want to join them? And yes, the police department has the number one responsibility to make sure that we attract the right people for the right reasons. But I think all of us collectively as a community have to say, you know what, we want the best police department. We want a diverse police department. Let's try and work on our kids. And for us in the police department, we tell everyone, every police officer recruiting is everybody's job. Every time you talk to somebody, it's like an athlete, right? You're looking through the fence at somebody playing football. Somebody says, I want to be just like that. Same thing happened to me as a five year old. You know, not everybody like the police, but I wanted to serve our community and here I am. Well, we'll pick up that converse, that one final thing, because I want to wrap this. I want to wrap this up. We'll pick up that conversation line. The follow the the final thing I just want to say is that what I hear the common thread from public comment from my neighbors, from our city team, we want a healthy city. I hope the city has health department capacity. Not many cities have a health department. We do. I hope the city also means that we have a healthy police department. That means that means making sure that they're from our local communities. It means make sure that mental health is in a good place. There's a functioning relationship between community and public servants, from police to fire to health workers. And a healthy city means that we need to really make sure that we acknowledge we're all one city team in that city team. We need to be concerned about the mental health of our team members. We need to have one mission to deploy services. And so I want to take a moment to just, you know, thank our health care workers for this past year. I want to thank our police rank and file police officers for their work, because we're all one part of this effort to have a healthy city and a safe city. We all have a place, a role here. So let's keep working together for a healthy city. Thank you. Councilman, sir. Thank you, Mayor. So I just want to start off by thanking all of those who came to make public comment and, you know, just sharing your thoughts. I also want to share that this is this has been one of the toughest years of all of our lives. And I do agree with many of those comments saying that we do need healing. And I heard a member from Long Beach Immigrant Rights Coalition that we need to build trust. And I think that the other part is accountability as well. That I heard thread it through as far as and, you know, actions that are taken and what is the result of that to ensure that wrongs are right. And so and that we really need to work towards equity healing and renewing and restoring. Right. And investments needs to be made. I'm going to make some more comments before I ask my question for our police with our chief and then and with Kelly as well. But I really want to go back to building trust. I think that we need to continue to have the communication we do between all of us to ensure that we're able to address the hurt and the pain that's resulted in various ways from the past years. And the dialog does need to continue, and I hope we can do more of that in person. While the budget has brought us together in this way, I hope that it's not only the budget that brings us together in these conversations and that also accountability is really important and that we hope that we're taking the steps to showing you in the way that we're doing alternative response through reach, also in that we're going through a process to redesigning our Citizen Police Complaint Commission and that, you know, significant investment do need to be made into our community and a health department. And I believe that that is really what Gabby from Long Beach Immigrant Rights Coalition said earlier, that we have to invest in community base. I'm sorry. In my notes here, safety strategies. And I want to hear later on from the department, you know, how much money has been invested so far and how much is going into the community. But I really do think that, you know, this isn't going to be the only dialog we have and that we should continue to do so in different forms and more in person. The other thing I want to share that investments are being made is around, as the vice mayor shared earlier, around Office of Youth Development, also violence prevention funds as also distributed into our communities and Kami based organization. I also want to thank the Mayor for the guaranteed income pilot program that's going to be launching in the fall, that millions of dollars are going to the 90813, where it has the highest number of people living in poverty, particularly single parents. Right. So I do understand that we still need to go through this process in how do we continue to right the wrongs. But that also we don't also, you know, not see all of this investment being made. So my question kind of circles back to Chief Luna again. You know what? What is the police department doing to build trust and ensure there is accountability in the actions of the police department? And then my question for Kelly, too, is how much how much money has been invested in the police department in this past year and how much of that is going into our community based organization? So first question is for a police department. Chief Luna, you know, what is the department? I think you shared some of it, but I think lifting it back again. What is the department doing to build trust in the community? Ensure there's accountability. And for Miss Canopy, how much has been invested from the recovery funds and how much of that is going directly into the community based organizations? A Council member sorrow in regard to the police department and trust. Simple answer. Actually, it's about relationships. It's about partnerships. Every day that our officers are out there and it's 24 seven. Every contact they make is built on trying to garner that trust because it doesn't work. And I believe based on surveys that we take, we're not a perfect department, but the majority of this community does trust us. There are incidences, of course, that have an impact on it. And then we have to come out and be as honest as we possibly can within the law and say, this is what happened. If it's a there's a problem, we're going to fix it. As far as accountability. If you look at every government agency, whether it's in this city or abroad, I don't know what other department holds themselves more a ccountable than your police department. The mechanisms that we have, whether it's internal internal affairs, every time we get involved in a use of force or an officer involved shooting the the critiques that take place internally, the level of, for example, just looking at stats coming in here, we're getting an average of 180 praise a month. Which, you know, in a way that's a good thing. And there are some people who are abusing the system. But for the most part, putting out information for us, our policies out on the Internet. And there's a whole list of things that we're doing today that we weren't doing, say, five years ago, and just trying to put out more information about who we are and what we do every day and really get to know our people on an everyday basis that we're no different than anyone else who's out there. You, Chief. Ms.. Kalb my question again are do you have the question? I just want to make sure I know you're sorting through it. So I think there there have been multiple funding streams in the past year. And so I think that, you know, the the first funding stream is around the racial equity and reconciliation funding, which came to the health department about 1.5 million of that approximately this year. I want to say about 400,000, just over 400 or $500,000 will be in the community by the end of by the end of this year, partially because we are you know, we have some delays in hiring and there's more resource available for the community. Generally, we're planning on $300,000 of that approximately going into the community each year. We also have the CARES Act funding, which we were able to do. If we look at all of the health equity and food security and early child and all those different pieces was approximately $10 million that went out in the past year. And then we are planning through the Recovery Act funding for about 1.5 million for youth development of violence prevention. And if we look at overall youth, it's 3.2 million going out, but there's approximately just over $3 million going out for around health equity from insurance and investments within the movie The Quinta and the Black Health Equity Collaborative and others. So there's there's different pots of money and that are all short term. They're all there are they're all 2 to 3 years old. The CARES Act was six months, but the Recovery Act is 2 to 3 years to be able to engage and invest in our communities. Thank you. And, you know, just last thing I want to add is that, you know, a lot of many of the items that are in the people's budget is, you know, we have been having those discussion and I want to make sure we do work, continue to work at ensuring we fund these different requests more and more . But some of these are new that we've just funded, like the Camille Land Trust and that, you know, if it's not coming, there are alternate alternative ways to find funding for that through state, you know, ensuring that and then also language access and digital inclusio n as well. There's a commitment to continue to have dialog, but we also have a deficit coming up. So I think that there's I think there is an understanding this is important and that we're committed and we have, you know, started the process in funding. And I think that it does it, you know, that there is a commitment to continue to do so. Thank you. Thank you. Next up, I have Councilman Austin. Thank you. I'm ready now. And thank you for indulging me. I was was paying attention to the public comment and and just kind of forgot that it was my turn to go. But I do appreciate all of the comment this evening and the presentation from staff on two very important departments. Pivotal department on critical departments for our city. I'm. And I want to appreciate my colleagues for for pointing out, particularly in the people's budget, the fact that we as a council, as a city, have been taking into account all that we've heard over the last couple of years in terms of moving this city in and being more. More equitable and intentional. With what? Our service. I think. My biggest challenge and I'll just be straightforward with our health department, with so much resources coming into the city. And I think every city is dealing with this as well, ramping up and having a capacity to be able to deliver the service that we want to deliver is going to be a real challenge not only for the city, but also for the community based organizations that we're going to be. Asking you to partner with us. Right. And I'd like to see a lot more energy being put into planning on how to deliver and deliver well for the city of Long Beach. Bottom line, all parties involved. I did have some very specific questions regarding the budget. And so I'm going to get into that a little bit. And first, I want to talk to Ms.. Collopy and the. Health Department budget. Specifically related to. The administrative budget. In the executive office. Sorry about that. I'm in 520. There was 75 full time position, 75.6. That was adjusted in 21 and then in 20. There's a budget of 65 positions. But the the actual. The actual world budget is much different. Can you can you explain the variation? I think I'm on my way. May have the wrong one here. Give me. I come from? Are you. Are you looking at the difference between our f y 20 proposed? Sorry. I'm sorry. The Homeless Services Bureau. Oh, okay. So I was. Like, I. Executive Officer. Okay. Right. Right. Oh, so that there was a huge variation. It looks like we got probably an influx in 21 probably from. Take care that I guess. Uh huh. Um. But the budget positions from 20. From employee 22. Employee 22 or ten less. So the question is, do we that we lose positions or we're the positions that we're budget in and apply 20 not field. We certainly went through and during our fy20, we certainly went through a phase where we were we were having we had unfilled positions in FY 20. Um, although once it. In FY20 we had unfilled positions. And so there and then in this area 21, we have significant increases in the number of positions through all of the grants and opportunities. So we've been hiring, you know, like a special project officer, the mental health services, the public health nurses and many more. Okay. I may want to dig in a little bit later on on that, just to understand then how we're funding positions and whether or not the positions are filled. I'm going to be really paying attention to that. And Councilmember, if I may, we do have our budget staff here. We record questions and then we can get at some of those back in writing. So if we don't have it tonight, just ask it and we'll make sure we get that to you. Thank you. And I'm not wearing my glasses because they're following up on me here. And then on to Councilmember Blackmon Richardson's point regarding the youth fund. I think he makes some great points about, you know, moving those funds into the community. And but I want to make sure that we are supporting community services and and organizations that are delivering in our city. Right. Programs that we know are working that that have the capacity to deliver. We're not taking a chance on anyone. And I'm specifically call out, you know, the YMCA, the Boys and Girls Club. Um, I think he mentioned the math collaborative and I'm sure each and every council member can think of youth led organizations and youth organizations in their districts that are that are delivering and making a difference. I wanted to just get that in there. I think for EI PD, complacency is not an option in any way and we have to continue to be innovative and engaging in the community. And I want to just. Thank you, Chief, for for your flexibility. I want to thank the department because you guys have been through quite a bit over the last year. Crime is is is I mean, if we this is a council that prides itself on making their data informed decisions. The data is not headed in the right direction right now. And what a lot of what I've heard this evening, it just would not, in my opinion, be smart or responsible for this council to entertain cutting our public safety budget at this point. So I want to be very clear that I'm paying attention. I'm looking at data, but I'm also hearing from constituents all over the district and all over the city. That might not be the best decision right now for for this council to move forward with it. So with that, we have made some decisions over the last year that have been impactful. I guess my question is to the city manager, to the chief, where are we at with our helicopter operations? As it currently stands today. Council member, Austin, thank you for the question. We have helicopter service up. It is vital to providing the best service that we can to our community. The force for our force multiplier it creates and the confidence it gives the officers on the ground. Not to mention to the vice mayor's point earlier about response time, that helicopter could be anywh ere in the city within minutes over an incident directing units in and that is extremely helpful due to the reductions that the police department had last year. We did cut 51 police officer positions and part of those reductions was in that helicopter unit. So the staffing there was reduced. We did have to reduce a shift so there's less coverage in the city, unfortunately. We currently have two sworn police pilots that are in that unit and we have two tactical flight officers that are also in that unit. But we're looking at the budgets. Several of the council members have showed a lot of interest in and making modifications to that. So we are working with financial management in the city manager's office, looking at all of our options to potentially bring that service. I don't know if would be back to where it was, that would be optimal, but at least put it in a place where it's we're maximizing it as a community because it is an amazing tool. I think I'm looking for what's manageable. To maximizing. Not necessarily. I want to know what's manageable was immediate. When when we had six individuals in the unit. That was it wasn't 24 seven coverage. And optimally we'd like to have that thing in the air, 24 seven that provides the best service to the community. We can afford to do that. I understand that it puts all of you in a very difficult position. We're trying to maintain what we have now, which is most of that's unbudgeted. We're pulling from different places because as a police chief, I have to make decisions of where this department could be most effective with the resources that we have. So right now, having the two police pilots and the two tactical flight officers is basic, because beyond that, I'm really hurting us. If I take that out of the air. If I can add we did make a change last year. The original proposal was to go from six officers to two civilians and we started getting into the meet and confer. We did not change any service models until we've gone through meeting Converse and we're still at our old service model. But we determined that that was not a feasible approach. So we ended up adding that two police officers and PD cut other funding out of their fleet in order to to do that. And so that's all outlined kind of in the memo. So we're back to four officers I'm sorry, two officers, two civilians. And what's under debate right now is, do we keep the two civilians? Do we convert those two officers? Does the council want to go beyond that? It's probably about 120,000 to convert the officers or civilians to officers and go to four total sworn. If we're adding back two more positions, that's probably in the $580,000 range as an addition. I have a few questions as the mayor. You know, Mark, so I heard you talk about the recruiting class and and the academy and and making changes and new recruits are going to be asked to be different types of officers. Has the has the job description for for for the police department and for new poli ce officers changed at all in the last year? Absolutely. Yes. And and it's because we listen we listen to our community. We listen to each and every one of you as what our expectations are of a police officer. The world evolves. We have to pay attention to what's happening not only in Long Beach, but across this country. We listen, we're evolving and we're going in the right direction. And to that point, there are can you explain that the BERIC, the Recruitment and Advancement Committee, and who is that comprised of and recruitment advancement will will help interview potential new officers in the academy. Is that correct? Thank you, Councilmember. So there's a couple of things there. The, um, the recruitment group, working group takes a look at they work with civil service. So it's two part because civil service is part of the recruitment initiative. But the recruitment working group looks at its internal to the department, but it looks at ways to improve the diversity within our organization, how to reach areas that traditionally and historically we haven't been able to reach and increase recruiting that way. So there's a couple of things that will take some time to move forward. We're operating off of a current list with civil service, so we'll try to select the best candidates possible off of that list with today's criteria that that the chief was just talking about. So the recruitment group will be looking at diversity, mentoring, leadership internally and externally. Thank you so much. And my final question and thank you for indulging me related to your budget. I do see a. An ad or an upgrade from a lieutenant position to a commander to serve as chief of staff could explain how and what we're doing there. Thanks, Councilmember. The the upgrade for that position was we were operating off of an old program where we tried to change the staffing model within the chief's office to a lieutenant as chief of staff and realized that that was not a feasible option based on the scope of the duties and the requirement for that particular position. So we used some cost savings to create, um, a, to bring back a commander. Position as the chief. Of staff move it from. We were using an Internal Affairs Commander to cover both Internal Affairs and the Chief of Staff responsibilities in the interim. And so we have now our Chief of staff back at a commander position. Thank you for that explanation. And I just wanted to add and it goes back to Councilwoman Sorrels question about accountability. Accountability. The demand for accountability has never been higher. And some of these upgraded positions were putting people in positions and at links where we can. Absolutely there's more oversight, more accountability, more transparency. And these positions help us to increase that. And looking forward to having more conversation. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and thank you to both departments for your presentations this evening

. I thought they were very informative, and I think the conversation that we've had and are continuing to have is going to help inform some good decisions. I think we can all agree as a council and I think the majority of constituents, that it's important for us to have balance when we're talking about public safety. There's a whole aspect to preemptive efforts to help shape public safety and opportunity and access and those kinds of decisions, especially for our youth. But we also have a reactive need for public safety that's also essential and important. And I think everybody everybody would agree with that. In terms of preemptive, you know, I want to commend our health department for really leading and a lot of the new initiatives that we have initiated over the past year to three the last 1 to 3 years. In terms of our youth, we've we've initiated a lot of violence prevention initiatives, which I think are great and programs I would like to see moving forward some more youth mental health initiatives. As someone whose son's best friend committed suicide three weeks ago in purple states, who was suffering from mental health issues that were exasperated by the. Isolation experience during COVID. I think we need to be having more conversations about mental health. And I also think we need to be having more youth opportunities to have conversations about substance abuse every single day. In the line of work that I'm in, I see people get involved with substance abuse in a way that that they don't think it's going to affect their life or grab a hold of their life. And it does. And sometimes it does so very quickly, depending on what it is they're using. And the prevalence of fat now that we're seeing being used today recreationally and the fentanyl that we're seeing being mixed with other drugs is is is. Absolutely. Unbelievable. When we were talking with all these conversations about homelessness and transient activity, the the opioid use and the fentanyl use that we're starting to see locally and regionally is it's very concerning. So I would love to see some preemptive programs that address mental health and substance abuse as part of our, you know, initiatives for reallocating money. I think those I absolutely agree with a lot of the public comment. We need to pour money, more money into mental health, substance abuse and treatment, preventative. But I also think on the other side that we need to also be prepared with some of the reactive public safety necessities, like when people call the police, they do expect the police to arrive within a reasonable period of time. Every single one of our residents wants that. And I'll tell you today. I had no intention of doing this. I had a full day of meetings, but I spent from 9 a.m. to 12:00 today with a victim who is the DOCA applicant, and I helped her apply for a U visa this morning and I walked her down to court and I helped her apply for a civil restraining order because she is the victim of dom estic violence. And her frustration is that when she calls the police, don't do anything. The police don't come. This is not in the city of Long Beach. But the point is those people deserve public safety protections as well. They are residents of our city. And when they when they are victims of crime and they call, they have no one else to call when they feel like they're going to be attacked or assaulted. And when they call 911, they should expect that the police are going to arrive in a reasonable period of time. And for me, you know, it's it's one thing for us to make assumptions about response times throughout the city. But what I'd like to know is who's doing better response times than Long Beach and what can Long Beach as a city together, not district by district, but together. How could we get better response times for the whole city? For me. I'll tell you, most of my residents are paying prices for their homes that are equivalent to the city that's 1.8 miles away, SEAL Beach. There, their housing prices are very similar. They want response times like SEAL Beach. That's who they're comparing themselves to. I know that's not realistic. The cities are different. The demographics are different. But I think whether it's north, east, southwest, it doesn't matter. Every district, every division wants better response times, because although we don't want this to happen, I think everybody, even the folks that want to route money away from the police department also want to be able to look at people in the face and say when you feel like you're in danger and you feel you're about to get attacked and you have nowhere to go and you have nowhere to turn, you should be able to call the police and they're going to come and help you. That's that's the number one defense. To have losing their lives or being injured. And so I think that's really important. And I think we just we need to have that balance. And for me, that idea, when I hear people say, let's route money away from the police department, what I hear is we need to invest more in mental health and youth programming and helping people have opportunities and access so that they don't get on that criminal justice pipeline. And I think that's really important. We need to do everything we can to root as many resources as we can to that. I'm 100% on board, but not as a punitive sanction to the police department, because from everything I know, our police department doesn't deserve as a whole as an entity to be punished, especially for the actions that were done elsewhere. We'll address things case by case in our city. And of course, where there are lessons to be learned, liability to be had, and accountability for police officers that that don't do the right thing. That has to happen on a case by case basis. But on an overall broad street scheme, we shouldn't be punishing any department as an entire department because our residents are going to be the ones that suffer. So for me, I want to make sure t hat we have that balance. And I'm going to support everything we can do to support both the parameter of. Preventative measures as well as the reactionary measures. I think that's important. I am a huge. Proponent of. Sworn police officers flying helicopters, because I can tell you, you do not want a civilian coming into court and testifying on a trial that involved a police helicopter pursuit. You just don't that that's as a prosecutor, that's the worst kind of witness in the world you want. Like Councilwoman Allen said, it's like the Uber driver coming in. Maybe that's the trend and that's where the world is going. And maybe I'm a little old fashioned, but I believe that you should have police officers driving police vehicles and police officers flying police air support. That's just my belief. And I think it's really important for us to think about how important that value, that asset is. You know, we don't see a lot of crimes that are single handedly solved by air support, but certainly air support is providing assistance to officers that are on the ground. And their testimony, depending on the case, it is maybe essential for for any prosecution. And so I want to make sure that we're we're conscious about that. And and I understand that basically the the low level cost of the program to maintain it is in the mid hundreds. If the money was there, if we could find it, I would support it at full recovery. That's that's how important I think that particular item is. I also think traffic safety is very important. There is a lot of data out there that shows that enforcement, proactive enforcement is effective in reducing traffic fatalities. And we simply don't have enough proactive enforcement. I want to recognize Commander Ellis in the East Division. Who realize this traffic safety is a major issue and it is doing the best that he can with one time resources to fill those needs. But our traffic bureau for a city of our size is not where it needs to be. That's just my personal opinion, because I think a traffic fatality is just as tragic for the family members of the deceased as a shooting, as they've still lost their loved one and they've still lost their loved one as a result of a collision that could perhaps have been avoided if someone had been deterred by having been stopped and educated earlier. And I just I don't think we have the resources to do that as much as we need to. We need to be issuing more traffic tickets so that people have the opportunity to go to classes and learn about the importance and what can happen if they're drinking and driving and someone dies. That's very important. Those are lessons that I think people learn, unfortunately, by coming into contact with officers in a traffic enforcement setting. So I support more traffic enforcement, and I wish there was a way that we could find more money for it in this budget. With that, I just I want to thank everybody for the work that you're all doing. It's really important work.

And just because we want to support. You know, active patrols and good response time does not mean nor should anyone ever conclude that we don't want to and aren't fully committed to supporting all the other front end mitigation methods that are available to help our youth and help them give a chance. Get a chance. So thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Vice Mayor Richardson. Thanks, Mr. Mayor. Just one thing I heard one of the drilling on. A little bit more. Chief, did you say that you have your funding, these four positions, the two sworn pilots and the two support officers, without it being budget? You're doing it because you see that it's needed. That what I heard. Yes, sir. That's exactly what you heard. I have no budgeted I have two budgeted civilian pilots in the air support unit currently, but I am taking from other places in the police department and I'm filling it with four police officers right now because I believe it's that important. Okay. Mr. City Manager, you mentioned a bit earlier that the recommendation last year on the two civilians, operationally that's not working. Yeah. So the chief's talking about operationally right now how he's filling it with bodies. I'm talking more about budget. So we cut from 6 to 2 and then as we went through the meeting confer, it was clear you have to have the helicopter observers and so we needed to add back those two positions. Police department basically recommended cutting in their fleet budget to add two police officers. I did that as a current year enhancement and I let the council know in a memo and then that's in the budget in front of you now. So now we're back to four our two civilians, two police officer positions and some of the concepts are talking about is do you upgrade those other two civilians to have four police officers or do you then restored back to six, which that would be the $580,000 increase to go back up to six? I think the four sworn here's what I would say. I've heard a lot, you know, a lot. I heard that raised a lot today. So if the if a budget oversight committee or staff makes it makes them whole by by having the two sworn officers and two sworn observers operationally, I think the case has been made. And so if we can figure out a way to make that make that work as if it adds operationally what we think it does in order to be effective in the community, that's something I can support. And then the second thing I would just say, so I, you know, I would love to see from a process standpoint how that comes back. The second thing I would say is, you know, a lot of a lot of conversation about all the things that we should do as a city. But I think we have to get to the basic desire of someone who lives in your city and is dependent on our services. If you and we've heard this a lot as it relates to response times. People just want to know because I do get complaints in every department and a lot of it is because some of my neighborhoods are very, very far away. Hey, we did n't get a street sweep in this week. It didn't, you know, they didn't show up again or attracting you picked up or my response times and we dealt with this with fire was 3 minutes later because we were so far away how far north we are. And I think some of this is on all the extremes of the city, the Far East, the far north. I think we need to be able to, you know, make a commitment if some areas of town at 3 minutes and some are five. That's not good enough, I think. And I say that's something we have to address now, but we have to be able to make a reasonable commitment to no matter where you are in the city, your trash will be picked up. Your response time is is is fair. It's not a 2/2 difference or disparity across the city. We have to be thinking about that. And I know that's not something that can be addressed in one budget, but that is something that we should be making a commitment to, to everybody who is in a city, no matter if you live in the middle or on the outside. That's just a comment of mine. Thank you. And back on the helicopter, we'll make sure an hour or two before we give you the actual numbers, what it would take to get back to four, which I agree is a very reasonable approach. And then what it would take to get back to six, you have both those numbers. Thank you. I'm gonna make some remarks as well. And then I think we will be moving on to the rest of the agenda, which is of a full agenda. Let me just just begin by thanking again the budget staff, and I know the BBC and Councilman Orson is the bosses working through its meetings as well to get us through the budget process. I want to just let me start with the health department and then move on to the police department. Just I want to just to say to thank the entire health department for really, first and foremost, this a very difficult year and doing an amazing job with the resources that it has. I'm grateful that at every level of government, the county level, the state level, the federal level, we have received a significant resources to grow our health department, I think, by maybe 200 bodies. And so I'm hearing a lot about supporting our health department tonight. And we are. The health department has never been larger as far as I remember it, and it's robust and it's doing a lot of great work. And that's going to continue. And I think that we want to make sure that the health department continues to have the resources it needs to protect us from future pandemics, but also to take care of the community recovery programs right now that are so important and working with our community organizations to do that work. So just think of the entire team, particularly Dr. Davis and the entire infectious disease unit that's doing wonderful with the vaccines and everything else. So a huge thank you. And part of the recovery is also working on making sure that when I heard a lot tonight and from council members is that obviously for for true community safety you have to have also the preventative work. It has to happen consistently and thoroughly and that's something the health department is very involved in. So I just want to thank you for that to just the chief and to the leadership that's here. Part of recovery and we've talked about this a lot is also the safety recovery, and it's ensuring that we continue to make sure our community is safe. I've said it many times at Long Beach today. By every. Any way you look at the data is safer than it was 20 and 30 and 40 years ago. Doesn't mean we don't have challenges. It doesn't mean that. That guns have not become a source of. Of increase in shootings. And if there isn't a gun epidemic. Because there is and we still have incredibly tragic incidents in inner city that happen. But we are and have and have continued to ensure. I believe that the police department I look at what 21st century policing actually really means and how we change and improve moving forward. And I think you guys have and continue to do that. I want to thank you, Chief, and your entire team. It has been a very, very hard year for everyone, for all of you. I mean, I told you this, of course, privately. But I think it's important also that we look at where the resources are today and what the community is looking for. And I agree with some of the comments here. At the end of the day, folks want to know when they call 911 that some are going to be there to help them and if they're going to be there when they need them. And that's something that the service that we provide every single day. And I also know and one of the reasons why I'm proud of where we are headed in many in many ways is we're also recognizing as a city and quite frankly, as a country, that there are some 91 calls that could be handled by other folks as well. And police. Police officers today are expected to be police officers and social workers and medical workers and do a variety of things. And I think we and I want to make sure that we provide you the support to focus on policing and the important work that has to happen in our community. I agree with some of the comments we have to ensure. I appreciate the police department has never been more diverse. Under your leadership. It's more diverse today than it's ever has been. When I when I attend the and I attend every single graduation that your department has, and I look at these young officers, what I see back are folks that want to serve their community and that look like our city and that more and more we have women serving and more people of color and folks that want to want to give back. And I think that's something that. We'll continue to grow with within our city. And I also see. Particularly with the younger officers, a real call to to to service. And and I believe that the training and the investments we're going to make in projects like the training facility and the are going to be are really important investments that that this council is going to make. Finally, let me just say, on the helicopter issue, which has been brought up repeatedly, I also support what's been said. It is important, I think, for police officers to fly police helicopters and particularly those that are sworn and that have that experience. And so I think we've asked I know that the BBC, I think looking at this issue and hopefully will incorporate it as we move forward in the next few weeks to make sure that that piece of the budget gets adjusted. And I look forward to working with the other members that are interested in making that change. And and let me just say in conclusion that. What to me, what's important moving forward is that we're focused on a complete recovery. And that is not just the health piece, that's not just the economic piece, but also the people in this community deserve also to feel safe. And I'm hearing from folks is they also want to make sure that there are enough police to take care of their needs, that police are there at an adequate amount of time. And so the response time piece is really important and which I know that we're working on to ensure that we are modeling a true community police department. And all of those things I think are really important. So thank you all for the presentation. I appreciate hearing from both the health department and the police department and Alicia's any objection. We have a motion in a second to receive and file the report until the next meeting. And so please cast your votes on that. Motion carries. I'm 26. Communication from City Attorney Recommendation Declare Ordinance Amending the Long Beach Municipal Code related to temporary enforcement of the Long Beach Health Orders regarding COVID 19 and declaring the urgency thereof. Read the first time and over to the next regular meeting of the City Council for final reading wide. This item will require two votes. There's a motion in the second adjourning public comment. There's no public comment. Thread with to vote on. This was the first one in motion. And a second please cast your vote. Motion carries. Okay. We'll queue up the second vote, please. Motion carries. Thank you. I believe that with all the items on the agenda. So for new business. Is that correct, madame? Quick. Yes. Is there any in your business, please? And super. Thank you. Eric Garcia. I'd just like to remind fourth district residents that we have the fourth District redistricting meeting tomorrow night, August 18th at 6:30 p.m.. The location will be Browning High School and that is at 2180 Obispo Avenue. And importantly. Communication from Councilwoman Allen, Councilmember Arango, Councilwoman Price, Councilman Austin Recommendation to request city attorney to draft an ordinance to enact kid's zones to find a safe spaces for children at local parks, playgrounds, beaches, and other areas intended for use by children. Councilwoman Allen. Yes. I thank you, Vice Mayor. And also I want to thank Councilmember Ranga for his partnership on this item. I heard from many of my reside nts and folks that are concerned about adults misusing public playgrounds and spaces. Recently throughout the city, we've seen spaces designed for children vandalized and misused. Parks in my district as Miracle on Fourth and Promenade Square Park are impacted by ongoing loitering issues which discourage park usage by children or their guardians. Given these trends, I think it's necessary that we look at ways to create safe spaces for our children at our parks. By establishing kid's zones, we can assure the city, playground equipment and play areas specifically designed for children remain safe and remain available spaces for use by children. So we have to take steps to protect these children. And so they also can enjoy the parks and the playgrounds. Thank you very much. Thank you. Councilman Price. I want to thank Councilwoman Allen for asking me to sign on to this item. We I think it's imperative that we have spaces that are designed for children and used by children. Just recently on our one apparel playground structure, we've had to do numerous repairs because it's such a great structure that adults have been also using it and trying to to be on the equipment. And it's impacted the equipment and it's used by the children because of the damage that has resulted. Additionally, I think it's sometimes intimidating for children when they see adults in a play space and just the way that they're trained to be wary of adults, strangers, makes them not feel as comfortable in those spaces. And I think it's important that we create areas where children feel safe to play and have equipment that's appropriate size and designed for their ages. We've put a lot of effort and care into designing age appropriate play equipment in our parks and recreational areas. And and so I think this item is a really good one to address some of those concerns. I do have a question for the city manager. When this policy goes into effect, would there be any opportunity to do a period of targeted enforcement just to make sure that people are getting education and outreach regarding the new policy and some of the limitations of adult use of those play structures. So before you bring back an ordinance and then vote on it, we do want to bring you back some information in a memo about just resources, capacity, enforcement options that we can certainly look at, that we do see this as kind of dealing with some of the more a one off occurrences where we have some some real issues where there's permanent, you know, restrictive use of of an area, you know, that is within our resources kind of looking at every every area all the time is going to stretch us a little thin. But we can certainly look at informing people. We're going to look at signage as well so we can bring that back as part of the memo. Yeah, I mean, I think about some really hot areas that are both being used by adults and children right now, but perhaps designed for children like some of the playgrounds on the beach, so me of the widget activities that we have. Certainly they were not designed for the size and weight pressures that they're getting. So that would be great. Thanks. Thank you. Council member Urunga. Thank you. And I want to thank all of my colleagues for drawing on this. I have a couple of parts of my in my district that were have recently been damaged. And I think that it's incredibly important to have a zone where kids can play and be kids and not adults being kids . I have a question for I guess, is Mr. Brant available for parks? No. Yes. Okay. Yeah. Can you give a brief summary as to the cost that we have incurred over the last two years or so of damage caused by adults on our playgrounds? Yeah, certainly I can think of probably a half dozen of the instances I know of. Councilwoman Price cited one of the more recent ones that was disappointing once the one apparel playground had been opened, I think within a matter of several days due to some adult misuse of the playground equipment that was obviously designed for children, that caused us to secure the whole area, take it out of community enjoyment, and then have some of the components re-engineered. I think that was probably probably around $50,000, I'm guessing, for the re-engineering for fortifying of the supports. And then as as you know, in CD seven, we've had some unfortunate, very significant losses of playgrounds. And again, from my perspective, I think, you know, with the best of intentions, we do want our playgrounds to be safe and welcoming for our young families and our kids to have healthy, creative play areas. And I think, you know, the kids zone in particular would be a very wise move. But I do know it's going to take a lot of coordinated effort across inter-departmental teams to make it effective. So and we'll do our part to contribute to that. But in terms of an overall dollar figure, I know Admiral Kidd playground in particular was probably going to be about half a million dollars in cost. And that's, again, the loss of access for play, too. But we've had, I know, combined park, Craftsman Village Park and just quite a number of them that have had a lot of abuse and misuse that do cost considerable amount of dollars to bring back into a safe condition. But thank you for the question. Thank you. And just to add, also, while I like to zip line, I mean, my first time ever zip line in the summer, there was a zip line at least from this part that was damaged because adults were using that line there. So I think it's very important that we protect our playgrounds and that we make sure that they ensure that children are the ones that are taking advantage of it. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Arthur. Thank you. And I want to thank Councilmember Allen for taking the lead in bringing this item forward. I think it's something that I certainly a sentiment that I share and I hope the rest of our colleagues share as well here today. I believe that playgrounds should always be a safe spaces for our children to play. And there should never, never be a deterrent for a family or child to use. Utilize the playground. Um, we should also understand that these playgrounds, particularly now, you know, we are investing in playgrounds in our city. These are public investments and we need to protect these investments, ensure that they are being utilized for the population that they are meant to. Meet. Millions have been invested in a new playground in our city. I can think of four new playground, brand new playgrounds in my district alone. Jackson Park. Marina Park. Well, there's lots of lidos where kids are now enjoying park space and enjoying time with family and looking forward to that. I was walking my dog a few weeks ago, a couple of weeks ago, and encountered a gentleman sitting on the top of a slide at one of these parks. And I encountered him and asked, What are you doing? Because I'm just hanging out. It looked like he was involved in maybe smoking or whatever. And and it struck me that this is very timely and necessary because. We know the damage has been done. And again, this individual with smoking and who knows what could have happened while he was there. I may not have I may I should probably not have engaged him. But it was okay, was a fair dialog. But it opened my eyes to the fact that we need to we need to pay closer attention to our playgrounds. And these playgrounds are designed for children and not adults. So I'm happy to support this item and look forward to something coming back with that. That can be enforced, but it's also fair. Thanks. Thank you, Councilwoman. And they have. Been nice, Mayor. And thank you, Councilwoman Allen, for bringing this item forward, along with my colleagues to sign on to this very important item. I think that the health and safety of our children has to continue to be a top priority for our city. I think this is a really great item that provides an opportunity to establish safe spaces for our children, and that really tells the family that our children continued to come first. So I'm really excited for this and for the city to be able to explore possibilities for kids throughout the city. I know that being a recipient of a playground that combined a park like Director Dennis shared was not very good. I, you know, was negatively impacted, and therefore the children were not able to use that playground. And, you know, because of all the reconstruction that needed to be done. And like Director Dennis also shared, it's not it's an expensive process. And we could be using those those funds for other things. But but I'm glad that this item is coming forward and that we really are intentionally making kids sound more friendly and welcoming to our children and our families. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. Thank you. I spent a considerable amount of time in our city's parks. My daughter's favorite park rotates. Spent a lot of time. At least three of us have spent a lot of time in Stearns Park and sent a lot of time in Eldorado Park. Spent a lot of time. I can't think of the name of it A Butterfly Park, because butterflies are my daughter's favorite. But one of the other things that I do see and I get kids on them, they're really important. And I think that it's it's critical. I think that all park equipment that is put into our city, I've seen in other cities that they say the age appropriate there. So this park equipment is intended for children under the age of 12. This park equipment is intended for participants under the weight of £225. And I think that that helps because you talk about adults and adults want to help their kids try playground equipment. And I've had a broken slide for a considerable amount of time and we have some amenities adjacent to one another that are intended for older kids and then amenities that are intended for younger kids. And occasionally when the older kids that weigh more and might be in high school or they're with their younger siblings, then they're climbing up a slide and they put their foot through it. And that's a dangerous situation all of a sudden with broken plastic. So I think that weight and age is a great tool and I see parks that have been doing that a lot in the region. I've been to Parks in Colorado and other states, and age and weight I think are really critical on all park equipment. So thank you very much. Thank you, Councilman Hooper, now. Thank you. I'd like to thank Councilmember Allen for bringing this item forward. Director Dennis did not mention it, but Rotary Centennial Park in the fourth District has had challenges for years, and this ordinance would certainly help that. But beyond protecting our existing assets, I see some potential here where with this in place we can look at properties that would not have been considered in the past, and we could build top lights in areas that might have been challenged without this ordinance. So thank you again. Thank you. I'll add my comments here. As the dad of two kids under 12, I'm happy to support kids. I think it adds a level of comfort to parent, to know that, you know, there's there's kid activity and kids in the kids own and and it makes us feel good. And, you know, I would also say that, you know, I want to make sure that we have that if you establish kids own, let's make sure the equipment inside the kids own. We're proud to let our kids play on because we still have a lot of areas where our playgrounds are just not in great shape. And so, in general, happy to support this item on any public comment on this. Okay. No matter. Motion is carried. Thank you. Two more requests to move up items. Item number 19, please. Thank you. Two more requests to move up items. Item number 19, please. Communication from Councilwoman Sara. Councilmember Your Honor, Vice Mayor Richardson. Recommendation to request City Manager to work with community stakeholders to create a vision and feasibility plan for a Cambodian American cultural center. Councilwoman Far row. Thank you, Vice Mayor, and I thank you as well as Councilmember Urunga, for signing on to this item. And I want to. Jim Whipsaw. Look, I'm sorry. I do not mean well among own, but Laconia. I couldn't join my own. So I just want to thank everyone for being here today who've written. Comments and emails of. Support, as well as. Making sure to be here. To speak in support of the item. As many of you already know, because we commemorate the Cambodian genocide every year that many have resettled here in the aftermath of the genocide, making Long Beach, the largest Cambodian population in the United States. And which is why I am so proud to bring forward this item, to make sure that we make this dream of so many Cambodian living in Long Beach, the beginning of a reality of creating a Cambodian American cultural center. And then, given how arts and culture was almost completely lost during the genocide. It's been so important to many of our Cambodian elders that arts, culture and history is not lost, but that it's not only celebrated and promoted, but preserved so that the next generation, such as myself, the Cambodian Americans, are able to also learn and understand as well as the broader community, learn and understand the arts and culture and language as well of the Khmer people. So I also want to add that the mayor supports this item as well, even though he couldn't be here today. So I spoke with him and that he was in support of this. So I wanted to make sure to share that and also want to make sure to share that. It's and you know, we just had such a rich culture of making sure to celebrate our diversity and the culture and adding into the many cultural centers here in Long Beach, and that we hope to add the Cambodian American Cultural Center to it. With that said, I love to open this for public comment. Thank you. Vice Mayor. Thank you. Councilmember Sara, we have I'll offer a few comments. We do have 18 people here, so I want to make sure we get to get to them. I just wanted to say I'm happy to support this. I think it's important. It can do a lot to enrich our cultural tapestry, the cultural center. We've taking steps on the African-American Cultural Center, the Latino Cultural Center, and I certainly believe the Cambodian American Cultural Center will be a tremendous addition to our city's cultural fabric. That said, let's go ahead and begin public comment here we have I'm going to call them up three at a time. And if you come up and line up because there's 18 people, if you can come up three at a time, that would be helpful. First is vital in this. And then next is Daniel Lu and Suzanna Sneed. Is it on? Going to they're going to help you lower the podium. Beautiful. Thank you. Malala. Okay. Thank you. Good evening, countrymen, and how the woman and wife honor honorable mayor. My name is David. Throughout the night in. My friend. Call me that. My parents and my father, all the survivors of the killing feel. I've been a long time resident of the state. I live in District one, all from I've been living in Long Beach over 30 years plus. Since then I have seen that Cambodian American have come a long way in a nine. We overcome a lot of racial violence and tension. And our neighborhood is now named Cambodian town. Honorable Mayor and member of the City Council. Now it is time to start a new chapter in our history. It has been a dream of for a number of years by many a Cambodian American. To have a cultural American culture center in a united state. We have 320,000 Cambodian. American. California have an estimate of 118,000. Yet outside of Cambodia, Long Beach have been over 20,000 lodges in the country in one city. I'll compare the American need at home for our identity and legacy so we can preserve for the next generation and educate other American about army music or band or our food. Ancestral artifact has partially. Our rich history of our global. I hope his vision. I don't know. 19

Campbell or American Culture Center come to realization with your support and with your hope. Thank you. Thank you for your time. Next is Daniel and after that is Suzanna. And after that is Christina Lee. Daniel. Hello. Hello. Hello, City Council. Thank you for sharing space in your presence today. My name is Daniel Loo and going public comment on behalf of Cambodia towns thrive based on our community vision plan, draft and community engagements. With over 200 plus community members, many expressed the need for youth educational spaces, outdoor, multicultural center and civic comments to meet the overarching guiding principles of creating healing restorative communities. Of these community priorities connected to creation of the Cambodian American Cultural Center. It provides a space for across racial and ethnic dialog, as well as intergenerational conversations that preserve not only Cambodian history and culture, but also the rich and rich history and culture that is unique to a diverse community that makes Cambodia town what it is today. The center will be essential for us to move forward from no history, no self taught, to know history, to know yourself, which is a essential part of building community capacity, reimagination and power. Uh. Although the Cambodian American Cultural Center will hold great significance for the Cambodian community in cultural peacekeeping, police keeping. It will also serve as a space to share knowledge and community expertize from all communities of color. Because the path towards collective liberation is together, not separate. As Angela Davis mentioned, we need to create spaces to dream first, to then reach re-imagine futures. Disinvestment is part of the longer movement for racial equity and reconciliation. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next, this is Dennis Main, followed by Christina Lee, then Mark Hobson. Then trip the welcome. Thank you council members for introducing this topic. My name is Suzanne Thiam and the executive director of the United Cambodian Committe

e. And on behalf of UCC, I urge you to support this Council item in support of a Long Beach Cambodian American Cultural Center. As folks have shared before me is that this space will create a safe space for commune members to not only learn, but also heal together from the genocide, but also for our young and next generation to be able to understand more about themselves and their identity as Cambodian Americans. In addition to that, the work that we do within our Cambodian community, UCC helped co-lead the Cambodian Town Thrives Collaborative, and our vision is to uplift the Cambodian vision plan for Cambodia Town, which includes actual development and investment within our communities. What that means is that we help different focus groups and community forums within this focus group and kumu forums, one that was held by Cambodian families and elders. The committee members shared that they really wanted a space to share their culture with one another. So they talked about being able to share food, language, but cost cross-cultural exchange not only about the Cambodian community, but also to learn about the Latin X community, about about the black community here in Long Beach. And so with that, this space can not only can only can also uplift the Cambodian culture, but also uplift cross-cultural solidarity and understanding across all of our communities. The ways that you see using that is that we're supporting the African-American Cultural Center and also the Latin X Cultural Center. So I urge you to support this counter item and to ensure that there's community input into this process, but also to build cross solidarity across other communities. Thank you. Thank you. Next, we have Christina Lee and Mark Hobson and Roth from Christina. The River Sewer. Vice Mayor Rex Richardson, an honorable city council member. My name is Dr. Christina Lee. My practice is in the First District, and I'm also a local pastor at the Long Beach Cambodian American United Methodist Church, located in the fourth District. I am here to speak in support of the District six. Councilwoman Duff, the City South Agenda Number 19 for a number of reasons. So, number one, the Cambodian American Cultural Center, which I would call the center, is will be a place where we as a people can connect to our ancestor registry and to continue. Their legacy. As the descendents in the United States. The CAC center will also be a place where people and the children especially can gain a greater understanding of what the refugee had to overcome to be here today. The CAC Center will keep the heritage alive through knowing the loving and the beautiful cultural values of the authentic. My ways and that were nearly destroyed by the Khmer Rouge regime. And the. CAC. Center can contribute to the unique diversity. Of the. City of Long Beach, with the greater public understanding of the Cambodian American narrative through awareness and education. The center also will remind the Khmer children of th e potential in the strength within them. So by making them aware that they can survive, they can do it despite what their background or their parents have gone through and they can harness to use that for their own pursuit. For example, so I was an orphan who arrived in the early eighties, but I was able to become who I am today through the loving and caring support of the Christian family who has supported me. And just because I was here and I didn't see any other people around, but there was some Cambodian community I could relate it to through the churches. The center will also be a place of the elderly where they can relax and relive the stress of life. And it's a position that's very important to have that connection and the support. Thank you. Fantastic. Next we have Mark Hobson, then Roth from the Angelina Train. Mark Okay, my name is Mark Hobson. I'm going to read a letter for gymnasts in case you couldn't make it today. So dear dear Vice Mayor Rex Richardson and honorary city council members. My name is Chan Hobson, executive director of the My Parent Association with an office located in the sixth District. And speaking on behalf of the Key Board of Directors in support of District Six. Councilwoman Susie Searles, Agenda Item 19 for a Long Beach Cambodian American Culture Center. For over 2000 years, Cambodia was well known for its many remarkable temples, such as Angkor Wat and its beautiful silk weaving. It also has a rich history of literature, arts, dance and culture. Unfortunately, much of the Cambodian arts and literature was almost destroyed by the communist Khmer Rouge, and the majority of artists and artisans were killed. This is why it is crucial to have a Cambodian cultural center that promotes and preserves my art, culture and history. For this reason, we come together today to support District Six Councilwoman Sylvie Sierra's agenda, item 19 from Long Beach, Cambodian American Culture Center. I urge you to support this item by voting yes on the agenda item 19. Thank you. Thank you. Next is Rock Prom and Angelina Tran and Anthony Vieira. Rock the Fool. Um, well, I will be her interpreter. Okay. Thank you. Look for Toy Story three chosen. Is the market like. Go off to the right problem. You've got people moving in like me. Two with one or more android, five door gear. Those who get paid for a film to try and acknowledge and stop looking like Nokia. Malcolm Gladwell. Some guy got repriced all that long term and tried to downplay the fact that all you're. My name is Prum. I am sorry that from beginning June would have thought. Vice Mayor Rick Richardson and City Council Member. My name is Robert. I am the resident of the District six. I live here in Long Beach since 1981. I am very active and getting involved in numerous volunteers activities and participating in meetings in the neighborhoods and in the city, such as neighborhood clean up, street, cleaning up, gathering three planning, tree watering to make our neighborhood fre e of traffic and beautify our city. Tonight. A lot of Americans might in a year come through an order from more or less a market column photograph and stuff like from movies like Beat Cop and Cardinal Law about the book My American. I am here. I am standing here in front of you to speak in support of the District six in the of the Cambodian American Cultural Center, the Law of Capital Crime. I am a Chicago D.A. like Damon Chapman. The way I am outcast to approach write that talk me and my twang your unfavorably ni forsyth I look back and let the cool calm of the uptight backgammon player for a little suck My folks, I'm fake You let my back roll now because I'm not like. The Cambodian cultural center is a place with the seniors, and the young people will have a chance to interact with each other, to learn about Khmer tradition, language, arts and culture from the past before the Cambodian genocide and the life of Calmeyer or to choose here in Long Beach to create a strong bond with the young generation . So the and third generation gaps will become closer to them no longer available. Wait a moment. Coming. Your own God gets much more clear. And also how bonding between the young generation so that the new generation can be mourned together. But the pearl cam, I mean, ran for some time, kind of, you know, I'm on my way to my I mean, let the pay up to wake you up to wake me up. I want the mountain of family and castle to wake up. And you have to say. It is very important to have the Cambodian American Cultural Center with the senior will have the opportunity to connect with other seniors for mutual support whenever the need will help them in that dialog with you. Thank you. Almost all local control can be lost by watching out my job. To learn more about the poor. Come on. I'm an accountant, so therefore I'm asking for full support in the items by voting yes on agenda item 19 for the language Cambodian American Cultural Center. Thank you. Thank you. All right. Next is Angelina Tran. And after that is Anthony Guerra and then Linda Shay. Angelina. I saw Vice Mayor Rex Richardson, Honorable City Council members and city manager comedy. My name is Angelina Chen. I am a resident of District nine and I am the assistant peer leader of the Youth Inspiring Change and Unity Youth Group. The Cambodian American Cultural Center is a necessity for our youth to appreciate their culture and embrace their identity. Growing up in Long Beach, I didn't have much opportunity to thoroughly learn about our whole Cambodian culture because it wasn't taught in school. All I learned from my parents was that they lived through the horrific communist regime. And they had to flee the country and settle to settle in the United States. Hence, young Cambodian Americans growing up in Long Beach don't really know much about their own history, culture and language and authentic art. This will lead them to lose their own sense of identity. And I truly believe that our identity an d heritage is much more than just surviving a genocide. We can't just let one tragedy define who we are as a community, and our community deserves to know about the beauty that our ancestors left behind. And for our elders and young generation alike, it would mean the world to us, for the Cambodian American Cultural Center to become a reality. I strongly ask for the full support from VICE. Mayor Rex Richardson and city council member. Thank you, sir. Next is Anthony Guerrero, then Linda shave and math, then may lie. Anthony? Oh, yes, sir. My respects. Vice Mayor Rex Richardson and Honorable City Council members. My name is Anthony Guerrero. And I am the My Parents. Association peer leader of Youth Inspiring Change and Unity Youth Group. The Cambodian American. Cultural Center will be. The core center. That will highlight the rich cultural, intellectual and spiritual. Richness of the heritage of Cambodia. The ability to learn. About their. Beautiful language, the majestic arts that existed during the Korean period since the 12th. Century, and the. Knowledge of Cambodia. Before the dark years. Grant them the connection to their heritage that they deserve to know. This Cambodian cultural center will. Encourage them to cherish the beautiful. Heritage that still exists within Cambodian society today. This special. Cambodian. Cultural center is the place to highlight the. Legacy that they will continue here in the city of Long Beach and in the United States of America. I would like to welcome at least the City Council. To support. The creation of the Cambodian. American Cultural Center, to. Provide a means for the Intergenerational Committee residents to benefit and rebuild their own community and the relationships bonding with each other. With this with this transparency, transparency of this city of Long Beach. Thank you. Thank you. Next is Linda Shay. Then Maya laughs. And then same thing. Can Linda can be absurd. Good evening, Vice Mayor Rex Richardson and honorable council members. I'm Dr. Linda and I live in the first district here in Long Beach. I'm speaking in support of District Six. Councilwoman Dr. Sally Sara. Agenda Item 19 at for the support of the Long Beach Cambodian American Cultural Center. The Cambodian American Cultural Center will allow survivors of the killing fields to heal together with their loved ones. Cambodia has a rich literature, literary, artistic dance and cultural history that was almost lost in the war. Every survivor that has passed away takes with them an irreplaceable story of not only their lives in the killing fields, but Cambodia before the war had happened. Sharing these survivors historical memories with the young generation keeps the memories of not just the survivors, but the memories of the educated, creative, artistic Maya who built a great society before the war. The Cambodian American Cultural Center will be a place for the elders to alleviate isolation through having a sense of community that will enhance their quality of life. And in addition, speaking from a public health professional professional, I want to bring to your attention that it's going to provide a safe environment for them to tell their stories, share them, and definitely improve their emotional wellness and their health. So I urge you, please make this dream of ours happen. Thank you so much for your time. Thank you. Next, we have Mueller. Then Hancock. Dan. Then trial. Sonia. Thank you. Hello. My name is that. It's made me a laugh. And I am a Cambodian American refugee who had the privilege of learning the sacred art form of Cambodian classical dance in Long Beach. It is such a privilege for me to be here and advocate for this center. Since I was 12 years old, I was part of my arts academy. Since its incorporation in 2000 to first as a student. For the last several years, as an as an instructor and the managing director of the Long Beach programs, I have the responsibility of being one of the gatekeepers of our culture and traditional arts. And because we almost lost this art and we're only here by the surviving 10% of artists. Long Beach has the opportunity to help unite all of the remaining artists and provide the space to preserve this altogether by having the center. It's my pride to pass down our culture and tradition to the next generation and remind the older generation that is not forgotten. It is difficult for a parent to speak about their past and what they've gone through. But I have witnessed their stories, their tears, as they felt inclined to share about their past. It is during these moments is when I realize that this art can be a form of healing for survivors from a young age. All I knew about Cambodian being Cambodian was only darkness. I never knew the details of what my parents went through and just only knew about violence and suffering. And it wasn't until I enrolled in dance school was in, I discovered the rich and vibrant history of Cambodia. Being a dancer allowed me to learn the history and tradition of what Cambodian is, and having this hub will allow our community to grow and thrive even more in this diversity. The younger generation will have a safe space where they can learn and understand where they ancestors came from and help them understand their identity. Your time is up. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next is Song Con, then Charles Song. Then Andy Song can be up. Before we thought we were still looking at banana. Good evening. Five major council members. I'm very happy. To be here, and thank you for the opportunity given. First of all, I would like to express my heartfelt thank you to. A City council member. Dr. Hill, etc.. For introducing this important agenda. Item 19. And I would like to take this opportunity also to say profound thanks to widespread. Richardson and also councilman. Roberto agenda. Odinga for your signing on the agenda items. In short, on behalf of my family, I have three kids. My wife via a volunteer. We are a community volu nteer since we are here. 2018 remove from Cambodia. 2017. But we I enjoy living here Long Beach Road home. So we would like to request Honorable Vice Mayor Council member to support the items by voting yes. On agenda items 19 for Long Beach, Cambodian American Cultural Center. Thank you so much. Thank you so much. Next is Charles Song, then Andy Redd and then Charles Wong. Charles, thank you. Thank you. First off, I'd like to say it is so wonderful to see you all safe and well. Good evening. Annabelle. I smell like witches and. Honorable Council member. My name is Tom Song. I am a co-chair of the Equity for Cambodians. And a community organizer. I like my fellow brother and sister to speak in support of District six. Councilwoman Farrow's Agenda Item 19 for a Long Beach Cambodian American Cultural Center. Long Beach is home to the largest population of Cambodia outside the Kingdom of Cambodia. This is due to meeting tomorrow, resettling and immigrating to the city after the overthrow of the Khmer Rouge regime in 1979. The Cambodian Genocide Watch a traumatic moment in history where millions of lives were lost and those who survived, including my family, were severely traumatized by the ordeal. During this period, much of the arts and cultures had been destroyed and nearly lost forever. This is why it is crucial to have a Cambodian cultural center where most could have a place to heal and promote preserved art and culture. City of Long Beach is also home to amazing culture, including the Museum of Latin American Art, the Pacific Island Ethnic Museum, the Homeland Cultural Center, and the Long Beach of Japanese Cultural Center . The construction of the Cambodian American Cultural Center will continue the ongoing tradition of celebrating the diverse art and culture in Long Beach. Honorable Vice Mayor and Ottoman Council Members. It is so right for you to support this item and I thank you so much for it. Next we have Andy Redd and Charles Wong. Chad Wong and then. Totally normal. So, Andy, Europe, soul mate, vice mayor of education and I am both city council members. My name is Andy RATH, and I'm a freshman at Cass High School in Dominguez Hills. I'm also a resident in the seventh District. In a youth aspiring change in unity member. As a Cambodian American youth, I don't know much about Cambodian history and have no ideas about the trauma that my grandparents had gone through during the communist Khmer Rouge regime. I know that my story is not reflected in what I see in the textbooks. The stories that I learned from my parents about the Civil War and the genocide, along with the challenges of resettling in the United States. I heard about the youth issues, the mental health, and the challenges our people faced as refugees. Yet every time I look at photos and paintings of the wonder of Angkor Wat and other temples that were built during the Mai Empire, I know that there's a lot more for me to learn about my grandparents and. Parents history and traum a and pain. I want to learn more about my heritage and the rich civilization that our people had. I have a definite belief that the Cambodian American Culture Center will be a place not only not just a place where our grandparents, parents and elders to share their sad and happy stories to help each other . But a place for youth. For a place where the youth can go to, for inspiration, to learn more about our identity and to recognize the potential that we have inside us. We like to have a place where we can be together and recognize what it is to be American. I am standing here on behalf of all of my youth as. Time has expired. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you so much. Next is Chad Wong in satin of Mom. The Invention, a grainy chat. Good evening, Vice Mayor and city council members. My name is Chad and I have been a resident of the sixth district for 41 years. I am here this evening speak in support of Agenda 19 for Long Beach, Cambodian American Culture Center. The city of Long Beach has been home to many cultural sites that have been blessed to be a culinary vendor in the past. With the Museum of Latin American Art. The Pacific Island. At the museum, the Homeland Cultural Center and Long Beach, Japanese culture. But I have yet to work with my own culture center. It's because we never had one. There are so many residents from the past 41 years. That are of Cambodian descent. They have made great strides and made historic and historical contributions to the Cambodian American community and to the city of Long Beach. They brought with them the importance of art and culture for four decades. It's been sewn into the fabric of the Cambodian community, the Sea, Long Beach and the Greater Long Beach area. I personally know so many friends, residents and former residents of the Cambodian. American background. They are successful in Korea, such as public servants, lawyers, police officers, doctors, nurses, teachers and business owners. They have paved the way for so many of us. Having the Cambodian Culture Center will be of great importance for Cambodian Americans and for the city of Long Beach. It will bring Cambodian history and give cultural equity. It can be a place to share among other rich cultures, within our city and abroad. I urge you to support this item by voting yes on agenda item 19 for a Long Beach Cambodian American Culture Center. Thank you. And pass the thank you starting our mom version of grainy and tone and talking off camera to. Bill Wise may call himself immensely thorough and all council member. And hi everyone. My name is Tanner Mom. I am a student studying in Long Lake City, Colac, flowing in Cambodian town. Many Cambodian and I have had the dream so many year for Cambodian American Cent. Cambodian American Cultural Center. In Long Beach, which is. Who got the people in community to come together. And I would like to take this opportunity to request Mr. Wise, Mayor and Council Member, for approval, the Cambodian American Cultural Center. That is the heart of Long Beach. As we want to show our noble. To know the Cambodian town. So that Cambodian people can come and support. Last but not least, we are looking forward to seeing your consider. And I have a letter from Global Refugee Awareness Holding Center. Be a community leader. The Global Refugee Aware Now Hearing Center is writing to you to request funding support for our nonprofit organization in Long Beach. California. We have so elderly people and young people in our community. In 2016, by offering education and services to a wiring of resources in Long Beach area, the specific purpose of the organization is to provide have area. Our mayor and I will Kathy on mental illness and suicide prevention. We would like to continue providing method and technique to enrich individuals through our education and pathway program. This is expanded. And thank you. Thank you so very much. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you. Our final three, Vesna Antoniou and Chaw Van Horn. Okay. So what we have to do is a good opening by Vice Mayor Richardson and then good evening to council member. Yeah, that's my name. And Colon that I'm the date the body was about in the healing center. And then I'm leaving at least three, four. And the address? One, three, four, four. Stanley Avenue Long, California. Nice little a little fall. And then, uh, I would like to support the, uh, council, the, uh, solely saddle and that the proposal the about the Cambodian and American culture in Eden Center in Long Lake. So the agenda is for the agenda is tonight in. Yeah. So I'm the Cambodian American that we met and then I got from Seoul Malaysia. Yeah about it wanted to help the war on the Cambodian American culture or center in long like that for the Cambodian the elderly and young generation to know about the culture. And then we want to have the culture too. So in the war and then to Seoul, to all the Cambodian American that living in Long Lake and that little everywhere. So the thank you for the love this only that a proposal proposed leader of the Cambodian American culture. So I'm come to speak for today about the Cambodian American culture and community that in Long Lake City I vote by America son and then council member that to approval to approval for the Cambodian American Medical Center. Your time is expired. Thank you. Thank you for your time. Tour Van Horn. Yeah. Small business can no longer get the long term loan they. People love money and some always love from a few thousand thought that would come through me and some rap quarterback my. Yeah. My name is Wisner. I live here in Long Beach at the Fort District. I'm here to support the Cambodian American Cambodian American Cultural Center. So I'd love to have some army, some to replace them. Thank you and goodbye. Thank you. I think that's satisfied. Public comment. Thank you to everyone who showed up. Very powerful, thoughtful comments. Thank you so much. We're going to take it back behind the rail. We ha ve Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you so much. I wanted to reserve my comments for after the community input. I just want to thank so many of you for taking your time tonight to come down here. And this is an important day and this is an important opportunity. And I'm so supportive of all of you and the work that you're doing in the community and working towards this important asset that I believe that we can get to. Thank you. And as you now reach out to me when I can be helpful. Thank you. Thank you. Councilmember You want to thank you back, Mayor, and I want to thank everybody who came today and offered their comments on this very important item. I think it's part of the evolution of Long Beach. I mean, back in the day, we were known as the International Hotel, and that certainly is true and true today. I always talk about the story when in 1983, 84, when the U.S.S.R. first opened up, I was part of the committee that made the transition from the La Raza Neighborhood Center to the United Cambodian Center. And that was the beginning of a long relationship between myself and the community community as well as between the commuter community and Long Beach. We welcomed you then. We welcome you now. And this center that we have is just going to be another great step forward in the growing relationship that we have with each other. More importantly, for me, cultural centers like these we have in the Filipino community, Latino community definitely is about our children and it's about our children learning about our cultures and the cultures that we grow and we maintain the strength of our diversity in our city. So I welcome this opportunity to investigate this ability to open a center in the kimono community and looking forward to having a center identified and a groundbreaking in the very near future. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Allen. And so thank you, Vice Mayor. And I just want to say thank you to Councilwoman Farrow for bringing this item forward and Councilmember Turanga and Vice Mayor Restaurant Richardson for signing on to this very important item for a Cambodian American cultural center. I also just really appreciated all the speakers that came here today. Just thank you for sharing your stories and your heart with us. I especially enjoyed hearing the youth talk about their desire to learn more about their history and their heritage. And it's just a beautiful testament to how important this cultural center is going to be and mean to the community. I supported the feasibility study for the creation of a Latino cultural center, and I also believe it's important to promote the development of our Cambodian community and culture also. Our diverse communities here in Long Beach deserve cultural preservation and beautiful spaces to learn about each other. So I just really look forward to you, you know, identifying a location and I just can't wait to see that happen. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Austin. Thank you. And I want to just start then my support. Thank Councilmember Thoreau for bringing this item forward. We have really turned a corner in the city, and in the last few years, we both dedicated ourselves to celebrating culture, celebrated art, and really put in our. Our values are where our mouths are, so to speak, in terms of celebrating diversity. And this is another step in that direction. I think this is long overdue. I look forward to working with this community to make this cultural center a reality, along with the African-American Cultural Center, along with that next American Cultural Center. We will be able to have a world class city that I think we will all be proud of, but be an example for other cities across the country. Thank you, gentlemen. WOMAN They have. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Thank you very much, Councilwoman Sara, for bringing this item forward. I think it's only fitting that in, in a city where we pride ourselves with our diversity, that we finally bring in a Cambodian cultural center. I think that's amazing, amazing news. I know that I have a lot of Cambodian community in me in my district, and I want to thank all of you from my district that came and spoke today. Thank you very much. And I look forward to supporting the Cambodian cultural center every step of the way. So congratulations on this historic item. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Price. Thank you very much. And I want to thank all those who came out tonight to support in favor of this item. I think it's a fantastic item. I want to thank a couple and Sara for bringing it. And like my colleagues have stated, our culture and our diversity in the city of Long Beach is what makes us so special. And anything that I can do to help support different communities being able to celebrate and honor their culture and their traditions and set a framework for the future generations to be able to be rooted in the culture of their. They're their parents or grandparents and those who came before them. I will be happy to do so. I, like many of my colleagues, have stated, I stand here ready to support anything you may need to move forward. Thank you, Councilman. Super not. Well, thank you to all the speakers here tonight for sharing your stories. Also, a special thanks to the fourth District residents and those representing organizations headquartered in the fourth District for speaking tonight. And I look forward to supporting this item. Fantastic, Councilwoman Sorrell. Thank you. I you know, I want to add that in addition to creating this Cambodian American Cultural Center, it's just adding to the Latino Cultural Center, as well as the African-American Cultural Center. That well will have the space to be able to understand our roots and celebrate and promote the arts we're able to cross, come together to learn from each other as well. That's what I hope we can do. But I also didn't expect to get so emotional as each speaker came and spoke. It just reaffirmed why this is so important and I am starting to get emot ion again, just talking about it. So I just appreciate all of you for coming to speak your heart and your mind and your soul about what a dream this process is to begin exploring, creating a plan and a vision together in unity with our elders and our youth so that we're able to come together and root ourselves and to be able to grow together in this process. So a countdown. Thank you, jambalaya. All right, a fantastic item. Congratulations again, members. Please cast your vote. Councilwoman Mongo. Motion is carried. Thank you. Next, we have item 24. Item 24 Communication from Councilwoman Pryce, Chair of the Port Transportation and Infrastructure Committee. Recommendation to send a letter to the city's federal legislative delegation advocating for safety resources in the federal infrastructure package to include funding for local jurisdictions related to traffic enforcement. Councilmember Gonzales comes with a price. That's okay. Thank you. This item came out of committee. We did have a presentation by Dr. Tyler Curley regarding some of the federal legislative proposed federal registration dollars and the focus on traffic safety. Unfortunately, the the federal discussions and the proposed drafts of the legislation don't include enforcement by the police in the area of traffic safety. And so I would like, through this motion to request city staff to draft a letter to our federal delegation asking that there be some flexibility to use some of those federal traffic safety moneys for proactive traffic enforcement, for DUI and speed contests and other speeding violations. Our traffic unit at the Long Beach Police Department has been has been reduced by virtue of our budgetary constraints and needs. And my concern about that is that the reduction of the traffic safety, the traffic unit of the Long Beach Police Department has made it more difficult for us to conduct some of the proactive enforcement that we need. I realize traffic safety is not the sexiest of issues, but if you have ever known anyone whose life has been impacted by a drunk driver, whose life or the life of their family members has been tragically ended by a drunk driver, then it will be a priority issue for you. As it is for me, I have dedicated over 20 years of my life to supporting victims of crime, many of whom lost a loved one as a result of an impaired driver or a driver that was speeding or engaged in a speed contest. And I think that we need to have a stronger and. More proactive traffic enforcement team on Long Beach PD. And I'm hoping that some of the federal infrastructure dollars will allow us to build our traffic team back up to allow for more drug recognition experts to be on the Long Beach Police Department, to allow for more directed enforcement teams to do traffic enforcement on our major corridors and to be out there conducting not just enforcement, but outreach, education and warnings about speeds, about impairment and about all those things that really impact traffic safety for our community in addition to traffic design, road design and engineering that we already are focused on. So I'd ask my colleagues to please support this item because the infrastructure dollars can be utilized for things outside of what is currently listed and contemplated to include personnel and traffic enforcement efforts by cities through their police department. Thank you. Thank you for Mongo. Thank you. I'm grateful to serve on this committee and very supportive of the item and throughout my time with the council. And actually one of the reasons I ran for city council is because of a traffic light. And I will tell you that the safety of our streets has been a consistent priority. We have tried to use whatever resources become available to our district for flashing crosswalks, studies on lights, trying to make it safer for pedestrians. A majority of the pedestrians that are really moving through our community at certain times of the day are youth. And quite frankly, since COVID, I will say that the speeding, the severity of DUIs and the distracted drivers across our city are completely out of control. And we've had several vehicles run into houses. We've had several vehicles hit pedestrians. And some have been fatal and have really rocked the heart of our district. And. I recognize that you can't have a cop on every corner, every day. But we need more enforcement. And I'll continue to work with the city staff to come up with design changes that really protect residents. We're talking about major boulders being put in front of houses that have been hit multiple times. And we've had cinder block walls just completely annihilated and people are just driving too fast. They're already violating the law. So there's no more laws you can pass, just a lack of disregard for their peers and children and the number of signs that I've seen. Put up, please slow down. Children's play here consistently goes up because the erratic, speeding and distracted drivers are just at a new level that the I. I have not seen in my lifetime. And it's very disappointing. And I don't know another way around it. I've I've heard the study is that enforcement only impacts a resident who gets either the ticket or the fine or the whatever for a short period of time. But at least for that short period of time, the residents are safe from that driver. So I will I will take a moment just to thank our former commander who's here, who on several occasions when we would report the erratic driver, he would make a personal call to either the family or the parents of the individual who were speeding or erratic. But it's just not enough. And we need more. And I'm very supportive of this item and thankful to serve on this committee. Thank you. I'm going to just just add some comments and a friendly amendment here. So I think all of this certainly makes sense. And I'm glad that the committee took this up, and I think it's a worthwhile request. I also know that we epithet led com mittee are organizing requests in alignment with our request for this infrastructure bill. For example, you know, this is one request, but also there's no local dollars in general within this infrastructure bill. There's, you know, there's federal, you know, roads and things like that. But we do want to have a local infrastructure program, which I think is really important. We certainly want to do groundbreaking ribbon cuttings on streets, but we want to do groundbreaking and ribbon cuttings and other critical infrastructure important to our communities, you know, community centers, schools, whatever it is as well. And so I want to make sure that we're speaking with one voice. And so I'll ask that that this go and be a part of the, you know, whatever overall message that we're sending as the sort of route to get there. So whatever that looks like, I know that we're going to have another committee meeting in the next month. I know that in Tyler, Dr. Crowley, we anticipate that bill to move like October-November, is that correct? Yes, sir. We will likely have more details on the reconciliation package this month, but it may take through the end of fall or this year to remove both of those packages. Right. And there may be other things that come up between now. And is that okay with you to make sure we speak one voice? Yeah, I. No problem with accepting that as an amendment I just timeliness is an issue. And so when this committee was formed, the mayor specifically said to me, I want you guys to take up the federal legislation that's coming out for infrastructure and so that we're just trying to move on it. We've had four meetings now, right? So we're trying to move on it. I just I just don't want to delay. But I think speaking with one voice as a council is always really, really important. Good. So, so right. So I think working on the bill is good, you know, giving feedback. But at the end of the day, you know, we're going to speak to one voice of the city. So, you know, I think you I think you've accepted it. So I think we're we're good in that place. Couple of mongo. I just. What are you asking for? There not to be an immediacy of the letter that the items rejecting or requesting the items requesting a letter. To the federal delegation. So are you asking that we hold the letter until after the Federal Legislative Committee? Is that a question? The motion belongs to Councilwoman Price. Councilwoman? I mean, yeah, I guess I just don't. I don't know when the next committee meeting is. I, I just want them to know that this is a priority for us as soon as possible. Now, I want the letter to come immediately. And then how long does a letter usually take when it's possible to put the letter? I know that's. I don't know. When's the next Fed meeting? I guess that would help. So I think we I don't have the date in front of me, but I know that you've been working with time has been working with Matthew. We've had a consistent meeting. We've talked about we ju st got past the last reconciliation bill. Now we're working on infrastructure and the idea that there's going to be a convergence of all the issues that work together. And we certainly plan on, you know, I mean, from you know, we've I think we invited a number of members to actually speak to the committee, federal members. We've talked with, you know, Congressman Lowenthal, who we're doing that process. And so what I don't want to do is start having, you know, different messages come out from different places. We typically have that issue when we talk with like the port, for example, they may ask for a big request. And sometimes we say, hey, let's make sure we ask those questions better. If you're talking to Army Corps of Engineers, for example, they may say the top priority is dredging, and you may say the top priority is to break water. And so sometimes there needs to be sort of convergence of priorities, and that typically happens at a fitness committee and so on. So. So I think what I'm asking for is we speak one voice, we take this letter, whatever else is coming, we deal with it. I mean, there'll be some immediate thing we're advocating today. We're still engaging today. But what I don't want to do is start sending from two committees, you know, shooting from two committees, no different priorities. Yeah. So that's why we brought it to council because this council were to vote on it. We would be speaking as a council. Not if I didn't reach out as the committee chair. I brought it to council. When you started that, you said you were you were bringing this forward from your committee when you opened up. Correct. It came out of committee to the full council. So as chair, I didn't personally reach out to the federal delegation, because I believe it's appropriate for us, despite our relationships, to come to council and get direction from council. So I think we would still be speaking with one voice if we all, as the council, agreed that this was a priority. And unless I'm missing something, I don't know what the detriment would be to send a letter of support on behalf of the City of Long Beach for this item, and then send another letter of support for other items. I don't think that would be inconsistent, is what I'm saying. But if you'd like to include them together for whatever reason, I'm open to that too. I just this item is urgent, in my opinion, because I want to get it on the radar as they're discussing this legislation. I just I want that to be on their radar because it's not a priority item. It's not like the bridges are important. Traffic safety is not it's not that. It's just as you're talking about traffic safety, can we also include personnel dollars? That's all. So thank you. I don't know. That would be we would be inconsistent. And I'm I'm agreeable to anything. I just wanted to bring this forward so we can move it forward faster. And I thank you. I don't think we just go back and forth. You should just you what you want to speak of? Oh, I thought. I still had the floor. You asked me to ask Councilman Price the person out. You deferred. I'm sorry you took most of my time. Can I recue? Thank you. Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. I see the infrastructure committee as the mayor's instruction to lead on infrastructure. So, Councilman Price, this committee went over this. You had an excellent leadership on your committee to go through the discussion and really bring it forward in a meaningful way. I am very supportive of this coming forward from this council. Now, if it passes with a majority vote, if there was a schedule I know an economic development committee, we set our meetings, we're sat on all of our meetings through February or March. I recognize that certain committees have to pivot and move more in alignment with other agencies and other entities, and that's great. But I'm supportive of us having one voice as a council and voting on this tonight and that this letter would come out. So back to my original question to the staff. When the council typically passes a request for a letter to be sent to the delegation advocating for something, does that take a week? Does it take ten days? Does it take three months? I usually takes about a week to ten days or so. Right. And so you're still planning to move forward with that as the item on the floor stands? Is that accurate? Yes, I understand the item. We would write the letter stating that the Council approved this motion on September 14. Wonderful work and additional resources. I just want to make sure that that was still with whatever was going on with the friendlies. I just wasn't clear. And as the second term of the motion, I wanted to be clear. Thank you and still supportive of the item. Thank you. Okay, so I'm just gonna say this. You know, we're seeing these committees. The one thing that resonates with me is if the mayor's asked the Infrastructure Port and Transport Transportation Committee to take a lead on infrastructure bill. That's not my understanding. I know that he has to work on it, but that doesn't that didn't necessarily change from I respectfully when you just make my claim statement. So if that's if that's what the understanding is, I have to talk with the mayor and we'll figure it out. I don't have a problem with finding out if that's your operating understanding coming into this meeting. But I also know that we stood up at the beginning of this process when we changed our committee structure, we said, Hey, this is your lane. These are this is where we want you to focus. And if that's what we're going to focus, then let's commit to the committee structure fully. If we're not committing to a committee structure and I know this has been raised by the members that we'll have, you know, folks jumping in and out of, you know, different committees. And if that's the case and it just comes down to who has a majority on council for every issue and we'll have no order. And if that's the case, we'll just, you know, vote how we feel on every single issue and not have that process, committee process. We did a good job on, you know, let the families process through the Infrastructure Committee process. It worked. I think it you know, we spoke with one voice on delivering the, you know, $208 million there. But the process worked and we anticipate it following that very same process on the Infrastructure Committee. So I'll have a talk with council with the mayor. You know, he has a different vision on how this works. But I'd like to be organized and how we communicate to the federal government as the chair of the Federal Legislative Committee, helping off the. I structure committees. They work when they work. And I would just say, if there's a friendly I believe there is they're friendly on the on the floor or not. It sounded like it was accepted, but they felt like it was rejected. So I'm not sure what they do, except the appointed will work with the village committee to speak with one voice and have a letter together. I accepted that. But I also I don't know what the timing of it is. And we have some urgency, in my opinion, with this letter. But I, you know. If I we can get through the schedule. Councilmember. Well, I would just say that we've all we've experienced a little bit of frustration with the committee process in terms of moving important items before the, the, the, in bringing items before the Council and the gamesmanship behind the committee process. And so if an item is important to and afraid of on the floor here, I think it's important that we. And we move that item. And then obviously the Federal Lands Committee can also weigh in on that as well. And I would just say, if there is the friendly here, please make sure that they make the friendly so that the Fed actually takes action on the item. Right. And not a report back on item because that's important. Thank you respectfully that the committees the fellows committee has worked. There hasn't been gamesmanship. I mean, the proof is in what we did deliver with the infrastructure plan. We worked together with the mayor, regional agencies. We spoke with one voice. The plan the plan worked. We're going to take that very same approach to the infrastructure package. That's good. I understand this is important to the council. I understand. But our federal strategy of how we communicate work really well. And so I just want to go to Tyler because, you know, I'm just going to I think I'm going to draw this friendly because this is getting really personal here. I just want to ask Tyler. Tyler, what is the the urgency on sending submitting this letter today? I keep hearing that there is some urgency. And as sort of the manager of this process, I want you to explain what the urgency is if we have a plan to engage through the reconciliation process. What is that urgency that we're hearing about tonight? Well, at this point, we don't know the exact timeline of the entire package, but we anticipate it will tak

to the committees or the formal structure or any of those things. And since that committee has done so much work on this and Councilmember Price has already set several additional meetings and agendas, I think that they're on a great path. And I hope that if you do have a discussion with the mayor about roles and how that works, that in a similar way to what I had the discussion and you had the discussion with the mayor on the previous package that it's a very collaborative process where Councilmember Price also has a seat at the table. I know that for hours we couldn't literally sit at the same table because we were on the same committee and there was all this procedural stuff. But since you both are on the same committee, I think that that's a very good opportunity to start that collaborative process between two committees. Thank you. Thank you. And actually, that's a good example. On the economic process, we did begin we began the process of discussing the economic proposal. There was a change at one point in committee leadership, but what ultimately happened was the advocacy took place on the federal side. So the policy work and that happens in a lot of different bodies, the policy work will take place in a policy committee that expert has expertise and then the advocacy happens in advocacy committee, the led, federal and state led committee or advocacy committees. They take those things. They coordinate the advocacy, the lobbying group. We served on these committees together. I think what you're proposing actually is exactly what I'm saying. I think our lobbying efforts should be coordinated. So I don't think there needs to be a fight here just to talk about we know what works. You know, Councilman Super and I'll mention that April is when we have the committee. Absolutely right. That's when we were focused on the federal the bill, the Federal Recovery Act. And so we focused on the Federal Recovery Act in many ways. And so, you know, so that's what I envision in this process. And I think that's where we can ultimately get to. Are you caught up again, Councilman Mongo? Yes, I guess I would just say that having served on Fed Ledge with you for years, back when we first started, advocacy is more than just one committee. A lot of us can work. And I did work along with community members and stakeholders and leaders, to continue to provide advocacy for our priorities for economic development. Though there were no federal legislative trips at that time due to COVID, there was still a lot of discussion around what's possible and other ways that we can engage. And I had several. I remember sitting at the facility next to Congressman Lowenthal and at any opportunity that any one of us has the ability to advocate for our city and us to get funding and our priorities. I just I know that we should take those opportunities because that is what's expected from our residents and neighbors. So glad we came to a place where we can all work together and supportive of this item. And I want to appreciate the work of the committee. Thank you. Thank you. As any public comment on this item. There's no public. Comment. Members, we've got a vote. The motion is carried. Thank you. Now we're going to go to the item 27. Oh, we did 27 already. I think we're on 22 now. No. 34. Looks like 34. Sorry. Please cast your votes. Thank you. We're going to do all the transfer items, please. 21, 22, 36 and 38. If you can please read those into the record, Madam Clerk. Item 21 SE Communication from Councilwoman Mango. Recommendation to increase appropriation by $1,000 to support the 2021 Cemetery Tour on Saturday, October 30th, 2021. Item 22 Communication from Councilwoman Price Recommendation to increase appropriations by 2026 to $1 for a community concert on October 3rd, 2021. Item 36. Communication from Council Member Oranga. Support for Martin Luther King Junior Park BLOCK Party at Resource Fair and Resource Fair. Thank you. Can I get a motion in a second, councilman? From the comments. Okay, Councilman. Mongo, any comment? Any public comment on these? No public comment is casting votes. In this. Carry. Next item, please, which is the next hearing, which is 24. Report from Economic Development Recommendation to receive a supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and adopt a resolution continuing to zafira a parking and business improvement area assessment levy districts three and four. Dr. Eric Romero will also make the staff presentation for this hearing. The depth of marketing and business improvement area was established by the City Council in 2010, allowing for the live even annual supplement to be paid by businesses located in the district. The city contracts with the Zafira Business Association to manage the Business Improvement District and their Board of directors serves as an advisory body to the to the City Council on matters related to the district. State law governing this district requires an annual report be approved by the city council. The annual report describes the boundaries, proposed activities and budgetary information, as well as the method and basis for the continuation of the assessment. The annual report proposes no changes to the district boundaries or the method of living. The assessment and the proposed activities will focus on marketing, special events and maintenance and beautification. This concludes my staff report. All right. We need to make a quick transition. Public comment on item 24. No public comment on. Okay, Members, please cast your vote. I mean. Motion is carried. Thank you. That concludes wi th a comment. We're not going through the regular agenda. We're going to begin by taking item 46. Item 46 is communication from Vice Mayor Richardson. Councilwoman Allen. Councilwoman Farrow recommendation to direct city attorney to draft a resolution in honor of Long Beach 24th Annual Veterans Day celebration. Mr. Richardson. Thank you. Tonight, I'm proud to bring forward a draft resolution in support of Long Beach's annual Veterans Day celebration. On Beach has a long and rich history of being home to our veterans and supporting our local veterans. We became a home to many after World War Two, shaping our city's legacy as we know it today. We're home to century villages Cambria, which offers short term permanent housing to 700 veterans. We have our own VA hospital. I was there this morning helping provide lunches to staff and veterans there at the VA hospital. We also have a long standing tradition in my own council district as home to the Long Beach Veterans Day Parade and Veterans Festival for many, many years and many generations of council people. So supporting our veterans is something important to our city. It's something important to me personally. My father was a veteran. Many of you know, I was born on Air Force Base and Scott Scott Air Force Base in Belleville, Illinois. Many of my uncle's family members were veterans. These were heroes to me. I've revered these people. This year also marks the 30th anniversary of the establishment of the Long Beach Veterans Commission. Many of you are, many of whom are here today. We've been there since the very beginning. I'm proud to have introduced that. But even more proud of the work that this Veterans Commission has taken on over the course of the past five years, including the Long Beach Veterans Affairs Strategic Plan, which is the document this this commission worked on and is currently in implementation. And we certainly still have much to do, although we've taken great steps toward eliminating veteran homelessness and offering a pathway to permanent housing. We still need to do more and continue to take steps to support our veterans here in our city. I'm glad to see our city staff who have served our country coming together as a staff association to offer support and pathways for other veterans who are seeking opportunity in our city. And above all, please take this week to extend your own support for those who have served and join us at this Saturday at the annual Long Beach Veterans Day Festival on November 9th, where we will offer special recognition to one of my predecessors, former valor of former Vice Mayor Lerche, who chaired our Veterans Day Parade for many, many years, who's been a champion for veterans, who's a good friend to many of us. We're going to have a very special presentation in recognition in honor of Bell this Saturday. And so that said, I'm happy to make this motion today in support of this resolution. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman. Sir. Q Mr. Mayor, I am honored t o second in support this item. I thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson, for bringing forth a resolution to honor our veterans. And just wanted to share to that that I have a veterans park in my district that I hope that we can do more to honor our veterans. And I also want to thank my six district commissioner on the Veterans Commission, Lance Santiago, who has served our country but continues to do so in his way, in ways he can give back to the community and. And just want to express my appreciation to all our veterans for their service that they have provided to our country and continue to do so to this day. Thank you, Councilman. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And thank you for bringing this item forward to my colleagues. I feel very strongly that Veterans Day should be recognized as an important holiday in our city and throughout the country. Rarely do you find people so dedicated to a cause or value that they are willing to put their lives at risk to fight for that belief. These are the people of our United States military during intensely difficult work, far from their homes and their families, and often unimaginable conditions. The role we ask our military to play is far reaching, and it's the only interaction that people abroad may have with an American on many occasions. So building trust in complex situations is critical to the work that they do for our nation. Military veterans should hold a special place in the hearts of all Americans and especially those of us here in Long Beach. We may disagree with politics or decisions to engage in war or the use of military power around the world. But the people who willingly put themselves in harm's way to defend America around the world are uniquely heroic. And for that, I thank them and I thank all of you as a military family with a spouse who is a veteran. I know that the commitment our veterans make, and I know and I hope that everyone will take the time to thank them for their service. And I do so tonight and will do so as often and as frequently as I can. Thank you for your service. Thank you, Councilwoman Councilman's in the House. HQ and thank you, Vice Mayor Richardson, Councilwoman Allen and Councilwoman Sorrell for bringing forward this item. Individuals are recruited into the Army and the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Coastal Guards with the promise of greater opportunities and to honor and to serve the honor of heroes work, which is something that they do very good for our nation. Yet upon their return, sometimes they're not received with the resources that that they so need. So I hope that today we are reminded that we need to do better and do the things that will honor those who fight so much to protect our nation, our veterans. We need to make sure that we provide not only mental health for them, but also provide housing and be able to really honor them. How they deserve to be honored, not only on the special day, which I I'm so happy to honored them on this special day, but also honor the m throughout the years by being able to give them the protection, the hope that they deserve, especially for fighting for our country. I am honored that we can celebrate Veterans Day, and I thank all of our veterans for their service. And I truly hope that this day serves as a reminder that we we not only get to celebrate, but let's continue to do the work so that we can continuously honor our veterans. Thank you also to all the veteran owned businesses that contribute to our local community and economy and to all of our V.A. systems, especially our V.A. hospital here in the city of Long Beach and to all of our vendor veterans that proudly serve our country. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Allen. Yes. I just want to say thank you, Vice Mayor, for introducing this item and allowing me to sign on to it. I think it's important that we recognize the service of our community members who have sacrificed so much for us, for our country and our city. And we just have such great, deep gratitude for our veterans. Thank you. I, of course, like the council, want to thank all the veterans that are here. I know there are actually folks in the Veterans Commission and people that have served our country but also our city through through this commission work. And so I just want to thank you and I look forward to participating in the many events that are happening towards the end of this week and going into the weekend as well. It's going to be a great time, I think, to celebrate and to be with friends, family, and particularly grateful that the community and Vice Mayor Richardson are also honoring vice mayor of our church and his service, and not just to our country, but also his service to to the city as well. It's going to be a really special, I think, weekend this upcoming weekend. With that, let me go and go to public comment. I think, Madam Crook, I've got four members of the public. As we have four sign up for this item. Right. And his guests are also Sarah Green. And we need to double more. Can you please find out at the podium? Ryan and his. Honorable mayor, members of our city council. My name is Ryan Antes. I have the privilege of serving as chairman of the Long Beach City Veterans Commission. We just want to say thank you to the vice mayor and to the city council for the support we've received and for this opportunity to kind of find our place in continuing to serve veterans and continue that legacy of service, which is long been the history of Long Beach. It. It's difficult leaving the military, and I'm sure that I'm not unique in finding that. Learning my place in the post service world, in post combat world was kind of a great challenge. And I find that many of us look for opportunities to continue to serve as a real basis for helping transition into. Being productive members of our community. And events like the one that the vice mayors organized up in the ninth District on Saturday and the various other items that the city has kind of taking care of providing for us throughout the year really provide that opportunity to engage our veterans community and to help people feel at home here in our city. We appreciate the opportunity to continue to serve. Thank you all. Casarosa. Although by Sarah Green. I'm sorry. You may begin. Thank you. Good evening, honorable mayor and council members. My name is Gus Orozco and I am the president of the Veterans Day Committee, a nonprofit organization that is charged with honoring local veterans. I'm also a proud member of the city's veterans commission, which I have been serving on almost since its inception. And I want to thank Vice Mayor Richardson and

Councilwoman Susie Price for helping me get on that. It's been it's been a really good ride, and I'm really proud of all of the work that we've done. I want to also thank you for honoring my friend, our friend and my mentor, Valiant, former vice mayor Valor, a Coast Guard veteran who served in the Coast Guard all together for over 30 years. As you all know, council member of former vice mayor, council and council member. Our lurch has been ill for the past couple of months and it's a very emotional subject. And I really want to thank you for making the last couple of weeks of his life something that he is going to take with him and something that we are going to be able to keep with us for the rest of our lives. His impact to the city spans generations and his impact is going to live on and I know it's going to live on for the rest of our life. Long Beach veterans are one of the most diverse special populations that exists. We've got generations that span centuries. And I know this for a fact, because if you look behind me, you'll see our friend Mike Murphy, who definitely spent a couple of generations. Mike. You and his friend next to him, who he just met, Jim Dolan, both Marine Corps veterans from Vietnam. I'll make this short. Thank you again for honoring our friend valor. And thank you for the commitment that you have made to help our veterans. We have we have a history. We have military training. And a lot of that military training instills courage, commitment and honor. It also instills a large sense of camaraderie and community, which you can see behind me. So thank you for this resolution and we'll see you Veterans Day. Good evening, Mayor, and members of City Council. Thank you for bringing this item forward. I'm speaking as a U.S. Army veteran, but really speaking on behalf of all city employees who are veterans and all veterans within the city. Just last year, city employees for the employee veterans have started to band together to connect as a group, to support each other, share stories, share resources, plan social events, and hopefully be there as a welcoming group for folks that are transitioning out of the service, but really can be something that's difficult. I came right out of the army. I got out in June of 2017 and I started with the city in September of 2017. So I only had a few mon ths between that, and I really connected with a lot of folks that are that are veterans within our fire department and police department. And they really were a welcoming group for me. So I'd like that to be for, you know, be that for other people that are that are joining the city as employees. So unfortunately, last year, COVID got in the way of us gathering. However, we're looking forward to starting to gather safely again in the near future, especially with all of the upcoming Veterans Day events this week. We're also especially excited to begin to partner with our Veterans Affairs Commissioners, many of whom are with here are here with us tonight. Thank you again for your support. When you get up. Yes. Thank you and good evening on the honorable Mayor Robert Garcia, Vice Mayor Rex Richardson and members of the City Council. My name is Juanita the Fillmore. I'm a member of the Veterans Affairs Commission representing the ninth District. I'm also a U.S. Army veteran, and I'm also an advocate for women and veterans of underserved communities. Presently sitting on the board of the International Association of Women of Color. Tonight, I would like to thank you for the opportunity to speak on the draft resolution in honoring of the 24th Long Beach Annual Veterans Day celebration. Such events are very important to members of the veteran community and also the servicemen and women that have that are presently serving, as well as their families and members of the community. It offers an opportunity of us to come together as members of the community and members of the City of Long Beach to celebrate present, past and current servicemen and women with high rates of substance abuse, PTSD, depression and homelessness. These events help boost morale and show appreciation for the service of the men and women to our country. In closing, please consider our veterans and transitioning servicemen and women. On budget and line items for such as housing, education and employment. Thank you again for your continued support of the Veterans Affairs Commission, the community and veterans services organizations that support veteran programs and services. And thank you for your time tonight and have a good evening at Miller. Good afternoon. My name is Eric Mueller and I'm the executive director of US Vets Long Beach, the home of the largest homeless, previously homeless veterans service organization in the nation. I just wanted to thank you all for the opportunity to speak today, and thank you for all of your support. Every day I look at young men and young women who have served our country and are unfortunately plagued with mental health disorders or the inability to find affordable housing, and is with the support of both our council members here in our community, members that I'm able to serve over 800 people a day. And so, with all things considered, I just wanted to spend this opportunity to both thank you and thank them for their service and thank you for acknow ledging all of their hard work to make our freedoms what they are today. So thank you. Thank you, Mr. Miller, and everyone that spoke, obviously. Again, thank you all for your service. Deeply appreciate. It's good to see Mr. Murray back there as well. So. Always good. Always good to see him. And I want to go ahead and also go to Councilman Mongo who signed up. Thank you. I want to take a moment to appreciate each of you for coming forward today. And then I want to extend a hand at least once a week. My husband and I visited American Legion. He's actually I just texted him to find out where he's at, 716 tonight. And if any of you wanted to pop by, he's happy to buy you a beer. I think it's really important for there to be opportunities for veterans and your families to come together in a very relaxed environment. And if there's anything I can ever do to be supportive of you or any particular veteran, please don't hesitate to reach out. This is a continued process and a very big gap between the ages that you see of individuals that have come together and the ages of individuals who are actually veterans. And so I'm appreciative of all of you and your diversity today and a lot of you and your youth. And I hope that you'll reach out to others in your same demographics and bring them in because that family is a very strong family. And until you can sit in a casual environment and really talk about life together and the perspective that you have, there's just so much value in that that comes with that relaxed environment. But if you'd like a beer, he's at 716 tonight and happy to toast to any of you. Thanks so much. Gentlemen, often. Thank you. And I want to also appreciate this presentation this evening and salute our veterans and everyone throughout the city who are coming together in recognition. Veterans Day is usually a very special day here in the city of Long Beach and particularly in the north side of the city where we do, you know, we have a parade and a fabulous recognition for for our veterans. I'm very, very heartened to know that we're going to give a special recognition to our former vice mayor, Val Lerche. He is deserving much deserving of the recognition because he has led the charge for veterans in the city for many, many years and oftentimes with what resistance. But he's done so valiantly. And it's really, really sad that to understand that he is dealing with some some serious health issues today. I'd just like to also take this opportunity, and I'll do so in home new business as well, but also to invite the public to the Expo Art Building at 4321 Atlantic Avenue on Thursday, Veterans Day from 12 to 712 noon to 7:30 p.m.. There'll be a special African American Military Heroes exhibit hosted by the African-American Cultural Center at Long Beach. And so a great presentation. There was a preview of it at first Friday's just the other night, but they really have gone out of their way to to honor our veterans , particularly those of Af frican-American descent. So I invite you to participate in that. And thanks again for this presentation, Athena. Thank you, Councilmember Ringo. Thank you. Not only does the US vet in the Senate district, but they also had a gold star matter that honors the families of our servicemen who lost their lives and made the ultimate sacrifice . One of the things that that has been known at me for for many, many years. Many of you know that I was a recruitment officer for the city for many years. And during that time we offered for employment. We offered reference points for individuals who were Vietnam era and before veterans. That has not changed from what I know and with all the various wars that we've had and they've been declared wars, we haven't changed that at all. And you know, with all due respect to my friend Mike, very Vietnam era. He's not eligible anymore for the veteran appointee to all. They're afraid that he's retired. There's there's a difference. But, you know, I think it's it's a shame that we can't offer veterans points to those who participated in the various wars in the last few years, you know, Iraq, Afghanistan, for 20 years who were there. And I think that we need to look at changing that. And we have a new human resources director and perhaps we can work with him and maybe what we can do to change that, that opportunity for veterans to gain a point or two when they get on the list for employment with the city especially, we're looking at those who are police officers and firefighters that we want to recruit and serve for the city. So perhaps very directive to the city manager in regards to maybe get something going with that if even if it's just the city lobby set offers that, I don't know if that would be possible, but I think it's something worth looking into in investigating. Want me to answer that, Mr. Modica? So come to me. I think Mr. Murdoch and I were literally just talking about this very same thing. So back when I watched you, when I was on the city council, I put a measure on on the ballot, a city wide ballot Measure C, and it did the exact same thing. It passed by a strong majority of the public. And it was just getting some of the data we're going to actually put out. I think Mr. Murdoch is going to be putting out a memo about this here in the next day or two. But the the additional points that were given to the civil service program has provided since we passed the since the city passed measure , see what it was put on the ballot. It's already provided 4480 veterans additional opportunity to seek employment, with the city making up seven to about 7.2% of the of our qualified candidates over the last ten years. And so I had not seen this data until just a few days ago. I think that this is a they're putting together a memo that's going to go to the council and to the community. And so we often don't talk about about Measure C. It's actually one of the first things that I brought to the council when I got elected and we put it on the ballot. And it has since then given those additional points to veterans that apply for city jobs through civil service. And so I think, you know, the city should be very proud that they implemented that measure. And it's actually not just a municipal code change, but it's actually in it was done by the people of the city with something that stands today. So we're really proud of that. I thank you for that clarification by me. And I think it's because we don't slap our own backs every now and then. I mean, that's something that we should always provide in terms of being proud to show that we are taking a very serious view of our veterans and their service. And for those veterans that are out there, thank you very much for your service. Thank you. We have a motion. Any second. Members, please go ahead and cast your vote to. But in this case. Thank you. And before I go from that, Mr. Modica, is that is that memo report going to come out the next. I know we wanted to get it out before Veterans Day this year. Is that coming out in the next day or two? Yes, we can get that out in the next day or two and talk about the specific points that are awarded. There's ten points for a veteran. There is 15 points for a disabled veteran. So there's different different benefit levels that we're able to provide to that. So, yes, we can do that. Try remember the year do we do that in 2010? 2010. All right. Thank you. Okay. We have next item that was asked to be moved up was item 45. And this is also by Tommy Richardson. Madam Clerk, can you please read the item? Item 50, please? I'm 53 poor from development services. Recommendation to receive and file a report on container stacking and height and height limit regulations and approve this item. Manager's Emergency Action to temporary waive enforcement for a period of 90 days in alignment with the governor's executive order citywide. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Mr. Orth. He will give the staff presentation. Thank you, Mayor. Can you hear me? Thank you, Mayor. Members of the City Council. The global pandemic has created a disruption in manufacturing and the supply chain that has risen now to a national crisis. Cyber shipping containers, storage shortages is a byproduct of a confluence of many factors that have existed now for many, many months. To that end, Governor Newsom signed an executive order to address the storage crisis. Shortly thereafter, the city manager temporarily waived the enforcement of cargo container stacking for a period of 90 days. Parking is permitted in the city's industrial zones. Subject. However, it's limited in terms of the stacking limits within within one or two heights. There are no stacking limits within the port of Long Beach. According to the according to the the zoning designations that are exhibited here. Well, give me 1/2. There are over 4900 acres of potential space that's available for cargo container storage. However, that said. Based upon sparse research, we have found that there are approximately 37 sites potential businesses permitted to start containers within the allowable zoning designation. However, there may be unlicensed operators as well as inaccurate business license information. And we're going to research that and bring that back to you. More information within the 90 days period. Thus far. Um. Why this creating problems? Thus far, we've had no reported impacts to surrounding communities that have been that we haven't received any. We will continue to monitor and engage with the port for assistance should we have any issues that come up regarding any potential impacts. And we will be reporting back to you within the next steps to either extend, expand or in the 90 day period of time. Please note that specialized equipment will be needed to start containers which may limit the stacking activity. At this point, we're asking that that you receive and filed this report and approve the city manager's emergency action reports that is available here to answer any questions that you may have. Thank you very much. And that concludes that report. Thank you. I'm just coming up my screen ahead on main screen, I'm going to vote cast. Okay. Is there motion on this? The second. Okay. Councilman Austin, any comment? Okay. I mean, I guess, you know, understanding it. And I'd like to hear from the board as well before we actually vote. That's a possibility. Let's do that now. Comment. We can we hear. From. Report. And thank you for your consideration of this recommendation. I'm here to answer any questions you may have with regard to the global crisis that we are experiencing in the supply chain. So let's to say the nation's largest port complex has received the attention not only in Washington but in Sacramento. So we're doing the best we can to address the scenario that we have currently. I do believe that we will at some point move beyond this challenge and not only in the global global supply scenario, but also here domestically. So hopefully, again, this is a temporary measure to address a real crisis that we have in goods movement here in the United States. Thank you. Thank you. We don't we don't have questions at this point. Okay. No questions. Okay. Well, thank you so much and appreciate your support. Thank you, Mr. Cordero. Councilman, anything else? Sure. I wanted to just to say, obviously, these are extraordinary times where we the last year have had to make adjustments through our ordinances to support. Just about everything to maintain our economy, maintain our systems. And this is one of those adjustments that is maybe a little painful, but one that that I think we have to make to support the, uh, the supply chain crisis that we're facing right now with our city. As you go out to the, to the beach right now and go along the boardwalk, you can see container ships lined up for as far as you can see them. If you take a flight and you come into Long Beach Airport, you can see these container ships lined up as far as you can see them. We need to have aggressive action to move this cargo, give back to a space of normalcy. And so I support this item and I think the council should as well. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. And they are. Very supportive of this item. Thank you. Thank you all my comments here. So the the issue with capacity started well before they were car there were ships lined up four miles outside of there and there were pairs there were that created a rush for folks the same things as quickly as they could and broke things in a box and get out here and limited capacity for storage. And so even if you just drive over the Gerald Desmond Bridge and just look at the ports, and if you continue over to the Harry Bridges Bridge, you're going to see it, you know, cargo stacked up, levels higher than we've ever seen. And that's going to spill out. We're going to see that there's capacity going to be needed in the area surrounding the port all the way out to an inland empire. That's it. I think for a period of 90 days it makes sense. But we have to have a real conversation about is this really a 90 day deal? If they're in if there's an indication that it moves beyond 90 days, there needs to be some public engagement in the neighborhoods surrounding these facilities. They're clustered in North Long Beach, the west side, and in some in areas around that are around the airport and these these neighborhoods. And I've looked at mine, there's only a few they're really adjacent to neighbors but we don't want to do is take these neighborhoods approval for granted. All too often the area, the neighborhoods directly adjacent to the ports are impacted by the operations. We've been heading in the opposite direction for a long time. And so what we don't want is for the way that we address this national crisis to be just on the backs of those who are most impacted. So as we think about this and other steps, let's just prioritize that the impacts on our local neighbors. We also have to have a conversation, some thoughts about what some of the air quality impacts are going to be as well. But that said, is there any public comments item? There's no public comment. Saying no members, please cast your vote. As with. Emotions carry. Motion is carried. Great. Next item number 16. Report from Police Department Recommendation Receive and file a presentation on police initiatives and advancement from the Long Beach Police Department citywide. Okay. Is there emotion? We've got a motion in second. I'll turn it over to staff at our police department of setting up. Give them a second to get through. Welcome, Chief. Thank you very much. We do have a presentation. We were in front of you back in January with a similar presentation talking about the number of things that police department is working on. We'd like to take this chance to give you an update and kind of a reminder of the body of work that they're working on and how it also ties into our reconciliation pla

n. I will turn it over to Chief Luna and his team. Thank you, Mr. Modica, and good evening, members of the City Council. I have with me today, just before I get started, I have Ruby Marin Jordan, she's our admin bureau manager. Got promoted recently to that position before she was in charge of our Office of Constitutional Policing, which I'll be talking about extensively tonight. And then I have Commander Padel Dowd, who's the chief of staff in our office. Transformational policing is a cultural shift that promotes justice and equity, fostering trust, collaborative community relationships, and empowering all officers to make positive change. To the benefit of the communities that we serve and protect. Our department has been proactive in identifying areas in which we need to evolve. We have also learned or I'm sorry. We have also leaned in to the call for change by embracing opportunities as they present themselves. As a result, we have been extremely transformative in the way we do business, and we are committed to equity and social justice and to ongoing professional development and growth for our organization. I would like to take a moment to express my deepest gratitude to the employees every employee of the Long Beach Police Department for their dedicated service and. Their willingness to embrace the many changes during these challenging times. And I specifically want to call out the Police Officers Association and the I am as well, because they've been our partners. Anytime you make change, you have to have labor on board and they've been partners in that manner. I also, in a sense want to thank the mayor and all of you as council members for your continued support of our police department and the opportunity to present this at the Council tonight. And as of as I talk about these changes that that I'm talking about, I've spoken to each and every one of you on many occasions, and a lot of this change occurs because you are very progressive. You listen to our community. You want the police department to reflect the city's values. And a lot of that will be talked about this evening. So thank you for that. We strive to align our department's mission of public safety through partnerships and our values with the Law Enforcement Code of Ethics and Sir Robert Peel's principles of policing, which inspire our own core values of ethics, intelligence and respect. As I've said in the past, the Long Beach Police Department is very different than it was 30, 20 and even ten years ago. Our community and our environment has changed and our department has and must continue to evolve with this change. Tonight, we will be providing a presentation on the Police Department's Initiatives and Advancement, which serves as a follow up to the study session we did back in January of this year. In the next year. In the next few slides, I would like to illustrate. How progressive our department has been, how we have evolved over the years, and some factors that have infl uenced that evolution. In January of 2021, the major City Chiefs Association Executive Board, in which I hold an elected position on that board, released a report regarding police reform. That has been helpful, a helpful resource for our police department. We strive to align our policies and procedures with the major city chief's recommendations, which bring us at or above the national law enforcement standards. Major city chiefs are setting the tone and paving the way for modern policing and for us here at the Long Beach Police Department . Another report that has been a guiding resource for our police department in the last several years is President Obama's 21st century policing task force report. Outlined in this report are the six pillars you see here on this slide. We have utilized and tied specific initiatives to this report to help us manage and lead our department. This report promotes effective crime reduction while building trust through unique problem solving efforts to improve the quality of life in our community. We have embraced those unique problem solving efforts through programs such as our neighborhood walks, which we are continuing to roll out in each of our patrol divisions and our community liaison officer program. And you, the City Council, as I stated earlier, have shaped the way we do business, whether it be through reconciliation, training, recruiting, hiring or transparency efforts. And each of you I can name one program that each of you had brought to us that has impacted the way we've evolved. You are advocates for excellent policing and reforms. Here you will see a timeline of 30 different examples of initiatives and advancements since 2014, including training, equipment, wellness and community involvement. And it shows the diversity in our recruit classes are various partnerships, alternative response in our work with the City Prosecutors Diversion Program, which provides members of our community options other than incarceration. As a result of our hard work and modifications in training, equipment and the areas of accountability over the years, we are realizing significant declines in the use of force and citizen complaints. Use of force is down 28%. Citizen complaints down 30%. You will also see here references to increase diversity and transparency efforts. Together, policies and procedures provide a roadmap for our day to day operations. Effective policy change is key to the reconciliation process. Since 2015, we've made over 100 adjustments to several different policies. Some you see listed here today. In addition, we have replaced the word should with Shell to strengthen the wording and all of our new policies and policies currently under review, including our use of force policy. The preservation of life has always been at the heart of policing. Refocusing on that core ideal has never been more important that it is than it is right now. And there is no issue of greater consequence in the community we serve or to the community we serve in our profession than the issue of use of force. That is why we challenged the conventional thinking on how to approach use of force situations, in particular those that involve people suffering from mental illness to ensure we stay in line with best practices and improve the delivery of our services. Excuse me, our services. We conducted a comprehensive review of our use of force policies which are listed on this slide. We identified areas in those policies that could be modified to help prevent officers from being placed in situations that endanger themselves or others where the officers have no choice but to make split second decisions to use deadly force. The safety of everyone in our community and strengthening the foundation of trust between our community and our department are our top priorities. Constitutional policing is at the core of our community policing philosophy. Creating the Office of Constitutional Policing reflects a forward looking evaluation of what constitutional and relationship based policing mean today. It also represents our commitment to advancing practices that provide equitable, just and fair policing to all. Our Office of Constitutional Policing works closely with other city departments and the Office of Equity promoting the initiatives outlined in the Framework for Reconciliation. Reconciliation got our attention, and we learned and we continue to grow as an organization alongside our city family. As you will see here. We are invested in goal two and three of the framework for reconciliation. We are currently collaborating with our health department to reduce gun violence in the Washington neighborhood. We are also working with the Health Department, along with the Communication Center and the Harvard Kennedy School of Government Performance Lab to address residents services needs that reduce reliance on traditional law enforcement and medical. 911 Responses better known as alternative responses. We are participating in the National Justice Database to help improve transparency and accountability. Our department will also provide RevPAR and crime data to the Center for Policing Equity to analyze and to provide a deeper understanding. Of what can produce racial inequity in policing. That becomes important as we are going to release more report data later on this week because we're concerned about what that data says. And we're also concerned about the fact that when we look at our shooting stats and we look at our victims and the suspects described that those are usually people of color, typically Hispanic or African-American males. That is very, very, very concerning. We are also currently working with the University of Southern California to implement the police department's portal in their Lewes registry that we've brought to this council floor. The portal is intended to be used as a component of applicant screening before hiring a police officer. In addition, the registry will be used for research into trends and patterns of misconduct, leading to new solutions for improving law enforcement practices. At our presentation in January, we provided a report on several other initiatives that the Office of Constitutional Policing was working on. And tonight we would like to provide updates on that progress. One of the biggest accomplishments to date is the Assembly of the Community Advisory Committee, consisting of representatives from faith based organizations, neighborhood associations, business districts, attorneys, residents, as well as Cal State, Long Beach professors. They provide input and participate in meaningful discussion on a variety of department policies, especially those that impact police community interactions. As a result of their efforts, our use of force policy has taken on new a new shape. Many of the recommendations are currently being incorporated into our policy, which will be posted on our website in the coming months. They have also reviewed and provided input on the vehicle pursuit policy and have recently begun reviewing the facial recognition technology policy. Other initiatives that have been completed include the early intervention program that's already been fully implemented in our patrol bureau bias free policing, policy and training. That's a special order that's been completed and the training is ongoing and then compelled statements that are now being provided to the PCC. And we recently entered into a demo, you with the Center for Policing Equity, to conduct the critical analysis of our RIPPER data and crime data. Future initiatives include reviewing our processes to ensure we are in line with best practices. Continued collaboration with the Office of Equity. Working with the Office of Civic Innovation on two projects, creating a data compliance integrity unit and assembling a recruitment and Advancement Advisory Group. As you have heard tonight, we continue to adopt progressive changes in our department to reflect the needs and changing expectations from our community for police services. I am so proud of the employees who continue to adapt to these new change changes in their work environment. We will continue to work hard with our community partners and the Office of Equity through the framework of for reconciliation to continue to implement meaningful change and progressively move us towards. As a 21st century police department. And that concludes my presentation. Oh, thank you, Chief. I will go to the maker of the motion. Well, before I do, I'll just say thank you for the report and the data presented here. I would just in any way, I mean, obviously, the. The council chambers isn't packed with people, you know, really interested in this report tonight. But a year ago, we had, you know, a lot of interest in police reforms and changes and a lot of recommendations from from our public on how they'd like to see a lot of these police department operate in the future. And obviously, by the the da ta that was presented here today and a lot of the hard work of the council staff, and we want to appreciate the Office of Constitutional Policing for actually listening and being innovative to implement changes in a department which I hope will be better received by our community and recognized for, for the, um, for the efforts that we're making to be more compassionate as a, as a department and more responsive as a department and understanding the, the, the many challenges that have gone into the relationship with particularly communities of color. Um, so thank you very much for the presentation. I for one, appreciate it, appreciate all of the, the diligent work, particularly over the last year or more to, to advance this department. Thank you for your leadership, sir. Councilmember Your Honor. Thank you. Senior member of Apple. Therefore, the day. Of gratitude for this comprehensive report. And in all the years that I have worked for and been in the City Council, I have never seen anything so comprehensive. The police department, in terms of their initiatives and their and their report, in terms of what they are doing to improve policing in Long Beach, is a document that I think we should probably be looking at periodically, updating, of course, not about it, hear a lot of data that can be reviewed and of course rerecorded in terms of showing what kind of progress we're making as a police department to see the Long Beach. Little were the things that that did not represent. It meant that I knew where we had, at least in effect for a number of years in the past was the implementation of a community special interest groups that you would meet with that we would achieve, such as the Latino, African-American, LGBTQ. Very similar groups like that that would have a. A voice with the two in regard to issues that may have been very specific or particular to that specific group. Are you planning on implementing that again or are you still is it still in effect? Are you still dealing with these groups? And if you are, I think it would be helpful to know that and maybe report in the future as to the number of meetings you held with the various groups and the topics of discussion, whether it be hiring or or general policing as a whole. Thank you, Councilman. Your anger for that question I talked about in the presentation that community advisory committee. And what we did is, is we took what I believe to be a very diverse group, not only in culture and race, but in thought from across the city, who is advising us on our policies, specifically the use of force policy and others to come our way. We heard the community loud and clear. As the acting mayor stated earlier, when people were here talking and demanding change, we listened. And that's what this report is about. And with our community groups, it's it's absolutely we do not survive without partnerships and getting that input. We do not have the same configuration that we had once upon a time when we ha d a robust community engagement division that came through multiple reductions in budget. But you know what? We didn't blink. We didn't just give up and say, we're not going to do that anymore. So we've consistently tried to evolve and think of different ways of recreating that valuable input other than the fact that we are in the community. And I think all of you know this from all of our division commanders were I think last year we had well over 300 community meetings. A lot of them ended up being virtual because of COVID, but that never stops. And we didn't have that before. I think we picked certain community members, had them come in, and then we heard from them. Now that's more broadly utilized so that nobody feels left out. That being said, we still have we still have like, for example, a Latino advisory group that does come in and attends events and they're very connected to the police department. So that's just one example. Thank you for your report. That's all. I have a better bear today. Thank you. Councilmember Price. Thank you very much, Chief, and members of your team for the presentation. I mean, I chaired the Public Safety Committee for many years, almost my entire tenure on the council until recently. And I have had the opportunity to engage in some pretty serious, controversial and far reaching policy issues with our police department and those meetings. And I've never once had a situation where the police department has said, no, we can't. That's not possible. That's inconsistent with our culture and that's unique. And with most city departments, you know, usually when we bring up the suggestion, the first response and I get it, it's human nature. People get defensive and they view suggestions for improvement is as a criticism, even when it's not meant to be that way. I understand, but I've found the police department has always, whether it's the chief or someone who they've had staff, public safety has always said, we'll look into that. That's a great idea. Let us evaluate what other people are doing. And as a result of that, I think we have some policies today that are very forward thinking that incorporate best practices. You know, I think we have a long way to go, as does most of the law enforcement as a profession in terms of our criminal justice system and making it. Relevant to the world around us today. And not being afraid of changes, but embracing them. And I think, you know, I deal with police departments every day. And I think, Chief, you and your team have done a great job, at least listening to what else is out there and being willing to consider suggestions whether they're feasible or not. Your first response to me has never been. It's not feasible. It's always been. I mean, even if it's totally not feasible. And a crazy idea. You've said we'll look into it. Let us research it. Let us look at see what's out there, let us evaluate best practices. And that encourages, I think, a very good partnership between you and council members. At least that's been my experience and it doesn't shut down the conversation. You always leave room for additional conversation, and I think that's important. Are you guys perfect? No. Do you and your officers sometimes make mistakes? Yes. Are you the type of department that expresses a willingness to make changes, learn from mistakes, and move forward with best practices? Yes, and I think that's really all we can ask for at this stage. And I want to thank you for the presentation that you've done. I know you've got to be working really hard on these initiatives, and it should not go unnoticed how hard you work to get to this point and honestly, how hard the officers, the rank and file officers who support the department have worked to embrace the changes and to adopt some of the cultural. Cultural changes in the organization that have been necessary as a result of things that we have all learned as best practices. So thank you, Chief. Appreciate having you and your team here with us tonight for this presentation. I'll turn it over to our current public safety terrorists who come from afar. Thank you. Thank you, Chief, and your team for the presentation. I appreciate the thorough. Presentation. Of how you and your team have been able to take all of the feedback and information from the community in how to integrate it in your plans and initiative moving forward. I think that it's. It's definitely noticed that there's a lot of consideration to and how cross department work can happen. I like that that was included because we see that none of our department works in isolation and in some sense there's also some parallel or overlap as far as the work with that you do with the Health and Human Services Department and probably others too, as we move forward. I think with some of the goals that you have, I think some of the things I've learned from having been the chair of public safety in the past year is I appreciate the opportunity to have conversations about how do we increase transparency and accountability, given the continuous conversation about what that means and what that look like. And I appreciate the movement and how we can do that together in a way that provides information and builds trust for the community to see that there is a process forward in how we can take steps to do that. And I look forward and seeing how we can continue to, I think as the goals get implemented, to seeing how those steps can be shown and how it can be done. And I think a lot of the tests will be how the community, their feedback on it writes their response to it. That's the real task and that's what we'll see. Is it working? And it's not how we can fine tune that together. So I look forward to doing that, to having those conversation and appreciate a lot of the efforts taken to make sure that we're being the most transparent account of that that we can be. And I hope that we can continue that dialog to do so for to best se we our residents. So thank you so much. Thank you so much. A couple of members in the House. You. I wanted to thank you, Chief, and our police department, for your effort. And your willingness. I think that I absolutely echo the sentiments of my colleagues. And I just wanted to say thank you very much for all the work that you do. Great, though. Thank you for the comments. Is there any public comment? There is no public comment on this item. So an excellent presentation. Members, please cast your vote. Motion is carried. Emotion is key. Thank you. Annexes. 37, please. 37 is a report from Parks and Recreation and Marine recommendation to rename the Eldorado Park West Senior Center, the Dr. Thomas J. Clark Community Center, District four. Thank you. There is a motion and a second counsel Supernanny. Thank you. This proposal was unanimously approved by the Government Personnel and Elections Oversight Committee on September 28 and unanimously approved by the Parks and Recreation Commission on October 21st. As I've said in the past, Dr. Thomas Clark is the longest serving councilmember in the history of this city and also served for 16 years as a city college trustee. I was asked in the past, you know, why Eldorado

Park? No one associated that with the Fourth Council District. Ironically, these items came before these committees and commission prior to our most recent redistricting. But Tom Clark originally served on the Parks and Rec Commission. He led the way to acquire the land for Eldorado Park, and that was in the fourth District in the first part of his term. Ironically, he returned to the fourth District on December 18th. So we'd appreciate your support on this item. And I would add to that, I had the ability to talk to Dr. Clark when he was still alive and asked him about what recognition he'd like to have. And he said if anyone wanted to ever name something for me, I'd like it to be associated with Eldorado Park. Some very pleased to bring this item forward tonight. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Alan. I'm very much in support of this item. Councilmember Ringa. I had the honor and privilege of serving under Dr. Clark when I was an employee for the city, as well as serving alongside him as a member of the Long Beach City College Board of Trustees. The man was honorable, honest, direct, and he was a mentor to me. So I'm very proud to support this item. Thank you. I'm also enthusiastically support this item. I think customer support, this is a great honoring of a really incredible leader and man. I have also had a chance to spend time with with Dr. Clark, and I think he's someone who has just such an incredible legacy. And this is a great way of continuing to honor him. And of course, not the only way we've honored Dr. Clark, but he's someone that that makes a lot of sense for this naming. And so I just want to thank you for your leadership on this and to the Parks and Rec Commission, to everyone involved in the process. It's a g reat move idea. With that, there's no public comment. I believe so. Members, please cast your votes. The motion is carried. At 1036, please. Item 36 Report from Human Resources for recommendation to Adobe resolution approving an exception to the 180 day waiting period for public agencies to hire Michael J. Mays for a limited duration to work in the office of the City Attorney's Office. Mr. City Attorney, there is a version of the motion in the second in this controversy for a. Thank you. As one who was honored by being sworn in by Michael Mays in 2016 for that term in office, I'm very happy to make this motion. And I'd like to thank our city attorney, Charles Parkin, for doing a great sales job. I don't know how you did it, but thanks for bringing them back. Vice Mayor Richardson. We love Mike. Can we just bring him back indefinitely? Thanks. Yeah. I just want to add, what's the best item on the agenda? I think. Just I think I think he's someone that's just greatly loved. So I look forward to him helping out and doing, you know, doing whatever whatever you and the team need and moving forward. So there's emotion any second. There's no public comment on this item, so please cast your votes. All right. Congratulations on your title. Number 22 with. Report from City Manager Recommendation to adopt a resolution authorizing the city manager to execute an agreement with the California Department of Cannabis Control to support the Long Beach Cannabis Program citywide. Looking for a motion in the circuit. Okay. Uh, Councilman Ranga, I want to speak to your motion. Okay. Councilwoman Sara, I was elevated. I had no clue. I think it's a good project, great sorrow. It's great to be able to have additional funding to support our cannabis program. Thank you. In fact, the councilman often thank you. Obviously, I support this motion. This is you know, we're not in the business of turning away resources from from the state. Obviously, we have some ambitious objectives here, particularly related to social equity and implementing that here. I'm kind of waiting to hear from the city attorney in terms of how and how you envision utilizing these resources to get there, but also support our program. City Manager, you want to give a brief back report? Yes. Emily Armstrong will be able to answer some of those questions. Emily. There. Can you guys hear me? Yeah. Okay. Yeah. So the $3.9 million that we're going to be receiving from the DCC will actually go towards the. Overall cannabis program. So what we're looking to do is to convert the provisional licenses in the state's process to annual. And through that process, we're also looking to streamline our operations and expedite them through the process. And so we're looking to hopefully cut the application process by half and then hire some additional staff in almost every single department with these funds. So it'll be a great a great resource for the cannabis program. Fantastic. Anything else, Councilman? All right. No, thank you. I appreciate that. And obviously, we will look forward to learning more time moves on. All right. All right, Councilwoman Allen. Yeah. Just a quick question. Can you clarify one of the ways in which the software can be used and can the funds be provided to applicants to help defray the business startup expenses? So this grant in particular does have some limitations. So this grant is not related to providing direct grants to applicants. This grant, actually, we're going to be hiring staff and consultants to basically help applicants throughout the process. And it does have some limitations in terms of the funding that we can do. So this is actually going to hire staff and consultants for regulatory compliance, application processes, things like that. There is some funding that's also going to be going toward website design and technology to hopefully streamline the communications with applicants. But it cannot be spent on direct grants or loans or anything like that. Okay. Thank you very much. Right. Thank you. Let's go to public comment. Very public comment on this item. We have one member of the public, Eliot Lewis. Please begin. Did you guys hear me? We can hear him. Yeah, no, I just wanted to make some commentary in general. It's nice that we're getting some more funds. You know, the state collects 900 million in taxes. They're redistributing 100 million. Not the best system. I really wanted to focus, although I think all taxes in cannabis are too high. I really wanted to focus on the cultivation and tax. I think we should completely eliminate the cultivation tax. We have two really big brands here. We're creating great cannabis culture. We have Fresh Bake and we have Wonder Bread all across the state. The governor included up in Sacramento, they're getting rid of cannabis tax. San Francisco's got rid of all cannabis taxes. Sonoma's got rid of cultivation tax. Humboldt is right behind it. We continue to tax cultivators at the same rate. Although there's been massive price compression and they're suffering, they're barely keeping their head above water. And again, it's not about me. It's about good policy. You know, we don't like paying the retail tax, but it's really cultivation that we need to focus on. Council did a great job of modernizing the other vendors. Now we need to focus on cultivation and you know, depending on what time it is, I don't have an orthodoxy on that. I was the one retailer that came out and said, Hey, with the pandemic, we're doing really good. Let's raise taxes temporarily, half a percent. And, you know, like cause and like, you know, of the Rockies and Hershey of Pennsylvania, we're creating a great cannabis culture here. Long Beach hashtag farmers is becoming a thing, and we need to cultivate that, no pun intended. And at the end of the day, like Long Beach got put on the map from nineties, rapper Sublime, all of these different things. Cannabis culture is going to be part of that. And I think it's real y important, you know, more than just the money you got, you know, jobs and everything else at stake. And I want to say that the amount collecting the cultivation tax based on our research is, you know, a very small amount, around $1,000,000. You know, we're budgeted for 8 million, we're collecting 10.3 million. And as the reforms come in at the state, I suspect I suspect that number will be more. So stop taxing farmers. We need to modernize the tax code, especially as it goes to two cultivation tax. Get rid of it altogether. We got a $3.9 million windfall and this is happening up and down the state. Let's stay progressive on the issue. Let's stay modern and let's stay up to date. I think that's all have. That concludes public comment for you. All right, members, please cast your vote as well as the roll call vote. District one. I. District two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. I. District nine. I. Motion is carried. District nine. I. Motion is carried. Thank you. With item 23, please. Report from Development Services Recommendation to adopt middle income housing program to include the policy components included here in citywide. All right. Thank you. I know there's a there's a staff report on. Yes. Mayor, vice mayor and members of the council. This is a pretty complex process. We would like to spend some time to go through what we've been working on to try to develop an additional tool for some middle income housing. We have, of course, the director of development services who can walk us through the policy and some of the implications and be able to answer questions. Oscar. Thank you, Mr. Modica. Please. Next slide. Thank you, Mayor. And members of the Vice Mayor. Members of the City Council. Moderate income households are those households that earn between 81 220% of the area median income. These households are looking for affordable housing as well as others, but earn too much to qualify for the standard subsidized lower income housing. City programs have focused on a variety of programs to assist very low and low households. Thus, we have not been able to meet the moderate income housing units required under the current housing element. And the next housing element will require over 40,000 moderate income units. In February of 2021. The City Council approved the participation in the case middle income housing program for the purchase of the Ocean Air Apartments for middle income housing on a pilot basis. At that time, the City Council also asked staff to conduct further research and return to council with a proposed Long Beach middle income housing program. This presentation summarizes staff's recommended policies, which was prepared with the assistance of HRA advisors who are here tonight to answer any questions and is attached to the council letter that you have in front of you. Next slide, please. I

ere are three primary parties involved in these transactions, which include the JPA and the JPA Act as a sponsor as well as the owner of the project and is also the bond issuer. The city is considered the host and can request the sale of the property after 15 years. The developer is a project administrator that is responsible for putting together the deal. These projects are 100% financed by tax exempt bonds. Bond terms are typically 30 years. There are two types of bonds associated with these transactions. The first type is a series, a bond. These bonds are intended to acquire the property where applicable for new construction, for financial reserves and other cost. The series B bond is another type of bond and that that is provided solely to the project administrator as preferred equity. Next slide, please. The JPA or Joint Powers Authority or the owner has the ability to purchase, own and finance the project, including existing or existing housing or new construction projects. Some or all the units are typically restricted to moderate or middle income households. If the city approves the project, it will enter into a public benefit agreement with the JPA, and the JPA will have a property tax exemption during the term of the bonds. How? Household income restrictions terminate at the end of the bond term, and the city has a right to force the sale of the building after 15 years and realize any net proceeds from the sale after the debt is paid off. Next slide, please. This financial structure is relatively new in the long term data and its success is really not available. The financial structure does not rely on the excuse me, it does rely on economic growth to pay off the debt rather than more conventional financing structure. So what the city is attempting to do is to with with these programs. Is to reduce the risk. And provide real, meaningful middle income, affordable units. To accomplish this, the middle income program has been designed to ensure long term housing affordability, ensure adequate long term property maintenance, reduce the. Risk of. Foreclosure, recover the city's pro-rata share of the property tax revenue, provide oversight and accountability, and provide access for the processing of these requests. Next slide, please. This slide is intended to illustrate all the parties involved as currently structured with other deals. The interaction between the city or the host is with the owner. As you can see from the attached illustration, what these policies are intended to do is to provide more, like I said, more oversight and accountability, accountability to the other parties involved in this agreement. Next slide, please. So the program, again, as indicated in the report, the program that we are proposing is flexible and we've established a structure that can be tailored to a certain project's attributes. Therefore, we are asking the Council to approve the following policies. The first policy is a provision for a requirement of dee per affordability by requiring deed restricted moderate income units that will qualify for the Reno Regional Housing Needs Allocation Credit to maintain the city's housing element requirements. Also, the provisions are intended to rely on or to propose housing affordability that is based upon income state income requirements. Although this is a flexible term and we can use other affordability requirements like providing that there's greater affordability in the project field. Another provision or policy is to maintain the city or to recover the city's property tax losses via a host fee. And lastly, we have other public benefits, and this is intended to be a bit of a catch all, if you will, again, in order to be able to tailor a transaction to the attributes of the project. And some of the things that we could consider is if a project comes to the city that provides other revenues like sales tax. In the case where you have a mixed use project or the preservation of older properties, this will allow for older properties to continue with certain amount of improvements. Next slide, please. In order to implement these policies. The program includes bond underwriting standards. These include such things as a host fee, as indicated earlier, to recover the pro-rata share of the city's property tax revenue. It also requires things like a third party appraisal to review the administrator and the and the sponsor or the owner's cause for the acquisition and sale of the property. Again, we are recommending that rents be limited to 30% of household income consistent with current affordable housing standards and that net tenants get paid utility allowances as well as other things, including affordable restrictions, to include a minimum 55 year deed restriction on these units. Next slide, please. Additional underwriting standards include establishing reserve accounts with escalators to ensure proper property maintenance. Ensuring bond debt service ratios of 1.0 beginning on year one. Minimizing the interest only financing so that we can establish bond amortization at the end of the bond terms. The city's ability to review construction costs for new construction projects is also part of the provisions. Underwriting provisions in other provisions are included to reduce debt, maintain a healthy operating expenses and return on the investment. Next slide, please. The program also includes standards as well as oversight provisions for such transactions and annual fees for the oversight, such as allowing the city to review the closing cost of the bond transaction, allowing and providing an annual fee that would pay for the city's annual review of the project. Making sure that the asset there's at least three years worth of asset management reserves in the project. Provisions in the project deal and making certain that the series B bond not capitalized the interest. Next slide, please. Additional oversight provisions include the city's ability to review and approve any additional debt exceeding $15,000, as well as the ability to force the sale of the project after the 15 years of long term and the ability to approve or reject changes to the project team. The project team, including would include the JPA slash owner, the administrator and the property manager. Next slide, please. The policies also prescribe qualifications for the middle income team. We are setting certain provisions or standards, if you will, for the JPA. The administrator, the property manager, the property manager, excuse me. And also the provision to include an independent municipal advisor to participate in the transaction. Next slide, please. Tenant protection provisions are also included in the policies to prevent the displacement of existing tenants, while ensuring that the rapid replacement of two middle income households and adhering to the OECD's affirmative fair housing provisions, as well as honoring housing vouchers. Next slide, please. As envisioned, the program will require significant annual reporting, including a tenant satisfaction survey, household income and rent information. An assessment of the condition of the property in an annual financial report. These reports will be required in the Public Benefit Agreement and the city may request corrective actions based upon the report findings. Next slide, please. The program also provides an application and a review process with fees to support Stat's review, including the third party reviews. Thank you. Next slide, please. And I know there's a lot there's a lot here to unpack. But at this point, the city's recommending staff is recommending that the city council approve the middle income housing program, as indicated in the attachment to the council letter. That concludes my presentation. Staff, including. H.R. Nick, are consultant, is here to answer any questions that you may have at this time. Thank you. And I'll just add a comment and then we'll go to Councilwoman Sun Huff, whose maker is cued up to make a motion. But I do remember when staff said, Hey, let us have some time, go come up with a policy. Because, you know, the last project was a pilot. And since then, you know, we see that other states, other cities are adopting this. And I just want to thank the staff for taking the time to put a policy forward. So what we do is consistent, and I love the things that I heard. Tenant protections are within that. Some of the things that the city values are within that. So we're expanding middle income housing while preserving units as well. And I think that's having more tools in the tool belt is certainly important. So I want to go to Councilwoman and they are. Thank you, Vice Mayor. For that. And thank you very much, staff, for that presentation. Thank you. As you know, I'm the housing advocate and I truly believe that when we say housing for all that it really means housing for all. We need to ensure that we focus on increasing and retaining local employment opportunities in o ur city and for our residents. And as we continue to work on breaking the generational poverty cycle, that we also plan to expand and build in opportunities for middle income housing. Even so, this program is designed to ensure long term housing affordability and maintenance is still a main focus of our city. And this is an area in which our partners that point have been very supportive of. I've as I've mentioned before, I'm a huge supporter of our students and our local university. That provide outstanding educational force in our city. Which is why I'm very excited for the partnership between Health, State University, Long Beach faculty and staff for this middle income housing prepackaged in Taiwan. Spin off. Oh, sorry. Sorry about that. That's okay. For the middle income housing proposal that has been introduced recently. And I want to make sure that this item supports the this project. Given the opportunity I'm sorry, given the complexity. I'd like to take the opportunity to raise a couple. A couple of things. And first, I want to say thank you to staff for all the the work that they have put into this, because they really deep dove deep into this issue. And they've really done a lot of work on this around it. And so I really want to say and I also want to thank all those who who have reached out to my office and in support of this and all the letters that I have that I have received. So I'm very thankful for that. I would also like to ask staff to come back within 45 to 60 days with an amended set of criteria that distinguishes between grownup construction and acquisition of existing buildings already under the modern income housing program. And in that regard, I'd like to make the following three recommendations for this item. First, I'd like to. I'd like us to adopt. I'd like us to adopt the general goals for the middle income housing program set forth by the staff report. Second, I'd like for us to direct city staff to work with Walter for California State University, Long Beach and CSC Aid to move forward with the faculty staff housing proposed that submitted by Waterford in September 2021 and to return to City Council within 60 days for final approval. If the proposal meets the three primary goals set forward in tonight's staff report, aim make the city whole from any projected property tax law to achieve the city's affordability goal and see demonstrate that the property has adequate financial reserves and maintenance is required. So, I'd like to recommend that. Direct and direct staff consultant. Eight are and eight to work with the larger development community to refine the most specific of criteria set forward in the h r. In a report attached to the staff memorandum for future projects to be considered under the Middle Income Program. Thank you. All right. Thank you. I see a motion. I'm going to ask that before your next person. Do you are you clear on what that motion was? I know there was a pretty large, pretty long expanse of motion. Could you just speak to that? Yes, Councilmember. I think we're we're clear. We've got 45 to 60 days to come back to take the goals that we provided in the staff letter. And at the same time, consult with. Our. Waterford and CDR to make certain that we become whole as far as our loss in the property tax revenues and other provisions, and more importantly, to separate between the new construction projects versus existing transfer of existing projects. So I believe I've captured that and we can certainly do that, come back and at the same time and negotiate with Waterford on their proposed deal. And what we would bring back to you is policies that either align that hopefully will align with the Waterford project. And so we'll provide that analysis to you in 40 to 60, 45 to 60 days. Thank you. Okay. We're going to. Okay, we'll keep we'll keep going. Councilman Austin. I think a council member of the day has put it very, very bluntly and clearly. I mean, obviously, there is a huge need in our city to build housing, affordable housing, workforce housing. I think this policy advances that and gives us puts it in a good position to continue to do this, particularly in our downtown area. And I think it's a great place to continue and come back with specific projects in mind. So I support the motion to. Right next, we have Councilman Price. Ask me real quick, Justice. Can council members further clarify our interaction with H.R.? And I just want to make sure I understand that correctly. I didn't even understand the question correctly. Oscar. Who are you? Do you have a question for the magazine? Yes, the maker of the motion council member. My apologies. If you could just restate the and our ability to work with a consultant as part of your motion. Yes. I would like them to work with the water it. Well, with with obviously with staffers, with water, Ford and CSR and all the parties involved so that we can move this project forward. And I just want to be clear, Mr. Worsley. What we're talking about is a policy, not a specific project. So the motion here is saying create a separate sort of come back in 45 days with additional research, work with partners, additional research and recommendations around, you know, existing structures that are going to opt into the program. But it seems like new construction and all those things, those goals are fine. Let's keep keep here from our colleagues. But I think we should be clear. We're not talking about a specific project today. We're talking about the policy in front of us. I want to be clear on that. Councilman Price. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. I support the motion wholeheartedly, and I'm super excited to support a project that includes a partnership. With State Long Beach Beach. Great. Thank you. Come on, Alan. Yes. Thank you, Councilwoman de Haas. I agree with everything and I'm really interested in middle income housing. And I know that these middle income housing programs are new and untested and unteste

d. But I think what we have here is a robust a robust and flexible program. So I will be supporting this item today and I look forward to future discussions on this topic. Great. I don't see any other council comment. We're going to go to public comment now. Any public comment on the site? Yes, we have three public comment. Sharon, your time begins now. We thank you, Vice Mayor and members of the city council, Alex Charron, speaking tonight on behalf of Waterford development. Very much appreciate the opportunity to speak in support of the policy. We also appreciate the efforts from city staff on Monica, Oscar Forsey, Linda Tatum and their team. It's a very complex issue as identified by the maker of the Motion and Waterford as the sponsor and participant in the city's only pilot project in the modern income housing in Oceania supports the policy and the continuing discussion. Appreciate the opportunity over the next 45 days or so to engage further with staff on how better to refine and clarify some of the policies outlined in city staff. The Cal State Long Beach proposal was submitted last year, and so our concern when we saw this item was obviously reconciling a project that was already in the pipeline with the city's need and understandably so for a larger policy that would cover it in any future projects. We are simply asking and support any decision in movement that would further clarify the distinction of this policy between ground up construction and acquisition type construction. We also have put together a number of data points on the Ocean Air Project, which I think would be very informative and appreciate Linda Tatum in her team coming out at the end of last year to tour the facility. I think by any metrics, the program has met or exceeded its affordability goals. I would just remind staff that Waterford is in full support of a policy that requires the city to be made whole. We've made that change, obviously, since the Ocean Air Project. So any project proposal moving forward should not leave the city in the hole from a tax revenue loss stand basis. And again, appreciate very much your support for this policy, and we look forward to working with you collaboratively. Thank you very much. Aren't going to be very visible. Public comment. Yes. Our next speakers and control. Time begins now. Good evening. I don't pretend to understand how this works. I can only go by what I have read in the L.A. Times that, yes, I assume there are some cities that are going with this plan, but there are also cities who have rejected it, such as San Jose. I am very much for low cost housing help. But I do not understand helping. Middle income. Unless I can get some help. I'm not with Social Security. I'm. I don't even. I couldn't even qualify for middle income, but. What worries me is that. We are giving these. Units. Pass on paying property tax. But as I understand it, then there will be a host fee. So I do not understand. I'd like to know the difference bet ween what a person would pay and property tax and what they have to play with the host with fee if it really is advantageous for them. And according to the L.A. Times article, the units at Ocean Air, the one bedroom units, were $600 more than units in surrounding one bedroom facilities. So it doesn't seem like. People that are. Taking advantage of this are really getting much of a deal. I think that. The Council needs to really. Have an independent. Advisor on this as to whether this is really going to help with middle income housing and with the ocean there. It's not expanding housing because they're using housing that's already there. Thank you. That concludes all speakers for public comment on this item. All right. Thank you. All right. So we've heard from the council staff one more time. Um, staff. Do you have any final comments before you go to them? Yes. Vice Mayor. Thank you. So just to sum up what I think we heard, I think I heard support in general for the policy and from taking the next step and move it forward. I think we heard support for construction that if we're doing new construction, that in general those are supportive, but that we have some additional work to do on the acquisition projects, which is the ones that Waterford are proposing. And we will certainly engage with Waterford to get some specific comments now that a policy is out in the public. We would welcome any suggestions on specific language, on things that need to be modified, things that would help projects actually get approved. And then we would also engage with them to understand concerns and negotiate some additional language, if there are any, that can meet both both parties. The proposal that was mentioned back in September that currently has a lot of good things doesn't match up completely with what we presented tonight. So there would be some additional work we'd need to do on the policy before we're able to just move that one forward. And then we would return to council within about 60 days to let you know where we are, what we have agreement on, and what some of the areas would be that council could then consider if you were ready to adopt it or if you needed to make more tweaks. And with that, I think we're ready to move forward. And thank you. So it is great that we did the pilot, we did a study, we got the study back. We have a new tool now, which is good, and it's going to make the city whole address the concerns that was raised last time. So that's why it was also a roll call vote. District one, district two. I district three. I. District four. All right. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. Hi. District nine. Hi. Motion is carried. Fantastic. Thank you. Next I have item 20. But what's the next time on the list that might might be out of order? What do you have? Item 24. Motion carries. Thank you. Let's hear item number six, please. Report from Development Services Recommendation to two contract for a survey of existin g buildings for a total contract amount not to exceed 884,350 citywide. All right. Looking for my cue system? Is there a motion on that? Okay, I see. Councilmember Gurinder, would you like to stick your motion? No, I'm good with Nike. Okay. We need a second on this. All right, Councilwoman. And they are second. Is there any public comment on this? We have one public comment. Allie Perkins. Your time begins now. Hi. I'm a little confused. I wanted to speak on agenda item 1220 2-0045. Was that in that whole. The number of consents that you just voted on. No go item items one through 19. That Allie Perkins would like to speak on, item five. Which is part of the consent. Yeah, I was a little confused. I apologize. Okay. Well, I'm you know, we're on a different item, but if you want to spend your 3 minutes on this, we'll hear it. Okay. I appreciate that. Mr.. Yes. Okay. I'm speaking on agenda item 20 20045. As a parent whose children attend school in the city, I am concerned about the public health orders in regard to COVID 19 that my children's school is required to follow. I speak for many parents when I say that these requirements are unlawful and nonsensical. We are fed up with the restrictions that continue to go against our children's health and wellness and further subject them to harmful mask wearing isolation and vaccination protocols that have been scientifically proven to cause more harm than good. If your main concern was with health and safety of my children, then why are cloth and paper masks acceptable when the CDC as well as other valid agencies, have proven them ineffective? In fact, many psychologists have declared them detrimental to mental, emotional and cognitive growth and learning. If Koga if COVID is so deadly, then why do schools not have has stations to dispose masks and other infected items properly? If Omicron is so contagious, why is that? That my possibly expose child needs to quarantine. Yet her sister, who resides in the same home and goes to the same school, doesn't. Why do unvaccinated children need to mask and quarantine when exposed but vaccinated do not. Regardless of the proven fact that vaccinated still spread and contract COVID. I would love to hear some answers. With COVID variant, with COVID variants weakening, we are starting to see the decline of severity. Children have from the very beginning been less affected by COVID, by COVID than adults. When children can contract COVID while they can still contract, COVID is widely known that most do not get sick and if symptoms appear, are very mild. Yet protocols continue to be enforced, creating a massive increase in mental health illness. As someone who works intimately, intimately with youth in the mental health field, I can tell you. You guys have failed our children. I would love to draw your attention to the $401 million of federal funding Long Beach School District has received since March 2020 . This information is on the Web for everyone to read. This has n ever been about the health of our children. It's been about the money, the $400 million incentive to turn a blind eye to the damage this district has caused. The youth of this city has served no one except those who continue to enforce these policies. Per the American Rescue Plan Act, which is where you have received the bulk of your money. The Esser three requirements state that schools must address how they intend to implement prevention strategies that are reasonable and consistent with the most recent CDC recommendations. In other words, schools will not receive funds unless they state and obey CDC regulations. But these regulations are not backed by honest science. They are unfounded and appear to be arbitrary, not to mention inconsistent and unreasonable. No money, no amount of money can help our children at this point. Thank you. That concludes your time. Thank you. Let's take a vote on item number six, please. Roll call, please. District one. I district to. My. District three. I district for. My. District five. High District six. I District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine. Motion is carried. District seven. My District eight. By District nine. Motion is carried. Fantastic. Onward to 27. Please report from Parks, Recreation and Marine recommendation to receive a report and adopt the proposed Parks Recreation and Marine Department Strategic Plan 2022 to 2032 citywide. All right. Let's go ahead to the staff report. Yes. I will turn it over to Brant, Dennis and Meredith Reynolds for a staff report. Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Modica. Good evening, Vice Mayor. Members of City Council. Served three years of engaging, listening and learning. We're honored to present the final parks, make Long Beach the prime strategic plan this evening. This is an effort that's been informed by a considerable number of partners and stakeholders. And despite being interrupted by a pandemic, this provided a unique opportunity to reexamine the important role of parks in community resiliency and recovery. Next slide, please. The plan guides operational staffing and budgeting decisions for the department over the next ten years. This plan contains goals, outcomes and actions for how the department prioritizes our work, how we organize our staff, how we decide where to invest, and how we partner with our community with equity as an overarching theme. A department strategic plan is different than a park system's master plan or a plan that addresses the types of programming for a particular user group. Although these are important and are referenced in the plan, I'll now turn it over to Park

to provide a history of our community and a context for our department in the past, present and future. We then focus on the community's feedback, which contributed towards our statement of possibility and values, which we'll get to in a few slides. And lastly, the plan outlines eight goals that will help us achieve our statement of possibility. Next slide, please. So we have a lot to be proud of as a department and as a city. Just to give you an example, out of the 100 most populous cities in the country, we ranked 31st in that Trust for Public Land Park Score Index, which is a pretty significant accomplishment. But at the same time, we have a long way to go when it comes to Parks to Park Equity, while we have 6.6 acres of parks per 1000 residents in our city. We know that the ratio is much lower for central, west and north Long Beach, where there's a combination of a few things where you have fewer and smaller parks and also high density neighborhoods. This is why equity is such a strong theme that's woven throughout our strategic plan. Next slide, please. I'll turn this over to Meredith. Thank you. From the beginning, the park's community engagement effort was grounded in best practices, was planned to be accessible and inclusive and centered community voice. And what began with a very personal approach with in-person outreach at park events in the summer of 2019, became a full pivot to curated virtual engagements after a period of hiatus, while staff was reassigned to support the city's pandemic response in all, the department and engagement efforts connected to close to 400 community groups had over 1600 people take our survey. We deployed posters and service stations at community centers and promoted surveys and listening sessions on social media. We even had a strategic plan engagement band visit over 30 community events. And all of this was done in the city's four languages to maximize language access. Next slide, please. In the virtual space, we collected surveys and park stories in multiple languages. We had our user groups data and dedicated listening sessions where we shared progress with opportunities for feedback on draft goals and objectives. We engaged in various social media outlets and connected with trusted community partners, asking them to share the opportunity to participate in their specific networks. We also recognize that many staff still face a digital divide and divide as creative ways for community members to engage from a safe distance. We added lawn signs with QR codes that connected visitors to online engagement tools while they were safely visiting parks. We set up cardboard service stations at learning hubs to reach those who visited these spaces. We produced a Part Stories podcast series featuring some of the department's partners and city staff to share how our department plans partners and produces programming and manages our operations. And we engage the Parks and Recreation Commission on several instan ces to share drafts of our progress. Next slide, please. As a considerable amount of planning went into creating an intentional and meaningful engagement process and participant experience, which was intended to cast a wide net in a way that anyone could feel included, heard and valued. This process also had a series of opportunities for input, but participation from department staff who are experts in their field, as well as opportunities for leadership of the department to explore strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats. We acknowledge that the interruption of the pandemic had a significant impact on our best laid plans for in-person engagement during the pandemic. The engagement process was considerably augmented out of an abundance of caution for people's safety, and we instead shifted to virtual spaces to listen and engage. This engagement process provided our team with the opportunity to reengage with those we've had relationships with for many years, to reduce our re-introduce ourselves to those we have limited contact with, and to establish connections with those who were new to us. Each of these instances was an opportunity to demonstrate the value of the community's knowledge, and we took each interaction as an opportunity to build trust with these partners. Next slide, please. Our process included consulting, consulting other adopted city planners to ensure the goals in these other arenas of city work were incorporated. We know that land use, mobility, climate action, housing, digital inclusion, youth, seniors, animals and racial equity are all interconnected and there are intersectional aspects of all of our work. Our process also included researching best practices for similar efforts across the country and from coast to coast. Our partner organizations are engaged in impactful work that we learned from and were able to infuse this learning in the plan. Many of these plans had a strong, inclusive community engagement effort, centered equity and community voice, and called for strong support. A partner systems to address issues like climate change, support, mental and physical health and result in greater park equity. Next slide, please. In March 2020, when the first cases of COVID were present in Long Beach, Park, staff roles pivoted to shutting down operations at the city's 167 parks and shifted to new operational models. Our parks and open spaces were never so appreciated or heavily used because of the pandemic. And while many other places were closed, our parks remain open. Our park and beach maintenance teams devise new parks and beach sanitizing schedules. Signage was placed and replaced, communicating the ever changing COVID guidelines. Our community ambassadors were deployed for the safe use of parks. Virtual programing was developed to shift programing online, and our learning hubs provided a safe and free learning space to complete distance learning. Hundreds of staff shifted to work from home schedules or deployed to support other city departments, including standing up and staffing shelters, operating vaccination clinics, eating and contact tracing, and even developing the city's COVID testing program . During one of the city's most pressing emergencies, department staff met the moment being versatile, resilient and capable of supporting the community when they needed it most. Next slide, please, and I'll turn it back to Nancy. So not too long ago, the city council approved one time dollars towards park maintenance. And those dollars were very much needed. But in the long term, we really do need structural dollars to properly maintain our parks at a level that the community expects and deserves. And as you can see from this chart, we fall short compared to the statewide dollars available per acre in terms of park maintenance. Also want to add that park maintenance was a very high on the list of concerns and feedback that we received from our residents. Next slide, please. So in addition to the rounds of surgeries that Meredith outlined, we went back one more time after we prepared the draft strategic plan to collect one more round of surveys in the four languages. And we collected close to 70 responses at that time, and this helped us further refine the strategic plan. And I also want to add that we continue to hear feedback on our strategic plan, and I would encourage residents to continue to reach out to us with whatever questions and comments that they have. Even if the plan is adopted tonight, it doesn't mean that we stop listening to the needs and concerns of our residents and visitors to our city. Next slide, please. Now, speaking of our statement of possibility, it is that we make our parks and beaches safe, welcoming spaces for our residents and visitors. Putting people at the center of all we do, including our park users, partners and team members to creative to create inclusive, enriching, healthy communities for all to thrive. And this is something that we've really developed from all the outreach efforts that were described in our presentation. And these are based on very specific values that include being effective, thoughtful, transparent, resilient, collaborative, respectful and nurturing among other values. Next slide, please. So the strategic plan itself is organized into. Eight goals, with. 24 outcomes that yield 160 action items that are based on what we heard from the Community Stakeholders, survey respondents and also Parks, Recreation and Marine staff. Next find. While you can view all the full details of the plan in the plan itself. For anyone listening, just wanted to outline what those are. And our first goal is to provide safe, accessible public spaces, while our second goal is to offer meaningful recreational programing and events. Third, we have prioritized health equity across the city. Next slide, please. We also want to build innovating and lasting relationships. That's our fourth goal. And fifth, we have connect inter nally with the community clearly and transparently. Our sixth goal is to establish an environmentally sustainable park ecosystem. Next slide, please. And seventh, we have ensured a diverse and dynamic workforce. And lastly, we have as our goal, to create a financially secure and resilient operation. Next slide, please. And with then with this, I will turn it over to Director Denis. Thank you very much, Nancy and Meredith. I'm very pleased on the efficiency that you walk through with very extensive strategic plan. I do want to share that our next steps in implementing the strategic plan will involve breaking down the outcomes and strategies into short, medium and long term phases that can be implemented over the next decade, starting with this current year. We will report to our Parks and Recreation Commission on an annual basis. With that, I want to thank the Commission for their ongoing support throughout the plans, development and their future support as we move into the implementation phase. I also want to thank the staff and all the community members who got us to where we are today and also City Fabric, who was our consultant on this project. This concludes our presentation and we welcome any questions or comments that you may have at this time. So thank you very much. All right. Thank you, Brant and Nancy and Meredith. We're going to go to public comment first before we go to council comment. Our first speaker is Denise Bernard Yearwood. Hi. Good evening right there. I'm a resident of Buffalo and I saw the report we on the west side of me, three or four plans and I have the report. So in regards to this, I believe the government underestimated the funds they needed to acquire additional hardware. So I. Think that means more and. More participating see as the benefit of the physical. And mental health of the president. So I. Think by allowing lands along the river as he developed for. Moving his facility. Possibly further statement, support for settling. In for air as proposed by the City Park Coalition. Do we. Consider developing the. Complex at 37 to 1 along the river? I've read their statement that using grant funds where the land and I believe. There is a platform, there. Are plans. For the L.A. River basin. So I. Strongly urge you to amend the plans. By. Our next speaker is an Cantrell. But evening in Cantrell. Speaking for the River Park Coalition, this document makes clear that Long Beach needs to budget more funds for maintenance and acquisition of Parkland. River Park Coalition agrees with the goal goals. Quote Every Long Beach resident has walkable and bikeable access to a neighborhood park and established park equity acquisition guidelines for securing land, for developing new parks and open spaces in park poor communities, unquote. River Park Coalition would like to suggest this solution for acquiring park land on the L.A. River. The city should settle the Civic Place, Sequoia lawsuit and do an environmental impact report with th e alternative river. Using this land is park land purchased the land from the owners using grants. This will help fulfill several of the strategic plan goals. Add more parkland in a park deprived area and as this is pongal land, fulfill the goal to amplify and degenerate people, cultural practices. And. Connections to the land. This park would be an ideal opportunity to educate on the history and connection of Indigenous people to Long Beach. I urge you to take this last opportunity to obtain this property. Parkland. I'd also like to add that to make Parks safer, I would urge you to bring back the Rangers. Thank you. Our next speaker is Anna Christianson. Unmuted. Yes. You're on mute. Hello. We can hear you. Okay. This is from the lawsuit of Weapons Task Force Sierra Club. Re Indigenous peoples acknowledge the Hodgeman tribe, not only the Tongva as indigenous to Long Beach as they share the Territory, act as caretakers and vendors of the land and waters and regard football as their sacred site. Acknowledge that Long Beach is now also home to tribal peoples from throughout the United States and North Central and South America, as well as the Pacific Islands, knowledge that the sacred sites above that includes the lows through those wetlands, a knowledge that from a tribal perspective, taking care of the land means ensuring that it can support life for future generations to come. Not only humans, but the whole web of life return parklands to our high human tribe, at least some of them, and enter into management agreements with these entities. Acquire tribal, cultural and burial sites within the city and preserve them as natural spaces, place known sites on city property into open spaces and parklands . We climate change. Do not add or expand paved areas, buildings, artificial turf, playing fields, plastic grass, seawalls, or the port of Long Beach under open land and waters in the Highlands area or coastal zone communities subject to inundation due to sea level rise. Do not add more concession stands re bit venues at the expense of open space repair. The Belmont Pier Re equity prioritize acquiring land and making park improvements in underserved communities. DeLay or deny new projects located in overserved communities until park equity goals have been met. Teach everybody to swim for free. Do not rely on the U.S. pools for the general public's use for wildlife and bird. Appear to prioritize making habitat for birds and wildlife in park maintenance and acquisition plans, including along the L.A. and San Gabriel River and in the Lower Cerritos wetlands. Folk don't focus only on public access and recreational opportunities, utilizing concessions, especially vet fees for revenue streams or maintaining marine infrastructure and services to maintain boats which focus on the entire ecosystem. Plant trees and groundcover that supports birds and wildlife. Reestablish native species. Don't keep trimming trees every single year, erasing wildlife and bird habi tats. Don't permit fireworks shows that pollute air and water to harm marine life and disrupt nesting birds, causing them to abandon their nests. Don't use herbicides to maintain parks, marinas or green belt and don't support restoration projects that erase and replace existing wetlands and tribal areas like the LC plan for the Lowe's to be those wetlands we go carting your employees. Please do finally provide your 450 part time seasonal employees with health benefits, including paid maternity leave. So thank you. Our next speaker is Roger Martin Holman. Our next speaker is David Hall. Hi, this is David Hall. Well, Motor City members of the council, I do support the Parks Recreation Marine Strategic Plan. I think it goes far in addressing the lack of our parkland in West Long Beach and downtown Long Beach and along the Los Angeles River. I think that parks benefit everybody in the community and we really need parks not only for the youth, but for others, for recreation. We also need parks to improve the air quality, especially in the park communities. You know, what's interesting, I think, is that Councilman Richard Richardson, in the background, you have Martin Luther King. And I think that's great because the city manager did a report a year ago for the City Council on Parks across Long Beach, and the inequality of Parkland dates back to the days of segregation. And I think the disparity in Parkland needs to be addressed, and I think we need to remedy it. And I really think this strategic plan will go far in correcting this injustice and bringing parks to the people who need it on the West Side and in our park communities. So thank you very much to the Park Department. Great job and I encourage you to support this plan. Thank you. Our next speaker is David Sonata. Your time begins now. Good evening, counsel. My name is Davids and I have the honor to serve as the chair of the Long Beach Parks, Recreation and Marine Department. Tonight, along with my fellow commissioners and staff, we are excited to present support with comments and act on our city's long awaited strategic plan that will lead us forward as a city. The Commission applauds the hard work and commitment staff has provided in working with and listening to our city's neighborhoods, underserved communities, and partnering with all departments of the city in keeping park equity open and open space in the forefront while maintaining our high quality of life, safety and healthy choices throughout our park system. With that said, our outcomes from this plan will not allow for the status quo. It is imperative we work with our communities to improve upon facilities and programs and serve our public to the best of our ability. This is a lot to unpack in this plan, but it has been 20 plus years since Council last received a strategic plan for our Parks Department and is needed to continue to maintain and build on park equity, improve our focus on maintenance of our parks, and continue to provid e valued programing and open space with our partners in the communities across the city. The importance of our park and beach system and its services show where the public lived during these challenges. Challenging times of pandemic. Parks and beaches are where the public enjoyed family or family open space, mental health and programs for all ages. While the department keeps us safe, sane, healthy throughout our day, this is an asset we cannot ignore. At present, we are below the local and national average cost per acre for maintenance of park operations. Maintenance must continually be addressed by council and take a turn toward increased funding and council support to protect one of the city's largest assets. With 33,125 acres and 167 parks. In our system, we stand tall as a diverse city. Who knows the importance in providing park and beach access equally to all our citizens and programs of education of value to all ages. Tonight, together with my fellow commissioners and the PRM staff, we ask each of you to embrace this roadmap and collectively ask you to receive an app, not just file on the goals and objectives this strategic plan provides with equity and maintenance as top priorities. We ask you in your monthly meetings with director Dennis and during the budget process to invest in our neighborhoods and communities, address the inequities that continue to exist in our city, and work toward improving additional funding and available grants for maintenance to improve our park and marine facilities. Let's keep our park system up to the standards our city deserves. We respectfully ask the Council to support, discuss and approve this new and engaged strategic plan and receive and continue to act on its content moving forward. Thank you for your time. Go. Our final speaker is Roger Martin Holman. All right. Thank you very much. Can you hear me okay? Yes, we can hear you. Great. Thank you so much. And thank you, Vice Mayor and members of the city council for hearing us tonight and for your attention to this. I'd like to state that I'm here to align my self with the comments by Ms.. And Control that were made earlier, and also to speak to the total imbalance of Park Space in Long Beach, West Side, specifically, because that's where I live for among other reasons. But we get the worst of port pollution, perhaps with the exception of downtown, and we have very, very little parking space per resident. And we. And we're sitting here while space that is the last possible opportunity for getting more open park SpaceX is on a chopping block and it's really disheartening and frustrating and I'm hoping the city council can do something. But again, I would just like to say that the remarks in this country are certainly important. And thank you all. That concludes public comment. All right, thank you. I'll take you back behind the rail. I did offer some brief comments and we have a long list of council speakers. But thanks to everyone who spoke on public comm ent and all the hundreds of residents participated in this process over the last, you know, over the last couple of years. And thanks to that, I think, you know, it's noticeable to me what your values are through this presentation and this report. I think, you know, I think it's, you know, strategic plans are important. They help to institutionalize, you know, the values and the strategy so that every time a leader comes in, a new staff member comes in and the council member comes in, there's always something to work with. You have a general idea of where the organization is heading in part, you know, incredibly important, you know, to the community members and council members. I think what happened was, you know, what happened when we transitioned Highland Park, you know, made more investments into more of a regional center with, you know, senior programming youth program. Health programming makes a big difference. And I know that's incredibly important to a lot of folks. I also know that over the years, you know, I've heard things from some staff and others. When you raise issues like this, there's a big disparity in parks and open space. I've heard things like, hey, you know, we have a, you know, a quiet moratorium on new parks because we don't have money to maintain them. I understand the maintenance issue. We certainly have to do that. But I like this plan, this plant and doesn't hide it. They say right out the gate, we have a problem in north central west Long Beach. Here's what it looks like and it attributed to to history. Like the last person who spoke talked about the history. All of these decisions were human decisions, you know, based on land use, where freeways are built, you know, what zoning looks like, land use, all of that created the disparity that we have today. So I believe that strategic planning, you know, things, general plans, all of those things are mechanisms that can be used to sort of right the wrongs of the past and help chart a more inclusive future. So from this standpoint, I like that this plan leans into equity and doesn't hide from and so so I want to thank staff. There's there's obviously a lot here. I got a chance to peruse it but I got to spend more time with the strategic plan. But from what I see, I think, you know, if we go after, you know, what's called out as the sort of larger vision statement instead of only goals, we can make a real difference. So those are my general thoughts on the plan. Our first person cued up is Councilwoman Sara. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Just to add to what you shared, I want to thank Brant, Meredith and Nancy, as well as all of the PR and staff and all those involved with getting the strategic plan together in the past three year. I know it's been a challenge doing the community engagement during the pandemic, especially when you're trying to get them out in multiple languages in the midst of the pandemic. And I just also want to appreciate that equity was mentioned as that being c entral as part of this plan, and that I think it's really important that we think about it in addition to the climate change issue, that's also crucial. Prime is also a crucial partner. And in addition to our Health and Human Services Department in violence prevention and strengthening our neighborhood in our community. So I had a chance to read through it and appreciate the way the goals and the outcomes are aligned. And I think that is a good way for us to provide guidance in the way that we can move towards all the goals. And also for me, I look towards how do we ensure equity in all of the parks in central Long Beach. And I appreciate, I think that we've already started implementing or using that as a guide to doing to helping to improve our parks from Brent's leadership and improving communications to Senator Lena Gonzales, ensuring that their state funding, as well as our other legislator that ensure that there's investment into our parks. So with that said, I wanted to ask a few question and I would make one observation in that with that equity being central to, I think, the framework for this report, I think it's also interesting the number, the demographic of those who filled out the survey. So I'll speak to page 135, which the question part 25, it's question 35, which is how much total combined money that all members of your household earn in 2018. And over 50% came from the $100,000 or more income level, while less tend to less. I will say 10% or less are $99,999 income level or less. And so my question is when how could we have done better to ensure we had more equitable response from across our different community members and how? And then the second is, how do we ensure that while we have a predominantly number of certain kind of people filling out the survey, that it's at least equitably inform how this report was written? Those are my two questions. I want to add a third, but I will wait to see if I have to queue up. Yeah, well, thank you. Council ministers Brant. So I do appreciate your your question. And I know there were a lot of factors at the mid-point in our outreach and I realize that when we had attempted to bring this strategic plan for accounts. So last July for a variety of reasons, I think for the best reasons, we did have a numerous months to work with all nine of the council offices to really look at avenues or ways that we could reach all corners of the community. So I do want to credit a lot of the messaging and cooperation with all of the council offices that I think we did glean a lot of input from many of the community members that early on, you know, even the digital divide. I think when we relied a lot on electronic surveys, that that was an obstacle for many. But I also know that through a lot of our stakeholder groups and focus groups that had representations of a lot of the corners of the community, the senior community and youth, that those were reflected in a lot of the goals and the values that were gene rated. It's just that in those circumstances it wasn't as easy to capture, I guess, the family household income levels, although I do feel confident that a lot of those voices were clearly heard by representatives within a lot of those stakeholder groups. Okay. Do I have time to ask one more question? This will be my last question. Or should I queue up again because there's no timer? And I'll just ask you really quick is how can we ensure what's the process to getting ongoing feedback? I think Nancy shared earlier that we're able to our community members are able to like is that in an email process or is that just call? And Nancy, how do we make sure there's ongoing feedback even though we have a strategic plan now? That's that's the next one. This is brand again. So I think on our website and this is our commitment to the Parks and Recreation Commission that we'll be assembling, you know, an annual report on really a daily if not weekly basis. So I think most likely on our website, we'll make sure there's a link for continued dialog and input from the community because this will be a work in progress for lots of obvious reasons. And I think, you know, two or three years ago kind of the nature of how the strategic plan was developing certainly took a whole different approach as we were reimagining our own programing and our own operations because of the pandemic. And I think since we're not out of that yet, you know, as we enter into the new normal, I think we're going to find a lot of new approaches and a new ideas. I know even within the past year, we've had a lot of newer interest in some of our recreational aspects of what we do. There's been a voice for rugby and pickleball. There's a new sport called Tech Ball. Our seniors want to be more active and we really have to be very cognizant of the health protocols, but also think about ways that we can keep people healthy and that so we'll be open to, you know, a lot of the new trends and a lot of the opportunities. But I think our department has always prided itself in being a good listener to the community and really, you know, all nine council offices, as we've learned from month to month, have been the best, the best venue, our best liaison connection to a lot of residents who really care about the importance of parks and recreation, to build a healthy community and all those great qualities of life that make Long Beach attractive. Thank you so much, friend. Thank you. All right. Thank you. Yes, that was a very long 5 minutes. Next, Councilman Austin. Thank you. And, you know, there's a lot of good content going on here and a lot of good comments and good questions. And so I want to just first say that Parks really do make our city, they make Long Beach. And this strategic plan is very impressive to me on many levels. I want to thank our staff for their hard work with the Parks Recreation Marine Commissioners. But more importantly, I want to thank the community who participated in this engage ment process, which I think should be really uplifted and saluted for all of the work that has gone into this. No other department in our city is equipped to do this type of engagement, in my opinion, like Parks and Recreation. And so they have the the the access and the day to day interaction with so many folks in our city and a very, very diverse and representative diversity in every, every way. I think this strategic plan, it really helps to define our mission that comes to our parks and rec parks for the next several years. In the end, it will help us create new opportunities for programing and access across the city. With with equity as the foundation comes to mind. And I'm really, really impressed with that. I'm glad to see that there was some emphasis on maintenance, because I know that that is an issue that my constituents care deeply about. We do have great parks. We should look at our parks as assets in care for those assets. And so to the extent we can budget and plan more resources to go toward maintenance, I think that's that's a that's something that we as a council need to take on and deliver for for the city. And, you know, there was considerable public comment related to park equity and in acquiring more park space. I just wanted to say, I know this council and my office working with our state legislators and really with our county board of supervisors, Janice Hahn, we were able to secure 11 acres along the river that will be dedicated for park space. And I want to make sure that that is you know, that's not missed here. That's not a missed opportunity here. That is, and $3 million from the state of California to help with the planning and development of that space. So that is that significant progress that we shouldn't overlook in as we move forward. Again, I really just want to salute the engagement process here. The time that has gone into getting this. This is a three years process. And to park and rec directors move on. The staff that had anything to do with this this great document. And it's something that we can definitely build on for years to come. Thanks. Right. Thank you. Before we go to the next one, madam. It seems like a few people that queued up either weren't recognized. So after we get done with this, I just want to let folks know I'm going to go back. If you can identify that list when we're done, we're going to bring them up so that they can see. You understand that? Madam Court. So the individuals who have their hand raised currently, you'd like to call on them after the comments from the council? Yeah, I get it. We've changed our format a little bit today, so some folks didn't have the rules. Let's just make sure that they're ready. You can cut off the secret list now, but those people who have their hands raised in queue, please make sure that they get a chance after we're done with this for deliberations when we vote. Okay. Next, Councilman Price. Okay. Thank you very much. So a couple of things. First of a ll, a huge thanks to our Prem staff for the presentation tonight. And Meredith, it was nice to have you back for your guest appearance tonight and our Parks and Rec commissioners for all of their participation in this process. I think it's been really great. There's a couple of things. So in looking at the priorities, I mean, I think. It's really disheartening to see. That our maintenance budget is below what the national standard is. That's really disappointing to me because I think having safe and clean parks should be a core function of the city. And so I think it's. Important for us to to figure out I mean, when I looked. At the priorities that were listed in the report. Maintaining an efficient. And fiscally sustainable budget, or I forget which words were used was really like the last priority. I think we should figure out how much money it's going to take to create safe park spaces and maintain them. And that that that fiscal responsibility for that effort for the city should really be a lot. Higher up, in my opinion, because if we can't afford to maintain the parks and have safe parks. We're really not utilizing that space and allowing it to be utilized by residents in the way that it should be. So I really want to. Talk about that. Priority as being an important one. We want to make sure that our residents are feeling safe in going to the park. I think. Programing, I mean, when we're talking about concepts. Of equity and access programing is really, really important, especially for our youth, but also for our seniors. I think every park in the city should have opportunities for engagement for. Our youth and our. Seniors. Those are our two most vulnerable communities in terms of isolation. And the mental health and public health impacts that come along. And they don't have that that recreation and that that stimulus of interacting with others. That should be a major priority. And I think that's something that's called out in the report. But really, when we talk about. Health and we talk about access and and equity, we really need to be focused on making sure we have programing options available at all of our parks. We've talked a lot about undeveloped land. That's been a topic that's come up a lot to our council. And I appreciate Councilman Austin's comments regarding the efforts and the progress that has been made. I'll highlight how I will. Highlight also that Assemblyman O'Donnell also has helped us in developing. A helping develop some open spaces that weren't previously usable. And hopefully those will be very positive projects. And I look. Forward to that. But I'm wondering I'm not sure if there's a motion on this. Vice Mayor Is there a motion yet on this? Uh, I don't. I don't believe I heard a motion with Council on the Soros bill. First made one. The verdict. Was that emotion or not? I don't believe that. I didn't make a motion. I don't want to. Bryce, there's no motion on the floor. Okay, so I would make a motion to receive and f ile. But in addition, I know that the council members representing the. Areas where we've talked about a lack of park space are probably plugged into this. But I think for city wide we're hearing enough about it. But in addition. To receiving a file, I'd like to direct the city manager to come back to council within 30 to 60 days, whatever is feasible for him. On the feasibility of engaging stakeholders and creating an. Open park space plan for the undeveloped areas of land and the areas that we've identified as needing more park space. Which which, per the report in the comments tonight, would be central, west and north Long Beach, just to kind of see where we are with that. I know that's something that we've asked the city manager to look into and work on, but it would be nice to get a report back at this juncture now that we have our strategic plan in place. But I have no additional comment. Thank you. Next is councilwoman. They. Thank you, Vice Mayor. And I would like to second Councilmember Price's motion. And first of all, thank you so, so much to our Parks and Rec, the Marine Department staff. I know that this has been a long time coming, but I'm super excited that we're here. I'm really happy to see all of the excitement around this strategic plan. I think this is fantastic. One of the things that I also want to point out is that we acknowledge in this strategic plan, we acknowledge that we are on hunger land. And that makes me very, very proud that we actually were able to put it into our strategic plan. And a lot of people till this day don't know that. So it's very important to have something like that in there. I'm also very proud of the community input that was given. I'm so excited of all the collaboration that went on, especially from our commissioners as well. So thank you. Thank you for all of that. I think that it is very important that we that we acknowledge what a big, big high having open space in our community is, especially in these last two years, where that's where most of the community felt. See, and when we were forced to be inside, that was so good to be able to have some space to go and be able to social distance and be able to enjoy fresh air as much as we could. So I'm very happy about this. I do share the same sentiments when it comes to the maintenance of our parks. I think that we definitely need to make that a priority because I really think that safety and the maintenance of our parks go hand-in-hand because if you have a clean park, I really do believe that it encourages more safety around the park. So I really I'm glad that that was brought up. I think it's very important. I also think it's very important that we bring up a lot of our I mean, that it was brought up that programing is essential, especially for our youth and our seniors. I think that that is a fantastic point, and that is usually who is able to take advantage of such programs that we offer. And I think we you know, we ha ve such great programing and looking at the programing through equity lens is going to be highly important. And so I'm very happy to see that in this plan. Also, I you know, I wanted to make sure that everybody knows that, you know, all the hard work that has gone into this. And yet, yes, like it was mentioned, we are doing good, but there is a lot of work to do. And I am very confident that by adopting this plan, we can move forward and make our parks even more safer, more welcoming, and definitely more space for our residents to come and enjoy. So very, very happy to support the strategic plan for this for the Department of Parks Rec and. Thank you. All right. Thank you. Next is council member supernova. Okay. Thank you. I have. First of all, great report and very impressive 151 page report. And kudos to the Fort District residents who read it and gave me some questions from the report. And I have I'll put it down to two questions. And the first one has to do with the SWOT analysis that Meredith mentioned. So if Meredith still there was 100% of the data derived from the general public in this report. SWOT analysis should. And the membership for the SWOT analysis was a staff activity. So the particular attachments that are included with the plan were made up of input from the department's leadership team, site supervisors and general staff across the different bureaus. We asked similar questions as part of our community engagement sessions, just not in the same framework of a SWOT analysis. So those questions could be a little bit more user friendly for the public that has incredible knowledge, but maybe not intimate staff knowledge. Okay. Thank you for that. So this puts the next comment in perspective then. Since the SWOT analysis came from staff, I had questions about placing City Council in the threat category. So if you want to check page 131, it's not that we're doing a bad job that we're going to call it in the column of weaknesses. We're actually a threat. So if you look under a Community Recreation Services Bureau. Some of the threats include climate change gangs, drug dealers, drug users, vandalism and city council. So I won't put you on the spot to answer tonight. It is a long report. There's a lot of stuff to look at here. But if you could get back to us, what what staff's thinking was in coming up with that scenario, that would be very helpful for us to do a better job of what we do. Thank you. All right. Thank you, Councilwoman Mongo. Thank you. I want to thank the staff and the community for their participation. There's been a lot of comments and a lot of important things have already been said. But I think that one of the things I've talked extensively about with the community and with our current director is that once the strategic plan is done, I think we really need to talk about our Parks master plan in terms of not just the spaces that are undeveloped, but as we look forward in determining which playgrounds need to be re placed, which playgrounds need to be fixed, where we need additional field space, all of those things and the types of amenities that are invested in. I think we really need to look at the city and the parks more like businesses do. So you might be super close to something, but the flow of traffic and the way that people drive and the amenities that they visit have a lot to do with different types of patterns that we've learned a lot about through our economic development department. And so I'd love to see us next steps move forward with understanding what amenities should be at what parks, and whether are our early education parks, what are our older kids parks? What amenities can be adjacent to each other for parents who have kids of multiple age groups? Where are the best places to just have open space? Where are the best places to offer classes? Where are the seniors coming to and from? Where are the bus stops that get people there and so on and so forth? So I know Brett and I have talked about this a lot and I've resisted putting forward an agenda item until this would come forward, because I know we've all got a lot that we're digesting and that this was a big project. But I look forward to a very robust discussion about those things because council offices and districts they change. But the way people drive to and from schools work where you can take your kids to a park on the way home from school or work, how that all fits together, where practices are, where classes are offered and there's a lot to it. And I think we need to do a really thorough job of understanding that. And as we make these major investments and then we can also see we're working on the all inclusive playground at Eldorado, where would the next one be? What does that amenity look like? We've talked a lot about adding certain inclusivity swings at certain parks. There needs to be a reason behind a system of why we choose what we choose and where to make really good investments for the future. Thank you. Right next is Councilman Allen. I thank you, vice mayor. And just also a big. Thank you to Brant and to Meredith and Nancy and just all the community for their involvement. The strategic plan is comprehensive and it outlined all the fantastic achievements of the city. So just a big congratulations for getting to this point. And I know it was a big lift. I saw in the plan that Bixby Park was the second most popular park in the city, and it's nowhere near the largest park. So I think it just goes to show how vital the urban park and open spaces are important to our residents. And I'm also sure as a result of COVID, that it's much more appreciated and used. I also wanted to say that these survey results validate what I've seen of the condition of our apart and and also the beach equipment. It needs some love. And I also want to say really quickly, I just a big thank you to assembly member Patrick O'Donnell. I just have to give him a shout out for our 850,000 for Bixby Park that he was able to secure from from the state. That money is going to go a long way in transforming that park very soon. In a big way. Also I want to say to the staff, thank you for responding to all my various questions about how you conducted and incorporated the public outreach plan. I had a lot of similar questions as a Councilwoman Alfaro, so I do appreciate all the details and the presentation on Slide 14. You see that goal. One Seek to ensure that all residents have safe, walkable or bikeable access to neighborhood park, which includes adding new park space and poor areas. So thank you for that. I do have a quick question. Can you can you just share with me a little bit more about future opportunities to offer concession agreements, some parks, and what those opportunities might look like and how that can help us maintain safe, clean and accessible parks. Yeah. Thank you, Councilwoman Allen. That's really a great question. I think, you know, the past year, our entire leadership team has really utilized the pandemic to to look at all of our parks and our services with new opportunities. We've really reimaged a lot of the things that historically maybe the community has expected, but there's been a lot of really exciting best practices sprouting up from the pandemic in parks systems all across the country. So I do want to give credit to Nancy and her team, actually, Meredith, when she was our bureau manager for our planning and partnerships and initiated a lot of conversations with potential concessionaires, we did do an RFI to see what kind of interest we received scores of really creative possibilities that could be introduced into parks in north to south, east and west, and we'll be embarking on an RFP process shortly to really put a lot more substance to that . But we really do believe that by introducing a lot of those kind of visitor amenities in our parks, and it's really about serving the public so that they not only come to our parks with they enjoy their time there with their family or just individually. And some of the newer recreational opportunities can really enliven some of our parks where we do have challenges, where when we can introduce more positive activity. It really is very, very transformative. It makes our parks more welcoming, more appreciated, respected and actually safer. So I'm glad you asked that question. And we do have a lot of those initiatives moving forward. So thank you so much. All right, campers, remember your anger. Thank you. I've been listening to this with somewhat of a. Mixed emotions here. In the sense that while my website district has been

o to accept the negative declaration because I felt that if we had a full square air study, it might have come out a little different so that we could create a little bit more park space in that area. I'd like to thank Supervisor Hahn for coming through and having identified that in those 11 acres that the Council member Austin mentioned, that we could create more park space. I'm not sure where that status is. I know that the Parks Recreation Department has come before and and trying to create the the total plan as to what parks are really park space in perpetuity. I continue to work with Parks Recreation to create more space to create more parks, especially in the West Long Beach area, because that's what we need, that we need and and we need, of course, funding and also looking into that. I've been. Several times. I'm talking to our assembly speaker and our representatives in Sacramento about identifying some funding so that we create more parking space as we need a year Long Beach. And hopefully we will continue we're going to continue those efforts until we get a real positive response, because that's where that's where the fight is. The fight is funding, and it's not there now, but it doesn't mean that it's not going to be there tomorrow. So we continue to work with that and hopefully we can make a difference. That's not to say that this is not a good report. It's not a good a strategic plan. It is. But of course, I hope that we look at it from the fact that it's a document that it contains, that it can be adapted and that it can evolve to include a lot of other issues that we've got going here. One of the things that was mentioned before was that we were able to get some. Funding from us. Assemblymember O'Donnell for Bixby Park. I had a. I had a. A playground that burned down at the Admiral Kid Park. And unfortunately, those moneys weren't available for that. Although we do have we do have efforts to get some funding for that. But we have to go the route of having a fundraiser for any donations. We shouldn't have to do that every time there's a playground destroyed. We have to have a plan so that when we have our our playgrounds damaged, that we can replace them fairly quickly and not have to wait an insurmountable amount of time to have that equipment replaced. So maybe in the future we can look at how we can incorporate some kind of funding mechanism in a strategic plan that would provide some funding in a in a, in a regular basis to address these kinds of issues where we have equipment that needs to be replaced or upgraded so that we don't have to keep our kids away for the park and not being able to take advantage of those facilities as well as the other facilities that we have in other programs. So for example, seniors lunch programs, home study, progress, homework sections, those types of things. So and I'll leave it at that for now. Thank you. All right. Thank you, Councilman. And they have. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I also wanted to point out. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Donna, for making those points. I also wanted to share and maybe start to share a little bit more details on the development that is happening on in the first District along the 710 with the Drake Chavez extension and the wetlands. I think that that's such an exciting time for for us right now to have that to have that coming and that plan that's been there and it's finally gotten some some funding. So it's coming alive. And also, we have the new Lincoln Park. This going to be opened very, very shortly. So really excited about that. So that maybe if you could just briefly touch on on the development of those plans that we have in place already. Yeah, sure. That's a great topic, Councilwoman Zydus, and thank you for your leadership and and, you know, linking us to a lot of great community partners. So certainly within the Drake Chavez masterplan or Footprints, there's a lot of exciting movements I know that I'll be must project, which is congruent to that area. And you know, with the reconfiguration of of the bridge, the Shoemaker Bridge and the shoreline redevelopment or realignment, it opens up really a brand new canvas to create an even greater sense of place and open space for the West Side. Yeah, certainly. It's no secret we're very, very excited about the advent of celebrating and dedicating the new Lincoln Park in a few weeks. You know, unfortunately, with with COVID, it's going to kind of reign us in with what we can actually do. But I think, you know, we'll make a virtual celebration and shout out the good news to the community for what I think will be, you know, a flagship of pride and certainly one of the best urban parks in the nation here to to complement the really world class development around Civic Center. And, you know, the Billie Jean King Library, it's really the nucleus of a great destination. And I think we're very proud with even our smaller parks, you know, in and around the West Side, that there's a lot of really great things happening. I'm really happy with what's happening at the Armory and the adjacent minor park. I think that's really important. I know with redistricting, a lot of boundaries have shifted some of the parts of interest between you and your colleagues. But we continue to look at it as a citywide park system, serving a really great community. And regardless of where the boundaries are, I know each of you are very dedicated and you understand the importance that Parks have been to the community, especially during the pandemic. We have a lot of great things happening, a lot of wonderful opportunities on the horizon. And so I'm glad you raised a question. Thank you so much. This is. Thank you, Councilwoman Ciro. Yeah. I think I wanted to clarify the motion on the table at the moment. I think I heard Councilmember Price sharing that it's direct. The city managed to create kind of a report on open space is that the motion could. Now they go ahead. Face am endments under developed. Okay. I just want to make sure that we don't create more plans when we have them, because we did I think Meredith did the before she left to go into I think to recover working on recovery when I think she created a three alarm beach park acquisition feasibility report that that identified all of the potential opportunity. And there's been several other reports that's been done around and just vision plans for spaces and parks like the Drake Chavez the vision plan to know the there's like the river the lower L.A. River revitalization plan that identify opportunity spaces adjacent to the river, uptown open space. So so I definitely, you know, and supportive of making sure we identify them. I think that we have and they've been listed here. I think there's over 120 something sites. So I just didn't want to make I just want to make sure we're not doing more redundant. And it's really looking into, I think what Councilmember Durango was speaking to is looking at our funding, making sure we are funding and in prioritizing what we want to do. So that's just what I just want. Make sure we don't do it doesn't work and we have the plan already. Councilman Austin. Thank you. I'll be really brief. I just want to follow up on those councilmembers and there's a couple of points that she made, but also just, I think. We also need to highlight some of the good work that has actually happened over the last ten years or so in some of these areas that we have identified as areas of need. Specifically with the Dominguez Gap, the forest wetlands. Know it's about 70 acres right there of park space that have been developed. It's passive use park space along a river that has been developed over the last ten years because of the city council's dedication and recognizing a need there. And so and I said on the lower L.A. River Task Force hand up to this work with a number of different cities and stakeholders in the a year long process, looking at opportunities, as you know, from miles and miles of L.A. River. Nowhere no cities have developed like the city of Long Beach has. And not only that, I know Little Springs is also another area which significant acreage has been developed in the central are more city and as part space. So in the eighth district alone, 40 acres of new park space and of passive as well as active recreation space has been developed. So I think it's important that we also highlight and celebrate our successes as a city, but also understand that we still have a lot of opportunity to grow. And so I highlighted 11 more acres of opportunity space for here in the city. And I see that that that's just an opportunity. Right. I just highlighted that in an area that we're also focusing on. So again, to our Parks and Recreation staff, you all did a great feasibility report about a year ago, came back with good information. I think we build on that document. We build on this strategic plan, and we will build an equitable future for our ci ty. Thank you. Right. Thank you. That concludes council comment. We still have six people that that are in line to speak. I want to go to staff quickly, you know, in hearing the conversation. I think we want to just make sure that, you know, we acknowledge the good things that have happened, the progress being made. We also don't want to go back and start to reengage stakeholders around work that's already done. Council is a day sorry that you know, as it relates to outreach, we've done a lot of outreach, the uptown open space plan. I mean, they've got an American Planning Association word for outreach and identified an inventory of every vacant parcel just in District nine. But I know that there's additional work like what Meredith has done and others, but we don't want to do is imply that that work had been done. I think we're at the place now because we've done so much in terms of identifying inventory, as far as identifying vision and engaging the community. What we need for the city to do and it's Grant and his budget is to put his money where his mouth is. That's what we truly need to do is now pull the trigger and develop these parks in open spaces. And we've seen some great success, but we need to do more, particularly if we know that we have another state budget surplus and there may be additional investments coming down. We know that there was a conversation about earmarks. I'm not sure if that's going to happen either. But we just need to make sure as we apply for funds, it reflects what this document actually says and that we're building on the things that are already outlined. Let's go to public comment. Dave Shukla, your three minute starts now. Good evening. I already to you. You can read it or not. But since we're talking about opportunity space, I like that concept a lot. Uh, it may be redundant given the conversation. I think it's very, very deliberative and, frankly, a productive council conversation. Kind of amazing. Um, but the one point that everyone seems to kind of keep in on, and I think that we should underscore is how we acquire. Convert and site land for park space. That's important. It's path constrained not just by things like state budget surpluses and funding cycles, but also some of our fiscal requirements. And, uh. You know, maybe those things align with existing development pressures. Maybe they don't. But as. Uh, Councilmember Arun said, you know these. These faces have got to make sense in 20 years scale, 100 years scale. Perpetuity scale. Um, and so, yeah, I, I, I just, uh, take this opportunity to shamelessly plug the cows in rulemaking because there's, there's a lot of oil and gas land that was, uh, kind of a parcel that quick and easy in our city's history. And unlike most states, we don't have these these setbacks for health and safety. If we were to, uh, based on some special analysis they did of AB 345 a couple of years ago, uh, just in Long Beach, we'd have more land than was bought up and sold back up through already a. It could be a lot of land. They don't make more land. You know, like in the Superman films, like Luigi Rizzo was trying to make more land. Like they don't make more land. You could get more land. So yeah, think about that. Might be a good time to convert to a livable economy. Uh, thank you. Our next speaker is Leslie Gerritsen. Hi. And myself. Thank you. What a great report with tremendous information. I'd like to quickly, quickly introduce myself. Leslie Garrett, then. I'm a resident from Reno. I am also a board member of River Park Coalition. And I know we had some wonderful. Speech. Tonight for those of you who may not be aware of the coalition we formed about a year and a half ago, and we're working diligently on greenspace with the West Side, specifically in response to 37 to 1 specific place. We do have pending litigation and we are very hopeful. And thank you for bringing it up. We really want to see that air. That being said, let me go ahead and talk a little bit about the report. I thought it was a tremendous job and we met a lot of work that went into place. I know in my community here in Rosarito, our park is utilized what we and fortunately work on the neighborhood list for outreach. So I want to make sure we have that going forward. In addition, one of the things that I really hit home for me was talking about the fact that 14,000 of our trees of 32,000 so have are disease dying or being removed. And what I read about the maintenance, which is a huge problem in our city based on looking at that report. So I'm curious when I read about the park impact fees for proposed housing developments in Long Beach. They are a source of funding that can be used for the park maintenance. There was a Quimby. Act passed in 1975 which required developers to set aside land or funds to pay fees for park improvements. So the first park impact fees, they were implemented in our city in 1989. However, these fees have not been increased since 2010. So I'm curious, why hasn't that happened? There's a lot of development going on. And the other question I have and don't expect an answer now. Where do those funds actually go? Did they go into the general fund or they go for maintenance? And the last what I wanted to make is the fact that there are already a lot of plans that have been in place. I know there was conversation about the lower L.A. River. We had some great meetings this time with Patrick O'Donnell, who's been a supporter of ours and also Councilmember Austin. I am really looking forward to seeing some of these plans to come into fruition. And I want to make sure I, as a community member involved in helping make this stuff happen in our community. So thank you very much to the Parks and Rec Department PRM for putting it together. I know it was a lot of work and I am excited to identify some of the deficiencies and looking forward to help over the next ten years of these plans. Construction. Thank you. But will the individual wit

and I appreciate the level in which this has been presented. I also just want to end with as tag receive, and that's what we have to do now. We can't receive and file. We have to receive an act. We're desperate for open space. We're so desperate that we built we take little tiny areas of our neighborhoods. We throw a picnic table on it and a few trees, and we call it our open space and we maintain it as residents. We need this plan. We need it to come to fruition. We also have in plan a Hamilton loop that we have been working on for several years since 2014. It's supposed to open up the freeway areas around. The freight around the freeway from Atlantic to Kerry. Vice Mayor Rex Richardson has been a huge supporter with us on this. It's taken the collaboration of Caltrans, the county, the city. It's hard to get all these folks together, but I really appreciate the effort that's been put forth and that as well with these plans in place, the strategic strategic plan, as well as the 91 greenbelt plan, we will be able to at least have some open space. I hear people talking about maintenance. I agree with that too. But please just understand, there are parts of this city that have zero open space. Thank you for listening. Have a great day. Our next speaker is Mariella Salgado. Good evening. Thank you. I come to you as vice chair of the Parks Commission? We serve as an advisory board to you and our city regarding park lands, plans and improvements and other budgetary priorities. Our parks do not have unions or lobbyists to advocate for its needs or importance in the community. Yet it plays a crucial role in the health of our community, particularly for our youth, our 0 to 8 population and zero four seniors. As many experienced in the pandemic, our parks and open spaces became a focal point for health and will also highlight the importance it plays in providing afterschool and summer programing and child care for our families. Our park system is one families heavily rely on for recreational opportunities. Affordable programing and an important childcare provider for our workforce, particularly women. This department and our world of commissioners has equal importance and relevance as public safety. This plan lays the foundation for future priorities and investments. As such, I'd like to highlight the importance of our approach to advance health equity. A Goal within the Racial Reco nciliation Report. You all voted unanimously to advance racial equity in language. This initiative also references Park Equity, recognizing the impact of open space on health for those who need it most. Hello. We can hear you. Oh, I'm sorry. Did you guys hear me earlier? Yeah, we heard you. Sorry. Um. In its current iteration. Our commission recommended the park in health equity goal number three to be the primary goal. Its current iteration stays safe and accessible public spaces as a primary goal and in my opinion, maintains the status quo. This plan presents an opportunity for you all to ensure there is a prioritization of projects, investments and programing to address historical disinvestment policies and systems that have negatively impacted a majority of our residents across the city. To change the future of park investments, where residents in Long Beach have access to nearly 16 times the park space and those living in Watts, Long Beach and park plants like my car park and masterplan aquatic recreation in North Beach no longer remain in planning phases for 22 to 30 years. As a first District resident, our Drake Jarvis Master Plan is well over 25 years old. I also want to add an important plan that was included in the strategic plan is the city's early childhood education strategic plan that promotes the well-being of our 0 to 8 population. This plan was not included in this plan, and it should. You see, this plan discusses the importance of increasing the quality of programs delivered to young children, remove barriers to quality, educate early education and access to green spaces regardless of ability and geography. Park investments promote positive outcomes for our city. Our parks plays a vital role in meeting so many of our city goals, from health initiatives to economic empowerment and make eating more equitable. You bear the responsibility for. Promoting. Equitable access to resources and services to minimize the disparities our residents experience. I hope you will consider our Parks Commission recommendation to place equity as the primary goal. Hamilton neighborhood as a comment was submitted earlier. Should have given space. But I won't if we do. Thank you. Our next speaker is Rae Garbage. Good evening. Thank you very much. I am a member of Carp Citizens about responsible planning, Long Beach Reform, Coalition and Neighborhoods First. I also served on the Parks and Rec Commission from 1985 to 1993, and we have the same story. We have the same challenges. We had the same issues. I look at listen to you, and I appreciate so much the work that goes into it. But I think what we really have to look at is to stop repeating the problems or glossing over them. And then what happens is you get to a budget time and you have to me, you city council have to make budget cuts. And if I understand it correctly, I think we're somewhere between 13 and 30 million deficit this year. But regardless, those cuts have to be made and they seem to be made on the backs of Parks and Rec rather consistently over the years. The water budget has not been added to for Parks and Rec and they pay their own water bill. The cemeteries, when they were added, they went on the responsibility of Parks and Rec with no increase in their budget. That's something that I really, really ask you as council members to pay attention to when you come up to the next budget period. We have places in our city Eldorado Park Area three. The ponds and the walkways are atrocious. They are not accessible. They're dangerous. Those should have been fixed years ago. Shire Park, the pond that has not been functioning as intended for years since I was on the Parks and Rec Commission, the bathrooms in our parks and our beaches should not be locked, but they should be maintained. And I know it's all about money. It's all comes down to the dollars. So how we spend it, you know, maybe those priorities need to change. Also, I was reviewing the 2021 salaries last summer, and I found that we have a number of mid-level management people in Parks and Rec with fewer worker bees, so the work doesn't get done. So we contract with check that instead of having those people on board that really love their work and took pride in taking care of their city. You know, I know I'm about out of time. So, you know, we've lost ten and a half acres, in my opinion, with the Boy Scout Park. We've lost acreage at that. The biggest gap opportunity for both storage. And now there's another seventh District residential project in the pipeline that could be Parkland. So I hope that you will look at that when when Councilmember Urunga said land is hard to get. It is hard to get, but we have a lot what we did have a lot of surplus city owned properties that can become pocket parks, not quick sales without some benefit to Long Beach residents. And the Trust for Public Lands was a great organization that we tried to work with. Of course, when when times were tough, when we were in the Great Depression area, it was hard. They didn't have the they didn't have the money available to them as well. We also were. Thank you. That speaker is Laura Summer. Yes. My name is Laura Soma. Thank you very much for this second chance of public comment. I would like to point your to page 33 of this plan. There are three excellent maps on the plan, the first one being the Long Beach Red Lighting. The 34 years of redlining that Long Beach experienced during the building years of postwar. And then the second map is people of color in Long Beach. And then the third map is called Park Equity. The only correction I'd make on this page is I would title that park in quality because but these three images, I think, tell the story of this entire clan. And I think the remedies. Are pretty clear that we do that. The city does need to support park development in the west, central and north. I do support the motion to have a city manager come back and report if plans are already in place. I believe those can be part of the report, but we do have 25 acres, I think currently under a proposal to become an RV park. And turning back to the map with people of color. I'm just looking at this. That community want a park or does the community really want an RV storage? And I think that's a big outstanding question. I'll read a quote from the strategic plan here. It says, There is lack of equity in terms of park space and open land versus East Long Beach. There's so much need in the west, central and north Long Beach. Where there are more residents living in denser neighborhoods that each deserve their own Eldorado Park. And I will close with page 102. One of the first actions is to establish Park Equity acquisition. But it says guidelines. But I believe one of those. Guidelines is to acquire. The park land before. It's built in and covered with concrete. And I think that's why it's applicable. When you're going to build an RV park on 25 acres, you might want to step back and really consider the real purpose. Should that be parkland for the community? And then it does say also here in this slide, just partner with the county. And, you know, the county of Los Angeles did a lot of redlining on their own. It was a cause. It was a nationwide, horrible phenomenon. But the county I believe the county would thank you. Well, the individual with the telephone number ending in 7340. Your time begins now. Please press star six. Thank you. This is Karen Recite. I'm president of the Long Beach Gray Panthers. And we appreciate park staff. We see them go above the board, above board and be on their job every single day. And we're we're not in favor of adopting this plan right now because I'm going to address some senior issues. We feel that there are gaps that are missing that need to be included in the plan. And we really appreciate your ability to be open in discussing these issues. If we're talking about equity, you know, there's very little mention of the YouTube community. They do use our parks quite heavily or the disabled community, and most of our parks are not really accessible. So these issues need to be included in the plan. We don't think the goals are specific enough. You know, what gets written in is what's going to get done, and if it's not written in, it won't get done . Are we going to have police in our parks? Are we going to park rangers? I can't go in and out the front door of the senior center because we have people, some. Of them drug users. And it's not safe. So seniors are particularly targets for people that are looking to do damage. And there's not really a lot of discussion about what's going to happen with seniors as one of the newest partners for the Parks and Rec. So we've been in space at the senior center for four months. We have handed out 400 warm coats to seniors that have to stand out in the cold to get their food during food distribution days. And they didn't have coats. So we got them coats. Working with the National Council of Jewish Women and Chase Bank, we distributed help distribute. We paid for 168 Thanksgiving meals. So seniors that came to the senior centers have a Thanksgiving dinner in partnership with Partners Apart, we have distributed 276 dining cards in over 250 grocery cards, and we've done that at 40 senior centers. We have held a senior center safety forum with the police, got the police more engaged with the senior center and keeping the seniors safe. And we had over 100 attendees and everybody received lunch. We distributed over 1000 caps and scarves to seniors all across the community. And these are things that nobody talks about. The grocery cards I could give out probably ten times the grocery cards that we have money for. Thank you. That concludes public comment. All right. Let's move to the roll, please. That concludes public comment. I spoke to a local police. District one. My district to. I. District three. II. District four. I. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. Art District eight. Uh. District nine? Yes. District nine. As motion is carried. Great. Thank you. And now we will hear item ten, please. Report from Police Department recommendation to authorize the city manager to receive and expend grant funding up to 368,000 for body worn camera policy and implementation program to support law enforcement agencies and increase appropriations in the General Fund and the General Grants Fund Group and the Police Department by 368,000, offset by grant revenue citywide. Thank you. I know Councilman Price for this item on Councilman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I was hoping that we could get a brief staff report on this. Given the public safety committee back on the days push for this particular body worn camera policy. I just want to know exactly where the new body worn cameras are going to be deployed. Thank you. Yes, Councilmember, I will have the police department answer those questions. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember. The all of our body worn cameras, currently just about 630 are deployed in the field to patrol personnel in some of our special specialized units. The goal being full deployment for our entire staff. But currently, any public facing specialized unit and patrol personnel have body worn cameras. Okay. And are we still using evidence? Econ. Or you. Can guess we are evidence dot com is our storage platform. And we're still using the axon on cameras. Correct. Okay. At some point, I know it's probably not this particular item, but I would love a report back on what some of the costs have been. I know initially when we wanted to deploy. Body worn cameras. We talked a little bit about the cost of responding to praise and things of that nature. So, Chief, this will probably be a future item, which is for you to think about. Now that we've been using body worn cameras since 2016, I'd love to know what the costs, actual actual costs are as opposed to what we thought they would be in terms of the cost to the city.

I think that's something that's worth a report back at some point. Thank you, Councilwoman. We can definitely do that and put something together to bring back. Thank you. Will bring an item, but thank you, chief. I appreciate it. Thank you. I have, Councilman. I'm sorry. Council member Austin. And thank me the second. Yes. I think in the motion. And I support the request from the maker of the motion. Thank you. And and Councilwoman Allen. I guess my question with the answer. Thank you. Vicki, is there any public comment on this item? At this time. If there are any members on the from the public that wish to speak on this item, please use the raise hand function or press star nine. See none. That concludes public comment. Iraq Police. District one. I district to district three i. District for. I. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. Hi. District nine. Hi. Motion is carried. Thank you. Now here we have our first hearing, which is item number 16, I believe, which are our general plan amendments. So let's go ahead and get right into our hearing. I'll ask the correct to introduce the item. I think you know, I think we have our last item, which is item 23. Item 22, report from Financial Management Recommendation to receive and file the fiscal year 2021 year end budget performance report citywide. We can't even. Grow. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the city council. This is great. This is a report of the final year and status of FY 21. For context. And as a reminder, the FBI 21 budget was established during the start of the pandemic and in the middle of an incredibly swift recession. During this time, Long Beach, along with given the nation, faced tremendous uncertainty as the pandemic would impact the economy, city's finances both on the revenue and expenditure side. So when the FY21 budget was proposed and finalized, it was uncertain how severe the downturn would be and how long it would last. This report shows that as of the end of episode 21, the overall fiscal impact of the pandemic was not as severe as originally anticipated, with key general fund revenue sources such as sales tax rebounding very quickly and even surpassing FY19 pre-pandemic performance. The general fund is ending the year with an operating surplus of 2.2 million and Measure A has a net program surplus of approximately 10 million. The Tidelands Operating Fund also ended with the budgetary funds available of 2.2 million. Recommendations on the uses of these funds are provided in the report. Additionally, I wanted to note that as part of the Long Beach Recovery Act, the city was able to recover revenue that was lost due to the pandemic. This has allowed us to strengthen our fiscal standing. Our operating reserves are at 14.9 million and our emergency reserves are at 47.8 million. Back to where they were prior to needing them to cover the 20 million shortfall in FY 21. So we're about 2.6% and 8.5% respectively of normal operating expenses, which is w ithin our financial policy range for our reserves. This concludes my staff report and we are available for questions. Thank you. I have a motion by Councilmember Austin. Absolutely. This is great news. Thank you for the staff report. A grace. We forecasted a little bit of this in our our budget exercise just a few months ago. And like I said, this is very welcome news for our city. We're able to fund some of the priorities for the council put forth when we passed our budget back in, it was at six. And this is again, I'm happy to support this. Looks like we're headed in the right direction and I'm encouraged going into 23. Thank you. Thank you. Councilwoman Price of the second councilman. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I want to thank our financial management division and graces for this presentation. And I want to thank Councilman Austin for his leadership as the chair of our Budget Oversight Committee. These were a lot of projects that we wanted to make sure that we got funded for a variety of projects throughout the city. And I'm so glad that we're able to accommodate these projects. Thank you. If you can't remember what your anger. Thank you. I'm especially pleased that we were able to fully fund the playground at Admiral Kidd Park after the devastating fire that took place last summer. Kudos to the staff member, Austin. Thanks for your chairmanship of the Budget Committee and good job. And we're also going to be able to upgrade and rebuild the playground at Silverado Park. So both of those projects are excellent for the district. Thank you very much. Thank you, Councilwoman Zendejas. Thank you, Mayor. I first I wanted to thank our financial department. Great. Thank you to you and your team for the hard work that you've been doing on this. And I also wanted to thank our amazing city manager and his team for pushing this through as well during two very, very tough years that we have had. I'm so happy to see that after the fact, after two years of this pandemic, Long Beach has managed to come out stronger and with them with an operating surplus that will help fund so many amazing projects such as the MLK, statue restoration and all ability playground and tree trimming and improvements, which are all very important. I also love to see that that there's money being allocated to supporting cannabis social equity programs to establish a food truck lending program, a sidewalk vending vendors ordinance, a COVID 19 memorial, among so many other great city actions project. So congratulations on bringing us to this point. Thank you. I hope. Councilwoman Sara. I just want to thank Councilmember Austin for his leadership in the being a chair of the Oversight Budget Committee. And, you know, make and just this is just good news. It's always great to have good news when when concerning money and budgets to be able to fund. I think several of our parks, including the MLK, not just only the statue restoration, but the renovation that can be done at the MLK park an d I think many others like the Bixby Park and others. So this is just great news and thank you very much. Thank you. I want to thank, obviously, Councilman Austin, but the Budget Oversight Committee and just staff for the work on these projects. I'm really excited that there's so many small district projects that are going to improve the city and improve spaces for families and for folks who enjoy. I mean, and some of the big projects that some of us have been advocating for for a long time, and some of the signage projects that I'm really excited about and others. And so thank you for this. Is there any public comment? At this time. If any members wish to speak on this item, please press star nine or use a raise hand feature. Seen none. That concludes public comment. Right. There's a motion and a second to approve. Please do a roll call vote. District one. I district to. My. District three. I. District for. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine.

All right. Motion of security at zero. Thank you. With that, I think we have a second public comment period. If any members of the public would like to speak and seek a public comment, please press start on user raised hand feature. Dave Shuker. Good evening. Can you hear me? Yes. We can hear you. Thank you. Appreciate the contribution. It's helpful to have a second public comment period and one that's. Regularly scheduled at the end of meetings for a variety of reasons. But especially if you know the topic for what I'm speaking to you about is what I mentioned earlier at these congressional hearings on climate misinformation by the oil and gas industry. It's helpful to have this just in the span of just a couple of hours of different. Things are moving that this fast, but only in a city with a 24 hour report and 24 hour problems associated, but also globally with the restructuring of oil and gas markets. I'm sorry, Mr. Mayor. What item are nine? Item nine excommunication from Vice Mayor Richardson. Councilwoman Cindy has an Councilwoman Allen recommendation to direct city attorney to amend Long Beach Municipal Code chapters 5.53 and 5.55 to remove their sunset clauses, thereby making chapters 5.53 and 5.55 permanent. Thank you. Turn this over to Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. This action tonight will take some of the important actions that we instituted at the onset of the pandemic, when we didn't truly understand our economic situation and our health situation. And now that we have a better understanding, we know that the pandemic, the economic recovery will take some time. The action tonight will take two of the three initial ordinances, particularly related to recall and retention, and make those two ordinances permanent until such a date. The City Council will remove Saturday to remove those ordinances, so this action would make them effectively permanent. No, it doesn't apply to the sick leave policy. We were one of the first adopters on addin g local sick leave protections, but since then the state has now adopted safely protections. So we have no need to extend the sick leave protection because now it's state law. When we initially took this out as a city council, we did so out of recognition that, you know, COVID was shipping everything that we know about our daily lives. And as a city, our role was expanding. Our role is changing. And we know that we're a city that has made significant investments into tourism within our city and that we depend on services. The services provided in our city are directly connected to tourism. But we also saw that that saw that that was the very first industry to be hit. So the city council, you know, rightfully so, stepped forward and thought about a comprehensive package of protections both for industry and for workers. We were among the first to do that. We actually led the nation on a number of the things we did during COVID 19 around testing, worker protections, sick leave. So we've been a real leader, one of the first cities in the nation to guarantee three weeks of sick leave. And so that was incredibly important. But now it's shifting from, again, corporate relief to economic recovery. This makes a lot of sense. Number one, it's a proactive effort. So taking a step to make recall and retention policies permanent. What it does is it ensures that, you know, we know that, you know, we're going to deal with additional spikes and different additional variants. It's not as if we know by now that it's a win. And so what it does is this locks in protections to make sure that we're ready to meet whatever, you know, whatever impacts there are to our workforce. And so that's the added protection. We also know that we're probably, you know, the pandemic will be here for four or five years and the economic fallout will take significant time to recover. And since we do that, we have a responsibility as a local city to use our power to extend those protections through that pandemic recovery. These you know, these are not you know, there was significant discussion initially about what actions to take as a city. And I think, you know, we arrived at a really good place. I think today this action, I think, is a real commitment to our workers that, you know, as we recover from the pandemic, no no community, no worker is going to be left behind. We have a case recovery where we know people who have made, you know, white collar jobs and make a significant amount of money, for the most part will bounce back. But low wage workers here in Southern California and in Long Beach, based on our quarterly, quarterly economic report, they're the most vulnerable. And so these workers, we know, are the ones that are persistently dealing with unemployment and they're the ones. 11 Responses. So actions like this help to secure the floor and ensure that people aren't slipping out of the workforce and into homelessness. And as the recovery comes back, they know that our city cou ncil and our city council has their back. So I want to just take a moment and just acknowledge I just want to take them all. Acknowledge. Congresswoman Annette Barragan, CFA, California Faculty Association, Long Beach Clergy. Laity United, Latinos and Action for Migrants and Action National

Council of Jewish Women of Greater Long Beach and West Orange County. Long Beach Immigrant Immigrant Rights, Coalition and Filipino Right of Migrant Center. The L.A. Confederation of Labor for sending their letters of support also acknowledge there were letters letters that indicated there wasn't a fiscal review done. I just want to state for folks that we updated the item on a supplemental to Atlas support and to add financial management's fiscal impact statement. So if folks have concerns, they feel free to defer to financial management on that. But again, what we're doing is pretty straightforward here. We are sort of we're simply removing the sunset and redefining the opening sentence. It is more broad is not about the initial just COVID reaction of COVID, but this is you know, now we're we're thinking more long term about the economic recovery of our city. That's why it's important to make these protections permanent for low wage workers within our city. Thanks a lot. And I'm happy to make the motion as written. Thank you. There's a motion. And then the second I have Councilman Allen. I thank you, Mayor, and and also thank you, Vice-Premier Richardson, for your leadership on this item. It's just flat out common sense policy. And I'm proud to see you. And I'm proud to see the city of Long Beach leading on this issue. This is a simple change. It removes the sunset and it protects workers and the industry against future economic crises. As the workers in our hospitality industry just deserve that respect the dignity and opportunity that accompany a stable job. And this policy will indeed stabilize jobs. I also want to mention that the workers, mostly women and workers of color, are the ones who made these industries into middle class jobs through decades of activism. So let's make sure that we preserve these gains by making right to record retention into permanent policies. What this is also good for business is just hard to rehire workers, especially qualified ones. You have to train a workforce and these workers can come back and hit the ground running. They already know the job. And there is a cost. And it. Don't quote me exactly, but it's in the thousands of dollars to train a new employee. The making the right of recall or retention of permanent policy will provide a more stable environment for both the workers and hotel owners. I also like that the workers that will be hired back will be hired back in the order of seniority. And I think that that's really smart. I've also heard from dozens of residents and workers about the need for this change. So I strongly support this recommendation. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman. Next up is Councilwoman Mongo

. Thank you. I'm going to be supporting that item today. I do have a couple of questions and or requests of vice mayor and just a better understanding. So, vice mayor, I know you and I and Councilman Allen all serve on the economic development. Committee together, and I would have loved to see this come to the committee first. It seems that there's a bit of urgency because it's coming directly to the Council on a supplemental. Are you open to also getting some feedback from our economic development director and or our web executive director on the financial impact and potential opportunities that the city has to improve and or build upon and or modify and discuss. Options. I appreciate that this is for one particular industry, but lots of industries were hit, and I think that there's some value in having a broader discussion of what that looks like. But just just to be clear, this is a follow up to an item in December, right? In December. So we received two from four memo from the city manager. These protections were going to lapse at the end of the year and we were going into holidays and our concerns. So we we postponed this and said, give us some time to get past the Comic-Con surge and get past the end of the year to come back with a recommendation. And so I think the committee can at any time take up and do the evaluation, and I will support that as the committee. What I don't want to do is change the timing on the item today. So if you're saying if you want on a parallel track how to do for the research by other industries, I'm happy to work with you on that. Absolutely. So I've received some feedback from hotels in the fifth District specifically, and they're having they've made multiple offers to individuals to come back and they're getting no response. And so their challenge is, of course, that they need to then fill those positions. And so I don't know what that cascading scale looks like in my understanding of what the limits and timelines are and how we incentivize the workforce to come back. Because there's a demand, there's, what, 1.5 jobs for every one employed person. And we we have to come up with an incentive structure that both values the workforce and their skills and their commitment and dedication while balancing help and an understanding of each person's personal risk and then also understanding what implications our policies have. We also recognize that the country is experiencing the highest level of inflation, and there's a lot of theories out there on what caused those and what types of policies. And we want to make sure that we don't create a worse off situation. We might make a policy one day that raises wages 3% or 4%, but then inflation 7%. And

in having a really broad discussion and inviting business leaders and workers to that discussion. So I appreciate that. That's great. I'll support that item today and I appreciate we're at very, very unusual times, but hopefully we will be past them soon. Thank you. Absolutely. Thank you. Thank you. Have a few more speakers. But our city attorney also wanted to make some clarification remarks. Thank you, Mayor. Yes. As mentioned by the vice mayor at the December 7th Council meeting, the vice mayor's item directed the city manager to not sunset the Long Beach Municipal Code chapters 5.53, 5.55 and 8.110. And they were to sunset no sooner than February 28th of 2022. This item, as the vice mayor identified, addresses two of the three ordinances and if approved tonight, will make those sections permanent. But we do not address and is not addressed is section 8.110 as a result of this item tonight, without further action by the council item 8.110 will sunset effective February 28th 22, as the Council's awareness the vice mayor mentioned earlier, the state has addressed through legislation the additional covered sick time. So we are available to answer any questions. But we just wanted to point out that this item tonight and wanted to clarify that the other the third item that was extended by the vice mayor's motion in December will expire on February 28th. And the final point is this items that this come back within seven days as the council's aware that there is no meeting next week. So this item would come back on March 1st. But there will be no sunset of the item and this item will be heard on March 1st. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman's in Dallas. Thank you, Mayor. Thank you. My vice mayor Richardson, for bringing this item forward. I'm honored to be a co-sponsor on these efforts. Making right recall and retention into permanent policy is common sense. It's a common sense policy that strengthens Long Beach's economic development strategy and economic recovery, as we hopefully are exiting this pandemic. As we all know, this pandemic brought to life the incredible value as well as the high vulnerability of workers in industries such as those of hotels and janitorial workers. The pandemic has no mercy on anyone, anyone. And we do know that it has affected all of us across all industries. But workers in these industries were hit the hardest when 90% of the hospitality industry shut down during the pandemic, leaving workers without their livelihood, those without the ability to feed and care for their families. Here in Long Beach, we acted in a in response to this concern by establishing these worker protections back in 2020. However, because of the pandemic has continued for much longer than we all expected, in the sense that based on these policies have added to the uncertainty and fear of many of our workers, many of whom have experienced hardships here from my district, workers that work in the nearest hotels and years, places around here in the downtown own area. These policies are specifically designed to ensure the rehiring of employees in the event of another temporary shutdown or contraction. And since this pandemic is, it seems to have been longer than anybody perceived. I think it is very fitting and timely for us to step up and try to make this a permanent ordinance. Again, I think you, vice mayor, for inviting me onto this item and I strongly support this item and I hope that my colleagues and I can all be in solidarity of this item. Thank you. Thank you. Councilmember Al Austin. Thank you, Mr. Mayor, and I appreciate the item coming forward. I want to signal my strong support for this item as well. And I want to just everybody wait. We're waiting in public comment. That's five votes already. I want to say that obviously COVID 19 devastated our our hospitality industry was a huge setback. But the impacts there were not just financial and on business. They were impactful for residents, for our residents, for people, for workers, for the employees. And if anybody has never experienced mass layoffs, I'll just tell you, it's a it's a hard thing to deal with. As a former aerospace worker here in Long Beach. I've experienced that. Coming from Detroit. I've seen that over and over again throughout my life. And I can tell you that for four workers in a in an industry to mass layoffs, it's impactful for not only the workers, but it's impactful for the business as well. So I think it makes a lot of sense to be able to to retain a quality workforce that understands our hospitality industry, that understands our city, that they don't need to to start from scratch. But have it have been invested into their roles as hospitality workers? These are low wage jobs. We know that there's no guarantee that everybody goes back to the roles that they were in two years ago. But I think it's only the moral thing to do to to extend that opportunity for these workers as our economy hopefully rebounds, as our tourism industry, our hospitality entertainment industry here in Long Beach rebounds. And so I'm to my soul for support for this item. It was a no brainer when it came forth originally. And it's it's it's a no brainer today. Thank you. And I do think we need to enlisted advise better pay across all sectors for all workers. I think that is the incentive council to go to work to retain a great workforce. Thank you, Cousin Ringo. Thank you, Mary. And I want to lend my support to this item. As I said many times, when other ideas are come forward this way that regarding auto workers and public service essential workers, I will always mention the fact that I have family who work in the auto industry and they were very much affected by this pandemic as well. And I and I can straightforwardly say that not everybody gets hired back and want to be hired back. So I think that the sign up here protects workers and it guarantees them an opportunity, if not get a job back, at least getting giving them an opportunity to get back and reach and restart and continue their careers as they want to. It's a it's a labor of love for a lot of these people. They love their work. They love working with the public. They love working hotels and they love providing service. So I think that when it comes to it, at the end of the day, individuals who work in this industry love their jobs and would love to come back. So I fully support this idea of hearing thank you to all the sponsors of this item. And you have my vote. Thank you. Thank you, Councilwoman Sara. Thank you, Mayor. I just want to express my strong support for this item and thank Vice Mayor Richardson as well as Councilwoman Allen. And they have for bringing this item for. Councilwoman Pryce. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I, too, want to express my support for the item, but I also want to thank the group of hotel workers that I had the opportunity to meet with and acknowledge that I appreciate the changes that were made to the ordinance, as we discussed, to kind of fill the gap in that and the Nexus connection that I felt was necessary in approving the item tonight. I think that change was made, at least it was made to my satisfaction in terms of the nexus. And I want to thank you for listening. Thank you, Councilwoman. I'm going to make a few comments and then we'll go to two public comment. Well, let me just say that I, of course, agree with with all that's been said. And I just want to remind folks that when the first right of return recall legislation came forward, these worker protections, and when Long Beach actually made the decision to put these protections in place and to ensure that folks had a job to come back to and that they would be protected at work. This was actually really a bold move that Long Beach took, and it was at the height of the pandemic. We were first in a line of jurisdictions that were doing this work. And Long Beach, Chuck, with what I think many of us believe to be a historic and important step for workers across our city and and the region. And the truth is, is that the work that was done by this council impacted other laws and other efforts that were done across the state. So I do want to thank the entire Long Beach Council that was supportive of this measure when it was first in front of us. I also want to thank just the incredible support in talking to so many of our work organizations and union leadership and business owners, community members that were all engaged in this process because we know that workers were facing a really difficult time and continue to face a really difficult time at our workplaces and in this economy. And just want to thank you. And finally, I do want to thank the staff. I think our team at Economic Development and our team at the city attorney's office and so many others worked very hard on this. And we had a lot of conversations in the first round of of legislation that passed, and we continue to in this next round. So a huge thank you to Vice Mayor Richa rdson, Councilman Allen, Councilman and D.A. for bringing this back to us. But I also want to honor the work that everyone did leading up to this. It's really been a monumental effort. And so I'm really proud that Long Beach continues to stand by and support our workers. And with that, Madam Clerk, if we can do any public comment. And there are any members of the public that would like to speak on this item, use the raise hand feature or dial start nine. Charlie, your 90 seconds start now. Hello. Council members and mayor, this is Charlie Cano with Unite Here Local 11. Can you hear me? Yes. Okay, great. Thank you. Thank you very much for your support for. For hospitality and janitorial workers and ensuring that the folks have a chance and a right to come back to work as we come out of this crisis. It's very well appreciated. The special thanks, of course, to those who ensured introduced this motion today for standing with workers. This as this point, as was pointed out, both host hotel and janitorial workers who are having a much longer time than expected in going back to the office, are really in a crisis very similar to that that hit the aerospace industry in the early 1990s. We don't know how long it's going to last, but with making this permanent, we make sure that that folks have a chance to get back to work and that we're ready for whatever comes, whether it's this pandemic or a future economic crisis. This is something that does not cost employers anything. In fact, they can even send letters to us. They can send letters to many workers and then hire, offering them a right to come back and then or and then hire in order and then hire an order back in order of seniority. So there's no downtime between when they send the letter and a need to sort of send consist can send other letters and it and it also protects workers in case of sale no worker should have ever lost their jobs. Thank you, Raquel. Your 92nd began now. We when I started this actually summer, I can't remember. Please hold while we get. The interpreter on the line. 1/2, please. The next speaker is Maria Parola. All. You heard me. Yes. Okay. My name is Robert. And all in. I'm a hope to work. I'm a union member, but I believe that we need a permanent right to be called to work and keep this law. This law is helping a lot of workers to go back to work. So I believe we need to keep this little sample of the higher Lombard, the many workers that try to go back to work. But that restaurant is still closed. And I hear that they said they've been calling people they refuse to call or they don't answer. But what I hear is happening in this hotel that management is hiding your people. When they how many people are home waiting for, they go back to work. And these people are willing to try it in all positions. But. This company tried to hire new people and. I really believe that we need to keep this low to make sure that people go back to work and keep jobs around the country, that many o f them being told. So I do believe that people have don't have to leave the job because the job is false. So I believe we need to involve people to make sure all these people. Thank you. Thank you. Raquel. We went to service. What about Simon and Candy in Brazil? Let's assume we have a fever. Am I right? I am. Raquel Estrada. Members of the council. I am very thankful. Raquel. Raquel is the aggressive youth development of our house here. Thanks to this law, I had the opportunity to go back to my job. For the European position in Ireland. Because I was one of the first one to be fired from the hotel and my position was not opened yet. It looks as if the late member of the hierarchy there may muscatel a couple of the young Bulgarian without him. And this law was the one that protected me for the hotel to find a position to place me back into a job. Back then, my goal is to try my 15 tobacco. I have more than 18 months without a job. If they go through, let them tomorrow. Let me smoke. Or Simi Valley. Well, whatever it is that. And I have other coworkers, friends of mine that they didn't have the opportunity to go back to work yet. And I think this is going to happen. And that is why I am very thankful for all your support. Thank you very much. Next speaker is Christian Castro. Your time begins now. Obamacare. Yes, sir. Okay, great. Good evening, councilmembers. My name is Cristian Castro and I'm a resident of Long Beach. During the beginning of the pandemic, as workers across the country were being forced to go into work without protections. Millions were laid out and many more, millions more related. It was Long Beach. I led the nation and protections for these workers to combat COVID 19, and I commend the commission and the council for leading the way. The devastation of the pandemic has hit us all, but especially our black and brown workers who are disproportionately impacted by COVID 19 infection and by unemployment. While things may be looking up, we know that we are nowhere near the end of this. This item is personal to me. My mother is an immigrant and spent years working in the hospitality industry. It's painstaking work, but work she was proud of and it's work that anyone can be proud of. To me, it's simple. Our janitorial and hospitality workers have been on the front lines since the beginning and deserve to be protected. Let's protect our low wage workers and our communities of color by voting on this item. Thank you. Gary trick. Your time begins now. Good evening, mayor and city council members. My name is Gary. A trick. I reside in the fourth district. I'm speaking tonight as president of the Long Beach chapter of the California Faculty Association. CFA at Long Beach represents over 2900 faculty, coaches, librarians and counselors. At issue, I'll be on behalf of our members. I urge you to make right to recall and retention. Permanent CFA Long Beach believes that equity and justice are only possible if we put people at the center of our public policy. These policies are examples of that and will help shape a recovery that includes everyone. I really want to thank Mayor Vice Mayor Richardson for leading on this issue for everyone else who is who has really got us to this point. And again, CFA at Long Beach urges a yes on this particular ordinance. Thank you. Next speaker is Garcia Lopez Reyes. Your time begins now. Thank you. Good evening, Mayor. Members of the council. My name is Grisha Lopez Reyes, director of Language Coalition for Good Jobs. Our priority as a coalition has always been advocating for progressive policies that address the growing inequality that we see in our city by promoting living wages and strong worker protections. For this reason, we strongly support making Long Beach right a recall and retention permanent policy in the city. We need to ensure that there is equitable recovery for all. And as has already been mentioned, it is the labor of these incredible women and workers of color who have transformed the industry and who are key in our ongoing economic recovery. Making these protections permanent policy in Long Beach is critical for businesses and workers. Having these protections in place is an economic development tool. Long Beach has invested millions of dollars in its downtown hospitality industry with the promise of a return of good jobs for Long Beach residents. Locking in permanent right to recall and retention ordinance for these two industries help to protect the promise of a return of good jobs in Long Beach. It also protects the wages and benefits that have been fought for decades and preserve the quality of work within these jobs. We urge you to make these permanent policies in our city. Thank you. Next speaker is James Swallow. Good evening, Honorable Mayor Garcia and members of the Long Beach City Council. My name is James Swallow and I am a third district resident. And speaking tonight on behalf of Long Beach Forward. Long Beach Forward strongly supports a need to make the city of Long Beach is right. A recall and retention ordinance is permanent, and we thank you for your support. Despite our collaborative effort to help residents protect their health, this pandemic continues to linger and has disproportionate impacts. And those are on the social and economic margins of our city. As was pointed out, these policies have been critical to protecting the lives and livelihoods of Long Beach workers who are overwhelmingly Latinos, black and Cambodian and Filipino. We're really thankful that our city's leaders support the permanent adoption of these policies to prevent a deeper social and economic crisis where race and class defined, who does well and who does not. As community members, we know that it is our shared responsibility to help keep ourselves and each other safe and healthy. And we must prioritize the people most impacted. We know this is not a new approach. It's called equity. Racial and economic equity is the way forward yesterday, today and tomorrow. So thank you for your support to make the right of recall and retention ordinances permanent. Next speaker is Ann Burdette. Good evening. My name is and Brigitte. I'm an organizer with Long Beach. Clergy and Laity United for Economic Justice, otherwise known as Clue. You know, I really want to thank the Council for initiating the threat to retention policy at the outset of the pandemic. And I want to thank both Mr. Mayor Richardson and council members that they have been, Alan, for bringing this item forward to make it permanent. You know, it's entirely possible. To argue for worker retention from the hotel industry standpoint. I mean, why would you hire inexperienced people when you can rehire dedicated, trained and team oriented staff who've already been integral to making Long Beach hotels economically successful? But that's kind of beside the point, because right now we have Long Beach families who have been through the worst economic crisis this country has faced in generations, and they're ready and extremely able to return to the work that feeds their children, pays their rent and their taxes. We do say it is immoral to deny these folks their livelihood, to say, oh, I know you've suffered enormous deprivation and loss and now go out and spend your time looking for work. This right to recall. And retention policy needs to be a permanent ordinance in Long Beach because as we all know, recovery means everyone. Thank you. Next speaker is Robert Northop. Good evening, Mayor Garcia, Vice Mayor Richardson and members of the council. My name is Rob Lowe, top policy director at the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor. And I'm here tonight to speak in favor of item nine. First, it's our belief that workers in these industries honestly should have had these rights all along. Proud, brave workers, some of whom we've heard from, the majority of whom are women of color, transformed these industries over the last few decades in the middle class, jobs that can sustain a family. And we call them retention, preserves that proud legacy and helps the city maintain good jobs and what are traditionally low wage industries. Second, once the pandemic is finally over, the economic devastation that's left in its wake will take years to sort out. So any form of sunset is misguided. As we currently speak, we're seeing the role of private equity take hold as speculators are purchasing hotels, janitorial firms and other businesses, resulting in a change of ownership. And workers should not be punished with suppressed wages, benefits or termination when this happens. The retention ordinance specifically protects workers in such a scenario. And third, while we're cautiously optimistic that we're close to the end of this pandemic, the reality is a new variant or some other economic calamity will eventually hit, whether that be in the near or distant future. Making these policies permanent helps Long Beach proactively get ahead of such a scenario and have a forward thinking economic strategy for these two industries. And finally, one which led by being the first city to move right of recall and retention for hospitality and janitorial workers. And we have an opportunity to once again prove the Long Beach continues to lead by voting yes tonight. Thank you for your time. Lee. Charlie, your time begins now. Thank you, Mayor and Honorable City Council people. I totally support the right of recall attention, but I as a fellow fellow hospitality worker on Shoreline Village for numerous years, I had a lot of friends during the pandemic that actually were making more money not working than actually working. A lot of people want to go back to work but have fears because we also need to work on bringing more tourism and more people going downtown, shopping downtown, maybe even doing staycations because as you know, as a hotel occupancy, it has to be at a certain level to have a certain amount of staffing. So I would ask our city council to please also work on bringing more tourism on our business, getting more people to dine downtown, so therefore that workers will feel comfortable going back to work and making money. And number four is if you go on any and did or Google right now, my friends, I have like five brands looking for jobs as servers, front desk clerks and they're not hiring because the sales aren't there. So can we please work on bringing more business? And I really appreciate it. Thank you. Next speaker is Veronica. Your time begins now. When? Not just 1/2, please. 1/2 for interpreter. One so we'll know when. Any sensible embassy interpreter. Soil interpreter. Command. Support for the entire US Army. Good evening. My name is Veronica Laguna and I am a member of the C. So you continue. Our good and then I went up 3 minutes ranking 93rd of Premier has ordered an industry that I. Him at the beginning of the pandemic. The city of Long Beach was the first city to make sure that all the workers in the cleaning industry, in the hotel industry, continue to. Be in the rest of the world where the largest river vessel that gets it, I don't believe. They were able to come back to their positions after the closing of the hotels and buildings. Xavier Martin insisted I was 17 and he said, yes, there was a water. We knew that our work were safe and guaranteed and that our security was also kept. And yet so I met M.A. Neto, Gary Payton from Seattle. And Long Beach sent a very clear message the respect our job as essential workers. I want it but the aluminum Brazil I mean they are necessary and using I said it's a labor of money. And now we're asking the city council, the city of Long Beach and also the city mayor to help us make this provision, this law, permanent. But I could put my face in our hands and the government representatives. So we can keep on working without being worried that we're going to lose our jobs. If telecom, which is, as you know, this is something we are watching. And I hear that ma ny of you are already in favor and support this and we are really thankful for that. Which I connected with him. Thank you very much. Have a good evening. Our last speaker is. Anabella. Your time begins now. All our not just you and I, we love it. I mean, so. Yeah. Mr. de Sindicato, SEIU, you know. Available be in general hello. My name is Anabella and I am a housekeeper. I'm also a member of the SEIU. Continue it. He narrowly gave up on them yet in the lap of Balaclava. Yeah, but as I say, most Indian delivery, I'm a bit more micro. So it is obvious that these are clear that this pandemic is not over. We have these new variant Omicron. Continuing ESL and also Miami totally not putting one up. Young Madeline Carter in four came forward to protect our whole system of a beleaguered automobile. And janitors and housekeepers in that position. We're in a more risky situation. It's kind of delicate. And so it is hard for us to continue. As we come up in remote work that is so useful to get it. All from. The palace. An unplanned and at the moment offline aggravates commuter from a janitor from a Colorado failing. And I heard many of the council members tonight are supporting this move, this motion. And so for that, I. Really thank you. Very much for that opportunity. Continue to. Forget me. No one wants us to reconstruct. I would say you want my opinion on my first area in answer, given the man with remarkable. I won't take alphatauri. To or dry or drought. But yeah, my Roseanne. And not only because we are going to be rehired, but the fact that we're going to keep our seniority, that gives us certainty that we're going to have a good job when we come back. And also, it gives us hope. Hope because we going to keep on working and be ready for the future if there is another pandemic in the future. Muchas gracias for the love. For your. Fans. Amanda Nothing went back or. Mocking our coverage. This Italian aid hospitality and hotel features commerciale. So thank you all for taking us into account as essential workers, janitors, housekeepers, workers in hotels and in all these commercial buildings. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment. Thank you. And with that, we will go ahead and do a roll call vote, please. Councilwoman Cindy has. Hi. Councilman Allen. Hi. Councilwoman Price. Hi.

Councilman Sabina. Hi. Councilwoman Mango. Councilwoman Sara. I. Council member Oranga. I. Councilman Austin. Hi. Vice Mayor Richardson. Yes. The motion is Kerry nine zero. Thank you to the council. Next, we're moving on to item ten. I. Motion is carried eight zero. Thank you. Next item is 20. Please report from Public Works recommendation and find that all requirements of the final subdivision map for condominium purposes for the Shoreline Gateway Project have been met. Approve the final map for tract number eight two, two, four, five. District one. Can I get a motion? And Councilwoman did ask. Got a second bit. Councilmember Austin, is there any public comment on this? There are any members of the public that would like to speak on this item. Please use the raise hand featured. Actor nine. CNN. That concludes public comment. Thank you. Let's go to the roll call vote. District one. By. District two. By District three by district four i. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I District eight. Motion carries eight zero. Thank you very much. Next item is item 21. We have three audiences that are reading. So Councilmember Superman, I think has a motion for item 21. Can I get a second, please? Second break comes from Ringo to add any additional comments. Item 17 Report from Public Works Recommendation to authorize City Manager. To execute all documents necessary. To amend. Six contracts to update the Construction Task Catalog. Citywide. So is there motion and the second move often? I'll go ahead and second it. Um, I'm gonna start after we have a brief report on this. Yes, but. We can give one if you'd like one. This is pretty. This is just an extension. Right? It's pretty straightforward. Any public comment on this item? If there are any members of the public that would like to speak, please line up at the podium. Or if you're turning virtually, please use the raise hand feature or dial star nine. Seen none. That concludes public comment. Thank you. Roll call vote with District one. My district to. I. District three i. District four i. District six. I. District eight. High District nine. All right. Thank you. We have a first item up is item 17. Item 17 Communication from Councilwoman Zendaya's Recommendation to direct city attorney to draft resolution to advocate changes to the California retail food code. There's a motion in a second. I think we have come to consider how do you want to do public comment first or do you want to address, please? There's one member of the public. Mankind could. Try again. My name is Cameron Coon and I started a catering service at the worst possible time in January of 2020. In order to survive the pandemic. My partner, Juan Fernandez, and I took our pop up cafe intended for film set, and we became street vendors. During the past year, we've served a cappuccino to Robert Garcia, a peppermint mocha to Rex Richardson. A Ice Americano to Suzy Price's husband and at least two hot chocolates to Mary's. And each of those beverages, harmless as they were, were prepared and served under the threat of criminality by the city of Long Beach. When the Health Department first made it clear to us that there was no way to permit our coffee cart unless it had a built in NSF certified three compartment. Think we were baffled. What about all the other street vendors? The fruit stand one is fortunate to find in a food desert who often provide children with their only healthy option for an after school snack. The iconic SoCal taco stand opened late on a Saturday night to help sober up the hungry bar crawlers, the mostly posse day laborers who spend long hours out in the elements supporti ng their families while providing the rest of us with an authentic cultural experience that nourishes us. And vitalize is our cityscapes. We demanded to know How do all of those other vendors get permits? Long Beach doesn't give street vendor permit. The health department can see that they're all illegal. We sometimes do sweeps where we go around the city to issue citations, make arrests and impound their carts. This exchange took place right after the first winter peak of COVID, while an airborne virus was overflowing our hospitals and killing droves of Americans. Most people still weren't vaccinated then and everyone is praying they want to get deathly ill from the long lines at Starbucks. We were serving coffee and tea safely outdoors, being told that there was no realistic or lawful way to continue doing so. Learning about these policies during the peak of the pandemic is why we have been pushing Long Beach to legalize street vendors. By their very nature, they reduce community transmission of COVID. To treat them as criminals has always been wrong. But to do so during a pandemic and in the name of public health as an injustice that we just cannot accept. Thank you to Councilwoman Mary and De Haas for bringing these crucial commonsense reforms to Long Beach, extending the long overdue dignity and legitimacy to our community's valuable and vulnerable offenders. Thank you to State Senator Lena Gonzalez, who recently introduced SB nine seven to legislation that will create a pathway to permitting for vendors throughout California. And thank you to all the city council members who vote today in support of these efforts. Anyone can get involved at k street vendors. Dot org. Thank you for your time. Appreciate it. Thank you very much. But Councilman and de House. Thank you, Mayor. This is a very, very personal item. I, I really feel that our street vendors and sidewalk vendors are an integral part of our Latino culture, especially here in the United States, in California, per se. A lot of us can attest to remembering growing up and anxiously, anxiously waiting for that horn to go off by the window to see our favorite allotted or our class battle game. I know I have my favorite, whether it's coffee at the beach or whether it's, you know, and a lot of other spots, though, at the park. It's an 8.4. It's a point right now more than any other time that we create a pathway to permits for street vendors and sidewalk vendors. Our street vendors and sidewalk vendors are hardworking people trying to make a living. In many of the Latino communities, you grow up learning to respect and value your street vendors. And I hope that this report, this item, will help us all not only respect them, but also recognize their importance and provide ways to help them sell their products with dignity. I'm hoping that my colleagues can support that, support me and allow this to report to happen. It is very important that we take action now. I know that during this pandemic w e have had a lot of violence against some of our street vendors, and that's because they don't feel protected. You know, they won't report when they are violated against because they don't feel protected. So I think that now is the time to find ways to help them. One of the questions that I was going to ask staff of is, I know that there's also in in the requests, there's also a request for a moratorium on citations. And so I think that's a very good thing. I also want to make sure that we leave a little room for those that are doing the bad actor benders. I know that, you know, the majority of the street vendors are good. They have good product, they have clean products. And that's why, you know, their purpose is to keep getting repeatedly customers back. So. So one of the things is like I would like to see like maybe incorporated in there something that where if someone is a bad actor that we can give them some type of, you know, rules or regulations that they have to follow. Of course, maybe making sure that everything is is actually, you know, gone through everything is explored before we go to giving them a citation. Is that something we could do? Yes. So I think that would be a very good modification. We would like the ability in those instances where we have really public safety, health issues and people who are not complying do still have some enforcement tools. But we certainly understand the sentiment of what the council is trying to achieve here. Thank you. I do think that that's important. And I do think that, you know, we're on the right path. So with that, I encourage my colleagues to support this item. Thank you, Councilman Ciro. You Mayor and thank you council member Sunday has from bringing this item forward. I think that it's timely as we're in this road to recovery for them from the pandemic and our street vendors are part of our economy and they're important part and part of our community and business as well. And I just want to say that I also want to thank Senator Lena Gonzalez for bringing forward this bill, SB nine seven to that council members recommending that we bring forth a resolution to support this. I also want to thank her, as well as Councilmember Yarrawonga and Vice Mayor Richardson, for supporting an item I brought for last time, which was safety and security program for street vendors. And it's also timely at this phase of that will be bringing out more information. But one of it is that the street vendors are eligible applicants for the small business relief grant that's been released as well and other support that nonprofits will be able to give them so that they're able to navigate what other ways they can do to continue to recover as well as protect themselves. And so I'm really I think this is all timely so that we can really, in the end of the day, consider how do we support our street vendors so they're part of our economy and that they're able to do business without fear and that they're able to also ma ke sure that they're taking care of their family in a way that is healthy. So I just I think this is timely and thank you for bringing the resolution that the item to support. Thank you. Thank you, Councilmember Superman. Thank you, Mayor. So the recommendation, what I've heard is unclear. So if the city attorney can draft this resolution, he must know far more than I. So I guess I'll direct this to staff. And I heard in particular from the Zakaria Business Improvement District. Now, to be clear, I no longer represent that area. It's mostly in districts three and two at this time. But we have a long history serving for over six years in that area of complaints. So I'll just tell you what they asked me, and that is, does the recommendation pertain only to sellers of food? Does it pretend to sidewalk sellers of cell phones, Dodger shirts, stuffed animals and other tchotchkes as well as food trucks? The recommendation states to adopt a resolution implementing a moratorium on issuing citations to sidewalk vendors for vending related to activities, including for selling goods without otherwise necessary permits. This seems to allow all sidewalk vendors to continue on public sidewalks without business permits, health permits or bid fees. During the pandemic, existing brick and mortar business owners have jumped through expensive hoops to set up parklets for dining and retailers of goods have been prohibited to have parklets to sell their goods. Yet they continue to get billed for city and business improvement district fees, plus now late fees. So that those are the questions from one business improvement district. And my concern would be on the health aspects here, if we can't cite, then do any health regulations apply? Is our health department involved at all, in particular cross-contamination of utensils, handwashing, etc.? So it's a long question, but do have a response from staff. Councilmember Supernormal start with with the as I understand the requested action and the item as it sits before you at this time is a recommendation for us to draft a resolution which is supporting potential state legislation regarding. Regarding food vending and. Food safety. The as I understood the there was also a request or discussion of a possible moratorium on enforcement that would be brought back to the Council after it's crafted for council consideration and adoption at a later date. We couldn't do that this evening. So that is, as I understand, the motion on the floor. Okay. So if I could just follow up. So so we don't know the parameters of the state legislation at this time. We're not we're not clear on on what that will be. That that I certainly don't have that in front of me, you know? Correct. All right. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you. I wanted to just first lay my support to moving in this general direction. I think when we saw food trucks begin to emerge, it was out of necessity. There were barriers to entry for restaurants and food trucks were more flexible for folks to be able to do business. And, you know, unless necessity is the mother of invention, I think we're seeing a lot of innovative food carts coming up. And I think, you know, it's a pathway into economic progress. And I think it was a Cameron. Cameron, you did that really cool coffee cart at our District nine holiday party. Right? That was incredible. All the things we're able to pack into that cart. It was affordable. People loved it. That was a great experience. And so I think, you know, generally we have to maintain health, obviously, but whatever we can do to change our practices, to remove barriers of entry and let people get into the space where they can start with a cart, maybe to a truck, maybe to a shop. That's the things we want to support. So Council Amazon Day has some I'm certainly proud to support this. I think your new you know that's that's motion a bit to say you know you're not going to exclude any citations for any violations you're saying use that as a last resort. Is that correct? It sounded like that's what you where you were going. And I think that makes a lot of sense. Say, hey, be flexible, but if you know someone's doing something that's not healthy or not safe, we still have the ability to enforce our laws. But I think generally the sentiment of where you're going is we need to figure out a more flexible way to allow street vending to exist in a way that's still thoughtful to other businesses and thoughtful to the pedestrian experience and all of those things. But I'll tell you, I mean, I was impressed, Cameron, what you were able to do and you know, I would love to see, you know, this just breed a whole lot of innovation, innovative coffee carts and fruit carts that are you know, we can you know, Long Beach has the coolest carts. I don't know, like it could be a cool environment that we have something that adds to our pedestrian experience. So I just want to offer my thoughts and offer my support for this item. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Orson. I thank you. And I appreciate the item in the discussion. I love my little team and any time I have the opportunity to to see them. But I also will just say that I share some of the the the confusion, but also many of the sentiments. I think we should be encouraging entrepreneurship. We want to create a pathway to business and we want to make sure that we're being balanced and fair across the board. I know for a fact that when food trucks were introduced into a couple of my business districts and the areas that I represent, it created a little bit of a friction with some of the restaurants. Right. They said we're paying business licensing. We are we're paying high rents. And, you know, I'm selling. Pizza and somebody is selling the same product in a truck outside of my business. You know, I think in crafting this and moving forward, we need to look at parameters that that recognize the ability for hopefully everybody to thrive and not to creat e those those type of conflicts. And so I'm really concerned about about that. If we don't manage this in a manner or craft this in a manner moving forward, that that kind of recognizes that. Also, I wanted to just point out in the staff report, Councilmembers and Day has brought forward, it said that certain outdated provisions in state law are impeding the city from achieving the goal of fully integrating sidewalk food vendors into the economy. Do we know what those provisions are? Can we speak to those and any specific stuff? Councilmember. But I'll defer to the council members in the House to talk about the item. But then I can answer some questions on where we are with street vendors versus food trucks and state law and how the municipal code currently is. I was curious about the provisions that are outdated that are creating those barriers. And then what I. Think that's referring to is a number of things have happened in the state of California related to street vendors. A couple of years ago, a new state law passed that basically said that cities cannot prohibit unreasonably street vendors on their sidewalks. It was really designed with the food in mind, but it's also been unclear, and that's why we get some of those cell phone services and the ones that are, you know, that are out on our streets right now. The city's municipal code does prohibit those things, but we are superseded by state law. So we have essentially suspended those provisions. We don't enforce on those PD is not gone and enforce those in a very long time. But we still have a requirement as a health jurisdiction to enforce state health law so we don't create those regulations. Those are at the state level. And Kelly Up is on the line. If you'd like to ask some questions. And so we have essentially pulled back from the PD enforcement of that. But we do still need to go out and make sure people are safe. So I think that some of the the disparity and then we also have our street, our food trucks, which fall under a different section in Long Beach. And those are actually permitted through L.A. County. And we're currently going through two different efforts right now. First, to reform food vendors or I'm sorry, the food trucks and that process is underway and we have a consultant helping us. And then we funded an effort that the council just gave us money for to really look comprehensively at street vendors and modernizing our municipal code and trying to make it more streamlined, which this item speaks to. And so that speaks to my next question. And thank you. What does the current permit processing process look like for street vendors? I mean, and why is there a barrier? So I ask Kelly Colby to talk about the health aspects of that. And I do not believe they are permitted from a from a business licensing perspective. We don't require business licensing. That's part of what the state does not want us to do. And until we get a new set of municipal code to really talk about th e time, place and manner, we we don't have that on the on the books, but we do from a food perspective. So Kelly. Yes. Good evening, uh, councilmember. So, um, you know, as the city manager has discussed, there's a set of state requirements, their health and safety code that we have to hold all food providers to, and so an applicant can apply for a health permit. It's all laid out. Um, we've worked on documentation. We spent a lot of time working with our food cart vendors as well to help them through that process. Um, if they're interested, as we've been working on an education first process first and then they apply for those food permits and then we work with them to bring their cart to code based on what the state requires us to hold them accountable for. And so in that process we go through that and then they actually so food carts can be permitted. There are many permitted food carts there. There are the stickers are placed on the cart itself. Um, and then we work with them from that process. So there is a process in place and all that information is on online. So I guess I'll wait for the item to come back to determine and understand what the streamline would look like. But I guess the next question is, is there a time frame in terms of what a typical permitting process looks like for a food cart? I'm I'm not sure I can answer the time of of like for the individual. But this is a really complicated issue for us. It has been something the council has brought up a couple of times, and it's in our work plan, but it's been pushed back a little bit. COVID really hit us hard, and as we try to figure this out, this is one that crosses like probably four or five different departments. A lot of these are on the public right away that are in front of a business. Some people feel like they should be regulated like a business, but they're not bricks and mortar. There's development services involved. PD gets all the calls because people call in for PD, but it's not really a public safety response. And then there's health. So we have ask you for funding. I believe it was 50 grand or something in the last amount and the last left over the last year and funding to really bring on a consultant that will help us put all that together. And we're adding on to their scope of work because they're doing food vendors right now are food trucks right now. So food trucks is coming to the council probably in the next month or two months we'll get a handle on food trucks and what qualifies as a food truck and where they'll go. And then we plan to tackle this issue and answer a lot of these questions. Councilman Price. You and Councilman Austin kind of touched upon it. But this is an issue in the bid specifically, and that's what Councilman Superman pointed out from one of our bid directors. What is the existing law in terms of our ability to. Allow or not allow street vendors. So generally, I believe we are not allowed to we're not allowed to restrict them unless we have

have a municipal code in place. And even then, you can basically say this is like your area. You cannot be larger than a certain amount, but you're not able to just outright prohibit them, if that's correct. Mr. City Attorney That's correct. Councilmember I don't have the the the actual state law in front of me. I can certainly get that and forward it up to your office. But I believe that's correct what the city manager said. But is it limited? Is it limited to food or can they sell cell phones and other things on the sidewalk? So we believe the original intent of that legislation was more on the food vendors as what people talked about. But the legislation, it appears to be pretty broad that services are included as well as other things. So that would be some state legislation we would be very supportive of as staff is to help clearly define what they mean by those types of street vendors. Because we when we talk about street vendors, we talk about food and the person selling, you know, the tacos to make a living. But we often see some really aggressive corporations that are basically using our city streets to sell cell phones and insurance and those types of things. And then so if so, obviously, because at state law, we we need to follow it. But if we enacted our own municipal code, could it be more restrictive than the state law and disallow for certain types of sales? I think we need to look into that. My my initial impression is, no, you're allowed to, within the state law, basically define how it's done and where it's done, but not actual being more restrictive. But that is those are the types of questions that we're really hoping to get some professional assistance with and pull that report together. Okay, that's great. And I look forward to that coming back to us so that we know kind of what our options are and that we are doing our best to advocate for the bids who have obviously some concerns regarding bid fees and assessment fees that they have to pay that others might not have to, which as a as a business owner in a bid who has to pay the assessment fee, I understand in terms of the food vendors, I understand that this item tonight asks for a moratorium. But what happens if there is a major health concern, like an unsanitary one particular unsanitary food vendor, for example? Yeah. So first, you're not changing anything tonight. That request is to come back with a resolution and allow us some time to craft that. I think Councilmember Zendejas addressed that with some change in her motion from what's printed, which is to allow for in those health situations for us to still have enforcement action, that it's not a blanket moratorium. And you, Kelly, can probably answer questions about specific incidents, but we always try education first. And so this would just be memorializing that, that education, education, education. But if there are clear health and safety issues where we're required by the state code to protect public health. O

kay. Thank you. And and I missed that change in Councilman Van de House motion, so I appreciate that clarification. Well, I do have a question. If we were made aware of a particular food vendor that might have unsanitary conditions, let's just say hypothetically, and we didn't do anything about it and someone were to get food poisoning or sick as a result. Would we be liable? The city. That. I mean, it depends on the notice and what we knew and when we knew. And yes, but we would certainly need to take action on that. And I think that the Councilmembers Amendment addresses that. Right. I mean, the city needs to adopt and follow the health regulations. That's great. I appreciate that amendment. I think it's great and prudent. So thank you. Councilman and de house. In. Thank you, Mayor. I just wanted to make that clarification that. And this item is requesting for us to do a report on just food. So just wanted to make sure that we did that. And I also wanted to to thank Cameron for for being here today and, yes, for having a spectacular coffee cart. If you haven't seen it, you have to see it. It's just so amazing. We were able to enjoy it at the pike when one evening after caroling through our neighborhoods. And that was really, really awesome. And I want, you know, other street vendors to be able to do that. One of the things that we wanted to do in that we had we had ice cream vendors at our DIA de los Muertos stuff. So we were trying to include them in all of our events. And I think that's very important to be able to have a pathway to permits so that we can actually be able to bring on these small businesses and be able to support them in this way, especially now in our recovery time. I think it's more important than ever to be able to examine and really, really look at any and every opportunity that we can have to help people advance themselves. Of course, doing it in a very healthy and and good way. So thank you. Thank you. And I hope everyone will support this item tonight. Vice Mayor Richardson. Just just a quick question. Some thoughts as you do this study. So I know that there's a vendor in my neighborhood who always works the same corner. I also know that there are vendors that move citywide. So as we think about it, maybe there could be some either some franchise system or, you know, some who have a broader license to move citywide, to have a higher standard or whatever. Or if you work a certain area, you have to have some relationship to that local business district or whatever. But, you know, as this conversations happened, I'm thinking about maybe there may be different tiers of permitting for like, let's say someone has more than one car. How do you handle that? Just just some things that I'm thinking about as we have this conversation, but thanks a lot of things is very helpful. Councilmember Hooper now. Thank you. I would just like to return to the comments of the of Kelly Collopy. It's just not clicking with me.

It's been a lot of years since I've been food safety certified and from the corporate side, not a restaurant operator. But what strikes me is that you can assess a cart, let's say, and give it a grade and improve it. But that's not how health inspections work. They go to the operation. For instance, you can get dinged for improper hand-washing procedures within the restaurant if they don't witness that. Now we're talking about a facility, a cart without a handwashing sink. So I'll tell you, I'm mystified. And for that reason, I have a hard time supporting something. I just don't know where this is going. Part an expression. I think we've got the cart ahead of the horse and we need to straighten this out with health before I could support it. Thank you. Thank you. There's a motion and a second. I believe we did public comment already on this item. So, members, please go out and cast your votes. The machine's next item is item 18, please. Let's go ahead to item 30, please. Item 30, communication from Councilwoman Price. Councilwoman. Recommendation to request city manager to work with Director of Parks, Recreation and Marine, as well as the Long Beach Pickleball Advisory Group to develop a plan for the future of Pickleball in Long Beach. Councilwoman Price. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. So I want to thank an advanced city staff for bringing this item forward. And I want to thank the members of the audience who are here tonight to talk on this item. I will say that I believe our Parks Rec and Marine director is already way ahead on this item. This item tonight is really more of a status report of what he's already been doing and an opportunity for us to all understand what he's doing as he and how he's going to be directing his efforts in the future. I'm going to turn it over to our PRM director, Brant Dennis in a moment to talk a little bit about what he's already been doing on this item and the progress that he's made. But I want to thank the Pickleball Advisory Group and members of whom are here tonight for working collaboratively with Brant Dennis on this plan and the updates that we're going to receive tonight. They've been a fantastic partner to the city and put in a lot of work over the past six months to enhance access to the sport of Pickleball in the city of Long Beach. I want to go ahead and turn it over to our PRM director to perhaps give us a little bit of an update of what you're working on. And then if it's okay, I'd like to turn it over to public comment. Sure. Thank you. Councilwoman Pryce. So the history for at least what we call our Long Beach Pickleball advisory group is about six months old. It was brought to my attention, and I should give a personal disclosure. I do love Pickleball. I experience that in Florida with my retired mother. And it's a great sport for active adults. And actually, I've enjoyed seeing a lot of our pickleball enthusiasts introduce it to young people when they happen. Chance walk by and hear that melodic so und of the ball against the paddle. So, but yeah, about six months ago I was able to be introduced to what I would call kind of the core leadership across the community. There were a little nucleus groups of pickleball enthusiasts that were playing primarily Bayshore and Marina Vista Park and College Estates Park, but also during the COVID era. It was not unusual to see a lot of folks that love Pickleball out with chalk or tape, kind of making their own pickleball court lines on open, hardscape spaces. And they had their own portable pickleball nets in the trunks of their SUVs or cars. So that that told me a lot. And one of my partners, a parks board members, invited me to go over to SEAL Beach. And that was quite revealing when I was introduced by one of the council persons to their approach to introducing and meeting the need of pickleball at SEAL Beach. Over half of the people that were participating there were actually Long Beach residents. So I thought that spoke volumes about the unmet need here in our city. For Pickleball, we have 67 tennis courts and one pickleball court. So we really embraced the willingness as volunteers for for these representatives to help form the Long Beach Pickleball Advisory Group . And they really rolled up their sleeves. Over the past half year. We've done a lot of research. They've gone out to a lot of our parks and evaluated opportunities, what we call low hanging fruit, to look at ways that we could maybe with dual striping of underutilized sports courts or actually transferring some other park areas. We have some multi-use sports courts that, again, because they're not heavily used are opportunities. But we also looked at some permanent dedicated pickleball areas and I think that's actually the best final solution or landing point. I know we've had some identified tension in some of our parks where we would encourage shared use. We've tried to post some suggested hours, days of the week where they could share that. But it's just a difficult thing when we don't have someone out in person managing our park sites. But this is a great request. I think certainly within the next two months, our group can kind of polish off what we think would be a citywide master plan for pickleball. But again, that will identify and again thanking the Long Beach Pickleball Advisory Group a lot of what we identify as short term wins. Probably the biggest breakthrough recently was having conversations with Long Beach Unified School District to see if some of their court spaces might be opened up, at least on weekends for access for some of the use for Pickleball. So again, we'll pull this all together, but with appreciation publicly, I just want to acknowledge all of the volunteers who have served and been really great resources and subject matter experts and. It's understatement to say they're passionate because they really love their sport. So that would be my update. Thanks. Thank you. Mr. Dennison, my understa nding is that throughout this process, you've been briefing council members in the Park Rec and Marine Commission. Well, the Parks and Recreation Commission's monthly meetings, I've kept them apprized of all of our planning initiatives. Great. So I know we're going to turn it over to the audience in a minute. But as part of this report back, I'd love to know specifically what the feasibility is of turning some of our unused hockey courts into a pickleball courts, dedicated pickleball courts. And then I'm not sure if any council members have specific requests in terms of courts in their own districts. But I'd love for you to engage in some outreach before you come back with the plan, with some of the tennis groups to see about where we have two courts, like a tennis court and a pickleball dual use court about transitioning one of those dual use courses like Marina Vista to one pickleball court and one tennis court. But I don't want to do that without outreach to the tennis community. So if that could be included in the report back, that would be great. Certainly. Thank you. Thank you. All right. Well, go to public comment. Madam Clerk. There are 12 public comment speakers. Gary Ballard, Jacqueline Jones, David Anderson, Samuel Tanguy, Lee Swain, can you please line up? We don't necessarily have to be in order if you're up. You can just come forward. Okay. The first person to hear. Fantastic. Yes, sir. Hello. My name's Gary Ballard. I'm a USA AP Pickleball ambassador, and I'm also on the Long Beach Pickleball Advisory Board. I live down the street from College State Park, where I first learned what pickleball was and how to play. There's been a group playing there for 15 years. There's open play on Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Sunday from 9 to 12. During this time, anyone could show up and play in a game. Many other days and times, private groups can play on open play days. Many times we had 35 people show up to play at six courts. I've collected 122 names of players using the courts for pickleball, many of them three or four times a week. Up until two years ago, players had to bring their own nets in their own cars. Now we're fortunate enough to have a city approved storage box on site where we can store nets, balls, barriers and a leaf blower. We use the leaf blower to blow out the courts every other day. I have about three or four new people every week asking me how they can learn the new game. In the summertime, courts are going to get busier. We need more courts throughout the city to accommodate the amount of people that want to play. We are the only park in the city as restrained both tennis and basketball courts for multi-use with pickleball. We are the only park that has signage stating pickleball days and times. Pickleball is a new, unique game where you can have fun at any skill level. You can show up by yourself and get into a game. It's very social and active. Mr. Ballard, your time has expired. Thank you. Thank you. Let's kick off, plea

is here. Surely I won't tell you how old she is, but I want to thank you for giving us this time. And right off the bat, I just wanna say I was really touched by the Martin Luther King Group. And we have offered as a pickleball community to go out anywhere in the park and share our sport with people, to support young people and to start up groups with retired people, whatever. So remember us when you start building programs at Martin Luther King, we're out there to volunteer. So my name is Jaclyn Jones and I live in District four and I was introduced to Pickleball in a free weekend clinic at a park a few years ago. And since then I've been playing four days a week because I just can't give it up. Today, I want to share about some of the things that happened at Marina Vista. Since of my time has been cut. I got to go really quick. I want to say there's four things that we need over there. We need pickleball lines and a gate added to the East Court installation of equipment box. It's urgent because I haul six nets around in my car and I physically can't do that much longer and permission to hang our paddleboards up and to have our signage changed, to amend, to have pickleball there. So we support what Dennis has been doing to help us. And this is an activity that creates an environment that is healthy to anyone's community. We're a diverse group of people can come together and spend hours socially on the court and off the court. So Alan has some things she wants to give you. I don't know. She has to give to the city council, which seems to have to pass out to everybody. So thank you for sure. You can just pass it on to the clerk. Absolutely. Thank you. All right. Thank you. Let me jump back then. Okay. So I am a U.S. ambassador for Pickleball and I've been playing it bring to Vista exactly one year ago to this month, my husband and I invited a group of people walking by to join us to play pickleball. And last month, this group had over 500 participants. Yeah, 500 participants. And they're sending money with each Friday from 9 to 12. And during that time, I've been tallying up how many people are coming to play. We've had about 80 tennis players there and we get along great with them. Even though it is a first come, first serve situation. We have a lot of pickleball players that also play tennis and we switch back and forth with all of them, but we would like to have that file amended where it does say that Pickleball is allowed there because of this kind of growth. We started as Beginners, a group just this past week. We already have 12 people in that group of four volunteers that help support that. On two more additional days. On therefore days, we have two more days where people are coming to support those groups. So you can see how it blooms and it grows and it blossoms with interest continued to grow after that pandemic, it's clear that the permanent courts are needed at Marina Visa and to accommodate an increasing number of people. Somedays there's 50 players sitting around all on the inside edges of the court. Waiting for. Their turn to rotate in minutes. It's, I'm hoping, six sets of. Well, we. Certainly. Security box so I can leave equipment here. And I always feel fantastic. Thank you so much. Paddles up. All right, paddles up. All right, just. Just a moment. I just want to clarify. Thank you. I just want to clarify with the crooks. So we reduced the number so we can go to 3 minutes for everyone. Fantastic. Yes, sir. You're a next. David Anderson, an ambassador with the USA Pickleball Association and also a member of the Pickleball Advisory Group. Thank you very. Thank you very much, council members, for allowing the Pickleball community to speak directly to you. That's important to us. I've been trying I've been playing pickleball for a little over three years. It's one of the most exciting sports that I've ever played. It's very easy to learn and very addicting. I totally support the local efforts in various neighborhoods to beautify secure equipment, obtain proper signage, and add more courts. These are areas where Pickleball has taken root and flourished the Steve Lee area, Bayshore, etc.. But I would also like to see and promote pickleball in other areas of Long Beach that have not heard of pickleball or not or is not as affluent as these areas. Long Beach is a very diverse city, and I do hope that this great sport can make its mark on other areas with permanent courts for all. As an avid pickleball player, including tournaments and recreational play, in order to play on premium courts, I've been I've had to drive as far north as Pasadena and as far south as Tustin, Newport Beach and Irvine. When I speak of premium courts, I'm talking about permanent courts, which are the gold standard in pickleball. If if the community has nice pickleball courts to play on, the players will come. The players will definitely come. I spoke to Steve Sutton, who is a regional director with the USA Pickleball Association before I came here. And he said, the bottom line is that if you build the courts, the players and the tournaments will come. Right now, Florida is the capital, the Mecca, if you will, of pickleball. They have they hold host tournaments, that number. We have registered players as high as 2000 or more. And they are some of their venues have 64 courts and they are building more courts as we speak. I would like to see Long Be ach to be the mecca of pickleball for the West Coast. That's what I would like to see. That's that's that's my vision. And this is a huge moneymaker for Long Beach. I can't say that it's going to compare to the Grand Prix, but it'll be up there, you know, in time if we get behind this vision. In closing, one of the most memorable times excuse me that I've had in Pickleball was introducing Pickleball to the 49 year camp at Cal State Long Beach, working with the young people there. That was a very, very exciting because they are the future of the sport. I'd love to see. Long Beach to be a capital of a factory, if you will, for breeding good pickleball players. Thank you. Thank you. All right, next speaker, please. Good evening, counsel. My name is Samuel Tongo, and I'm a banker by profession and also a business owner with my latest venture being a pickleball based clothing, athletic, athletic clothing brand. My wife, Kelly and I moved to Long Beach from L.A. in 2020, mostly to be closer to the ocean. We just we discovered plenty of recreational activities in the area and got into paddleboarding, surfing, golf and even boating, hoping to make new friends who share our passions, which we did. But it wasn't until we discovered pickleball at the magic began to happen. Seldom do we leave the courts without exchanging phone numbers with other players and arranging to play again. Almost all our new friends in the past two years were met on the pickleball courts. And almost all our existing friends have since caught the pickleball fever. Unfortunately, most of them are white and weren't able to come up with this, but they sent me as a representative. Long Beach has an abundance of natural landmarks, but it's usually the people that make a place. A Long Beach is no different. For Kelly and I, it was pickleball that wove our social fabric around us ever more, more strongly to the Long Beach community. The past two years of the global pandemic have exacted a steep social cost. As the world emerges from the pandemic, we have much to make up for heightening the need to invest more in activities that will connect us, connect people and help us make up for the lost social years. They see that every system is perfectly designed to achieve its current result, and it's no accident that Pickleball is having its moment and growing as fast as it is. It's just a sport for a time, for such a time as this. They used to say, build it and they will come. But now conventional wisdom says if they come, build it. And so I implore this council to seize this moment and make the investment necessary to ensure that the residents of Long Beach have the outlet that they need for their pent up social, emotional and physical energy. And a new public square in which to build relationships that will drive our community forward. Thank you. Thank you. Let's figure, please. Good evening, city council members, and really thank you for your service. And Brant, thank you for all the wo rk that you've put into this. My name is Lee Swain. My wife Elaine and I love Pickleball as just about everybody else and still in the audience does. Since the beginning of the pandemic, we noticed that people are seeking new outdoor activities that are easy to learn and fun for family and friends. Pickleball has satisfied this need by enriching social and wellbeing opportunities in many communities throughout Southern California. I've seen firsthand how much the sport of Pickleball has benefited people of all ages and backgrounds, both physically, socially, including my own family members. My request is that the entire Council support the development of both short term and long term, and a long term plan to develop first class permanent pickleball courts in Long Beach, basically to satisfy the current and future demand of this incredibly inclusive and fun sport. And if you haven't tried Pickleball, I truly recommend that you and your family try it. It's really amazing. Due to its popularity and rapid growth. With nearly 5 million Americans now playing throughout the country, many jurisdictions around the county or the country have already completely converted tennis courts into pickleball courts. I am respectfully requesting that you consider the addition of pickleball lines to many of the tennis courts throughout the city to provide maximum benefits to the community and consider permanent pickleball courts at places like Marina Vista, Somerset and College Estates Park that are already very well used for Pickleball. I've played at all those courts and they're really deserving of some permanent facilities. Thank you all very much for your support. I really appreciate it. Thank you, Brant, as well. Thank you. Next treatment, please. Hello. I just wanted to put things into perspective a little bit locally following the statistic that we were given that there's one pickleball court in Long Beach and 60 or so tennis courts. There are 26 pickleball courts in SEAL Beach. And SEAL Beach has a population of 1/20 of Long Beach. They have 26,000 people. And Long Beach has 470,000 people. So I'd really urge the Council to earmark some funds. One last thing. Pickleball is growing at 39% per year in the United States. Thank you. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Good evening, Vice Mayor and City Council members. My name's Ed Tang. I'm a resident mystic three. I've been playing pickleball for almost three years now. I'm part of the Long Beach Pickleball Advisory Group. I really speak on behalf of the Long Beach residents that do not play in Long Beach because we don't have dedicated permanent courts majority . The majority of us are high level players, over 50 of us. And we play anywhere from SEAL Beach, Tustin or Irvine, Newport and Huntington Beach. If there were permanent dedicated courts in Long Beach, I am sure that majority of us will come to Long Beach and play in Long Beach. We would love to see Long Beach to be the hub of Pickleball. We have the potent ial to do that. But a simple analogy if you're a high level basketball player, you're not going to play on a basketball court with a temporary basketball net and backboard that you buy at Walmart. You want something sturdy built specifically for basketball, and that's the same way when it goes for Pickleball. So today I'm going to make this brief. I look forward to the day where I and other Long Beach residents are not playing in Long Beach. Come back to Long Beach and play pickleball. Thank you very much. Thank you. Next speaker, please. Well, just a moment, Madam Clerk. What are you keeping track? Okay, we have three more. Okay. We have three more speakers Mark Leonard, Stephen Kelton and a malian brown. Is that correct? Yes. Okay. For more. Fantastic. Thank you. You have a source? Okay. Good evening, council members. My name is Joseph Anselmo, resident of Signal Hill and Long Beach for 22 years. I wholeheartedly support this plan for dedicated pickle ball court development. Honestly, the sport efficiently utilizes a very small footprint to include and engage a large number of players at all levels of age and skill. Accommodating four pickleball courts to one tennis court, the sport really provides and promotes exercise, competitive camaraderie, and just a lot of fun for a lot of people. Thank you. Thank you. Let's keep the police. Hi. My name is Steven Kelton. I've lived in Long Beach since 1987. I'm all in favor of the permanent court site. Would be great. I want to speak more directly to Somerset Park. If you see the Signal Tribune, we had a reporter there Saturday. She did a great article in the Signal Tribune. We do encounter some issues with tennis players. We get there early. We all bring our own nets. We check out our courts, and then the tennis players say, Well, you get one hour. I said, Well, there's 30 people here. If we you know, if we want to play your game, we put 30 rackets up here and be here a week. We don't want to do that. We want to get along with them. We think immediate would be nice if we had multi-use to those courts, tennis courts. We also use the volleyball court, whichever available, and we just chalk it on when it rains, we reach it. Sometimes we have four courts, 25, 30 people playing there on Saturday morning at 9:00 Thursday morning, maybe 15 or 20. And we do run into actually three people, but I see their point. It's a tennis court. It says tennis. Doesn't say anything about pickleball. And I just would like to avoid the argument if we could put signs up identified as a multi-use court. And then if they're there, we wait our turn like everybody else. But it would be great for Somerset Park. I invite you all to come out. Beginners, new people, brand new. We have rackets you can use. Come on out and enjoy it. I think you'll like it. So that's my piece. View. Mr. Benefield? Robert Benefield, correct. Yes. He is the last speaker. So Robert being installed, I represent over 80 people who play regularly at Baysho re Playground. Last November, Parks and Recreation Marine resurfaced and re striped the baseball courts and allowed us to post signage and install a storage locker which greatly improved our utilization of the facilities. I want to thank you for that, Pickleball, as you've heard. Pickleball is the fastest growing sport in the United States. It creates community outdoors and the fresh air and sunshine, which we have a lot of here in Long Beach. It also is an economic engine, as you've heard, people make friends. They go out to dinner, to the theater and to concerts here. I've also I'm also on the Pickleball Advisory Committee, and we've worked with Brant on a master plan. I really want to urge the city to act quickly on the low hanging fruit. Simple things keep bathrooms open on the weekends. Add permanent courts at Marina Vista in Somerset, as you've heard, because we know there is demand there. Dual stripe basketball, tennis and sports courts for pickleball throughout the city. And when there is demand, then we can convert those to permanent courts and importantly, install signage wherever there's dual courts. Longer term, more expensive items should also be considered by the city. The Bayshore Roller Rink, as Councilwoman Price has mentioned, would be a great pickleball facility. Pickleball courts at Billie Jean King and Eldorado tennis centers would be great. And as I mentioned, Prim should monitor the dual striped courts. So where there's demand, we can then follow that up with permanent courts. Permanent courts are really about equity and fairness. So some of us can afford to bring our nets, but not the vast majority of members of the citizens. And as Jacqueline Jones mentioned, we have volunteers ready to provide clinics throughout the city to help learn the sport. So on behalf of the residents of Long of Long Beach and our Pickleball Clubs, I want to thank you. And if I could just take a moment, maybe everybody here who's supporting item 30, if you could stand. Great. Thanks a lot. Thank you. All right. Because that's how to satisfy public comments. Public comment. Councilman Pryce, back to you. Thank you, Mr. Vice Mayor. I'm going to turn it over to Councilman Mungo as the second part of the motion. I just want to thank everybody for coming out. Really appreciate it. So I've had the great pleasure to meet some of you via phone, via in person. And then more recently. Many of you know, my husband has become addicted, despicable. He was at College Estates Park on Monday morning. He's on paternity leave one week out of the month. And the first thing he does on Monday morning is he goes in place pickleball. So he is the I think you many of you have seen me sitting on the side of the court. My brother and him are out there playing. But I will say that when we were first introduced to pickleball from my sister in law and I love my sister in law greatly, she had a shirt on that said, I'm sorry, I can't. I'm playing pickleball. And I thought, w hat kind of crazy obsession could she have gotten into so young? And where are we with this pickleball thing? And they tried to argue that pickleball is the new tennis. And I said, my brother tried to argue that roller hockey was the new whatever when my brother was involved in roller hockey. But that fell out. And here we are. But Pickleball is on fire and going nowhere. I hope that Pickleball is considered for the Olympics. I feel that it is a amazing opportunity to really display a sport that goes from very, very young to very, very old. In my own neighborhood at the there's a school in my neighborhood surrounded by houses. And on Saturday, Saturday mornings, there are a bunch of Long Beach lifeguards, actually, who bring their nets onto the parking lot and start pickleball tournaments on parking lots now. And so I can see the growth and support, but those parking lots only work if you live close enough that you can get home and get a bathroom. And so some of the things that I've kind of talked about is that, yes, I believe in supporting the growth of pickleball. And I think we need to add at least 20 permanent courts across the city. But I'm typically not a big supporter of taking from one to give to another. And so what I would love to see is adding three tennis size courts to Eldorado, but chucking them out for 12 court, 12 pickleball courts, because pickleball courts are so much smaller. I'd love to see a reservation system and a trust fund where similar to tennis you pay. I don't know what it is $2.25 for an hour of a court time, which split over four people is almost nothing but that that money stays in pickleball because right now that money at the Eldorado Tennis Center pays someone to go clean off the courts every week, every day, every morning at 6 a.m.. There's a guy with the blower blowing off the leaves of the tennis courts. And while it's great that you do that today, that's not sustainable in the long run. There needs to be a system in place that is protected, that ensures that you have the long term resources to maintain the bathrooms and have the blowers and to replace the nets and to add shade structures that that tennis has always had. And tennis has two trust funds in the city. And I'd like to also see in this report back the discussion of a trust fund for Pickleball. I'd also like to see now that I've been to the Pickleball courts, I have seen how the reservation system goes and the competitive nature of getting on a court and what that looks like and how that all plays out. I have advocated in the city for many, many years about transparency of reservations, and we currently have a system where you can see when someone reserves a birthday party in the park. That's great. We need to have that same transparency of reservations for courts across our city, and it needs to be a system that's easy to use similar to, well, hopefully easier than our golf system, reservation system. But that gives a benefit to a resident card. Res ident card holders in the city of Long Beach have a benefit to Long Beach golf courses. As a resident of the City of Long Beach, you should have a benefit of first priority to reserve pickleball courts in the same way that if you're a member of the military, my husband gets first reservation for a golf time at the Navy course, and we need to look at what that looks like long term so that Long Beach residents have that benefit to get these courts. So I'd like to see. 20 new courts permanent in 12 months. And then I'd like to come up with not all of them, but some of them having a reservation system that allows for I don't know if it's a dollar an hour or a quarter, whatever it is, to make sure that there's some money set aside that every year we're investing back in the growth of pickleball, because I see Pickleball taking the country by storm and by 2028, I don't know where we'll be, but I imagine that it could be one of those exhibition sports at the Olympics, and I'd be very supportive. All right. Thank you. So how does that my my support here what an enthusiastic bunch this is. And I'll tell you, look, I think from the last two presentations, it's very clear that residents are hungry for recreation across the city. And so I well, I certainly welcome this. And you never know what that spark is going to be. You know, I remember we did a community garden and all these volunteers who cared about community gardens came out and it became we started building community gardens everywhere because there was such enthusiasm and you never know what the spark is going to be. I like what Councilmember Mongeau said about, you know, ultimately become an Olympic sport. You know, Billie Jean King learned to play tennis at Home Park in North Lawn Beach. You never know where the talent is going to be. So someone's playing pickleball out in park. Who knows what the future could be. So, Councilmember Price, thank you so much. I think it's a great idea. And let's go ahead and go to our vote. Cantons and Das. Motion is carried. All right, we. Announce the vote. Okay. All right. Item 29, please. Communication from Councilman Super Na recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund group in the city manager department by $250 to provide a contribution to partners of Parks for the Rancho Cars and Coffee event. Communication from Councilwoman Allen. Recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund Group in the City Manager Department by $1,000 to provide a donation to Carlo Creative LLC for Absolute Best of Long Beach Awards 2022 Communication from Councilwoman Allen Recommendation to Increase Appropriations in the General Fund Group in the City Manager Department by $5,000 to provide a donation to the LGBTQ Center for Long Beach. And communication from Councilwoman Price in Councilman Austin. I'm sorry, that was it. Just those three items for the fund transfers. All right. Thank you. Any public comment here? No public comment. Okay. Saying non ethless, cast our vote. Motion is carried. Thank you. We have a presentation. Let's go ahead and queue up our presentation on U.S. Navy Embark program. Councilwoman Allen. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. Yes. The motion is carried. Nine zero. Thank you. So now we'll go back up to 21. Yeah. You know. I don't like that. Item 21 is report from Financial Management and Public Works. Recommendation to adopt resolution authorizing City Manager to execute a contract with Los Angeles Truck Center, LLC for the purchase of eight rotor packs. C loader of refuse trucks in a total amount not to exceed 3.2 million. City. Thank you. There's a motion any second. These are public comment on this. If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 21 in person, please line up at the podium in the zoom. Please use the raise hand feature or Dr. Knight. We do have one person in Zoom, Pete Marsh. Your time begins now. You have 3 minutes. Check if your muted press star nine. And can you hear me now? Yes. Okay. Very sorry. Good evening, Mr. Mayor. Council members. Thank you very much. Pete Marsh, District two. I submitted you comment on this also, and I wanted to actually walk that back very slightly. The comment encouraged you to consider deferring this purchase until electric versions of these trucks are available. And but I remembered hearing a brief last summer to the Sustainable City Commission by our Fleet Services Department and being impressed. And I went back and found that and learned relearned that they're rated as one of the top fleets in the nation and even in heavy duty trucking with plans currently in development to go zero emissions on metal and heavy duty trucks. I think in advance of the requirements from CARB but and councilmember Al staff also confirmed that they had talked with public works about this. So basically this is it's a fantastic opportunity to think about where we need to go with our purchases as soon as the market allows, which is evolving very, very rapidly in the right direction. And that's electric electric vehicles in all size scales, but also electrified machines in every other way we can. Essentially, the way to cut demand for fossil fuels is to electrify things at every opportunity and use our purchasing power to do that on our purchasing program. So anyway, I just wanted to basically acknowledge that the fleet services folks have been already for several years. Looking ahead, I was hoping that we could get this purchase to be electric. It doesn't seem like that's feasible, but please just counsel. Keep encouraging the staff to lean forward into electrifying everything and thank you for what you've done so far. Thank you very much. That concludes public comment. We'll call that, please. Michigan Eye to. Eye. District three. District four, District five. District five. District six. I think that District six. I. District seven, i. District eight. Right. District nine. I. The motion is carried

. Nine zero. Thank you. Back down to item 25, please. Item 25 is a report from Long Beach Airport. Recommendation to authorize city manager to execute all documents with Federal Aviation Administration to accept grant award for capital improvements to the REHABILITATE Runway 1230 lighting project for an amount not to exceed 8.7 million. Districts four and five. Think. Mango. Act. I'm sorry. I actually wanted to hear a short presentation on this place from the airport. We'll have our airport director, Cynthia Guidry do a brief presentation. Thank you, honorable mayor and City Council. This item is to replace the existing lighting fixtures on the main runway at the airport. The existing lighting system is in need of repair, and this project allows the city manager to accept an additional grant funds for this project by the FAA. Thank you. Councilman Mongo. I think I know. I believe you have maybe had a comment or want to make a motion. As I think the airport for always applying for these funds and the improvement of much needed. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman. Super. Thank you. I'd just like to make my standard request that with any construction project going on at the airport and overnight hours, that we be mindful of the construction noise. Director Guidry was incredibly responsive the last time we had an issue. So I'd like to see going into that the contractor is made aware of the sensitive sensitivity of the neighbors. Thank you. Absolutely. Councilman Nelson, I just want to add that it's been really, I think, just great to see all the investments being made to the airport in this last year to just the runway projects, and obviously very appreciative of all the grants we've been receiving, but particularly as we prepare to open up so much of the new facilities in the concourse. So it's just I love seeing all these airport items. We really are, you know, modernizing this airport in a way that's, you know, just making it even better than it already is. So it's great to see. So congratulations to the whole airport team. Is there any public comment. If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 25 in person, please line up at the podium in Zoom. Please use the raise hand feature by pressing start nine now. See none. That concludes public comment. 26. Roll Call. Vote. Roll Call one. The Roll Call Things to Me. District two. Getting District three. It three. I did. I received this before i. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. All right. The motion is carried. Nine zero. The motion carries. The motion is carried. Thank you. Item 15, please. Item 15 is a communication from Vice Mayor Richardson recommendation to receive and file a presentation from Philosophy on National Poetry Month and Direct Department of Library Services to partner with the Arts Council of Long Beach to prepare an update on the Youth Poet Laureate Program. Vice Mayor. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. The month of Apr il is National Poetry Month, and we're taking today as an opportunity to recognize poetry and also to have an update and receive an update on our Youth Poet Laureate program. Arts is an incredible part of our community. It's a, you know, something that brings us all together. And we've been incredibly supportive of arts through murals and performing arts and a whole host of things. And what we're seeing here is, oh, I have the clicker. There it is. Fantastic. Okay, great. So National Poetry Month is something that is a program that was established in 1996 by the Academy of American Poets. It's an opportunity to celebrate the impeccable body of literature created by poets. It acknowledges the wealth of humor and humor, human emotion found in poetry. And the it was approved by we brought the Youth Poet Laureate program to City Council back in 2019. I brought it forward along with Councilmember Urunga, Councilmember Andrews and Councilmember Pearce, and the goal was to capture the essence of our city, inspire creativity and all residents, bring literary arts to all, to people who may have limited access or few opportunities to to poetry or expressive writing and enhance the city's current literacy and arts program and overall to uplift, cultivate and celebrate the youth voice. The program was initially stood up and the idea was to target kids 14 to 19, and they were encouraged to apply and submit poems throughout the city. We went through an initial first year where 30 teens were invited to perform at public events. It was set to launch. The full program was set to launch in 2020, but then we were impacted by COVID 19, and so we thought it would be a good opportunity to now bring it back and has staff to take another look at how we can make sure that, you know, we continue this incredible program that that really was was stopped short due to COVID 19. According to library staff, the plan is to bring is to have the program up and running by January 2023. And I want to support that effort. I think our city council should support staff in that effort to get this program back up and running. So this recommendation is. Today we're celebrating National Poetry Month, but also sort of reaffirming our commitment to making sure that poet poetry is accessible to all. And that's sort of the idea of the president of the the motion today. And at this point, I want to invite up philosophy. There is I want to divide up philosophy. Philosophy.

He's a good friend, a Long Beach poet, grew up in North Long Beach. His entire family, he's he went to Hamilton Middle School, Jordan High School in Long Beach State. And he's well regarded as a leading poet, not only just here in Long Beach, but around the nation, as we've been highlighted in, you know, verses and Flow Def Poetry Jam. And he's a North Long Beach guy and a good friend. And so, without further ado, I handed over to philosophy. Good evening, everyone. Doing tonight. Thank you for such an opportunity to speak on the artistry that we have here in Long Beach. Coming from North Long Beach. It's one of those things that we are I am rooted in this city and being able to hold that flag all over the world and saying poems. And people say, where are you from? Not Long Beach. So that being said, I'll delve right into this poem. Through the Youth Poet Laureate program. We are planting seeds of strength in our communities, tending to the soil of our youth, cultivating their mentality with mentors and placing their fingers in the enriched soil of creativity. We are watering the seeds of their success, growing competence, teaching tenacity, and engaging young leaders to express themselves for healing and resolution. Raise your pen and write from the epicenter of your truth. Write for healing. Write until the silence becomes tears. Write until tears become smiles. Write from the core of your being. Be the voice for the voiceless. And listen and listening ear for hearts that are not heard. We have our thumb pulse on the rib cage of society, pulsing with every smile, teardrop, laughter or hugging of loved ones. We are harvesting the spoils of their hard work with integrity and a positive attitude. The children are the catalysts to change. They blossom as the stem of a sunflower, illuminating their lives as a guiding light or lighthouse, guiding ships to the shore of their success, floating on an ocean of opportunity at the telescope, seeking the horizon and morning sun. We are birthing the vision of a new generation. We are steadfast in the fortitude of our beliefs. We believe in kindness, compassion, love, literary arts, dance, dedication to the craft, and never failing to be a beacon of truth. We are honest and deeply rooted in Long Beach. We sidestep obstacles and find freedom at the edge of a pen or pilot. Gita. We shoot for the stars as supernovas in the night sky. We write with artistry and expression as a rose through concrete, pushing its petals through the cement. We are resilient as using our thorns to break ground. The lower yet program is ground breaking. It will change the landscape of the literary arts and Long Beach. It is a charging forward. It is spearheading the charge. It will create literary spaces of free thought for our youth. And plant seeds of success for their future. So bring forth the laureates. It is their time to lead. I am philosophy. And I thank you humbly for this time with you. Thank you. That satisfies our presentation. Again, we you know, we're coming out of the pandemic and we need to make sure that we get back to where we where we were and and make sure that this youthful program gets the support that it needs. Thank you so much. Thank you. Councilman Austin. Yes, I'm happy to second this motion and always move. Then touched by the artistry and the great words of our good friend, dear friend philosophy. He said A lot of powerful words in there, but I caught on to a few. And is that there? Was that. That that concept of free thought, which is the antithesis of groupthink. And I think we could all learn from that, particularly as public officials, that we are able to think for ourselves and have free thought and not necessarily subscribe to the thought that everyone else wants us to. We don't talk on talking points. Thank you for your presentation, sir. Thank you, Councilwoman in the house. Thank you, Mayor. Thank you, philosophy. You know, I am one of your biggest fans. I remember when we first met. Your words just inspired me so much. And I continued to be inspired by your so very powerful and sincere words. One of the things that I love about you is your focus on the youth and giving them the opportunity to find their own voices and really make a difference in not only here in Long Beach, but everywhere. So I got to say, when I saw you on the agenda, I got really excited and I even contemplated writing a poem for you. But I don't know that it's going to be as good as what you write. But I know that I continued to be inspired by you, and I thank you for that. And I thank you for all that you do for the city of Long Beach and putting us on the map. And you continuously do that. And I will continuously be a big fan of yours. Thank you so much for your powerful words and for your love for this city and our youth. Thank you, Councilwoman Sara. Yes. I want to thank Vice Mayor for bringing this forward and what an important program that we need to bring forward and to update given our recovery process. And I think that our young people have so much to express and there needs to be an outlet and a way to shape their identity and and find their place and to lift up Long Beach altogether. So look forward to hearing back about the program when it comes back in philosophy. I love your shoes. Where can I buy a pair? Seriously, I need it in pink, though. Thank you. We have a motion and a second. I don't believe there's any additional public comment. If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 15, please line up at the podium in the zoom. Please use the raise hand feature or dial star nine now. See none. That concludes public comment. Members roll call vote. Councilman Sun has. Councilwoman Allen i. Councilman Price. Councilman Sabino. All right. Councilwoman mango. I. Councilwoman Sarah I. Councilmember Oranga. I. Councilman Austin. Vice Mayor Richardson. Yes. The motion is carry nine zero. Thank you very much. We now are moving on to item 16, the rest of the items on the agenda, I believe our staff items. So we'll go ahead and begin with item 16. It's 30 over 20. But you're absolutely right. It's a it's a new business item 30. Item. Thursday's report from Health and Human Services and Economic Development. Recommendation two Adobe Resolution to accept and expand grant funding from the California Department of Housing and Community Development in an amount not to exceed 45 million for acquisitions and conversion of a hotel, property and constructions of a modu lar non conjugated shelter unit for person experiencing homelessness citywide . Thank you. We have a most interesting customer option that we want to short report on this. Would love a short report on this. Okay, great. Please, staff. Yes. We have Paul Duncan, our homeless services manager, who can give a brief presentation. An evening mayor and council member. So the, uh, this is a authorization to enter into a contract for the state through the project homekey funding. We are currently in the process of applying for funding to purchase a number of modular shelters, 30 to 35 at the Multi-Service Center. And then we are in process currently around purchasing another motel for the utilization of non congregate shelter. So similar to the purchase of the best western. This would allow us to serve more people experiencing homelessness here in Long Beach that are our most vulnerable on the street. Gentlemen, thank you for the report. I just think it's important that we highlight this. This is a this is a pretty significant grant. Acceptance, but also application that we are engaging in every day. Residents ask, What are we doing about homelessness? I think this is a huge step forward and something that we need to definitely highlight and look forward to. Seeing tiny homes built and acquiring more hotels to serve as transitional housing for for those experiencing homelessness in our city. Councilmember Ringo. Glad to support. Thank you. My only question and maybe it's mistaken for somebody from staff because obviously this is really fantastic for the city and for I hope folks that are in-house on the Tiny Homes Initiative. What's the current timeline looking like? Is there anything updated from the last time we discussed? Are we still. There isn't an update. But what I would say is that once we get the the grant funding from the state, the idea is that we would use modular homes as a way to expedite that timeline. And the key there in terms of the timeline from the purchase to the installation is just making sure that the homes that we get are certified by the state so that we don't have to go through the planned check and inspection process locally. So that is something that we're in the process of exploring so that when we get the funding, we can identify the the manufacturer of homes that are certified by CD so that we can expedite. They're being put up and occupied pretty quickly. I can coordinate with the staff and get a rough timeline for you, but we're thinking it's probably somewhere between 60 and 90 days. And just keep in mind, I think we talked about it during the closed session when this item came up, is that we do have a requirement as a condition of the grant that once we receive that funding, we have a very quick turnaround to get the the that the units up and occupied. So we're planning ahead to be expeditious so that we can get them turned around in compliance with the grant procedures. Thank you. And from an I remember you had been be looking at narrowing down locations. Has that gotten any further on the modular housing initiative? Well, we are in addition to the tiny homes, we continue to explore other potential locations in the city and that effort will continue. We haven't identified a specific location yet, but we are we do have a number that we're looking at and we'll be bringing something forward once we have a site that we'd like to recommend to move forward. Great. Thank you very much. Madam Quirk, can you comment on this? If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item in person, please line up at the podium in the zoom. Please use the raise hand feature by pressing star nine. See. Now, that concludes public comment. Let's go into our roll call vote. District one. Hi. District two, I. This took three. District three. District four I, District five I, District six. I, District. Seven I, District eight. I. District nine. Yes. The motion is Kerry eight two. Thank you very much. We do have one hearing, so let's go ahead and begin that hearing, please. It's on the master fee schedule. Report from Financial Management Recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and adopt a resolution amending the master fee and charges schedule citywide. Thank you. There's a motion any second on this already. Let me turn this over to Mr. Modica. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. We can give a short staff report from Grace Yoon, our budget manager. Great. Thank you, Tom. Good evening, Mayor. And members of the City Council. City Council's approval is being requested to amend the FY22 master fees and charges schedule. This is something that's updated citywide at least twice a year to allow departments to meet City Council's stated policy on user fees, which calls for full. Cost recovery whenever appropriate. City Council last approved an amended master fees and charges schedule on September 7th as part of the FY22 budget adoption. So this report, the changes to the master fees and charges schedule includes adjustments across six departments, with changes based on the completed cost of service study. For Energy Resources and Public Works. Department, which were presented to City Council on February 1st of this year. In addition to those changes related to the cost of services study, proposed fee changes also include other department fee recommendations necessary for administrative and operational purposes. So that concludes my report. And Department Representative representatives are available to answer any specific questions you may have on proposed changes. Thank you. Do we have a public comment and we'll come back to the diets, please. There's one public comment. Dave Shukla. Dave Shukla. He's not in the audience. I don't see public comment. We to go and go back to the dais. Councilman Mongo. I just want to take a moment to recognize the staff at financial management. It has taken a long time for us to get to a place where we know and understand our fees in a meaningful way. I know it took many years. I do want to ask specifics on an animal control licensing fee for about four years now. We've been asking that all of the licenses get coordinated through a process where you would be able to pay a partial year to catch up so that all your animals can be renewed at once, saving the department hundreds of dollars a year, if not definitely be thousands by now considering postage rates. Instead of mailing my house three animal dog license renewals at three different months of the year. You'd save a dollar by putting them all together. This has been three years in the making and I've heard excuses of, Well, we don't have a fee that works for that or we can't prorate. Do we have any progress towards that? Do we need to add a fee to the schedule or do we need to make any annotation at this time that we'd like to be able to prorate and ensure that entering into the fiscal year of 2020. Three. No. Yes. 2023. That that would be policy. Yeah. We have our director. Of Parks, Recreation and Marine. Who can come up and talk on that. Parks, Recreation and Marine was part of the round one fee study for our citywide fee study. So that may have also been something that was looked at during that. And I apologize. I know that this started before our current Parks and Rec director. We appreciate you. And we know you picked up a lot of projects and this is a big priority and I'll make sure it's done before the next fiscal year. Yeah. Thank you, Councilman Mongo. I know Stacy Danes, who unfortunately is ill tonight, or she'd be able to probably answer this more specifically. But I know in our recent council briefing last month, we did discuss this in depth. And I know she is looking into that alignment, which makes a lot of sense. So we are working towards that. And I appreciate your bringing attention to this financial matter. Thank you. Mr. Monaco, do I have your assurances that this is something we can pursue before the next budget cycle? Or do I need to bring an agenda item? Sure, we'll work on it. I'll get this as an item you and I've talked about, and we're talking with the Parks and Rec director about what's the path forward and if you'll need to bring an item. If there's some other challenge that we need to tell you about, we will do that. Thank you. I appreciate it. I know it's a priority for animal lovers across the city and an opportunity for us to really find some cost savings and save the money for the department. Thank you. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson, any comments? Okay. I'm good. Thank you. Okay. We have a motion in a second. Please cast your votes. Motion is carried. Thank you. Next, we're going to do item. Let's do the. Actually, why don't we do the 522 budget adjustments, which is 23. Item 23 Report from Financial Management Recommendation to approve the Fiscal Year 2022 second Departmental and Fund Budget Appropriation Adjustments Citywide. Mr. Modica. A g race can provide a staff report. Yes. Good evening, everyone. This is graphene budget manager. Are you all able to hear me? Yes. It's wonderful. This is the second department in fine budget appropriation adjustment report for FY 22. We do these periodic budget adjustments that we bring to council to reflect adjustment or technical corrections, changes in revenue or operating conditions that require appropriation adjustments to what was adopted. So this is the second letter, and it contains mostly various costs that are offset by enterprise fund operating revenues, funds available or other fee revenues, costs that are offset by grants or reimbursement revenues or other technical adjustments. So that concludes my staff report, and I'm available to answer any questions. Thank you. Any public comment on this? If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 23 in person, please line up at the podium in Zoom. Use the raise hand feature or dial star nine now. Seen on that concludes public comment. Thank you. Moving on to we're going to go and jump now to ordinance 25, please. We need to do a roll call. I'm sorry. We're talking about district one, district two, I District three. I district for my district five. All right. District six, I. District seven. I. District eight. District nine. I. Motion is carried. Thank you. Now we'll move to the first reading of the equity social equity piece, cannabis. Fantastic. Thank you. Let's take on the fund transfer items. 18, 27, 28 and 31. Item 18 is a communication from Councilman Austin. Recommendation to increase appropriations in the general fund group in the city manager department by $5,000 to provide a donation to care closet LBC. Item 27 Communication from Councilwoman Zendejas recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund group in the City Manager Department by $2,000 to provide a donation to the Long Beach Blues Society. Item 28 is a communication from Councilwoman Zendejas. Recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund group in the City Manager Department by 2500 to provide a donation to L.A. Wine Fest. An item 31 is a communication from Vice Mayor Richardson, Councilwoman Zendejas and Councilwoman Allen. Recommendation to increase appropriations in the General Fund Group in the City Manager Department by $1,500 to provide a donation to the College Square Neighborhood Association in the amount of $1,000 and love beyond limits in the amount of $500. Thank you for moving in. Second, is there public comment? If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 1827, 28 or 31? Please line up at the podium. If there are any members of the public in the room, please raise your hand by dialing Star nine now. Thank you. Please come forward. You recognized. Hi. Gentle counsel people. My name is Bridget Jones. I am the PTSA president at Wilson High School and most recently, Golden Oak Service Award recipient, which is an award given to peo ple who donate a significant amount of their time to work the welfare of youth in schools. I only say that to just give some background. I'm actually here on behalf of the L.A. Wine Festival. I also am the event coordinator for that event. I am imploring, begging and will get on my knees for other districts to through nine to please contribute to that event. It is an event that encompasses all nine districts. As far as volunteers and businesses are local businesses, we are a event that want to be a staple to the city, just like the Grand Prix. This is our third year. We have a record of having at least 3500 visitors that encompasses residents and tourists, which is boosting economic development within our city. We want to encourage that. We want to encourage people to not be afraid to come out and fellowship with one another. So I beg that those funds are relief and that other districts contribute to that event as well. I think I spoke to Mr. Richardson. I've sent emails to all of the districts and I beg you, beg you, please contribute. Because the city fees rose 40% from last year. It was a phenomenal event if you've ever been there. And it just really encompasses what we are as a city. We foster businesses and encourage them to grow. And it is a great networking event. We didn't have any problems with the police or any belligerence or anything like that. So I implore you, other districts to please release, approve and relief funds, hopefully in the amount of $1,000 per district to just help us out to make that a staple in this city. Thank you. Next speaker, please. It's than I can say, sixth District speaking in support of Mr. Duke Gibbons of the care closet. I think I don't know if you've been living under a rock or oblivious to the work of the man, but he's doing exemplary work in the streets. A son of the sixties might like myself, but, you know, he's ventured to other parts of the city with his work. But, you know, it's it's amazing to see someone, a native of this city, create an opportunity for a lot of the houseless population to have dignified work and opportunities for themselves. And living adjacent to Pacific Avenue. I know that they have that contract now and they've been helping a lot with it. So I just want to thank the councilman on the eighth District office for helping with that. And I also wanted to come and speak in support of Ms.. Malika Chris of love without limits. It's very few people who are really engaging with our youth and coaching and counseling them with recognizing some of the rigid, you know, hardships that a lot of the communities that our youth are at risk opportunity youth are coming from. And she's now based in the central facility at Kings Park. I think so, our councilwoman. And, you know, they're doing phenomenal work with the people and a lot of the other public schools in the area. So I just always am in favor of showing love and light to those that are really impacting the community that I come from. So thank you. Thank you. That concludes public comment. That concludes public comment for these items. Thank you. With our roll call vote, please. District one, district two. I. District three. I. District four. I. District High. School. District six I. District seven. I. District eight. High District nine. All right. Motion is carried. Thank you. Let's handle general public comment. It doesn't work. The stats the statistics show that it doesn't work. There is no proof that it leads to cost saving. When you consolidate in this in this had this hybridization of the utilities, when you consolidate them in, it actually works against, you know, there's momentary cost increases that then become perpetual. That's what the studies show. What consolidation? They don't actually show that things become cheaper. I can there's much scientific research that supports what I'm saying. San Diego, San Francisco and Los Angeles have all had top executives plead guilty to federal cases with respect to the transparency that comes with the consolidation of public utilities. So I think we should just keep it independent. I think that we should have a gas department. We should have a water department and electricity all separate. Thank you. Thank you. Next. Peter, please. Dave Shukla, resident of Third District and Ratepayer, on record for the past 25 years for the electricity account at 6333 East Eliot Street. I guess my comments are a bit different. I am curious to see this process play out. Specifically one that takes to the voters, uh, the seeming option of combining these two utilities without mentioning a third. And that's electricity. Uh. I'm. I spent a good deal of the past four and a half years trying to not only build out but use the nonprofit, the Long Beach Alliance for Clean Energy to advocate for the city taking control of its electricity destiny. Specifically, as we know, in the very short term, we have to stop utilizing oil and gas as a society that's just like coal or nuclear is something that isn't worth all the attendant costs. Now, there's been a lot of questions about taking on some of the less savory aspects of the way that the utilities in this environment the past 30 years concomitant with climate change. Why is it that you haven't hired a city management fellow that can hang with me on climate in the past five years from. I mean, what is this place? Constantly a waste of my fucking time to. For the record, I think electricity should be included as a potential utility for consolidation. One of the things that I tried to do in the city for the past two and a half years and I haven't been able to get it in front of the city manager or the city council is, you know, this issue of community energy, unlike the last speaker I do know of the tremendous progress that these entities, these little servicing entities have made, uh, for not only decarbonizing, uh, electricity, but also lowering costs. Marine clean energy has shown year after year wit h publicly available, you know, integrated resource documents of the kind which you don't seem to be able to provide. For what goes on in the city. They've been able to show that they can do it. Why the fuck can't we tell them? Now I could directly to Chris. We're John GROSS or Bob Dole, who? Both. All three of them signed on to this ridiculous. Oh, wait, let's wait a year to talk about electricity. Let's wait a year to talk about electricity. Honestly, I mean, I don't know what Edison's credit is. They're going to take away the rooftop solar. They're going to take away the incentives where they're going to move their headquarters. You know. Thank you, Mr. Shukla. That's for 3 minutes. But I'd like to know. All right, Mr. Schickel, thank you. That was 3 minutes. Is there any further public comment? That concludes public comment. Thank you. We'll take you back behind the rail. Councilman Austin. Thank you. So my question regarding this and it was prompted by by public comment, I know we currently have a water commission and this this for for the governance. Can you explain how the governance will work? Is that going to combine water and and and energy to enterprise funds to be governed by one one commission? Is that clear? Yes. So certainly today the water commission oversees the water utility and the sewer utility, and they have since the 1980s and the water commission has been existent for 90 years now. What the idea is under this consolidation is the gas utility would also fall under the commission, but we would rename it from the water commission to probably the Utilities Commission, so they would oversee rate setting budgets. Now, just like water does today, rate setting and budgets still have to come back to the city council. So that does not go away. So eventually all gas, water, sewer rates and budgets still have to come to the city council. And that Segways to my next question. You know, in the in the item, it speaks to consolidation, potentially realizing some some oil significant efficiencies right over time.

How. How will the rate payers benefit from that? Can you just explain that? Well, right now, our costs for water and sewer are cost base. So anything that I can do to reduce costs benefit the customers, either through a combination of lower rates or reinvestment. In the utility, we have over between the three utilities. We have over 4000 miles of pipeline. So we have to reinvest in that customer service improvements. Someone mentioned the conservation programs. So we can reinvest those savings into those areas. Vice Mayor Richardson talked about the hiring process. One of things that we're working on right now is with city h.r. In civil service is some of the programs that he directed me to in san francisco. We're looking at that right now with the h.r. in civil service. So we would just reinvest that money. It could result in cost savings to the customers directly through lower rates also. Thank you. And from a labor standpoint, d o you foresee any any wrinkles with any of our labor groups between the departments? Are they represented by different groups, the same groups. That are represented by the same groups? And so we offered meet confer to all the associated labor groups. We had one take us up on it. We completed that meeting for process this week. And so it was very, very successful in all the groups to understand what we're trying to do and they're comfortable with it. Thank you. This has my support. Thank you. Thank you. Let's have a roll call vote, please. District one. District one I, District two. I. District three high district four i. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. High District nine. Yes. Motion is. Carried. Thank you. Ordinance 26, please. Recommendation to declare ordinance approving resolution number WD Dash 1441a resolution of the City of Long Beach Board of Water Commissioner's establishing the rates and changes to be charged for water and sewer services. Read and adopted as read citywide. Thank you as the emotions are second here. You know this isn't the item on the screen. Can we pull up item 26 on the screen? There is motions that can police. Thank you. Any public comment on this? Okay. We're now moving on to review the two new business items. Next, which will be 30 and 32. Item 30, please. Communication from Vice Mayor Richardson councilman's and ask Councilmember your UNGA recommendation to add language to the 2022 to 2023 state legislative agenda in support of the proposed 110 million allocation for goods movement workforce training facility located at the San Pedro Bay Port Complex. Rosemary Richardson. Thank you. First, I want to thank Councilmember Durango for partner me with me on this motion. I know that it's sort of timely and the May revised just came out and our state legislative agenda is coming back to the council soon. So this was incredibly timely to get this in front of the city council. In the state budget, there's proposed a major investment into the San Pedro Bay Port Complex, and it's for a goods, goods movement, workforce training facility. And we are the largest combined sea port complex in America and we have no training facility. So it's incredibly important that we as a city and as a port complex and as a state, continue to invest in the training well-being of our workforce. This is $110 million investment from the state in the governor's budget. It is not guaranteed. So we need to do our part to make sure that we advocate to protect those those funds. And it's a part of a larger $2.3 billion. Package for our ports. It's a significant, significant investment. And it's important, again, toward creating a resilient workforce and accelerating our are the jobs available in our port, particularly with the challenges ahead. And so I'm glad to bring this forward tonight and I encourage in I. Thanks so much. Thank you, Councilman Ringo. Thank you, Mary. I want to thank Councilmember Vice Mayor Ri chard you for bringing this forward. I think it's very important that we. Maintain a very effective and trained. Workforce. This is one of those occasions where it's a win win for everybody, and I'm glad to have to support it. Thank you. Thank you, Councilman Allen. Yes. I also want to thank Vice Mayor Richardson and Councilwoman and de Haas and Councilmember Urania for bringing this item forward. I think that it is vital that we provide training for goods movement workers as we roll out new equipment and technologies in this space. Zero emissions equipment requires new skills, infrastructure and maintenance and training. Our workers in these skills of tomorrow will speed up deployment of zero emission and higher efficiency goods movement equipment. So I'm very happy to support this item. Thank you. Councilwoman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And this is a fantastic item and I'm glad to support it. I have publicly supported this and talked about it on multiple occasions. I think as we look at the transition in our goods movement industry and where we're headed as a nation in areas of technology and improvement to some of our efficiencies, having a facility like this is huge to get everyone trained up and skilled for the next level of technology and deliverance of services. So I think this is fantastic. I also want to just highlight the fact that that I think that it's very, very important. We have our Port Transportation Infrastructure Committee now. We did have a presentation from the port at one of our last meetings, and Dr. Hossa Garber talked about this facility and the excitement around this facility. I know Councilwoman Zendejas and Councilman Mongo were on that call and we got a little bit of a preview and very exciting. So I was happy to have been able to talk about the facility a bit there and all the great things that we're seeing for not just the workforce, but obviously the efficiency of our port as well as the job stabilization and retention of our port. So this is a great item. I'm happy to support it. Thank you, Vice Mayor, for bringing it. Thank you, Councilmember Austin. Yes, obviously, this is a this is an item, I think, that we have collectively as a city council have gotten behind and pledged our support for already. I.N.S. See our government relations director here. I wanted to ask the city manager in if. Do currently have an item in our state ledger agenda. I don't have it in front of me. And I've been on the State Ledger Committee for for several years now. Do we already have an item that actually speaks to this? And I know this particular item is is us basically cheerleading in there an initiative that the governor has already put forth? And so our support of the state legislative committee or the city council would be to the legislators asking them to support this as well. Is that what this actually does? Yeah. So in terms of the agenda itself, as part of the priorities for this year, our focus statements, we do have a general statement in there around supporting port infrastructure specifically related to. You know, clean. Infrastructure and workforce development opportunities, but not specifically this project. So this would allow us to include this specific project. And then at this point in the process, we would be working directly with our delegation and the Budget Committee chairs, most likely to advocate for. This project. To remain in the budget. So my question is, do you foresee that anybody in our state led delegation would have an opposition to the governor's proposal to give 140 $110 million to the port? Do I see any of our delegation members. Receiving no resistance from our state legislators? No. I imagine that they would be supportive. I don't know for sure. All of our delegation members, but I know they're aware of the project and supportive of the port's efforts. So this would be to make sure that the rest of the legislature that's negotiating the budget. Prioritize this as well. Well, I'm happy to support this again. I think we've supported this year after year after year in our state legenda in a general sense, this specifies that and happy to communicate this to our state legislators. Vice Mayor Richardson. I want to thank the Council for their strong support here. And yes, we have generally been supportive of infrastructure. I think it's important to note the original and the original proposal was 150 million and then it went down 210 million based on discussions. So this is really about getting into the conversation and make sure we protect the investment so we actually have the adequate resources to deliver the facility. So thanks everyone. Look forward to an IBO. Thank you. Thank you. Is there a public comment on this. That there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 13 person? Please line up at the podium in Zoom. Please use the raise hand feature or dial star nine now. In person. Good evening, Mayor Garcia, members of the council. My name is Rob. No, tough. I'm the policy director of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor, where we proudly represent over 800,000 hardworking women and men across all industries in Los Angeles County, many of whom work and live right here in Long Beach. In answer to your question, Councilmember Austin, there are actually some legislators who are opposed to this. I don't want to put anybody name out there, but in conversations we've had, there actually are people who are opposed. And we really appreciate the strong support from this council tonight. As all of you are aware, the economic activity generated at the port is responsible for one in nine jobs in Southern California. And to put an even finer point on that statement, the overwhelming majority of the jobs at the port are good union jobs that allow workers to keep a roof over their heads, put food in the fridge and come home safely to their families at the end of a hard day's work. The jobs obviously include Long Shore, b ut they also include construction and trucking, all of which require good, honest work and all of which offer an opportunity into the middle class. But in order to fulfill that vision and to showcase the true potential of the port as a hub of good, unionized job creation, we have to focus on preparing the next generation of our workforce by training with the necessary skills to succeed, which is exactly what this facility aims to do if done right. This training facility at the port can serve as a regional asset that upskill those workers who are stuck in debt and minimum wage jobs. And if done right, this training facility at the port can target and train traditionally at risk populations like women, people of color, and our immigrant brothers and sisters. And lastly, if done right, this training facility can prepare or will prepare the workforce of tomorrow by training them to use new zero emission technologies that preserve our environment, while also adding to the ranks of the robust unionized workforce down at the port. As Councilmember Allen said. So as they say, the future begins today and it begins by securing the proposed $110 million in funding as currently allocated by the governor's budget. For these reasons, we're fully supportive of tonight's motion, and we'd like to thank Vice Mayor Richardson for bringing this forward, as well as the support of council members it would. UNGER And then the House for also signing onto this item. Thank you for your time. Thank you. Dave Chappelle, Third District. Just like to echo the previous speakers comments that if done right, this could be quite a asset. I'd like to speak in support of it with obviously a certain emphasis on not only zero emissions technologies and other ways to decarbonize the footprint of port operations, but also to preserve the current and hopefully expand the health and safety provisions as well as the current workforce kind of standards that the people who have jobs currently in our ports have had. I've had friends who haven't seen daylight from from inside a container ship for the better part of the past ten months because they've been busy dealing with the backlog. A lot of these workers, frankly, are concerned about automation. They're concerned about a lot of the plans it has and having a investment in the workforce itself and in maintaining, as we just heard, the current level of jobs and perhaps even expanding them is going to be a vital part of our economic recovery, not only in the short term, but in long term kind of regional dynamics . Thank you. Thank you. Let me let me just add before we vote, this is actually a fantastic proposal. I want to also just think the both the ports on the port of Long Beach side and the Port of Los Angeles that have actually been working on this on this proposal for a while. And I just want to thank our Port of L.A. partners. I know this also would not be possible without them. For those that are also unaware, the facility itself is a

Iso scheduled to also not just provide all these great services, but it's actually believe half of it is on the port of Long Beach side and the other half is on the Port of L.A. side. And so it really is going to be a joint facility and even an even in location. And I want to thank the port team for their incredible work and really the governor for really leading this effort in making sure that the funding was and has been in place. And great that we're going to be supporting this officially office as part of our state package as well. So thanks to everyone involved and particularly all the workers who've been advocating for the facility as well. And with that will do a recall. District one. My district, too. I. Mr. three. I. District four. All right. District five. I. District six. I. District seven. I. District eight. All right. District nine. All right. Motion is carried. Her next item is number 29. Item 29 Report from Financial Management Recommendation to receive and file the Fiscal Year 2022 First Budget Performance Report. City. Thank you. Is there staff report? Yes. We'll have Grayson, the city's budget manager, make a presentation on this item. Hello, Grace. Hi. Good evening. Chair Austin and members of the City Council. This is a preview report of potential FY 22 year end projections. This report is based on early estimates from department and citywide revenue analysis, which we know can vary sometimes significantly by year end. Actual year end status will be reported in our normal year and performance report that comes to City Council in February. So first, to provide some context, the FY 22 budget was developed during the spring and summer of 2021 with a general fund structural shortfall of 27 million, plus a 3 million in one time uses. The plan was to utilize funds made available through the Long Beach Recovery Act to cover this $30 million need. Subsequent to the adoption of the FY 22 budget, we closed out FY 21 reporting that the overall fiscal impact of the pandemic was not as severe as originally anticipated, with key general fund revenue sources, such as sales tax rebounding very quickly and even surpassing pre-pandemic performance. Based on this, we were anticipating improvements to our FY 22 situation. This report reflects that anticipated improvement, with current estimates now showing general fund ending with a shortfall of approximately 18 million, a significant improvement from the original 30 million shortfall, again largely due to improved revenue projections. Also, it should be noted that this shortfall includes support from reserves that were set aside to cover the measure and litigation related revenue loss. Had we not had this reserve, the shortfall would have been about eight and a half million dollars worse, or at around 26 million. We're still planning on covering the shortfall through the Long Beach Recovery Act plan. On the general fund expenditure side, we are projecting some higher salary savings in the police department compared to typical years due to unfilled positions in this tight labor market that many organizations in the region are facing. The police department will be utilizing their savings to implement key initiatives that will provide higher level of transparency and operational efficiencies, as well as provide funding to other departments to support community crisis response initiative, violence prevention and citywide equity efforts. The report also provides notable updates on other funds. For example, Measure A is projecting about a $13 million surplus following some similar patterns with sales tax revenue. And these funds are being reviewed as part of the new five year measure plan to be included in the FY 23 budget. And the Tidelands Operating Fund is also projecting to be able to set aside 12 million for Tidelands capital improvement projects to be included in the proposed FY 23 budget. Lastly, these figures factor in an estimated revenue from higher oil prices and also includes potentially setting aside up to 25% more for oil well abandonment over what was previously planned to help build the city reserves to safely retire oil wells in the future. There are many variables that can impact these final figures, so the actual amount will be revisited at the end of the year. This concludes my staff report and I'm available for questions. Thank you for the report. I was trying to keep up with all of the the the figures here, but I know there in our staff report as well. You mentioned saving salary savings with LAPD and how those funds are going to be allocated. Can you can you just repeat that? Because I think that that's pretty profound. I mean, these are dollars that were going toward public safety, but they're going to be reinvested in other areas of community and public safety. Is that correct? Yes, Councilmember. That's correct. So with the greater salary savings that the police department is anticipating at the end of this fiscal year, they are putting some additional funding into areas of core services, of crime prevention and investigation, and implementing key initiatives for greater transparency, accountability and operational efficiencies within the police department. Also, they are able to reallocate some of their funds to other departments. This includes the Health Department, library, parks. And I think there's one other department that to support efforts such as violence prevention, racial reconciliation and equity needs, and also to support the community crisis response effort. And I think I have the departments here. Yes. So city manager department for the Language Access, Support, Parks and Recreation, Health and Library Services are also getting some funding from these police savings that are being anticipated. Great. And measure a I see there's a $13 billion surplus there. Yes, correct. There's about a $12.8 million projected operational surplus, as well as some additional cash that's made available by changing our Mot orola debt service payment plan. And all of those are being factored into the requested new five year outlook plan that we are preparing with our public works department for measure that will be presented as part of the proposed FY 23 budget. Well, a few streets that I have in mind that I want to make sure that we have under consideration. Residential streets. This is great news. And there was one other question that I just wanted to just get some clarification on. You know, obviously, we're experiencing a lot of, I would say, imbalance with public safety in the community. And just wanted to understand how our our Recovery Act dollars are going to go toward our violence prevention plan, particularly as we are embarking on summertime. Yeah. We have Theresa Chandler who can come up and talk a little bit more about the violence prevention. But as she comes up, one of the as we were just talking about before, some of the funds that are being redirected from police savings are going towards these programs and violence prevention programs that are currently existing as part of our Long Beach Recovery Act funds. So these funds will be going to support that. And the report has a list of those programs, a lot that can continue from this summer and into the future fiscal year. So I'll turn it up. I just think it's important that our public kind of hear about our efforts toward violence prevention. You know, we're we're in May schools going to be letting out in another few weeks. Um, summertime. We want to be, be ready to, to deal with what's, what's coming or. Yeah. Yeah. Thank you. So, you know, a lot of our city departments are in grace mentioned we're collaborating we've been covering for a long time around community safety, but we've really been focusing on our prevention efforts and really aligning with goal two and racial equity and reconciliation, which is designing and investing in the community safety and violence prevention. So really looking at our beefs, be safe programing and that's continuing. It's being funded by Albury and my hood, my city books and buckets. Whoops, After Dark, our teen volunteers, Outdoor Youth Connections, Teen Academy, Youth Substance Use and Mental Health Support and tech to-go. So all of these are programs that are continuing. They're in process already, but we're able to extend hours in the summer and expand opportunities in the summertime to keep activities for youth going. Would you please just just give us an overview. There's a there's a line item here for reentry program, a pilot program. What does that look like? Sure. So outlined in reconciliation also is to really focus in on our reentry. I'm really looking at creating an advisory committee and then also we're trying to get like a one stop shop for reentry. So this is starting that process off. And then also there's going to be a summit that takes place later in the fall. So there's a lot of activities that are happening. There's already a lot of reentry work that's happening in Long Beach and it's just coupling along with the work that's already happening, but really honing in on the work that's happening and kind of being a connecting point within the city here. Thank you. Our health department is working overdrive and overtime to to address many of these concerns. And I'm just delighted that we have funding over the next couple of years to to address many of our critical concerns. Thank you. Councilmember, you want to give did you have any comment? No, but I'm very pleased with the the use of these funds to support some of these programs. I'm especially pleased to see that the Be Safe program is going to be funded at $250,000 level. That's great. Excellent program. Thank you. For any other comments. Councilmember Price. Thank you. I too, I want to echo the comments of my colleagues and I want to especially thank our police department for being a partner in just so many ways and being. Very active collaborators in understanding what council has been saying and the public has been saying and reinvesting and helping make us stronger as a city. I think it just shows how committed they are to the overall good of everyone. So thank you. Is there any public comment? Dave Shukla. Uh, good evening. Dave Shipley, third district. Um, thank you for the presentation and for the pretty detailed staff report. It's a curiosity and one that I'd like to pick out against that full 25% of the increase in oil and gas revenue should go exclusively to oil. Well, abandonment. Without further details, first of all, about which wells will be abandoned, how they will be permanently sorry, which abandoned wells will be capped, and how they'll be permanently capped. What the current rate of leakage is, what the plan is for retiring a lot of the existing gas piping instead of reinvesting in it. What the plan is for retiring. A lot of the existing drilling not using existing permits to experiment with the new drilling at the same site or to pay for even newer drill sites and drills for the tie group. Specifically, the 17% increase from fiscal year 21 revenues is a great figure, but it's it'd be more helpful to know specifically how much. Extra revenue the city has received since September of 2021 relative to what it had anticipated for oil and gas prices at that time. And with the measure m cap of 12% gross revenues in the gas fund group that cap for transfers, that is something that may have to be revisited, especially now that the combination of utilities, hopefully electricity as well is something that may become a eventuality. Thank you for your time. That concludes the public comment. So here in public comment members, please vote. On the item. Councilwoman Cindy has. The motion is. Carried. Thank you. We're going to go to move to item 32, please. Item 32 is a report from Public Works Recommendation Received File a presentation on the citywide temporary parklet program and request direction from City Council. Citywide.

Turn this over to city staff. Thank you, Mayor and Council. So I will turn it over to our team in public works. We prepared the report. This came to us from a council member and approved by the entire council to be back here tonight to talk through the options on Parklets as well as our Open Open Streets programs, which includes private business as well and their parking lots. We've got a short presentation for you with some recommendations. I will say we really are looking for council direction tonight. We've provided some framework, but all of this can be changed. You can move up the deadlines, you move back the deadlines. This really is kind of the policy. And we try to provide some general ideas for you to work from and make some adjustments as you go. So I will turn it over now to Carl Hickman, our traffic engineer, and Nico McCauley and Marconi and our deputy director. Good evening, Mr. Mayor. Members of the Council, thank you for this opportunity to make a presentation tonight. As you are aware, about two years ago, the City Council approved an Open Streets initiative that allowed for the installation of temporary parklets to assist certain businesses such as restaurants in continuing their operations. While indoor dining was restricted at the time. Indoor dining was then brought back, but in a limited capacity. The council extended the life of the temporary program and it is currently scheduled to sunset at the end of this month in June. I'd like to introduce Carl Hickman, City Traffic Engineer, who's going to give a presentation explaining where we've been, where we are, and where we recommend going. Thank you. Thank you, Diego. Good evening, Mr. Mayor and council members. We're going to go ahead and get right into it here.

As Deckard mentioned, the original intent, as you may recall, was to install Parklets temporary parklets in response to COVID 19 to help businesses to support businesses in their efforts. It was a citywide effort to support the economic recovery for businesses and health order and physical distancing requirements. The first temporary parklets were installed in May of 2020 at the program's peak. There were 112 temporary parklet locations citywide. There were 124 participating businesses. What that means is that in some cases, businesses shared parklets. There were 176 outdoor activity permits or EPS, as we refer to them, and there were ten sidewalk dining permits. Currently, there are 80 temporary parklet locations. Citywide 91 participating businesses. Again, some timesharing parklets 12 parklets have been removed since January of 22 alone. There are currently 27 outdoor activity permits and there are nine sidewalk dining permits. That's where we stand currently. The picture there you can see one of our PSB members refilling the parklets the corrals with water. Currently we're going to we're going to look at the number of temporary parklets. Per council district. You can see at the height of the program there were 11

2 on the far left column there, again helping 124 businesses. We have since removed 32 parklets overall. Currently we have 80 assisting 91 businesses again and you can kind of see the breakdown for each council district. CD1 has 17, currently CD2 23, CD3 34, etc. on down the list. I'll leave that for a couple of seconds there. Now regarding BP's broken down again by district. Originally, there were 176, and now we have a total of only 27. Once again, CD one for CD two has one, T three has 11, etc. on down the list. Currently there are 27. The one in the picture there is the Reno Room 3400 block of East Broadway, and you can see how it is installed really in the parking area. It's not in the public area. The plan is right now that the ops will sunset on June 30th of this year, regardless of the outcome of the temporary parklet discussion that we're having this evening. Now because Belmont Shore has so many temporary Parklets I wanted to take a minute to kind of focus on what's going on there. And the really the focus is on Second Street between Livingston and Bayshore. Currently, there are 23 temporary parklet locations helping 28 participating businesses. Ten temporary parklets have been removed to date. And regarding parking in that entire stretch of roadway, there are 517 parking stalls available, 351 are on street, 166 are on the public lots nearby on the adjacent streets. And right now, we have 52 parking stalls that have been converted to temporary parklets. Basically, that boils down to approximately 10% of the parking is now dedicated to temporary parklets. 6% on Second Street and 4% on the side streets. Now when we talk about temporary park, that's from engineering point of view. We do have many elements that we have to consider. And really, a lot of this has to do with safety. First of all, we have to have an object marker on the corner. There you see that white and black sign. It's sort of like an arrow that helps keep drivers away from the park. But we want to make sure we have a 12 foot travel way on the outside of the park, that minimum for a driver about driving vehicular lane. There are many structural elements within the Parklet that have to be strong enough to absorb impact from a vehicle. That's why we have the water filled corrals within the parklets. There are many concerns regarding the stormwater drainage, safe pedestrian passage. Utility conflicts. We are really concerned about putting parklets on top of gas lines, waterlines, electrical vaults, sewer manholes, just to name a few. And we are concerned about parking impacts and accessibility. And I wanted to point out that existing temporary parklets cannot convert automatically to a permanent status. Now maintaining the integrity of temporary Parklets we've been dealing with this now for about 25 months. The staff and transportation and mobility, we try to address every situation on a case by case basis. There is no one size fix for any of these parklets. We remove Parklets by request of business owners when they decide that, you know, they don't want to to have it out in front of their business anymore. We're constantly having to reduce or adjust the part that footprints. What we've found is that businesses are slowly but surely trying to slowly expand their parklet space. So we're trying constantly to adjust that. We need to reaffirm that consent from businesses neighboring a temporary parklet because of frontage overlap. What that means is, is that parklets are meant to be installed in the front and the frontage of that the business that has the permit. And in many cases it can expand in front of the nearby business only with the approval from that nearby business. And we've been working hard to maintain maintain insurance compliance, and we also do many inspections. City staff, we go out regularly to inspect what's going on with the parklets. Now, we've had a lot of outreach regarding the PARKLET program. We have had virtual meetings, public and business surveys. We've coordinated regularly with the council districts. We do field inspections and business visits, as I mentioned. We receive emails, phone calls, daily. People concerned are asking questions. And we regularly, you know, recommend that residents go to certain websites if they have a complaint to go to L.B.. L.B. must I'm sorry, go active. Long Beach. There's a survey there on the upper right side of the slide there. You can't quite see it. But that's a that's a checklist that we have and I'm sorry, not a survey, a checklist where when we go out, we want to make sure we're checking the drainage, the signage, whether we have accessibility, which is the platform firm. Are there structural elements in place? That's the example of the the checklist that we have. And then there's a small card there that we use to advertise the survey that we did last year in November. That was for folks in CD3. And we'll get to some of those results in a second here on Belmont Shore. Here are some of the results. We have 584 total responses from CD3. These were responses from businesses, residents, customers. 12 of the responses were from business owners themselves. Of those 584 comments, 38% supported the program 11 support, but with some sort of restriction. 12% were concerned about parking. 6% traffic sight line. 14 Congestion and parking. 9% were concerned about accessibility and esthetic concerns. Again, on the right there, there's some of the redundant list there of what the concerns were parking impacts, sidewalk access, esthetics, sightlines noise, quality of life issues. So we did get some positive feedback from the surveys. Many value the outdoor dining option that was available, and many people thought that, you know, the parklets improve the walkability of the area or made it feel more friendly, pedestrian friendly. There was an enhanced experience or character of Belmont Shore that was felt as well. Those were some of the results that we got and there was a website for part of the results. Now when we talk about permanent parklets again, I want to stress existing temporary parklets are not approved or designed to be permanent. Temporary parklets are managed and permitted separately from the Permanent Parklet program, which predates COVID 19. We do have a sidewalk dining and Parklet handbook that was finalized in 2018. Permanent Parklet permits have been available through the city's existing Sidewalk Dining and Parks handbook. Permanent. I'm sorry. Permit requires design and construction of new new structures that meet permit requirements. And there can be local coastal zone requirements that apply as well. The current status of permanent parklet applications right now, only for businesses with a temporary parklet have established a permanent parklet through the formal process and guidelines that I showed to earn CD1 one in CD two and one in CD five. There are four businesses that have applied for a permanent parklet permit that are currently in the review process three in CD, one and one in CD. 730 Businesses have expressed only interest in the formal establishment of a permanent Parklet seven in CD two and 23 in CD3. And what this means is that they've come down and they've talked to our permit technicians, or they've made a phone call or sent in an email just asking for information they have not done or started any of the formal process, only expressed interest. No permanent parklets will not be allowed for the following reasons. There are some cases where we have temporary parklets with businesses, and right now they're not complying with the rules of the game right now. So if they're not complying with the safety requirements, insurance requirements or the refill of the crowd requirements, we want to discourage them from applying for a permanent parklet if they're not going to follow the rules. If a if an applicant has a business condition that has safety concerns or documented issues that have been determined by the city traffic engineer to be detrimental to the quality of life of nearby businesses and or residents. That's going to be an issue as well. Number three, all businesses located in the coastal zone will be required to obtain a local Coastal Commission approval. This is an internal city process. The picture there is a shot from Fourth Street. Now when we talk about permanent parklets, this is a really good example of a permanent parklet. On fourth, it is on the main street, not on a side street, and there's a good drawing there that comes out of the guidelines. Again, it kind of explains a general idea of what a permanent parklet should look like on a main street. Next, an idea for a permanent parklet on a side street again. There is a drawing for this in the permanent parklet guidelines. And this location is at the Socialist on fourth where they actually have the permanent parklet or a permanent design on the side street. Now the Open Streets Initiative, we do have recommendations. T he first option is that current Open Streets Initiative and temporary parklet program sunsets June 30th, 2022. The second option is a current Open Streets initiative and temporary parklet program Sunsets on June 30th, 2022, with the exception that any business that has applied for a permanent parklet by August 1st shall be allowed to continue utilizing their temporary parklet until September

30th of 22. Now, if we decided to go with option number two, we do have a couple of conditions. First, a business must formally apply for a permanent parklet permit per the existing city permanent PARKLET Program no later than August 1st, 2022. Now, when a business comes in, they will be notified at the time of the application that the proposed permanent parklet may not be feasible because of safety or quality of life concerns. We don't want businesses going through the trouble of getting their plans, talking to engineers, etc., paying the fees when really we're not going to allow that part of it to happen anyway. For those reasons stated, if the application is accepted, the business must adhere to all temporary parklet permit conditions as the formal approval of the permanent parklet is determined. This includes review of criminal activity and neighborhood quality of life concerns. Third, the business must comply with all safety insurance and creel refill requirements that is of their temporary parklets. Parks will be removed starting June 30th 22 if businesses fail to comply. Lastly, temporary parking that's allowed on minor side streets after June 30th, 2022. Only after a case by case review by the city traffic engineer. So that is the extent of the presentation will be welcome to answer any questions you might have. Thank you very much, Mayor, and members of the Council. So we're available to answer questions. I do want to point out that was a lot of information. We focused a lot on Parklets. We're also looking for direction tonight on the apps. Right now, the council direction is that those end on June 30th. If you want to take any other action on that, we want to hear that. And again, all these dates can be discussed. The August 1st date was really designed to be people who are going to do a permanent parklet. We would then work with them and they'd be able to stay open a little bit longer. But the ones that are either not technically feasible or not, we would basically let them know quickly and then those parklets would need to go away. They would not get an extension through September 30th. So with that, we are available to answer questions and get direction from the council. Good Councilwoman that change, Councilman Price. Thank you very much. I know there are a lot of members of the public here who have comments, and I want to hear from all of those. But before we start, I want to just ask a couple of questions so that we all have the same framework that might help inform some public comment. First of all, can you a mr. Heckman, can you put slide nu mber 14 back up? Because I'm going to have a couple of questions about that and why you're doing that. Mr. Heckman, during your presentation, one of the first comments you made was The Peace Will Sunset, regardless of what we do tonight. But then I heard the city manager say he's looking for some direction on apes. Can I get a little bit of clarification on that? So I'll clarify. So regardless of what you do, if you do nothing tonight, the parklets technically go away on June 30th, as do the OLP. So that was the decision this council made back in December is to only provide a certain amount of extension to to really work to remove other parklets and have this all end June 30th because of the item that we got last night last month. We're here tonight to give you a presentation. So I'm just reminding everybody that I think there's been a lot of focus on the parklets and everyone knows about those. I think a lot of businesses have not been paying attention that their app goes away in two weeks. So if that's the will, the council will implement that if there is a desire to have that part be extended. I really would like direction tonight so that we don't have miscommunication with businesses. Okay. So I'll probably address OJP specifically after I hear from everyone because I want to hear the comments, but I know I have some recommendations on apps. The second thing I wanted to ask about is looking at. Well, let me let me back up here. When we implemented the Open Streets Initiative. We did not, in my opinion, communicate. To the residents, the process that would be required for them to lodge concerns about a particular parklet operation to petition its removal or modification. And there is a process. So I've learned through talking with the city attorney that there is a process involved. And I'm wondering if someone from the city attorney's office can talk a little bit about is there a process? What is that process? And I know personally that we're involved in some of those discussions, but I don't know that we've readily shared the process. And if if staff will remember the last time this item came to council, I specifically asked as part of the extension that there be a process outlined that residents could have an opportunity to lodge objections to a particular operation. So to answer your question, the Council on Women Prices we had during the pandemic, we had the venue task force and so that venue task force to go out and seek enforcement of the emergency health order. In addition, they would go out and monitor some of the parklets that were out when they're out and visiting businesses. And so as part of that task force, we would receive complaints. And as a result of those complaints, we would contact businesses that had parklets. If there was an issue, we would communicate with the business owners. Some of them were cited in the past and usually the citations would handle whatever activity was occurring or whatever the problem was in re lation to the PARKLET as far as removal of the PARKLET. There's only been one that's been removed and that was involving restoration and that involved violations related to the health order. And we did removed out, but we noticed the business of the decision to remove the parklet. They were provided with 72 hours notice that it would be removed and they were also provided with an opportunity to have an administrative hearing. If they were if they wanted to appeal that decision to remove it, which they did. And we had the appeal and the appeal was denied in the park that was removed. So that's kind of the process that we had. If there's something else or would you have another question specific to any other area? I can't answer that as well. Well, I will, but I'll have to save it to later. So I don't want to run out of time. But in looking at option number two on slide number 14. So first of all, our permanent parklet application process is lengthy. And one of the things that I talked to the city manager about is if we're going to meaningfully allow people to apply for permanent parklets, we need that and give them this timeline of August 1st. We need that turnaround to be faster. And if we only have a select architects that they can choose from, they can't pick their own architect and they have to go through the city process and wait for city staff to be able to review things. And how can we ensure that we're able to meet these timelines? I think that's a legitimate question, Councilwoman. And, you know, it will take time for businesses to contact an engineer or a architect to design these permanent structures. You know, we will be telling businesses right upfront if they're not going to be eligible for this program at all because of safety reasons. But, yes, you are correct that they will have to quickly, you know, figure out what they want to do, make contact. And we're going to have to expedite our review of these permanent parklet permits as they come in with the designs to make those turnarounds and formal approvals happen. If you need to change the dates again, we're looking for council's direction. If we need to give them more time. And I will point out that none of this is really new. They business is really new. Back in December of 2021 that this was going away in June of 30 of 2022. So council was pretty specific that that was the time. The reason that we're just doing this now is if somebody is almost done and they've done their work and all they need to do is submit it. You know, that's kind of what we're looking for. We don't think someone who has who has waited all this time and is just today starting is going to qualify. And that is kind of a business decision that they had to make. Okay. I'm going to my time is up, so I'm going to queue back up. Before we go to public comments, there's a couple other foundational questions I want to ask Councilman Allen. Yes. It's okay, Mira. I'd like to wait until I hear from the public before my comments. Councilman. Sorry. Did you want to go now? First the public. Yes. I just have a really quick question because I'm trying to understand option two does. What about I mean, I don't think opioids are going to be able to apply for anything permanent. So would they have a different option to be able to extend out a few more months out? Because I do have one in my district. Yes. So Opie's right now in the staff recommendation, it's it is that they would end June 30th. We would be looking for a motion from you to help provide us just with a time of how long you would want piece to be extended to. And who would it cover? Would it be the ones that are on private property? Would it be the ones that are on public property? Is it none of them. And we can help. You know, the one that you're talking about, for example, Councilmember is on would be on private property. So. And those are going to be very hard to apply for permanently because you'd have to change the underlying zoning in order to apply for that where a parklet there is an established process picking a park, but there really is not an established process to do what many of them are doing currently. Could I didn't do a motion to extend the lapse to September 30th of 2022. They're on private property just so that they have some time. If they have stuff on there too, knowing that it they can't make it permanent. That could be a motion. And then we would want to get some input on public versus private as well. And I would accept that as a friendly. Okay. Thank you. And that was for all EPS or public or private. Well, I think that her motion was for the the privates. I would be okay extending it for public. But I want to hear from the public. There is one particular PE in the third district that needs to be modified because it is. Abutting a neighboring business and needs that the footprint needs to be modified. But if they want to apply for permanent OHIP. Is that even an option now? Oh, no. So there's no option for permanent OHIP. At all. That's correct. There's no option currently for dedication of a permanent o.p. You'd have to change zoning. There's a lot of different changes you would have to change. Okay. Well, that's a good clarification question. Okay. So for this so going. Oh, I'm sorry, Councilwoman Sarah, it's still your. Oh, yeah. No, I'm done. That was it. I just wanted to offer that motion. Sorry. Okay. Back to you, Councilwoman. Thank you. Okay, so. So regarding this process being streamlined, streamlined. So we have commitment from city staff that you will expedite your process if there are applications. That is correct. Okay. Looking here, you mentioned this language of they will be notified that they it may not be feasible because of safety or quality of life concerns. At what point will they. It's one thing to say to someone it may not be feasible. Go through the application process anyway and keep your parklet open. It's another to say we have determined, based on wha t we already know, this location is not feasible. Therefore you need to shut the parklet down now. What? What is the answer? There will be cases where we know a certain parklet is maybe not being a good neighbor where they may be impacting the quality of life of the nearby residents. And in those cases, there is wording in a let me get the right number here in the municipal code that gives the city traffic engineer and the city engineer a little bit of authority to basically shut that parklet down or not allow a permanent parklet. So some of that authority is there. You know, it doesn't have to be a safety item. It doesn't have to be something that is that is quantitative. It can be just where we have lots of complaints, where the complaints are documented, where we know there are problems. Again, these are quality of life issues that definitely impact the safety of the area. And if I'm hearing you correctly, Councilmember, I think you want us to be a little more definitive and not, you know, maybe this, maybe that. So. I totally agree with that. I think we just need to make a decision. We've got two years of data here. And I think if it's that one is lots of complaints is not going to be feasible. We need to just give them the answer that it is not feasible. There may be somewhere with a one foot change in your boundary you could become feasible. I think that is in a different category. And if I may. Councilmember Price. Yes. Is Aaron with the city attorney's office. We are in a unique scenario here because we've had temporary parklets operating for almost for over two years where we have a parklet, a permanent parklet program that exists exists under our municipal code. And so specifically, what our traffic engineer is referring to is there's a section in 14.1 5.0 30b that specifically gives the opportunity and requires that to the satisfaction of the director of public works. Before a. Permit, a permanent parklet permit can be issued. There has to be written consent from the applicable community organizations and building associations, providing evidence of the organization's approval or lack of objection to a Park Parklet installation. So that's the process by which those quality of life considerations come forward in the permanent parklet process. Okay, good. And I wanted to talk about that because we referenced community organizations, but that is as a very broad definition. A community organization can be a group of neighbors on a street who call themselves the Blanc residents because their community, you know, engaged in community activities as a block in Belmont Shores. Specifically, there is a business association. There's two residents associations. There's no highways, but there's community organizations. So I just want to make sure that that process involves feedback from not a particular organization per se, but whether it's neighbors, community members, business association, that that feedback is obtained. Absolutely. And specifica lly, that section of the municipal code says that it's to the satisfaction of the director of public works, which gives that ability to to ensure that the appropriate folks are having the opportunity to chime in in the process. Okay. And what about an appeals process? So I imagine that business owners have a right to appeal or do they have a right to appeal? Well, there's a vested right. There's been the extension of of an appeal or due process. Right. So, for example, for folks that are engaged in our temporary PARKLET program, our temporary PARKLET permit includes an an appeal. Right. And that was something that Deputy City Attorney Art Sanchez explained in relation to the restoration parklet removal in our code section under this permanent parklet program. That right right to vests when the parklet right vests. And that's covered in section. Sorry. 1/2. 14.1 5.110. And that's when you have a. Parklet permit that has been extended and you're going to have some significant change or revocation of that permit, and that's where the appeal arises. Okay. So the right requires both due process of documenting the allegations, following through a certain process, and then the right of appeal. In relation to the permanent Parklet program? That's correct. In relation to sorry, in relation to the temporary PARKLET program? That's correct. In relation to the appeal rights under the Long Beach Municipal Code for the Permanent Parklet program. There needs to be that vested right in the permit. It's in the Parklet itself. Got it. Okay. All right. I think I have enough questions right now that I've asked that might help answer some of the questions, but would if it's OC. Vice Mayor, I'm sorry, the mayor's back to go to public comment. Yeah, we're going to go to public comment. We do have a significant number of folks who have signed up for public comment. So it's more than the ten threshold. So that'll go that will be the 92nd clock automatically for the council rules. So if you want to go ahead and read the first set of five folks and then we'll just go through the public comment. Thank you. Will the following speakers please line up at the podium? Heather Carlile. Mark Carlisle. Bill Sheehan. Rita Santos. Oceana and Kelly MacLean. Hello. I'm Heather Carlisle. I'm the owner of the Belmont Shore Children's Center, located at Terminal Avenue in Olympic Plaza. The park put in front of my business was put there without my consent. There has been a gross lack of enforcement of violations. The Iconix IP structure be shown in the packet that I have submitted to you in advance of this meeting is it is within six feet of our classrooms and playground structure. B is harmful to our children, disrupting their peaceful environment and interfering with their ability to learn that children hear inappropriate music with vulgar lyrics daily. Per the Long Beach Noise Ordinance, our schools designated a quiet zone, locating lively group fitness activities with loud booming music and shouting and structured instructors adjacent to children's classrooms should never have been allowed and should stop immediately. I respectfully ask our District three Councilmember Susie Price to make a motion to amend the ICONIX or IP so as to remove structure b. I ask the other council members to support this vital request. The removal structure be is fair to both the gym and the preschool. The gym has a plethora of outdoor space and structure, a Olympic Plaza Park and the gym's 4000 square foot roof. Rooftop. Please protect our children and remove the iconic structure. Be away from our classrooms. Thank you for your consideration. Council members. Mary Garcia, this is Marc Carlile, and my family owns the Belmont Shore Children's Center that my wife was just talking about, located on the corner of Olympic Plaza and terminal in Belmont Shore. May just be straight to it here. I'm here to request that our District three Councilmember Susie Price make a motion to amend the Iconix Fitness OPIS on Olympic Plaza so as to close and remove the ap parklet structure that is positioned between the property lines of the Belmont Shore Children's Center and to return that space to the original state and purpose. Please note that I am not asking you to deny the extension if you so decide to do so of the Iconix Fitness App beyond the current expiration date of June 30th, 2022, but instead to amend it so that it protects the rights, health and safety of the children at the Belmont Shore Children's Center, as well as the members of Iconix Fitness. Under an amended Iconix, fitness would still be granted the structure that currently occupies 175 square feet, 175 feet of Olympic Plaza between their property lines, as well as the continued use of the entire Olympic Plaza Park itself. In addition, iconic fitness has 4169 square feet of outdoor space available on its rooftop. The only thing that would change would be the removal of the structure in front of our property that has become brutally inappropriate and is without our consideration. Your time has expired. Thank you. Thank you. Good evening. My name is Bill Sheehan. I'm a Long Beach resident. I am opposed to granting another extension for the Belmont Shore. Temporary Parklets on safety grounds. Have any of you ever driven north on Pomona or Laverne Avenue and tried to make a right turn onto Second Street? A sizable portion of the site line looking west is blocked by Parklets. And what I took away from Mister Hickman was that some of these parklets will be rejected because of safety reasons. So my question is, are there currently unsafe parklets that we know about out there and why haven't they been removed? Yes, the parklets have helped the restaurant survive COVID, but indoor dining is back and so should the repeated sightlines that would allow drivers to drive more safely in the Second Street area. Thank you. Good evening to all. My name is Rita Santos Toyama, and I am a resident of Dist trict three. Please appreciate that a one size fits all approach to Parklets is not effective. The overreaches and abuses seen by bars and restaurants in Belmont Shaw are unlike any anything you've seen or likely to see in your own districts outside the third 45 of the 93 total parklets are in District three. Some 30 of them on Second Street and the pier. The bulk of those expressing interest in permanent structures are in the same area. Four of you have zero parklets in your district and have likely not experienced the hazards an affront to quality of life that residents of Belmont Shaw feel and smell every day. Others have half the number of parklets in the third. The third district does. Please understand and respect that the unique landscape and density of our neighborhood is not at all safe and conducive to ongoing assault of community standards. The lack of oversight in the two year old temporary parklets point to a grim future for permanent ones in the Shaw. Please sunset the temporary program on June 30th and the overreach protect our Valley community. Thank you. Kelly Macklin Well, the next five speakers will line up Ryan Hoover, Melinda Cotton, Jeff Miller, Jenny Holbrook and Brian Cochrane. Thank you. Please begin. Good evening. Mayor Gracey and City Council members. My name is Kelly MacLean. I work alongside the executive director of the Long Beach Restaurant Association and I am speaking on their behalf. I am also a Long Beach resident in District one. The LBA is an. Enthusiastic supporter of extending the PARKLET program and believes the program should become permanent. The PARKLET program has allowed for the survival of Long Beach restaurants during the pandemic and are still in high demand from both customers and employees who continue to take COVID precautions. The Attleboro also request that the Council consider streamlining the permit process for permanent parklets. The current process is cumbersome and too expensive for many small businesses. Please extend the PARKLET program. The Long Beach Restaurant Association would love to work with the Council on the best parklet process and planning moving forward. Thank you. Mayor Garcia, an honorable council member, is my name is Ryan Hoover. I'm a fourth generation language native and founding member of the Long Beach Restaurant Association. I come to unite, to voice my concerns to all of you about the premature end to the temporary parklet program. I believe I have a unique perspective with this as I'm an owner on the second street of Katy Branigan's, as well as a resident in the third district in Naples. Pardon me for once. The open street. That was a godsend when you guys opened it. It allowed us to open under certain conditions that were unfeasible for business. It allowed owners to be that were saddled with debt to take and had taken out loans to pay for the parklets. And it also allowed businesses to stay open while playing their employees with Governor Newsom. State of emergenc y and still active COVID 19 cases on the rise in L.A. County stating that we could be heading for mask mandates again. I think it's a little early to close this program's door. I emphatically ask that you extend the program to a later deadline in order to allow time for further COVID policies to unfold, to give more time to the city and staff to facilitate a permanent parklet program that could be implemented in a timely manner, as well as give them time to set up and develop the infrastructure to accelerate a process from start to end with internal and external entities that are involved in the permitting process. I have personally gone through this already and Coastal Commission and the permitting process are not cohesive at all. Thank you. Jenny Holbrook, Long Beach resident. Mayor Garcia and council members. I'm asking you to terminate the temporary parklets. As of June 30th. This was your. December decision, and I see no. Reason why you should change your. Mind today. The businesses have had months to apply. For and build permanent parklets through. The established process. As was outlined by Mr. Modica. Parklet on Second Street in Belmont Shore or the Parklets at the pier do not make sense for many. Reasons, including. Negative impacts to parking, traffic flow, esthetics and noise. But most importantly is the negative impact they. Have had on access. For the disability community. The reach required five feet of clear pedestrian. Access on sidewalks is not. Maintained by many of the PARKLET operators and this requirement has. Not been enforced by public works either. The Long Beach Citizens Advisory Commission on Disabilities has outlined these concerns in detail in a. Memo that all of you received and also Mr. Modica received, and that was stated on five 1222. Please read it. Please do not extend. A temporary parklets. Beyond June 30th. Thank you. Good evening, Mayor and council members. My name is Melinda Cotton and I live in Belmont Shore. We were told when the temporary Parklet program was designed to help restaurants survive COVID 19 restrictions. But somehow the iconic private gym and fitness business was allowed. In the summer of 2020 to take over half of a two way street to Olympic Plaza Drive near the Belmont Pier, closing one lane of traffic and taking over some 20 free public parking spaces near the beach. Iconix was given a special advance permit at OJP and the Public Works Department installed Orange K rails or barricades down the middle of the public street. Iconix then installed tall chain link fencing around this barricaded street and parking spaces, filling it with gym equipment and a storage container. For the past two years, only Iconix paid members and staff have been allowed this former public space. There are no longer any restrictions on Iconix, but it still has possession of this space. The takeover of Olympic Plaza Drive is unnecessary and unconscionable. The city should remove those barricades and return this public street and public parking spaces for coastal visitors and the families and children trying to escape inland summer heat. It was an inexpensive day at the beach and. Your time has expired. Jeff Miller and brian cochran. Good evening, mayor. And members of the council and the residents of belmont shore. 100 more than 100 of them who are not able to be here tonight, but signed a petition asking that the parklets be terminated. I live in Belmont Shore, half a block from Second Street. My comments are concerning only the Belmont Shore Parklets. Belmont Shore has had the reputation of a great neighborhood. It's a nice place to live, to visit, to shop, to dine, to take visitors. Don't we all want to preserve that image? Isn't that important for the image of Belmont Shore? This image has been hurt by the parklets, and there's a danger of that becoming permanent. The substantial loss of parking has been mentioned. It's now a danger to vehicles pedestrians at intersections because of the lack of visibility. The walkability of the neighborhood has been lost. There are sidewalk obstructions. It's impossible to stroll leisurely and converse. The sidewalks are filled with dining tables, signage, servers, patrons waiting. The appearance is terrible. So to keep parklets or not, they should be decided by neighborhoods. And they may be okay in some neighborhoods, but they're not appropriate in Belmont. Sure, it would be a decision only to profit. Sorry. Your time has expired. Well, the following five speakers please line up. Julie Dean, Rita see Estella to door. Geoffrey Mozart. Dimitrios So if you can line up at the podium, please. Are and council members. How was your day? How was your morning? Pleasant, I hope. Mine started with five trucks and half a dozen workmen doing loud construction at Belmont Brewing Company, 100 feet from the bedrooms and living spaces of some 140 residents in my condo complex. My morning included someone who drove in their car through a public walkway to the foot of the nearby pier and decided to blast their music for 30 minutes. It included another 2 hours of those workmen sawing, drilling, hammering and dropping heavy items on the walkway meant for pedestrians, bicyclists and runners. Had there been an emergency, no fire truck or ambulance could have gotten through. My month has included illegally parked motorcyclists throwing debris at my window, spurred on by the owner of an adjacent catering business operating within OCP, who routinely parks his vehicles in the public walkway. It also included the same owner at 10 p.m. on a weekend, interrupting his noisy, unloading supplies on the public walkway to stand under my balcony and ask if I was watching porn on my phone because I was documenting his violations for the police. He asked in front of dozens of my neighbors if I was a pedophile. Owners and managers of these businesses haven't just encroached on public space. They've treated it as our exclusive domain. They've been contemptu

ous of residents outreach and all efforts to mitigate. They let their employees, vendors and customers do whatever they want. They lied to police and city officials. There are daily and weekly occurrences in my neighborhood. Does that happen in your area? I hope not. It's time to end these parklets or sweeps and sweeps. It's truly time. Hello, Mayor and council members. My name is Julie Dean. I live in Belmont Shore and I've been there for 25 years. There's been or there was a certified class action suit filed against the city of Long Beach on behalf of persons with mobility disabilities. The parties reached a settlement in 2017 that's been entered as a binding order of the Federal Court and has a 30 year term through 2047. The law firm involved submitted a letter to the mayor and council members sorry, addressing sidewalk access for persons with mobility disabilities as it relates to the city's temporary and permanent parklet programs. They have photographs showing tables, chairs, signs, planters, and even some semi-permanent structures that reduce the clear width of the pedestrian right of way adjacent to park, located on and around Second Street in the Belmont Shore neighborhood. The photographs show bar and restaurant patrons congregating on sidewalks near the Parklets subject. Such obstructions deny access to persons with mobility disabilities. And I know this firsthand. The city has a binding court enforceable obligation to ensure the accessibility of its pedestrians. Right of way. In addition, the requirements of State and federal disability and discrimination laws. The settlement requires the city to maintain the accessible features of its pedestrian facilities so that persons with mobility disabilities will be able to use such safely and independently. Thank you very much. Good evening. Mayor Garcia and council members. I am ready to write. And I have been a resident of Belmont Shores since 1972, and I am still thrilled that I can stand on my corner and have the choice of at least a half dozen restaurants within one block in either direction. Living half a block from Second Street. My husband and I have frequented the restaurants and businesses there since the days of the Belmont Theater and Hops Hub. However, today, these days, many of the current restaurants are overreaching and they are encroaching on public property. They are taking up valuable parking places and they are placing tables on the sidewalks, impeding pedestrian traffic and parklets. On second, continue to be a safety hazard and an impediment to the to the vital thoroughfare for local residents, for the commuters and for visitors. In 1996. 97. Sidewalks were widened to accommodate for the specific purpose of accommodating outdoor dining. And since the new restaurants have been moving in, many of them have opened up the entire front of their estab. Your time has expired, ma'am. Name. Your time has expired. Good evening. Two weeks ago, our resident group made an impassioned plea to city council to not allow permanent parklets in Belmont. Sure, we shared a data based presentation explaining how Belmont sure is too dense in population and Second Street has is too busy a thoroughfare to host parklets. And now we see that public works is bending over backwards to allow restaurants to request by requesting a permanent status by August 1st. With that request, the restaurant can keep their so-called temporary parklets. The temporary parklets were to sunset June 30th. After three prior extensions, they were not constructed to last two years. Second Street now looks like a shantytown. The street smells like an alley. The sidewalks are filthy. And now we have to endure this. Three more months. We no longer have a situation of need on the part of the restaurant. The two year old Long Beach Restaurant Association, which has been crying, need somehow afforded a highly paid executive director to get city deals in its members favor. The borough has been laying the foundation for widespread permanent parklets since its inception in 2020 and using the cover of the pandemic to advance its goals. You have a chance tonight to make the. Ma'am, your time has expired. Good evening. My name's Jeff Cozart, and I'm coming to you tonight from a little bit different perspective. I'm not a resident of Belmont. I live in the fourth District, but I owned the Belmont Athletic Club that is in the third district. And my concern with the Parklets speaks directly to the mature. When they first came about, I was 100% behind that program. It was needed. We were all fighting for our survival. Um. Now there are tons of businesses in Belmont Shore that are still fighting. And one of the things that we desperately need is our parking back. I have friends here tonight who are pro parklet. They are some of my friends. Clients. They owned restaurants down there and I get it for them. I probably want to keep it too. But this issue is very, very simple. It's just about what's fair. They needed help two years ago. I'm glad they got that help. But now the rest of us need what we all share back. It's really just that simple. Thank you. Mr. Mayor. Members of the city council. I'm Jimmy Lloyd, the owner of George's Greek Cafe in Belmont Shore, along with my sister, Nicky. You know, the Parker thing did save us. And it and still to this day does save a lot of people still in Long Beach. Don't want to sit inside yet. They're concerned, rightfully so. Everybody has a right to feel the way they do. We we have had a hard time this year with getting customers in staffing, cost of goods going up over 20% for our our specific needs. I think if we had the opportunity to get a permanent parklet, a lot of these concerns that came up before me would be probably be addressed in the process. I have hired Perkovic and Ruth, who has brought, I believe, two or three of the Parklets, and they've had no headway in trying to get the process into public works and get it done. So my conc ern is if yes, if there's a process to get to a permanent park that make them look nice, make sure they're safe, make sure that there's access for handicapped people and that's more walkable, then that process should be in place and we should be allowed to at least try to apply for it. I try to play it in 15 and it was shot down and now have been told even today I was texting with my architect that it's still not a real process to get a permanent parklet. These things can all be addressed and bad players can be excluded. And the ones that I want to do the good job and be good neighbors should be rewarded. Thank you for your time. Will the following speakers please line up the podium? Nicky Clare. Pete Marsh. Rod Farentino. Jenny Cuevas. Sandy Watson. Nikki Clare. Pete Marsh. Rod Farentino. Jenny Cuevas and Sandy Watson. Good evening, mayor, vice mayor and council members. I think my brother just spoke for me. Oddly enough, I'm going right after him and I. I agree with what he's saying. We have been trying for a long time to go through the proper channels to get a permanent parklet with no headway, nobody getting back to us. I've read some of the articles in The Grunion and I understand and I agree with what people are saying. They're frustrated that we're not getting back to them and saying backing up what we're saying that we're going to help out and clean up and make it safe and make them and beautify them. But it's hard to to put that into play when we don't get any answers back and we can't. It doesn't make financial sense to spend an exorbitant amount of money to bring parklets up to standard of what's expected to be safe and esthetically pleasing at the expense of a temporary solution. So if we can get some headway in that, I know that that would take care of a lot of the problems, and there's certain guidelines that everybody has to follow. So thank you for tearing us out. Pete Marsh. Rod Farentino. Good evening, Mayor. Council and city staff. My name is Rod Farentino. I'm a Long Beach resident, born and raised here. I'm also a restaurant owner and I am a member of the Long Beach Restaurant Association. To my knowledge, the agenda item this evening is not about Parklet or no PARKLET. It actually relates to terminating the temporary outdoor Parklet program on June 30th, or potentially extending the temporary outdoor dining period to some date in the future. And in this case, until September, September 30th, only for those that apply for permanency. The state of California still has its state of emergency in effect. I see many of you wearing mask here tonight. COVID is still here. Cases are rising once again. L.A. County is on the verge of a mask mandate. Also, the Alcohol Beverage Control has extended their outdoor drinking in these temporary spaces for one year after the California state of emergency ends. Folks, the state is still in a state of emergency. So if many people here tonight, I want to tell you that we're not in a state of emer gency as it relates to COVID. I disagree. It is still here. Many members of the public still only dine outdoors. I get reservations. Online. Daily. Outdoor dining only. The city is considering terminating our outdoor dining program with no expedited, expedited plan to to get us through the process. We need the city to tell us what to do. By June 30th. Next week. Your police. My name is Jennifer Cuevas. I o Taco Shaw in Belmont. Shaw And I would like to thank you for letting us have the parklet throwing all this awful time in COVID, however, were not recovered. We do need the help still. We do have a lot of residents coming in loving the parklets. They just don't come to the meetings here. But we always we always get those feedback that they love it. It's important for us to keep at it. Where? At the beach. Beach. They absolutely just help us survive. We have I have 23 employees that depend on my decisions and your decisions and that actually help us keep on with the community and bring works back. And it's just important for us to keep the Parklets I understand that a lot of residents are not happy with the way that some owners are managing their stores, penalize them, do something with them. But Don, don't do it to all of us. It's not fair that we are doing what we are supposed to. We are following all the protocols. Help us survive. Help us keep going with, you know, the business and then just keep it open. Thank you. Hi. My name is Sandy Watson and I am a resident of the third district. I'm a retired schoolteacher from Albany, USD. When I think of when I think of Long Beach, we were in Beach City and we are beaches and walking on the shores and sunsets and outdoor dining. I love the outdoor dining. I think it's made a really great impact to downtown or to Second Street. I, I just am so impressed that you guys were able to get together and think out of the box. As a teacher, I think that's what we encourage our kids to do all the time and sneak out of the box. And together with the restaurant, you've come up with a way to do that. Let's not punish them now because they're not out of the whole thing. Started saying that they did it for economic recovery. You can't tell me the restaurants have recovered now when they're just starting to have their summer season, when they can have their their and their customers sit outside, which is what we want to do as residents. We don't want to be sitting inside. As the other gentleman said, it's outside dining that we're looking for. So I just hope that you will at least extend this parklets to the end of the summer to help those cuts in the restaurants and the residents. Thank you. Well, the following five speakers, please. Lineup. Katie Fahey. Anna Christiansen, Darryl Burns. Kieran Gow. Jeff Roe. Oh, thank you. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. Council members. Fellow citizens. Pete Marsh, District two. I'm a climate advocate. And so I rode my bike here today. I rode my bike this morning to a restaurant that w e, my business partner and I chose because we wanted to eat outdoors. So we ate in a parklet. And my wife and I have only been we've only been indoors maybe three times in the last two and a half years. We still look for outdoor seating. So both for the health reasons, I agree with the folks who have said, you know, the pandemic is not over yet. We're fooling ourselves if we just say that. More, more big picture. I'm thinking about the future. We've got a good program in this city for establishing bike lanes and bike routes and bike ways. I'm just. Just learning. We've had our electric bikes for less than a month. I'm trying to replace a second car. I think we need to think about that in all aspects of urban planning to make our cities denser, more walkable, bikeable and livable. And so this discussion tonight, I think, is a microcosm of many bigger discussions to come as we try to increase the the vibrancy of this great city. Thanks very much. Good evening. My name is Katie

Fahy. I live in the third district and have lived there over 20 years. I am not against all parklets. I feel that they have enhanced our area on Second Street and people have been responsible for what they have. The owners, the managers. I can speak. I want to speak specifically to what affects me daily and my family. I live in Glendora. And when I was here, I was here back in December and told you having it on the sidewalk or having on the side street has brought dogs into my living room. I am the first line of defense. My yard and house have essentially become dog smoking section and bathroom. We can't make a blanket rule or policy. We need to do it individually and by people's actions and how they are responsible for their area. Dogs has shown time and time again they could care less of how they integrate into the community. People stand in the street, hanging on the parklet, watching the TVs, dog pastries, patrons hang out in the dry, cleaner parking lot, yelling back and forth at their friends. I have been told that they're adding new security. They're the ones who are smoking pot in the parking lot. Just this Saturday, I had someone peeing on the wall in my house and had to call the police. And I have kids that are watching this and it's not right. So you need to take responsibility and manage the parklets as well as. I hope the traffic directors listening to this because it is about. Your time is beginning, Ms. Christiansen. Fine. Just a comment. The Sierra Club most serious task force, third district resident born in Long Beach. Yada, yada, yada. On this issue, I'm concerned about two people that are violating what I think is just common courtesy and public safety. I noticed that the traffic director said that. That. They're going to assess who gets to. Stay and who gets to go. Based on a lot of complaints. And then he also said that people don't know how to complain. So I think there's a little. Bit of a. Break here. And I hope that people who learn how to complain a nd this can be expressed sooner rather than later will be able to be taken seriously, even if it's not hasn't occurred over a long period of time. I'm concerned about, I think, the word park. That's kind of strange. But anyway, I totally understand what Ms.. Cotton is saying about Down by the beach there, where an entire street has been taken over for a gym. And it's not just the street they take. The gym takes over the park and even the beach and even the bicycle path. You can't ride a bicycle down the path. They do classes on the bike path. So this particular business owner is pretty out of control and has his own outdoor deck. So what I find is interesting. You know. As Christiansen, your times expired. Good evening. My name's Darryl Burns. I live on a glendora street in Belmont. Sure. And, you know, I think I came and spoke here a few months ago, and I was very frustrated with one establishment down the street, Doug's bar. And but at that point in time, I was really very supportive of all the other parklets supportive of this effort and really felt like, you know, how do we hold some some places accountable? I guess what I've learned is you can't hold them accountable once they have a parklet. And so my concern about extending where I was very flexible in the beginning, I would say I really encourage you to not extend the parklets as far as permanent parklets. I hope you put a process in place where there is a grievance process. What I have found is a huge burden falls on the community to have to hold them accountable. I know there are some inspections and some things done when there's complaints. Those folks are probably not out there one in the morning. I know people say the parklets are closed at that point in time. Patrons still go out and hang out there. As one of the previous speakers said, you know, we had someone come and just urinate right in front of us. You know, we had another person later in the evening, he walked by, fell down on all fours. I went over to check on him. He said he drank too much, got up, stumbled around, and then went back to the bar. So, you know, I think the quality of life. Good evening, everyone. My name is Karen Goff on the 908 restaurant El Ultimo Pizzeria. And then I'm the president of the Long Beach Restaurant Association. Oakland. San Luis Obispo. San Francisco. Manhattan Beach. Claremont. Santa monica. Most of Orange County cities. A bunch of cities and San Diego have all decided to extend the temporary permit process for Parklets. That's like what? Somehow in Long Beach we can only do it for 30 days. We've asked for over a year for an easier path towards what the permanent parklet process is, and we haven't really gotten any movement on that. It's cumbersome. It's 27 pages. There's only two architecture firms that you can hire. It's like they're backed up. The city is short staffed. We've heard that from all of you. That's like so we can't even get the parklets approved in a timely fashion. All we' re asking for is that we get a we get a path towards temporary being extended into such a time to where we have a permanent parklet process that works for the entire city and the restaurant community. We know there's a lot of people from downtown. Sure. That have an issue with

Parklets. We get it. We thank them for their patience and helping us through this whole time and COVID. However, Bellman sure doesn't dictate policy for the entire city, so we need to take that into consideration and go from there. Thank you. Well, the following speakers, please line up the podium. Susan Row. Nadia Tushnet. Michael Neufeld. Kurt Schneider. Good evening, council members and Mayor Garcia. When I heard that on January, on January 1st, we were going to have to end the PARKLET program on June 30th. Two weeks later, I started applying for the process. I went to an architecture firm. I got told. We'll get to you when we get to you. It's been five and a half months. I've had one meeting with the architecture firm. No quote, except for him to tell me it's going to be 40 to $60,000 to put a permanent parklet in and to lose two thirds of them. Excuse me, one third of my current parklet. I don't know how people say that this is not a survival instinct for us. We're all we've all made do during COVID. We have started to come out of it. COVID is not over. Mask mandates are coming back. And I don't think that anybody has also considered that for every park that closes, at least 1 to 2 employees will be losing their jobs from our restaurants because we have nothing to give them for shifts. So please consider extending and making the process for us to go permanent for us who are doing the right thing easier. We want to do the right thing. We want to make our parklets beautiful. We want to make Long Beach beautiful. Thank you. Hi. I'm Susan Rowe. And I actually lived in Belmont Heights about three blocks off of Second Street. Second Street used to be a destination that I would go to frequently with my daughter for Christmas parades and the Halloween candy walk, the stroll and savors. I can't imagine any of that stuff happening now. There are shuttered businesses there. I wouldn't put a business on that street right now because you can't even see the businesses with all of the parklets. I have a prepared statement, but I did want to say I didn't get a survey and it's not more walkable. I rarely go there anymore. So it's time to end the temporary parklets. The bars and restaurants have received hundreds of thousands of dollars of loans that were forgiven. Dogs alone, one of the worst offenders of community standards and frequent violator of Parklet rules, got 370,000. Belmont Brewing Company got $923,000. Iconix Fitness $717,000. The bars and restaurants have received extensive state aid. Even now, the city continues to dole out its remaining relief funds. To them, permit fees were way for the entirety of the pandemic. To date, the Libra won extra funds up to $10,000 for bars a nd restaurants to create outdoor dining and thousands more to update their technology. No other sector of city businesses has received aid anywhere close to these amounts. No individual resident received rescue funds that lasted more than a month. Rust. Ma'am, your time has expired. Hello. My name's Nadir Tushnet, and I've been living in Long Beach for almost 40 years. Not quite at the shore. But when I first moved here, one of the things I liked to do was I'm a great wanderer and wandered around the businesses in the shore. I want to talk about I understand the economic impact of the cost of COVID on on restaurants. But right now, there was two other economic impacts that we should take into account. First of all, there is a high cost to the city of oversight and accountability around the existing parklets we heard it described. So that's a cost that should be taken into account as we move on with this. There's also the economic impact on the non restaurant businesses. If you can't wander down the street, which you can't, I'll tell you, then those businesses suffer. We talk a lot. I hear a lot of talk about choosing winners and losers. If we're going to choose restaurants over other kinds of businesses as the winners and the other businesses are the losers, I'm not sure that that's actually fair. Thank you. Good evening, everybody. Mayor Council. Uh, with respect, first of all, to Mr. America's admonishment of what we've been doing for six months in terms of not a lot of us being able to get the paperwork. And I think there was a comment in the back there what we've been doing. I think I can speak on behalf of all the restaurant owners in the room. We've been washing our own dishes and cooking all the food for the guests because we can't seem to find workers to do that. That's what we've been doing for six months, in addition to running our businesses and losing money. So the reality is, is that and I have an IP, I don't have a parklet clip, but I'm certainly speaking as a fiduciary on behalf of the other the other restaurant owners here. City of L.A. just extended this to March for a variety of reasons. And this shouldn't be a permanent situation. We know that. But there's just not enough time. It's premature. You've heard enough about the process with respect to permanent parklets. We need more time. We need more time to work with you. We need more time to clean up the Parklets you know, we need to address that. It's a real problem and we get it. And you know, as a founding member of the borough, you have our commitment that we want to work with you and we want to understand what we need to do to improve it. It's not a perfect program. It's not a perfect process. But we've been just trying to survive and keep 20,000 restaurant workers employed in the city of Long Beach. So we ask for a little bit more time and a little bit more clarity and a little bit more communication so that we can help you have the city that you vision here and help us st ay in business. Thank you. Good evening, Mayor Garcia. City Council people and the well-behaved baby. Tonight, I'd like to address as the president of the Belmont Shore Business Association to thank all of you and city staff for what you've done, letting us have these parklets as long as we've had. I don't want to reiterate everything everybody else has already said. So many great comments have made. There's been falsities as well, but I'm here for positivity. What I will say today is that if the city enforces the municipal codes, the ADA rules, we will be forced to adhere. I am here to be your biggest advocate. As a president of the Belmont Shore Business Association, five feet. We have to have five feet. I want to see anybody with ADA issues to never have a problem in Belmont Shore. I want you to come to Belmont Shore and know that we care for you and want you to visit our restaurants and our retail. That is nobody's intent but a poor operator. They should be fined. They should be warned first and then find. I am here to back you 100%. What I will tell you right now is that to extend this would be a godsend to some. We are not through this. The permanency is an issue. I have my plans ready from my own place and so many of the other people are ready to go. If Mr. Hickman and DeKoe do this, we will help you. We will work well with you. Thank you so much. Your staff has been fantastic. Your time has expired. Thank you. That concludes public comment. Thank you. I'm going I also have some a couple questions as well, but I'm going to turn it back over to Councilman Price and then we'll go. Go then, councilman. Okay. So a couple of issues. Can someone please address the ADA concerns? And let me just make one thing very clear that I have been consistent across the board both to the restaurants and non restaurants that have parklets as well as the residents that I absolutely believe that Belmont Shore is in a different situation than Parklets throughout the city and that Belmont Shaw needs to be considered differently and separately for a couple of reasons. One, the proximity of homes to the residences, given the density, is different in Belmont Shaw than some other business corridors that have parklets. One of the residents here talked about her house literally on the alley that is adjacent to one of the businesses. That's an unusual situation and an unusual dynamic. And I've been very clear with every entity that has asked me repeatedly that Belmont Shore is differently situated and that because of parking issues, because it's in the coastal zone , that it's going to have to be treated differently. I've been very consistent with that in terms of the traffic engineers determination. Also, the traffic speeds and volumes on Belmont Shore are different. We don't have the option to close down a lane. I know people have suggested that in the past to allow for parklets the volume on that street is just too great. We can't close down a lane. I wish we could c onsider that, but we can't even consider that. It would be horrific for traffic. The second thing that I think is is very clear is obviously because we have a lot going on in Belmont. Sure, the ADA issues might be different in Belmont Shore than other places given the number of Parklets. So can someone speak to that? Are we. Is it currently are we not in compliance? Have we considered that? What's the status. There? Councilwoman, we do have a group of people who work in the transportation mobility team. We do go out and walk the entire corridor from Bayshore to Livingston, both sides of the road on multiple occasions. I've been out there four or five times myself. When we do these walks and inspections, we're checking for a variety of things, including ADA clearances that we have to maintain. We do talk to businesses, managers, whoever is on site that can make the adjustment with tables, chairs, or maybe even keeping the patrons out of the walkway. We also have a task force that goes out and responds to similar issues as well. The problem is, is that we can't be out there 24 seven. So as we walk away from that business after clearing up whatever that particular issue is, you know, one hour later, it could rise up again. So we just don't have that constant presence there. But we are checking on that issue constantly regarding ADA accessibility. Okay. I want to talk a little bit about. I know that we said that there's no permanent options for Opie's, but my understanding is some of the Opie's that are on private property have been advised that they may be able to stay if, for example, they're able to find sufficient parking. For example, row is one of those where the Opie is in the back and they've been advised that if parking can be found that that's possibly and an avenue. And I would just want to confirm that. Council Member Christopher We are working with that business row and have spoken to others. So in those circumstances, a property owner can always come into the city and discuss improvements. And that particular location, they are going to secure offsite parking and then remove parking spaces from their site plan. But that will be a permanent condition on private property that is permitted through development services, as building any structure would be. So it's not that they will have a permanent OCP, the O p will go away, and they will have secured a way to have outdoor dining on their private property as a permanent feature of their restaurant . Okay. Thank you. So I have a motion regarding. I know that Councilwoman Sara made a motion to extend the ops till September 30th, but I want to ask about a modification to that. What I'd like to do is for the ops, I would like a process for the ops whereby if they're requesting an extension that they apply for that extension to our public works department and that a decision be made on a case by case basis regarding whether or not that PARKLET or that OPI can be extended till September 30th. A nd for considerations such as parking impacts, residential impacts, impact on adjoining businesses, that those be considered in that decision process. Councilwoman Sara, are you okay with that? So I just want to clarify said that if they if they wanted to extend it, they would have to apply for that extension for just three months, though. I don't know that they have to go through an application process, but an expression of interest is what we have right now for those businesses that are on a list. I just didn't want to make it onerous. Yeah. Just a point of clarification to move forward. My understanding was that the AP exemption was for only apps issued on private property. That's how I understood it. So I don't know if that's changing. Now to the opens would go through the Special Events Office and not the Public Works Department. So I defer to Tasha Day to discuss the impact on an application that it would have on staff. So most of them would have to reapply. Council member as they would have to turn in current drawings for those new structures or modified structures as well as the proper insurance to maintain those they are sent to sun. They are set to sunset on June 30th. So we would have to go through that entire process of collecting all that data. It's doable, but they would all. Have to reapply. They would all have to reapply to go beyond June 30th. Yes, they would have to reapply and we would. Have to vet all of their insurance requirements again. And that's regardless of what we do tonight. Yes. Oh, okay. No, no, no. Only if you agree with them. If you extend them past the 30th. They would have to do that. If we extend them past the 30th, they would have to do that for private and private property. And public property. Yes. Can. My motion wasn't to extend beyond September 30. I think it's June 30th. All right. Which 30th are we talking about? June 30th. Okay. So to extend them beyond June 30th, they'd have to apply. That's correct. So I don't. So that we couldn't automatically extend them beyond June 30th. They would have to apply to go beyond June 30th. They would reapply like they have been. So they've been doing this this whole time. So every time the APIs are extended. We contact everyone and they have to resubmit their information. Okay. So they would have to reapply and then you would do an evaluation as to whether you grant it based on that application? That is correct. Okay. So we would be saying if they're currently an existing AP, they could apply to go till September 30th, but they still have to go through the application process. Yes. And that application process would involve presumably consideration of the comments that have been expressed tonight in terms of parking impacts and other impacts. Yes, that's correct. And encroachment on other businesses. Yes. Okay. So they would have to apply even weaker. So what we're saying now is you could apply up to September. You could apply to extend up to September 30th. Yes. That'

s the motion. Okay. All right. I may want to come back to that. I'm out of time, so I'll come back up. Sorry. I think Councilman Allen was next. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. I do appreciate everyone that came out to talk, but I do think that these temporary parklets need to come to an end. I know that we have done everything that we can do. When these when the restaurants really needed our help, I think we all rallied around. I think we did as council. We did as as patrons. And I absolutely love the outdoor dining. And but I do have concerns with these temporary parklets. All the concerns that a lot of people expressed tonight. I'm also. Wondering, you know, we've had these the restaurants have had a really long time to get these these applications in. But what I've heard from some of these businesses that they haven't we haven't gotten back to them for their permanent. So that's concerning to me because it's if we're saying you have this time period to to apply and they're seeing that they haven't got backs, I really need to understand what's happening there because that's that's problematic. And I also wonder if there's a good number of businesses that have expressed interest but yet haven't moved forward. And I don't know what's happening there either.

If someone can speak on that, perhaps they're going to keep the temporary parklets as long as they can. I mean, I would imagine it's good for their business and it's kind of, you know, free space. But why are they not applying for this permanent position? So permanent a parklet. So if someone can help me understand what's happening there, I appreciate it. Yes, Councilwoman, let me point out that we we have had permanent parklet permits issued recently. I mentioned that we have four that are currently in the review process, three are in CD1 and one is in CD seven. And we have also already converted four temporary parklets to permanent two and CD1 one in CD two and one in CD five. So, so when we do have locations that are meeting their requirements, paying the fees, putting in their applications and their their plans, a complete application, those permits move forward. We do have some businesses who are who have talked to the permit technicians. They submit packages and they're not complete. They're missing an engineer stamp. They're missing a signature. So those processes are deemed incomplete. But recently we've had a lot of discussion about this meeting and the outcome of this meeting and the fact that many folks who are thinking about going permanent, they still need Coastal Commission approval to make that approval and the reality of the permanent park that happen. So it's still a bit of a process, but we're not just stopping the entire program. That's not that's not the case. So we heard a business say that they have applied and haven't heard back from our team. So what do you say to that? Like, how does that happen? When I hear something like that, I really want to talk to that business and find out who they are, where they are, and what they where they are in the process. Most of our permit technicians are very reliable. They contact the businesses. So I would I would like to just follow up and see what we can do to make that process more efficient. Okay. Thank you. Come tomorrow, Ringo. Thank you. And thank you. Because remember, Alan, you brought up a slide here that I was looking at right now, and I was going to ask a question about it. And that's slide 11, where you mentioned that the the four businesses that went from temporary and permanent to a silly one, one, two, three, two, one and C five. The four businesses that applied for that are currently under review, three in CD1 and one in CD seven and in the 30 businesses that only expressed interest in the formal establishment, the Parklets seven in CD2 and 23 in CD3 in three. But obviously the, the, the one item here that put my ears was the, the businesses that are located in the coastal zone and needing a coastal development permit. How many of those businesses that we have are those 30 of fit within that the coastal zone that you know of? Thank you, Councilman. That's a very good question. Right now, we have 30 businesses that have expressed interest only in obtaining a permanent parklet permit. And I would say approximately half of those between 15 and 20 at the most are actually within a local Coastal Commission jurisdiction. So they will need a local permit, which we do here at the city. They don't have to go to Sacramento for that project. I mean, for that permit. It was part of the LCP as well. But you're correct. But the thing is, is that, you know, when businesses show interest, that doesn't mean that they've committed fully to the process. And we don't anticipate that we're going to have 30 businesses knocking on our door right now to get a permit. You know, as I was in the case, I was only interested in how many do you think are in the coastal zone that would have to apply? What I'm basically looking at is it appears that those businesses that are in the coastal zone would have to go through another layer or another process of getting a permanent parklet . Would that be correct? That's correct. I would say that the final step in the process is that coastal, local coastal commission approval. Yes. Okay. Well, good luck with that. It takes so long with the Coastal Commission, though, I'll tell you. I know experience. Yes. Okay. So and just to just to clarify that that would be an LCP that would not be going to the the full coastal commission. So when they're at that process, we're deeming them pretty much complete. So they have a couple more things to do. They in our mind would be deemed feasible. They'd be eligible for this extension. There's a small handful of those right now. It's the ones that haven't gotten through the architect yet that haven't been able to put up the dollars and the investment to make something like this occur. If we're purposes of the audience, LC

P is a local coastal program will permit that the city has already established in terms of rules of how businesses can go into the coastal zone. So just to put clarification on that, that's all I have. Thank you. Thank you, councilmember. With screening still loading here, the councilman price is next. Thank you. Okay, so on that note. The 17 or so businesses that are in Belmont Shore, Naples that are fall in the coastal zone, who have expressed an interest, have not been given an application process. At least some of them have been told there is no application process. So that's where I feel like there's a little bit of unfairness here. We're saying if you've applied we were saying they had all this time to apply, okay, but they haven't been given a meaningful application process. So those that are on the list should be given an opportunity to actually apply so that they can get a permanent parklet because and maybe the city attorney needs to weigh in here, our current permanent PARKLET program. Which was established in 2018. Does not have a carve out for Belmont Shore. So if you're a business owner. In a different district and you are given the opportunity to apply for a permanent parklet and you're a business owner in Belmont. Sure, you still have the same opportunity to apply for a permanent parklet because our own rules don't carve out the coastal zone, correct? That's correct. Councilmember Price. There is no carve out for the second for second Street or for Belmont Shore. There are safety considerations and those considerations are applied on a case by case basis for every parklet. Exactly. And I've been very clear with all the businesses in Belmont. Sure. That want to convert to permanent that is going to be a decision that the traffic engineer is going to make based on the traffic and the parking situation in Belmont. Sure. So my problem is they haven't been given an opportunity. So what I would like to make a motion tonight is if they have expressed an interest. By June 30th. And they're going to go through the application process. And it's they are deemed feasible to go through the application process. Then I'm okay with option B, which means they need to complete their process by August 1st. Okay. What I don't want is if there are businesses that the traffic engineer has already deemed are infeasible. For whatever reason, traffic concerns, blind spots, neighborhood concerns, whatever. I don't want to wait until August 1st if we've already made that determination. So what I would like is by June 30th, the traffic engineer to let those people that are on the list are still interested in having a permanent parklet. They need to notify our public works department by June 30th. Our Public Works Department by June 30th needs to let them know if they are deemed a feasible applicant or not. If they are deemed feasible, then they can go forward with the application process, which we have not afforded them meaningfully up until this point. For those businesses in the coastal area and they can go through that process under option B, if they are deemed infeasible, then they must tear down their temporary PARKLET By July 15th, we give them two weeks to tear it down. If they have an appeal process, then they can go through the appeal process. But that's the timeline that I would like connected to option B. Is that possible? So I'd like the team to explain or to respond to that. I think that is possible. I'd like to hear from them. I do want them also to give a little bit of information on that. They have not had a process available. We do believe they have had a process available and this is changing it slightly. They have them do interest and then a process. So I'd like to turn to Christopher Coons and to Karl to talk through the can we do this and what process have they had available so far? So Councilmember, I'm going to start and then. Carl is going to. Take over. So there's two departments that touch these potential permanent parklets and maybe no one in this room. But we have had applicants that have. Tried to do the process out of. Order and have been directed not to do that. So development services is not has not will not process any of these permits until they've obtained their public works approval. The public works process, for good reasons is extensive and it requires a lot of materials that have to be turned into. Carl We have had applicants attempt to skip that step entirely and lodge an application with development services. We've rejected a number of those because they have to obtain their safety related approval first before we can look at the suitability and the cost or so on. So Carl is going to talk about his process. Yes, we have a process where we look at, you know, the location, exactly the footprint, many of the things that we've already talked about as far as sightlines accessibility, whether they're over utilities, a lot of research, an investigation goes into whether we're going to approve one of these locations. And of course, we're taking into consideration the neighborhood quality of life questions that come into play. But again, we don't expect to see 30 businesses rushing to us to install permanent parklets. Again, it's a major financial commitment as one of the speakers mentioned. And we feel that regardless of how many come in, we're going to be able to make the process more efficient, address their concerns and, you know, put them on the right path to getting this approval if they are deemed feasible. Okay, so my time is up, so I'll come back up. If I could add something to that for what I heard you say, Councilmember, is that businesses be allowed to have until June 30th to express their interest and then city staff will respond by June 30th. And that's not possible. We would need if we have 510 people apply at June 30th, we can't guarantee that we'll get back to them on the same day. Additionally, if we find that a business is not feasible, we can clai m that they're not feasible, have their temporary parklet removed, but we cannot stop them from applying for a permanent parklet down the road. Of course. Of course. And you're absolutely right. My understanding was that if they're not on the interest list right now. They're not going to be able to apply, but that's why I was saying the June 30th. But we can make it express interest by June 20th and a decision will be made by June 30th. That's just what we need is a date by which you can apply for it. Either we don't allow any more beyond the 30 that have already talked to us, or we determine a date in the future to get your your interest letter in. Okay. So I'm going to queue back up because my time is up. Councilman's in the house. Thank you. Just for clarification, one of the things that I see with the PARKLETS is that even though we're trying to terminate the the temporary parklets, we're also giving the opportunity to make those. Parklets. Permanent, those that are feasible. I think that if we could actually look at the ad, all of the parklets that we have right now and really work with the owners of those that are not feasible to let them know that it's not going to be possible because of many things that Mr. Karl may me foresee. I think that's important to let them know and not lead them on that. It might be possible because I'm sure that there's some that are very, very easy to see that that wouldn't work for many reasons. So I think that, you know, I would like to say and encourage you to please, please look at those and address those and and make sure that the businesses know. Also, I. Feel that being in the downtown, the Parklets have been great for so many reasons. I mean, we are downtown. I do I do think we're different from other districts and stuff, but I think that being able to help the businesses establish or go through the process of applying. For a parklet. And actually looking at certain barriers that have been preventing them to make. That park. Parklet permanent. I think it's. Also important to look. At and work with each business on a business to business basis to see what we can do as a city to help them make that that parklet permanent. So I know that's a lot of work, and I know that we're really trying to help everyone here. So thank you for all the work that you've already done and the work that is ahead. Thank you. Next up is Councilman Allen and we have Councilman Prescott. I have some you guys might have a couple questions. Thank you. And then we'll we'll get back to the speaker's list. So I just have a couple of questions for staff and just some general comments. I want to just go back just one, one step and think the council certainly I have been a supporter of our Open Streets program, which a parklets were a part of since day one. For me, it was always first and foremost about the pandemic, making sure that people were safe, making sure that people had options to be outdoors, and also to ensure that we didn't lo se our restaurants and small businesses across our city. And there is no question that the open space and the PARKLET program has been a lifeline for small businesses, for restaurants and for workers. I also agree and understand that there are businesses and there are parklets or in some cases some of the parking lot programs that have been a nuisance. I think one was mentioned in particular that I have noticed as well that have been problematic. There have there have been in some cases media issues. And also all of that is also true. And certainly I think everyone senses of the the the frustration of many members of community, particularly in Belmont Shore. So I think all of that is is is true. At the same time, I just want to make sure what I'm also hearing is I have heard an unconvincing argument that we have set up a system that's been accessible and successful for our small business owners to actually go through and apply for a permanent process. Is it is it true that there are only two architectural firms that they can actually use? That's what I heard. That can't be true. So Karl and I were just conversing. There's two firms that do a lot of this work and are advertising to clients that they could provide these services to them. What the city is looking for is that it's a license designed professional that you're working with a licensed architect and a licensed engineer. There's hundreds of thousands of those available and we don't discriminate. There was one firm referenced in the public testimony, but there's no requirement from the city that the application be prepared by that firm. So so so there's we've got a variety of architects and firms and other folks to go. And Carl has a it's on our website, a guide, a parklet guide that we developed together a few. Years ago that. Takes businesses. Step by step through the. Application process. So we can always do better. But I think here at the staff table. To us that the process is pretty straightforward, but that process just may simply a permanent parklet may be inappropriate for many of the businesses that have a temporary one. And so so I appreciate that. And so let me can I ask also because on most issues, when it comes to business issues or planning or permitting issues, you know, you oftentimes hear from business owners who are having a hard time. And that's that happens for whatever reason in this particular issue. It seems to be more overwhelmingly, at least what I hear from business folks. That is a very difficult process, even more so than other processes that we have in the city. So that's where my concerns stem from. Can I ask you this question also on the because I agree with a lot of what Councilman Price said about just fairness and making sure that those that have shown interest have an actual opportunity to apply and go through a process. I think that's very fair. I think I hope that's where the council heads tonight. There are areas so and I'm just and I maybe and maybe th e staff knows or doesn't know this just by those that have been permitted already, have determinations already been made that certain corridors cannot have any parklets. Well, Mr. Mayor, the the fact is, is that we are trying to discourage the installation of permanent parklets on any roadway where the speed limit is posted above 20 miles an hour at 25 miles an hour. Now, there are some exceptions on some corridors where maybe the speed limit is 30 miles an hour on a certain section . And we can make accommodations depending on different engineering designs, ball boats and things like that to make that parklets safe for permanent installation. But for the most part, if it's not 25 miles an hour, we're not going to recommend a permanent parklet. And I, of course, operate. I'm not a traffic engineer. So I you know, I understand the safety rules that are set up for for for that. So, for example, because I don't on the top of my head know what streets are eligible or not. So let's say I am on on Second Street over in Naples, Nico's you other restaurants and in the neighborhood we heard a couple a couple tonight. Are they eligible or are they just are we telling folks who are just not eligible for a parklet if it's if they're eligible or not? What we're telling businesses is that if they're on a roadway where this posted speed limit is, let's say, 45 miles an hour, there's not much you can do from a designs standpoint to make that permanent parklet safe. However, you mentioned Naples Island. We are in the process of not only trying to lower the speed limit there, but Naples is very unique that that will call it eastbound roadways, very wide. There's a large parking zone, there's a large buffer and there's a large bike lane. So there's a large distance between the travel lane and the curb line. So in Naples Island, it's a little unique. So even though it's posted 35 and we're in the process of trying to drop that speed limits of 30, we will be willing to entertain an application from one of those businesses on Naples Island. So those those businesses would be considered. So if one of those businesses on the island was interested or showed interest, they would be put on this interest category. Yes, that's. Correct. And then how about for applicants for restaurants on Second Street in Beaumont? Sure. The same thing has already taken place where they've notified us their interest. I have a list of 30 of them. And again, it's just interest only. Right. And that's the next step that allows them to take to the next step to determine, you know, is this feasible for them? Are they committed to the process financially as well? And then those those are those 30 that are on that list would be all eligible to continue their process if they would like to. Well, currently, there's about ten on this list that I have already looked at, investigated, and I've already deemed them not feasible for installation for various reasons. Okay. And then I'm assuming that if thos e that are not feasible for installation, we're letting them know right away. That's correct. So if they make contact with us again with the permit team, we would immediately notify them, hey, this is the problem, this is the situation. We don't think you're feasible now. You can apply if you want to. We're telling you right upfront it's not going to be an easy go. Okay. Because I think one of the things that's that's fair to the business owner also is that we're proactively honest with them. If it's not going to be feasible from a traffic perspective, from a safety perspective, I'm just hoping that we're being honest and telling them this is not going to work and that we're being that we're that at least is giving them the the information that we the best submission that we have at that moment. That is our intention. And so so we haven't it's our intention or we haven't done that yet, or we're going to do that. We're going to do that. And when we take the next step and let's say ten of those businesses that have shown interest, let's say they come in to our permit technicians and they say we want to take the next step and put in our application, pay the initial fees and put their their design plans. We're going to say, hey, you know, this may not be a good installation for X, Y, Z. This is why the traffic engineers already looked at this. I won't name the business, but there's some that are that have a very small frontage right on the side of a corner of a of a side street. It's not going to work. It's unsafe. Okay. So we I think my time is probably up to. But have we my last time finally have we at any point told any businesses yet that they are not going to be eligible? Or is that something that is in the next step? We have not done that yet. And that's probably part of the issue here, I imagine, is that there's a lot of uncertainty. Okay. I appreciate that. Come back to me. But let me go back to Councilman Price and we'll and we'll keep going. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. You hit on all the right questions. Let me just say. The information that you guys are sharing tonight. With all due respect, is not consistent with what was shared with the businesses. I have multiple emails here where they were told they couldn't apply because they're in the coastal zone. We didn't have a process yet because they're in the coastal zone. It's there's all sorts of confusion. So and let me also make it very clear, if I didn't already. We're a city with a lot of diversity and a lot of diverse business corridors. So if this is not an issue in other business corridors and people want to extend till March then and it's a different district or different business quarter, then that's fine. I'm just. My motion is based on the observations of the residents that came tonight and what I hear every single day. And I have said from day one that Belmont Shore is different because of the proximity to homes, because of the traffic volumes, because of the parking. With 52. Parking spaces right now that are lost due to parklets. That's a huge impact in Belmont. Sure. And it's a huge impact for the Coastal Commission. This is a major priority for the Coastal Commission. And I think it's it's important for us to try to to shrink it down. So. Right now, of the 30 that have expressed an interest, I believe about 17 of them are in the Belmont Shore corridor. And other than those 17, all the other ones that have not expressed an interest would go away automatically on June the 30th of the 17 or so that have already expressed an interest or any others that would express interest by June 20th. The public works department, through the traffic engineer, will notify them by June 30th whether or not they are feasible to move forward because we don't want them to spend any money if we're deeming them to be not feasible. That's not fair. They will have an opportunity to appeal that decision, as my understanding will go through that process. But. Is that correct, that they have an opportunity to appeal the word process or no? I wouldn't say it's a formal appeal process, but they would have the opportunity to have a discussion with us to learn why it is it wouldn't be feasible. And they might say to you, okay, what if I change the design here? What if I move it there? Correct. And that's where we would rely on the design to show us what they're actually proposing. Okay. Got it. But I just want them to know by June 30th, if they're not feasible, they need to go away that that parklet needs to go away if it's deemed not feasible and you go through your process. Ah. I understand. Okay. Sounds good. Okay. Perfect. And then this streamlining. I mean, I want to also make sure that everybody understands that we've got to have we cannot talk about being business friendly if we cannot offer a process that's easy to follow and expedited. And I already heard staff say it was going to be expedited. And I appreciate that. And I'm going to I realize this is a lot to put on staff. And look, we did the very best we could with open streets to try to accommodate some sort of outdoor dining option. And I know this is a burden on city staff, but extending the process even longer frustrates the businesses and certainly it's not fair to the residents. So if this has got to be high priority until August 1st to figure out how do we process these applications and what can we do? Okay. I think I think I'm good on the piece. I believe the OP's. The ones on private property. You know, I don't think they should. I think they should have to get the opportunity to apply for an extension. And I think the ones on public property should get the opportunity to apply as well and go through that process. But I do not believe under any circumstances they should be encroaching in front of another business. I just don't think that's fair. So those are my thoughts. I'm not sure if I've given enough clarity with the motion, but really it's option B. But we're moving the timeline f or public works to let businesses know that they're not feasible up to June 30th, so that if they're not feasible, that parklet is eliminated. If they are feasible, then they're allowed to go through the application process, which is outlined under option B. Was there a date by which they have to submit their interest? A June 20th. June 20th. Okay. So then four days from now, the ones that have submitted interest, we already have that. If there's anyone else, they have basically four days to put in an interest, not an application, but just I am interested. And then we will do that analysis between then and the 30th to say you either can move forward or not. And then after that, then they can apply and then stay through August. Then they have until August 1st to submit an application. Is that correct? That's what yes, that's what I'm thinking. As long as Public Works thinks they can comply with that. So I'll ask the team, is that a feasible timeline? Yes, that's reasonable. And what we will do is our business liaison, at least in District three, will notify all of our District three businesses that have parklets of the June 20th expression of interest timeline. But I'm hoping public works and work can work with the council offices on the others. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. Thank you. I hope all that comes from an Alan Mungo and then I'll queue up again. Councilman Allen. Okay. Thank you, Mayor. You ask a bunch of good questions. I am really concerned about this process and about if it's been really fair to these businesses after hearing some of the answers, you know, not contacting them and letting them know immediately that they that they didn't qualify, I think is concerning. So I really would like for all of those folks to be notified as soon as possible. As a former business owner myself, there are these folks are busy and we want to make sure that we are friendly and make as fair as possible. I do have one quick question and then I'll be done. But so the permanent process I know that you've for a parklets that we've had in place for many years. If that process is like this, where people go through a whole application process and they weren't they didn't qualify, I think that we have to look at that, too. I don't know if this process is any different, but if that is the case, we have to I think we have to step back and reevaluate the process and make sure it's fair for these businesses. Okay. Councilmember, if I may respond to that. The permanent process has been in place for many years, like you mentioned. And this additional this is an additional step we've added for the benefit of the businesses. We didn't do a feasibility response prior to this. You basically had to invest about $2,000 in plans and permits, and then we would look at your proposal. This additional step is to help businesses so they don't have to make that initial investment and could come to us and say, Hey, I'm interested and we can take a, you know, a quick look at it and say not probably feasible because it's 40 miles an hour or not probably feasible because there's a line of sight issue or you're likely feasible. So you might want to make the investment because we don't see any initial problems. So it is a new step. It is intended to help the businesses and avoid them having to make an initial $2,000 investment. Thank you. Come on, man. Go. Thank you. I want to first thank everyone for showing up today. Whether you're a resident who lives next to a business or in a corridor, you made an investment in our community. We appreciate that. Same to the businesses. We know that it has been a tough go and taking a risk to become a business owner is a big expense and you're serving the community with the products and services that you provide, and that's important. I would like to say that. While I appreciate the staff and all the efforts you're making, it would be nice if there was a clear understanding of if you email this person, you will get a response within 24 hours of your feasible. I don't know if that's possible. I don't know if you want to announce an email address. I know that Councilman Price is offices. They will do that. I have significantly reduced number of copies in my district so I can just pick up the phone and call all of them. But it's a lot more in the third district, so I appreciate anything that you're able to do to simplify it and keep it in writing, because one of the things that's hard for us as councilmembers is the interpretation of what you think you're saying. And what they think they're hearing is not always congruent. And so we work really hard to make sure that it's in writing so that we as a council office can help step in and support and advocate for both the residents and the businesses. Thank you, everyone, for your time. Thank you. I just have a couple more questions. So back to this. The just the question of interest from from restaurants and business owners. So would we consider we have as a city, I believe, sent in response to some folks that were interested in applying for the program, that we're not taking current applications, particularly around coastal issues. So someone that has sent that that inquiry and we responded and said that we're not taking applications. Would they would they so be considered some of the has interest. Or they've been removed from our interest category. Mr. Mayor, I believe that the instance that you're referring to actually was an email sent back in November of 21 where the situation was a little bit different than it is now, as we're having this entire discussion figure out, figuring out what we're going to do to move forward. You know, we we do address questions quickly, efficiently. And, you know, if we weren't kind of in this position where we have to not only do go through the permanent, permanent parklet process, but we also have to get a Coastal Commission approval, which adds another layer of complexity to all of this. So so as a result of wait ing for what the outcome of this meeting is, we've kind of put a pause on some of those permits that are moving forward because we wanted to make sure we're making strides in the right direction. And answer the question. I think the answer is yes, we can consider them. And then 1/2, please, sir. What I wanted to also say, though, is that because I'm look, I have emails as of like two months ago

where we're telling business owners that we're not taking. An application process and that at this time we're not accepting applications for permanent parklets or sidewalk dining within the coastal zone. And so I just want to make sure that if we sent folks an email like that. Have they been removed off the interest list? No, they have not been removed from the list. They would still be considered on the interest. Yes. Okay. That's good. That's that's good to know. And so then what it sounds like to me is I also want make sure because a lot of a lot of businesses are not going to read the newspaper tomorrow or know that, you know, they have a few days to still show interest or what the timeline processes are we going to proactively reach out to the businesses that have parklets? Well, we're going to reach out to the businesses that we know have interest. They've shown interest, and we'll talk to them and let them know if they do want to continue with the process, what those steps would be. And like I mentioned earlier, there is about four or five who already turned in plans. For whatever reason, they're incomplete. So we can get to the list of everyone who has it, because that's only going to capture people who already have interest. There may be some that have interest that have been discouraged or heard from someone else. So I'd like to get to everybody who has got a parklet and say you've got basically four days to email this email to say I have interest in continuing. Then we give them their answer ten days after that. That's great. And then I appreciate that. And then so. On. So if a restaurant has shown interest in the room or in the process, what is it that they have to do by August 1st, just so that I understand that as well, what is their requirement by August 1st. Where they're going to need to contact an engineer, a designer, to help develop a plan, maybe even if it's a high level plan, at least some sort of a drawing that shows what they're proposing. And then we can go out and do an evaluation to determine if it's going to be safe. Again, safety is my number one priority, and then we'll start the process to accumulate those businesses that need to go and get a Coastal Commission approval. And then we'll work together to walk through both of those steps, those processes. And then at the same time, the city will begin the process of contacting those businesses who are not in compliance, that are that have safety. Issues to fire them. Yes, there are traffic concerns to begin the removal of those and that would start within the next sounds like we ek or two, correct? Yes, that's correct. Okay. Thank you so much, Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. So I've learned a whole lot about parklets. Many of the speeds up in up in my district are a little too fast. So we've done some curb extensions, we've done some sidewalk extensions and stuff to get some patio dining. But I've certainly learned a lot. I want to understand what we're voting on right now. So I think that will be important at the end. At the end of my comments, I want to first just acknowledge the person who said, hey, I know four or five of your districts don't have any, but imagine what it would be like if these were, you know, on your street. And that's what I can relate to because everyone understands what a nuisance is. I think that's something that's common and quality of life is something that we all care about. I would I would also say that, you know, typically you defer to council members to know and understand their local the dynamics of the local communities. And I that's something I try to always respect, but I want to thank everybody who's actually come out and talked to all of the council members about this specific issue. And I would encourage, like I've heard from many of the residents in this room about this specific issue to help educate me about it, I would encourage the restaurant groups to do the same. If you expect us to understand your perspective, you have to meet with all of us, because otherwise I you know, I'm going to row with the residents. If I don't understand what those perspectives are, I'll tell you. Additionally, I encourage better communication between all the parties. Here I It seems like you're making good progress from where it's where it's heading. The Mayor This motion is heading there was a seems like a larger group and then now there's a smaller group and then on the 20th and hopefully this motion will clarify this, there's an even smaller group of feasibility. So that definition is is narrowing. I think that also I think the mayor raised some really good points about if he's unclear and we don't haven't seen it in writing about the process. I think it's on us because it's so important to both sides that we see this process in writing, particularly after today, and that is communicated to that universe in writing. So we're all operating with the same set of facts moving forward because there were two accounts on whether or not we stood up a process for them or whether we didn't. And whenever there's a question like that, we have to err on the side of we need to do better generally. And so those are my observations from this discussion. You know, it was great to hear and to listen, but generally I just encourage better communication on the part of all the stakeholders so that we don't have to spend 3 hours on this next time. Thank you.

Thank you. There's a motion and a second. Any other council comment? So there's emotion and a second emotion. I think we've just repeated that we need more clarification or else or we'll sit there. I think we're good. Okay. A member who's gotten Castro votes. Motion carries. Okay. Thank you. Next up is item 29. Thank you. We're going to do we have we have two presentations and some items we need to get to pretty quickly. And so unless there's any objection on the funds transfer, hopefully get through this very, very quickly. Let's read those into the record and just get these voted on, please. Recommendation to receive the supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing and grant an entertainment permit with conditions for entertainment without dancing to El Barrio Neighborhood Bar LLC DBA El Barrio Cantina at 1731 East Fourth Street District two. Looks like an oath is required. Yes. Please raise your right hand. Those who are here to testify on this item you in each of you do solemnly state that the testimony you may give in the court now and pending before this body shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you, God. And you. Thank you. Thank you. Let's go ahead with the staff report. Ms.. Martinson will make the presentation of staff presentatio on this item as well. Again. Good evening, mayor and members of city council. Before you tonight as an application for entertainment without dancing for El Barrio Neighborhood Bar LLC, DBA El Barrio Cantina, which is located at 1731 East Fourth Street. This establishment operates as a restaurant bar. The business has valid ABC license as follows Type 47 on sale, general eating place and Type 58 Catering per caterer. Permit these license. Authorize the sale of beer, wine and distilled spirits for consumption on the licensed premises. Among other things, the business met the Long Beach Municipal Code requirements to be eligible for a temporary entertainment permit and was issued one in November of 2021. All of the appropriate departments, Health and Human Services, Development Services, Police, Financial Management and Financial Management have reviewed the application and have provided their recommended conditions as contained in the hearing packet. The following recommended conditions on attachment A are of note from section two of the additional conditions. Section number one in that section is entertainment activities shall be restricted to no later than 11 p.m., Monday through Thursday and midnight Friday through Sunday. Entertainment can begin at 12 noon daily. The business applied, requesting entertainment to be permitted from nine or 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. seven days a week. And the Long Beach Police Department recommended the restricted conditions to balance community concerns and the businesses needs. Section number six or item number six. The committee has been requested to develop and maintain a plan to address neighborhood concerns related to the operation of the business. In addition, the Department of Financial Management is requesting a change to the enclosed conditions Section one. Item four, with the removal of the last sentence of the first paragraph. Hours of sales. Hours of sales of alcohol shall be limited to the hours when meals are available. In this particular situation, this condition was found to be too restricted after additional consideration of the communications from the business owner. Although this does not remove the requirement to continue to operate a bona fide restaurant. I, along with the Miami-Dade Police Department, as well as Art Sanchez, deputy city attorney, are available to answer any questions that you may have. This concludes my staff report. Thank you. Let's go to public comment there. Any public comment on number 23? Chou Lin. Julian, please approach the podium. Um, I, everyone actually submitted on that. And when the owner of the business, I didn't know I was not supposed to submit the comment. So I just wanted to, I just didn't know I was supposed to pretend that I needed to come or not. But here I am. Um, so I don't really have any comments to this other than I'm for it since I'm a business owner. Um, and you guys are welcome to dine at the restaurant anytime. Thank you. Tastic. Thank you. All right, back behind the rail, councilman Alan Atherton. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Also. Thank you, Joe, for for coming out. It's great to great to see you. I just want to say that the Fourth Street and the Retro Row is one of the highlights of the second district. The bid and all the businesses there do a great job managing the area. And I know El Barrio is a very popular a spot and Joe and Jesse have done a fantastic job with the property. If you haven't been there, the food is excellent. It's great ambiance and just a big upgrade on Fourth Street. So I support this entertainment permit. I do understand that some folks have some concerns about noise or congregating, you know, out there from the business. So we just ask that you kindly keep an eye on that for all of our neighbors. And I just want to say that El Barrio is just a welcome addition to our fourth Street restaurant community. And I know that that Joe, you and Jesse are great operators and that you'll comply with all the conditions listed and make every effort just to be a good neighbor. So thank you. All right. Thank you. It's been moved in. Seconded members, please cast your vote. The motion is. Carried. Thank you. 24, please. Adam 24 is report from Public Works recommendation to receive supporting documentation into the record. Conclude the public hearing. Find that the streets and alleys within the seaport the Seaport Village Complex, located at 560 on Paramount Boulevard to be vacated, are not needed for present or prospective public use and Adobe resolution ordering the location District eight. That concludes public comment. So we will move on now to item number 27. Item 27, communication from Vice Mayor Richardson, Councilwoman Allen, Councilwoman Sara Recommendation to direct City Manager to invest in community policy by working with Long Beach Police Department to provide options in the FY 23 budget for structural funding of the Neighborhood Works Program and an expansion of LAPD's Bicycle Beats program. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I wanted to excited to bring this proposal forward this evening. It's summertime. We're off to a great summer. It looks like. You know, I was you know, we kicked off the wee bit. I tried out the wee bit myself. It is definitely a challenging obstacle course, but the parks are full. You know, the the events are happening and the concerts are happening and we're off to a great summer. But we need to do all that we can to just remember what the first six months of this year looked like and how we need to continue to invest in public safety. We are still in a recovery from the pandemic, and as we recover from the pandemic, we know that there's a recovery around public safety that we're continuing to invest in and we need to remain laser focused on. We have a lot of progress, a lot of lessons learned over the past two years. You know, the Long Beach advancing piece was a great example. This was community building and community outreach that started down in the AOC seven and West, the Washington neighborhood area. And last January, February, the city council asked them to bring it forward, to expand it to north and other parts of town. And that work was rewarded with a $3.9 million grant to expand a number of programs from safe passages to a whole host of things. That's all good. We support all those things. We also saw last year after a successful pilot of the the Neighborhood Walks program in the Washington neighborhood, some significant results. We saw and we saw upwards of 40% drop in shootings in the Washington neighborhood. Now, we can't say it was directly a result of the neighborhood walks, but there's a correlation there. The city council has to expand that program to North. So we did a pilot last summer and that program and that pilot in the summer, we also saw emergency calls reduced by 7.6%. And we saw that shootings dropped over 80% over the first two months of the summer. Now, again, we can't say that that was the direct result of that program, but we can't point to programs that the residents enjoyed, the residents thought were good steps. And look at that data and look at those best practices and say now is the time for us to go in and expand it. Now, we've also heard loud and clear from businesses in the community, from people who use our parks and park adjacent neighborhoods, that people want to see folks on bikes and walk in the beat rather than, you know, a cruiser pull up on Highland Park or cruiser pull up on a park. It just seems less threatening. It seems safer. And you build relationships with the people who are serving our community with law enforcement. So we know that bikes are less expensive and in fact, they're better on our environment. So you get a multiplier effect, less threatening, more engagement with the public, more public trust, better on our environment and more cost effective. Last year as a part of the safety recovery, we invested in four, I believe it was four additional. I think we did one per policing district. That's not enough. We're asking as a part of this proposal that one, we take the best practices we learned through the Neighborhood Walks program and the investment we did during the safety recovery into the into the Bike Beats initiative and expand that. I think it was called the Neighborhood Safe Streets Initiative in the Safety Recovery Plan, and we expand that citywide. Now, this request puts the number at 25. I'm flexible. It doesn't have to be the number 25. It could be more. It can be less. I think the idea here is if it was for last year, we want to see something across the whole city in a way that people actually feel the presence and see an investment program. And so as this proposal moves through the budget process, we want to see a more substantial commitment to community policing, these specific community policing programs. I believe that it's time for us to go all in. We've seen again, we've seen the evidence. We've seen with the data set about investing in these programs. We like it. We want to do more. If we expand the Neighborhood Walks program, the bicycle program, Neighborhood Safe Streets, as well as complement this recent investment, we have 3.9 million. That's doing a lot in some of the areas of needs in the hardest hit areas. We can see potentially see some really good things begin to happen. I think we should continue to look at data, but continue to make investments here. Residents have asked us to do more on violence prevention. This is one way that we can take a program that we've already done. It has proven that it works and rebuild public trust, rebuild you know, build trust and congruence with the community and the police department, particularly in underserved communities, and make a real impact on our communities. I want to just thank Councilmember Allen and chair public safety Councilwoman Sorrow for both partnering with me on this proposal. I hope the Council will continue to advocate for this and additional ways to contribute to the well-being of our entire city. I think Long Beach residents expect us to look at data and make smart investments into creating a truly safe and healthy city. And so that's my proposal. If the second year doesn't mind, I want to go to public comment or maybe we'll hear from the second. I'm following it's public comment and that's okay. All right. Is there any public comment on this item? I don't have. Anything for any members of the public that would like to speak on item 27 in person. Please enable the podium if there are any members of the public that would like to speak in the zoom, please use the raise hand feature in Zoom. We do have one speaker as Cruz. Your time begins now. And then. Please begin. Yeah. I have been trying to get some help from the council over the past few years for this ongoing and I don't know what it feels like. Kind of like. Hitting direct attack in the community and be maybe in the gender of the city council member due to the damages that I've gone through extensively and directly had my own vehicle that was in my life literally, and I feel like I'm subjectively being broadcast for some reason on blue is throughout the city usually be institute or some type of ongoing. Um. I guess use that as an email to many of you and going to ask you why am I not getting help from this financial burden here? Long Beach. But in Riverside County as well as. We have so much to do that the police and the police each here have. Meaning within the implement. And so I know what to do. That concludes public comment. All right. Thank you. We'll take it back behind the real councilwoman, Ciro. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I appreciate your leadership in bringing this item forward and Councilwoman Allen for sponsoring as well and as chair of the Public Safety Committee. You know, we've been having conversation about what does it mean to build trust, to increase transparency and accountability. And this is one of the program that was piloted in the aftermath of the framework for reconciliation being approved, and also ways that we can basically improve our relationships with our police department as well as our community. And I thought and we've been getting regular updates on it and it's been received really warmly in the community. And that's why I also agree that it's a great idea to expand it. I think that one of the last conversation we had at Public Safety Committee meeting was about more than just preventing violence. It's been advancing peace. And in order to do that, it's about connection. It's about building relationship. It's about engagement. And that's what exactly this Neighborhood Walks program does and just really appreciate the collaboration, collaborative effort our departments are taking with police and our fire department and our Health and Human Services and many others in how we're addressing ways to advance peace . And so I want to just think some of the neighborhood groups that have submitted a letter of support, such as the North Long Beach Neighborhood Alliance, that includes, it looks like two, four, six, eight, all ten of the neighborhood associations, as well as the Wrigley Neighborhood Association, president of the Belmont Shore Resident Association, the Fourth Street Business Improvement District, the Bluff Park Neighborhood Association, AOC Seven Neighborhood Association, as well as the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau. So they appreciate them sending in letter support and their demonstration that they'd like to see more of this program being expanded and supported. Thank you. Thank you. Next, we have Councilmember Cindy Allen. I. Yes. Thank you. Vice Mayor or just, you know, leads on this very important item. And I appreciate you allowing myself and Councilman Ciro to our to sign on to this. As a former police officer, I have worked around many my unit officers, and I know that they thoroughly enjoy the far deeper community engagement that they are able to have in that assignment. I saw that they had a different mission set than regular patrol officers and that they truly embraced the opportunity to build relationships and trust with the communities that they were assigned. And as a former business owner, both me and my staff love the bike units assigned to our area. They would frequently stop by and chat. Keep us posted on issues in the area and ask if there were any concerns. And now, as a councilwoman, I have heard from residents and business owners about how much they too appreciate seeing officers on foot and on bikes. So with all three lived experiences, I am a very strong supporter of this initiative and thank you to the officers who are already out there walking and biking and the beats of our neighborhoods. I have heard from folks in Zakaria and in downtown just about how much safer that they feel. Thank you, Councilwoman Sara, for reading off all of the all of the folks that are supporting this. So I won't do that. But I can tell you that our community feels safer and has a greater connection to officers when they just stop by and chat and say hi and just check in on on folks. I know that the residents of the Second District feel strongly that more community oriented walking and biking beats would improve the safety and just the community relations with our officers. I too have also received all these comments in letters and support. So I just appreciate so many folks from the second district who have written in. I appreciate that. What I what I'm also vice mayor would would like for the proposal from the department is just you know how are how are we going to or how do we plan to track the work of the new unit, and which includes the effectiveness of productivity, the amount of engagement? Just it would be nice for us just to have clear expectations from the chain of command and how that the council offices will be able to be briefed on this and provide some input for consideration. So just thank you again. I appreciate you, Vice Mayor, and I really am excited about this item. Thank you. Think you have some customers that are queued up. Councilman Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I love this item. Do we actually have a program called Bicycle Beats? Does the city manager. Can you answer that question? I asked the police chief to talk about that. Thank you, Councilmember. We don't have a program called bicycle beats per se, but we do have a bike unit that's assigned to it, currently assigned to the South Division. Right. And we have the commanders have the ability to make a decision about walking beats and bicycle beats. Right. I know that's something we talk to our commander a lot. And I agree that bicycle patrols are very, very popular. And I know that the commanders have some discretion in that. Can you talk about that a little bit? Yes, Councilwoman, the the commanders, the divisional commanders maintain operational control of their resources. So they do have the ability to do things like put officers out on the street to walk and bring officers into for bike patrols or community policing. However, that has to be based on their staffing and the staffing that they have available, because their priority is really calls for service in emergency response. So depending on the situation, the staffing they have available to them and the circumstances they do have the ability to either use overtime, utilize overtime to do those things or create units within their divisions. That's great. So I know that this item asks for the city manager to incorporate some of these ideas in the city manager's budget. But I just want to get a sense of the timing. The city manager, you've already submitted your proposed budget to the mayor, is that correct? Yes. In the charter deadline, we have until July 1st to do that. So it has been prepared from the city manager's proposed budget and it is now in the comment period and review period from the mayor and will be rele ased by the end of July and beginning of August. Now, I know the council, the full council hasn't had a chance to see that proposed budget, but I'm assuming some people in your office and the mayor's office have seen the proposed budget, is that right? That's correct. And is there and I know you can't go into the details of the proposed budget, but I know the chief has been talking to us in public safety a lot about some of his community policing measures. Is a bike patrol measure already something that's included in the proposed budget that you've submitted? So I can't really get into specifics on the budget. We don't do that until we actually go through the full process and we have it released by the mayor with his recommendations as well. That said, we have a new police chief who's very much in favor of bike units, of neighborhood policing. He's been listening to what the council, the whole council has been talking about in this area. It's been a popular program. We've gotten some grants to be able to support this work in various areas of the city, and it's proven to be effective. So we are looking at these types of components. And the police chief is going to have a proposal in the budget to look at how we kind of restructure within the police department as well as some additional resources that he'd like to propose as part of the manager's proposed budget. Okay. But that's the manager's proposed budget. That includes the police chief's recommendation that was submitted already on Friday, correct? That's correct. Okay. And then just in general, I want to make sure that I love love that we're finally advocating for adding to our police department. I know that some were hesitant to do that in the past, and I'm glad we're doing that and talking about it. But I also want to make sure that we don't impact our current patrol numbers, because I know that's an area that is causing a little bit of stress for our officers having sufficient patrol units. Is that something that in addition to the. Police. Chief's recommendations that are included in the budget that you've already submitted to the mayor for comment on, have we given consideration to how community policing efforts might impact or augment our patrol resources? So again, without getting into specifics, I do want to confirm anything we do in the budget is not going to affect patrol beat, so we're not going to be affecting what we currently have for patrol. In fact, it's going to be looking at other ways to augment some of that, some of that. So we're not taking from that area. We are looking at like the entire city budget where units are aligned. And so that'll be something the police chief will look at, but not patrol beats. That's great. Fantastic. That's what I wanted to know. But I wholeheartedly support this item and of course, pretty much any proposal that would add more officers to our department. So thank you. Thank you, Councilman Ross. And please. Thank you. You know, I have to s ay thank you to Jim divers who brought this item forward. You know, I think it's consistent with, you know, most of the city council members who have had the opportunity to work with over the last ten years. I have never heard one city councilmember or one person from the community say that they didn't want more community policing. Right. And so I think this is a really a no brainer to support. I certainly support community policing have always been supportive of community policing, but obviously knows how we apply that. Community policing takes a different approach and it also depends on resources. We need to make those resources available. As a city council, you know, I want to applaud Chief Luna and also our new chief of. While he wish we were forward thinking of in progressive ways, utilizing resources in making our police department work for our residents. I had an opportunity to participate early on with the neighborhood watch program. I actually walked the beat with the chief and the deputy chief at the time and in our commander. And the response was was tremendous. We can do more of this. We should. However, I do think that a Councilmember Ellen made a couple of good points related to accountability and basically tracking how these resources are going to be utilized. I think that's important. The question of what actually happened in the city manager is if we were to move forward with this as recommended, will this be done in overtime or utilizing overtime budget? So I think the item requires us to look at solutions. So we would be looking at what are the cost of doing something that's proposed and also what would the offsets be. And over time model could be one, it could be a structural solution as well with with officers not going to be reviewed in the budget. Thank you for clarifying that. And again, further clarity, I would just say, you know, items like this that are currently where we're projecting, you know, the FBI 23 budget is called out here in this letter. I do would recommend this this go ask for really amendment that this be referred to the budget oversight committee as well since we are going to be dealing with the details of our budget in FY 23, we expect to get a budget in the next few weeks from the city manager as well as the mayor. And I'm sure that this will be followed a robust conversations. And so my recommendation would be that. Sinister budget oversight. We're going to get it one way or another. But I think the protocol for you're here on the city council is to ensure that, you know, items like this that have fiscal impacts go through the Budget Oversight Committee. And I'll just also comment on the council letter that brought this item forward again. And I commend the work I do. Just caution us. I don't I'm not sure that that less than a year worth of data is really, you know, a number for us to draw our hats on. You know, we need to study this more. I'd like to get some real time numbers. And that's why on e of the questions that I will be asking during a budget oversight committee is how much has this practice really impacted our communities, particularly where we know that it is having I don't know what the shooting numbers are. The latest update here was April 21. You know, there's a full year with the data for us to analyze and look at in terms of crime impacts overall. And so with that, I am supportive of this item. Again, I don't know anybody, every neighborhood association, every city council member, every city leader, every business leader that I know I'd love to see more community policing. You know, how we define community policing is important. You know, that's on bicycles, that's on Segways, that's walking the beat. I think that's all important. And those details are very important for us to where we are as a city council. Thank you. Thank you. Have councilman's in the house. Thank you, Mayor. I just wanted to say thank you to Vice Mayor and Councilwoman Allen and Sara for bringing this item forward. As you know, in the first District, we've been lucky enough to have. Programs. Like this, very successful programs in our Washington neighborhood, which has really, really created a big impact. And so one of the things that I see is that no matter what part of the district you're in, in the first District, all of my residents are very much for community policing. We really want to know our police officers, we want to know, you know, we really want to get to know them on a personal level, especially our community leaders want to be able to have that that access to them. And I think that that's very, very important. So I just wanted to say that I'm very, very supportive of this item. And thank you for bringing forward. Thank you, Councilwoman. Councilman. Mango. Thank you. If I could ask a few questions of Chief Bush. I appreciate your ambition with the word augmented. Where do we think we might get these police officers from? I guess I'm gonna ask a series of questions that kind of lead me there. How many officers are we budgeted for right now? So you're talking about our total budgeted officers for the department? Yes, sir. 803, ma'am. And how many do we currently have? Physical officers. So we're our actual numbers, which we we historically haven't put out because they change it based on injuries and deployments overseas for military, that type of thing. We're hovering around 740 right now. So we're 60 officers. Short. Approximately. And so. It sounds like taking beat officers and giving the commanders the flexibility they've always had to make those assignments is one of the options. But I just want to be really careful. We're looking at a time in public safety with significant mental health challenges and overworked and family challenges that come from whether it's fire or police and any of those. And so I just want to be really cognizant of adding additional overtime on our current staff. They're really working a lot of hours. And I know that Monica mentioned all options. I think one of the councilmembers asked if it was overtime. I'm really thankful that you're not just looking to overtime. I think that there's also a big difference, at least in the data that we're seeing. So my other job in the difference in the culture of the new employees, you have your baby boomers who really drove to and really gravitated towards that over time. And our our younger generation is just not in that same mindset. And I think that the number one most important thing, and I think this really builds on what Councilman's and Day has said, is that those officers need to be in a fresh and community focused, engaging position. And that I will tell you, in my experience, if I was working in the Lakewood Mall, the constant community engagement is a different type of shift than a shift, responding to calls. And it takes a different mindset. And I think it's really important for us as our police department that first and foremost, we're making those right decisions. And I know that every program that the council brings forward, we always think that the ideas we bring forward are the best ideas based on the community input we receive. But we do need that additional insight and support. So I look forward to seeing the proposal that was in Chief US City Manager Monica's budget to see what that looked like in your mind before getting the council input, because I know that you're really in tune with the officers. At least that's what I'm hearing from the boots on the ground. And I really appreciate that. Thank you for coming to our community meeting. And there's just a tone about what you're doing with our officers that I just want to keep that going and support it. As you've been doing such a great job so far. Thank you so much. Thank you. Vice Mayor Richardson. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. And I thank my colleagues for their feedback and their comments. And I want to make sure that all of that is sort of incorporated here. And I'll enumerate just a few things that I heard. But, you know, it's great to see that, you know, everyone and it was never a question. You know, the whole council supports community policing. I think we just have some data in the past two years that really showed that the public likes it too and the public likes and I was out there, you know, with our commander, you know, during the neighborhood walks, it felt really good. And we want to start you want to make that structural. We want to invest in that because we had a very difficult two years. So the more we can have people out walking the beat, if you notice the larger support also have business improvement district saying the very same thing. You know, folks in downtown saying we need help. Sure, we have bid we have bid security. But, you know, we want to see our, you know, police be helping us out. And I know and you know, the last program, they called it the Neighborhood Safe Streets. Your website says a number of things o n the patrol bureau, says bicycle beats, says K-9 beats. So we just pick bicycle beats off your website because it sounded cooler. But whatever you want to call it, Mr. Chief, call it whatever you like. The data suggestion, I think. What was that with that councilman zero on the data. No, it was Councilwoman Allen. So absolutely whatever mechanism we can do, I think people want to know that we're making investments that are smart and and produce the results that we hope that they will produce. So tracking data and all of that makes a whole lot of sense. So if we could put some thought into that, how you can make sure that happens in the budget would be great. This conversation of overtime versus structural, I typically I would prefer structural, but I know you have to figure out what you have to figure out. So I'm just interested in find out how you're going to approach it. And the last thing on also going to the Budget Oversight Committee. Absolutely. That's been our process in the past. And I don't know why we would deviate from that. And so we also, you know, will hope that the EEOC takes this takes this discussion out. And so I'm happy to accept those things. And thank you for this discussion. That concludes my comment. I urge and I vote. Thank you. Thank you. I just want to make a couple of comments. I think all the council has made their comments and I think we've concluded public comment as well. Obviously, I believe that we received a mr. Mica, your budget recommendations for, I believe, Friday of last week, and so I have not yet reviewed them personally. I look forward to doing so this week and I think we can have our first meeting on those recommendations and I look forward to working on that budget as is presented to the Council in the next few weeks as we're looking forward to getting it out to the public for public comment and input. I will just say broadly speaking, and I've been talking with former Chief Luna and certainly with Chief Kibosh, I've been a huge proponent of additional police officers on bicycles. It's something that I've talked to you, Chief, since your first day on the job. And I've been talking to talking to Chief Luna as well. The more that police officers are accessible on bicycles, patrolling, walking neighborhoods, I think they really speak to a community approach to policing. That's very welcome. I know. And I think it's important to always note that there are different types of needs in policing, and oftentimes with response times and other needs, there are obviously adjustments have to be made. And it's up to you and your team to figure out what works and what approach works where. But any time that you're able to bring in more folks on the street and certainly more more embedded with a community and a neighborhood, I think is really, really important. And so I want to just think the department for having really invested in walkability and have invested in community policing over these, particularly in these last year or two, I think there have been changes and shifts in the department. And I just want to thank you for your commitment to doing that and an encouragement to continue to do more. And so I also, of course, am supportive of what's in front of the council and what the council all said tonight as well. And so I just want to thank the department and everyone involved in supporting and continuing to support our community policing and bike policing programs. And with that, we have a motion and a second. Members, please go ahead and cast your vote. District one by district two. I. I. Three. District five. II. District six. By District seven, by District eight. District nine. II. The motion is carried. Thank you. And, Mr. City Attorney, we had an announcement on two items. Yes. Thank you, Mayor. Mayor, members of the council. We're requesting that item 28 be withdrawn this evening. The our understanding and the intent of Assembly Bill 481 is to have the list available for inspection by the public for 30 days prior to the Council's discussion on that. And it's come to our attention that the list was amended on Friday to add one additional piece of equipment. And we would we would ask that this item be continued to allow the revised list to be made public for the entire 30 day comment period and then be brought back to the council at that time. Make the motion. Second. And this is item 17. I joined 23 International. Okay. It's moved. Seconded. Do we need to public comment again on this? No. No. Okay. Councilman. Sorry. Your comments. Yeah. I just want to thank, you know, Eric Romero, who was formerly with the Economic Development Department for all his hard work, as well as our Midtown People board members, as well as all the business owners for voting and making sure that to renew the midtown bid, it's a long time coming. It's been a bit of a two year process, but we're here and I just want to congratulate them all for the hard work and that it's just going to make sure that we continue on to this road to recovery in the aftermath of the pandemic. And I'm just so excited for us to build on the vision that Midtown that has to making it better and safer and stronger and most of all supporting our businesses and our neighborhood in the area. So thank you very much. Congratulations, everyone. All right. And I'll just add my congratulations to the Midtown PBA Board. You know, with what you know, like the councilwoman said, as we move forward to the recovery, there's lots of investment to be made. And that's an incredible partner, incredibly important partner to make sure that midtown continues to head in the right direction. And so congratulations to all of you. Let's go ahead and cast our vote on 17. Councilman's in the house. All right. Councilwoman Allen, I. Councilman Price. Councilman. Super now. I. Councilwoman mongo. I. Councilwoman Sara, i. Councilmember, your conga line. Councilman Austin. Hi. Vice Premier Richardson. Motion carries nine zero.

We've done item 23. Next item is 2024. Report Report and Financial Management Recommendation Award a contract to courtesy Chevrolet Center of San Diego, California, for the purchase of various Chevrolet sedans, utility vehicles and trucks, and a total annual amount not to exceed 1,500,000 citywide. Thank you. A motion is our second. It's been moved in second. Then he called comment on this item. If there are any members of the public, they would like to speak on item 24 and person. Please line up at the podium in Zoom. Please use the raise hand feature or. The start line now. See. Now, that concludes public comment. Thank you. Let's go ahead and ballot. Councilwoman Zendejas. All right. Councilman Allen. Councilman Price. I. Councilman Supergirl, I. Councilman Mongo. Hi. Councilwoman Sara, I. Councilmember Urunga. I. Councilman Austin. Hi. Vice Mayor Richardson. All right. Motion carries eight zero 25. Councilman Zoro. I council member younger. Hi, Councilman Austin. Hi. Vice Mayor Richardson. All right. Motion carries nine. Of 21 police. And 2021 recommendation to request City Manager to work with Development Services Department to provide a report back to the City Council within 60 days on the status of senior housing in Long Beach. I'm so impressed. Thank you. A motion. One minute here. Hello, my am. Okay. Thank you to Councilman Austin for signing on to this item. I'm looking forward to this agenda item coming back to city council. And I have been reading some of the correspondence that we received today about the item from various senior housing advocates and folks that are interested, like the caller received. Earlier, about the. Future of senior housing in the city of Long Beach. As our Long Beach population ages, it's increasingly more and more important for us as a city to think proactively about the needs of our seniors. Community, housing, security and availability is a major issue for our senior population in Long Beach. And we should also make sure that as this Council, we're focused and work together to develop for the city's future needs in terms of senior housing for decades to come. It's been a while since we've had a comprehensive report on senior housing in Long Beach today. In fact, I'm not sure in the eight years that I've been here that we've had a comprehensive report on where we are and how we can incentivize or fund more senior housing in the years and decades to come. A lot of times we have developers who want to develop housing projects in the city of Long Beach, and it's very difficult to incentivize them or get them interested in a senior housing project because a lot of times the financials just don't make sense. But it's so much beyond financials and all the work that we're doing to make sure we have inclusionary housing throughout the city where we accommodate workforce and low to mid affordable housing units. We're not doing the same for senior housing and I think that needs to be a major focus for us moving forw ard. We've seen investment after investment in housing in the city of Long Beach, but very little investment is put specifically into senior housing. And we do have some success, successful projects and some success stories in regards to senior housing, but we certainly use should use that as a base to develop more. One of the other things that we hear a lot about is as we move forward and we we consult with futurists and urbanists about what kind of housing developments we want to incentivize in the city of Long Beach. We talk a lot about mixed use development and ones that are targeted specifically for seniors so that they don't have to drive there. There's a lot of walkability and a communal type of environment. So I'd like to know, as part of this agenda item, what opportunities we have in the future to attract developers to the city of Long Beach, to focus on senior housing projects, mixed use, senior housing projects and projects that will keep seniors who are looking to downsize because they're empty nesters. Their children have moved on and built their own families. How we keep them here in the city of Long Beach and not lose them to surrounding neighboring cities that offer more senior communities. So I ask my colleagues to support this item. And again, thank Councilman Austin for signing on. Thank you. Thank you. Councilman Austin? Yes. I'm happy to sign on to this item. It makes a lot of sense in light of our most recent homeless count. That actually was very, very, very illuminating. And talking about the amount of people over the age of 54 that were living that are living on the streets currently. And I think that's most more than 50%. And so this item, I think, is timely. It makes a lot of sense for us to to study, look at opportunities to find out where we are, but also to look at the opportunities to develop more senior housing to meet the needs of our community and our residents today. I'd like to just say that I think that there are some some unique opportunities, particularly with surplus lands that both are with the city, but also the school district. And I would ask the city manager's office to look into those areas. And then to the maker of the motion. Councilmember Price I just it says that, you know, to work with developmental services, that department, but I would just open it up and allow the city manager to include all departments, including economic development and the housing authority to to look at, you know, opportunities there. If you be open to that friendly. Absolutely. I think that's a great idea. Thank you. Thank you so much. Happy to support. Thank you, Councilwoman Sara. Thank you, Vice Mayor. I appreciate this item that's brought forward by Councilwoman. Pryce, because, you know, I have quite a few affordable housing for seniors in my district. And in fact, I have, I think already maybe 2 to 3 buildings that's been there for a while. One of it is Mercy Housing. And I have actually a few more that's going up and that's that's going to be targeting low income seniors. So I love to see how based off of the housing element plan that was created, how it can be looked at throughout the whole city, which is what this item requests. On the income range of the seniors that you know it'll be available for because I do like to see and support housing for seniors throughout the whole city and how you could certainly build more. Thank you. Support the item. Thank you, Councilwoman Allen. I yes. I also think this is a great item. Councilwoman Pryce and I will be supporting this. I know that our second District Senior Commission representative, Alan Goldstein, has shared that more affordable housing is going to be really important in the growing elder abuse problems. I did want to ask Councilwoman Pryce if she would consider I got this question from one of my residents, which I thought was good. Can you look at how we can ease the senior housing navigation system? I'm hearing that each senior has to apply at each building rather than going through a central system. So that could be something. We could look. Into. Absolutely. I think that's a really good idea, too. I just wasn't aware that that's a hurdle, but absolutely anything we can do to help. Okay. And then one more Councilwoman Pryce also. Do you think that that you would consider also. Including the senior commission and the development of this report. Another excellent idea. Yes, absolutely. Maybe they can. I don't I absolutely want to do that. I don't know mechanically how that would happen. Would City Manager then work with the Commission to solicit input? I'm open to what however we want to do it. I think typically with a commission like that, we this is more of a request for information. We've done a number of presentations in the past on affordable housing. So we can kind of bring those together, show which ones are the senior projects, and then we would present that. And then we can give that to the senior commission probably after we do the two from four. And if they have certain recommendations that they would want to fold or forward on meeting, then we would do that and forward that on as well. So we can do it in a two step so we don't have to slow down the presentation of the report. I totally open to that. I think that's a great idea. Okay. Thank you, Councilwoman Pryce. And then also, this is for the city manager. Do the housing developments qualify. For density bonuses? Yes, there are certainly density bonuses that have to do with affordable housing, that state law. And so we can provide a little bit of information on that

that's not restricted just to seniors, but certainly affordable housing projects. ROTHERT okay. That's all my questions. A great item, and I'll be supporting it. Thank you, Councilwoman Zendejas. Thank you so much, Vice Mayor. Thank you, Councilwoman Pryce and Councilmember Al Alisyn for this item. I'm really excited about it. As you know, I'm very passionate about the senior community here in our city and also the disability community here in our city. So I really think that this is a timely item to bring forward and we really do need to know more about what we have here in our city. And one of the things that I would like to see are ask Councilmember Price, if you would consider to me be even just in parentheses, include of people with disabilities. The reason that I ask that is that, one, a lot of times people with disabilities are forgotten about and not really thought of. But at the same time, people with disabilities have a lot of the same income issues that seniors do, and a lot of seniors also have disabilities. So I don't know if that's something that you might be may consider adding in to this. Absolutely. And I thank you because you've brought that issue to light for a lot of us. We've talked about things like things that we take for granted, like elevators, for example, in housing projects. And so. Yes, absolutely. I mean, I think the most important thing is for our city team that looks at this issue to figure out what incentives can be made available for additional housing. And you're absolutely right. Many of our seniors have either, you know, well, they're all differently abled, but if they do have a specific disability, they have that additional hurdle in addition to affordability that that we don't think about. So absolutely. Yes, I'm happy to include that in the report and anything else anybody wants. I think, you know, this is a city wide report. We all like we all have seniors in our district. So. Yes. Thank you. Thank you. And the reason that I say that is because me being a person living with a disability, I lived in a place that was not accessible to me for ten years because I could not find a place that was accessible and affordable because the places that I was finding were either they were accessible, but I could not afford them or they were affordable, but I could not access them with my wheelchair. So I really appreciate and thank you again. All right. Thank you. And that satisfies the council comment at my support as well. I think it's a great item to request the support and all the amendments have made it even even better. You know that as long as I've worked in the city of Long Beach, I've always known that senior housing projects are always welcome in the community. I can think of, you know, great projects like the Senior Arts Colony. Every affordable housing tour makes a stop at the Senior Arts Colony or Ramona Senior Housing up in the ninth District that took an old, dilapidated bank that had vacated and turned into a great project that added 61 units of affordable housing. And I know we have an aging population. Councilman also made a great point about the homeless count. We can't take off an eye off the eye, off the ball despite how well we've done on particularly this particular group. So thank you so much. Is there any public comment on item 22? If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item 22 in person, please stand up at the podium in Zoom. Please use the raise hand feature or dial star nine. Now we have one in Zoom. Sorry. This is item 21. Terry Quinlan, your housing. Thank you again. This is Terry Quinn and thank you, Susie Prize for bringing this to the city's attention. And please incorporate mobile home parks because they already exist. I did look up and found out that there are 2000 parks in the city of Long Beach and so they are affordable housing units. And I hope that you will consider that as part of your discovery as well. Thank you. Thank you. Mr. Kim. Thank you, Vice Mayor. Son, I can't face successor president. One of the greatest things about the sixth district is that, proportionally speaking, we house the most seniors. Check the facts. One of the things one of the things that I would love Development Services Department to put in this report. If we just put in Friendly's in there as a citizen, I would love. For one to see that in the data cluster. I have already looked at it, but just for the sake of the public. Uh, where are the, the the density, the proportionally speaking citywide of where are the seniors running? The second part is that because if we really want to be serious about housing our elderly population, we need to figure out a way to mandate the covenant housing for perpetuity because that I my personal experience of engaging with private equity people, there's two ways of how they look at senior housing. Um, they look at it as pre because a lot of buildings there's three you can look you can also put that in the report there's three buildings that are on their way out in terms of covenant housing. The covenant is about to be up. So they look for buildings like that to buy them and they kick out all the old people. I mean, we saw that happen here, um, on Ocean with the Breakers. Um, there's bigger buildings. I think the Lutheran one is one of them, where people are salivating, waiting to buy the building so they can kick out all the seniors. That's one thing. And then the second thing is that, you know, because of our transit hub fixation with density and everything is that they want to develop in the transit hubs, the housing. Uh, but it doesn't have the strenuous covenant of the past. So that's yesteryear. It's 47 years or more. These people are developing in transit hubs like the Arts Council colony. That was just reference people. You can look at how long that one is. People are developing those buildings with the mindset of will take federal money for a couple of decades right will alleviate are either bond restrictions or loan restrictions and then we'll we refinance by the time we refinance. We no longer legally have to do senior housing anymore. I think we can kick out all the old people and do really want to do, which is basically get a tax free luxury unit apartment building in the transit hub. So I just think that these are the kind of things that ne ed to be in the report because it's very actively being done right now by entities nationwide like Blackstone, you know, and Linamar and a couple of other ones. So just things that that we can throw out because if we really want to house our seniors, we have to do it forever, not just for a slight amount of time. Thank you. Thank you. All right. That satisfies public comment. Let's cast their votes. Councilwoman Zendejas. Right. Councilman Allen. All right, Councilman Price. Councilman Suber. Not I. Councilwoman Mongo. Hi. Councilman Ciro, i. Councilmember Urunga. I. Councilman Austin. All right. Vice Mayor Richardson. Motion carries nine zero. But why don't I just go through these? I we just go to these quickly. Item number ten, please. Item ten is communication from Council in price of recommendation to request City Manager to work with the Health and Human Services Department to provide a comprehensive presentation on the monkeypox virus. Someone Price. Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I think the items self-explanatory and I think staff is going to be prepared to come back because only face wash costs. Someone has their mike on for I. Can you hear me, Mr. Mayor? Yes. You're clear. Okay. I think the item is self-explanatory, and I look forward to staff's presentation on the monkeypox virus, because I think we're getting all getting a lot of questions about it and how it transmits and how to make sure that our residents are being protected. So I look forward to hearing the presentation from staff and I felt it was important to request a study session, as is the protocol. Any time we're dealing with health issues through our health department that the council wants to be educated on. So thank you. Thank you. Can I get a motion, please, in a second. Is there any public comment on this? If there are any members of the public that would like to speak on item ten in person, please let up at the podium in Zoom. Please use the raise hand feature. Chasing None sequel. But please. Councilwoman Sun has. I. Councilwoman Allen I. Councilwoman Price I. Councilman Sabrina. I. Councilwoman Mango. I can tell you in sorrow. I can't remember anger. I can't. I'm in Austin. All right. Vice Mayor Richardson. All right. The motion is carried nine zero.
